Americans Speed Drive To End Philippine Campaign

Fighting Reaches Flats Of Cagayan Valley Where Yanks Advance At Rate Of One Mile An Hour; Meanwhile, Airmen Pound Formosa, Indo-China And Chinese Coast

By SPENCER DAVIS
Manila, June 16.—(AP)—American troops were out on the floor of the broad and fertile Cagayan Valley today, pounding along at nearly a mile an hour within 150 miles of Aparri at the northern tip of Luzon.

Maj. Gen. Robert S. Beighler's 37th Ohio Infantrymen, who had been battling north along a tortuous mountain gorge for three and a half months, smashed through Japanese resistance yesterday and headed out across the flatlands in a race with the July typhoon season.

When the typhoons strike they will bring flood waters raging over the valley's low lying tobacco, rice and corn lands, bogging down motor vehicles and grounding aircraft.

The veteran Buckeyes rolled on ahead 22 miles in 24 hours after breaking through the last Japanese defenses at the valley's southern gateway, and liberated the important Isabela province towns of Santiago and Echague.

The 37th Division's advance into Cagayan Valley marked the first time any of MacArthur's troops have been fighting on level terrain since they crossed the central plain to Manila in January.

Other American units on the island are still battling in the jungle-covered mountains. The rested Sixth Division, teaming with the 37th in the northward push, has branched off near the southern end of the valley, and advanced northwest four miles along highway No. 4, west of Baguio.

In the mountain area east of Manila the 38th Infantry Division, the First Cavalry Division and the 112th Cavalry regimental combat team engaged Japanese holdout units, counting 500 enemy dead.

North of Baguio, near the island's west coast and almost due west of the Cagayan Valley, the 33rd Infantry drove along the Agno river gorge in the Tablo sector. MacArthur reported 400 enemy dead there.

On Mindanao at the southern end of the Philippine chain the 24th Infantry Division plugged on at an arduous job of cleaning out hard-to-get caves and pillboxes near Davao. Units of the division also captured a rocket launcher supply dump.

Britain Declines French Proposal

Paris, June 16.—(AP)—Authoritative quarters said today Britain had formally declined France's proposal for a five-power conference on Middle East problems.

British Ambassador Alfred Duff Cooper saw Georges Bidault, French Minister of Foreign Affairs, at noon. Official quarters declined to disclose details of the British note, pending further study. It was understood on authority, however, that Britain had reiterated her preference for a three-power conference of France, Britain and the United States without the other members of the big five, Russia and China.

The Big Three commission on Polish reorganization — Foreign Commissar Molotov and the U. S. and British ambassadors to Russia — was said again to have asked aiding Wincenty Witos, 72-year-old former Polish premier, to attend the meeting.

The Polish government in London charged last night that a "reign of terrorism" existed throughout Poland, and demanded immediate withdrawal of Russian troops and (Continued on Page Two)

Navy Heads Support Peace Time Training

Nimitz Says We Must Work For Peace But Must Be Strong Enough To Assure It

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST
Washington, June 16.—(AP)—Peacetime military training and preparation "to fight any international ruffian who attempts to impose his will on the world by force" was advocated today by Secretary of the Navy James Forrestal.

Saying that those in favor of a peacetime draft "frequently are asked whom we are preparing to fight," Forrestal declared the answer is "any frustrated paper-hanger anywhere who may be dreaming of world dominion."

The secretary's testimony came after Chairman Woodrum (D-Va.) read letters from Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz and Admiral William F. Halsey recommending enactment of the training program.

Referring to the support of Army and Navy leaders for compulsory military training, Forrestal asked the committee if "we in conscience" can discard "such expert testimony and go back to the comfortable inertia and blind complacency which for 20 years practically extended an invitation to Mussolini, Hitler and the Japanese war lords to run the world if they chose to?"

Until the plan is tried, he said, arguments pro and con will remain unsolved, and the only way to find the answer "is to try it." Congress, he pointed out, may repeal the legislation at any time.

Forrestal said a poll of service members "would be preponderantly in favor of universal military training."

"America's readiness to accept her responsibilities in underwriting the peace of the world will be the surest guaranty of maintaining the peace. We are a law-abiding and law-respecting people, yet we need police, and the police still have to deal with murder and other crimes of violence."

