Formal Capitulation

Moment Of High Drama

Expressionless Jap Officials Affix Signatures Followed By McArthur and Other Allied Representatives; Impressive Show Of Allied Might

By HAL BOYLE

USS Missouri, Tokyo Bay, Sept. 3.—(AP)—There were tingling moments of high drama in the 18-minute ceremony during which Japan bound herself to lay down her arms unconditionally and bow to the dictates of the Allies.

The setting was perfect—on the captain's promenade of this battleship, nicknamed "Mighty Mo." Allied ships ringed the Missouri in concentric circles of power. Outlined against the murky sky were dark green hills of the nation being occupied for the first time in its turbulent history.

The first moment of drama came when General MacArthur walked up the gangplank and moved across the deck with a stride like for a man of his years. You could feel the intensity of this man stimulate the crowd like a current of electricity. It was MacArthur's hour of a lifetime and he had prepared for it by almost half a century of military service.

The next moment of emotional impact was the arrival of the Japanese delegation—four in civilian attire, seven wearing navy or army uniforms. They stood waiting MacArthur's pleasure like adoring girls. The Japanese delegation, they looked like cartoon characters from Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Mikado."

Their stolid features showed neither guilt nor regret, pain nor sentiment—only an abiding, watchful animal-like patience. You felt that only time would reveal what that patience stood for.

"How did those little men ever think they could get away with it?" one white-uniformed sailor whispered.

Next highlight was when MacArthur began signing the surrender document. He turned to General Wainwright with a warm smile and handed him the first of the six pens he used. Then he looked deliberately, steadily and coldly at the Japanese before going on with the signing. That gesture was for Bataan, for Corregidor—and the Japanese caught its significance fully.

Byrnes To Present Plan
For European Waterways

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Secretary of State Byrnes leaves for London this week with detailed plans to give the United States and other great powers decisive control over the key inland waterways of Europe. He will lay the plans before a meeting of big five foreign ministers.

For the United States this is like picking up the hot potato instead of dropping it. But President Truman is convinced that only by guaranteeing free navigation of these critical water routes can one important cause of conflict on the continent be eliminated.

The rivers and waterways for many years have been a source of rivalry and fights over economic and political control.

Briefly the plan provides:

1. For international commissions to assure unrestricted navigation of the Danube and Rhine rivers, the Dardanelles and the Kiel canal, and any other waterways bordering on two or more states which the foreign ministers think should be so controlled.

2. To make the big four of Europe—the United States, Great Britain, Russia and France—members of the commissions which also would include representatives of the states bordering on the waterways to be controlled.

President Truman first put forth his proposal at the Potsdam conference.

Union Leaders Predict 15 Millions Unemployed

Washington, Sept. 3.—(AP)—An estimate that at least 10,000,000 persons will be out of work up to 15 months during the reconversion period was given the Senate Finance committee today by a union leader.

Harry W. Brown, president of the International Association of Mechanics, said he thought it was "safe to say" unemployment would reach the ten million figure, although some estimates, he said, range up to 15,000,000.

He and other labor leaders endorsed a bill before the committee for federal supplements to establish a nationwide maximum of at least $25 a week in unemployment compensation. Each state now has its own schedule of payments with top compensation varying from $15 to $25 a week.

"The International Association of Mechanics," Brown told the committee, "contends that a worker is entitled to the same benefits whether he resides in Arizona or New York, Washington State, or Florida."

Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.), with reference to Brown's estimate of prospective unemployment, remarked "I don't agree that it is going to be as bad as that."

Senate support grew today for a suggestion that federal aid to the jobless take the form of longer rather than higher state unemployment compensation payments.

This idea, advanced by Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) attracted attention of legislators who question the advisability of government funds to hike weekly payments to the unemployed.

Each state now has its own set of standards with minimum payments varying from $15 to $25 or more a week. President Truman has asked legislation and funds for a nationwide top of $25 for 26 weeks.

Australian Airman
Beheaded By Japs

Melbourne, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Lt. William Newton, winner of the Victoria Cross and one of Australia's outstanding war heroes, was beheaded by the Japanese on New Guinea in 1943, it was disclosed today.

Australian Air Force officers said they believed Newton was the kneeling, blindfolded officer shown about to be executed in a photograph widely published a few months ago. The picture, taken a few seconds before a Samurai sword fell, was described when published as the execution of an anonymous Allied airman.

Emperor Reports
To His Ancestors

San Francisco, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Emperor Hirohito today personally informed the imperial ancestors of Japan's defeat and then prepared to take part in the opening tomorrow of the 88th session of the Diet, the first to be held in Japan's newly reduced position.

The Domei agency, in an FCC-recorded dispatch, said the imperial ancestors were advised of the situation at "most solemn" ceremony Hirohito, clad in ceremonial robes, worshipped at three sanctuaries in the palace, trilled by the empress, a proxy of the Empress Dowager, Princess Mikasa and Takamatsu, Premier Prince Higashi-Kuni, Gen. Yoshijiro Umezu, chief of the army staff, and other high officials.

