NEWS ABOUT SERVICEMEN

Shocked By German Atrocities.
Pfc. Paul C. Hill, with the First Army in Germany, wrote May 22 to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul S. Hill of this city, that "the war appears to be drawing to a close and I hope to come home before going to the Pacific to fight the Japs. I miss everyone so much and hope this mess is soon completely ended and all of us can go home to live a normal, peaceful and happy life."

After seeing what the Germans over here have done to human beings I have the bitterest feelings for them. It seems almost unbelievable that a people who consider themselves human could stoop so low as to destroy human beings (some of them belonging to their own country) by every evil method known. Hill's letter was written several days before the Germans surrendered.

A brother, Sgt. Richard B. Jackson of the Army Air Corps, is stationed at March Field, Calif., and a brother-in-law, Pfc. Floyd B. Whichard, who is in the quartermaster corps, has been in the southwest Pacific for 13 months.

Rotary is a composite of a multitude of ideas," explained the past district governor to the neophytes. Then he proceeded to state the four objects of Rotary together with brief comment upon each.

At the conclusion of the address, Dr. Carl Adams, chairman of the Rotary Information Committee, who had charge of the program, made a few remarks indicating some of the local club's characteristics. Each new member was presented with a code of Rotary ethics and a Rotary emblem.

Guests of the club were Major Ingle and Dr. Agnew. Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

LET US USE OUR RELIGION

After a battle with Pompey in which many lost their lives, Caesar said, "Alas, he would have it so."

A certain amount of bloodletting is inevitable in war. But what a dreadful thing that, after all reasonable hope of victory is past, men should continue to fight as the Germans did in shattered Berlin. The Russians defended Stalingrad because by so doing they stemmed the tide of victory and turned the flow in the other direction. But he fighting in Germany in recent weeks has pointed so conclusively to German defeat that nothing but stubbornness and perversity could keep men at such tasks after all significance had departed from their efforts.

Fortress Europe was a great problem some months ago. The stricken and rubble-strewn land over which the huge war machine has passed is even more of a problem today. If people start to starve by the millions in a few months, there will be disorder in central Germany such as the world has probably never known. The hope of the Nazis—or what may be left of their underground—is that Germans will compare the fat, sleek days of the Hitler regime with the appalling suffering of foreign occupation and strive for a return of the old order. Nazism has always thrived on confusion.

This means for us that the application of Christian principles to the administration of defeated peoples will do much to save European civilization from chaos and to make secure the ideals for which we have fought.

AMERICA IN WARTIME

By JACK STINNETT

By JACKSON & ELLIOTT (Substituting for Jack Stinnett)
Washington—Oscar L. Chapman, who rose from baby of the "little cabinet" to dean, has just marked his twelfth anniversary as assistant secretary of interior.

He was the youngest—at 35—to join the group of undersecretaries and assistants to cabinet members under President Roosevelt in 1933. He has watched time shuck off such colleagues as Raymond Moley, Harry Woodring, "Chip" Roberts, watched them move up, down or out.

Modest and retiring, Chapman disclaims any knowledge of why he should have outdistanced any other little cabinet member in history. He disclaims it in the touches he retains of Virginia speech, born of a tobacco farm in South Boston. "I've just kept pretty quiet," he says. "I'd just live longer."

The direct, jocular, kindly aide to irascible Harold Ickes has kept quiet as far as speeches, indictments and sharply-worded criticisms go. But a lot of federal pies have been better flavored for the fingers of Oscar Chapman.

He admits to one lie. It got him into the Navy under age. Three years later the Navy sent him to Colorado for his health. After a year in a naval hospital, cured and out, he began studying law at the University of Denver. At the same time he served as probation officer for one of the nation's most noted tribunals, Judge Ben Lindsey's court.

Later he was named referee for Lindsey, with whom he spent seven years. He joined the late Sen. Edward P. Costigan as law partner and in May 1933, became assistant secretary of the interior.

Chapman isn't fiddler. He just sits and talks quietly about whatever interests him most at the moment. The Interior Department, especially its conservation work, is his baby, and he loves to talk about his baby.

