Russian Advance Continues Today

German Communiqué Says Red Forces Have Invaded Yugoslavia; Moscow Describe Flight of Germans From Latvian Port Of Riga As 'Strategically Hopeless'.

London, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Russian troops have invaded Yugoslavia after crossing the Danube just west of the iron gate at Orsova, the German communiqué made known today.

"In the Danube bend, there was lively reconnoitering activity on both sides of the iron gate," said the official war bulletin, broadcast from Berlin. "Soviet forces who have advanced south from Orsova in a southern direction were repulsed and enemy formations which had crossed the Danube were smashed."

Orsova is on the river front and only Yugoslav territory lies to the south. Moscow has not yet confirmed an incursion into the territory where Marshal Tito's partisan army operates, but weeks ago told officially of reaching the iron gate—the wild mountainous canyons through which the Danube courses through the Transylvanian Alps.

The Germans asserted that several thousand prisoners were taken in Warsaw and that another 10,000 were taken in the city of Komorowski's underground army surrendered.

By DANIEL DE LUCE Moscow, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Soviet military analysts described as "strategically hopeless" today the position of German troops attempting to withdraw from the Latvian port of Riga along a hotly strafed coastal escape road.

The Russian drive, enveloping an additional 200 Latvian settlements yesterday, approached Riga from the north. The German command decided apparently to move the bulk of its troops out of the Riga pocket, rather than risk entrapment by a possible Russian breakthrough west of the Latvian capital.

Front dispatches told of rearguard actions outside Riga and heavy enemy movements westward on the Lituania road leading to western Lithuania and East Prussia.

Meanwhile other Red army forces, outflanking the key army pass through the Carpathian mountains, reached the soil of eastern Slovakia. The decisive moment seemed near for the fourth Ukrainian army, led by Col. Gen. Ivan Petrov, to crack the tough German and Hungarian defense zone along the crest of the Carpathians in that sector.

Petrov's command, which includes units of the first Czechoslovak army, won dominating high ground along the border six miles west of Uoak pass.

The WAR TODAY AN ANALYSIS OF THE NEWS

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR. Substituting for DeWitt MacKenzie Just as expected, the defeat at Arnhem and Allied failure to walk through the Siegfried Line has resulted in widespread belief that the war has gone to pot. Forgetting how we glossed over defeats two and three years ago, we are now "success-conditioned" and every temporary setback becomes a major catastrophe.

It was true at Cassino, and when the Germans and bad weather delayed us a little while in Normandy, and now again when we have lost in a dramatic episode, fewer men than have the Germans in many actions which failed even to make the front pages. It is a reaction from a few weeks ago when the German army was "broken" and speculation was rife as to whether it could make even a halfway decent stand on the Rhine.

Now we are talking of a winter war of frustration on the Western front. Churchill, naturally taking the opportunity to overcome any possible remaining overconfidence, reminds that it could be, but carefully abstains from saying it will. Well, it could be. People fighting with their backs to their homes often upset the best military calculations. On September 28, 1941, there were few who conceded the

WILL SEEK OIL IN THIS STATE

Major Companies Lease Land Along The Coast.

Elizabeth City, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Geologists working under the direction of the Standard Oil Co., exploring the surface of approximately two million acres of land under lease to the company within a 50-mile circle radiating from Roanoke island in Dare county, will within the next few weeks indicate the site of the first exploratory well to be drilled in what is developing into one of the nation's most exciting oil-hunts, according to an exclusive story appearing in the Advance this afternoon.

Drilling for oil will be underway when machinery is sent here from the company's Oklahoma oil fields and meanwhile the land-leasing campaign is continuing energetically, with three leasing parties working from here under the direction of H. C. Kaufman of Standard's land acquisition staff. The company has under lease from the state about a million and a quarter acres, and is leasing upwards of a million acres from private owners.

Keen competition among oil companies developing in the Albemarle section of northeastern North Carolina was given new impetus yesterday with the announcement that W. A. Julian, treasurer of the United States, had purchased 167,495 acres of land in Dare county, which appears to be the center of activity. Mr. Julian is understood to be acting in his own private interest. His purchase will not be final until the sale under a mortgage deed of trust is confirmed at midnight Saturday.

Under the Standard's contract agreement with the state, the company obligates itself to drill at least one well within 18 months of the beginning of the contract period, which was June 16 of this year. Mr. Kaufman said here today that the company will drill the first well as soon as surveys select the site and the machinery can be brought here for the beginning of operations.

Insofar as is known here, only Standard has any agreement or other plan to drill a well. At least five other companies, some of them producers of oil and others with speculative interests, are leasing lands and awaiting results of Standard's (Continued on page four)

Farm Machinery Rationing Ends

Washington, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Rationing and distribution control of all farm machinery and equipment, except corn pickers, was ended Sunday by the War Food Administration.

The action was announced by War Food Administrator Marvin Jones, who said the 1944 production period and season of use for most rationed implements had passed and that the need for further controls except on corn pickers during the 1944-45 crop year "is not anticipated."

Jones said the ending of rationing of these items was in line with WFA's policy of "constantly examining all of its wartime regulations and removing them as soon as they are no longer essential."

But today's military set-up hardly fits the same mold. The Allies probably have the Western front three times as many men as do the Germans. They are better equipped, their rear areas are practically free from the constant bombing which harries every German move, and they have unlimited resources behind them.

It would have been very helpful if the airborne troops could have held the Rhine bridge at Arnhem. But the jobs back and forth up and down the front are only the wac-up rounds in the real battle for Germany. Delay now, as at Caen, means only that once again Eisenhower is sending no boys to do a man's job. The German campaign will start when he is ready to start it, and that probably very soon.

The Germans keep counter-attacking the American First and Third Armies, while fighting bitterly to contain the still-attacking British, French and American Seventh in other sectors. On the Russian front that would mean the First and Third are building up the strength the Germans fear most. Here it may mean only that slightly less pressure permits counter-attacks in the center while Patton and Hodges await the zero hour and complete their reorganization after the readjusting dash across France. BUTTER POINT VALUES GO UP Make Rapid Progress On Road To The Philippines

Will Cost 20 Points Per Pound Beginning Sunday. Yank Occupation Of Peleliu About Completed; Airmen Smash More Jap Shipping.

Washington, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Reflecting short supply and spotty distribution, the ration value of creamery butter goes up four points Sunday to a new high of 20 points a pound.

This increase is the only point change to be made in October, OPA announced today. All other rationed foods—meats, other dairy products and processed foods—retain their current values.

Hinting the record-high points on butter may continue through December, OPA Administrator Chester Bowles said.

"There are no two ways about it, we civilians are going to have to get along with less butter than formerly—at least during the next 90 days or so. We simply don't have anywhere near the normal supply of butter to distribute."

