Prime Minister Winston Churchill, who led England from the brink of defeat to final victory over Germany, resigned today, setting the stage for Britain's first general election in a decade.

HIGH GERMANS ARE ARRESTED

Entire Flensburg Government Now In Custody

New York, May 23.—(AP)—The British radio said in a broadcast recorded by NBC that Admiral Friedberg, a signer of the German unconditional surrender for the Doenitz government, committed suicide today after arrest.

By WES GALLAGHER
Supreme Headquarters Allied Expeditionary Force, Paris, May 23.—(AP)—Supreme headquarters announced today the arrest of all members of the so-called Flensburg government and an official source said this meant that henceforth Allied officers would deal directly with the German people and German prisoners.

Members of the high command in Flensburg were taken into custody along with the government figures as prisoners of war, it was announced. This means the dispersal of the high command, the official source said.

Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz, who succeeded Hitler as Fuehrer, has headed the Flensburg regime.

President Will Visit This State

Washington, May 23.—(AP)—The White House made it official today: President Truman is going to North Carolina for a speech this fall.

The trip, it was announced, will be made at the request of Rep. Doughton and Sen. Bailey, North Carolina Democrats.

It was not specified where or when the President will go. Doughton previously had said it would be some time in October before a special session of the State Senate.

SEEK CHANGE VETO POWERS OF BIG FIVE

Britain Urges Big Powers To Modify Previous Stand On Veto To Avoid Show-down Vote With Small Nations

San Francisco, May 23.—(AP)—Five British delegates to the United Nations conference turned in their resignations today as members of the Churchill government. British spokesmen promptly emphasized that this conformance with parliamentary practice will not fundamentally affect efforts to write a world organization charter.

Winston Churchill resigned as Prime Minister in London. Those of his government who are delegates here promptly followed his lead. It was all done in strict adherence to established parliamentary rules and had no connection with the current efforts of the conference to create a United Nations organization.

In his capacity of ambassador to Washington, the acting chairman of the delegation, Lord Halifax, did not resign. He will continue to represent Britain here and see the conference through.

And, pending London action on their resignations, the other delegates, too, will stick to their jobs. It was taken for granted by the British delegation here that Lord Cranborne, secretary of state for dominion affairs, would be almost immediately renamed as a member of the new government. He thus would be able to carry on with Lord Halifax here for the duration of the conference.

San Francisco, May 23.—(AP)—A last-minute division appeared among the Big-Five at the United Nations Conference today over the veto power they should wield in a world organization intended to keep peace.

British diplomats are urging the other powers to renounce their claim to the right of veto, but only insofar as it applies to the investigation of international disputes. A single no vote still could block any steps toward peacefully settling a dispute.

Heretofore the top countries have insisted upon keeping intact the individual veto control over peacekeeping decisions. Some within the United States delegation are reported leaning toward the new British stand but there is no indication thus far that it would be acceptable to the Russians.

The whole veto issue is rapidly coming to a head. There is the possibility of a showdown vote.

Lt. R. O. Everett Found In Germany

Lieut. R. O. Everett, Army Airforce pilot, who was reported missing in action during a bombing raid on Berlin last March 18, is alive and well, a message last night through the American Red Cross to his mother, Mrs. S. J. Everett, 1308 Dickinson avenue, stated. The cablegram stated that he is in Germany, safe and well, and hopes to start for home shortly.

The Greenville pilot entered the Army Airforce in 1943. He was stationed in England. He is a graduate of Greenville High School and was attending State College when he went into service. His father, the late S. J. Everett, was a well known Greenville attorney.

President Sends Cake

Atlanta, May 23.—(AP)—She "couldn't afford" the birthday cake her sailor son, serving in the Canal Zone, had requested.

So Mrs. Janie Pugh wrote President Truman and asked him to send the cake for Grady's 18th birthday, explaining he had "no money, and I feel like you'll do it for me."

Mrs. Pugh has been advised of the President's compliance with her request.

Jaycees To Collect Scrap Paper Sunday

Greenville's Junior Chamber of Commerce during their regular monthly scrap paper collection will be seeking at least 50,000 pounds of waste paper on this coming Sunday afternoon, Chairman Alton Barrett said today.

At the same time Chairman Barrett urged all persons in the county who can do so, to bring their scrap paper into Greenville any time during the week and turn it over to some member of the Jaycees. It can be left at Bissette's Drug Store and will be put into the regular collection on Sunday.

On Sunday afternoon, pick-up trucks loaned by patriotic citizens and manned by Jaycees will make a house to house collection of waste paper. All citizens are urged to put their waste paper in front of their homes before two o'clock on Sunday.

Recent letters from the War Production Board state that the need for waste paper for the war effort had greatly increased and emphasized the necessity for collecting every available piece of scrap paper.

All paper, cardboard, and magazines gathered in this collection will be sent directly to the paper mills for processing and distribution to the war agencies.

Flanking Drive Threatens Jap Collapse On Okinawa

Allied Action Reported In The Pacific

Japanese broadcasts say U. S. S. superfortresses raided the Tokyo area (1) and that an Allied task force appeared to be "attempting" to approach Kyushu (2). On Okinawa (3), Americans gained against bitter Jap opposition. First Marine Division drove through the Okinawa fortress through 800 yards of fiercely defended ravines and draws. The Air War On Japan

By JAMES J. STREIBIG
Associated Press Aviation Editor

With the Armed Forces in the Pacific.—(AP)—Supply, Fortune, Can Do, Plenty, Have Got, and Abundant tell the story of naval aviation supply. They are ships and barges.

Perhaps the story will be completed by changing the name of the barge Have Got to Did Get. A gun-ner on that steel box, which depends on a tow line for power, did get one Jap fighter plane in Leyte Gulf last November.

The incident sent morale soaring throughout the supply fleet. It brought on a new program of training in gunnery for men doing out-landish jobs and thumbing through report and requisition forms.

If the air supply story is not a best seller, it will not be for lack of ingenuity, daring, planning and sweat involved in the plot. Ships and barges such as the Provider, Wilco and Roger—and a few with names like Choucrum, Grummin and Pontotoc—have made possible the ceaseless battering of Japan by Navy and Marine aircraft, from both carriers and land bases.

The Army Air Forces also use a floating supply and maintenance system for advance operations. In the Marianas, for example, giant B-29's and long range P-47's get some parts and certain delicate repair work from a special type of ships anchored offshore.

