Record Assaults

Between 950 And 1,000 Superforts and Fighters Give Jap Homeland Baptism Of Fire; More Than 6,000 Tons of Bombs Unloaded On Chief War Industries

By VERN HAUGLAND
Guam, Wednesday, Aug. 15—(AP)—Between 950 and 1,000 Superforts and fighter planes smashed heavily in dreaded fire, demolition and strafing attacks against Japanese war industries yesterday and early today while the world awaited the emperor's answer to Allied surrender demands.

About 6,000 tons of bombs were dropped on six military targets in the last 24 hours, Strategic Air Forces headquarters announced. This made that period one of the busiest days in the history of the 5th Air Force.

The B-29s hurled their might against the enemy hard on the heels of devastating attacks by carrier aircraft of Admiral Halsey's Third Fleet and attached British warships, still hovering off the Japanese coast.

More than 725 B-29s from the Marianas and 180 fighters based on Iwo Jima participated in the Superfort smash.

Targets for the assault included war industries at Isezaki and Kumagaya, only an hour's automobile ride from the emperor's palace, and the Nippon oil refinery at Akita.

Kumagaya was one of the cities on the Superfort's "death list."

Other targets were the Marufu railroad yards on the Tokyo main line, the giant Osaka army arsenal and the naval arsenal at Tokuyama.

Fighters strafed transport and communications in Navoya.

Flying the longest non-stop mission from the Marianas on record, more than 150 B-29s bombed Aomori on northern Honshu in the darkness early today.

A couple of hours earlier an even larger Superfort fleet set fire to Isezaki, 55 miles northwest of Tokyo, and Kumagaya, 43 miles northwest of the capital city.

None of these three targets had been hit previously.

The night-time assaults were a round-the-clock extension of the attacks which opened against the Marufu railway yards on southern Honshu shortly after noon Tuesday. During Tuesday afternoon the Mikari and Osaka arsenals were

Capture Of Linkow Puts Russians Within 177 Miles Of Key City Of Harbin

London, Aug. 14—(AP)—Russian troops made a sensational spurt of 93 miles from outer Mongolia, invading Jehol province, and capturing Linkow and Tapanahang, 260 miles north of Peiping in North China, the Soviet communique announced tonight.

Units of the Pacific battle fleet captured the Korean port of Seisin, the communique announced, while other Russian forces effected landings on the Japanese half of Sakhalin island north of the Japanese homeland, and broke through the enemy's defenses.

In the first reference to Japanese prisoners, the communique said more than 8,000 Japanese had been captured since the fighting began last Thursday.

London, Aug. 14—(AP)—Russia's tank-tipped armies continued their whirlwind thrusts into Manchuria today after capturing the three-way rail junction of Linkow and cutting the last rail communication line for Japanese troops fighting in the Sungari-Ussuri river valley.

The capture of Linkow by Marshal Kirill A. Meretskov's First Far Eastern army put the Russians 177 miles east of Harbin, major Japanese arsenal city and rail junction of central Manchuria.

The line severed is one of three north-south railroads in Manchuria, running from the Korean port of Seisin to Kiamusze on the Sungari river.

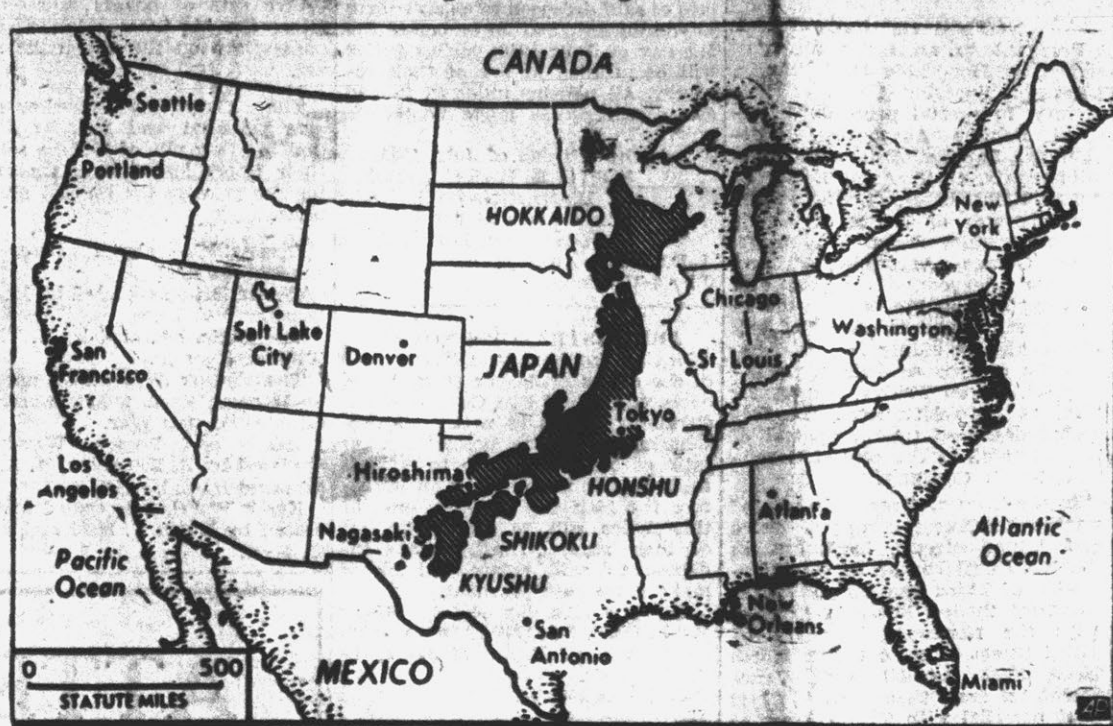

Russian communiques disclosed also that another vital north-south route, the 850-mile railway linking Dairen and Mukden, was threatened.

Harbin was the goal of a five-pronged Soviet drive. Advances up to 28 miles were reported yesterday, with the Russians announcing the capture of at least 22 Japanese.

STATE PILING UP EVIDENCE

More Damaging Testimony In Meadows Trial

The trial of Dr. L. R. Meadows continued to drag along this afternoon with Colonel Frederick F. J. Duncan still on the stand.

Prior to Duncan taking the stand yesterday afternoon R. G. Deyton, of the state budget bureau, had testified that there were ample state funds to cover improvements that Dr. Meadows claimed he had paid for with special student funds.

Deyton revealed that there was an unbalanced balance of over $5,000 in the improvements and betterments fund when Dr. Meadows claimed he had paid $1,400 from other funds for improvements at the new class room building.

Two more witnesses testified that they had seen Dr. Meadows write on a typewriter. Mrs. E. L. Baker testified that she had seen him write on a typewriter in the Baker-Davis Hardware store and N. L. May, farmer, testified that he had visited Dr. Meadows office for the purpose of selling him some potatoes and had seen him writing on the typewriter on his desk.

E. L. Rice of the Lehigh Cement Company, Richmond, Va., corroborated E. L. Baker's testimony regarding cement deals with the college.

