Nazis Hurl Desperate Counterattack Against British On Dutch Front

Allied troops enlarge bridgehead on South Beveland Island; Canadians increase pressure on Germans; Little change on remainder of Western Front.

By WILLIAM FRYE. London, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Field Marshal Gen. Walter Von Model's Germans leaped into a counterattack along a 10-mile front against the eastern side of the British salient in Holland today after a heavy artillery barrage.

The attack, which was spread from the Dutch town of Venlo on the German border south to Roermond, in a sector last reported held by American armor, ran into a wall of fire and steel, front line disintegrating.

Canadian forces fighting on both sides of the Schelde in westward advances to open Antwerp, were reinforced by British troops who landed on South Beveland Island north of the estuary and established a seven-square-mile beachhead.

Berlin accounts said this bridgehead was "several kilometers deep" and was in the neighborhood of Hoedeckenkerke, 5 1/2 miles ahead of Canadian spearheads driving into the island from the east.

A second attempt to land several thousand troops in American amphibious tanks and landing craft at Hansweert, to the east of this bridgehead and across the south Beveland canal just ahead of the Canadian spearhead was broken up this morning, the Germans declared.

Field dispatches said several towns were captured in the beachhead by the British who crossed the three to five-mile wide Schelde at 2 p. m. yesterday, swarmed up the 20-foot dike and surprised thinly strung German machinegunners.

The Canadians, completing their drive down the two-mile wide, 10-mile long neck of land connecting the mainland with the island, reached the South Beveland canal which cuts across the neck.

The British, after a 15-mile westward drive in five days from the Nijmegen salient, had hemmed the Germans into a collapsing box and (Continued on page four)

The WAR TODAY AN ANALYSIS OF THE NEWS

By DEWITT MACKENZIE Associated Press War Analyst

They say it's an ill wind that blows nobody good, but the only comfort the Japanese can get out of the Yankee hurricane which they ran into off the Philippine archipelago is that their disaster was no worse.

With more facts about the historic engagement at hand—though the story is far from complete—we now can say with assurance that the Nipponese have suffered not only a major defeat but a decisive one. It is decisive in that it guarantees the Allies success in the great and difficult battle of the Philippines. And since these islands are the key to the war in the Pacific we know that this conflict will be greatly shortened.

REDS GAIN IN EAST PRUSSIA

Large Scale Battles Reported As Russians Drive Forward.

London, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Russian troops advanced 15 miles in Czechoslovakia today and captured Ungvar (Uzhgorod), virtually completing the capture of the Carpatho-Ukraine which Hungary seized from the republic.

A broadcast order of the day by Marshal Stalin announced the capture of the city of 27,000, which was the capital of Ruthenia, an autonomous province under Czechoslovakia. The city is 160 miles northeast of Budapest.

Gen. Ivan Petrov, promoted yesterday after the fall of the Czechoslovak city of Mukacevo, was again the victor. Stalin ordered a 20-shell salute from 224 Moscow victory guns.

Fall of the important East Prussian communications center of Gumbinnen appeared imminent today as the Germans announced evacuation of the civilian population from the path of onrushing Soviet armies.

A Moscow communique declared last night that the Red army had captured Gruenweitschen, four miles southeast of Gumbinnen, and Guddin, seven miles east of the city. Shragallen and Amalienhof, 10 miles to the east, also were taken.

Unconfirmed reports reaching here from Moscow asserted that the Russians now were believed fighting in the outskirts of Gumbinnen, a city of 15,000 to 20,000. Gumbinnen is 66 miles southeast of the provincial capital of Konigsberg.

An American commentator speaking over the Moscow radio, reported that German civilians already were fleeing Konigsberg in panic.