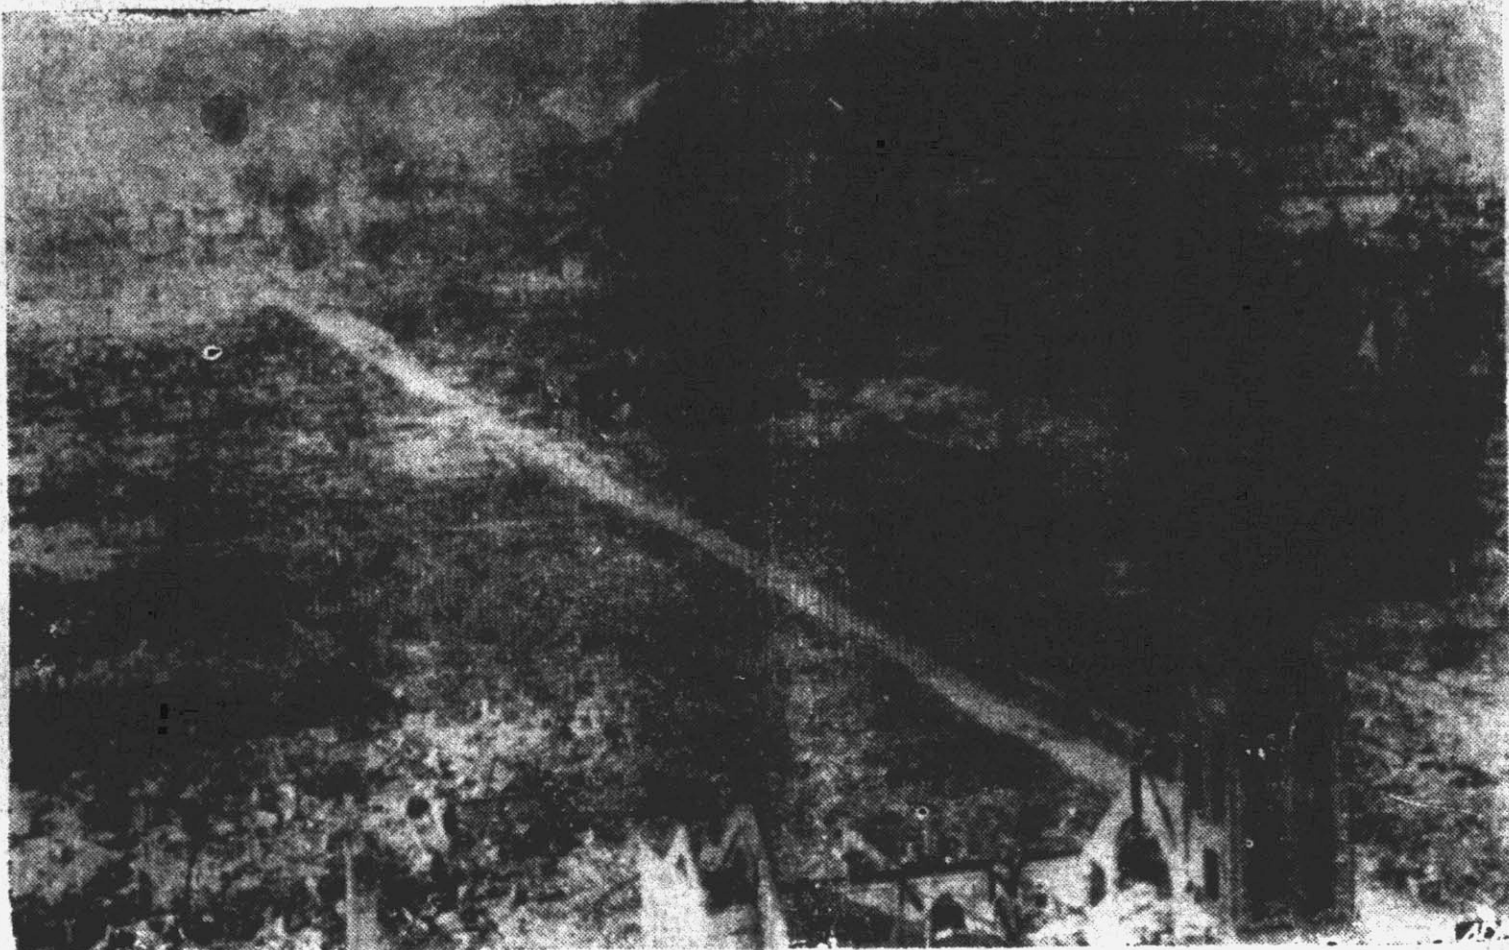

No details were included in the Diet opening tomorrow at 10:40 a. m. (Japanese Time).

The Japanese press, splashing the news and pictures of the surrender ceremony over the front pages, continued to worry editorially about the future of the country and the treatment to be meted out by the conquerors.

The Nippon Times expressed fears about China, saying, "there are not a few cases in history where principles of justice have been advocated in the treatment of the defeated," but "it has been the practice rather than the exception for the defeated to be dealt with in a feeling of vengeance."

LEAF HOLIDAY IS DECLARED

Markets Closed Tomorrow And Each Monday

Raleigh, Sept. 3.—(AP)—A marketing holiday will be observed tomorrow throughout the Eastern North Carolina flue-cured tobacco belt and each subsequent Monday until relief is brought to redrying and processing plants.

Today had already been proclaimed a holiday in both the eastern and border belt, in observance of Labor Day.

The marketing holiday was set Saturday by the Bright Leaf Tobacco Warehouse Association, buying companies, and farm groups.

Governors of the warehouse group were told that a decrease in prices was inevitable unless the holidays were declared. Enough unsold leaf is already on crowded warehouse floors to operate all markets this week.

President L. L. Gravelly of the Tobacco Association of the United States said that redrying and processing companies had been unable to obtain sufficient labor to operate at full capacity. At the same time, he added, growers were bringing their leaf to market in unprecedented volume.

In the belt's first eight days of sales, through last Thursday, 70,959,283 pounds of the leaf sold for an average price of $43.61.

In the border belt markets, a majority of grades last week were steady to a $1 lower with losses in the medium and lower qualities.

AFL Head Calls For 50 Per Cent Raise In Living Standards; Does Not Expect Depression

Camden, N. J., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Declaring the United States is on the threshold of "a new industrial revolution," William Green called today for a 50 per cent raise in the American standard of living.

The president of the American Federation of Labor said the revolution will be "perhaps more sweeping in its effects than the advent of the machine and electric power" and outlined a program which, he said, must be carried out to assure reaching a goal of greater prosperity.

These were the principal points of the program as outlined by Mr. Green in an address prepared for delivery at Memorial services for the founders of Labor Day and one of the founders of the AFL, Peter J. McGuire.

1. Private industry and government must speed reconversion to hold "transitional unemployment" to a minimum.
2. Immediate increase in wage rates. Green said that "to correct substandard conditions" the AFL was calling upon Congress to enact legislation which would lift minimum wage levels "immediately to a rock-bottom of 65 cents an hour and establish a 75-cent floor for hourly rates of pay in interstate industry at the end of three years."

3. National accord between labor and industry, a goal which the AFL will seek in the conference already called by President Truman.
4. A shorter work week.

5. Enactment of the Kilgore bill to increase unemployment benefits the so-called full employment bill, and the Wagner-Murray-Dingell bill to broaden coverage of old age and survivors insurance.

Green said that although there were important problems to be solved, he did not envisage a major postwar depression.

"I know there are prophets of gloom who see nothing but discouragement and failure ahead," he said. "They point to the undeniable fact that America was not prepared for peace, that reconversion is proceeding too slowly, that (Continued on page four)"

The WORLD TODAY
An Analysis Of The News

By DEWITT MAKENZIE

AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

With heavy heartburnings and some tears the Mikado's representatives have formalized Japan's capitulation only four months after her German partner in crime surrendered, and thus, as Marshal Stalin tells his people, "now we can say that conditions necessary for the peace of the world have already been won."