New Offensive Tactics In Luzon Campaign; Yanks Capture Provincial Capital On Mindanao

By JAMES HUTCHESON

Manila, May 23.—(AP)—Flame-throwing tanks used in the Luzon island campaign for the first time led strong American ground forces in successfully storming a formidable mountain ridge in the Manila watershed yesterday.

The new offensive tactics by Maj. Gen. William C. Chase's 38th division coincided with Gen. Douglas MacArthur's announcement of important advances on Mindanao island in the southern Philippines, topped by the 31st division's occupation of Malabala.

Jungle growth was burned out of ravines and off hillsides as though swept by forest fires as the flame-throwing tanks led 38th division doughboys in a spectacular assault on Woodpecker ridge. The ridge, for which the Yanks have been fighting for three weeks, took its name from enemy machine guns on it.

Tanks fanned down wooded draws which have been concealing enemy guns. Other tanks crashed in with direct gunfire while field artillery, anti-aircraft guns and precision dive bombers concentrated on the ridge.

When the ridge was taken the Yanks counted 330 dead Japanese, raising the division's total to 16,334 since it opened the Bataan campaign nearly four months ago.

Woodpecker ridge was the dominating height between the 38th and the Markina ridge and had been one of the main barriers in its drive to recapture Wawa dam. Japanese were still entrenched in lower ridges and formidable mountains be-

Bandit Robs Honeymooners

Los Angeles, May 23.—(AP)—A young sailor, wearer of the Purple Heart and two rows of campaign ribbons with six battle stars, came home after two years of battle to meet sundier on the streets of Los Angeles last night, and his 18-year-old bride was wounded by a bandit's bullet.

The $100 they had saved for a honeymoon was gone, taken by the masked holdup man who accosted 19-year-old Nolan Truman Marks and his wife.

Marks gave fight and the gunman fired twice, one of the bullets lodging just above Mrs. Marks' knee. Still weak from a wound requiring 13 stitches over his heart, and which kept him in a New York hospital until last week, Marks "blacked out."

Today On The Home Front

By JAMES MARLOW

San Francisco, May 23.—(AP)—The whole problem of mandates and trusteeships is red hot now in the United Nations conference. But here's a trick question.

What happens to the mandates of the League of Nations when the new world organization is set up and the old league folds? Take it step by step.

The Allies in World War I took a lot of territory from Germany and Turkey. This included Syria, Iraq, Palestine, colonies in Africa, islands in the Pacific.

The big Allied powers in that war—United States, Britain, France, Italy and Japan—all had joint title to each piece of seized territory.

All five together couldn't administer each piece of territory. So, in each case the five titleholders arranged for one to be administrator.

This arrangement was called putting a country under mandate. The big Allied power, which did the administering was called the mandatory power. The country so administered was called a mandate.

Thus no nation took full possession of a mandate. It simply ad-

Seventh Infantry Division Occupies Yonabaru, Second Largest Town On Island, And Pushes Beyond To Enlarge American Front And Cut Jap Supply Lines

By JAMES LINDSLEY

Guam, May 23.—(AP)—A spectacular lunge by the U. S. Seventh Infantry division through and beyond strategic Yonabaru virtually doubled the length of the southern Okinawa line today and imperiled Japanese defenses safeguarding Naha and the fortress city of Shuri.

The flanking drive, aimed at supply roads vital to the enemy, added nearly 4,000 yards to the front which had been so narrow American troops had little room to maneuver to advantage, Maj. Gen. Archibald V. Arnold, Bronxville, N. Y., commander of the Seventh, said.

The Seventh, refreshed by a two weeks rest, followed the 96th infantry division into ruined, rain-spattered, muddy Yonabaru yesterday, then moved on into the hills 1,000 yards beyond in a surprise pre-dawn attack that caught the enemy by surprise.

The doughboys seized the northern end of a strategic line of ridges along the east coast between Riol and Intarsaki and occupied the heights from which their guns overlook supply roads to Shuri in the center of the line.

Yonabaru, second largest Okinawa town, was entered by Maj. Gen. James L. Bradley's 96th division late Monday and was the first major town on the island to fall into American hands.

In the darkness of Tuesday morning, opposed only by Jap snipers, the Seventh vision elements, slashed through Yonabaru, cut the east-west traffic artery between that town and the capital city of Naha, and established strong positions on the ridges.

Officers expressed confidence the men could hold the ridges against enemy counterattacks. The return of the Seventh to action pitted five American divisions—three army infantry and two marine—against the hard fighting Japanese.

This thrust out of some Japanese positions on the ridges and heights. It extended an enveloping arm a considerable distance south of key Shuri.

If the men of the Seventh succeed in pushing south along the north-south ridge line, they will have positions dominating Okinawa's major roads and two rail lines running southeast from Naha.

Once the rear is cleared, the Seventh would be able to mount artillery on the ridges and siphon Japanese supplies from the front which supply for the Shuri line with directly observed fire.

Vern Haugland, AP front line reporter, said men of the 96th had a tough scrap while moving down heights on the approaches to Yonabaru but the actual entry virtually (Continued on page four)

Japan Reports Superfort Raid

San Francisco, May 23.—(AP)—An unconfirmed enemy report that "twenty odd" B-29s were over Kyushu, southernmost of the Japanese home islands, early today was broadcast by Tokyo radio.

The Japanese Domei news agency was quoted in the broadcast as saying some raiders "are believed to have sown mines in the Kanmon straits" but left open the possibility that some land targets were attacked.

The WAR TODAY

AN ANALYSIS OF THE NEWS

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign News Analyst

England's forthcoming general election—the first in ten years—will be a momentous affair in several ways but especially because it involves the question of how far John Bull has been affected by the European swing to the "Left."

A lot can happen in a decade, and there has been a great change in the political complexion of many continental countries. This has been particularly marked in recent months as the Germans have been evicted from occupied states.

As might be expected, Russia's great success at arms has provided the Communist cells in the various nations propaganda to promote their crusades. The result is that Communism is playing a considerable part in the "Leftist" trend which has been registered clear across Europe to the English Channel.

How much of the Leftist influence has hopped across the twenty miles of water into traditionally conservative Britain? Well, we shall get an idea of the tendency from this election.

The main battle will be between the Conservative party under leadership of Prime Minister Winston Churchill, and the Socialist (or Labor) party. The latter has come out flat-footed for the establishment of "a Socialist Commonwealth of Great Britain" which would call for sweeping nationalization of industry and far reaching public ownership.

There will be other political elements involved in the election, including the Communists, but the Conservatives to whom the Socialists refer as Tories and the Socialists are the chief contestants. The Conservatives have a large majority in the present House of Commons, but the cabinet is a coalition which was formed under Churchill for the prosecution of the war.