Rice testified that during the period in question his firm had shipped Baker Davis six cars of cement for the college. Official records reveal that the college treasurer paid for these shipments and therefore there would have to have been eight cars received to include the two additional two cars that Dr. Meadows said he paid for in cash to Baker-Davis Hardware Company, for which a college check for $678 was a refund.

Duncan's most damaging testimony against the defendant was to the effect that when the college purchased some refrigeration equipment including a domestic refrigerator for the president's home, Dr. Meadows had brought him a check for $95.45 and had impressed upon him that the refrigerator for the president's home was his own property and that he would be entitled to take it with him should he ever cease to be president of the college. The check for $95.45 had been charged by Meadows to the college in his memo book and he testified that the refrigerator was returned to him.

Duke Of Windsor Visits President

Washington, Aug. 14—(AP)—The Duke of Windsor, accompanied by an aide, called on President Truman at the White House today.

The former British monarch arrived five minutes early for an 11:45 a. m. EWT appointment with the President. It was his first meeting with Mr. Truman since the latter became President.

The duke, deeply tanned, was accompanied by J. Balfour, chargé d'affaires of the British Embassy. He previously had called on Secretary of State Byrnes.

When the duke climbed out of his automobile he was met at the White House door by a group of reporters who called out "What have you to say for publication."

"Nothing at all," he smiled with a wave of his hand.

Millions To Be Jobless
Before End Of The Year

Statement On Reconversion Plans Expected To Follow President's V-J Proclamation

By the Associated Press
Washington, Aug. 14—(AP)—Government officials today said to supervise the return of American industry to a peacetime basis today saw prospects of 7,000,000 unemployed by Christmas.

These leading federal economists say temporary mass unemployment is sure to come regardless of anything industry can do.

They add, however, that if this mass unemployment is only temporary "it will not be alarming."

Alike in their views although representing separate agencies, the economists—anonymous at their own request—said unemployment might rise to eight or nine million next year unless the government moves to prevent such an increase.

The number hunting jobs has been estimated at 1,400,000; it stood at 13,000,000 in 1932, low point of the depression.

The economists added that unemployment should begin shrinking late in 1946 or early 1947. They phrased, however, that no one can estimate the extent of shrinkage.

Today's reconversion scene also included these other developments:

1. It was learned that John W. Snyder, director of War Mobilization and Reconversion, is preparing a general statement on reconversion policy. This statement will set the pace for an expected flurry of other pronouncements from federal agencies on their own roles.

2. Dr. George W. Taylor, chairman of the War Labor Board, said he thinks there will be "no rush of strikes" after victory over Japan.

3. Officials acquainted with the subject said wage controls might be eased somewhat in the near future, but that no radical revision of the Little Steel wage formula is likely. They said employers and

Calls For End Of Draft
As Soon As Japan Falls

Washington, Aug. 14—(AP)—Chairman May (D-Ky.) of the House Military Committee today called for an immediate halt to further inductions once Japan falls and the earliest possible release of men already drafted.

May said in an interview he would introduce as soon as Congress reconvenes next month legislation to end all draft calls, thus assuring similar bills before both Houses.

Senator Langer (R-ND) announced last night he would act similarly in the Senate.

May added he also plans to discuss with President Truman the subject of early action to declare hostilities at an end for the purpose of the Selective Service Act.

Such a declaration, he said, would mean that inducted men would be discharged not later than six months after its effective date.

Under provisions of the draft act, men must serve for the duration of hostilities plus six months. Army authorities said the six months can only start upon conclusion of a peace treaty, upon a presidential proclamation ending the war or by a joint resolution of Congress.

PREMATURE
CELEBRATION

Anticipation Of Jap Surrender Causes Merrymaking

By the Associated Press
The Tokyo radio announced shortly before 2 a. m. EWT today that "the text of an imperial message accepting the Potsdam proclamations will be forthcoming" and it spurred a sudden wave of early-hour victory celebrations from New York City to Guam and Manila.

Hopes for immediate announcement of surrender by Japan were set back at a few minutes before 4 a. m. EWT however, when the Federal Communications Commission reported it had intercepted a Japanese language broadcast directed to occupied Asia in which the Domei News Agency predicted "there probably will be something very important" at 9 o'clock tonight—Japanese time (8 a. m. EWT).

The FCC said another Tokyo broadcast repeated this prediction but fixed the time an hour later.

The first Tokyo report produced impromptu parades in New York's Times Square. Darkened windows lighted up, ticker tape streamed down and crowds of celebrants roared out patriotic and martial songs.

Rejoicing soldiers and sailors in San Francisco climbed to the tops of trolley and cable cars and clanged the car gongs as the vehicles nudged their way carefully through surging throngs of peace-greeters.

Out on Guam, hard fighting Marines took the reports of Japanese surrender "with a gasp," commenting, "It can't be all over."

Men generally took the news with out signs of excitement. Sailors waiting in line before a recreation hall for their beer ration said they hoped peace would bring "extra beer."

At night clubs at Albuquerque, N. M., patrons dumped tables over and kissed one another.

Hilarious college boys at Los Angeles ignited a large bonfire and organized a shirt-tail parade.

Thousands of merrymakers packed the Randolph Street Rialto in Chicago. A false fire alarm added to the turmoil.

Sailors at Kansas City celebrated by kissing their girl friends, and home-going war workers tooted automobile horns, but most of the

Aided War Effort

The success of the atomic bomb, used with such devastating effect on two Japanese cities last week was due, in part, to a contribution to its development by Charles E. Swain, formerly of Plymouth but now a veterinarian of Grimsland, he asserted today.

He submitted drawings of an atomic bomb to the Navy Department in 1934. While in Greenville today Swain exhibited official Navy Department drawings made from his original designs submitted to the department.

In addition to the atomic bomb, Swain had submitted an invention for protection of ships from torpedoes or underwater mines. The principle of this invention was used by the navy in protecting its ships against the Nazi submarine menace.

A third invention by the Pitt County man was a time mine, which would not explode until it reached midship position after being struck by the bow of a boat. Swain explained that ordinary mines explode upon contact, and in view of that fact most vessels are so constructed that bulkheads keep ships afloat even though the bow is damaged. Swain's mine was so designed that it would not explode until it reached midship where it would do the most damage after being struck by the bow of the boat.

Swain was a member of the Greenville police force for two years about 20 years ago.

Washington, Aug. 14—(AP)—Japan has surrendered unconditionally, President Truman announced at 7 P. M., EWT, tonight.

General of the Army Douglas A. MacArthur has been designated supreme Allied commander to receive the surrender.

Offensive operations have been suspended everywhere.

V-J day will be proclaimed only after the surrender has been formally accepted by MacArthur.

Mr. Truman read the formal message relayed from Emperor Hirohito through the Swiss government in which the Japanese ruler pledged the surrender on the terms laid down by the Big Three conference at Potsdam.