"Trouble is," he says, "people think conservation is some new government trick of locking up the resources—the lakes and fish and lands—so that nobody can get to them. Not the case at all. What we're trying to do is to kind of nurse them along a little, build them up and then let them out to the people so that everybody can have them—lands enough, oil and coal enough, fish enough, birds enough.

During his 12 years Chapman has had about every division of the Interior Department reporting to him at one time or another. But he comes from a lands state—Colorado—and things have settled down so that his main responsibilities are public lands, Indians and wildlife.

Privately Chapman is as busy as he is officially. As a youngster in Colorado he became interested in helping citizens of Mexican descent. His passion for minority rights has followed ever since and he has often been active in behalf of Jews and Negroes. He says "most of us have neglected or forgotten their rights as citizens."

The next 12 years? Well, he'll stay where he is for a while "if they want me," doing his job and keeping quiet about it.

he said the reciprocal trade act should be extended with additional tariff cutting powers.

1. The action will place America in the role of leadership "in a world organized on a policy and program of cooperation both politically and economically."

2. America must find outlets for enormous amounts of surplus goods and farm products, when full peacetime production returns.

3. In order to get pay for exports "we must accept imports from other nations and this must be done through reciprocal agreements whereby we grant concessions and receive concessions in return, to the mutual advantage of both parties."

4. The whole idea of the reciprocal trade agreements act is to find a better market for our surplus products in a world freer from economic barriers which means fuller employment, larger profits and a higher standard of living."

Republican opponents, led by Rep.

Knutson (Minn.) contend the administration trade program would open American business to the competition of low paid labor abroad, cause industries to close and result in unemployment.

Doughton contended that American exports to the 28 countries with which trade agreements have been made have increased 63 per cent while exports to non-agreement countries rose only 32 per cent.

Democratic leaders predicted victory—they have 242 House seats to 189 for the Republicans. The GOP camp was gloomy, but Republican Leader Martin of Massachusetts said things would be different when the Senate takes hold of the legislation.

Specifically, the legislation would allow cuts up to 50 per cent in duties prevailing last Jan. 1. It also would extend the reciprocal trade act for three years.

Hill in the Sixth Marine sector on the west flank.

Half Moon Hill is believed connected with Sugar Loaf by tunnels. This means reinforcements and supply aided the Japanese in driving the Marines off Sugar Loaf's summit ten times before the crest finally was held after the eleventh attack.

The Fifth Regiment of the First Marine Division seized the Japanese from caves and holes on the south slope with flaming oil.

The First Marine Division under Maj. Gen. Pedro Del Valle, an artillery expert, gave the northern approaches to Shuri a nightlong shelling in preparation for a tank-led advance.

General Del Valle noted a decrease in Japanese activity. The artillery fire as observation posts on the ridges are captured by the relentless Yanks.

Three groups of suicidal Japanese carrying satchel demolition charges tied to their waists tried to destroy tanks of the First Marine Division but all were repulsed.

The heaviest counterattack was in Maj. Gen. Lemuel G. Shepherd, Jr.'s Sixth Marine Division sector, on the west coast near the capital city of Naha, which still has not been entered in force pending capture of nearby heights.

This counterblow by 400 to 600 Japanese was fought off, and half the attackers were killed. Some of the Japanese were wearing U. S. Marine uniforms and were armed with American rifles.

On the Okinawa east coast Maj. Gen. James L. Bradley's 96th Infantry Division gained about 300 yards toward the bombed-out port city of Yonabaru. Other elements of the 96th moved westward toward Shuri to maintain pressure on the flank in a slow encirclement. Intense interlocking machinegun fire was encountered throughout the day.

About 35 planes Sunday evening made the first strong Japanese air attack on Okinawa shipping in several days. They damaged five light vessels in low-level sweeps, Nimitz reported. Twenty-six were shot down.

Japanese broadcasters claimed Nippon planes destroyed or heavily damaged five ships, including a light cruiser sunk at Okinawa Sunday night.

Search planes of Fleet Air Wing One, which began flying from Okinawa bases only a few weeks ago, already have sunk 86,880 tons of Japanese shipping and damaged 81,500 tons. They have destroyed 21 Japanese planes and damaged 15.

Relatively small numbers of warplanes seem likely to be brought in from Europe.

Some of the planes which the Nazis knew well if not seen in large numbers, if at all, by the Japanese.