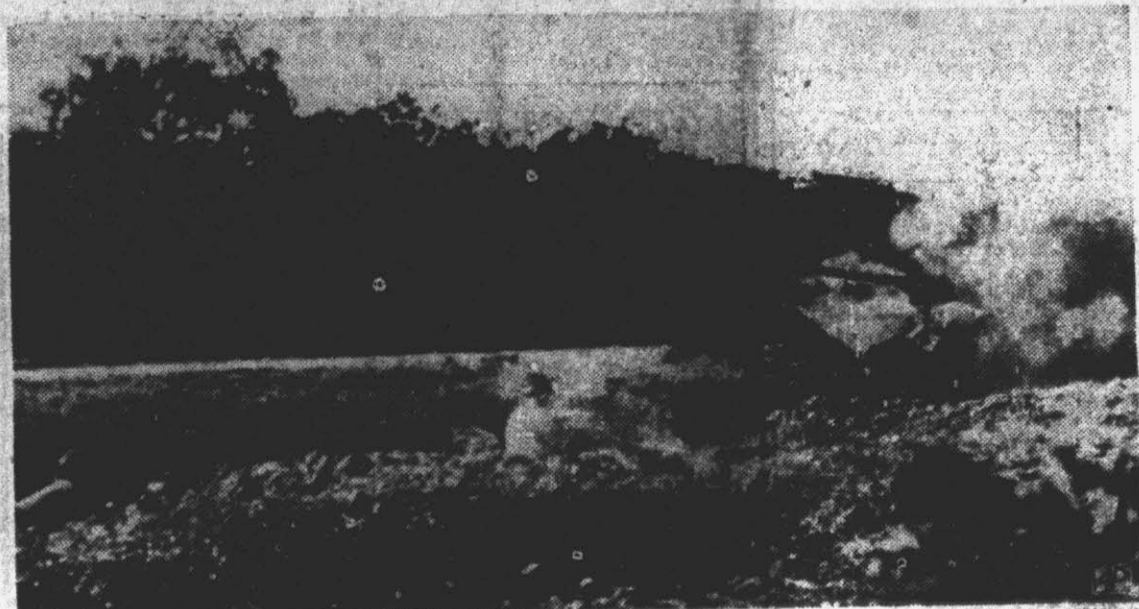

The Russian communique said the Germans were offering fierce resistance in East Prussia as the Red army battled its way forward along the Kaunas-Konigsberg highway in hand to hand fighting in which at least 2,800 more Nazis were slain.

Berlin, also reporting large scale battles, maintained the Russians had lost 900 tanks in 10 days and were being held except for "a few dents" on an 85-mile front from Augustow in the south to the Niemen river in the north.

Other Russian forces driving through northern Finland captured 36 localities in the Petsamo area including Pitkarivi, 37 miles southeast of Petsamo, Moscow said. It added that Soviet planes supporting the Norwegian invasion from Finland had sunk more than a dozen small German ships presumably moving down the Norwegian coast after the fall of the naval base of Kirkenes.

On the southern front, Soviet forces which occupied the Czechoslovakian road junction of Munkacs (Mukacevo) yesterday were linked up today in a solid front with other Red army units cutting across (Continued on Page Four)

NAVY DAY IS CELEBRATED Churchill Says European War Is In Its Last Stages

Forrestal Says Japs May Still Cause Trouble. Tells Commons That Efforts To Solve Russian-Polish Dispute Had Not Proved Successful.

By HAMILTON W. FARON. Washington, Oct. 27.—(AP)—The United States Navy proudly celebrated its 169th anniversary today, all hands jubilant over what may prove to be its biggest victory in battle.

Exultation is evident throughout the Navy as word spreads of the crushing defeat handed the Japanese navy by the Pacific fleet.

But with it all there is a note of caution, from Navy Secretary Forrestal himself, who said last night that despite blasting of "30-odd Japanese warships" the enemy still has a sizeable fleet.

Unofficial figures show that this fleet may total as many as 175 warships of all types, excluding submarines, and Forrestal says formally: "Many remaining ships—a sizeable fleet in themselves—remain aloft, more or less seriously damaged. As they limp, they may be able to limp to port, undergo repairs and come out and fight again.

Therefore, although the temporary damage which we have inflicted upon the Japanese navy is heavy, they may be able eventually to repair a part of that damage." Regardless of the final count, there seems to be agreement that the Japanese fleet is crippled and never again can hope for any degree of success in a large scale naval engagement. It must confine efficient and logical operations to harassment of American convoys and small naval units.

Outstanding as an example of the confidence of high naval officers in the strength and power of the fleet is the release for the first time of resumes of battle history of 103 major warships—and the naming of their commanding officers and oceans in which they operated as of the middle of August.

These resumes show that at least 16 battleships and 37 cruisers are on Pacific duty, and at least four battleships and 10 cruisers were in (Continued on page four)

Bonner to Address Democratic Rally

By HOWARD FLIEGER. En Route to Philadelphia with President Roosevelt, Oct. 27.—(AP)—President Roosevelt—off for two days of fourth-term campaigning in a territory rich with electoral votes—headed for Philadelphia today for the first of two major outdoor speeches.

His two-day thrust will give him appearances in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Indiana and Illinois—a sharply contested region with a combined total of 95 electoral votes.

Presidential Secretary Stephen Early said Mr. Roosevelt's address tonight in Philadelphia's Shibe Park will "in the main have to do with the basic policy of the war." Tomorrow night he speaks in Chicago. The Chicago subject hasn't been announced but Mr. Roosevelt's followers expect a reply to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's honesty-in-government speech, delivered in the same city Wednesday.