That is the Axis brigands are knocked out militarily and the next step in world reformation is possible. U. S. Secretary of State Byrnes sums up that step this way:

"So we come to the second phase of our war against Japan, what might be called the spiritual disarmament of the people of that nation—to make them want peace instead of war."

To bring about the spiritual disarmament of the Japanese we intend to remove all obstacles, such as oppressive laws and practices, which in the past have closed the door to truth and have stifled the free development of democracy in Japan. We shall have eliminated the ultra-nationalistic and totalitarian teachings, ritual and temporal—of their effand ultimatum.

In the schools and among the people, which in the past have made the people accept the militaristic philosophy of the war lords.

That's a tall order—and much the same thing holds true of course, regarding Germany. The reform of these aggressor nations means hard for great sacrifice on our part, and long toil for the Allies. It calls for us must continue military occupation of both countries during the transition period. The length of the occupation depends on our progress in changing the very nature of the some 80 million people in each of these once first-class powers—now reduced to the ranks.

How long the Allies will be engaged in this task is anybody's guess but the things we do know is that we must stick with it until the job is done if we are to get lasting peace. We shall invite disaster if we stop half way. Former Secretary of State Hull declares "we must continue surveillance over the two countries until their peoples demonstrate clearly their willingness and ability to live peacefully in a peaceful world."

As regards Japan it's becoming increasingly clear that we must take into account the universal devotion of the people to the rule—both spiritual and temporal—of their emperor. It is evident that the surrender has been effected so successfully thus far mainly because of the emperor's orders, based on the advice of wise counselors. Even the toughest of the militarists, who argued to the last to continue the war, finally bowed their heads to the imperial command. This is not because the Mikado has superior wisdom or even a strong personality, but because he represents to Japan the living God.

So it looks very much as though the free democracy we project for Japan will have to be built—at the outset, anyway—about the Mikado. However, that may not present any insuperable obstacle. The Mikado takes the "advice" of his government, and if that government is a (Continued on Page Four)

Propose To Offer Inducements To Volunteers

Washington, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Legislation aimed at cutting draft calls took shape rapidly in Congress today.

Leaders hope to have it ready for House consideration this week. This development followed closely the arrival from Japan of General Wainwright in order that he might personally accept the surrender.

Maj. Gen. Edmond H. Leavelle, chief of staff to Lt. Gen. W. D. Styer, commander of American forces in the Western Pacific, signed the document for the United States. Wainwright and Percival stood on (Continued on page four)

The new draft legislation would provide added inducements for service in the armed forces. Its objective is to increase the number of volunteers enough to permit Selective Service inductions to be trimmed.

Most congressmen agree, however, that the draft will have to be continued for several months to insure adequate military manpower.

The inducement program has been endorsed by the Army, Navy and a House military subcommittee. Legal experts are rushing work to get it in legislative language.

It includes such provisions as (1) continuation of the 20 per cent pay bonus for overseas duty; (2) extension of all GI Bill of Rights benefits to those residing; (3) transportation home and 90-day furlough (Continued on page three)

Holiday Death
Toll Mounting

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS

The death toll of America's first peacetime holiday since Pearl Harbor appeared to be headed for the highest total in the last three years as the Nation began the last of its three-day celebration of Labor Day.

Early today 242 accidental deaths from automobile mishaps, drownings and other causes had been reported across the country since the beginning of the Labor Day weekend. Of this total, 134 fatalities resulted from automobile accidents, 36 deaths by drowning and 72 from other causes.

Last year's death toll was 245, including 137 traffic fatalities.

In 1941, before wartime gasoline and the restrictions greatly reduced highway traffic and holiday excursions, the three-day Labor Day celebration costs 626 lives, of which 423 were lost in automobile accidents.

Illinois led today in death toll by state, with 29 fatalities, including 17 traffic deaths, four drownings and eight from miscellaneous causes. Ohio was next with 17 deaths, followed by New York with 16, Michigan with 14 and California with 10.

"We may expect a traffic death toll of 300 or more over the three-day holiday," the National Safety Council predicted on Saturday unless motorists drove carefully and used war-thinned tires with caution.

Wainwright Accepts Yamashita's Surrender

Baguio, Philippines, Sept. 3.—(AP)—The last 40,000 Japanese in the Philippines were surrendered in a five-minute ceremony today by the now docile "Tiger of Malaya," Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, to Lt. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright, the hero of Bataan and Corregidor.

Wainwright flew here from Japan where he witnessed the general surrender ceremony aboard the Missouri yesterday, and settled an old score with the one-time boastful Japanese conqueror.

Yamashita was no longer the arrogant, boastful general who accepted the surrender of Singapore in February, 1942, from Lt. Gen. Sir Arthur Percival, the British commander who also attended today's signing of terms similar to those agreed to earlier by high Japanese officials on Tokyo Bay.

The six-foot Japanese general, Nippon's No. 1 military hero after his capture of Malaya and Singapore and leader of the futile fight against General MacArthur's return to the Philippines, started to sit down as he entered the U. S. High Commissioner's residence at this summer capital, but was ordered to stand. "I am not allowed to sit down for the signing," he was told.

The document which gave up all Japanese land, sea and air forces in the Philippines was signed by Yamashita and Admiral Okochi, ranking Japanese naval officer, at 12:02 p. m. (11:05 p. m. Sunday, U. S. Eastern War Time).

The event had been delayed more than three hours while awaiting the arrival from Japan of General Wainwright in order that he might personally accept the surrender.

Expect Delay In
Nazi War Trials

Nuernberg, Sept. 3.—(AP)—A delay in the opening of the Nuernberg war crimes trials until late October or November was foreseen today if the defendants request German civilian counsel.

Justice Robert H. Jackson, head of the American staff to prosecute Nazi war criminals, said that the defendants would have the right to counsel if they requested it. Employment of counsel must await the filing of indictments in Berlin, and a minimum of 30 days will be required after that for the attorneys to prepare their cases.

Most congressmen agree, however, that the draft will have to be continued for several months to insure adequate military manpower.

The inducement program has been endorsed by the Army, Navy and a House military subcommittee. Legal experts are rushing work to get it in legislative language.