Nimitz said he believed "we have fought the last war in which our homeland will be spared the violence of our enemies," and added:

"Unless the American people are willing to risk witnessing the devastation of our coastal cities as Warsaw, Berlin, Manila and Tokyo have been devastated, enactment of this legislation is necessary."

"We must be prepared to defend ourselves and we must be prepared to resist with maximum power in (Continued on Page Two)

Von Ribbentrop Is Questioned

Montgomery's Headquarters, Germany, June 16.—(AP)—Captured Nazi Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop was reported to be under questioning today at Gen. Elgasser's headquarters at Frankfurt-on-the-Main.

The supreme command's most skilled examiners were said to have been assigned to try to pry loose some of the state secrets known to the 52-year-old former Reich ambassador to London who was reputed to have convinced Hitler on his return in 1938 Britain would not intervene when Poland was invaded.

Officially, Ribbentrop left Luebeck airport here for an unidentified destination "somewhere in Europe" yesterday after being arrested in Hamburg Thursday along with an attractive brunette divorcee in whose apartment he boarded under the name of "Herr Riese."

Four Wreck Victims Still Unidentified

Milton, Pa., June 16.—(AP)—Pennsylvania railroad officials continued their search today for clues to the identities of four of the 19 persons killed yesterday in a freak collision here between a Washington-to-Buffalo express and a freight train.

Among the three women and one serviceman still unidentified are a woman with a wedding ring engraved "PEC to ARF, 10-20-41" and a soldier whose clothing bore a laundry mark, a railroad spokesman said.

Railroad crews meanwhile are working to clear away the twisted wreckage of the Dominion Express and the freight train into which it crashed.

Thirty persons were injured and 200 shaken up when the 44-car Dominion Express thundered at 55 miles an hour into the 34th car of the freight, which railroad officials said was derailed and thrown into its path by a broken journal.

Conference Striving To End Work Next Week

President Truman Expected To Address San Francisco Gathering Next Saturday

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Associated Press Diplomatic News Editor
San Francisco, June 16.—Small nation opposition to a Big Five veto over future changes in a world security charter is cracking up, and leaders of the big power bloc hope to win out on this issue tonight.

It is one of three which conference committees are struggling to wipe out this weekend in line with a high speed schedule which calls for President Truman to address a final session of the United Nations Conference next Saturday.

The other two controversies are: 1. Whether colonial powers, such as Britain and France, should be directed to make reports on their colonies to the proposed new leagues. Australia proposes that they should. The two big powers object.

2. Whether the projected general assembly of United Nations should be empowered to debate any aspect of international relations or only matters concerned with peace and security. This is an old issue, previously settled over Russian objection in favor of the right to debate any international affair. But Russia has insisted that it be reopened, demanding the peace-and-security restriction.

Discussion of a big five veto over future amendments produced a long and sometimes sharp session of a conference committee last night. In its course, Senator Henri Rolin of Belgium said he probably would be accused of inconsistency, but it was the unanimous opinion of the Belgian delegation that the veto over future amendments should be allowed.

Manuel Teilo, undersecretary of foreign affairs of Mexico, said the big powers should be given this veto right. Otherwise he argued, an amendment might be voted that would cause one of them to pull out of the league and wreck it.

Alberto Lleras Camargo, foreign minister of Colombia, protested against the whole veto system, but said in the present situation it was justified.

Senator Rolin then suggested that the committee make a list of all of those who wanted to speak in today's sessions at 3 and 8 p. m. PWT. But Peter Fraser of New Zealand and Herbert V. Evatt of Australia, small nation leaders in the veto fight, blocked this with heated objections. Evatt said that to stop debate was even worse than the veto itself.

Earlier, the committee produced a temporary split in rank of the big powers when France voted with the small nations on two plans for Australia.

How To Get 6%

Babson Advises Certain Utility Stocks

Babson Park, Mass., June 16.—Rich people may not now be interested in income from securities because they have to pay so much of it back to the government in taxes. The great mass of people, however, prefer to have their money well invested and paying good interest. Then they like to spend this interest and not disturb their principal. Hence, in the long run, the question of income is the basic factor in the stock and bond markets. This should be even more true later because next year, personal and corporation taxes will probably be reduced.

People Should Take Profits
For the above reason, Wall Street has the saying: "Idle funds soon burn holes in peoples' pockets." Most people do not work and save just to keep money idle. They want to see it work and earn so it will help support them. This will be all the more important when the cost of living goes up as it will after Japan collapses. In fact, this will be especially true of those who must live on the interest which they get from invested capital.