The Conservatives have a twelve-point program which includes the pledge of British support in the war against Japan and urges cooperation with America and Russia in maintaining peace. It also calls for vigorous development of the empire for the war agencies.

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
May 23, 1905

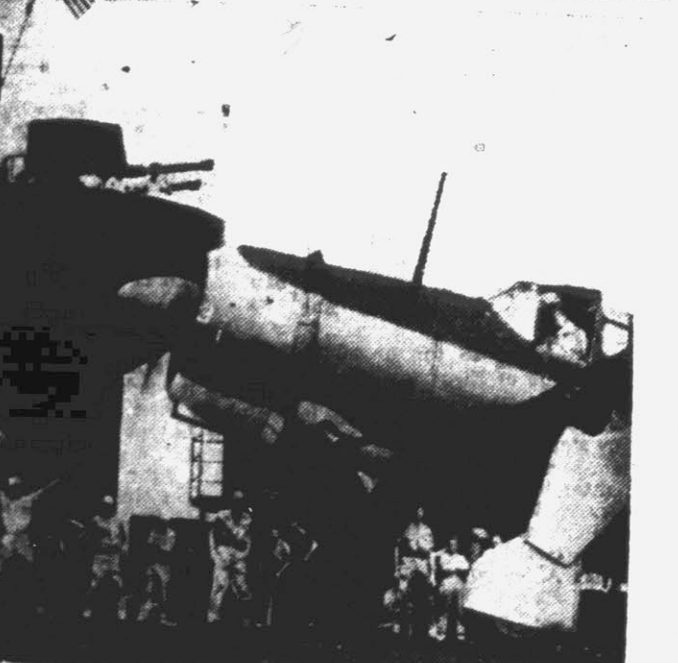

Although many predicted rain for Tuesday, the day was an ideal one for a picnic and a large number of the members and invited friends of Class No. 13 of the Methodist Sunday school, spent the day very pleasantly picnicking beyond House Station.

When the north bound Coast Line train pulled out of Greenville at 1:30 p. m. many picnickers were on board with many games, lunch baskets and high expectations.

When dinner was over the party coupled off for a short time, and after an hour or two the games were resumed, strolls were taken and driving was in order. Later the picnickers repaired to the elegant home of Miss Annie Fleming, where they were received in a most charming manner.

On the arrival of the picnickers in Greenville three cheers were given for the picnic, each feeling that the day had been one of the happiest in their lives.

Preview of Chi Pi Play.

The Chi Pi Players gave a preview in chapel yesterday of a scene from "As the Driven Snow" which will be presented Friday and Saturday evenings at 8 o'clock in Austin Auditorium. The student body learned why such cries as "Unhand me, villain. You shall pay dearly for this!" have been heard in Austin Auditorium these past three weeks as the play has been in production.

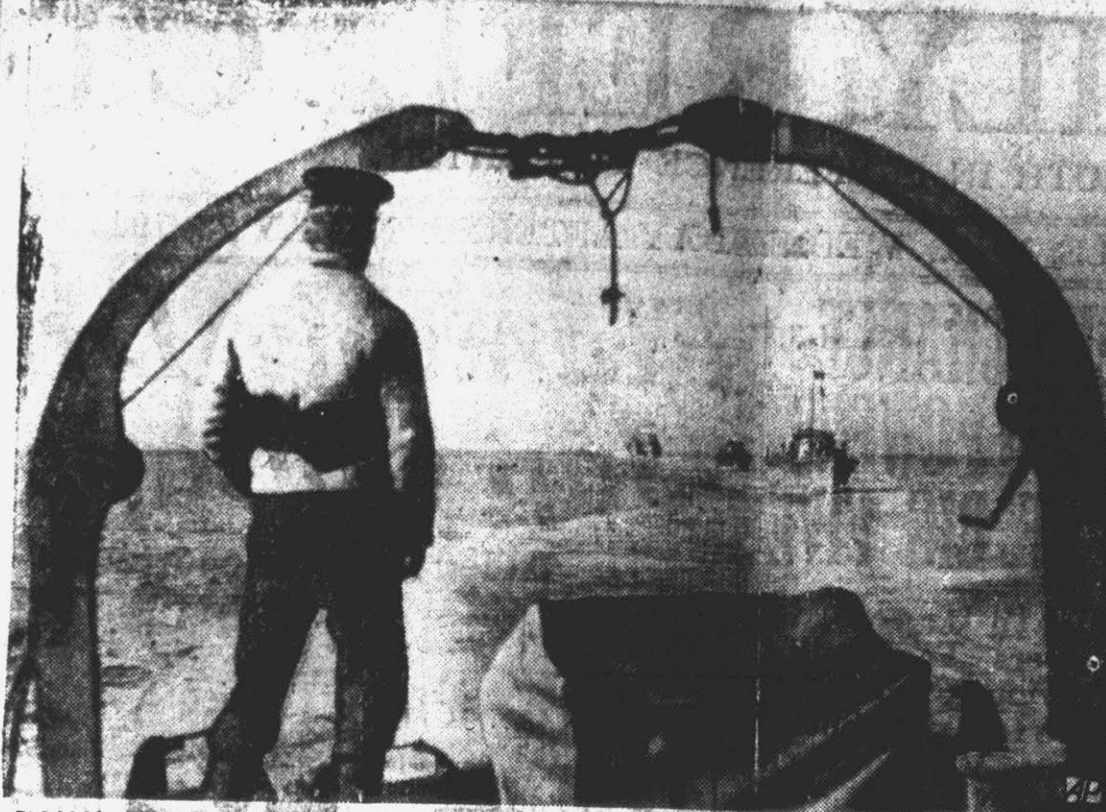

An interview with Henrietta Cooper who plays the dainty heroine, Purty Dean, revealed that the plot concerned an innocent persecuted girl who is a working girl with a secret. But in true melodrama style, virtue triumphs over villainy.

Mr. Paul Loomis, author of the play, has taken the most stirring situations from old plays in the American theatre and incorporated them into three acts of broad comedy. But instead of taking these old classics seriously, he had poked fun at them and the result is an evening of unalloyed joy in the theatre. Audiences love to hiss the villain and applaud the hero, and they yell with glee when the dastardly villain meets his just reward and has to hand over the papers to the very noble hero.

The public will have an opportunity to hiss the villain and applaud the hero this Friday and Saturday evenings when "Pure As the Driven Snow" is presented. Mrs. Ruth Stick of Chapel Hill has directed the play, assisted by Sarah Moore of Greenville.