The government has ended its butter purchases for the year but OPA said production so far this year is about 12 per cent under that in the corresponding period of 1943. July production of creamery butter was the lowest in 22 years, with output continuing to taper in August and this month, WFA reported. Production normally declines in the Fall and begins to rise again in December.

Predicting that spotty distribution may continue to prevail during the next two months, Bowles pointed out that many grocers already are limiting customers to a quarter or half pound of butter at a time.

The purpose of the new 20 point value, he said, is to build up stocks in the trade so that "more people everywhere will be able to get some butter during the next month."

The hike does not apply to farm or processed butter, which continues at 12 points a pound, or to margarine which stays at two points a pound.

Notice To Subscribers

Attention of our subscribers is again called to the necessity of securing their subscriptions on a PAID-IN-ADVANCE basis. Because of the manpower shortage it became necessary some time ago for us to discontinue our collectors and have all subscriptions paid direct to the office, either by mail or in person.

We realize that our rural subscribers have been unusually busy for the past several weeks getting in their crops, and we have refrained from dropping them from our lists during this emergency. It is necessary, however, that all subscriptions, both rural and city, be paid up by the end of this month, as we will revise our lists on October 1. Rural subscribers can ascertain their expiration dates from the label on their paper, and if the date is prior to 10-1-44 it is necessary that you revert during this month to avert being dropped from the list. Card notices of expiration dates have been mailed to our city subscribers and it is likewise necessary that they renew before the end of this month.

We have a number of service men on our list whose subscriptions were sent by friends or relatives, but in some instances we do not have the name of the person who sent the paper. We hesitate to send expiration notices to these service men, and certainly we do not want to stop their papers, so if you have been subscribing for a service man's paper please check our office for expiration date of same.

He indicated that he considered a new three-power meeting to include Premier Marshal Stalin was essential before revelation of peace plans. Opening a two-day war and peace debate, the Prime minister made these points, among others: 1. That perhaps 200,000 Germans are now trapped in Holland and the capture or destruction appeared "highly probable." 2. That German losses in France, Belgium and Holland since D-day can now be placed officially at 400,000 killed and wounded, with nearly 500,000 more as prisoners. 3. That Allied losses during the same period now stand at 90,000 British and 145,000 Americans, killed, wounded or missing. 4. That "no one—certainly not I—can guarantee that several months of 1945 may not be required to finish off Germany."

British Smash Forward On North German Front

New Allied Gains On Italian Front Today

Americans Capture Important Point On Rimini-Bologna Highway; British Enlarge Bridgehead.

By GEORGE BREA Rome, Sept. 28.—(AP)—American troops of the Fifth Army have captured Castel Del Rio, about 15 miles below Imola, an important town on the Rimini-Bologna highway. Allied headquarters announced today that the British had captured the heights, lost in a fierce Nazi counterattack two days ago, the Americans also seized Mount Carnevale, southeast of Castel Del Rio.

British and Dominion troops in the Adriatic sector enlarged their bridgehead over the Rubicon to a two-mile depth over a 10-mile front and closed in on the town of Savignano.

On the Adriatic sector Canadian troops of the Eighth Army captured Bellaria, a small seaside town eight miles beyond Rimini. Bellaria was found in possession of Italian patriots.

Other Fifth Army troops in the central sector occupied Castellone Del Peipoli and Brusca, five miles due east. Both are approximately 20 miles below Bologna, with Castiglione on a main highway leading directly to the big Italian city.

Advancing northwest from Sanl'Arcangelo, British troops moved to within 1,000 yards of Savignano, which the Nazis were defending strongly. Breaking through bitter opposition the British also reached within a mile of Mont Albano, on the crest of a ridge running north to Savignano.

Fifth Army troops on the west coast sector captured Quercia, six miles below the important town of Massa, and Vallecchia, east of Quercia, despite stubborn resistance and intense artillery fire.

The vessels sunk ranged from small coastal craft to medium-sized supply ships, the announcement said.

During the operations the British raiders penetrated into Sunda strait between Java and Sumatra, attacking shipping lanes along the coasts of both islands and even ventured into Port Owen on the southern coast of Burma, where two gunboats were sunk while lying at anchor.

Oil tanks on Christmas island off the south coast of Java also were bombed.

The line of German retreat from southeastern Europe runs through the mountainous country, studded with strongholds of Yugoslav and Albanian partisans attacking with ever-increasing vigor.

The landings were made by sea-borne and airborne forces of the land forces of the Adriatic, and Berlin has acknowledged that they were made "from Albania all along the whole Dalmatian coast" lying to the north. The German raid claimed the forces were meeting with fierce Nazi resistance.

Midway Feature Pitt County Fair

The J. C. Weer Shows contracted to furnish the midway attractions for the Pitt County Fair in Greenville October 16 to 21, feature two of the tallest ferris wheels on tour for the duration.

Still one of the most popular devices with both young and old on any midway, the original ferris wheel invented for the Columbia Exposition in 1893 was built entirely of wood and turned very slowly. J. T. Sullivan, a bridge builder from Hoochouse, Ill., conceived the idea of building them of steel to make them portable.

J. C. Weer, owner of the show bearing his name, has streamlined his show, carrying the new type devices designed to meet modern trends. The Moon Rocket, one of 30 attractions on the midway and reputed to be the fastest portable ride on tour, furnishes the rider the sensation of riding in a B-29 bomber. The Rolo-O-Plane lends the sensation of riding in a fighter plane diving to the kill. The Fly-O-Plane will give its passenger the same thrills a student pilot experiences on his first solo flight, as the passenger is given the opportunity to control their own individual miniature plane. Even the kiddie rides on the midway are streamlined for the tiny tots. Miniature airplanes a few feet above the ground delight the young patrons.

JAPS GAIN ON CHINA FRONT

Heavy Fighting Continues In Kwangsi Province.

By SPENCER MOOSA
Chungking, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Japanese forces have lunged out in a new direction into Kwangsi province, the Chinese high command disclosed tonight, while other enemy troops virtually completed encirclement of Poaching, a town in their right flank whose capture would permit a rapid advance against the Kwangsi capital of Kweilin.

The new drive came from Lotien in Kwangtung province, about 110 miles southwest of Japanese-occupied Canton. It drove into Kwangsi in a northwesterly direction, heading toward the west river, west of Wuchow. The maneuver apparently is intended to block the escape of Chinese forces south of Wuchow. The Chinese high command claimed its forces, operating behind enemy lines, dislodged the enemy from three villages, but these were regarded principally as local successes not likely to affect the main purpose of the Japanese drive.

Heavy fighting continued around Poaching, the high command said. One enemy spearhead has reached a point about 21 miles southwest of the city, another was 25 miles west of it, and a third only six miles northwest. Advance enemy units in some cases stabbed to within three miles west of Poaching in an effort to seal off the defenders.

The U. S. 14th air force is subjecting Japanese columns closing in on Kweilin to ceaseless assaults by day and night, and has assisted Chinese troops in driving entrenched enemy forces from a hill position near Poaching, Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters announced today.