President Truman made this statement:

"I have received this afternoon a message from the Japanese government in reply to the message forwarded to that government by the Secretary of State on August 11.

"I deem this reply a full acceptance of the Potsdam declaration which specifies the unconditional surrender of Japan.

In this reply there is no qualification. "Arrangements are now being made for the formal signing of surrender terms at the earliest possible moment.

"General Douglas MacArthur has been appointed the supreme Allied commander to receive the Japanese surrender.

"Great Britain, Russia and China will be represented by high ranking officers.

"Meanwhile, the Allied armed forces have been ordered to suspend offensive action.

"The proclamation of V-J day must wait upon the formal signing of the surrender terms by Japan."

"Simultaneously Mr. Truman disclosed that selective service is taking immediate steps to slash inductions from 30,000 to 50,000 a month.

Henceforth, Mr. Truman said, only those men under 26 will be drafted for the reduced quotas.

The White House made public the Japanese government's message accepting that ended the war which started December 7, 1941.

"The text of the message, which was delivered by the Swiss charge d'affaires follows:

"Communication of the Japanese government of August 14, 1945, addressed to the governments of the United States, Great Britain, the Soviet Union, and China:

"With reference to the Japanese government's note of August 10 regarding their acceptance of the provisions of the Potsdam declaration and the reply of the governments of the United States, Great Britain, and China:

"The Japanese government has accepted the Potsdam declaration and the reply of the governments of the United States, Great Britain, and China."

Today On The Home Front
By James Marlow

Washington, Aug. 14—(AP)—With the end of the Japanese war, war workers will start moving. The great migration begins again.

If gasoline rationing ends soon after the war's end—it may, within a week—war workers with cars will be able to move faster and shop around, if they wish, for a new job and a place to stay.

There certainly will be a large movement as soon as the war plants shut down. It probably won't equal the greatest migration in our history—the wartime shift between 1940 and 1943.

It was the high-paying jobs mainly that drew families, many of them clear across the continent. Millions of those jobs will end with Japan's end.

There will be two main motives behind the big move:

1. Workers, with their war plants closed, will have to look elsewhere for jobs.

2. Lots of them have saved money and will want to go home and settle down in the places they came from. No one knows exactly what the total migration has been.

The Census Bureau, which is the real authority on population, has no figures on migration later than 1943.

In 1940 the bureau's figures showed what the population was in that year by states. The population of those same states in the war year of 1943 could be determined by rationing registrations.

Between those years — 1940 and 1943—thirty states suffered a net loss of 3,400,000. The other 18, plus the District of Columbia, gained.

But this doesn't begin to tell the whole story of the true size of the

The WAR TODAY

An Analysis Of The News

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

The Japanese war-lords' delay in making up their minds whether they are licked was only adding to their nation's anguish, for American Superfortresses loosed more than 5,000 tons (and that's 10,000,000 pounds) of bombs on the unhappy country.

The huge U. S. Third Fleet and a British carrier task force were idling off the Japanese coast ready for further action. It was clear that the Allies had no intention of making any nonsense from a dawdling Tokyo.

Despite this delay, we have no cause to worry for fear that we haven't got Japan on toast. Even before Tokyo made its first inquiry about the terms of surrender last week, it was clear that the Allies had smashed Japan as no other major power, excepting Germany, ever has been smashed since the conquests of old.

It seems passing strange that Nippon should have to learn that crime doesn't pay by making war on the United Nations. The fact that she had the temerity to do so is just another proof that she hadn't yet emerged fully from the dim past.

She thought naively that because she had a big army and navy, she had caught up with the western world. But it is clear that she still was treading the paths of by-gone centuries.

Japan's greed will cost her a big empire. She no longer will rank as a great power. She will drop back to about the place she occupied in 1853-54 when our Commodore Perry introduced her to civilization.

Since that time she had extended her domains vastly, partly through receiving islands under mandate after the last war, and partly through aggression which brought her Korea and finally great and potentially rich Manchuria. She had got clean away (at least temporarily) with her theft of Manchuria from China, and she might have continued long in possession of it if she had recognized her limitations.

But now she will be losing all excepting her ancient four island kingdom. She will be deprived of her navy, her air force, her army and every industry which could be utilized for purposes of war. She is to suffer the indignity of having her sacred islands occupied by Allied troops, and of being under Allied military rule.

And off punishment for Japan. And off wonders whether the peculiar Japanese code of honor may not result in some shocking "face-saving" sacrifices after capitulation has been made effective.

Through time immemorial it has been the practice of the Japanese to commit hara-kiri to wipe out stain upon honor. We have seen innumerable cases in the present war.

Will high military and naval officers, and members of government, immolate themselves on the altar of "honor" in this fashion?

There have even been suggestions that the Mikado himself might abide by this code and do away with himself.

I'm not suggesting that these things will happen, but only call attention to the possibilities in this great drama.

NEWS ABOUT SERVICEMEN

Dies in Germany

Salisbury—Lt. Col. Walter Lowe Tatum, 46, physician long prominent in medical, civic and public life in Rowan county, died in a military hospital in Frankfurt, Germany, August 1, the War Department has notified his widow, Mrs. Pauline Tatum, of Salisbury.

Dr. Tatum became ill while returning from Berlin to Versailles and was taken to the Frankfurt hospital where he died. Death was attributed to a cerebral hemorrhage.

Funeral services were held at the military cemetery at Bensheim, Germany, August 2. Later the body will be moved to the military cemetery at St. Avold, France.

Dr. Tatum leaves his widow, two children, Walter Lowe, and Ann Lowe Tatum, two sisters, Mrs. Davis Lee Moore of Winterville, Mrs. Webb Daniel of Winston-Salem and a brother, Samuel, of Greensboro.

Cpl. Mills in Manila
Manila—Corporal Joe J. Mills, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Mills of Route 3, Greenville, is now in this city with the 5th General Hospital. He is serving as an assistant to the Protestant chaplain in the administration of his many duties for the benefit of the enlisted men and patients in the hospital.

Cpl. Mills is a graduate of Grimsland High School. Since graduation he and his father have become famous all over the state for the rendition of "Billie" music, and his own compositions. He still continues to amuse his fellow soldiers whenever he manages to lay hands on a guitar, and is in constant demand as an entertainer at parties and night clubs in the Manila area.

The corporal entered the service at Fort Bragg in September, 1942, and received his medical training at Camp White, Oregon. He then went overseas with his unit, spending a year in Milne Bay, New Guinea, before coming to the Philippines early this year.

Cpl. Mills has been awarded the Good Conduct Medal, the Asiatic-Pacific Theater Ribbon with two Campaign Stars for his service in New Guinea and Luzon, and the Philippine Liberation Ribbon.

Sergeant Dall has been overseas for five months and is authorized to wear the Asiatic-Pacific Theater Ribbon with one bronze star denoting active service in the China campaign. He is a graduate of the AAF radio school at Scott Field, Ill., and the Bendix Training School at Baltimore, Md. Prior to joining the Air Corps he was graduated from Greenville High School and had earned three years of credit at East Carolina Teachers College. Later he was employed as a salesman by Lance, Inc., of Charlotte, N. C.