A SLIGHT CASE OF Theft

Chapter 33
"Sorry, Mr. Humbert," the voice of his secretary brought him back to the business in hand a few minutes later. "But Mr. Hanson will not be down today. He's sick. Is there anyone else in the section you'd like to take his place?"

"No, never mind," he waved aside her suggestion. At that moment Irene, the cashier came in, followed by a headquarters man and Willie from the Club Boulevard.

"Oh, Mr. Humbert," Irene exclaimed in high-pitched excitement, "I just identified Willie for the police." She pointed to the scowling, olive-haired young man handcuffed to the policeman. The officer nodded in corroboration.

"That she did, sir. The girl got him cold. He's the elevator stick up. She said it was his sick black hair she remembered best. Willie did the job for Rizzo."

"So it was Rizzo after all! Christopher drew a deep breath of relief. He felt better. This might not be so bad if Donohue knew how to tie it all together. He'd be a lot less worried if Donohue was here so he could watch what he was doing—the fellow was unpredictable."

Then the office was suddenly full of people. Policemen and detectives stood around talking to each other in low voices. Twenty minutes to 12 Brenda came in. For an instant she hesitated in the doorway. She was wearing black and the great window behind her at the end of the section silhouetted the long, slender lines of her figure against the daylight that flooded the floor outside of Christopher's office. Her cheeks were flushed the faintest pink and her grey eyes were shadowed with anxiety and fatigue.

Christopher sprang to his feet but before he could reach her, a man from headquarters touched her arm and led her to a chair near Christopher's desk.

Then this officer whom Christopher had never seen before raised his voice and said to each everyone in the office could hear him:

"Now that Mrs. Blair is here I can give you a brief review of this case while we are waiting for Lieutenant Donohue. He has been detained but he is on his way over here now."

Christopher felt his breath quickening. He was watching Brenda and when she looked over at him, he smiled at her mechanically as if he thought he should, but his nervousness definitely increased as the man began to speak.

He saw the light glinting on the gold in her hair and he loved the way she held her head—high—with a touch of defiance—not showing she was afraid. Instinctively he knew she had the kind of courage that could take whatever the next few minutes would bring to her.

Slowly, quite deliberately, the man from headquarters began a brief summary of the case.

"Pete Rizzo planned both the robberies in this store. We have not yet located the fence where he disposed of the mink shipment, but we have to round that up later in the day. The money Willie stole from the cashier has already been returned to the store. He executed the robberies Rizzo planned."

"After the stickup Monday evening Rizzo decided the money was not for him to keep. He made arrangements with Tom Blair to hide it for him until he could get out of town with it. Willie met Blair on the beach right after the robbery and he took the money, wrapped in old newspapers, back to his apartment with him."

"Then the money disappeared. Blair was frantic. He had no idea where it was. He suspected Rizzo and Willie, believing that they had double-crossed him. Later Rizzo thought Blair was double-crossing him when he learned that Blair could not—or would not—deliver the money to him."

"Someone in Blair's apartment, not knowing what was in the bundle threw the money wrapped in old newspapers into a clothes hamper and piled dirty laundry on top of it. It turned out to be a perfect hiding place. But the disappearance of the money had disastrous consequences."

"Rizzo is a tough guy to deal with and Blair knew when the money disappeared that he was slated for trouble. Rizzo sent word to Blair that he was coming for the money Tuesday evening and it had to be ready for him."

RECEPTION FOR YANK.—The millionth American soldier to pass through Southampton en route to the European front, Pvt. Paul Shimer of Chambersburg, Pa., received a suitable welcome. Greeting him were the mayor (left), the U. S. Army port director, Col. W. D. Lamport (right), and H. A. Short (second from right), Southern Railway docks and marine manager.

this time it seemed to have a decisive motion of its own—as if it were ushering in an event of major importance. Brenda and Christopher leaned forward, staring with unbelieving eyes at the group emerging from the doorway.

Donohue came first. Behind him a short man walked slowly between two detectives. The prisoner's bald head glistened in the glare of the overhead lights. For an instant the full impact of the man's entrance puzzled Christopher.

He was staring at his floor manager, Bill Hanson. "Hello, Bill," Christopher exclaimed in surprise. "They just told me you were sick and wouldn't be down this morning."

Before the man could answer Lieutenant Donohue, who was walking directly in front of the floor manager stepped aside and Christopher gasped his astonishment. Bill Hanson was handcuffed to the detective beside him.

"My God Bill," he rasped out the words with a sharp flash of apprehension, "you're not—you can't be Rizzo!"

The face before him was expressionless—a mask of the chuckling, good natured man he had known for the past few months. "My number's up, Mr. Humbert," Bill replied in a flat, lifeless voice. "I am Pete Rizzo."

"The devil you say," in his bewilderment, Christopher looked at Donohue, who nodded but did not speak. Suddenly the office became very quiet. Glancing around the room Bill Hanson—as Rizzo—said quietly, "As long as the jig's up—I'll tell you how easy it was to get this job at Humbert's. They needed men so badly in the store they didn't pay much attention to my references. They were faked. Getting a job here as floor manager was a cinch."

"Did you come into the department just—just to make a haul?" Christopher demanded, a thin line of anger in his voice.

"Sure I knew there'd be a lot of easy jack lying around this section during the fur sale. It didn't take me long last week to figure the store had gotten someone at last who knew how to drag in the cash customers—and that was what I was waiting for believe me. That first day of the sale was something. I got away with nearly 12 grand in cash!"

Christopher said in disgust, "I still don't get all of this Rizzo works a '26' game in a night club. He's a racketeer of sorts."

"Yeah, you said it," Donohue cut in sharply. "Just a small, two-timing bum, picking up a little change. Then Francine Norman came along and tried to make a big shot out of him. He takes on Willie to do the chores and then he sits back of the bar at nights and gives orders like some of the boys he sees coming in to the club. He and Willie pull the first job and think they get away with it—so right away he tries again for cash this time—and falls flat on his face 'cause both times he ties up with a murder rap—just get too big for his pants."

"Gawd! What wouldn't I give for a chance to bust that big mug of yours," Rizzo snapped back at him. "If it hadn't been for Mr. Humbert you'd never got me—and you know it—all I needed was 24 hours more to break the case and you'll take the credit for it."

Donohue shook his head irritably. "The only thing I'll say for this guy is he sure pulled a fast one on his make-up." The lieutenant turned to Christopher, patiently ignoring Rizzo's last remark. "It was so simple it fooled even me for a couple of days."