Poaching is about 150 miles north of Kweilin, Kwangsi capital and site of a strategic U. S. air base. A concentration of about 3,000 Japanese also was bombed near Sinning, about midway between Poaching and Kweilin.

Heavy bombing and strafing attacks were made on Japanese forces south and east of Kweilin, the command said. The Chinese high command announced last night that the Japanese were approaching Kungcheng, 47 miles southeast of Kweilin.

Sweeping raids were made on Japanese communications over a wide area extending from Changsha in Hunan province westward to the Salween river front in Yunnan and down into Thailand and French Indo-China. One plane was lost in all these operations.

Washington, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Interior Secretary Ickes today made public a letter addressed to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey in which he promised the Republican presidential nominee he will step down from the cabinet if and when the incredible comes to pass and you become the President of the United States.

Dewey recently gave Ickes a high priority rating in projected cabinet changes.

Hunters Fined
Alton Renshaw, Archie Lee and Holland Langley, charged with violating the state game law and hunting squirrel out of season, were found guilty in Magistrate H. L. Jenkins' court. Each of the defendants was given 30 days in jail, sentence suspended on payment of $10 fine and costs, a total of $16.95 each.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day. If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up twice, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

State Guard To Hold Russian Advance ... Encampment Oct. 19

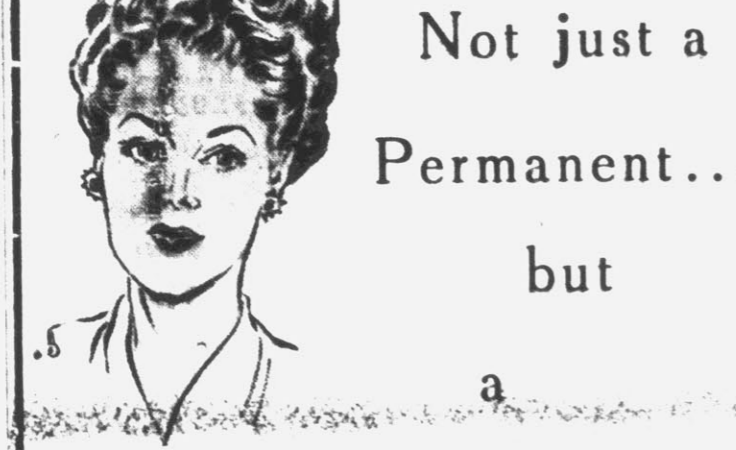

By CHESTER WALSH
The North Carolina State Guard will hold an encampment at Fort Bragg October 19-29. About 2,000 guardsmen are expected to participate in the program which has been designed to improve the ability of the guard to carry out its mission on the homefront. Col. James W. Jenkins, commanding general of the State Guard, said.

The first three days of the encampment will be devoted to a school for guard officers. The schedule then calls for a week of instruction and conditioning for all members of the guard. Army officers will serve as instructors. The encampment was originally scheduled in July, but was postponed because of the prevalence of infantile paralysis. Col. William S. Pritchard, commanding officer of district 2, Fourth Service Command for this state, will direct the training.

The Greenville State Guard company, one of the best drilled in the battalion, is under command of Capt. Jasper L. Jones. Postponement of the encampment from July until October made it inconvenient for many and impossible for some of the Greenville guardsmen to get off from their work during the busy fall season.

To Transfer Authority
Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 28.—(AP)—Governor Broughton indicated here Wednesday that proposals to transfer control and operation of the women's division of the State Penal Division to the State Board of Corrections and Training, probably would be presented to the General Assembly in 1945.

The Governor said that the supervision of women prisoners would be more a matter for the Board of Corrections and Training than for the Penal Division. He added that all agencies were agreed on this.

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

WE CAN EASILY GET TURNED ABOUT

When we spell the word "evil" backward, it spells "live." There is something here for us to think about—evil is life lived backwards.

Some people think that evil is normal and that good is abnormal. But this is not true. Goodness is normal and evil is abnormal. Just as cancer is a disease that has somehow become perverted in its growth, so evil is normal life that has become twisted and lived backwards. The man who tries always to do the right thing is continually going forward, but the man who studied to do evil is like a man walking backwards. If we do what is right, if we choose virtue and reject vice, decide for honesty and spurn dishonesty, take our stand in behalf of mercy and turn our backs upon revenge—if we do these things, life is a thrilling pilgrimage. But if we do the opposite, life is a dreadful, bitter, abnormal experience in which there is never any real happiness.

Evil is life lived backwards. Evil is the perversion of God's plan. As long as we allow ourselves to be fascinated by any temptation or broken upon the wheel of its evil practice, we are at variance with the true course of life. We have switched life about and are living it backwards.

AMERICA IN WARTIME

By JACK STINNETT

Washington.—During the lapse between the end of the war in Europe and the time when manufacturers can get civilian goods on the market, the public is going to get a chance to go on a buying spree. The purchasable items will be surplus "war" materials, but they will be usable by civilians. A check of various government agencies, including the War Food Administration, the Surplus Materials Disposal division, and several others discloses that there are some pleasant surprises ahead as soon as the "holy soil" of Nazi Germany is in the hands of the Allies.

Some items already are on the market. The fact that surplus airplanes are being sold to the public was written about in this column some days ago. The first small stream of GI shoes, high quality service footgear that may well become a standard work shoe, already has started on its way back to civilians too. Some Army trucks are being sold to farmers who can obtain priorities from their ration boards. Some tires are being disposed of the same way.

But these things are only a drop in the ten-gallon keg that will be turned upside down as soon as the curtain falls in the European theater. Almost immediately after that, there will be for the housewife great quantities of household appliances, even including such scarcities as washing machines, irons, sewing machines and refrigerators. There will be kitchenware of almost all kinds and tableware from knives, forks and spoons to unbreakable china and glassware.

Office equipment, which has been short ever since Pearl Harbor, will be offered in great quantities. Typewriters, adding machines, filing cabinets and office furniture will be plentiful.

Before global war's end, it is estimated, there will be nearly a billion dollars' worth of clothing and clothing materials turned back into the civilian market. The surplus food situation is a story in itself. The surplus includes nearly all of the perishables: canned goods, cured meats, cheeses. A large portion of this already is overseas and probably will be disposed of to the hungry nations which have been long under-fed, but huge amounts also will be released from Army warehouses and storage depots in this country. Some estimates on surplus stocks run as high as two billion dollars.

The list could go on endlessly. It would include medical supplies, hand tools, blankets, farm lands, hardware, alarm clocks, miles of mosquito netting, obsolete life rafts, bicycles and war plants. However, the dumping of all this surplus material isn't going to be a bonanza for consumers only. The government policy now is and will be to turn all of these things back to the manufacturers, for redistribution or reprocessing. From those sources they will flow out through the normal trade channels.