Latest Reports Increase Jap Losses In Sea Battle

Americans Lost Light Carrier, Two Escort Carriers, Two Destroyers And One Destroyer Escort.

Washington, Oct. 27.—(AP)—American losses in defeating the Japanese navy in the battle of the Philippines totaled six warships—the aircraft carrier Princeton, two escort carriers, two destroyers and a destroyer escort.

Names of the vessels, except the Princeton, which were lost in sinking or damaging at least 27 Japanese warships, were not disclosed in the Navy's brief communique today, pending notification of next or kin of casualties aboard the ships.

No details, the Navy said, are yet available on circumstances of the loss of the ships, which probably carried a total of about 3,900 men. A large portion of this total personnel was aboard the light carrier Princeton from which Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Pacific fleet commander, has said more than 1,300 officers and men were rescued.

The lost carrier escorts each carried a complement of probably 1,000 men and each had a squadron of more than 21 planes.

Destroyers carry a normal complement of about 200 men, and destroyer escorts about 160.

The six losses raise to 170 the number of warships definitely listed as sunk since the war started. In addition 38 American vessels, including 27 submarines, are overdue and presumed lost, and nine ships destroyed to prevent capture. The total of ships overdue or destroyed consequently comes to 217.

Other countries, he said, "will be associated, but the future depends on the union of the three most powerful Allies. If that fails, all fails; if that succeeds a broad future for all nations may be assured."

He frankly acknowledged that a solution had not been reached in the long dispute between Russia and Poland.

"It is certainly not for want of trying," he said, adding: "I am quite sure, however, that we have got a great deal nearer to it."

But, he said, Britain, Russia and the United States, "are all firmly agreed on the recreation of a strong, free, independent, sovereign Poland, loyal to the Allies and friendly to her great neighbor and liberator, Russia."

The prime minister expressed the hope that Poland and Russia would lose no time in resuming their discussions "and bringing them to an effective conclusion."

Seventeen Navy Vessels Lost

Washington, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Seventeen small naval vessels, including six landing ships and three minesweepers, have been lost in European operations connected with the liberation of northern France, the Navy Department announced.

Largest of the ships was the Miantonomah, a minesweeper carrying a crew of about 300 officers and men. The navy attributed the losses to "enemy action of the perils of the sea."

Nazis Catch Her

Berlin radio reported Nazi troops had captured their first American woman on the battlefield and reports were that she is Mrs. Gertrude Sanford LeGendre (above) of Charleston, S. C. A representative of Mrs. LeGendre's late father, John Sanford, said she was 60 years of age and a Red Cross worker and that she is "no doubt" the captive. (AP Wirephoto).

Jap Disaster May Surpass 35-Ship Loss Off Guadalcanal In 1942; 27 Warships Definitely Sunk Or Damaged In Addition To Several Destroyers Damaged.

(By The Associated Press) U. S. Pacific Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 27.—A Japanese naval disaster, threatening momentarily to surpass Nippon's 35-warship tragedy of 1942 off Guadalcanal, stemmed today from an amazing gamble which actually succeeded in getting enemy warships perilously close to America's invasion beaches on Leyte.

The confirmed sinking or damaging of 27 warships, including three carriers and 10 battleships in a 470-mile naval-air encounter off the Philippines, tells a far from completed story.

Remnants of the once proud Imperial fleet which, it now can be disclosed, actually penetrated Leyte Gulf and attacked transports engaged in Gen. Douglas MacArthur's landings, still were under relentless air pursuit. MacArthur announced today his land-based Liberators have damaged an enemy light cruiser in the Mindanao Sea.

But, without its continuing achievements, the already accomplished blows promise to lift Japan's losses beyond the 35 warships sunk or damaged off Guadalcanal in November, 1942.

Several enemy destroyers are known to have gone down which are not included in the confirmed 27. Today, Vice Adm. Thomas C. Kinkaid, whose outnumbered Seventh fleet turned the tide from threatened disaster into history-making triumph in Leyte Gulf, made clear much more remains to be catalogued officially.

It was Kinkaid who split up his fleet, took on two enemy warship forces converging on the Leyte invasion scene and trounced both, while submarines, warships and carrier planes of Adm. William F. Halsey, Jr.'s Third fleet surprised and dealt a heavy blow to enemy transports attempting a sneak punch from Formosa waters.

Today Kinkaid told Dean Schneider, Associated Press war correspondent in the Philippines, that the Japanese risked from 35 to 40 warships in the two battles near Leyte and only 20 retired. That general summary suggest from 19 to 26 enemy ships were bagged although it did not differentiate between sunk and damaged. But the 20 which got away were pursued by planes and (Continued on page four)

Safe Crackers Fail At Tip Plant Here

Robbers who broke into the Tip Bottling Company's plant on Washington Street, between Fourth and Fifth streets, some time last night, failed in their efforts to rob a safe in the office. They tried to break into it with an axe, police said.