"We knew where Rizzo was and we were keeping an eye on Hanson here at the store—routine stuff. Then after the stick-up Rizzo never appeared at the club at night—sent Willie when anyone wanted to see him. That was O. K. but this business of his was something he'd thought up long ago. Never once while he's been hanging around the club has anyone there ever seen him with his hat off. His bald head was too conspicuous and he knew it. So he just went around after he left this store at night wearing that old soft hat pulled way down over his eyes. Willie made the contacts for him and pulled the jobs on the outside. We were watching Hanson, of course."

"Not so you could notice it," Christopher muttered under his breath.

And Stop Dosing Your Stomach With Soda and Alkalizers
Don't expect to get real relief from headache, sour stomach, gas and bad breath by taking soda and other alkalizers if the true cause of your trouble is constipation.
In this case, your real trouble is not in the stomach at all. But in the intestinal tract where 80% of your food is digested. And where it gets blocked when it fails to digest properly.
Thus, what you want for real relief is not soda or an alkalizer—you want something to "unblock" your intestinal tract. Something to clean it out thoroughly and help Nature get back on her feet.
Get Carter's Pills right now. Take them as directed. They gently and thoroughly "unblock" your digestive tract. This permits your food to move along normally. Nature's own digestive juices can then reach it—and you get genuine relief that makes you feel really good again.

HOW MUCH TO MOVE A WAR?

AS soon as we can, we'll bring to bear on the Japs all the additional might we've been using against Germany.

What will it cost, this Moving Day of War? Estimate it in these terms: The job of moving millions of men from one front to another. Thousands of ships to carry the supplies of battle. Swarms of new-type aircraft to blast the path into enemy territory.

You can get an idea of the cost from the fact that Uncle Sam needs 7 billions from us in the mighty Seventh War Loan—now!

The Seventh War Loan will call for the greatest bond-buying we have ever done.

If you have an income—whether from work, land, or capital—you have a quota in the 7th War Loan. Be sure to make it!

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

WHAT CONSTITUTES TRUE RELIGION?

No person is truly religious until he has a feeling of deep reliance upon God.

The people who go through life with the confidence of their own powers are not religious, no matter how much they go to church or how much they profess to believe. Religion is reliance on the unseen. Christianity is that particular variety of religion which consists of the conviction that such reliance can be made effective only through Christ.

The word "secular" comes from a Latin word meaning "age." The secular person, therefore, is a person who lives completely in his age; one for whom the customs of his day and generation are sufficient support for everything he does or believes. The truly religious person, on the other hand, is one who realizes day by day that his life is in the hand of God. If he succeeds, it is because God enables him to do so. His health is the gift of God. His loved ones have been given him from on high. When he prays, it is with the overwhelming conviction that he must rely for everything in life upon the mercy and goodness of God.

To be otherwise is to be secular; and nothing dedicates the spiritual life more completely than does the secular spirit.

AMERICA IN WARTIME

By JACK STINNETT

By HOWARD W. FLIEGER
(Substituting for Jack Stinnett)
Washington—From here on in a telephone call to the desk of Democratic National Chairman Robert E. Hannegan is more than likely to get you Richard R. Nacy.

And the odds are that after the second sentence you'll be calling him Dick and thinking your troubles are over.

That's the manner of Nacy, politician-banker who became Hannegan's executive assistant when President Truman chose the national chairman for his Postmaster General.

"I'm here in Bob's place when he's not here," Nacy explained from Hannegan's office in the party's Mayflower Hotel headquarters. "And he won't have time to be here so much from now on."

Nacy and Hannegan are old friends from the same school of Democratic politics—Missouri—and from the same class—the era of Franklin D. Roosevelt. But there the similarity ends.

Hannegan is a civil politician from St. Louis. Nacy is a self-styled country boy. Hannegan never held an elective office. Nacy grew up in them. He was a county clerk ten years before he became Missouri state treasurer.

Nacy is a carefully dressed, youthful appearing man who looks more like a car salesman than a politician. He manages to keep shoulder-deep in party politics while giving the impression of a guy just standing on the curb watching the fight.