Most investors do not look at the price at which their bonds or stocks are selling; but only at the dividends which they get. They may have bought a 6 per cent stock for $100 which has gone up to $150; and hence, from a mathematical viewpoint, now yields only 4 per cent. Yet they refuse to sell it because the dividend is still $6.00 per year. This stubbornness on the part of most investors may sometimes be a mistake. Certainly it is one reason why the market steadily goes up. The

Japs On Okinawa Face Annihilation

Remaining Garrison Of About 10,000 Compressed Within Eight Square Mile Area

By ROBBIN COONS
Guam, June 16.—(AP)—American soldiers and Marines fought forward behind flamethrowing tanks on the southern Okinawa plateau today in a campaign which Lt. Gen. Simon B. Buckner, Jr., said should secure the entire island within a week.

Late frontline dispatches estimated the possibly 10,000 remaining Japanese now were compressed into an 8-square-mile area.

Buckner's Tenth Army spearheaded in the center and at both ends of the 3-mile-long line against resistance that still was ferocious despite the enemy's great casualties and the fact that many of the defenders were service troops or Okinawan conscripts.

In the center, the 96th Infantry Division, commanded by Maj. Gen. James L. Bradley, completed the capture yesterday of 500-foot-high Yachi Hill, which the troops called "The Big Apple," and then swung westward and attacked Yuza Hill with tanks to knock out positions from which the Japanese were heavily harassing the First Marine Division flank.

The Seventh Infantry Division under Maj. Gen. Archibald V. Arnold was pressing a flanking drive against the last two hills remaining in Japanese hands in the eastern sector.

After advances of 700 yards, the 32nd Infantry Regiment of the Seventh Division virtually completed occupation of the town of Nakaza.

Gen. Buckner, talking to correspondents yesterday, said the Japanese final line already was "bent" and "I can't see this thing lasting a week longer."

American Ports Closed By Mines

Washington, June 16.—(AP)—Mines planted by German submarines outside principal east coast ports took such a heavy toll in shipping in 1942 and 1943 the ports were forced to close for days at a time.

The navy related yesterday that the ports, including New York's, had been closed to ocean traffic while mines were cleared from harbor channels.

Other ports similarly bottled up for brief periods included Norfolk and Newport News, Va.; Baltimore, Md.; Jacksonville, Fla.; Charleston, S. C.; and Wilmington, Del.

In addition, the navy disclosed 10 enemy mines were swept from waters at the entrance to the Panama canal in the vicinity of Colon, and four swept off Port Castries, Santa Lucia, British West Indies.

The entrance to Chesapeake Bay twice was closed, once from June 16 to 17, 1942, and again from September 12 to 14, 1942. Just before the first closing four vessels had been damaged or sunk by mines, believed to have been placed by U-boats.

The New York port was closed from November 13 to 15, 1942, with no traffic moving in or out. During those days and for a week later, minesweeper patrols cleared away five mines from the harbor entrance.

Japs Still Hold Many Prisoners

Manila, P. I., June 16.—(AP)—Only 147 men of more than 18,000 American Army and Navy personnel captured by the Japanese on Bataan and Corregidor have been liberated, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters disclosed today.

Another 3,260, who made the "death march" or were captured on "The Rock," have been officially reported dead. A large majority of the 13,000 unaccounted for are believed to be held in prison camps in Japan, China and Formosa.

Many prisoners were shipped to labor camps in Northern Japan; others were sent to work on Yoko-hama docks or in Mukden munitions works.

Hundreds never reached their destinations. They died when American bombers or submarines sank enemy prison ships en route from Manila's Bilbid Prison.

Bilbid, which served as the staging point for shipping prisoners from the Philippines, saw at least 10,000 enlisted men and nearly 2,000 officers marked for shipment to the Orient.

When the Yanks came back to the Philippines they liberated nearly 25,000 military and civilian prisoners confined in Cabanatuan, San Tomas and Los Banos. Among them were 5,844 American nationals.

Made Loan?

John Hartford (above), president of the A. and P. grocery chain, was reported by the company's general counsel, Caruth Ewing, to have loaned $300,000 to Brig. Gen. Elliott Roosevelt, son of the late President, but received only $4,000 in settlement. Ewing said Hartford wrote off the loan in his 1942 income tax report as "a bad debt." (AP Wirephoto).