THE WAR TODAY

The airborne attacks in Holland were generally interpreted as the forerunners of an end run north of the Siegfried anchor at Kleve. Major forces are poised to the south for what could be direct eastward blows. Whatever it is to be, the Allied supreme command planned it that way, taking into consideration that there would be battles and perhaps setbacks, but without the slightest intention of letting a few days' delay at any point interfere with the main campaign plan.

entitled to the payments. The WAAC, not part of the Army, was the forerunner of the Women's Army Corps (WAC) which became part of the Army Sept. 30, 1943. So women—except those honorably discharged for disability—who were in the WAAC but did not remain to serve in the WAC are not entitled to mustering out pay. Q. Between Dec. 7, 1941 and Feb. 4, 1944, when mustering out pay became law, 1,300,000 persons were discharged from the military services. They are entitled to mustering out pay? A. Yes, if they met the conditions which entitle any veteran of this war to the payment. Q. If they haven't applied for the payment, how would they go about getting it? A. By applying to the branch of the military force in which they served. Q. Suppose a veteran was discharged after Dec. 7 and, after leaving the service, died before receiving any portion or the full amount of mustering out pay. Would that veteran's survivors be entitled to claim his—or her mustering out pay? A. Yes, if the veteran was entitled to it under the conditions outlined above. Q. Is mustering out pay tax free? A. Yes. And it is not subject to the claims of a creditor.

Will Seek Oil...

drilling. Where the company's well will be drilled is a matter of intense interest and speculation here, but Mr. Kaufman declares that the company does not itself know. Competition for lease-contracts appears to be keenest in the vicinity of Roanoke island, with outcroppings along the outer banks to beyond the Virginia line and south toward Cape Hatteras.

More than two years have now elapsed since the Standard's geophysicists were directed to explore the probability of oil east of the Appalachian mountains and they, after a survey reported that of all the region on the seaboard, the most promising region between Atlantic City and Miami was along the North Carolina coast country. One well was drilled 20 miles, from New Bern about 18 years ago and reached igneous rock at 2,399 feet. The exploration was then abandoned, since the experience of geologists is all against drilling through rock of that type.

Geologists are now making what amounts to a topographical map of a mountain range that lies buried at depths of from 3,000 to 5,000 feet below the surface of North Carolina tidewater country, sloping "down" from the vicinity of Havelock in Craven county toward Roanoke island. It is in the lower levels of the buried mountain chain that geologists hope they may find oil. One experimental well was drilled 40 miles north of Roanoke island by local prospectors about 30 years ago but was abandoned before reaching igneous rock.

Altogether upwards of five million acres have been leased by producing oil companies and speculative interests during the past year, and these activities have occasioned increasingly intense interest among the inhabitants of this sparsely settled region. "Of course, we don't know whether there is oil here or not," Mr. Kaufman said today. "We hope there is. And the only way to find out for sure is to drill wells. We will drill the first well, and if it doesn't produce oil, we'll drill others until we have exhausted the possibility of oil in the lands on which we have taken lease. This is the most thoroughly organized search that I have seen in my experience, and I hope we find oil. The eastern seaboard needs an oil field."

Norfolk, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Recent leases by the Gulf Oil Corporation of land in Princess Anne and Norfolk counties may amount to as much as 100,000 acres. E. C. Bothwell, vice-president in charge of production is quoted today by the Ledger-Dispatch as saying in a long distance telephone conversation from Pittsburgh.

He said these leases were made "strictly in view of similar leases by other companies," especially in the eastern section of North Carolina, and added that his corporation made no plans for drilling operations here in the near future. Standard Oil Company of New Jersey has extensive leases in the Pamlico Sound section of North Carolina, and in recent months the Ohio Oil Company has acquired rights on the eastern shore of Maryland. The Ledger-Dispatch says it was informed by an oil man not connected with these companies but who has kept in close touch with developments.

Bothwell said his company had no special reason to believe any great amount of oil would be found here, and added that Gulf had taken leases in the two southeastern counties of Virginia as a matter of protection in view of similar activities by competitors in the adjacent North Carolina area.

DEWEY WANTS CLEAN HOUSE

Would Rid Administration Of Bureaucrats.

By JACK BELL

Enroute to Albany With Dewey. Sept. 28.—(AP)—Nearing Albany and a pause in his presidential campaign, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey appeared today to be focusing his attacks on the New Deal more and more on appeals to voters to help him "clean house" in Washington. In train-stop addresses to railroad yard crowds, the G. O. P. nominee has emphasized that if the Republicans win in November he would sweep New Dealers out of the government from top to bottom.

"There is a job in Washington which I would particularly like to do," he told a Muncie, Ind., crowd yesterday. "I should like to start the best house cleaning job the government ever got."

The candidate apparently found responses satisfactory as he named Secretary of Interior Ickes, Secretary of Labor Perkins and others among those he would remove from influence in national affairs. In more than half-a-dozen train platform talks, such references have been greeted by yells from the crowds.

