Soviet Forces Smash Into Budapest Outer Defenses

Germans Say Battle Raging As Tank Formations Advance On Hungarian Capital; Red Bombers Sink German Transports Fleeing From Balkan Points.

By DANIEL DE LUCE Moscow, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Russian tanks, guns and men rumbled today toward the outskirts of Budapest, where front dispatches said panic swelled as the noise of battle swelled 23 miles away.

The Red army already was smashing into the outer defenses of the ancient city of 1,162,000 on the Danube. At Domsod, the Russians were within 100 miles of the Austrian frontier and 140 of Vienna.

The Russians were pushing toward the Hungarian capital's southeastern limits. The main drive was along the concrete highway from Eszketemet, although other columns were converging from other directions.

The German communique said a fierce battle was in progress against Soviet infantry and tank formations advancing in the direction of Budapest from northwest of Eszketemet and that difficult weather hampered air support.

In five days, the Red army had advanced 50 miles over the level Hungarian plain, one of Germany's greatest breadbaskets. The opposing German and Hungarian forces were reported to have lost half their tanks and a large share of their tanks as well as 8,000 prisoners recently.

Northeast of Budapest Russian columns cleared the enemy from a 65-mile section of the eastern bank of the middle Tisza river, on a front between Cap on the Czechoslovakian border and reaching down to captured Polgar, 83 miles from the captured capital.

Sixty towns and villages were seized in the advance on Budapest from the south and the enemy was rolled back on a 60-mile front. The capture of 2,000 prisoners, including Col. Gen. Janus Voroes, former Hungarian chief of staff, brought the total for the first three days of (Continued on page four)

The WAR TODAY AN ANALYSIS OF THE NEWS

By DEWITT MACKENZIE Associated Press War Analyst One of the most inquiring people I know is my colleague Howard Blakeslee, Associated Press Science Editor, who has a penchant for asking me to explain what impels Herr Hitler to continue fighting for a lost cause.

What Blakeslee wants me to do is read the dictator's mind to see whether the Nazi chief still has something up his sleeve—and maybe that's not a bad idea in view of yesterday's great air battle and other signs that a showdown is impending. The difficulty is that while I've seen a good deal of Hitler at one time or another—Berchtesgaden, Godesberg, Munich, Berlin, Sudetenland—I can't claim to read readily one of the most twisted minds the devil ever moulded. Still, this abnormal mind surely reacts to some typical human emotions, so let's try.

W. S. Brickhouse Dies Of Injuries

William S. Brickhouse, 1023 Chestnut street, died in Pitt General hospital about 1:15 this afternoon as a result of injuries received when he was struck by a truck on the Washington highway about two and a half miles from Greenville early last night. Brickhouse was an employee of Nichols Market.

The accident occurred while Brickhouse was standing beside the rear of a car on which a tire was being changed, and was sideswiped by a passing truck.

Brickhouse was enroute to Greenville from Washington with two other persons and the car had a blowout. The car pulled off the side of the road and Brickhouse was standing beside the rear of the car when a Southern Towel Company truck traveling east met at the spot where the other car was parked. Brickhouse was caught between the passing truck and the parked car and thrown against the car receiving a head injury. He was brought to the hospital in an unconscious condition and never rallied.

Brickhouse made his home with his sister Mrs. H. E. Western. Funeral arrangements had not been made early this afternoon.

AIR OFFENSIVE AGAINST NEMESIS IS STEPPED UP

Thousand British Bombers Pounded Dusseldorf; U. S. Fighters Scored Record Victory Over Luftwaffe Yesterday.

London, Nov. 3.—(AP)—A thousand British heavy bombers laid about 4,400 tons of explosives and fire bombs last night on Germany's greatest arsenal of munitions after a day in which U. S. fighters of the Eighth Air Force won "the victory of the war over the Luftwaffe."

A special communique from U. S. strategic air force headquarters gave this description today and told of the destruction of 200 German aircraft over the synthetic oil center of Merseburg. It scaled down American losses to 40 heavy bombers and 19 fighters. One bomber and nine fighters, previously listed lost in yesterday's operations, landed safely at French bases. The communique said "still others probably landed behind our lines in Europe" and were unable to report immediately.

Fighter pilots destroyed 130 German interceptors in the air and 45 on ground, some on Berlin airports, 100 miles from Merseburg. Bombers shot down 53 while attacking the great, Leuna synthetic oil plant, which once supplied Germany with 50,000 tons of petroleum products a month.

The German air force made use of its rare stands to protect its oil spring, sending 500 planes to battle the armada of 2,000 attacking craft, 90% of which were fighters. Formations of speedy Messerschmitts struck at the rail center of Genshagen while the heavies were blasting Dusseldorf, whose Rhein-metal Bergs plant is the largest arms producer in Germany now that the Krupp Works in Essen have been partially knocked out.

Enemy planes destroyed by American airmen yesterday represented a record single day's loss by fighters and bombers. The long-range Luftwaffe sent up 400 to 500 planes, including scores of jet-propelled fighters, against a force of 1,100 American heavy bombers and 600 escorting Mustangs making a concentrated (Continued on page seven)

Weather Slowing Fighting In Italy

Rome, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Unusually heavy rainstorms have brought operations on the Italian battlefield once more to a standstill. Allied headquarters announced today.