TRUCK LINES ARE SEIZED

Move Taken To Head Off Second Chicago Strike

Chicago, June 16.—(AP)—The government took over control of Chicago's trucking industry today, seizing some 1,700 lines in an apparent move to forestall a second strike by union drivers.

Possession of the lines by the Office of Defense Transportation, 24 days after its seizure of approximately 1,100 lines to break a week-old strike, came amidst unconfirmed reports that Army troops from nearby camps were moving in for any emergency.

The second seizure order, stemming from a long standing controversy over wages and hours, was issued in Washington as a small percentage of the approximately 14,600 drivers of the two unions involved voted, 805 to 128, to strike.

It was not definitely known what percentage of the union drivers would bow to the strike ballot. Under the Smith-Connally war labor disputes act strikes by employees of firms under federal control are outlawed.

Officials of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (IBT), said its members would not strike. No immediate comment was available from officials of the second union, the independent truck drivers, which called off its strike a few days later.

Planes And Ships Bombarding Truk

San Francisco, June 16.—(AP)—An Allied carrier raid on by-passed Truk Island fortress went into its third day today, Tokyo radio reported, after an hour-long bombardment by a supporting naval task force.

Japanese broadcasters "presumed" British fleet and carrier units made the attack on the island group in the center of the Carolines.

These unconfirmed broadcasts, recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, include the first report of a task force bombardment of Truk. It was repeatedly raised by U. S. carrier aircraft during the days when it was one of the most formidable of Japan's island outposts. Truk is now encircled by Allied held bases.

The WAR TODAY

AN ANALYSIS OF THE NEWS

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst
A million ordinarily noisy New Yorkers stood mute along the broad sidewalks of Fifth Avenue at noon yesterday. Up from the lower reaches of the broad street came only one sound, the whine of 200 Army jeeps geared down to two miles an hour.

It was Infantry Day, and the men with Purple Hearts were on parade. Crutches stuck up from some of the machines like pins in a cushion. Bandaged heads, and arms, and faces. Here and there a nurse accompanied a man still too ill to go it alone. On the jeeps were printed the names of battles of Cassino, Burma, Saipan, Okinawa, Ie, Aachen, Leyte, Cherbourg and Attu.

There was little color to this parade. The khaki of the Army, the white of the bandages, here and there a splash of red from bouquets of roses brought by some girls just before the parade started, a few streaks of lipstick left on pale faces.

There was a smattering of polite applause as they passed the reviewing stand. But there was little if any cheering. It was more like church.

In San Francisco the small nations lost their prolonged fight to provide, within ten years, for even a review of the veto power over world security now reserved to the Big Five. In San Francisco Britain and France objected to including in the new world charter a clause providing for regular reports from colony-holding nations.

In Poland, according to the Polish Telegraph Agency, new postage stamps issued by the Warsaw government bear an overprint of the Red Star with a hammer and sickle where once was printed the Polish eagle. Over the shrine at Lidice, over the open field marking the spot where Nazism reached its depths, there fly two flags, the Red banner as well as the Czech.

In Germany with Krupp's master forgers of the materials of war, have walked blithely up to request permission for resuming operations, not saying what, for, except to help rebuild Germany.

In Paris Madame Andre Viotot, delegate to the French Consultative Assembly, says France has acquired the reputation of public enemy No. 1 in the Middle East.

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

WAR TURNS MEN TO GOD

When a young friend of mine went off to war, I gave him a copy of the New Testament. Just before a terrible battle in Belgium he discovered the Testament was missing. That night he and 190 of his fellows went into battle, and only six of them came out—he badly wounded.

When he got back home, he asked me to replace that Testament, which I did gladly. Best of all, he told me of a religious experience he had had a short time before going into battle. I had the feeling that evil as war is, there are some good things which come out of it.

Recently I was reading about a certain Major Whittle, who had served in the United States Army in the War Between the States. As he left his home in New England, his mother had placed a New Testament in the pocket of the haversack she arranged for him. In one battle he was so badly wounded that one arm had to be amputated. In days of convalescence, having a desire to read something, he picked up the Testament which his mother had given him. He found the Gospel of Matthew so interesting that he read straight through until he had finished Revelation. Then he read the Testament through again, and again. Some time later he became a Christian and at the close of the war entered the ministry and had a long career of usefulness in that calling.