The B-17 Flying Fortress will have only a small assignment. The B-26 Marauder may also be out of combat plans. The P-38 Lightning, terror of Nip pilots for a long time, appears to be out of the coming program. The B-24 Liberator is likely to be of declining importance after carrying the long range bombing and reconnaissance burden for three years.

The B-29 seems certain to hold top places in the program, supported by P-51 Mustangs, P-47 Thunderbolts (both fighters being long range models); B-25 Mitchells, including those modified for Marine use; F4U Corsairs, also used by the Marines and modified for this theater; P-61 Black Widows for night combat duty, and possibly the A-26 Invader for the medium bombing job.

familiar P-6F Helcat, SB2C Hell-diver and TBM Avenger. But along with the Army it is pushing forward some new planes which may serve in this war.

Experience and experiment have done much to improve the effectiveness of warplanes now reaching the Pacific. For example, a Superfortress now carries over the same distance three times as great a load of bombs as was carried a few months ago. At the same time, the effect of the bombs incendiaries has been multiplied.

5. Japan will continue to get a larger dose of firebombs than was given Germany, particularly in areas where home industry is engaged in war work. The national plan invites incendiaries with its congestion and flimsy construction, and American strategists are fully aware of it.

Several general types of firebombs, including the magnesium cluster widely used by both sides in Europe, are being dropped on Japan. High explosive bombing has been almost entirely of one type of bomb, although all sizes are available when special situations call for them. In this respect, Japan is a simpler problem than Germany, with its greater variety of construction.

6. Supply will always be a headache for aviation generally in the Pacific because of (1) the tremendous variety of items used by aircraft, (2) the effect of a shortage of even the tiniest item, (3) the distance to supply sources. Air transport has been a great healer of ills, however.

7. The Japanese must already be regretful of their proud boast that Pacific islands were "unsinkable aircraft carriers." They have the same quality for American forces. What they lack, however, is size, a shortcoming being overcome by numbers. Construction of docks, warehouses, roads, living quarters, maintenance shops, runways, taxiways and dispersal areas creates fantastic problems and is getting fantastic answers—but there are answers and Japan is getting the results. (Tomorrow: Supplying the air fighters)

If that happens, England isn't likely to remain just an island in the Atlantic. She most likely would seek Allies among those nations which look at her across the English channel.

These things may not happen. The big powers—Russia and England—may be content to depend upon the new world organization for security to a greater extent than they ever depended on the old league, with its alliances all over Europe. We'll see.

We are moving steadily toward the time when our amphibious forces will invade the mainland. The Chinese capture of Fochow is an important stepping stone in this direction. If this position can be consolidated it will give us an invaluable base for operations. That raises the question of that task force which the Japs say is roaming about. It might be headed in the direction of the Fochow area.

Edward H. Foley Gets High Post

(The following item from the current issue of the Tar Heel Banker will be of interest to our local readers. Mr. Foley is a native of Greenville, the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Foley, Sr., of this city.)

Edward H. Foley, former vice president and cashier of the Fayetteville Branch of the Branch Banking and Trust Company of Wilson, North Carolina, has been elected vice president of The Morris Bank of Virginia. It has been announced by Anton C. Adams, vice president and cashier. He will be associated with the main office of the bank in Richmond and will assist in the credit management of all the bank's offices. The position he will occupy is a new one and has been brought about by the bank's increased activity in the field of commercial banking.

Mr. Foley is a native of North Carolina and his entire business life has centered around banking. He entered the banking business in 1920 in the National Bank of Greenville, Greenville, N. C. In 1926 he accepted a position as cashier of the Wilson, N. C. office of the Branch Banking and Trust Company and in 1930 was transferred to the Fayetteville office where he has served as cashier, vice president and trust officer. He has lived in Fayetteville continuously since that time, with the exception of a period of service in the Army of the United States from September, 1942, to March, 1943.