Bataan Survivors Tell
Of Nippon Horror-Ship

By RUSSELL BRINES

Tokyo, Sept. 3.—(AP)—A survivor of Bataan related today the agony of "Beecher's Boat," a Japanese horror ship on which many thirsty American prisoners killed their fellow captives or slashed their own veins and drank the blood.

Army Sgt. James F. Schiffer, of Albuquerque, N. M., one of nine survivors of Bataan and Corregidor, related this latest of Japanese atrocity stories following a impromptu meal of field rations in the lobby of the Imperial Hotel here.

500 of the 1,500 aboard survived the journey," Schiffer said, adding that the ship was named after a Colonel Beecher. He was not aboard "Beecher's Boat" but said the story was widely circulated among concentration camps for months.

"The men aboard the boat were limited to one canteen cup of water for three men every two days. They thirsted for the ship into an uproar. Some drank their own urine," he elaborated.

Schiffer mentioned "Beecher's Boat" during a narrative of the cruel treatment he and his companions had suffered in a series of brutal labor camps in the Philippines and a subsequent ship journey to Japan. They were among 1,200 prisoners crammed under hatches of another overloaded small vessel. Clad in ill-fitting uniforms,

Japan's Dream Of Empire Smashed As Allies Take Away Her Stolen Territories; MacArthur's Triumphant Entry Into Jap Capital Expected Early Next Week

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS

Yokohama, Sept. 3.—Allied occupation troops eagerly prepared to march into Tokyo today, weather and General MacArthur permitting, after formal surrender Sunday banged shut and barred the door on Japan's world empire dreams.

As the last of the historic array of pens inked in the world famous signatures that made Japan's capitulation official and final, her empire was slashed to:

The four home islands of Honshu, Hokkaido, Yuzushu and Shikoku, plus a few minor isles. Back to Russia went Southern Sakhalin and the Kuriles, stretching northward from Japan, which the Japanese had grabbed in 1904. Also removed from Japanese rule, but not yet disposed of, were the Ryukus, Bonins, Volcanoes and the mandates from World War I: The Palau, Marianas, Carolines and Marshalls.

Everywhere in the field, surrenders were proceeding.

Said Generalissimo Stalin: "Conditions necessary for the peace of the world have already been won."

Truman declared: "We can turn now to the grave task of preserving the peace."

Within 30 minutes of the surrender signing, a 42-ship convoy headed into Tokyo Bay, and by nightfall 13,000 Eighth Army troops had already splashed ashore, swelling Allied occupation forces to more than 35,000 men.

The momentarily expected permission of the supreme commander, and uncertainty of the weather, were all that delayed immediate occupation of Tokyo itself. Japanese reports said the most severe typhoon of the year might strike Honshu Tuesday. If it did, occupation schedules might be disrupted.

Japanese released the news of their country's first surrender with rigid calm, although the capitulation—completed aboard the battleship Missouri at 9:18 Sunday (8:18 p. m. Saturday, EWT)—slashed the empire to the size at which American Commodore Matthew C. Perry found it. He sailed into Tokyo Bay (Continued on Page Four)

Christian Science Service

"Christ Jesus" was the subject of the lesson-lesson in all Christian Science Churches and Societies on Sunday, September 2.

The Golden Text was from John 1:17. "The law was given by Moses, but grace and truth came by Jesus Christ."

Among the citations comprising the lesson-lesson were the following from the Bible: "Behold my servant, whom I uphold; mine elect, in whom my soul delighteth; I have put my spirit upon him; he shall bring forth judgment to the Gentiles: I the Lord have called thee in righteousness, and will hold thee in righteousness, and will keep thee, and give thee for a covenant of the people, for a light of the Gentiles; to open the blind eyes, to bring out the prisoners from the prison, and them that sit in darkness out of the prison house" (Isaiah 42:1,7,8).

The lesson-lesson also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Christ is the true idea voicing good, the divine message from God to man speaking to the human consciousness. The Christ is incorporeal, spiritual—yes, the divine image and likeness, dispelling the illusions of the senses, the way, the truth and the life, healing the sick and casting out evils, destroying sin, disease, and death. Throughout all generations both before and after the Christian era, the Christ, as the spiritual idea, the reflection of God, has come with some measure of power and grace to all prepared to receive Christ, truth." (Pages 332, 333).

It is desired, but not required, that patients take with them to the clinic letters from county welfare officers or private physicians. The county health offices are at Third and Greene streets.

Damage From B-29s More Than Expected

Yokohama, Sept. 2—(AP)—Three Strategic Air Forces generals flew over Southern Honshu Island today and reported Japan's damage from the Superfortress strikes far greater than they had expected.

General Spaatz, Strategic Air Forces chief, was called back to Guam after the signing of the surrender, but his chief of staff, Maj. Gen. Curtis E. Le May, and 11 Gen. Nathan F. Twining and James Doolittle of the 20th and 8th Air Forces made the aerial tour in a C-54 transport.

The generals flew over Tokyo, Yokohama, Shizuoka, Hamamatsu and Nagoya.

Women IN THE CHURCH by Mary Fowler

An old mission saying that "Priests make converts, but the Sisters called on the occasion of the 25th anniversary of the establishment of the Roman Catholic community in the Maryknoll Sisters, in Maryknoll, N. Y. Approved in 1920 by the Sacred Congregation of Religious, at Rome, the Order has sent Sisters into service in America, China, into service in America, China, Ippines, Hawaii, and several South and Central American countries. The Sisters, including novices, today number 687—one of the largest groups of women missionaries in America.

Mrs. Nora Hsuing Chu of Chungking, West China, is the mother of five children. But she finds time also to "mother" some 10,000 boys and girls in 28 orphanages throughout Free China. For Mrs. Chu is executive secretary of China's National Association for Refugee Children. Educated at Vassar, at Barnard and at the New York School for Social Work, Mrs. Chu prepared also for her present work by visiting and studying many homes and institutions for children in the United States, England, France, Germany, Italy, and Russia. When the present war came, and the need for caring for orphan children arose she was the one woman in all China best fitted for the task.

The following newly-composed "Prayer for Women" was recently used in Bulawayo and Umtali, Southern Rhodesia, union church services: "Our Heavenly Father, we pray for all women throughout the world in the many and varied activities in which they are called upon to take part; whether in the services, schools, factories or places of business, or in their own homes. Today we ask Thy help more especially for those who are and soon will be receiving their loved ones home after long absence. Give to them imagination, and understanding and patience, that they may be helpful in the way most needed, and make them ready to appreciate those inevitable changes and developments that separation and experience may have brought. Give them wisdom in planning for the well being and happiness of their own families, and vision to regard their homes as part of the larger community which will be facing the problems of the future. Help all those women returning to civilian life to devote the courage and faithfulness that have brought them through the long strain of war to the tasks of peace."