A few gains were achieved by the Eighth Army, but there were no major advances as fighting mired down. The weather limited the Mediterranean Allied Air Force to less than 100 sorties yesterday.

A small force of undisclosed objectives in Austria last night.

British infantry and armor made an advance of nearly a mile south of the Rimini-Bologna highway (No. 9) in the Forli sector. The battle raged around the Forli airfield, two miles southeast of Forli, with the Germans holding two sides and the British two sides.

German guns and infantrymen blocked the advance up highway 16 toward Ravenna on the Adriatic coast sector. The British were approximately five miles from the city.

The Germans counterattacked during hills in the violent weather on the Fifth Army front, but American positions remained virtually unchanged. Many forward units were unable to get their full quota of essential supplies because of the washed out bridges, swollen streams and the mud.

Gen. MacArthur Says End Leyte Campaign In Sight

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, from a room where an enemy flier's bullet missed his head by 12 inches, announced today the near end of the Leyte campaign as his land, sea and air forces set a death trap for the Japanese.

Just two weeks after he returned to the Philippines, MacArthur's four divisions were cornering bewildered Japanese on Leyte's west coast, pressing for a kill which swell enemy casualties, already past 30,000.

Associated Press war correspondent Richard Bergholz reported the Japanese were throwing in their finest fliers as they battled to stave off the onrushing Americans. Bergholz described a bitter aerial dogfight at Ormoc yesterday, in which 27 of the enemy were shot down without breaking cover over the convoy they were protecting.

"The Japanese fliers were definitely above the average," he reported returning fliers as saying. "They held a tight formation over the ships and refused to break under repeated passes."

No American planes were lost in the eight-hour melee. Today's communique suggested attention was swinging to other islands of the central Philippines, reprinting attacks by four-engineered Liberator bombers on Cebu and Negros, west of American holdings on Leyte and Samar.

British Clear Out Flushing Opening Antwerp For Allies; Hodges Forces Open New Drive Toward Cologne; Patch's Seventh Army Pushes Forward In The South.

By WILLIAM FRYE London, Nov. 3.—(AP)—The First U. S. Army thrust forward another two miles from Vossenack southeast of Aachen today and the Berlin radio said Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' jaws along a 30-mile front were "forerunners of the forthcoming offensive."

The drive, which netted a four-mile gain in two days after the shove through the Hurgen Forest, resulted in the capture of the village of Schmidt overlooking the Roer River, whose muddy clay banks intercept the next major barrier to the Rhine.

Gen. Hodges' men, who broke the concrete crust of the Siegfried Line at Aachen in the first two weeks of October, jumped off as the battle to open the supply port of Antwerp came to a virtual close with the capture of the ancient Dutch port of Vlissingen (Flushing) and Domburg on Walcheren Island.

Two more islands north of the Schelde Estuary—North Beveland and Tholen—were cleared of the enemy. German resistance flickered out south of the Schelde. In the drive north of Antwerp toward Rotterdam and the Mass (Meuse) British and American troops restored and consolidated three bridgeheads across the Marx River and Canal, from five to six miles south of the strategic Merselk Bridge.

American and French troops battling deeper into the Vosges slopes on the southern sectors of the Allied front, captured eight towns, including Baccarat, and approached to within three to eight miles of the first major barrier to the Rhine frontier.

The new American drive in a sector about 15 miles southeast of Aachen, carried on in a southeasterly direction from captured Vossenack, and reached hills overlooking the Roer at a point about 10 miles south of Duren.

A German high command spokesman said the Americans were probing German defenses all the way from Waldenath above Aachen, to Hagen, including the Geilenkirchen and Wurselen sectors, north of Aachen.

These attacks, the spokesman said (Continued on page five)

Ship Sunk In St. Lawrence

Mantane, Que., Nov. 3.—(AP)—Fort-five merchant seamen were missing today after a British freighter sank in the St. Lawrence river near Mantane. With the cause of the sinking obscure, there was speculation that Nazi submarines had again penetrated the St. Lawrence.

The ship went down last night after two explosions. Seventeen survivors who rowed across the swift St. Lawrence current for six hours in the only lifeboat known to have left the vessel landed at nearby Petite Matane this morning.

The St. Lawrence is 30 miles wide here.

The ship was outwashed bound. The crew, one of the survivors said, totaled 62.

Today On The Home Front

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Nov. 3.—(AP)—The so-called warden insect-killer of this war is not yet ready for civilian use. There's no indication when it will be.

There are two good reasons: Because military needs are so large, there is not enough for civilians now; the government still is experimenting to determine DDT's poisonous effects on man, insect and plant.

Industry is doing a lot of experimenting with it, too, for use as an insect-killer in homes after the war. For instance: fly sprays, moth proofing, an insect repellent in paints, and protection for pets.

DDT has been in use for months before the army announced its development. Early last summer it was credited with having checked typhus.

The use of DDT was pushed and extended. It is used for malarial mosquito control in combat areas and in some hospitals for veterans and war prisoners in this country.

But in those cases it is used by Government officials say it is not yet practical for civilians to attempt malarial mosquito control with DDT.

The War Production Board says its own Arsenical Producers Industry Advisory Committee—the men who produce DDT—agree that it should not now be released for commercial use. They suggest further experiments on agricultural crops, dip sprays for livestock, and household insecticides.