Sergeant Dall is a radio mechanic in the "Assam Dragon" and can well be proud of his organization. The "Dragons" have been overseas for more than three years and have seen action against the Japs all over the skies of China, Indo-China and Burma. They have to a great extent aided in making the name of the 51st respected through Asiatic skies.

On Three Pacific Fleet Cruisers

Aboard the USS Mobile in the Pacific—Torpedoed twice, Lt. Herbert M. Wilkerson, USNR, Greenville, N. C., is serving on his third Pacific Fleet cruiser—one which he helped build by the way.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen G. Wilkerson, 307 East 8th St., Greenville. Two brothers are in the army. They are Pfc. Norman, and J. Louis, first lieutenant in the Army Medical Corps.

Lt. Wilkerson attended Mars Hill Junior College at Asheville, N. C., and East Carolina Teachers College, graduating in 1940. He was on the varsity tennis and boxing teams at both schools. He later was employed by the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Co., although he didn't know it at the time. His section was busy on the hull of the cruiser on which he is now stationed.

Commissioned in August, 1942, Lt. Wilkerson attended the Navy communications school at Harvard University, and then was assigned to the cruiser USS Helena. He was with her through operations at Rendova, New Georgia and the Solomons. The Helena was torpedoed in Kula Gulf in July, 1943, and Lt. Wilkerson was in the water five hours before being picked up.

He was assigned to the staff of Admiral W. P. Halsey until April, 1944, when he went to the cruiser USS Honolulu. That cruiser was damaged by Jap aerial torpedoes in Leyte Gulf. Lt. Wilkerson then served with the staff of Rear Admiral W. L. Ainsworth until last February, when he came to this cruiser.

RESOLUTIONS

The Woman's Missionary Society of Memorial Baptist Church, Greenville, North Carolina, wishes to pay tribute to the memory of our beloved member, Mrs. Harold A. McDougall, who on Sunday evening, July 1, 1945, after suffering many months slipped away "to a city not made with hands, eternal in the heavens." She was the devoted wife of our deacon and choir director, Harold A. McDougall.

She had been a faithful, consecrated member of the Memorial Baptist Church for the past several years and her Christian personality and character were manifest in her beautiful life of service. She truly lived a quiet, unselfish Christian life, practicing daily the Golden Rule: "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you."

Her interest in missions was great and she rendered valuable service in the Inabell Coleman Circle, serving as circle chairman, secretary and a working member of various committees.

Surely we, the members of the Woman's Missionary Society of Memorial Baptist Church, feel keenly our loss, yet we bow in humble submission to Him "who doeth all things well." Therefore, be it Resolved:

First, That we thank God for her beautiful and useful life.

Second, That we pray God's richest blessings upon her family and relatives in their great sorrow.

Third, That we, as a missionary society, endeavor at all times to emulate her kind, gentle, Christ-like spirit as we labor together to carry on the work she loved so much.

Fourth, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy to the Bible Record and a copy be spread upon our minutes.

Respectfully submitted,
MRS. RUEL TYSON,
MRS. CLEM GARNER,
MRS. CHESTER WALSH,
Committee.

MARKET OPENS NEXT TUESDAY

Greenville Warehouse Ready For 1945 Tobacco Season

The Greenville tobacco market, which opens next Tuesday, again offers to tobacco growers conveniences and facilities unexcelled by any tobacco market in the world.

Greenville's eleven warehouses, with efficient sales forces and the best auctioneers in the business, all under the direction of a far-sighted and friendly Tobacco Board of Trade, has provided for the tobacco grower a system which permits prompt sales, with each of the warehouses having a guaranteed sale every selling day, said R. C. (Bob) Rankin, sales supervisor.

Five sets of buyers representing all of the big tobacco buying companies, are on the Greenville market.

The Greenville warehousemen give personal and friendly attention to every pile of tobacco sold on their floors, and always try to get for the growers the highest possible price.

Greenville's eleven progressive warehouses are: Centre Brick, operated by M. Dow Lassiter.

The Dixie, operated by E. T. and William Cannon.

The Empire Warehouse, operated by Harvey Ward, a new warehouse established this year.

Harris and Rogers Warehouse, operated by R. E. Rogers, H. E. Rogers and R. E. Harris.

Keel's Warehouse, owned and operated by Rufus V. Keel and James T. Keel.

William Gilbert in 1600 set the foundation for the discovery of radio when he conceived of the earth as a great magnet with magnetic poles and a field of force about it.

Smith and Sugg's warehouses, operated by Guy V. Smith and B. H. Sugg.

McGowan's Warehouse, operated by C. H. McGowan.

Victory Warehouse, operated by Gus Forbes and O. L. Joyner.

The managements of these warehouses have made every preparation for the coming season, despite the fact that power shortages produced by the Japs have completely sales forces of courtesies, experienced and able tobaccoists and they spare no effort to see that the men who sell their 1945 crops in Greenville will receive every cent that a high market is paying.

The 1945 tobacco marketing season will be a strenuous one for all connected with tobacco. Since the beginning of World War II, nearly five years ago, the labor situation has gradually grown more acute and at the present time all markets are operating with selling time just half of what it was in pre-war days, Supervisor Rankin said.

However, insofar as prompt sales and convenience in selling is concerned, the Greenville warehousemen have come very near solving this problem for the tobacco grower. Five sets of buyers and an ideal system is the solution, Rankin stated.

First, the selling time of five sets of buyers gives Greenville the maximum, or greatest amount of selling time allotted to bright leaf tobacco markets. Second, an ideal sales system, dividing this selling time among the various warehouses of Greenville, giving each a guaranteed sale each selling day, relieves traffic of congestion around these warehouses to a certain extent, making it much more comfortable always be times when venient for the tobacco grower to secure space on a floor. Of course, warehouse floors are not cleared of tobacco, Rankin said, but instead of hundreds of trucks, pickup trucks and other vehicles crowding around the five warehouses having first sales, all trying to secure floor space in those particular houses under Greenville's present sales system, the enormous quantity of tobacco coming to Greenville daily is split among 11 sales.

Tobacco growers know each of these houses have a guaranteed sale each day. They know if they get their tobacco on the floor of any house the warehouseman can tell them within five minutes of the time it will be sold. In other words, in Greenville the tobacco grower has his choice of eleven sales instead of five, as in the past. Access to each house is easy. A guaranteed sale each day eliminates the uncertainty and delay that went with the old block system. It is true, there will be waits and delays for those who sell tobacco this year, but, after the many hardships brought on by wartime conditions, are taken into consideration, tobacco growers are going to find Greenville a place where they can market their crops with a minimum amount of delay and congestion. They are going to find it very satisfying when they drive through a warehouse door, unload their tobacco and have the warehouseman tell them their crop will be sold at five minutes past 11 o'clock, or 2 o'clock, depending on the row in which the tobacco is stacked. Tobacco growers will soon find out that they can sell more promptly, more conveniently and more satisfactorily in Greenville, the sales supervisor said.