Chapter 6

"I think," said Evelyn, "they'd like to flood the market with inferior pumps, make all they could from the war boom, and then, if necessary, close down."

"Where does Carla fit into this?"

"In the first place she's crazy about Mark Sheridan, almost as crazy about him as she is about Carla. I believe the people who are trying to bust Mr. Sheridan have offered her some kind of a bonus if she will influence him their way. I know she's offered Mr. Sheridan a handsome salary if he'll act as sales manager and let production alone, allow them to reorganize and handle things their way."

"Carla would like that salary, as Mrs. Sheridan."

"Jane, lighted their cigarettes and sat down. 'Still doesn't explain why he'd be afraid of me, afraid I'd—'

"But don't you see?" Evelyn was exasperated. "He's no fool. He knows they'll try to trap him some way, and he doesn't know who'll be used for bait or what kind of a trap they'll spring, and being such a nit-wit about women he naturally—"

The telephone bell shrilled, and Jane arose. "That," she remarked, "is utterly foolish. Business men don't stoop—just a minute."

It was several minutes before she returned from the hallway, and when she did her long eyes had rounded.

"Evelyn," she said soberly, "I apologize. You are right in one thing at least."

"Carla?"

"Yes. A friend of mine just overheard Carla and Mr. Haskins planning a neat little drama guaranteed to deliver Carla into Sheridan's arms and Sheridan into the temporary power of certain board members."

"Evelyn, I'm going to have to trust you, because I need help. I do trust you, naturally, but this trust will mean you must not reveal by even a facial expression that you identify me."

The slim girl stood up and thrust out her hand. "I trust you, instinctively," she said.

"I'm going to have to leave town right away," want you to remain here, answer all telephone calls and take all messages, and also, when Mr. Sheridan returns the papers in the morning, revise them and send them back. Will you do that?"

"Of course."

"Then get the airport and see if I can have a single to Sacramento on the next east-bound; call a cab and have it ready to take me to the port; then put in a long distance call for Mrs. Champ Stanton at Yellow Valley and ask her to have a car waiting for me at the Sacramento air terminal. You see, I have to be back in time to report for work as usual. I'll change while you do that."

"Yes," stammered Evelyn.

"Mr. Champ Stanton at Yellow Valley."

The old grandfather clock chimed 2 p. m. when Mrs. Champ Stanton propelled Jane into the house.

"No preliminaries," she warned; "no leading up to what you have to tell me. My heart won't stand it. No, let's go in here to my room."

She gave Jane barely time to remove her topcoat, then asked irritably, "Well, what is it?"

"Your nice Mr. Lisle Carter has been double-crossing you. He owns nearly as much stock in the Sheridan Manufacturing Company as you do."

"He—what? Why, that—"

"Go, acting as your proxy and controlling the votes of the men who represent him on the board, he and not Mark Sheridan has been responsible for—"

"Why? I'll bring his neck with my bare hands. How did you find out? How does he manage to hide his ownership? Now begin at the beginning and tell me everything. I thought you didn't like Mark Sheridan. I thought you said he wasn't capable."

Just shrugged out of her suit coat, threw a log on the hearth fire, flung the bereft to a handy table and settled down. "How can I begin at the beginning with you firing questions at me?"

Dawn was coming in over the mountains when Mrs. Champ Stanton stood at the head of the outer stairway again, watching her granddaughter go down to the car waiting below.

"Proudly she beamed on her. She needn't worry about investments or anything else. This Jane, this amazing child, would handle everything, she went into the breakfast room where the ancient maid was waiting. "Now you go to bed right after you've had your hot milk," the woman scolded. "Not sleep," snapped Mrs. Stanton. "My, that girl. There I was all ready to let my resentment tip over the apple cart. She's smart. Move slowly, surely, she advised. Put a splash of brandy in that hot milk and then get Judge Morgan on the telephone."

omCmaHo-Jehrdlueatoin

"Mrs. Stanton, it's only six o'clock and a Sunday morning. The Judge'll be asleep."

"Do him good to stir his old bones. Bring me the telephone, if you won't."

Chapter 7

Jane slept on the stage, a neck-bobbing sleep, and arrived in Oakland, refreshed, to find Evelyn seated at the kitchen table, chin in her hand, looking out over the lake.

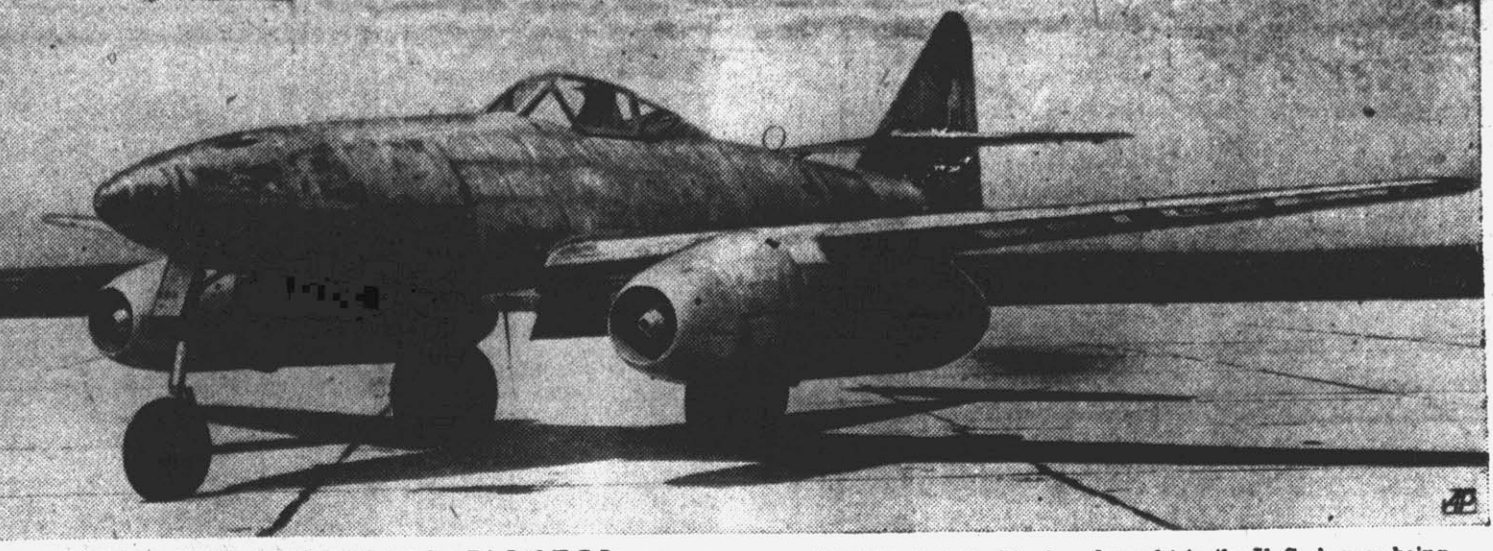

"Evelyn, you dear martyr."