This is what was said at WPH: How long after a fruit or vegetable has been sprayed by DDT can it safely be eaten by a human? Government agencies are trying to find out.

How extensively can it be used in agriculture? DDT still is the best insect-killer found, killing a larger variety than any other material yet tested.

But there are quite a few varieties apparently, which it won't kill. And that's the hitch.

Suppose two different kinds of insects destroy apples. Suppose DDT kills only one of those insect types and doesn't bother the other. A way should be sought to make it deadly for both.

Or—suppose there is one kind (Continued on Page Four)

Opera Singers Appear at College.
The four singers from the Metropolitan Opera who appear in concert tonight at Wright auditorium at 8:30 are definitely the opposite of the once typical "long hair and spaghetti" artists of concert. They are all American born and for the most part trained in this country. Walter Cassel, baritone, was born in Council Bluffs, Iowa, and received his training in Iowa and New York City. Josephine Tumina, soprano, was born in St. Louis and did her early studying in California. Donald Dame, tenor, started life in Cleveland, and studied at Western Reserve University and Juillard School of Music; while Helen Olheim was born in Buffalo, New York, and is a graduate of the Eastman School of Music in Rochester.

Although each is a finished musician with great artistry, as every "Met" star must be, none is famous for temperamentalism or eccentricities, which is so often expected from the artist. Rather, they seem to be quite like the rest of us, a fact brought out by their tastes and interests. For example, Mr. Cassel raises chickens. He has a home in New Jersey where he, his wife and three children have about 1200 chickens. He is also an ardent sports fan. Miss Tumina, as a school girl in San Francisco, played third base on a boys' ball team. She is an excellent tap dancer and a "swing" fan; in fact she has made some recordings with Jimmy Dorsey's orchestra which are considered swing classics. Helen Olheim, mezzo-soprano, likes to cook fancy dishes, wears a good luck charm, although she is not superstitious, and likes to play tennis. Her favorite movie actors are Greer Garson and Walter Pidgeon; favorite crooner, Bing Crosby.

Donald Dame may be heard Sunday evenings over WNCN at 8 o'clock on the program "Music for an Hour." Walter Cassel has his own program, "Calling America" over CBS at 8 o'clock Sunday evenings. All these artists appear frequently as guest stars on many of the top radio shows of the day.

Dance At USO Tonight.
The dance tonight at the USO Club will be formal, with the Ninth Wing Band from Cherry Point furnishing the music. The hours are from 8:30 until 12 o'clock. Junior hostesses who attend the dance are expected to wear formal dress.

BOARD BACKS FARM BUREAU

Chamber Directors Also Endorse Military Training.

The board of directors of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce, at its meeting Thursday night endorsed universal military training in peacetime, endorsed the Farm Bureau and urged farmers and business men to help swell the membership to an all-time high in an effort to keep gains made in agriculture as a result of the organization's activities, instructed the Chamber's transportation and communications committee to oppose a proposal to increase motor truck rates from Norfolk into East Carolina points, endorsed the application of the Carolina Trailways before the State Utilities Commission for additional bus service between Raleigh and Washington via Fountain and Greenville, and approved the plans of the membership committee to strengthen the Chamber of Commerce that it may be in better position to adequately handle the organization's increasing program for the further development of the community. In support of Universal Military Training in Peacetime, the Chamber's directors voted that the United States should adopt a policy of military training for young men in peacetime, which schedule should be flexible enough to assure minimum of dislocation in the educational and business life of the young men affected, and upon completion of the required military training, trainees who do not enlist in the regular military organizations should be enrolled in reserve components. Had such a program of training been in effect before this war, the directors felt that the country would have been in a much better position today and many losses in the present war would have been avoided, and in addition the manpower of the nation would have been much better off because of such training, whether engaged in civilian or military pursuits. The Chamber's agricultural committee will cooperate with the Fitt County Farm Bureau in its membership campaign, realizing that the Bureau through its effort in the past has been largely responsible for the improved position of agriculture which is the major industry in this section. In supporting the bureau, the board calls to the attention of business in the community that the prosperity of the farmer is the major factor in the determination of the prosperity of the entire community.

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

WORSHIP AND EATING

There is a basic and profound relationship between the religious experience and the eating of food. We read of Moses and Aaron and the elders of Israel that "they saw God and did eat and drink." The stirring seasons of spiritual elevation and national enlightenment described in the Old Testament were all feasts. In the New Testament our Lord performed His first miracle in connection with a wedding feast. One of His great miracles was the feeding of the five thousand. After His resurrection He revealed Himself to certain of His disciples as they were fishing on the Sea of Galilee, and when they came ashore "they saw a fire of coals, and fish laid thereon, and bread." As the climax of His ministry among men, Jesus instituted what is known as The Lord's Supper, and this came at the close of the eating of the Passover meal.

When we break bread with anyone, we acknowledge our friendship to them and our relationship with them. The experience of eating has been carried over into religion as a sign and seal of our fellowship with each other and with God.

So let us not despise the modern church supper and speak disparagingly of its preparation, as if it were not a high type of Christian service. It can be carried too far, and this type of service can be substituted for witnessing and other purely spiritual endeavor. But food brings people together in fellowship, and fellowship is one of the most important factors in the Christian life. We believe in "The Communion of Fellowship of the saints."