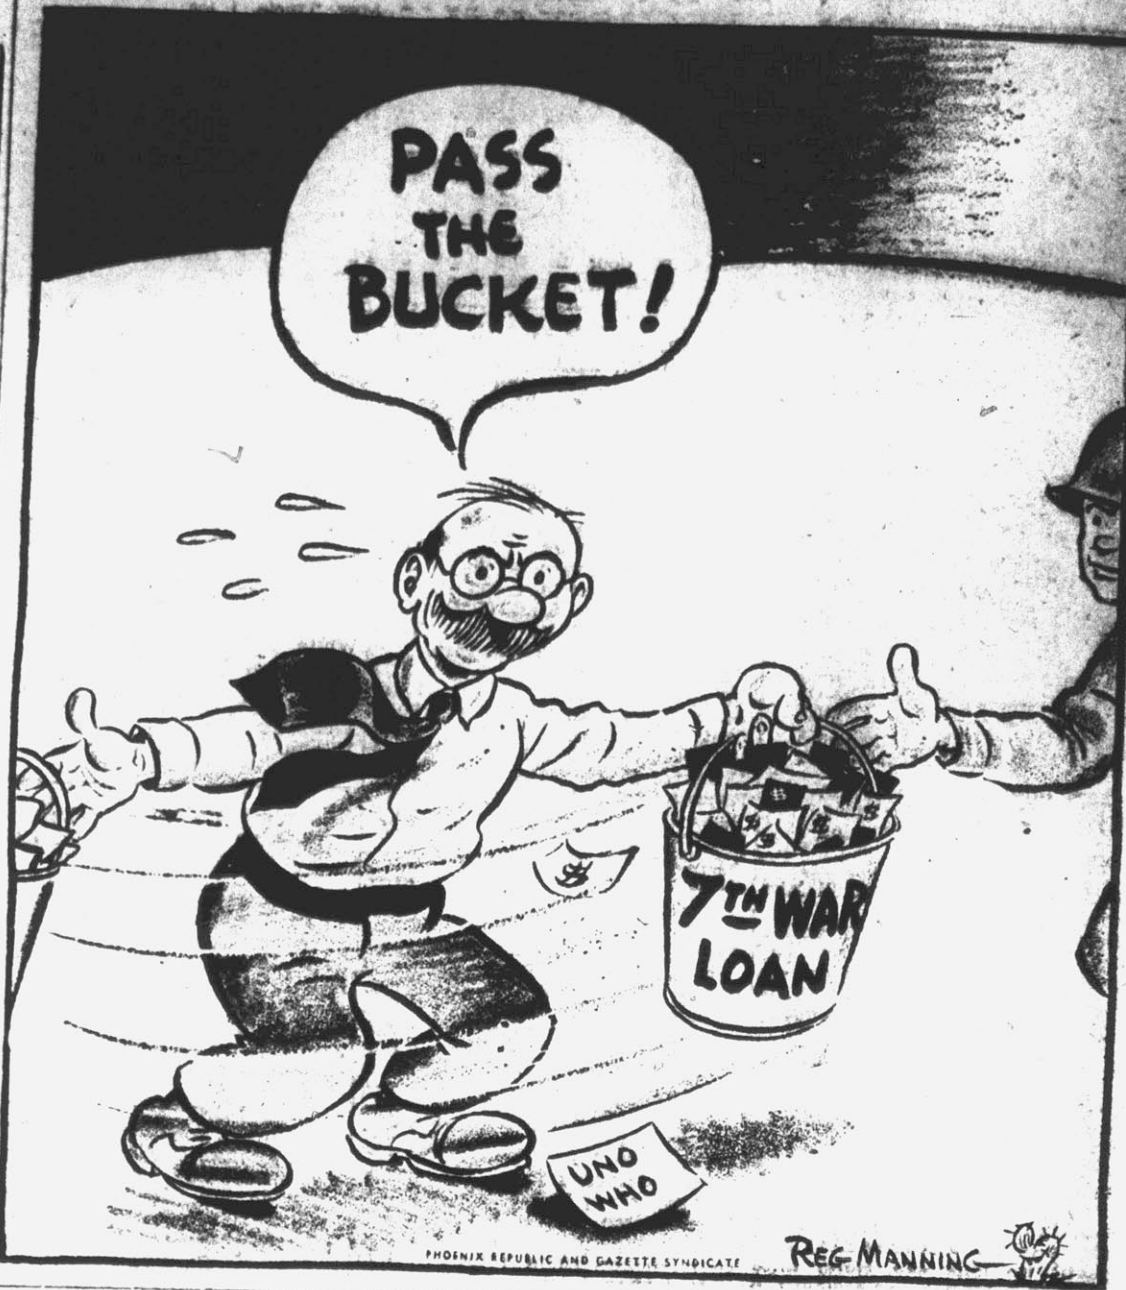

He knew President Truman by his first name before most of the politicians in Missouri ever heard of him—and that's typical. Practically everybody he knows, he knows by first name.

Nacy was executive chairman of the Democratic State Committee in Missouri for ten years beginning in 1934. He still is party treasurer for his home state and he was active in last year's campaign. But he spent most of the time in New York helping his friend Hannegan elect a President.

Dick Nacy's desk in the Central Missouri Trust Co.—two blocks from the state capitol in Jefferson City has been a rallying place for Democratic candidates and leaders for years. So is his handsome, hidden-away fishing lodge on Missouri's Lake of the Ozarks.

But those things are for the people who come to see Nacy. Just as frequently he's the guy swapping stories with the boys on the steps of a country courthouse. He has a campaign rule: know the people who know where the votes are.

Personal-contact politics is his style, whether it's with a candidate for President or for county judge.

Not especially happy about moving away from his family and comfortable Jefferson City home, Nacy has three sons in uniform: Pete, a fighter pilot with 19 months in combat; Dick, Jr., an ensign in the Navy; and John, who graduates from West Point this spring.

by the United States might not be placed under trusteeship.

But what happens to those old mandates when the old league no longer exists? Does a mandatory power—once the old league is gone—put its mandate under the trusteeship system or does it merely say: "The old league is dead. The mandate arrangement died with it. Therefore, we won't put our mandate under trusteeship. We'll merely scrap the mandate set-up and take full possession of this mandate which we have been administering."

Suppose Britain tried to say that about Palestine. The catch is that the United States, Britain, France, Italy and Japan all have title to Palestine.

Of course, Italy and Japan wouldn't have anything to say about it. They were the enemies of the United States, Britain and France in this war.

At the peace conference they will be forced to give up any title to mandates of the first World War. That will leave only the United States, Britain and France with a claim to mandated territory.

Another meeting of the old League of Nations may be necessary to clear up some of the problems involving the mandated territory of World War I, although the United States didn't belong to that league.

But take Britain and Palestine the benefit of all its peoples, and stands for "the fullest opportunity for individual initiative."

The Socialists claim they can win a majority in the election. That claim, however, is cloaked under the national political silence lasting since 1935—long before the war began.

Churchill obviously will have at least two very strong assets as he goes to the country. One will be his great war leadership, and the other will lie in the fact that if he is defeated now it will mean "changing horses in the middle of the stream," that is, before the war in the Pacific has been concluded.

Then too his supporters will maintain that it will be unwise to remove him from the councils of the "Big Three" at such a critical juncture in world affairs.

Churchill may be expected to wage a tough fight. Veteran of many political battles, he is by far the most colorful figure in England's political life and has the rugged personality which to the average Briton typifies John Bull. His move in forcing a quick election is shrewd, for the argument that he is needed in office for war leadership is powerful.

As to whether there has been any change in England's political thought, there is no doubt that there has been. The only question is how great the change has been. I have spent much time in Britain, and when I was last there in the fall of 1942 it was evident that the country was moving "Left." By "Left" I don't mean that it was tending towards Communism but that it had in considerable degree turned from extreme Conservatism.

One of the leaders of this tendency with whom I talked was the famous William Temple, Archbishop of Canterbury (now dead) who got himself called "Radical" by the Tories for his pains.

The supply fleet is in three general categories:

1. Large ships, which are complete air depots, have possibly 8,000 different items ready to issue.
2. Barges, which are floating depots, have ready-to-issue stores and are towed into newly acquired areas.
3. Small cargo vessels, which travel between bases, keep stocks equalized according to fleet needs. These last do not have ready-to-issue stocks. They serve as warehouses.

was unopposed.

In the center and on the west, marine and infantry operations were curtailed by heavy rains. On the west side of the line, the Japanese threw in one of their frequent counterattacks before dawn Tuesday but the first marine division of Maj. Gen. Pedro A. Del Valle crushed it, killing 80 of the enemy.

Maj. Gen. Lemuel C. Shepherd, Jr., Sixth marine division strengthened its position along the Asato river in the northern edge of Naha.