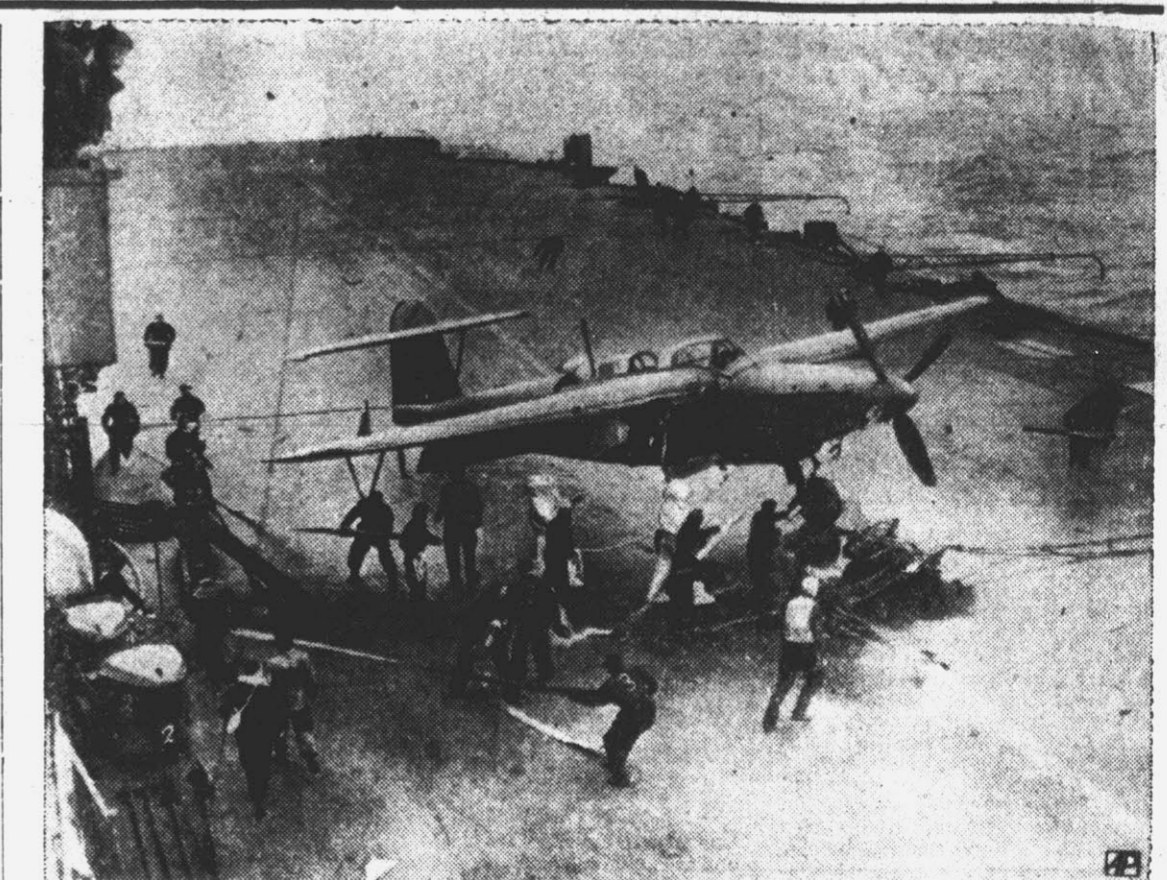

Dewey has warmed up to these responses, evidently convinced that people who climb box cars and trucks, perch atop automobiles and mass in streets at his appearances, like him to assail what he calls "bureaucratic regulations."

As he approached the end of an 8,500 mile campaign trail through 21 states to the west coast and back, the nominee found that train stop turnouts were increasing in size. After his caustic, fighting reply in Oklahoma City to President Roosevelt's first speech, Dewey was met by a Tulsa throng he said was the biggest station audience he had addressed in five years of political campaigning.

There were large crowds also at Monett and Springfield, Mo., and yesterday's turnouts at Muncie and Bellefontaine, O., were much larger than those in comparable towns earlier in the tour.

Dewey's return to Albany today was expected to signal a week of comparative quiet in the campaign while he catches up on speech-writing, tends to state business and gets a little rest at his Pawling farm next week-end.

The governor gave no evidence of fatigue as a result of the three-week trip, many nights of it spent on a moving train. Dewey made seven major addresses and gave 21 brief train-stop talks.

Pay Tribute To Lost Division

London, Sept. 28.—(AP)—The German Transocean news agency paid high tribute today to the British "Lost Division" of Arnhem, saying its members "fought like lions" and as the end neared "resisted with knives and pistols."

Transocean's correspondent Guenther Weber said in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press: "I spoke to German officers and men who have been in the fighting lasting for 250 hours. They said: 'The British airborne soldiers were the highest qualified men we have met during the entire invasion campaign. They fought like lions against the ever tightening ring.'"

Weber said the British division commander surrendered "only after being seriously wounded at close quarters."

The 82nd and 101st United States airborne division taking part in the fighting at Arnhem suffered heavy losses," he added. "The 82nd previously had taken part in operations in Sicily and the 101st in the Cotentin landings."

tribute was not needlessly demanded nor was it given without result. "The delay caused to the enemy's advance upon Nijmegen enabled the British second army and their American comrades in two other airborne divisions to secure intact the vitally important bridges and to

Hometown Girl

by J.C. FLEMING and LOIS EBY AP Features

Chapter 9
Chick's footsteps grew fainter, died away down the hall. Susan sighed and moved away from the door. The night of enchantment was over. A small Chinese lamp with an ornate brass shade gave only a dim light in the entrance hall. Susan went into the darkened living room. Sliding a hand along the wall she found the light switch and snapped it.

"Hello."
She whirled, too startled to scream. Slouched in a deep chair, grinning a little crookedly, was Erich!

His grin died at her stunned frown. "Have a good time tonight?" he said shortly. "Your boy friend seemed quite ardent."

Even in her confusion the quick excitement of Erich's presence went through Susan. She covered it with a show of anger.

"Is eavesdropping your favorite pastime?"
Erich lighted a cigarette slowly and let the smoke pour from his nostrils. "I had no idea I'd walk in to anything like this when Mrs. Cogswell told me I could wait for you."

Susan could feel her cheeks burning. She was glad he was here, glad he was jealous of Chick Malloy—and furious at herself for such feelings.

"I thought I made it quite clear over the telephone that I didn't want to see you again." She could hear her own heavy breathing and her heart pounding crazily.

"You didn't mean it."
"Then I gave you more credit than you deserve." His jaw was set hard, his voice challenging. "There are two sides to every story. No fair-minded person would pass judgment until he knew both sides."

Susan stared at him. Suddenly she was in Merrill's car again after the meeting at Scarbrough House that terrible night and her dark, lonely walk, and Merrill was saying, "Keep an open mind on this business—"

Maybe she should hear the Scarbrough side— But the name brought a wave of bitter shuddering helplessness. How could she keep an open mind when her father—

Erich turned and started toward the door. Susan stood there motionless, her mouth felt cottony and the room whirled about her as if on a turntable. And then suddenly the click of the closing door released her. She ran after Erich, calling his name soundlessly.

When she reached the corridor, elevator doors were just opening. At her gasp, he turned and she saw his face light up. Somehow she was down the hall and into his arms. The elevator man stood grinning behind them.

"I do care, I do care," she kept repeating fiercely.

The elevator doors clanged reluctantly behind them.

"My darling," Erich murmured. "When her sobbing quieted, Erich said firmly, 'I want you to go back to Midvale with me now, tonight and hear the other side of the story. Will you?'"

"But the Cogswells, I'd have to explain—"

"All set?"
Susan told the Cogswells you might go. They said it would be okay."

Susan scribbled a note to Gwen and Charley and propped it up against the desk lamp. Then she went quietly into her bedroom and packed the few things she had brought with her. When she came back into the living room Erich was already on his feet.

"All set?"
Susan nodded as Erich took her suitcase from her. She led the way across the room, snapped off the last stand lamp. As she turned back toward the door Erich's arms went around her. He piled her to him. She could feel herself trembling. He kissed her hard on the lips. The world, time, problems melted away.

Susan wondered on the way down in the elevator and on the half block walk to Erich's car whether this was not the dream following an enchanted evening. She got into his car, smiled dimly as he pulled her closer to him, started the engine.