AMERICA IN WARTIME

By JACK STINNETT

By CHARLES C. HASLET
(Substituting for Jack Stinnett, who is ill.)

Washington—A warning sign has been hung out by the Department of Agriculture. The department admits it has no legislative program to back up its campaign to prevent a disastrous land boom such as followed the first World War, but it is carrying on an educational campaign throughout the nation anyway.

It is cautioning farmers and non-farmers, lending agencies, banks and real estate dealers to help keep land prices from further inflation. It contends that current values above levels that can be sustained by production over a period of years.

The Farm Security Administration says: Some farms regrettably are being bought by speculators, who are not interested in farming or in living on a farm, but only in the profit that can be made by selling the land for more than they paid for it.

Secretary Wickard's office reports that land prices throughout the country already are above normal and in some places have doubled during the last two years.

There has been a tremendous rise in land prices in the citrus, tobacco, corn and wheat belts and in the Pacific northwest. The increase has not been so great in the Atlantic and New England states. The Bureau of Agricultural Economics says that the year or two following V-E day in Europe is likely to be the "critical" period of the World War II farm real estate market. In case a high degree of optimism and enthusiasm develops, it says, "all conditions essential for a full-fledged land boom are likely to be present shortly after the end of the European war."

Secretary Wickard's office has talked with insurance companies and banks and found they are "looking at the problem soundly." But the department is somewhat worried about the increasing number of loans being made by wealthy individuals.

If farmers buy with small down payments at inflated prices, the department fears they may lose their farms at foreclosure sales when prices drop, just as many were lost at the end of the boom following

REG-MANNING

World War I. One development "disturbing" the department is that workers in war plants and some businesses are buying farms without seeing them, just to have a place to go after the war ends. They often get misrepresented, overpriced land.

For the long run, the Farm Credit Administration (FCA) advises it is best to base your plans on returns from crops and livestock about like those of 1933 to 1940, when there were some lean and some fat years. Then figure out what such a farm would be worth normally, whether the soil is productive, water supply good, roads, power, telephone and school bus service available and taxes reasonable.

A reasonable allowance also should be made for family living expenses, miscellaneous odds and ends and some savings. And the department wants you to look at a farm before you buy it, so you will know what you are getting. It doesn't want a wave of foreclosures a few years hence.

THE WAR TODAY

bomb. The London Daily Mail's Stockholm correspondent says he is informed that the Nazis are satisfied they can send these rockets against England on a fairly large scale—and that they soon can launch rockets against the United States.

However that may be, the purpose of these bombs will be to weaken civilian morale to a point where a compromise peace will be possible. So far as the military efficacy of these bombs is concerned, Hitler's propaganda agents are warning the German people not to hope for miracles from new weapons.

The Nazi dictator's plan for defense delay is (1) to make his big stand against the western Allies on the Rhine—undoubtedly a powerful position and (2) to hold as long as he can against the Russians on the Volga and in East Prussia and then fall back to the Oder River inside his own frontier. He hopes with the help of winter to stand off defeat into the new year.

Poison Offshoots

American patrol torpedo boats and Leyte-based fighter planes. Fred Hampson, Associated Press war correspondent with the 24th from the time its elements swept through heavy enemy fire on to the beaches at Palo, said it wrote a stirring page in American history in its drive to Carigara.

The troops swept into the town without firing a shot after an 18-hour artillery barrage dislodged the defenders but in the days before that the fighting embraced everything, including a bayonet charge. "Carigara was paid for in American blood," Hampson said, but he added:

"The battle exacted a terrific toll from the Japanese. Known enemy dead was around 3,000 and there is no estimate of the number of artillery victims lying in swamps, fields and wooded hills.

"The Japanese was routed from his dugouts, stalked over the hills and slaughtered at the edge of roads. And today the blood of his dead and the blood of his wounded colors the dust of the road to Carigara."

Within the past 24 hours, the Japanese air force inflicted some damage on American shipping off east Leyte but paid for it with 27 planes shot down in sky battles.

(A Japanese communique today claimed 6 American warships were sunk and four damaged in Leyte Gulf and Surigao Strait Wednesday and Wednesday night. The ships claimed sunk were listed as two cruisers, three destroyers and a transport. Yesterday an Imperial communique claimed four cruisers were sunk and three battleships damaged in the Gulf.)

Pitt Negro Slain By Convict Guard

Jimmie Grice, 28, Pitt county Negro, serving a five-year sentence for secret assault, was shot to death in Granville county yesterday when he attempted to escape from the road gang on which he was working.

Grice was convicted and sentenced in Pitt County Superior Court in November, 1942.

According to reports of the prison guard no other prisoner was involved in the attempted escape. Grice had previously escaped from the prison camp and had made several unsuccessful attempts since that time.

Chapter 13
By eight o'clock Cherry had finished tucking Terry into bed at the hotel where Julia, Scott-Price had decided to spend the night. Terry promised to make his aunt return to the ship early the next morning. It was odd, thought Cherry as she walked down the wide marble staircase, that on such a night and in such a place, all she wanted was to get back to the ship. Outside the night was perfect, blue velvet studded with stars and the promise of a young moon. The Hotel Wilmington reminded her of a film set, with its palms and pages and this fantastic marble staircase that was beautiful-cool.