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

TODAY

What constitutes courage? Some people will say that the courageous man is the man who knows no fear. As a matter of fact, a man devoid of fear is abnormal, and alarmingly so. He may well regard himself as a pronounced neurotic. Fear is a defense mechanism implanted in our natures. We are intended to have fear under certain circumstances. The man mentally and spiritually healthy is the man who entertains fear at the proper time and for the proper object.

Returning soldiers say that going into battle is a fearful ordeal. As a soldier puts it, the man who goes into battle without any fear is just plain crazy. Who, then, is the courageous man? Not the man who has no fear but the man who does his duty in spite of fear. The great Comde, when complimented on his courage, always said that he took good care never to call upon it unless the occasion were absolutely necessary.

Our enemies said that American youth was soft. As a matter of fact, braver soldiers have probably never lived than the soldiers in the present war, and this holds true for the enemy as well as for ourselves. Men have had to face more hell than ever before. Yet a generation believed to have grown soft arose and met the fire bravely—not because they were devoid of fear, but because they conquered fear and were therefore courageous.

AMERICA IN WARTIME

By JACK STENNETT

Washington—If the war with Japan drags into another spring, the United States probably will have as many civilian-owned planes in the air as in the prewar heydays of non-commercial flying—in spite of restricted flights, rationed gasoline and new taxes.

The Civil Aeronautics Association has been digging into the Civil Aeronautics Administration statistics, with these resulting estimates: from a prewar peak of 25,000 non-airline, non-military planes, the number sagged to 8,000 in the summer of 1943—but now has climbed back to 14,000 training, charter, rental and private planes in operation.

At the same time the number of civilian landing facilities have mounted from 1,800 less than a year ago to 3,000 now.

The reasons given are relaxed restrictions in some sections of the country; a great increase in public interest in flying; the desire of discharged pilots to get back into the air; and the 3,000 surplus military planes already sold to civilians. The other 1,000 are planes that were laid up at start of the war and since have been made airworthy.

This growth is considered amazing, since pleasure flying still is barred strictly, and the increase is entirely in planes used for training, charter operations and business flights.

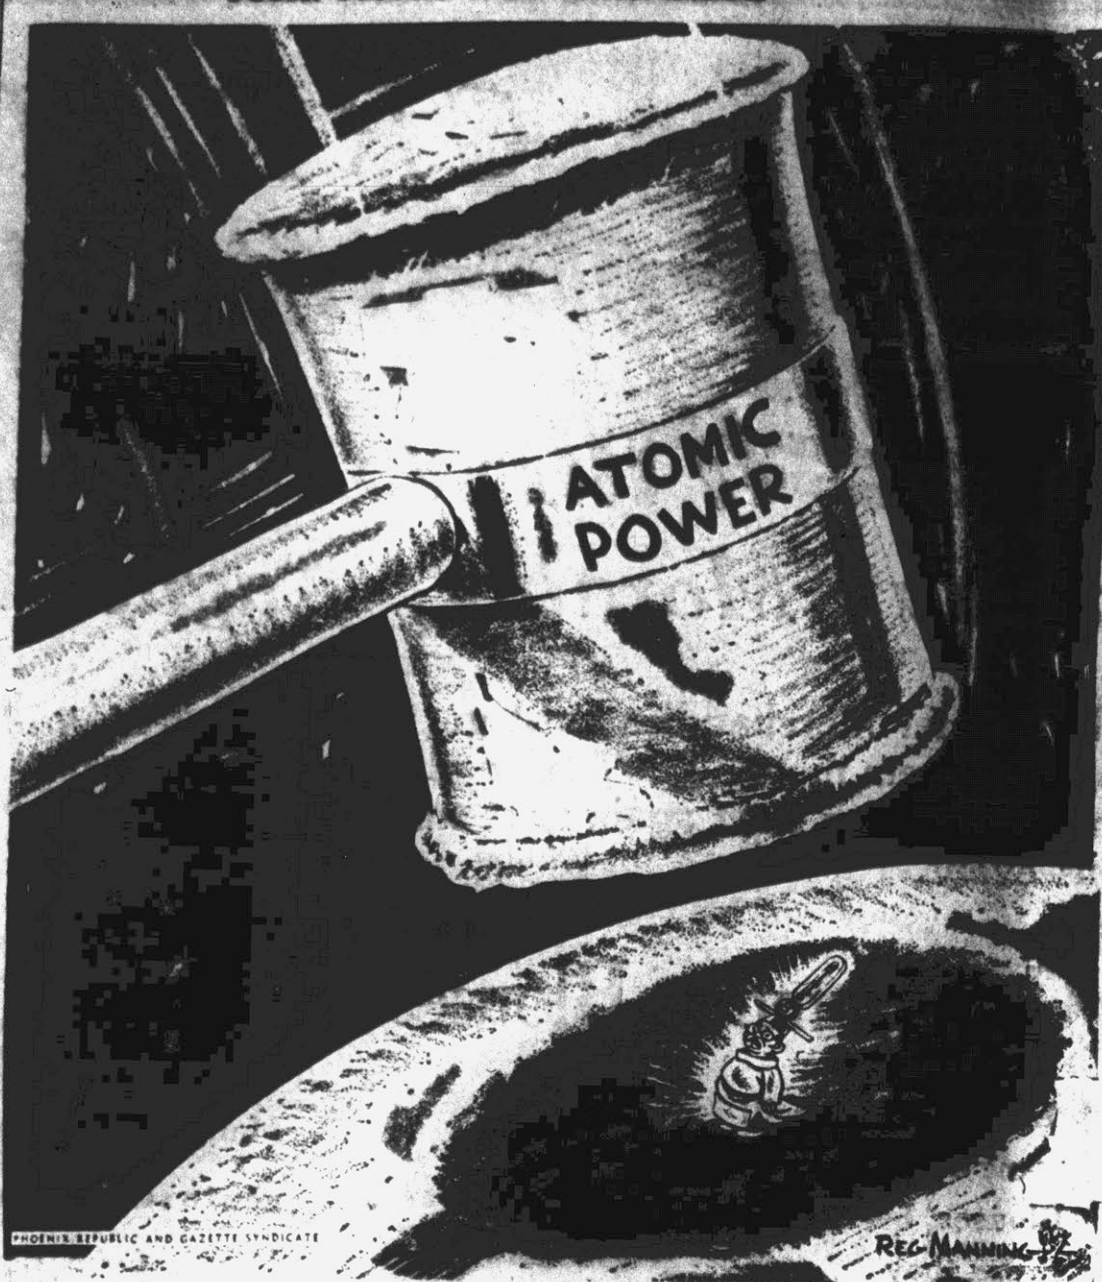

With more civilian planes in the air, CAA also is noting an increase in flying accidents and an interesting factor is that many are caused by inability of some service pilots to adapt themselves immediately to flying light planes.