Mr. Foley has been extremely active in civic affairs of Cumberland County and Fayetteville. He has been much interested in the Boy Scouts and served as president of the Cape Fear Area Council, Boy Scouts of America. He is a past president of the Fayetteville Rotary Club and is a director of the Chamber of Commerce and Y. M. C. A. of Fayetteville. He served for two years as Cumberland County Chairman of the American Red Cross, and has been chairman of the county's War Finance Committee since

Dr. Hollar Speaker At Lions Meeting

"Stumbling Blocks in the Way of Permanent Peace" was the subject of an interesting talk by Dr. E. C. Hollar of East Carolina Teacher's College faculty at the Lions Club's weekly supper meeting last night.

Some faults which may prevent a permanent peace which he pointed out are: (1) Lack of time needed to get all information necessary to the various peoples in order to understand the situation; (2) Nationality needs to change into internationality; (3) Sovereignty of nations to make right by strength; (4) Too many small nations to talk of international peace; (5) Right of veto by one major power; (6) A right to secede in great danger; (7) Democracy against totalitarianism is quite a problem; and, (8) Tariff barriers.

The speaker enumerated other stumbling blocks as immigration and travel; cost of maintaining peace; willing underpaid services; reduction in the scale of living; inertia human laziness; seeming security of peace; remoteness of control; capital of international organization a great distance from so many countries; and "rulers are amateurs." Dr. Hollar was invited to speak again by President O. E. Dowd.

Past President George Wilkerson inducted Otis Alexander of the E. B. Ficklen Tobacco Company as a club Billy Hodges was awarded the membership key for outstanding work in procuring new members. Rev. A. Hartwell Campbell made the presentation.

The Greenville and Ayden Lions clubs were scheduled to play a softball game this afternoon. Guests of the club were J. D. Stell, brother of Lion W. J. Stell; Ronald Braxton, returned serviceman; and Louis Evans, junior Lion.

Can't Win War Without Money

By CHESTER WALSH
"It is costing the government a lot of money to move the fighting forces from the European theater of war to the Pacific. There being wounded and killed expect the people on the home front to at least chip in enough money to carry on the war to victory over the Japanese," said J. Herbert Waldrop, Pitt County War Finance Committee chairman, today.

"Unless our people get busy and buy the War Bonds, especially the E bonds, Pitt county is going to fall down on the job for the first time during the seven War Loan drives. Officers and enlisted men who return from the battlefronts all say we have a tough fight ahead with the Japs. Dollars are just as much war equipment as guns and shells," Mr. Waldrop said. "The fighting men can't quit unless they are wounded or killed or ordered by their commanders. Those of us at home should feel the same way and use our dollars for War Bonds as faithfully and patriotically as the fighting men serve. War Bonds are on sale at the banks, postoffice and some public booths.

"General Patton did not have to drive his men to get them to fight and beat the Germans. He said, 'Men, let's go. And they went and they won.'

"President Truman has said to the people on the home front, 'Let's buy War Bonds and back up the fighting men.' We should begin to buy more War Bonds and do as good a job as the men who are fighting," the Greenville banker said.

Twenty-five per cent of the 7th War Loan quota of bonds has been sold. Only 15 per cent of Pitt county's quota has been sold to date.

G. I. Bill Of Rights

Introduction
The 78th congress introduced and put into effect what is known as the "Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944," or Public Law 346, commonly referred to as the G. I. Bill of Rights. ("G. I." means "Government Issue," a term always applied to any equipment which is issued to or supplied for any serviceman. The boys soon began to refer to themselves as "G. I.s," and it quickly became a public custom to call any serviceman a "G. I.") The "Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944" became effective June 22, 1944. The purpose of this law is to provide federal aid for the readjustment into civilian life of returning World War II veterans.

The provisions of the act are contained in five separate titles, namely: Title I—Hospitalization, Claims and Training of Veterans; Title II—Financial Aid in Buying Home, Farm or Business; Title IV—Employment of Veterans; Title V—Readjustment Allowances (financial help) for former members of the armed forces who are unemployed.

Each title, with its provisions, will be summarized briefly in subsequent articles.

Women Honored For Selling War Bonds

Greenville was one of three North Carolina cities to be awarded the Treasury Department's poster for maintaining War Bond selling booths beyond the scheduled time of the drives. The award was made to the Women's Division of the War Finance Committee. They provided trained volunteer workers who made it convenient for the public to continue buying War Bonds. The citation with the poster classified the women's work as "a patriotic contribution to the nation's war effort. Mrs. John Warner is chairman.