The throbbing of violins came from the orchestra in the Palm Court, drawing her eyes irresistibly as she crossed the main lounge towards the bar. Framed in the marble arches and growing palms she could see people dancing, and the combination of music, lights, and tropical fragrance came towards her like a wave, sensuous, engulfing. She lingered an instant, fascinated by the spectacle, and noticed that Julia's white frock was startlingly obvious against the evening suit of her tall partner. Cherry, leaning against one of the marble pillars, felt suddenly sick and cold with snock-cold as this marble.

Julia was dancing with Rory! Dancing with Rory, who bent his head absorbed as she talked; her small body, lithe as a cat's pressed close to his, melting into it. A strange, attractive, distinguished Rory playing cavalier to this hand-hunting tigress. Cherry turned away abruptly and fled to the bar, trying to tell herself that she had imagined that little scene. If she went away quickly enough she might believe it was all nonsense.

"I'm having a little party in the Palm Court. Don't bother me. Oh, it was real enough! Douglas got down from the scarlet leather stool when he saw her and his face lit up with pleasure. "So you can come! I'm so glad, my dear—but you look dreadfully pale. Will you have a drink?" "Yes, please," Cherry said it breathlessly, as if this sudden pain were physical.

"What will you have? Martini, sherry?" "Anything—anything you suggest." She gave an odd little laugh. "I'm in your hands for tonight Douglas—and I feel horribly tired, so it won't be very amusing for you." "Poor child, I'll soon put that right," Douglas smiled at her solicitously. "Where would you like to dine?" "Anywhere you like, except here," she answered numbly.

Douglas pushed the tall glass full of amber-colored liquid closer to Cherry. "Drink up, my dear. You look as though you'd seen a ghost." She pulled herself together with an effort. She was making a ridiculous fuss about nothing. If people could see how sick she felt! After all, what had she seen? A ship's officer dancing with a very attractive woman passenger, that was all. A thing that could happen very easily, very naturally.

But Rory! her heart cried. Rory who was noted for not being a "ladies' man," whose sole interest in life was his ship. She closed her eyes against that treasured remembrance of him standing on the bridge this evening, against a dozen small scenes she had etched on her secret mind—Rory smiling at her in Queen Street, Rory stooping and holding out his hands to Terry, Rory turning to the lonely, flustered Miss Baker. "Perhaps you would like to see around the ship, too?" So Pip was right, and there was a good deal of pose about his uniform. It was just an old-school-sea act, after all; one could not make friends with a stewardess, but a passenger was quite another matter. And why shouldn't he have a good time? Her heart cried out defensively. Week after week, month after month, year after year the war went on—and with it the ceaseless vigilance and responsibility for officers at sea. No wonder they wanted to escape sometimes, to relax.

If it had been anyone but Julia, her hurt mind argued. She saw, over and over again, that fleeting glimpse of Rory bent protectively over the tiny, perfect body flexed into his. Julia, out for a kill, was enough to turn any man's head. Cherry, well as she knew the woman behind the scenes, was honest enough to admit that. But somehow the idea of Rory falling for that artificial glamor, that studied effect, that horrible smoothness of money appalled her. Cherry thought miserably, "I've been a fool; I deserved this; I've just been an idiot, making a little tin god of the man. She drank some of the amber liquid and pulled a little face. Douglas was laughing at her out of the haze of her painful thoughts. "That's better! You look more like yourself now." "I'm not dressed." She snatched at the first excuse, smiling a trifle apologetically. "To be honest, I wasn't coming out. I'm making use of you, Douglas, to cure a bad attack of the blues!"

"Or an overdose of Mrs. Scott-Price?" he inquired whimsically and let his hand rest for an instant over hers on the bar. "It doesn't matter. You look charming enough for the Savoy, let alone the Wilmington. But we can dine anywhere. How would you like the Spanish Restaurant? It's genuine Latin America and the music is good. We could go on to the club afterwards and dance."

Allied Troops . . .

The few German guns remaining on flooded Walcheren island on the north side of the Echeelde mouth after the capture of Vlissingen were rapidly running out of ammunition. Only a few scattered snipers remained to harass the Allies on either side of the river mouth, entrance to Antwerp port.

American and British smashing against the hard circle of German defenders holding south of the Maas on the road to Rotterdam, restored a bridgehead over the little Mark river within six miles of the Moerdijk bridge.

The Americans attacked in moonlight a few hours before dawn in gaining their bridgehead to the left of the British, and dug in while waiting for reinforcements.

All the vital part of Walcheren island was in Allied hands with the Fall of Vlissingen, a city of 22,000 and third port of Holland. Supreme headquarters announced that the Allied amphibious forces on the Dutch island which landed Wednesday at Westkapelle on the western tip and at Vlissingen had come to within two miles of a junction. Thus the coastal belt of dikes and dunes on the southwestern edge of the island where German guns were stationed, as well as the northwest corner, had been seized.

Canadians still battled forward under a crossfire at the western end of the narrow granite causeway connecting Walcheren with South Beveland.

They were aided by a newly won British foothold two miles southwest of the causeway.