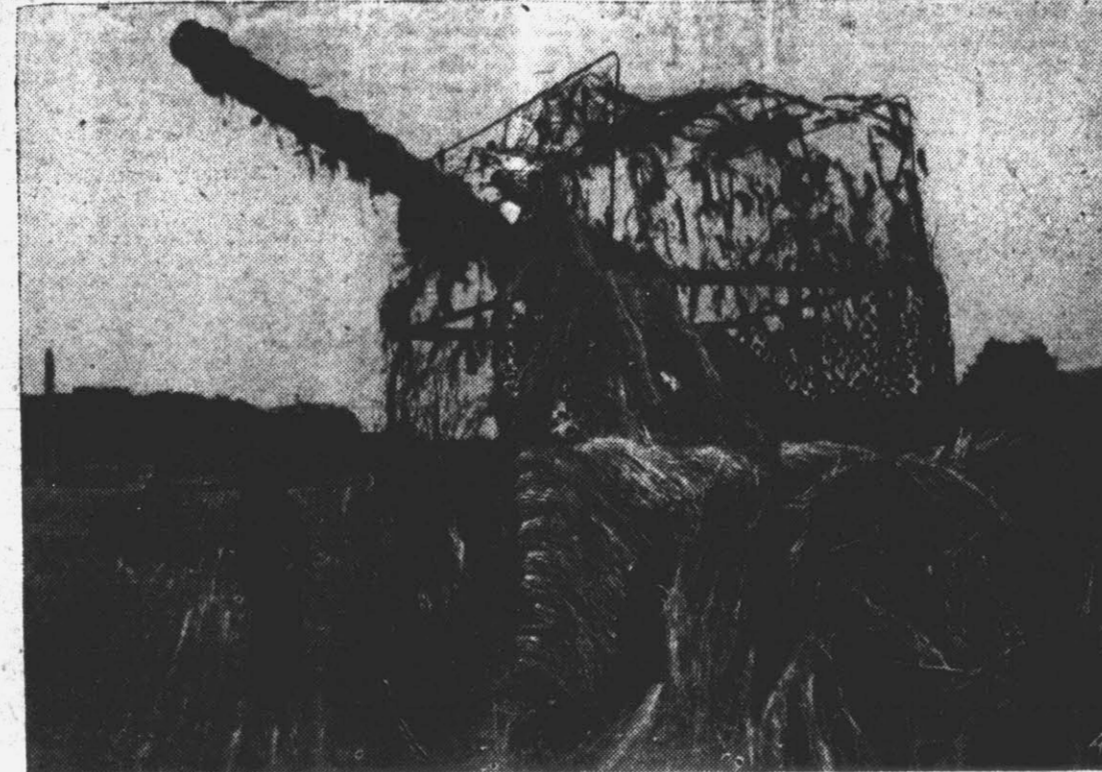

They left the city and went on through dark countryside. Overhead the sky was velvet and the Milky Way looked like a handful of silver dust flung across its expanse.

She asked Erich about all those years before she knew him. He told her casually, but to her it was a fabulous life. Vacations in Europe but always schools in America. Julie wanted him to be an American.

His father's death. More and more traveling. "Julie wanted to see every corner of the globe," he smiled. "I thought she was just a restless spirit. Until the day she came to see me graduate. I was already started on the paint research. She told me then she wanted me to come to Midvale. She wanted to start up her father's factory. She was a tire with the idea. I knew then her restlessness had been escape."

"And so you came," Susan murmured.

"Not when I had enlisted."
"You were in the army? I didn't know that."

"I was wounded and they sent me home. I don't think even Julie could have brought me to Midvale right from school. But I had a lot of time to think in the hospital. And Julie got to seem like a pretty regular person."

When they drove through Midvale the village was dark and deserted.

"Quiet little place, isn't it?"
Susan stared at him. He was serious. He gave a scoffing laugh. "Sure, but watch it. It doesn't rattle before it strikes."

The hill road was a grey, winding ribbon. They stopped in the shadows of the old trees that stood vigil in front of Scarbrough House.

Chapter 10
Once inside the dark house Erich led Susan into the library. "Sit down." He pulled a large leather chair up before the white marble fireplace. "I'll build a fire and take the chill off the room." He took a brass wood basket and went out.

Susan, sitting in the deep chair, drew her coat closer around her and tried to control her chattering teeth. She knew the room wasn't that cold. She had thought the night balmy on the ride out from Detroit.

It was nerves that were making her hands like ice, and sending annoying chills racing through her whole body. She put her head back against the chair, closed her eyes and tried desperately to calm herself.

"Tired?" Erich kissed her lightly on the cheek. "That's a silly question, after keeping you up most of the night."

They sat contentedly later, watching the flames crackling up from the dry timbers to scintillating patterns of shadows on walls and ceiling. Then Erich got up.

"I'll go and get mother."
Susan said, "It's a shame to wake her at such an ungodly hour. Maybe—"

Erich shook his head. "It was her idea. She said, 'If Susan will come back with you, call me no matter what time it is.' You see, Julie's worried about this as much as I have."

While she waited, Susan found herself dreading this encounter with Julie Scarbrough. Cold doubt assailed her. Out of the leaping flames in the fireplace a dark visage of Aunt Sarah seemed to rise, looking as she had the night Susan came home from the council meeting. Her lips moved in the same torrent of furious warning, and the old chill of foreboding went through Susan. She was in Scarbrough House!

And then a door opened behind her. Erich's voice said, "In here, Julie."

Susan relaxed at the sound of his voice. When she rose to face Julie Scarbrough the moment of panic was over.

Standing there in a sheer, grey negligee, her feather-cut white hair a blown chrysanthemum, Julie looked fragile, ethereal, except for her glowing dark eyes. She took one of Susan's hands in hers and said softly, "Thank you for coming Susan."

Julie dropped down onto the white fur hearth rug facing Erich and Susan. She lit a cigarette with a small silver lighter and sat there watching the fire. When she finally spoke her voice was quiet, almost casual.

"My story goes back a long way," she began, "long before either of you were born. My father had brought us out here from the east and started his factory. He made a great fortune. Almost everyone in Midvale then either worked for father or ran a store in the village."

"He was a large man, father, with a booming voice. He was moody and irascible. One day he would be in high spirits, sweeping through the village in his surrey, waving to everyone. The next, he'd be a thunder storm, cross, irritable, barking at any unlucky soul who crossed his path."

Susan listened tensely. It seemed suddenly to her she was hearing this familiar tale for the first time.

Julie's gaze moved to Susan. "It was my last year in high school that the Corboys moved to town. To the same house where you live now. Susan, John looked something like you, tall with dark, wavy hair, straight as an arrow. I loved him from the first day he carried my books up the hill for me. After graduation he went to Detroit to study chemistry. We planned to be married."

Julie's features seemed to darken. "When I told father our plans I thought he would kill me. He flew into a terrible rage. Shortly thereafter he sent me to Europe to school. I went with a cousin of my father's from Detroit. When I was 18 and we were living in Vienna I met Count le Favre. He was years older than I, very devoted. We were married."