We are facing a serious future, but many of the religious leaders in the years ahead will be men who saw active service on the fighting fronts.

AMERICA IN WARTIME

By JACK STINNETT

Washington—It's popular these days to scream at the Office of Price Administration but OPA isn't responsible for all that has happened to the American dinner table.

For example, there really isn't any meat famine. It's true that this year we have nearly 25 pounds per person less meat than last year, but we still have 125 pounds per person per year.

The trouble is distribution. The big cities are far short on legitimate meat distribution; the smaller cities aren't short at all.

In the nation's capital there's nothing much scarcer than a chicken; yet the supply of chicken for each American is only 2.8 pounds less than it was last year, and about seven pounds under the top pre-war supply.

There are about one-quarter more eggs than in pre-war times, but in some cities it is practically impossible to get an edible egg. OPA officials and members of Congress suffer along with the rest, but there isn't much they can do about it.

The butter shortage is real—much below pre-war levels.

There's beginning to be some confusion about labor shortages. Some war plants are closing down; others are asking that as many as half their employees hand in voluntary resignations. On the other hand some areas have such severe shortages that the war effort isn't taking along as smoothly as it should.

The Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor is saying frankly: "Labor shortages on the nation's farms have reached acute proportions at a time when, in addition to filling the platters of the American soldiers and civilians, there's an urgent need to help feed Europe."

The bureau figures at least 750,000 emergency women farm workers will be needed in this harvest.

When labor shortages first developed on the farms in this war, farmers had a low opinion of women farm volunteers. The Department of Labor Women's Bureau says that's all changed now. Quoting an east coast farmer who has hired scores of women, the bureau reports: "The quality of their work is very good. After a few weeks the non-farm women are as good as any women agricultural workers. They work right along, don't loaf, catch on quickly."

The greatest problem, according to the bureau, is that too many of the women think of working on a farm as a vacation.

Is It Hot Enough For You?

for lunch and two 15-minute rest periods in between (that's tops in ideal working conditions on a farm) aren't any vacation if you're pitching hay, stacking grain, or harvesting vegetables.

Nevertheless, the bureau figures something just short of a million women volunteer workers will turn out this year to get those crops in. If the Victory Gardeners match that, our food problems won't be serious by mid-winter.

Conference . . .

1. Canada and Brazil jointly proposed that between five and 10 years after the league is set up a conference should be held to overhaul the charter. The Big Five opposed this and the vote was 23 for, 17 against, 9 not voting and one absent. A two-thirds vote was required, so the proposal failed narrowly.

2. South Africa then proposed that the amending conference be held any time within 10 years. This also failed with 28 for and 17 votes against. France voted with the majority of small nations in both cases.

estly operated even if some are still handicapped by out-worn management contracts. Utility securities are fairly priced and are growing every day. They may have some postwar slump, but are far safer than the railroads. Industrial low-rate business may fall off; but profitable domestic and household business should increase. Every house built, every couple married and every child born means more business for the utilities. The dividends of operating utilities usually hold up well during business depressions. Investors, however, should distribute their utility risks and not have all in one locality.

What About Inflation?
If the electric light and power business had reached its maximum as have the railroads, I should fear inflation. As a rule industries with fixed rates will suffer from the high prices which will accompany inflation. Public utility experts, however, tell me that the natural growth referred to above will largely offset the handicap of inflation. This would surely be true in the case of companies which get much of their electricity from water power or natural gas wells.

I am not recommending public utilities for profit. Merchandising any other stocks offer far better opportunities for "buying low and selling high." The fear of public ownership puts a ceiling on the price at which public utility stocks should sell. But for a 6 per cent income with reasonable safety, I believe that public utilities offer the best chance of success. Besides, remember "you cannot have your cake and eat it too."

political police from Polish soil. As for the Middle East, authoritative Paris quarters said Britain turned down the French request for a five-power conference. The British government previously had expressed preference for a discussion by France, Britain and the United States. The United States also is reported in Paris to have rejected the five-power plan.

Meanwhile, preparations were underway for the meeting of President Truman, Marshal Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill, with the site to be Berlin.

This was made official last night by an announcement from 10 Downing Street, official residence of Prime Minister Churchill. A spokesman said the date had not been fixed definitely, but the Prime Minister himself had said it would be before July 26.