"I'm not," declared Evelyn stoutly. "I've been too busy to be a martyr."

"Reports come in from Mr. Sheridan?"

"They did, and I copied them and sent them back. And there's a note there for you. I read it because—well, I guess he forgot your name again anyway, it wasn't addressed."

Jane's spirit was infectious, and both girls laughed. "It's a deeply rooted inhibition," she declared owlishly. "He fears women's influence so much. . . . Poor lamb, what a life his mother and aunts must have led him. . . . Oh, my," she

be honest—tell me."

Because the answer came honestly, here was a business made to order, one in which she could take an executive hand. She would prove to Mark Sheridan that she could handle the administrative end and leave him free for his beloved pumps and sales management.

She was still gay when she left the next morning, striding through a light drizzle to the streetcar which would carry her near the Sheridan works.

Her cheeks were flaming scarlet under her green rain hat when she walked in, hands in the pockets of her green raincoat, and there she was stopped abruptly.

Carla Hansen was not only on time this Monday morning; she was early.

"You needn't bother removing your wraps, Miss Grey," she announced. "You'll be leaving right away. Here is the usual two weeks' advance. I find your work completely unsatisfactory. The mistakes you made in the work I left you Saturday were astonishing for one who claims to have some knowledge of typing. Good-bye."

"I'm sorry, Miss Hansen," Jane attempted to pass her, "but I've no intention of being discharged without a hearing."

"Mr. Haskins—oh, Mr. Haskins," Carla had thrust her curls into the nearest door to call.

"Yes, yes," Haskins stood there, rubbing the palms of his hands together. "I'm sorry, Miss Hansen."

"This—this typist refuses to accept a discharge, though I've given her two weeks' advance. She says she must have a hearing. As you are a member of the board of directors, perhaps she will condescend to place her case before you."

Jane looked steadily at Mr. Haskins. "I'm sorry, but I have no means of knowing this gentleman is a member of the board."

"A vice-president and the holder of a substantial block of Sheridan stock, young lady."

"A holder? And who is the owner, Mr. Haskins?"

Mr. Haskins stepped back, and every girl in the corridor stepped back with him. It was as though the floor were being cleared for battle.

Thousands Homeless

Chungking, Sept. 3—(AP)—Approximately 100,000 Chinese were left homeless today by floods caused by the overflow of the Yangtze and Chialing Rivers, which meet at Chungking.

The floods washed out sections of highways leading to Chongqing and Kweichow, making any form of road traffic in or out of the capital impossible.

The floods were regarded as the worst in the Chungking area in 61 years.

Before the war the United States imported each year about four million Persian lambskins from abroad, mostly Asia.

NEW ERA FOR JAPAN BEGINS

Nation Turning Attention To Political Changes

By RUSSELL BRINES

Yokohama, Sept. 3—(AP)—Japan began a new political epoch today with all evidence indicating that the emperor was more firmly than ever entrenched in the people's minds as a result of the past three momentous weeks of surrender.

General MacArthur, first foreigner ever to rule this country, evidently will utilize both the throne and the existing governmental machinery for promulgation of decrees determining the course of future events.

Within that framework, the Japanese possibly will have a certain amount of leeway in determining their own future political organization, in accordance with the Potsdam ultimatum.

With the militarists eliminated as a political force, the remain two oligarchic groups—the industrialists and the politicians. These are expected to return to the influence they shared with the militarists throughout the modern era until the early 1930s when their power withered progressively.

Some Japanese newspapermen have predicted new stirrings of communism, which spread rapidly throughout some circles, especially among young students, early in the 1920s. The military and patriotic groups ruthlessly stamped out that trend at the time, imprisoning hundreds and terrorizing thousands. Numerous Japanese intellectuals now express a hope that the American influence on the scene will give impetus to democratic tendencies which always have been present in periods when the fanatics lacked sufficient power to subvert.

All these divergent views, however, appear to be predicated on continuance of the throne.

Even so-called democratic Japanese say that they have in mind a sort of monarchial system paralling that of Britain and have no idea of trying to eliminate the emperor as the nation's spiritual head.

Most Japanese say that Americans have met at the outset of the occupation have made a particular point of expressing thanks that the throne was permitted to remain.

Tokyo Bureau Of AP Reopened

By Russell Brines

Tokyo, Sept. 3—(AP)—The Tokyo Bureau of the Associated Press was reopened today in an office in the Domei news agency building.

But full utilization of the office may be delayed because of an out-of-bounds order issued by Allied military authorities.

When taking over the office I was told I would be surprised. I was. The desk at which I sat down was the same I had used four years ago—part of the Associated Press office furniture which had somehow survived the war.

Many members of the Allied press corps have visited Tokyo, often riding in public conveyances and all without incident.

But public relations officers posted a notice at Allied headquarters in Yokohama that such trips hereafter would bring disciplinary action.

Gunman Murders Two Detectives

Chicago, Sept. 3—(AP)—A "dirty-faced" gunman whipped out a pistol and fatally wounded two detectives shortly before last midnight when they sought to learn why he was loitering near a North Side currency exchange.

Several hours afterward, Police Lt. Philip Bheitze, head of the homicide detail, said a suspect had been seized. The suspect had a straggly beard and wore a rubber glove on his left hand—a leadins clue in the search for the gunman.

The detectives, George Helstrom, 52, and Charles Brady, 36, father of nine children, were walking across a business corner intersection in a quiet North Side residential section when they observed a man of "dark mottled complexion" standing in the shadows across the street.

Approaching him, they said: "We want to see you."

are police officers. Who are you?"

The man pulled a gun and began to fire. Helstrom fell, dying almost immediately. Brady, seriously wounded, tossed his gun to a bystander, Paul J. McMahon, saying, "Take this gun and keep firing."