The Army, which has for some time been warning Air Force pilots that they must get used to a different kind of flying in a different kind of plane, now considers the situation serious enough to publish a special instruction manual by the Air Safety Command, to be given to all pilots being discharged.

Complaints coming into the CAA from airport operators, according to the aeronautics association, are that some former military pilots indulge in reckless flying and that many are unfamiliar with the flight characteristics of small, lightly powered private aircraft.

In the first instance, fighter pilots particularly, and military pilots generally, are taught to take risks that are strictly prohibited in civilian flying. Generally, the tendency of military pilots is to expect too much of the light plane. Most mishaps to date, according to reports, involve stalls due to ignorance of the performance to be expected.

This little hurdle in safe flying, however, is not expected to slow the swelling ranks of civilian pilots. It is to be noted, too, that the surplus property sales of military planes really is just getting under way. The country may be back to its prewar civilian plane ownership level before new civilian planes start rolling off the assembly lines in any numbers at all.

War Rages On...

bombing. The crushing assault may have helped goad the dawdling Japanese peace negotiators into their decision.

The Japanese also had the knowledge that the world's mightiest naval force—the U. S. Third Fleet with a British carrier task force—was idling close off the home shores after pressing home air strikes on the Tokyo area Monday.

The enemy had attempted to reach the fleet with a belated air attack. Admiral Nimitz reported, but 21 of the attacking planes were shot down and none got near the ships.

Meanwhile, the American and British carrier airmen knocked out 17 parked Japanese planes and struck ground installations a stout blow despite bad, rainy weather on Monday.

So far as has been disclosed, the fleet was not in action anywhere today.

After a four-day lull while the Japanese were making surrender overtures, General Spaatz sent his strategic Air Forces out on heavy onslaughts which his headquarters said began at noon and still were under way four hours later.

At 3:58 p. m. Guam time, the Navy radio here flashed over the Guam radio a pickup of the Domei agency's Tokyo broadcast saying Japan's acceptance of the Potsdam ultimatum was forthcoming.

By that time strategic Air Force headquarters already had disclosed that at least 430 Superfortresses from the Marianas and 176 fighter planes from Iwo had participated in attacks on southern Honshu.

Wing after wing of Superfortresses were described as making a "maximum effort."

The planes carried an average of seven and one-half tons of high explosive bombs each.

At this average, at least 666 Superfortresses would be required to carry the specified more than 5,000 tons of bombs, rather than the 430 thus far mentioned—indicating that the scope of the attack was greater than yet announced.

So eager were the airmen to get in their last few ticks at the Japanese that the total number of planes participating kept increasing right up to takeoff times as repairs on more and more planes were rushed to completion.

Greatest Superfortresses strike of the war was on Aug. 1-2 by 820 planes observing Air Force Day.

Today's attacks began with a strike against the Marifu railway yards on Honshu shortly after noon. As the reports came trickling in, these targets were added to the list.

Railway shops near Iwakuna, just south of Hiroshima, shipping off Kure naval base; the great Hikari naval arsenal near Tokuyama, and the Osaka army arsenal, Japan's largest. In addition, harbor-mining continued.

For a half-hour before the Osaka raid and for 20 minutes afterward, Mustangs and Thunderbolts from Iwo swept over Osaka airfields. Other fighters escorted the B-29s.

ficial, 24 representatives of various private organizations and 20 congressional employees appeared. In the light of agreement among the witnesses, the committee probably will fashion its recommendations along these lines:

1. Drastic overhauling of the present committee structure to avoid overlapping jurisdictions. The number of committees to be recommended probably will be less than a score in each chamber. The House now has 48, the Senate 33.

2. Higher salaries for members. Increases ranging from $1,500 to $15,000 were suggested. The present salary is $10,000 although House members recently voted themselves a $2,500-a-year expense allowance.

3. More adequate staffing for members and committees through technically-trained personnel.

4. Closer liaison between Congress and the executive branch. It was proposed that each department head appoint an assistant to work with Congress.

Also widely favored was a proposal by Representative Keafau (D-Tenn) for a "question period" during which officials from the executive branch could be questioned periodically on the floor of each House.

5. More frequent and regular recesses to permit members to maintain a closer touch with home. Senator Willis (R-Ind), for instance, would designate April, July and August as recess months.

6. Control over lobbyists—such as requiring them to register sponsors and sources of income.

7. Some substitute for the seniority rule. One suggestion heard was for a six-year time limit for committee chairmen.

storic points. There still are no Soviet confirmation of Japanese reports that Russian Marines had invaded southern Sakhalin Island, establishing two beachheads on Karafuto, the Japanese half of the island lying only 26 miles north of the Japanese homeland.

Moritskov's army was reported to be advancing all along a 300-mile front extending from Hullu to captured Linkow and then south to the Korean frontier, but Japanese entrenched in mountain passes were fighting fiercely. Japanese resistance was heavy at Mutankiang, where a battle has been raging for three days for control on this junction of the Chinese eastern railroad and the Seichin-Kiamusze line.

Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Transbaikalian army was moving steadily towards the Rarien-Shitchean railroad in northern Manchuria and the latest Russian communiqué placed these forces within 47 miles of Taoan, a large junction city. Capture of this hub by the Russians would leave tens of thousands of Japanese troops in northern Manchuria without rail communication and would speed their entrapment.

Japanese broadcasts said that Hsinking, capital of Manchuria, which was blasted by Soviet bombers along with other strategic rail centers, was being evacuated.

Malinovsky's horsemen captured Wenchuan (Aershan), terminus of a rail line to Hsinking, and other of his troops pressed forward along western stretches of the Chinese railroad, taking Mientuho, 350 miles northwest of Harbin and 45 miles from Pokotu Pass, heavily fortified gap through the great Khingan mountain range.

Tokyo broadcasts said the Russians went ashore on Karafuto at Ambetsu and at Esutoru, south of the heavily fortified border which separates the Japanese half of the island from the Russian-owned northern portion.

These landings apparently were designed to outflank the fortifications. This reported invasion followed the capture by Russian Marines of the Japanese naval ports of Rashin and Yuki in Korea, about 90 miles southwest of Vladivostok.

In both name and form the modern novel derives from Northern Italy.

SAY UNCLE

city viewed the news in a dubious "show me" spirit. A parade of over 100 automobiles moved through downtown circles in Indianapolis, bearing their horns. In Denver, crowds climbed on automobiles as the cars rolled on through downtown streets, tooting a welcome to the victory reports.

The jubilation spread far beyond the United States. Manila was reported "going wild" with Americans and Filipinos flinging stars of Japanese currency into the air.

Honolulu literally lit up at the news in a colossal demonstration that included searchlights, tracer bullets, rockets and flares. At Victoria, British Columbia, an out-of-hand crowd of several thousand civilians and sailors hurled rocks through the front windows of a liquor store and had to be dispersed by police.