Nothing was missing from the plant. Police found the axe. The safe was slightly damaged.

Today On The Home Front

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Oct. 27.—(AP)—If you're fed up on politics, you can argue about this: Should an auto driver be compelled to carry liability insurance before he has an accident? Or should he be compelled to prove he can pay damages only after he has an accident?

This problem may bob up in a number of state legislatures next year. Here's the story: The National Conference on Street and Highway Safety, back in 1926, helped draw up a "uniform vehicle code."

Every few years the Conference—made up of representatives of federal, state and local motor vehicle authorities and of private organizations interested in traffic and safety—has reviewed the code. This was done to bring it up to date to meet changing conditions. Now the Conference's committee on uniform traffic laws and ordinances has done another reviewing job.

The Conference opposes compulsory liability insurance for auto drivers. One of the reasons: That it forces safe drivers to take out insurance because there are bad drivers.

Prior to its meeting this month the committee had proposed: That a driver—convicted of a major traffic offense or against whom a court judgement had been rendered for an accident—would suffer suspension of his license until he had paid the judgment or made provision against future liability by taking out insurance.

More than 40 states had adopted this code in one form or another. You see what this means: A driver didn't have to prove financial responsibility until he had a November 8.

Churchill Says European War Is In Its Last Stages

Tells Commons That Efforts To Solve Russian-Polish Dispute Had Not Proved Successful.

By ALEX H. SINGLETON. London, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Prime Minister Churchill told Commons today "a very good working agreement" had been reached with Russia on the problems of southeastern Europe, but acknowledged his efforts to end the Russian-Polish dispute, prime objective of his mission to Moscow, had not proved successful.

Churchill said he and President Roosevelt should confer with Marshal Stalin before the year ends. But he declared that "all is solid, sure and sound" among the three Allies.

"The prime minister summed up the results of his conference with Stalin as 'highly satisfactory' and underscored the necessity for dispelling misunderstandings and forestalling them before they occurred."

"I am quite sure," he added, "that no final result can be obtained by the heads of the three governments have met together, as I earnestly trust they may do before this year is out."

"At Quebec," he said "the President and I felt very much the absence of Russia. At Moscow, Marshal Stalin and I were deeply conscious that the President was not with us although in this case the American observer, Mr. Averell Harriman, the accomplished ambassador of the United States, made us feel at all times the presence of the great republic."

Churchill touched but briefly upon the military situation. Asserting that "we are in the last lap" of the European war, Churchill declared:

"Let all hope die in German breasts that there will be the slightest division or weakening among the forces that are crowding in upon them and will crush the life out of their resistance."

While he said recognition of the French provisional government heralded return of France to "her rightful and historic role on the world stage," Churchill declared that the future of the world in the next few years depends upon united action by the United States, Russia and Britain.

"Other countries," he said, "will be associated, but the future depends on the union of the three most powerful Allies. If that fails, all fails; if that succeeds a broad future for all nations may be assured."

He frankly acknowledged that a solution had not been reached in the long dispute between Russia and Poland.

"It is certainly not for want of trying," he said, adding: "I am quite sure, however, that we have got a great deal nearer to it."

But, he said, Britain, Russia and the United States, "are all firmly agreed on the recreation of a strong, free, independent, sovereign Poland, loyal to the Allies and friendly to her great neighbor and liberator, Russia."

The prime minister expressed the hope that Poland and Russia would lose no time in resuming their discussions "and bringing them to an effective conclusion."

British Advance On Italian Front

Rome, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Eighth army forces advancing up the Po valley along highway 9 toward Bolzano have come up against heavy German defenses two miles east of Forli. Allied headquarters announced today.

British and Canadian troops reached the Ronco river on a broad front and at several points patrols crossed the swollen stream but were withdrawn following sharp German counterattacks with tanks.

South of the Bolzano-Rimini highway Indian troops also reached the river and sent patrols across. The river flows northward and empties into a canal south of Ravenna.

Vanguard Eighth army units advanced two miles nearer to Ravenna in the drive up the Adriatic coast and put a bridgehead across the Bevano river on highway 16 at a point six miles below the city.

However, heavy rain fell over both the Eighth and Fifth army fronts and generally impeded progress in all sectors. In the central sector below Bologna, in one area it was necessary to transport supplies first five miles by jeep, then five miles by mule and four miles by infantrymen.

American troops on Mount Belmonte threw back a heavy German counterattack and other doughboys captured El Poggio and Mount Mezano, west of Veduggio, which is five miles southwest of the Bologna-Rimini, highway town of Castel San Pietro.