Some hard fighting evidently remained before every German is driven from Walcheren, an island eight miles long. But Allied capture of some of the enemy's 250-mm guns left those remaining harmless to Allied shipping.

Some of these Germans were in Domburg, at the northwest corner of the island where there was street fighting, and at Middleburg, in the center of the island.

Arnhem and between Middleburg and the causeway, was declared an open town. A hospital is located there.

Capture of Vlissingen, formerly a great fortress in the Dutch battles for independence, place at the disposal of the Allies three harbors, a commercial port and shipbuilding and machine building facilities.

The battle for the Schelde mouth, which began Oct. 6 when Canadians crossed the Leopold canal, also saw the clearing of the last snipers out of Zeebrugge, the capture in rapid succession of Knocke, Sluis and Heyst, and the liberation of the last inch of Belgian territory.

Here, too, the battle was over with the capture of a total of 12,288 Germans—more than were admitted in the entire German drive. The Canadian First Army's total bag since D-Day had now climbed to just over 100,000 prisoners.

Included were 250 taken in a heretofore unannounced invasion of North Beveland. This island, just off captured South Beveland Island, is now clear of the enemy also.

The two new bridgeheads over the Mark were forced just north of Oudenbosch. It was the second time the Allies had been across, but Poles and Americans had been forced to relinquish their hold 24 hours previously because of inability to get heavy equipment across.

Dug in on the north bank they were under heavy artillery fire from the north side of the Maas and Hollandse Diep.

The nature of the terrain, closed by canals and dikes, however, was the main reason for the slow progress in this sector.

At the eastern fringe of the Allied front in Holland, British troops probed into the outskirts of Meijel, 12 miles west of the Dutch border town of Venlo, and found the enemy had pulled back toward the Maas after several days of exhausting counterattacks.

Meijel and Liessel, since recaptured by the British, were taken by the Germans at the highwater mark of this thrust, aimed at distracting Allied attention in western Holland.

Doughboys of Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's Seventh Army and polus of Gen. Jean De Lattre De Tassigny's French first army battled forward on a 14-mile front southeast of Nancy and northeast of Epinal on the approaches of all three of the northernmost Vosges passes. They had advanced five miles at places in the last 24 hours.

Farther south, Americans captured La Bourgonce, six miles northwest of St. Die, first town inside the Ste. Marie pass.

The German radio said General Patch had committed five divisions to his drive, and identified them as the American 45th, 36th and third, the French third Algerian and the French second Armored.

The new American assault below Aachen began yesterday on a 4,000-yard front and quickly blasted its way forward for nearly two miles, overrunning the villages of Germer and Vossenack, south of Hurtgen, and reaching the edge of Hurtgen itself. The Allied communique reported that "our drive is continuing against stiffening resistance."

MRS. EUBANKS THANKS RETONGA IN OWN CASE

"I Feel Stronger And More Like My Old Self Than In Two Years," Declares Well Known Resident. Is Telling Her Friends About Retonga.

"Retonga did everything claimed for it, and I have told many of my neighbors about this grand medicine," happily declares Mrs. Della Eubanks, well known resident of Route 6, Knoxville, Tenn. In a grateful public endorsement of this noted herbal stomachic and Vitamin B-1 medicine. Discussing her case, Mrs. Eubanks gratefully continued: "Nervous indigestion gave me little peace for years. I rarely felt hungry and I was afraid to eat for I often suffered so much distress from gas in my stomach, that I simply had to gasp for breath. It seemed to me I never got more than an hour or two of sound sleep at night and in the mornings I felt so tired I simply dreaded to get up. I was forced to use laxatives regularly and often very powerful ones. My nerves seemed to stay on edge all the time.

"I never before experienced anything like the relief Retonga gave me. I rest well, my appetite is splendid, and I don't feel nervous. The sluggish elimination is relieved too. It would be hard to praise Retonga enough."

Retonga is intended to relieve distress due to Vitamin B-1 deficiency, constipation, insufficient flow of gastric juices in the stomach, and loss of appetite. Accept no substitute. Retonga may be obtained at

The Crossley poll, giving Roosevelt 52 per cent of the popular vote after trying to estimate the service vote, says the President would get 354 electoral votes to Dewey's 177 if slight indications in doubtful states are borne out.

All three of the latter polls give Dewey the edge in Colorado, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Michigan, Nebraska, North Dakota, Ohio, South Dakota, Vermont and Wisconsin.

Girl Scout Week Observed

There has been such a gorgeous week for the celebration of Girl Scout week here in Greenville, and it was begun with our mass gathering of scouts, Brownies and many interested scouts to hear Rev. Bradshaw Sunday morning, at the Methodist Church. If a sermon could have been more effective for those interested listeners, it would have been a real miracle. For that sermon really hit the spot with everyone there, and Greenville Girl Scouts truly thank Rev. Bradshaw for such a delightfully sweet story of life.

On Tuesday a tray full of favors was carried over to the hospital for the patients there to enjoy from their noonday tray. Girl Scouts and Brownies made them, hoping that each receiver would gain strength to health through their small remembrance.

Friday night, Nov. 3, will be the highlight of the week, and a time most of the scouts will remember—Parent-Daughter banquet night. This will be held at the high school cafeteria at 6:45 p. m., with tickets on sale at the door or from each troop leader. Please call your troop leader and tell her to expect you if your ticket is not in hand.