The man fled into an alley before McMahon could fire more than one shot, and Capt. Ahearn could not say whether the fugitive was hurt. Brady died before he could make a statement.

Negro Farmer Ends Life With Shotgun

George Smith, 46, Negro laborer on Mayhew Godley's farm below Grimesland, brooding over family troubles for some time, shot himself with a shotgun Friday morning.

Coroner Griffin L. Rouse said the charge went through his heart, causing instant death. Smith's eight-year-old son, Ellen Earl Smith, found him Saturday afternoon.

Half Million Japs Surrender To Reds

London, Sept. 3—(AP)—The number of Japanese troops who have surrendered to Russian forces to date was estimated today on the basis of Moscow advices to total approximately 586,000 men—including 111 generals.

A brief Soviet communique last night announced that 8,000 Japanese—among them three generals—had surrendered during mopping up operations over the weekend.

Collision Kills One, Hurts Seven

Raleigh, Sept. 3—(AP)—Thea Ray, 57, who lived near the scene, was killed, and seven other persons injured last night when two automobiles collided on the Durham highway eight miles from Wake Forest.

The injured were Euphene Harrison, 18, of Wake Forest, Route 1, and Mesby Ray, six, of Durham, hurt seriously; and Eulee Harrison and Gladys Mae Bailey of Wake Forest, Route one; Doris Harrison of Raleigh, Route one; Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Bailey and their two-year-old son, Verna Lee, of Durham. All the injured were brought to a hospital here.

Dies In Crossing Crash

Brooksville, O., Sept. 3—(AP)—A woman was killed and at least 10 persons were injured today when the west bound Spirit of St. Louis of the Pennsylvania Railroad struck an automobile and was derailed.

The woman, Mrs. Hazel Cain, 36, a local resident, was an occupant of the auto.

The United States devoted almost one-fourth of its national product to the manufacture of combat armaments in 1944.

Kai-Shek Calls For Democracy

Chungking, Sept. 3—(AP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek in a V-J message to the nation today said "Now that the war is over we shall permit no further delay in the inauguration of constitutional democracy" in China.

"To make past sacrifices truly meaningful we should at this time introduce democracy and constitutionalism and consolidate national unity," said Chiang, China's leader through more than eight years of war.

Strength FOR THE DAY
By EARL L. DOUGLAS

LABOR AND CAPITAL
One of the great unsettled problems of the world is that having to do with the relationships existing between labor and capital. For generations the laboring man had a hard time at the hands of the employer. He was little better than a chattel, and meager indeed was the sympathy he got in times of unemployment and trouble. Now the laboring man throughout the world is fired with a new spirit and is moving along under new leadership. He is now bringing to bear upon the employer many of the hardships which the employer for a long time brought to bear upon him.

He cannot go on with this seesawing between factions. The life of the nation is being disturbed by it. Lives are frequently lost, hardships created, and the peace of communities disturbed. Certainly with all our great achievements we can solve this problem. Amicable relations can be worked out between owner and worker, and unless we are willing to confront great national suffering, this problem must be solved. The Labor Day season is a time when we recall the right of the laboring man to live a free and dignified life. It should also be a time when we ask ourselves what steps can be taken to bring permanent harmony and well-established justice between groups whose interests loom so large in our national life.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK
By JACK STINNETT

(First of Four Articles)
Washington, Sept. 3.—Headline readers may have the idea that the proposed Full Employment Act is a panacea for any and all immediate postwar economic ailments—a guarantee of 60,000,000 jobs at a living or better wage—and that Congress is going to make work all over the place. They had better read a little deeper.

The same is good advice for the calamity howlers who think the Full Employment Bill would give the government the right to stick its nose into everybody's business, continue controls over industry, establish boondoggling for the shiftless, or embark on "more deficit spending."

The Full Employment Bill in its present state, is a simple measure with terrific implications. Both its simplicity and its implications lie in the fact that should it pass, as written, Congress would thereby declare:

1. "It is the policy of the United States to foster free competitive enterprise and the investment of private capital in trade and commerce, and in development of the natural resources of the United States."

2. "All Americans able to work and seeking work have the right to useful, remunerative, regular, full-time employment and the policy of the United States to assure the existence at all times of sufficient employment opportunities to enable all American citizens to finish their schooling and who do not have full-time housekeeping responsibilities freely to exercise this right."

Those are the exact words of the bill, the rest of which merely operates the machinery by which Congress and the President can be guided in fulfilling this promise to the people.

Other than that, it does nothing. Should it pass without a single dissenting vote, it still would do nothing to give returning war veterans or discharged war workers jobs immediately, or even this winter. It would take that long to set up the full employment machinery and throw the switches.

Henry Morgenthau, former secretary of the Treasury, enthusiastically approved the bill as "an appropriate basis from which to begin an analysis of the problems of the war." That's what it is—a foundation. In spite of that it's something of a mystery why the administration and congressional leaders made it benevolent democracy he will be well advised. Perhaps in days to come the Japanese will see fit to separate religion and temporal rule.

While we are on this question of democracy it's well to note that Japan and Germany aren't by any means the only countries in which the "man in the street" has no voice in government. If you want an interesting and illuminating half hour, just take your world map and check off the countries which are dictatorships, or close to it. You will find that a very considerable part of the world's population is without voice in government.

unemployment may reach the alarming total of seven or eight million by next spring and that Congress has not taken any steps to provide for human needs during the transition period from war to peace. On the basis of these adverse conditions they foresee a major postwar depression.

The American Federation of Labor does not share these pessimistic views. We do not believe in crying "Fire" in a crowded theater. We do not intend to stampede the Nation into panic.

Green said he looked for "a new dawn among workers and veterans, adding: "Anyone who tries to divide labor and the veterans and set them against each other is an enemy of American democracy. For it is just as essential for labor and the veterans to stand together and work together to win the peace as it was to win the war."

At a camp at Hailo, beatings were numerous and food was cut to one handful of rice and two cups of watery soup daily. Food was served cold and soggy at times after the Japanese had driven cooks from the kitchens during American air raids.

Gruelling 15 hours a day work at a nearby sugar plant was another punishment. "We kept alive through what we could steal," Schiffner said. After boarding the ship for Japan they crawled into the hold and stole sugar and canned tomatoes.

As Umezo, his face grey yellow but still unexpressed, left the ceremonial table, another bystander predicted: "He will probably kill himself within 24 hours."