Exhibit At College.

A special exhibit of sixteen etchings of North Carolina scenes by Louis Orr, famous etcher, will be held in the reception rooms of the New Classroom building on the East Carolina Teachers College campus Sunday afternoon, October 30, from 4 to 6 p. m. The public is cordially invited to attend the exhibit sponsored by the college library which recently purchased the series of etchings.

Commissioned by Mr. Robert Lee Humber of Greenville to do a series of fifty etchings of North Carolina historical scenes, Mr. Orr spent a year traveling throughout the state in search of the most representative scenes for the project. The work was started in 1939 and to date sixteen have been completed. The ECTC library has all sixteen, and it is planned to obtain the entire series as it is released.

Mr. Orr has the distinction of being one of the only two American artists who have had their work exhibited in the Louvre in Paris. Orr has had ten etchings shown in the Louvre, and the other American artist, Whistler, had the painting of his mother exhibited there.

Orr lived in Paris thirty-five years prior to the outbreak of the present war and studied with Walter Frifren and Jean Paul Laurens. He is an officer of the Legion of Honor. His work includes mural decorations in the State Bank at Hartford, Conn.; twenty-two original pencil drawings "Rhimes Cathedral, 1917" and eleven etchings shown in the Luxembourg at Paris; ten copper plate etchings in the Louvre, Paris; two etchings in the Oakland, Calif. Museum; etchings in the Strasbourg Museum; a set of etchings "Ports of America" in the Albright Art Gallery at Buffalo, N. Y.; and etchings and drawings in the Yale University of Fine Arts.

Chapter 7

Alan Phillips, "Pip," the radio officer, sat on the rail swinging his legs and watching Cherry sitting in deck chair mending sheets. She was quickly absorbed in the job of mending a neat patch, and the setting sun touched her hair caressing and made dark shadows of her eyelashes as she bent over her work.

Terry was playing a game of hide-and-seek with the radio officer, that he had just arrived running around the promenade deck and hiding behind doorways and ventilators from some imaginary foe. Terry, she had discovered, was quite good at amusing himself, and did not seem to miss her children much; only he liked to be with Cherry or Douglas Fenimore or Rory—when he could get away from the radio. The second officer spent much time in the passenger accommodation, and most of his day was spent running after Cherry and either "helping" her in her work or playing games of hide-and-seek with her. He avoided Aunt Julia as much as he could, but Julia had a habit of suddenly summoning him when he was in her room, and showing him off to her companions of the moment.

The boy passed Cherry and Pip on his second round of the deck, looking like a horse and making queer whistling noises with his teeth. It was fun having the whole deck to himself.

"Your hair is the color of honey, exactly," Pip was saying. "Nice, golden-brown honey. Absolutely bewitching with gray eyes and those dark eyelashes. I expect you've been told that before—or am I wasting my time?"

Cherry looked up with a quick, bright smile, the sort of smile she gave Terry very often. Her needle went on flicking in and out of the sheet. She knotted and broke off the cotton with a neat movement and screwed up her eyes against the sun as she rethreaded the needle. "I'm afraid you're wasting your time."

Pip grinned ruefully. "You are a bit of a puzzle, aren't you? A week out in the Pacific—gorgeous weather, sunsets, moonlight and what-have-you—and not a rise out of little Cherry—not a glimmer! You might have been born in that uniform. Yet you're no more a stewardess than I am."

"I am a stewardess," she answered gravely, "and I like it. There's nothing wrong with liking one's job, is there?"

"No, oh no!" Pip mocked her tone. "But I think you're overdoing it a bit, all the same. After all, you're young and healthy. You could have a bit more fun without sinking the ship. You're almost as mad as King. You both reek of professional etiquette!"

"That shouldn't worry you," Cherry returned his mockery lightly, and looked around for Terry.

Rory came out of the chartroom and mounted the compass-platform to take his reading. From there he could not see Cherry, but he did see Pip's white uniform jutting over the promenade rail. He knew Cherry sat on deck every evening between tea and dinner and guessed what the radio officer's absorbed back meant. Cherry—she seemed to have them all bewitched without even knowing it! Even the Old Man would stop for a kindly, formal word with her when he took inspection. McCarroll had reported that. But it seemed that the Old Man had known her father, and that of course would make a difference. She had certainly done something to the atmosphere of the Coromandel, though no one could define exactly what it was.

Compass bearing. Rory told himself impatiently, and dragged his eyes away from Pip's back.

Pip was completely unaware of critical eyes. He said, "So you can be human. Lucky Terry. Lucky Douglas Fenimore."

"What do you mean by that?" Cherry demanded swiftly, perturbed.