Our semi-annual Court of Awards will be held, and Brownies new this year will be invested. Brownies will fly-up into a new troop headed by Mrs. Charles Fife. No. 1 will be their title. Troop 10 of West Greenville school will be invested as a troop of new tenderfoot scouts, with other new scouts scattered throughout the troops in town. Three of Troop 2 will receive their first class badges, and Troop 8 will receive second class badges; as well as several proficiency badges will be awarded, to various scouts working on advancements to higher ranks. Any Curbed Bar scout in Greenville is cordially invited to our banquet, and there is a sincere hope that there will be a representation of them present. It is our sincere desire that any scout desiring to go to our banquet will be able to attend, as this is really a highlight of our year, and an inspiration to scouting in the future.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS . . .

"Mary and I were just saying, Judge, how lucky we are here in America that we have so many natural resources to help win the war."

"That's right, Jim. When war broke out we had oil; we had steel, we had food, lumber, aluminum...practically everything we needed. There's one thing we didn't have...rubber. The enemy had that."

"But that didn't bother us for long. Soon American brains and industry had synthetic rubber by the tonrolling out of plants. That filled a critical need...you can't win a war without rubber."

"I was very much interested the other day in reading a statement made by a high government official on synthetic rubber. In it he said 'It is fair to regard the rubber manufactured to date as being almost solely the product of the beverage distilling industry.'"

"He also said that, in his estimation, the tremendous contribution of distillers' industrial alcohol to the synthetic rubber program had not received the recognition which it deserves."

"We certainly learned something today, didn't we Mary?"

Superforts . . .
The communique reported the B-29 raid was made in coordination with elements of the Eastern air command. This was the first report of the giant bombers working on a mission with smaller aircraft. Word that the Superforts took off from Indian bases suggested that the planes from the Eastern air command may have been B-17 Flying Fortresses or B-24 Liberators of the 10th airforce based in India. The Tenth and 14th airforce, the latter with bases in China, are part of the Eastern air command. The giant craft took off from bases in India with "the largest bomb loads per aircraft so far known to be listed in aerial warfare." The raiders, coordinating with elements of the eastern air command, encountered favorable weather over the target area. A communique today from Allied southeast Asia command headquarters said eastern air command planes yesterday scored hits on the central Burma-Rangoon oil pipeline at Singaungwe. The important rail bridge at Dara, Shan, also was struck and was heavily damaged during a low-level attack Wednesday, the bulletin said.

U. S. 14th air force headquarters in China announced two sweeps over the South China Sea by B-24 Liberators yesterday. In which a Japanese destroyer was sunk and a large transport was damaged and left listing. The attacks were made against an enemy convoy east of Hainan island.
U. S. 14th air force planes also attacked in French Indo-China, hitting a barracks area at Lucdan, and striking at river traffic. Fighters attacked the Galam airdrome at Hanoi and strafed rail targets.

Mighty Air Power
London, Nov. 3 — (AP) — The growth of American military air power is emphasized by official statistics for October, showing that the U. S. Eighth Air Force flew 10,000 more sorties over Germany in the one month than were flown together in the force's first year of operation.
Despite much adverse weather, the Eighth sent 18,000 bombers and 13,150 fighters over the Reich in October.

Air Offensive
assault on the huge synthetic oil plant at Merseburg and rail yards at Bellefeld and Rheine.
When the swirling savage dog-fights were over the U. S. Eighth Air Force had set six other records in combat at a cost of 41 bombers and 28 fighters which failed to return.
The Americans destroyed 208 German planes, 183 in the air and 25 on ground. Four victims were swift new jet-propelled craft. The victories fell 90 planes short of the record of 307 destroyed in a lengthy running battle over and around Schweinfurt and Regensburg on Aug. 18, 1943. The jet planes attacked in formation, but only a few were able to penetrate the fighter screen convoying the bombers.
The new records were:
(1) Fighters—destroyed 155 German planes, beating previous record of 117 set Sept. 11.
(2) Fighters — Shot down 130 Nazis, beating previous record of 117.
(3) Fighter group — Mustangs commanded by Col. Joe L. Mason,

Columbus Ohio, shot down 38 planes, breaking old record of 31 for a single day.
(4) Fighter squadron—Mustangs commanded by Maj. George E. Preddy, 605 Park Ave., Greensboro, scored 24 kills. Old record was 18.
(5) Fighter pilot—Preddy shot down one plane to become the highest ranking ace now operating in this theater with 23 1-2 in the air and six on the ground for 29 1-2. The record for this theater is 31 kills, held by Lt. Col. Francis S. Gabreski, Oil City, Pa., now a German prisoner of war.
(6) Fighter pilot—Lt. William J. Cullerton, Chicago, Ill., destroyed eight planes, two in the air and six on the ground, for highest combined toll made in one day.

Returning bomber pilots said the flak "rattled like hail" on their planes. Others told of the rapturously like stabs by the Nazi jet planes zooming "straight up" from the ground.
Meanwhile, the Air Ministry estimated that during October American and British bombers showered 100,000 tons of bombs on Germany, almost twice the tonnage of any previous month.

PHANTOMS GO TO RALEIGH

Will Meet Champion Caps In Contest Tonight.