But while celebrations proceeded gayly at many other points, Pacific Fleet headquarters on Guam said that American naval forces would not accept any Japanese broadcasts as authentic and would recognize only an official dispatch from Washington as notice of the end of the war.

New York, Aug. 14.—(AP)—A noisy, turbulent celebration gathered momentum in the streets of New York today in anticipation of a V-J announcement.

Jostling, cheering crowds increased by the minute—passing the 100,000 mark in Times Square by mid-morning—and a breeze-whipped blizzard of torn paper covered pavements ankle deep.

Fireworks exploded over the heads of Chinatown's joyful residents, who were joined by neighbors from Little Italy in the quarter's jam-packed, narrow streets.

Church bells pealed and worshippers in unusually large numbers knelt in gratitude. Rev. D. G. Warfield Hobbs, of St. Thomas Episcopal Church on Fifth Avenue, asked his congregation to "accept in this mood the obligations of peace."

The din of the celebration could be heard in Grand Central Induction Center, where the induction process went on uninterrupted.

"It's tough, going in" when it seems all over, some selectees declared; but they agreed with Murray Schwartz, 19, that they give the real veterans a chance to come on home.

Generally, the delighted populace obeyed Mayor F. H. La Guardia's broadcast appeal to demonstrate that we know how to behave as well as celebrate.

But police began receiving complaints from some sections that paving blocks and other missiles had been hurled through store windows, and a crowd quickly emptied a Canal Street novelty shop window of confetti and noisemakers.

When first reports of an imminent surrender came early in the morning, darkened buildings glowed with light and girls threw their arms wildly around willing servicemen.

U-BOAT SINKS PLANE, SURVIVORS CAPTURED

SAY UNCLE

Chapter 24

Strolling leisurely down the long hall, Mario asked, confidentially, "What do you think of Uncle Louis?"

"To be candid," he said, "I haven't seen enough of him to judge."

"Don't tell me the poor old darling has been avoiding you too?" Then she thought of something that saved the doctor from having to answer. "How thoughtless of me, I forgot to tell what's her name to take Uncle Louis's dinner down to his laboratory." Then she said, as she turned and started down the hall, "I'll join you for coffee in the den in a few minutes."

Alone, the doctor opened his medical bag and extracted a bottle of bicarbonate in tablet form. Then he walked out on the terrace in search of John.

"Take one of these," said the doctor, offering John a tablet; "it may help you to digest your troubles."

John placed one in his mouth and the doctor followed suit. And as they chewed, the crunching sound became muffled, due to the heavy stillness which enveloped them.

John finally spoke in a broken voice. "When Madge said she wanted to live in sin—that got me."

"Now don't you start talking in riddles," said the doctor.

"Yes, heard what she said, Fred? 'Maybe my ears were too wide open.'"

"She said we'd get a divorce and come back here to live."

"That's right, she did," he agreed. "Fred," said John in a hushed voice, "I've got a terrible, sneaking feeling that Madge is trying to imitate Madge!"

"She doesn't know her, does she?" asked the doctor.

"She's probably read plenty about her in magazines and newspapers."

He turned his moonlit face to the doctor. "Look," he said, "look at the way she's acting and talking! Her face all smeared with makeup. Why she's even wearing Mario's perfume, Lotus Petals!"

"John," said the doctor, "I don't like to say this, but I think we are on the wrong track. I thought I was right when I said to give Madge full steam ahead and suggested we play along with her, but I'm afraid I've made a mistake. Tonight's episode has brought me to one conclusion."

"And what's that?" asked John. "I think you had better omit me," Fred hesitated, "and call some specialist in on the case."

"No!" cried John in alarm. "For God's sake, Fred, don't walk out on me at a time like this!"

John's plea sank deep into the doctor's kind heart and, with a determined move, he slapped his knee and rose to his feet. "I'll pull Madge through this, if it's the last case I ever handle!" he exclaimed.

John stood up and looked at the doctor. "Thanks, Fred—thanks," he said.

"Come along, my boy," said the doctor. Madge is waiting for us in the den."

When John and the doctor entered the den they found Mario draped seductively on the davenport, sipping her demi-tasse. John's renewed determination to play along died when he saw Madge lift a cigarette to her lips and inhale deeply.

"Really, John," she said in her assumed ultra-manner, "your prudishness verges on the ridiculous. Then she turned to the doctor and laughingly remarked, "Once in a while I even enjoy smoking a pipe."

The doctor noticed John's wavering condition and took it upon himself to play host in an effort to give John a breathing spell.

"Coffee, John," he asked, while walking to the table where he proceeded to fill two cups.

"You know something, John," said Mario, arrogantly oblivious of John's rigid staring. "I've been studying this room, and with a few drastic changes it could be made quite livable."

Silence. And again the doctor nursed the situation.

"I've always admired this room," he said, trying to make conversation. He looked up at the natural wide oak beams of the high ceiling. "I wouldn't mind owning those beautiful oak beams."

"You can have them," said Mario generously.

"I may?"

"Sure," she said with a wave of her cigarette. "I'm going to have every one of those terrible esthetes snatched out."

A very faint groan came from John.

"With my taste," she continued blithely, "I'll change this morgue into a show-place." She exhaled a long stream of smoke. "And," she continued, "I'm going to fumigate this house from top to bottom, with Lotus Petals!"

"A very accidental and embarrassing 'bump' escaped from John."

"Everything about this place is too old," she said. "I shall have the entire house painted white, with green shutters."

"Oh, no!" said John.

"Oh, yes," said Mario; "and what's more, out go all the antiques, including Egbert."

"Egbert, too?" asked John.

"I can't imagine your wanting to keep that grotesque beast around with his remains still inside!"

John didn't answer, and Mario didn't care as she continued to reconstruct, Winston Manor.

"I'll modernize the entire house and fill every one of those dark, closed rooms upstairs with house guests."

"House guests?" gulped John.

"I shall become famous for my social functions. Of course, dear," she gave John a coy look, "I'll take time off, every now and then, to raise sweet, stunning little—"

She was stopped by John.

"Oh, my God!" he exploded. The doctor quickly moved to his side to support him.

To Be Continued.

GREENVILLE

"The Best Tobacco Market In The State"

Built By Better Service And Higher Prices

54 years ago a group of pioneer tobaccoists built Greenville's first warehouse. It was small compared to this market's present-day structures, but the men who built it had foresight and vision. They knew better service and higher prices would bring more tobacco to Greenville, just as fast as the production of this money crop increased in Eastern Carolina. They were right . . . because of better service and higher prices Greenville's market has grown and expanded until today Greenville is a world famous tobacco center.

When The Greenville Market Opens TUESDAY AUGUST 21st

tobacco growers will find Greenville's warehousemen rendering better service and paying higher prices, just as their predecessors did 54 years ago.