First Lord of the Admiralty Brendan Bracken said the conference would take place at "the very time the votes are being counted" in Britain's national election. This would mean it could be any time between July 5, date for the election, and July 27, when the results are expected to be announced.

Bracken assailed a statement by Harold Laski, chairman of the Labor Party, that Laborites would not be bound by Big Three decisions, despite the fact that Laborite Maj. Clement Attlee, who was deputy prime minister in Churchill's coalition cabinet, had accepted the Prime Minister's offer to attend as a "friend and counselor."

hours after President Truman's May 23 seizure order. The walkout had paralyzed movement of goods throughout the Midwest. The new seizure order broadened the previous government control, taking in all trucking lines having contracts with the Independent Union and the I. B. T. Local 705. The I. B. T. Union has 8,000 members and the Independent approximately 6,000. In yesterday's vote the Independent Union ballot was 482 for the strike and 64 against; I. B. T. Union 323 for and also 64 against.

Both unions had petitioned for the strike vote last April. The Independents walked out following a War Labor decision granting a wage increase of $4.08 weekly for a 51 hour week, made retroactive to Jan. 1. The unions had demanded a $5 weekly increase and a 48-hour week as against current pay of $42 to $51.50 for 51 hours. The WLB said Wednesday it was delaying action on union petitions for reconsideration of prior wage decisions until it had completed a review of the trucking industry's wage policy.

Winterville Is Ready Can Food

By CHESTER WALSH

The Community Cannery at Winterville has gone on a new schedule and is now operating Tuesdays and Thursdays of each week. It will go on full time schedule shortly when fruits and vegetables ripen and are ready for preserving and canning. The cannery—a community enterprise organized by the Winterville Fruit Club some time ago—preserves all kinds of food, including poultry and other meats. The cannery achieved the feat of placing biscuits and sliced country ham in cans for Pitt County boys in service overseas, and they reported it just as good as when put into the cans.

The cannery is using modern methods. A new wrinkle in preserving peaches is interesting. Mobley said they use this method: Place a can of Red Devil lye in eight gallons of water and keep the water boiling. Place peaches in a wire basket, dip the basket into the lye solution for 30 seconds and the peach peelings dissolve and disappear. There's not a cupful of peeling left from a bushel of peaches. Mobley said. The peaches should be thoroughly washed to remove the lye, then cut and seed, sweeten to taste and the luscious fruit is ready to go into cans. Seal the cans tight and boil them for 20 minutes. Then they are ready to eat.

Persons planning to make their food at the cannery should make arrangements in advance. Mrs. J. E. Buck operates the plant.

Families Attend Demonstrations

Farm Security families are preparing for the job of storing their winter supply of fruits and vegetables. For the past two weeks a number of homemakers have attended canning demonstrations held in the county by the Home Supervisor, Mrs. Margaret S. Williams. The meetings were planned especially for the new families, but were open to old families as well as their neighbors.

Improved methods of canning as recommended by the North Carolina Extension Service were demonstrated by canning soup mixture and string beans in the Pressure Cooker, and apple sauce and tomatoes in the boiling water bath.

The families were urged to fill an adequate number of jars to supply their families during the winter when fresh foods will not be available. In order to fill these jars the families made definite plans to plant more and longer rows of seed within the next few weeks. Special records will be kept of all food canned in order that reports showing the progress of these families can be made in the fall. The families attending the demonstrations were very enthusiastic and eager to begin to fill their pantries.

Receives Commendation

With a U. S. Troop Carrier Group, France—Second Lieut. William E. Guley, of Greenville, N. C., 89th Troop Carrier Squadron pilot, has received the commendation of an American armored division for flying urgently needed gasoline to a frontline airstrip under fire. During the spectacular April thrust of the American 7th Army, a division which had driven many miles into the enemy lines found itself dangerously low on gasoline as desperate Nazi counter-attacks threatened both flanks of its thinly held corridor. An emergency call to Troop Carrier Squadron was answered by several squadrons of C-47s, each loaded with thousands of gallons of fuel for the besieged tankmen. As German 88's and mortars lobbed hundreds of shells into the only available airfield, Lieut. Guley and the other Skytrain pilots landed their dangerous loads intact, unloaded, and took off for this airstrip they call home in near record time. On his return, the flyer remarked, "The boys were mighty glad to see us, but it was no time for standing around chewing the fat."

The supply by Troop Carrier planes was termed "an outstanding event in the history of air-ground co-operation," by the Army Corps Commander, who wrote Major General.