Incidentally, the War Bond booth at J. C. Penney's store on Evans street has been maintained through all of the previous six War Loan drives. Last week the women there sold $16,087.55 worth of War Bonds and Stamps. Women maintain booths at the Guaranty Banking and Trust Company and the State Bank and Trust Company.

cations which the adjutant general is sending to the next of kin as soon as the names are received at the War Department, each prisoner is now being authorized to send one personally composed message, free of charge, over any signal facilities to insure that some word is received by the families of these men as soon as possible. Commercial telegraph facilities and the mails are also open to liberated prisoners without restriction to send word to their families. Also the Red Cross is expediting reports.

In some instances where a liberated prisoner is in need of early treatment back home or at some rear area base overseas he is hurried there immediately and that such details as notification are carried out later.

Of all American soldiers reported prisoners in the various theaters since the start of the war, 19,876 have been listed as exchanged or returned to military control.

Reports On ...

fore Germany's collapse—the report was silent on future lend-lease to Russia, which is not at war with Japan. It said however: "Future programs of lend-lease aid will continue to be based, as in the past, on the controlling consideration of the most effective prosecution of the war."

Total lend-lease shipments to Russia for the period covered by the report were listed at $8,410,000,000, with $3,285,000,000 sent in the last 12 months. Included were 13,300 airplanes, "more than to any other ally," 6,800 tanks and 312,000 tons of explosives.

Lend-lease aid to all Allies amounted to $38,971,797,000, exclusive of consignments valued at $874,383,000 to commanding generals for transfer in the field to lend-lease countries.

Actual exports totaled $20,310,457,000. In addition to the shipments to Russia, Britain received $12,775,392,000; Africa, the Middle East and Mediterranean area $3,813,058,000; China and India $2,023,339,000; Australia and New Zealand $1,257,088,000; Latin America $226,859,000 and other countries $805,025,000.

The report did not explain the difference between total aid and actual exports, except for a $4,164,606,000 item for "shipping and other services."

It estimated reverse lend-lease for 1944 at $2,531,672,000, bringing the total received by this country to Jan. 1, 1945, to $4,656,315,000. Of that amount $3,323,417,000 came from the United Kingdom.

"This reverse lend-lease aid is mostly in the form of supplies and services furnished to our armed forces overseas," the report added. The report denounced as "fiction" that the United States is sending to Britain as lend-lease several hundred thousand, pre-fabricated houses which are consuming a substantial portion of American lumber.

Actually, it said, "we are using about two-thirds of one per cent of our national lumber supply in 1945 to provide 30,000 temporary emergency houses for war workers" in England to help replace some of the 500,000 homes destroyed.

Other "fiction" cited in the report includes rumors that Britain is not getting any meat from Canada because she can get it from the United States under lend-lease, that the United States has furnished large quantities to other nations and that lend-lease exports to Britain have enabled that country to maintain its export trade at a comparatively high level while American exports declined.

It said (a) Canada shipped Britain one-third of her total production of meat, (b) that lend-lease cigarette shipments accounted about 1-4 per cent of American production and (c) that British export trade has declined drastically while our own "has not fallen substantially below the pre-war level."

Black markets in meat usually cause a sharp reduction in leather supplies, since black marketers often destroy hides to conceal their operations.

Put Scrap Paper Out Next Sunday

If you have even found five pounds or less of scrap paper that you are going to throw away otherwise, put it out in front of your home or place of business for the Greenville Junior Chamber of Commerce on Sunday afternoon.

The regular monthly house to house collection of scrap paper will be conducted by the Jaycees and will begin at two o'clock Sunday afternoon and will last until the entire city has been canvassed.

Chairman Barrett of the Salvage Committee reiterated the importance of the drive inasmuch as the need for scrap paper has become increasingly great on the part of the war program.

Barrett also pointed out that he had had many calls from rural families asking what they could do with their waste paper. He urges all families outside the city who have waste paper to put into the "scrap" to tie that paper in secure bundles and bring these bundles into town and leave them at Bisette's Drug Store or turn them over to any member of the Jaycee organization.

People in the city are asked to tie their papers in bundles and place these bundles in front of their homes before two o'clock on Sunday afternoon. A Jaycee truck will get them sometime during the afternoon.