Tossing her cigarette into the fire Julie sighed. "I was miserable that first year. But then Erich was born, and gradually I found contentment. When Erich was three my husband himself suggested my visit home." A smile touched her lips. "I remember he said, 'Now I believe you will come back to me. Always before I was afraid.' He was right. John and I met now only as dear friends. He, too, had married. You were a baby, Susan." Her voice lowered, her eyes stared into the fire.

street, threatened to discharge John from the laboratory of the plant. There were people there, of course. I was horrified, humiliated. When we were at home again I told father I never wanted to see him again, packed and left. I was in New York waiting passage for France when the factory burned. I read all the accounts. I don't know which was the more horrible shock—John's death, or the slow conviction that my father had murdered."

Julie opened her eyes. Tears glistened in them. "When he was dying," she said softly, "he sent for me and I went. His doctor told me the fire and the town's hatred of him had been like a cancer, killing him by slow torture. Father was a harsh man but a truthful one. 'The regret of my life,' he told me, 'is that I didn't let you marry Corboy. No matter what they say, his death was accidental. I swear it, I swear it!'"

IMPORTANT . . . TO COTTON FARMERS

I Have Just Received The Following Telegram:

Urgent that you contact all cotton farmers in your territory and urge them not to sell their cotton below true parity. Announcement yesterday that Government will buy cotton at parity means that thousands of bales will be sold at less than real parity prices unless we bring the facts before the farmers. The difference in parity prices between middling fifteen sixteenths and middling inch and a quarter is fifty-two dollars and fifty cents per bale and the difference even between middling fifteen sixteenths and one and one sixteenths inch is five dollars and twenty-five cents. Unless farmers have their cotton graded and stapled they will not know whether or not they are receiving full parity prices. You must contact the farmers and give this news wide publicity. The Association with three Government Licensed Classers is in a position to give quick service and to assure every cotton farmer in your territory that he is receiving true parity prices based on grade and staple values when he sells his cotton. We have a great responsibility in protecting the farmers interest.

BOMB DAMAGE IS STUDIED

Germany May Furnish Lessons For Attack On Japan.

By JAMES J. STREIB

(Associated Press Aviation Editor) Washington, Sept. 28.—Nazi surrender will open Germany as a classroom for an advanced course in how to better Japan from the air.

The lessons will be those which the Germans are getting from American and British bombers day after day, the damage being offered as exhibits in how the job could have been done better—if it could have been.

Army experts are traveling close behind the liberation forces to study the effectiveness of United States, Eighth, Ninth and Fifteenth air forces work over Europe.

By coordination their reports on damage with the amount and disposition of explosives and incendiaries by the bombers, lessons in destruction are being sent home for use in planning and training for future assaults.

Only one really major target has been liberated thus far, and experts say that the picture will not shape up adequately until Germany's war industry becomes available, a highly qualified group of civilian engineers, construction experts and scientists will take over for a report to the army air forces.

What that study brings out will be bad news for Japan, because it will help correct mistakes and improve older methods of bombing war industries, transportation and supplies.

The only major target reported on thus far is Ploesti, Rumanian oil capital. The best information is that this city's refineries had a capacity of 26,000 metric tons of fuel a day, but was producing only 13,000 tons because more was not available. American bombers cut that output to 3,000 tons a day, and the final raids of Aug. 17 and 18 practically shut down the industry.

More bad news for Japan is that the United States, having passed up the kind of flying bombs tossed at England by the Germans in favor of development on a broader scale, is driving at a controlled bomb which would have a maximum of effectiveness.

The German flying bomb traveled in a straight line at low and medium altitudes. This made them subject to ground fire in addition to attacks by fast fighter planes.

A high-flying maneuverable bomb would be extremely difficult for both anti-aircraft guns and fighter planes.

CRIMINALS TO BE PUNISHED

Hull Warns Neutrals Not To Harbor Guilty Nazis.

Washington, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Secretary of State Hull disclosed today that neutral nations had been warned they would lose American friendship "for years to come" should they give sanctuary to Hitler or other Axis leaders after the war.

Government of neutral or former neutral status, notably Sweden, Turkey, Switzerland, and Spain, either have given assurances that they will not permit Axis nationals to flee into their borders or that they are fully aware of the problems such action might provoke.

"No indication has yet been received of the views of certain other governments," Hull said in a statement released at his news conference.

"The Department is continuing to impress upon those governments whose policy has not yet been clearly stated," he continued, "the importance which it attaches to the taking of adequate measures to insure that Axis war criminals do not find asylum in their countries."

In bringing pressure on these other governments, Hull disclosed, the United States has had "the support and approval of the British and Soviet governments."

Finns Pursuing Fleeing Germans

Stockholm, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Finnish troops crossed the river Iivoniemi today in the direction of Ouhava, 35 miles north of their Oulu base, in pursuit of the fleeing Germans. Helsinki communique announced today.

The communique also reported an advance against the Germans in Lapland. The war bulletin emphasized again the slow-down of the Finnish drive because of German destruction of bridges and the mining of roads, but from other sources a three-pronged attack was reported, an effort to smash the retreating Germans who are leaving a trail of burned villages behind them.

A second column plunged north from Puolanka in the heart of Finland northwest toward Pudasjoki, an important road junction, while the third column advanced from Puolanka northeast toward Tahvakkoski.

A Finnish high command spokesman, meanwhile, declined to comment on German reports that two Finnish divisions had deserted to the Nazis in northern Finland. Other sources believed the story was Nazi propaganda.

British Smash . . .

Lur. 15 miles west of Belfort, said strong Allied attacks had started from the Nancy area in a northern direction, and declared new airborne forces had been flung against S-Hertogenbosch, a scant 10 miles ahead of the British push west from the Nijmegen corridor.

A big gun duel around Metz, the Germans added, was deepening in a prelude to a full American attack on that great fortress.

The latest official supreme headquarters figure on British airborne troops withdrawn from the Arnhem bridgehead was slightly over 2,000. Earlier estimates from Gen. Montgomery's 21st army group headquarters were that 1,700 to 2,800 had escaped.

The Germans poured in five counterattacks, one six miles west of Metz near Gravelotte and two at Coincourt and Bezange nine to eleven miles northeast of Luneville below Nancy, the supreme headquarters communique announced. They withered under intense American fire which cost the enemy heavily.

Northeast of Nancy, too, the Germans counterattacked twice, and were repulsed, losing six out of 30 tanks in one attack near Dieuze, 32 miles southeast of Metz.

It was disclosed that most of 800 Polish paratroops and British Dorsetshire infantrymen who crossed the Dutch Rhine to aid the withdrawal of the exhausted remnant of the British First airborne division also had escaped to the south bank.

The British press, still ringing with the praise of the lost division's epic fight for a cross-Rhine foothold, described it not as a defeat—but as a "glorious failure."

"It was a gamble to force a quick end to the war," said the Daily Express. "It nearly succeeded, and it was always worth trying."

At Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's headquarters the operation, which opened the way into mid-Holland was described officially as "85 per cent successful."

Purposes of the operation were listed as three:
1. To seize the vital bridges at Grave, Nijmegen and Arnhem.
2. To loosen the German garrison of 100,000 in western Holland.