Chapter 12

At the first glance, Kay could not tell what the change was in her home as they drove up the hill. The house seemed in plainer view, the columns more prominent. As Dr. Warner's sedan swept around the drive she thought the windows looked blind, as if the house had closed its eyes in sorrow.

"I'm dreaming!" Kay thought, horrified. "I'll wake up."

It wasn't possible that the gardens were plowed up, that the giant oaks and elms were cut down. But they were. Only a few trees remained of the lovely old grove about the house. The stumps shone blankly and the workmen were still chopping on the limbs.

"Oh, I'm sorry, Kay," she heard Dr. Warner say.

Kay was silent. Anger, such as she had never known, was surging through her. She'd show this Lucia person that she couldn't come into Katherine's home, cut down her trees and demolish her garden.

She looked up at Dr. Warner. "Such a different kind of homecoming," she began. "Leave my bag on the porch. Thanks for a grand time."

"Good-bye, Kay," he said gently. "I'll let you hear from Tommy soon."

"Yes, do," she replied. "Good-bye." She walked swiftly around the side of the house and as she came into view she heard one of the men cry, "Look out!"

Kay stopped, but she didn't move back. The magnolia tree that had bloomed outside her window all her life crashed to the ground so close that the limbs almost touched her.

She looked down at it for a long moment and felt her anger die away; only a black grief remained in her heart, grief for the gallant tree that had fallen. It seemed to wear a look of surprise, as if it couldn't believe what had happened. It lay in death holding up its late blossoms like pale imploring hands entreating her not to be defeated as it had been.

Kay swallowed hard, and spoke to the man with the axe. "Who gave you orders to do this?"

The workman looked at her white face, pley in his eyes. "Mr. Francis sent us up here. He told us to do whatever Mrs. Lambert wanted done. We've been cutting the trees all day. Seems a shame to cut them down. Such big ones."

Kay looked about. A few oaks and elms remained and the dogwood trees that Katherine had brought from her home in Atlanta. She felt the indifferent brightness and space close about her.

The spokesman removed his hat and scratched his head. "We'll not cut any more if you say so, Miss Kay."

"It's just that Mother loved them so," she whispered.

She walked blindly to the front door. The inside of the house was changed, as she had known it would be. There was nothing here that she belonged to, nothing that belonged to her. It was as though she had entered a house she had never seen.

Every memento of the past was gone, the room was blankly impersonal now with its sweep of white and sapphire in the draperies and chairs and rugs. It stared back at Kay with the cold eyes of a stranger.

Fear dragged at her feet as she moved up the stairs. Her mother's room. Would she find it changed, too? She prayed she wouldn't, feeling that she would hate Francis forever if he had not left that for her.

The upstairs was quiet. Kay hoped she wouldn't encounter Lucia before she could pull herself together. She opened the door of her mother's old room, the one she had taken for herself now. It was just as she'd left it. Nothing had been touched.

The familiar atmosphere reached out and gathered Kay close, and she was swept with a feeling of loneliness more poignant than all the memories she'd ever known. She met the steady gaze from her mother's picture on the dresser, and suddenly she could stand it no longer.

She ran out into the hall, down the back stairs, to the path that led to Lucia's bungalow. She opened the door, her eyes blinded with tears and, seeing Lucia's bulk in her rocking chair, she flung herself on her knees beside her and buried her face in the old woman's lap.

Wild sobs shook her slender body as Lucia smoothed her hair and crooned over her. "There, there, Miss Kay, honey, don't you carry on in no such way. Everything gonna be all right. I done looked in my cup the first thing when that woman come here."

Presently Kay sat up and dried her tears. "How can everything be all right, when Francis has done this to me?"

Liza's black eyes snapped. "Miss Lucia done make a lot of changes. She got that yer nigger gal sleeping upstairs. Claims she can't get used to no other nigger bringing her breakfast and dressing her." Her voice trembled at the memory of insults. "She say 'I's too old to work. She gettin' new servants.'"

"Oh, no, she isn't!"

Liza looked up at Kay and her old face filled with fear. "Now, Miss Kay, don't you go do what Miss Lucia sho' want you to do."

"What do you mean?"