The Greenville High School Phantoms play the Raleigh Caps, defending class A champions of North Carolina, tonight in the Phantoms' sixth football game of the season.

The Phantoms are rated as the underdogs but nevertheless, Coach Clark has his gridders whipped up to assure an exciting ball game.

The Phantoms realize that they will have to fight every inch of the way if they expect to penetrate the staunch forward wall of the Caps, led by Brantley Poole, all-state guard last year.

From reports coming to the Phantom camp, Raleigh seems to be very weak on pass defense. Also they were reported to have tumbled six times in their last game.

Couch Clark has told his squad that there is a good possibility of scoring on these two weaknesses of the Capital City boys.

The Phantoms are expected to rely on strategy and trickery tonight and plenty of aerials are expected to be hurled before the final whistle is blown.

The Caps are expected to use the "T" formation which they used against Wilmington last week. This will not be entirely new to the Green and White because Kingston and Tarboro both used this formation in their previous games with Greenville.

The Phantom forward wall is expected to be made up of Fleming and Batchelor, ends; Lupton and Rice, tackles; Dall and Clark, guards; Williams, center; Perkins, tailback; Futrele, fullback; Jordan, blocking back and Leggett, wing-back.

Aldermen . . .

The matters of purchasing a typewriter for the police department and a power lawnmower for the cemetery were referred to proper committees for action.

City Engineer H. L. Rivers reporting on postwar plans stated that all maps and surveys for the drainage project had been completed but that complete estimates on cost had not yet been obtained. He also brought out that there would be additional paving and resurfacing of the city streets. He informed the board that Superintendent J. H. Rose had agreed to furnish land near one of the Negro school buildings for a proposed swimming pool for the Negroes.

The remainder of the meeting was consumed in the payment of bills and minor reports. The meeting adjourned at 8:45 to give the members an opportunity to hear a radio address by President Roosevelt.

HOWELL PICKS GRID WINNERS

Wake Forest, Carolina And State Picked To Win; Duke To Lose.

By FRITZ HOWELL

New York, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Boss Orlo Robertson is entertaining some $12,500 influenza germs this week-end, so he's passed on to his cheerless chore of fixing up the football favorites.

Orlo weakened himself rooting Twilight tear home in the Pimlico Special, allowing the germs to find a roosting place. In pointing the "pigskin picks" finger at us he said, hoarsely, "The Navy is transferring football talent all over the Jap, so I may as well transfer this job to you."

So here they are:

Notre Dame-Navy: That Middle line is strong, but you can pass over or go around a stone wall. It's Notre Dame, in a close one.

Michigan-Pennsylvania: The Wolverines are on the prowl after clawing Purdue and Navy didn't help Penn any, Michigan.

Ohio-Indiana: The Hoosiers beat the Bucks in the final seconds last year, but Ohio's tops among the civilians and scents a big ten title this season. Ohio, in a ding-dong scrap.

Army-Villanova: Another romp for the powerful Cadets. Army.

Yale-Dartmouth: Naval transfers have hurt a none-too-strong Dartmouth squad. Yale stays unbeaten.

Iowa-Seahawks-Tulsa: High-scoring Tulsa has a chance, but we'll string along with the free-wheeling Flyers.

Georgia Tech-Duke: Looks as if the Blue Devils don't have the punch in the pinch. Georgia Tech.

Wisconsin-Purdue: Naval talent shift hurts Wisconsin, and Purdue will be on rebound after Michigan loss. Purdue.

Nebraska-Iowa: Nebraska will return to losing ways. Iowa.

Oklahoma-Texas: The unbeaten Cyclones will be slowed down to a Zephyr in this one. Oklahoma.

Bainbridge-N. C. Pre-Flight: Another unbeaten team will fall here as North Carolina Pre-Flight triumphs.

A few quick ones:

East: Columbia over Cornell, Syracuse over Penn State, Brown over Coast Guard Academy, Bucknell over N. Y. U., Rochester over Case, P. & M. over Swarthmore, West Virginia over Temple, Lafayette over Ursinus, Rutgers over Lehigh, Connecticut over City College of New York.

South: Florida over Miami (Friday), Jackson A. A. B. over Mississippi, Alabama over Georgia, Auburn over Presbyterian, Mississippi State over Kentucky, Tennessee over L. S. U., Wake Forest over Clemson, North Carolina over South Carolina, North Carolina State over V. M. I., Virginia over Maryland, Third Air Force over Georgia Navy (Sunday).

Midwest: Minnesota over Northwestern, Michigan State over Missouri, Great Lakes over Marquette, Kansas State over Wichita.

Southwest: Randolph Field over North Texas Aggies, Rice over Texas Tech, Texas over Southern Methodist, Arkansas over Texas Aggies.

Far West and Rocky Mountain: Southern Cal over Naval Training Center, Alameda Coast Guard over California, Fourth Air Force over U. C. L. A., Fleet City over St. Marys (Sunday), Second Air Force over Amarillo Air Field (Sunday), Colorado over New Mexico.

Lumberman Fined.
Raleigh, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Leon Perry, Henderson lumber dealer, was fined $12,000 by Federal Judge T. M. Meekins here yesterday on four counts of violation of price regulations. Perry entered a plea of guilty.