"Oh, it's no secret that the Merry Widow is gnashing her teeth because he prefers your company to hers," Pip answered ironically.

"But that is absurd! He happens to take an interest in Terry. He and Mrs. Scott-Price are having cocktails now—they do every evening."

"Because he can't very well get out of everything," Pip grinned sigman. She'd dearly love to have a handle to her name next time."

Cherry got up and collected her sewing, frowning. "I think that is rather a beastly thing to say about anyone. After all, he's the only one of the passengers who moves in her world, and naturally she feels lonely. Besides, he's a confirmed bachelor."

"They always fall hardest, but not for Julia's type." Pip yawned and lazily uncoiled himself from the rail. "If you're really going, I'll dig Nancy out for a drink. At least she's not deaf and dumb to my masculine charm."

Cherry laughed. It was really difficult to be cross with Pip for long. His only fault was that he refused to grow up. "Don't forget she's going home to be married!" She collected the running Terry with her free arm. "I'm very fond of Nancy." "So am I, Mother dear. I won't forget, if she doesn't. I'll be seeing you—if the raider doesn't get us in the night!"

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

THE UNCHANGING REIGN OF LAW

The whole universe is under the domination of law. Most of our unhappiness arises from our failure to appreciate this. We break the laws of health, of the moral order, of sound judgment and good breeding. So long as we are out of adjustment with the universe—which sweeps along with that perfect poise and balance which arises from complete consistency—we are miserable indeed.

There are certain laws which govern man's relationship with man, and it is the violation of the principles underlying these laws which has involved us in this present war. Individuals are plunged into unhappiness when they break the laws of the physical and moral universes, and nations likewise are disturbed and eventually destroyed when they violate certain principles which control the relationship of group to group. Europe is a great, seething cauldron because of its racial, cultural, and religious differences. It has been unable to conduct its affairs in a peaceable and neighborly fashion.

The great statesman, Cicero, appreciated the international situation with amazing penetration many centuries ago. He prophesied the coming of a time (we may well hope we are standing on the threshold of it) when "the same law everlasting and unchangeable will bind all nations at all times, and there will be one common Master and Father of all, who is God, the framer, the arbitrator, and the proposer of this law. And he who will not obey it will be an exile from himself."

AMERICA IN WARTIME

By JACK STINNETT

Washington — Undoubtedly the most unusual campaign in these presidential election days is Vice President Henry A. Wallace.

Observers here are watching him with open mouths. Some are critical. Some applaud. Others are just frankly puzzled.

Wallace was by-passed at the Democratic national convention to succeed himself as President Roosevelt's running mate, apparently almost ignored by the Democratic national committee; certainly not supervised by that group (it's reported here that he hasn't even accepted any expense funds from them). Yet he has been campaigning with vigor and independence.

Back in August, slightly more than a month after the convention, Wallace walked out of the President's office in the White House and told reporters he planned "to make some speeches for the Democratic ticket."

Asked if he had any ideas what his future job would be with the government, Wallace replied that he couldn't talk about that until after November 7, "and that will depend on what happens November 7."

Already at that time he had toured New England, Texas, Georgia and several other states, visiting with mayors and local political bigwigs. For a defeated vice presidential nominee, this was strange campaign procedure, but Wallace made no secret of it that he was pleased with the results.