"She want to make you mad about all this, so you'll complain to Mr. Francis. He is a man in love and ain't normal; so she know he sho' to side with her and again you now." Her eyes narrowed and she glanced into Kay's face to see just how far she could go in her criticism. Her indignant voice went on: "That woman marry him for what she could get by it. I see it in her eyes and hear it in her voice."

"On, no, Liza. You're mistaken, surely," Kay protested, vaguely realizing her personal affairs with a servant, but too unhappy to care. Liza was all she had left of her old home.

New York Cotton

New York, June 16—(AP)—Reports that the Commodity Credit Corporation will start buying 1945 cotton at 22.15 cents at Memphis or ½ cent under market prices there had a depressing effect on cotton futures today. Commission house liquidation and hedging, on the belief that market prices are too high met only scale down support.

Private advices reported that mill buying of spot cotton was small this week. Futures opened 5 cents a bale higher to 45 cents lower.

Futures closed 20 to 40 cents a bale lower.

President Will Become Traveler

Washington, June 16—(AP)—President Truman plans to travel approximately 16,500 miles within the next 30 to 40 days. Here's how he will build up that mileage:

From Washington to Olympia Wash., then to San Francisco and back to Washington; then to Kansas City and Independence, Mo., and back to Washington; then across the Atlantic to meet Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Winston Churchill in the vicinity of Berlin.

The White House disclosed yesterday that Mr. Truman plans to address the closing session of the United Nations Conference at San Francisco Saturday, June 23.

Ross said the President will fly to Olympia Tuesday or Wednesday, probably Tuesday, to be the guest of Gov. Mon. C. Wallgren, from Olympia Mr. Truman will fly to San Francisco the day before his address.

After returning to Washington, probably June 24, the President will make another flying trip to Kansas City June 26 to attend homecoming celebrations at nearby Independence that afternoon and at Kansas City the next day.

Before leaving for the Middle West Mr. Truman will confer with Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York at the White House on June 25.

VETERANS AT KIWANIS MEET

Civic Club Host To Returned And Furloughed Men

By CHESTER WALSH
The Kiwanis Club was host at its supper meeting last night to nearly a score of officers and enlisted men of the Army, Navy and Airforce, some of them recently liberated from German prisoner of war camps, and a midshipman from the U. S. Naval Academy.

Many of the men had overseas and combat service, others had been given honorable discharges. They were given a warm welcome home and expressions of appreciation for their patriotic service to their country. The meeting was entirely informal—campfire style, with Dr. H. G. Haney acting as master of ceremonies for Lee Roy Bell.

The armed forces guests each gave his name and rating or rank and briefly told in what theater of operations he had served. The meeting was characterized by much of that fine fellowship spirit which featured the American Legion meetings shortly after World War I. Dr. J. M. Barrett, club president, presided.

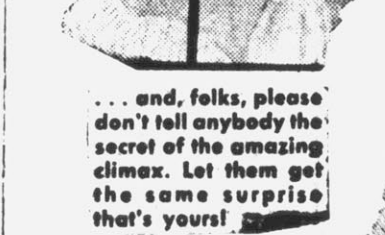

Some of those who spoke briefly were: Lt. Carl A. Langley and Lieut. Edgar Denton, former prisoners of war; Sgt. Bob Kittrell, who was wounded during the Belgian bulge; Sgt. A. B. Allen, who was cited for bravery in action; Sgt. Rex Porter, who was with the Marines in the South Pacific; Lieut. Claude Christopher, who had enough points to receive his discharge; Seaman S. K. French, now in civilian life; Lieut. Carr Pierce of the Navy, who participated in six invasions, including Okinawa; Pharmacists Mate (1c) W. C. Hollowell, on furlough from a hospital ship; Sgt. B. C. Bostic, who served 42 months and served in the Pacific; Sgt. Charles H. Little, who was a prisoner in Germany a long time, and Midshipman W. W. Lee of the U. S. Naval Academy. Annapolis, and others. H. B. Mayo and Jack Moye were also guests.

Mayor Bruce Sugg, who has four sons in the armed forces, spoke briefly, extending a hearty welcome to the veterans.

Last night's reception for returning or furloughed Pitt County servicemen was the first of a series of such meetings planned by the Kiwanis Club.

Lieut. Carl Langley during his short talk stated that the Red Cross packages sent to prisoner of war camps in Germany could easily be sold for $1,000. The box contained seven pounds of food and five packs of cigarettes. Many Allied prisoners offered others a thousand buck check for their Red Cross