At dusk Monday, 12 or more enemy planes attempted to raid ships of the U. S. Pacific fleet supporting the Okinawa operation. Today's communique, disclosing the raid said eight planes were shot down and "the remainder retired from the area without causing damage."

Sunday and Monday, carrier-based planes of the British Pacific fleet attacked air bases, docks and other facilities in the Sakishima group, southernmost of the Ryukyus, and shot down an enemy plane.

The communique said Japanese planes caused a few casualties but lost two raiders in a low-level night attack Monday. An American won two where the Yanks still are picking off enemy stragglers. Between May 13 and 19, 94 more Nipponese were killed on two and 134 taken prisoner.

American planes, operating off the main Japanese homeland island of Honshu, shot down a glider, probably destroyed an enemy plane and sank two small cargo ships on Monday. More small shipping was hit in the same sector yesterday.

his umbrella as he entered his car to a group collected on the sidewalk outside the official residence.

His action will bring about Great Britain's first general election in ten years early in July. He had held the office since May 10, 1940, when he succeeded Neville Chamberlain during some of the darkest days of the war.

Churchill's resignation was precipitated by the Labor party's refusal to continue in the coalition government, now that Germany is defeated.

An old-fashioned political campaign already was underway, with the opposition press lampooning the Prime Minister.

In the last election in 1935, the voters returned 431 Conservatives to Commons. Churchill is leader of the Conservative party. The second largest group is the Labor party, led by Deputy Prime Minister Clement Atlee.

Precipitated by Churchill's request that the Labor party agree to remain in the government or accept a national referendum on the question of remaining in the government, this action signalled the break-up of the coalition government which was formed by Churchill in the days of Dunkerque.

At the seashore resort city of Blackpool 1,100 Labor party delegates already have given a mandate to their ministers in the government to step out if the issue was laid down at this time to carry on or fight an election.

Churchill only yesterday, in a letter to Atlee, Labor party leader, rejected Labor's proposal that the coalition be continued until au-turn arguing that Britain would suffer in the eyes of the world if forced to carry on while the present spirit of "electioneering" prevailed.

Under an agreement of the war cabinet, three weeks will elapse before the King formally will dissolve Parliament. In this time Britain's law makers will have an opportunity to clear up a long-jam of legislation, including several appropriation bills.

The Labor party had advocated an election in the autumn as a counter proposal to Churchill's request that the coalition be continued until after Japan is defeated.

Labor party leaders contended that the Conservatives, by forcing the issue now, were trading on Churchill's popularity as a war leader in order to gain votes. They maintained that an election in July would provide inadequate time to allow servicemen full representation at the polls.

The opposition press, ending a war-time political truce, already had launched an old-fashioned campaign in anticipation of the election, made certain by the Labor party's refusal to continue in Churchill's coalition government pending the end of the war with Japan.

Churchill's stand immediately drew the fire of the Labor and nions would be permitted to fill it without opposition in case a vacancy occurred because of death or resignation.

Britain was able to avoid a war-time election because there was no law calling for elections at specified intervals. Instead, an election can be forced at any time by the government in power.

Stanley Baldwin was chosen to head the government following the Conservative victory in 1935, and continued as Prime Minister until May 5, 1937, when he gave way to the late Neville Chamberlain.

Chamberlain reformed his cabinet on a war basis on Sept. 3, 1939, and continued to hold the reins until he was succeeded by Churchill on May 10, 1940—simultaneously with the German invasion of the low countries.

Churchill set up a coalition cabinet, bringing all major parties into a win-the-war government, which has survived intact except for one minor reshuffle in March, 1942.

Despite the wartime truce among the three major parties, the political composition of the House of Commons has been changed slightly by the occasional successful entry of a minor party into a by-election to fill vacancies caused by death or resignation.

Such by-elections have been too few and too local in character to provide more than the vaguest clues to the prevailing political temper. About half the 140 by-elections since 1935 have been unopposed, and in most cases government candidates have been returned. There have been only a few notable upsets—two of which were suffered by the Conservatives and one by the Labor party.

Biddle May ...

would have an announcement at that time concerning Biddle, who submitted his resignation along with other hold-over Roosevelt cabinet members the night of April 12.
Ross' notation that the resignation was in the President's hands and that the President would make an announcement regarding it left little doubt that the President would disclose the appointment of a new Attorney General this afternoon.
Ross declined to comment on a likely successor.
Federal Judge Lewis B. Schwelbach of the state of Washington, a former United States Senator, has been mentioned for a top Cabinet post in Capitol Hill speculation.

His name has figured in talk of a new Attorney General or new Secretary of Labor.
Mr. Truman has already made one change in the old Roosevelt cabinet, having accepted the resignation of Postmaster General Frank C. Walker, and naming Robert E. Hannegan, chairman of the National Democratic Committee to that post effective July 1.
There has been speculation that Biddle will be offered an important diplomatic post, possibly in Paris.

ing our sessions executive. A statement will be given out after the meetings.
Asked specifically if that meant the sessions would be held under a "closed-door" policy, Graham, who is being paid the precedent-setting salary of $10,000 a year, answered: "Yes."
There was no amplification.
Governor Cherry, asked to comment on the matter, said it was "news to me" that Graham had discussed no such policy with him, but that he would have a talk with Mr. Graham sometime today and find out his reasons.
Institution of the policy was a reminder of the days of the late Frank Dunlap, when he was chairman some years ago. A storm of protest accompanied Dunlap's policy.

Graham did say that minutes of the commission are public property and may be inspected any time by a citizen.
At the conclusion of the morning session, Graham handed reporters a typewritten summary of what he considered the high spots of the session.
Here is what he said the commission did:
1. Approved the purchase of the Newman quarry site in Rockingham county, composed of 32,348 acres, for $2,500.
2. In compliance with a 1945 law approved new insignias to be placed on state-owned motor vehicles.
3. Adopted the D. B. McCrary award, to be given each December for the next 10 years to the employee showing the most meritorious achievements, the costs to be borne by division heads at no expense to the state.
4. Took no action on a request to rent the vacant Lee county camp for imported agricultural workers.
5. Approved awards totaling $400,000 for resurfacing and retreatment of highways.
6. Discussed a plan for a proposed inter-regional highway. Its recommended location will be given to the commission at its June meeting.
7. Adopted new salary schedules, subject to the approval of the director of the budget.