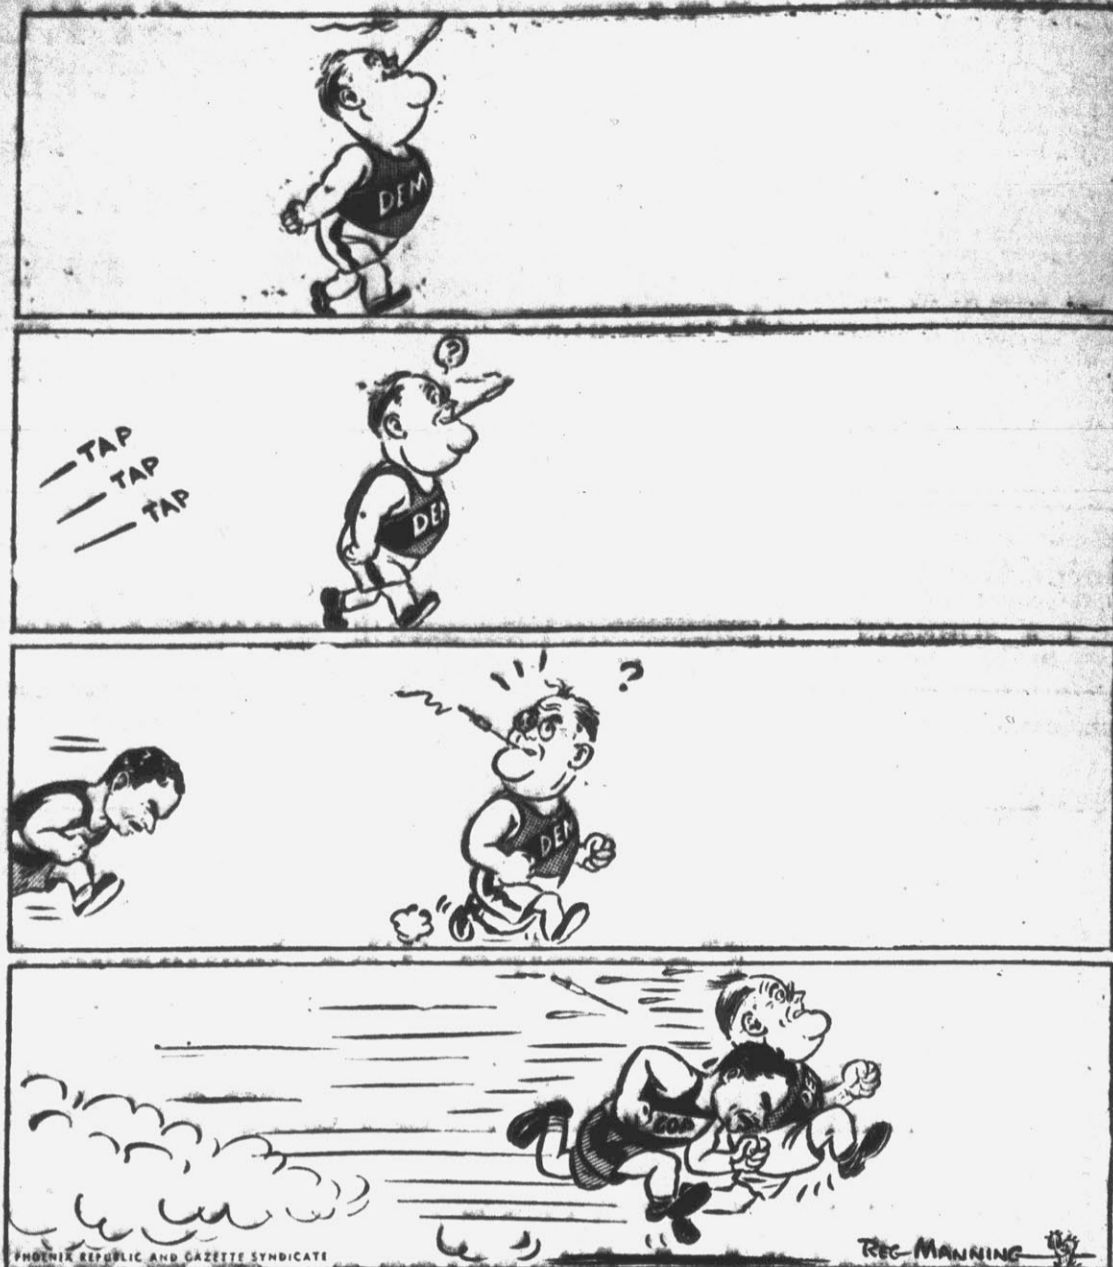

In September, at Madison Square Garden, he launched out with his first big address. After his New York speech, Wallace really went into high, mapping out a speaking tour for himself that has taken him or will take him into Pennsylvania, Iowa, Minnesota, Illinois and half a dozen other states.

Wallace's speeches have been watermarked with his own writing. And there is no indication that the national committee has had anything to do with his speeches or the ideas put forward in them.

What the result will be in the political future of Henry A. Wallace can only be guessed at now, but a lot of observers here are guessing both about Wallace and his importance in the fourth term campaign.

of the Leyte Valley trap was being closed tighter by tank-led Doughboys who captured two key towns in a double-pronged drive that overran several communities off the main highways.

Buri, previously bypassed because of its strong defenses, was captured after severe fighting by 7th division forces punching up the valley's north-south highway. They previously took the Buri airfield and advanced several miles along the highway from the captured road junction of Burauen. Their main immediate goal evidently is Dagami, a communications town near the center of the roadway.

The 26th division, pushing inland from the coast toward Dagami, captured Tabontaban, a river town eastward. The town is 3-2 miles west of Catmon Hill, where strong Japanese entrenchments have been encircled.

The 24th division attempting to close the northern end of the Leyte trap, encountered increasing Japanese opposition in its advance westward from Palo.

Farther north, the American hold was tight on San Juanico Straits, after elements of the first cavalry division repulsed a small enemy counterattack at Lapaz on Samar Island.