3. To accelerate the drive through Holland.

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 28.—(AP)—Attorney General James H. # Phantoms Meet Elizabeth City Here Tomorrow Night

Second Game Of Season Expected To Be Tougher For Locals Than Last Week's Contest.

Coach Snag Clark's flying Phantoms are expected to meet their toughest grid foe of the season when they meet the Elizabeth City Yellow Jackets Friday night at a cock in Guy Smith stadium.

Although Greenville looked good in their 38-0 victory over Scotland Neck last week, Coach Clark has stated that the Phantoms will have to make a better exhibition if they expect to down the Elizabeth City eleven.

Little is known of the true strength of the Elizabeth City Jack-ets, although the team is believed to be centered around 220-pound John Copley, all state back, who is regarded as one of the best high school backs in the state. Elizabeth City has always had a good ball team and there is no indication that they will not have a strong eleven this year.

The Phantoms played a surprisingly good opener last week and are expected to play a bang-up game tomorrow night.

The line has been working hard this week on blocking and tackling and should cause real trouble for the Elizabeth City backs.

On the other hand, the backfield has been working on pass defense and offense, and is ready to strike from either ground or the air.

Coach Clark has also added several new plays.

The probable starting line-up will be: Fleming and Batchelor, ends; Lupton and Rice, tackles; Dall and Clark, guards; Williams, center; Leggett, wing back; Jordan, blocking back; Futrell, fullback, and Perkins, tailback. A large crowd is expected to be present to help the Phantoms toward their second victory. The Monogram club will sponsor a concession booth.

Public To See Cage Contests

PUBLIC TO SEE—18—SPORTS
The Marines of Greenville airfield hereby publicly thank the North Carolina State Guard for their gracious presentation of the Greenville armory gym for our use.

As already stated we have formed an inter-station league and expect to play our games in the armory, starting on the 3rd or 4th of October. Games will start at 2000 navy time or 8 o'clock eastern war time. The games will be open free to all.

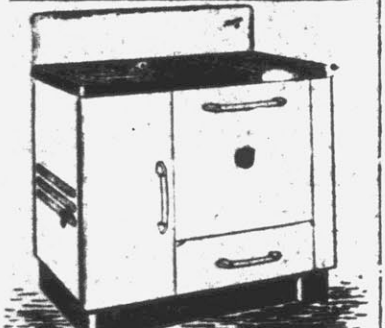

Today's inter-league game saw 914 Administrative go down before the straight shooting 913 Operations five (34-22), score at half time, 12-8. 913 Operations had a hot man in Manning who scored 16 points to lead both teams. 914 Administrative presented a well balanced five who played a smooth game—the loss of Lt. Foraker via a broken nose in the second quarter, threw them off stride momentarily. The field recreation men had the out-door court in fine shape, causing a far better brand of ball to be displayed.

Soldiers Receiving Communion In South Pacific

The above scene will be reenacted in many parts of the world on October 1, as millions of Christians observe World-Wide Communion Sunday. On this day Christians of all races and nations will gather in penitence and faith around the Communion Table—"a table 25,000 miles long and wide."—U. S. Army Signal Corps Photograph.

Will Observe Communion Day

Next Sunday is "WORLD WIDE COMMUNION SUNDAY" for all Christian people. The Lord's Supper will be observed in all churches at their regular appointed hours, and all Christians are urged to attend the church of their choice and participate.

It is also "Rally Day" in the Bible Schools, and all parents and children are urged to find their way to some Sunday school and enroll for the study of the Bible. What could be more important these serious days through which we and our nation are passing?

Issues Warning Cotton Growers

The announcement Monday that the War Food Administration will purchase all cotton of the 1944 crop for which a loan schedule has been announced and which may be placed in storage, drew a strong warning to cotton farmers from M. G. Mann, general manager of the North Carolina Cotton Growers Cooperative Association, in Raleigh today.

Commenting upon the government proposal, Mann said: "This simply means that thousands of cotton farmers are going to be misled into accepting less than the true value of their cotton. Parity price for middling one and one-quarter is 33.17 cents, or a difference of 1.050 points and $52.50 per bale. This simply means that tens of thousands of bales of cotton will be sold at 22.67 cents, and farmers will be told that they are receiving government parity."

"Never before in the history of cotton marketing," warned Mann, "has it been more necessary for cotton farmers to market their cotton on a grade and staple basis. Farmers who blindly accept the 'government parity' for their cotton without true knowledge of the grades and staples of their cotton, are going to lose thousands upon thousands of dollars right at a time when they need every penny their cotton will bring."

The only solution to the problem, according to Mann, is for farmers to have their cotton graded and stapled before they attempt to sell, and determine whether or not their cotton is better than fifteen-sixteenths, and therefore entitled to a better price than the government parity of 22.67 cents for that grade.

PAMPER THE BEEF...
PLEASE THE PALATE

Large quantities of utility beef are still arriving on the market and indications are that supplies will continue to be plentiful. Fortunately this ration-free lean beef is as high in nutritive value as choice corn-fed beef and if it is browned well and then cooked very slowly with moist heat, your family will be delighted with it. It's a real challenge to you as a cook.

Tasty Swiss Steak—a Culinary Triumph

1 1/2 lb. round steak or shoulder steak, cut 3/4 to 1 in. thick
Salt, pepper, flour
4 tsp. Advance Shortening
1 onion, chopped
2 tsp. Wilson's B-V thick
1/2 cup celery
1 green pepper
1 1/2 cups cooked tomatoes

Season both sides of meat with salt and pepper and dredge with flour, pounding it in well with a mallet or edge of a heavy saucer. Brown well on both sides in Wilson's Advance Shortening or bacon drippings. Add the onion (while browning meat on the second side) and brown it lightly. Spread both sides of browned meat with a thin coating of Wilson's B-V (to add a good rich meat flavor). Place onion, celery and diced green pepper on meat (save several green pepper rings to add the last half-hour of cooking as a garnish) and pour tomatoes over all. Cover tightly and simmer (never boil) over low heat or put in a slow oven, 300° F., and cook until meat is tender, adding hot water or tomato juice in small amounts as liquid evaporates. Cooking time will be about 1 1/2 to 2 hours. Serve the tomato sauce over the meat. Six servings.

CUT STEAK THINNER
Ordinarily we would like to have a Swiss steak cut 1 1/2 to 2 inches thick, but when buying lean, utility beef, I suggest you have it cut from 3/4 to 1 inch thick. That gives you a running start on achieving tenderness. The acid of the tomatoes also does its bit to make the meat tender, as does the slow cooking with moist heat.

Flavor Important
Browning the onions and meat, adding the B-V and the tomatoes, all contribute to making this a pot roast any man would be willing to yodel for. Complete the menu with browned potatoes, kidney bean salad, baking powder biscuits with assorted fruit for dessert and he'll come on the run.