G. H. S. HONORS ITS ATHLETES

Letters Awarded At Banquet Last Night

By CHESTER WALSH

At the annual banquet last night for the boys who won letters in sports at the Greenville high school during the year, June H. Rose, who was master of ceremonies, said there is no doubt about the Americans winning from the Japanese since the Army, Navy and Air Force have some of the Greenville high school football players doing some of the fighting on Okinawa and elsewhere.

The superintendent brought cheers when he pointed to former Athletic Coach Bo Farley and said "Uncle Sam can win this war without Farley, and we are going to ask Secretary of War Stimson to send him back to us for next year."

Mr. Rose recognized some of the high school boys in uniform present, including Cpl. John Sauer, Jr., Sgt. John Horne, Navy Quartermaster Jack W. Teel, Jr., and thanked Teel, who has been all over the world, for making interesting talks at the school yesterday. Then there was an ovation for Supt. Rose and Principal O. E. Dowd.

Mr. Rose paid fine tribute to Bo Farley for his good work in the school and his influence and praised Coach Snag Clark for his great work after taking over the coaching job in his home town. The more than half a hundred boys and girls demonstrated their approval by prolonged cheering.

The speaker reminded that Greenville High is one of the very few high schools that did not try to hold its athletes back and pointed out that some of the students finished a year ahead of time and are now in service.

Mrs. Farley, Miss Della Perry and Dave Perkins, student, spoke briefly. Perkins doing quite a nice job of orating. R. B. Stirling, debate director, with "one point," H. I. Ford, vocational director, and E. R. Robinson, "one year," and Chester Walsh were recognized and then the students gave a rising vote of thanks to Mrs. E. B. Ferguson for the bounteous supper. Mr. Rose thanked the girls for cheering up the delightful affair.

Coaches Farley and Clark and Mrs. Farley passed out the letters for baseball, basketball and football won during the year. Some of the boys won letters for all three sports, some won two, and others won one. Following is a list of the winners:

"Fighting Lady" Aid Sale Bonds

One of the principal events planned for the promotion of the 7th War Loan drive in Pitt county, as the War Bond premiere of the Navy's technician film, "The Fighting Lady," to be shown at the Pitt theater Friday night at 8 o'clock.

Those who buy War Bonds will be given a free ticket to the show if they ask for it at the time they buy the bond. Bonds may be bought at the banks or selling booths. One ticket will be given to each purchaser of bonds, not for each bond purchased. Tickets will be given only to buyers of E. F. and G. Bonds.

The picture, "The Fighting Lady," tells the story of an aircraft carrier, filmed in combat zones by the Navy. The film gives a gun-eye view of the great naval battles in the Pacific, the islands of Truk, Guam, the Marshalls, the Marianas and Kewajuan.

The film is narrated by Lieut. Robert Taylor, former film star, Manager T. Y. Walker said.

Carl Reid Sells Store To Chain

By CHESTER WALSH

Carl T. Reid, owner of Reid's Store, Inc., 639 Dickinson Avenue, announced last night that he has sold the business to R. E. Dowd and H. W. Hull of Tarboro and turned over the keys to them. Reid's Store at Rose Hill was not included in the deal. Dowd will manage the Greenville store. Reid will take a long vacation.

The new owners were for many years connected with Williams' 5c and 10c Store chain, with stores at Tarboro, Maxton and Erwin, and still indirectly connected with the firm. Dowd is a lieutenant in the Marine Corps at Camp Lejeune and is now on furlough. He expects to receive his discharge shortly. Hull, his partner, is manager of the Tarboro store. Dowd is a brother of O. E. Dowd, principal of the Greenville high school. He was employed a number of years by Rose's Stores, Inc.

The new owners of Reid's Store, Inc., will shortly remodel and improve the place and considerably increase the stock carried. After investigation in a number of Eastern Carolina cities they picked Greenville with the best future.

Reid's Store on Dickinson Avenue has wide prestige in Eastern Carolina, its trading territory extending some distance. Reid told a reporter last night that he appreciated the friendship and patronage of the Greenville and Pitt county people during the years. He said he believes the new owners will be an asset to the community. He has always taken an active interest in community affairs and done more than his part in progressive local activities.

as Gen. Eisenhower's representative at Flensburg, now is out of a job and can go on to other duties, the source explained.

This source said that the Flensburg group never was recognized by the Allies as a "government," but that its members were used by the supreme Allied command as a vehicle with which to control the disarming of the German army and speed its way into prison camps.

"These arrests mean that from now on some Allied officer will give orders to German prisoners or some local commander, rather than through the German high command," the source said. "The German high command now is existence."

The arrest of the Flensburg group was taken to indicate that its usefulness as a body is finished and its members now revert to prison camps or have been placed at the disposal of the Allies.

The announcement of Rooks' appointment had been delayed, and he had been in Flensburg for some time. Thus the arrests today did not mean that he had held the job for only 24 hours.

The supreme headquarters announcement said that those arrested included 300 officers and a number of other ranks and civilians.

G. I. Bill Of Rights

Title I
"Hospitalization, Claims and Procedures" is designated as the subject of this title.

The Veterans Administration has been authorized and directed to provide adequate hospital facilities for war veterans. Congress appropriated $500,000,000 for this purpose. The Veterans Administration and the War and Navy Departments are to arrange for the mutual use of hospital facilities.

The act makes provisions for adequate contact-advisory facilities in army and navy discharge centers and immediately upon his arrival to his home community the discharged veteran should contact the locally-administrated agency (such as American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, State Veterans Service Division, and the United States Employment Service Office) which is most convenient for him to reach. Here he can be directed to the proper agency designated to handle his particular problem. This contact can be made by a personal call or use of a penny post card. The veteran will be advised where and when to go to the proper office for interview or discussion.

Proper agencies designated to serve the veteran in this capacity will be listed in a subsequent article with addresses, telephone numbers and, in most cases, names of persons to be contacted.

ability that on a showdown small nations might outvote the Big Five in conference committees and force changes which one or more of the major nations would find unacceptable.

Most speculation in this connection centers on Russia. Some American authorities doubt that the United States Senate would ratify a world league charter which did not reserve to this country authority to prevent other nations from taking a hand in western hemisphere affairs without American consent.

An argument along this line also being made to the Latin American states as a practical reason why they should support the veto. In the

2. The question of admitting other states to the proposed international organization has been posed indirectly and unofficially in connection with the Soviet Union. D. Z. Manulsky, chief delegate of the Ukraine said he expected that "in very great degree" other Soviets would seek admission to the league. There are 16 Soviets in all.

In the immediate work of the conference here delegates are reported making good time on questions which only a few days ago shaped up as critical issues.