Japanese aerial assaults against shipping in San Pedro Bay and the beachhead areas, said the communiqué, were "again limited to intermittent harassing raids causing light damage and casualties."

Anti-aircraft fire shot down 39 of the raiders, fighters got 14 and carrier planes downed 23—a total of 76. Remaining bombers continued to attack major targets throughout the southwest Pacific area. The assaults included a patrol plane raid on Jolo in the Sulu Archipelago, the second of the war on that objective.

New York and other populous Eastern states.

The Dewey campaign enters its final phase with the GOP candidate directing pointed criticism at the President and most of his New Deal works, while defending the over-all record of the Republicans. The nominee has mentioned individual party colleagues comparatively few times.

Dewey personally gives every appearance of being entirely confident of the outcome on Nov. 7. His recent audiences have given quick-triggered responses to his attacks on the Democrats and street crowds have been liberal with their applause—although here and there an occasional "booh" is heard or a shout for the President.

A check of newsmen who have traveled nearly 20,000 campaign miles with him to all sections of the country except the South showed a majority though the GOP candidate had improved his chances since he began his active speaking drive in Philadelphia last Sept. 7.

were smashing toward the Maas (Meuse) and Hollandsch Diep.

The British were fighting on a line from three to 18 miles south of the Maas and the Diep.

Scherhogenbosch, eastern corner of the box, was in British hands. Tilburg, a city of nearly 100,000, 12 miles to the southwest in the center of the line, was almost surrounded, with the Allies in the outskirts. The British were fighting at Zundert, nine miles south of Breda to the west, and the Canadians were within two miles of Roosendaal and about as close to Bergen Op Zoom at the western end of the line.

The Germans had moved their headquarters from Tilburg to north of the Maas, and today's supreme headquarters communique said the enemy had been forced to withdraw "all along the line" from Roosendaal to Tilburg.

British forces had cut the 'S Her-togenbosch-Tilburg road at two places, at Helvoirt, from where they had pushed on west to Heliant, and two and a half miles farther southwest where they held Underhout four miles northeast of Tilburg.

They had seized the towns of Schoorstraat and Molenstraat, four miles north of Tilburg, and were in a position to launch a road-cutting, bridge-smashing offensive to the rear of the enemy.

In between Underhout and Helvoirt, the Germans were clinging to a 3,000-yard-long salient reaching almost to Haaren, but it was being squeezed out rapidly.

The Canadian fight to free the south bank of the Schelde was still hot, but the Germans cleared out of Oostburg, Lt. Gen. H. D. G. Crerar's troops were driving on Cad-zand, four miles to the northwest where a few German guns still were active, and had bypassed Groder.

Continued pressure but not of sufficient progress was reported, the communique along the remainder of the west front. North of Aachen, units of the American 9th army made minor gains against stubborn opposition.

Northeast of Lunville, the Germans were cleared out of the Meuse court forest and the high ground to the north, and several German counterattacks in this sector were repulsed. Slight progress was reported also northeast of Epinal in the Vosges mountains.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"That's really a great editorial you just read to us, Judge. Where did you say it appeared?"

"In 'The Stars and Stripes'... the newspaper of the U.S. Armed Forces in Europe. Kind of gives us folks back home something to think about, doesn't it, Bill?"

"It certainly does, Judge. Particularly the last paragraph. Would you mind reading that again?"

"Glad to, Bill. It says, 'We can remember the days of prohibition, when moonshine whiskey made quick fortunes for bootleggers, crooked politicians and dishonest police officials. As a result, we claim we know what we want in the way of liquor legislation and feel those at home should wait until we return before initiating further legislation on liquor control.'"

"Out of fairness to our boys over there fighting, Judge, how could we disobey such a wish?"

Grain Market

Chicago, Oct. 27 — (AP) — The trade in grain futures was dull today and prices were mixed. Wheat was about steady but the feed grains showed a tendency toward weakness. Fractional gains were made at the opening but the trend failed to follow through and the markets eased back.

At the close wheat was 1/4 to 3/4 higher than yesterday's finish. December $1.84. Corn was 1/4 higher to 1/2 lower, December $1.12. Oats were unchanged to 1/4 lower, December 66 1/2. Rye was 1/4 lower to 1 1/2 higher, December $1.11 1/2. Barley was off 1 to 2%, December $1.05 1/2.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Oct. 27 — (AP) — Stocks generally continued to back water in today's market although scattered favorites managed to breast the current for modest advances.

The revival of short war talk, as the result of the big Pacific victory, again accentuated reconversion worries marketwide and many customers trimmed commitments or stood aside to await clearer political skies.

Individual situations propped a number of issues while shares with good peacetime prospects held their own. Turnover was in the vicinity of 800,000 shares.