A Guaranteed Sale Every Day, For EVERY WAREHOUSE

5 SETS OF BUYERS — 5 SETS OF BUYERS — 5 SETS OF BUYERS

More Buyers Mean More Selling Time . . . More selling time means a better chance for a prompt sale. In selling time Greenville has the equivalent of 5 sets of buyers, the maximum amount of selling time allotted to tobacco markets. That means your best chance for a prompt sale, and a high sale, is in GREENVILLE

By JACK HAND
(AP Sports Writer)

Detroit power hitting and effective pitching is providing a healthy appetite for the night ball crowd. By attracting weekday crowds of 37,000 to Briggs Stadium where over 800,000 daytime customers have spun the turnstiles.

Although nation-wide attention has been focused on Brooklyn's amazing drawing power because almost 850,000 have been lured to Ebbets Field by day and night, the Bengals can hardly miss hitting the million paid mark without turning on a single light.

With New York as the attraction, Detroit pulled 37,888 through the gate yesterday to watch the Tigers bury the visitors' flag hopes, 15 to 4 and 11-0.

Four straight put the cooler on Joe McCarthy's ambitions and bogged the Bengals' lead over Washington to three full games as the Nats split a two-night double-header in St. Louis. The Yankees dropped into fourth place as Chicago took third.

Al Hollingsworth pushed Washington back another full game behind the Tigers by hurling the Browns to a 4-2 first game verdict. Al Carrasquel evened it up later, 11-3, but the gap had been widened.

Chicago climbed into the first four by shading Philadelphia, 4-3, on Tony Cucinello's pinch single in the 11th as Reliever Johnny Johnson outpointed Fireman Joe Berry.

Cleveland's Lefty Al Smith shut out Boston with three singles, 10-0, dropping the Red Sox to seventh, lowest they have been since mid-May.

Charley Grimm's Chicago Cubs continued to sweep through the east without trouble, flattening the Phillies, 4-1, as Paul Derringer hung up win No. 13 at Dick Barrett's expense.

St. Louis and Brooklyn carried their second place feud to 15 innings before the defensive world champion Red Birds finally broke it up, 11-10, on Ken O'Dea's double off the right field screen.

Harry Feldman's pitching and Cincinnati's batting has proved to be the most consistent combination in the majors with the New York Giants' rightlander trimming the Reds five times in succession while coping 10 decisions. Feldman allowed seven hits in handling the Reds a 10th straight setback, 2-0.

Despite two homers by Jack Barrett, Pittsburgh fell before Boston's 13-hit attack, 6-4, with Nate Andrews taking the verdict over Keny Gables.

Yesterday's results:
National League
St. Louis 11, Brooklyn 10 (15 innings).
Pittsburgh 4, Boston 6.
Chicago 4, Philadelphia 1.
New York 2, Cincinnati 0.
American League

Dr. Erwin Speaks at College
"Victory over Japan has come as much by the dispensation of Providence as by the greatness of American arms," declared State Superintendent Clyde R. Erwin in a special ECTO chapel last Friday noon. Reviewing the major events leading up to the surrender offer of Japan, Erwin pointed out several events which showed the influence of Providence. Hitler's hesitation to attack England, his decision to attack the Russians are evidences of this.

"Again it was a part of human destiny that American ingenuity won the race in the discovery of the atomic bomb. And now we discover a power which has more human possibilities in terms of freedom than any other single scientific discovery."

"Americans are a chastened people," he declared. "God grant that we may win the peace in an equally brilliant way."

Parade Of Drunks In Police Court

By CHESTER WALSH

A parade of 19 drunks passed before Judge Jimmy Roberts in Police Court yesterday morning. After "Hiszoner" had passed out "justice" to the penitents it was evident that public drunkenness is going to be eliminated to a large extent by the court and the reorganized police department under Chief Jim Tanner.

State Sen. Arthur B. Corey acted as prosecutor for Solicitor Eli Bloom, who is vacationing "to the bare walls" in northern cities.

Cases disposed are as follows:
Drunks: Mary Louise Taylor, white, called and failed, capias issued; Milton Randall, colored, $25, costs deducted; Charles Barrett, Jr., colored, $15; Wright Shaw, colored, $20; Tobe Henry Freeman, 30 days, appealed to Superior Court; Grover C. Barfield, called and failed, capias issued; William C. Dowd, $15; James O. Whitchard, $15; John L. Jones, $15; James Gordon, colored, called and failed, capias issued; Abner L. Stepps, Jr., $25, costs deducted; Thomas H. Lee, $15; Henry Daniels, colored, 30 days or $20, costs deducted; Charles R. Harrington, $15; Clayton James, called and failed, capias issued; Jim Freeman, 30 days on streets, appealed; Sam Holloway, colored $15; Charles L. Hall, $15, and Major Adams, $15.

Assault with deadly weapon: Zebbie D. Hines, colored, $25, costs deducted.

Disorderly conduct: Zebbie D. Hines, colored, $15.
Larceny: Edward Daney, colored, $15.
Fornication and adultery: Lacy C. Frye and Rosa Lee Pugh, colored, Frye, $25, costs deducted, and Rosa Smith, $50 and costs.
Speeding: Charles Gorham, colored, $100 and costs; Leroy Hardee, 30 days or $15; Major Best, colored, 30 days or $15.
Carrying concealed weapon: Watt Smith, $50 and costs.
Gambling: Wrenn Locke and Haywood Wilson, each $10.
Driving drunk: John Harrington, $50 and costs and lose license a year.
Assault: George Gardner, six months in jail or $15.
Driving without driver's license: Bruce Smith, 30 days or costs.
Assault on female: William Ebron, colored, $20, costs deducted.

Radio production hit an all time high of $3,500,000,000 in 1944. The World Series was broadcast for the first time in 1926.

Pete Jr. Gets His Tenth Jap Plane!
Pete Swanson's son, Pete Jr., brought his tenth Jap plane down last week, and his dad couldn't help bragging.
But I got to thinking about Pete Senior: how he hadn't missed a day at the war plant since the war began; how he'd worked overtime and Saturdays and Sundays; how he'd kept himself in shape, been temperate and sensible, so that he'd be at work clear-headed, bright and early every morning.
So, when he invited us over after work to drink a toast to his son in a sparkling glass of beer—I couldn't help toasting Pete Senior, too.

From where I sit, there's more than one kind of "ace" that's helping win this war... men like Pete Senior, too. And when the war is over, and the monuments are erected to its heroes, I hope they don't forget the workman on the home front—the man who stuck to his job like a soldier to his guns, until the Victory.

HEROES ON THE ROAD TO VICTORY—
Two hours after wading ashore on the Normandy coast, Lieutenant FRANCES SLANGER and other army nurses were giving first aid to wounded men. They slept on the ground and in five weeks of rugged going helped care for 3,000 casualties.
Our home-front war job looks pretty safe compared with the job our Army Nurses are doing. Let's do ours as well as they are doing theirs!
Do the children "point with pride" to their home? . . . They will if you always keep it looking its best inside and out. If it needs repairs or improvements, have the work done now and pay for it with a Modernization Loan from us. The cost is low. Repayment is easy.