The Allied signatories signed very quickly, one after the other. "Let us pray," said MacArthur, "that the peace be now restored to the world and that God will preserve it always. These proceedings are closed."

The worldwide blood bath at last was at an end. Next came the spine-tingling climax. Forty-six great-winged Superfortresses swept over the fleet like high, graceful birds. And behind them roared the Third Fleet's fighters, dive bomber and torpedo planes. They flew over the massed decks of the Missouri in wave after wave, until the whole bay throbbed. The battleship almost seemed to rock with the sound of their passing. There never was a more stirring sight and it shook the hearts of the sailors and soldiers. It choked them with the pride of kinship in victory and made them feel as if they were swallowing their stomachs.

There is no way to describe that mystic exultation. It gripped everybody. You felt suddenly that the ink on the documents, lying momentarily forgotten on the table, meant nothing. And that the men who had signed were no more than symbols.

You felt, in your whole being suddenly, how peace had grandly won—by the toil and blood of those airmen in the sky and their anonymous battle brothers of the earth and the waters, lying in land and sea graves around the world.

The planes came on and on resistlessly. You felt that the Nation that produced them could send them on and on forever, until it achieved any noble purpose, any peace, however difficult.

They dropped across the mainland of Japan. The Navy band struck up "California, Here I Come," and the ceremony was over.

It later was established that there were 1,700 prisoners there, among them "17 SOS cases."

The Truk and Palau groups in the Carolines, and Pagan and Rota in the Marianas, capitulated yesterday to U. S. Navy officers.

The surrender involved more than 100,000 Japanese.

By-passed enemy forces in the Marshalls had surrendered even before the final ceremony at Tokyo.

each side of him.

Yamashita and his party, which included four generals and two admirals, were later taken in charge as prisoners of war for delivery to the New Bilibid Prison south of Manila.

They entered American 32nd division lines on northern Luzon yesterday after a two-day journey from their mountain hideout, and were brought here by plane.

After the ceremony, Wainwright said: "I am without words to tell the thrill of seeing the surrender on board the Missouri and I have had an equal thrill just now seeing the imperial command bow and bend to the United States. During the first five months of this war, we were handled rather severely and lacked the force to combat these people."

The shoe is on the other foot today. Yesterday and today were the greatest days of my life."

Perceval observed with quiet emotion: "Today retribution has at last come—a great gratification to me and all those officers and men who served under my command. Filipinos are demanding Yamashita's trial and execution as a war criminal. The Manila Post said he was directly responsible for the slaughtering of thousands of civilians here last February and the Daily News suggested he get 'the same treatment' that his military police gave Filipinos held in New Bilibid a few months ago."

consideration after congress returns Wednesday from its victory-shortened summer recess. Also on the legislative slate are proposals to:

1. Commit the government to a policy of providing job opportunities through the so-called "full employment bill."
2. Increase enlistment inducements and thereby permit the armed forces to lower their calls on draft boards to provide replacements.
3. Give Mr. Truman authority to reorganize the executive branch of the government, and—
4. Place surplus war property disposal under a single administrator in place of the present three-man board.

In most states, the duration of unemployment compensation is based on the length of time an applicant has held a job. A man who has worked for five years, for instance, and then loses his job is entitled to payments for a longer period than one who has worked for only a year.

Much of the opposition to a national standard of $25 a week has come from states where the general pay scale long has been below the national average.

New Hope For Stricken Boy

Miami Beach, Fla., Sept. 3.—(AP)—A long distance telephone call gave hope today to Mrs. Frank Wrinn that her eight-year-old son may yet be saved from an illness army physicians have pronounced incurable.

The boy, Jerome (Jerry) is suffering from a rare disease known as muscular dystrophy—similar to the affliction that struck down the late Lou Gehrig of the New York Yankees.

Mrs. Wrinn said today she had received a telephone call from a man in New York City, telling her the name of a Chicago physician, Dr. Irving Pollock, who had cured his daughter of the same ailment.

Mrs. Wrinn said the New York caller preferred to remain anonymous, but had told her that "a check is on the way"—presumably to defray expenses.

The wife of a twice-wounded U. S. army sergeant, Mrs. Wrinn lacked sufficient funds even to buy her crippled son a "stroller" for his daily trip to the beach. She said she understood her husband, who has been with the U. S. army of occupation in Czechoslovakia, had landed in New York and would be returning to Miami Beach in a few days.

Young Jerry, a freckle-faced, smiling lad, already so wasted by the disease that he can no longer raise himself erect from a lying position, was "king for a day" on Saturday as citizens of Miami Beach fettered him at an exclusive beach hotel—the Roney Plaza.

Baseball

By JOE REICHLER
AP Sports Writer
Charlie (Red) Barrett, the guy the Boston Braves threw in as excess baggage in their deal with the St. Louis Cardinals for Mort Cooper three months ago, stands supreme today as the National League's only 20-game winner.

Not only did the 30-year-old righthander reach that figure yesterday with a 4-0 triumph to give the Redbirds an even split with the first place Chicago Cubs, who won the opener 4-1, but he came within one looping single of becoming the first National League pitcher in modern history to hurl a perfect game.

Len Merullo, with a chop single behind second base in the third inning, was the only Bruin to reach base against Barrett, who walked none, as he faced but 27 men. Merullo was caught stealing.

Only six perfect games have ever been twirled, with the four achieved since 1900 all belonging to the American League. The last one was pitched by Charlie Robertson of the Chicago White Sox against Detroit in 1922.

Since joining the Cards last May 23, Barrett has won 18 while losing seven. He dropped three out of five with the Braves. Hank Borowy accounted for the Cubs' first game win, Chicago's initial triumph in its last eight meetings with the Cards. A double by Pinch Hitter Frank Secory with the bases loaded in the 10th off relief pitcher George Dockins scored three runs. A crowd of 34,399 (paid), largest for the Cards at home since Aug. 13, 1939, watched the split, which left the Cubs still two games ahead of St. Louis.

The American League leading Detroit Tigers were not so fortunate. They dropped their fifth game in the last six starts with Cleveland, bowing 3-2, to enable the second place Washington Senators to edge within one game of the top.

Jim Bagby, who hadn't beaten the Bengals in two years, scattered 10 Tiger hits and paved the way for the winning run by singling in the seventh. He eventually scored on Felix Mackiewicz' single.

The Tigers received additional bad news when they learned that Hal Newhouser, their ace lefthander with 21 victories, planned to enter Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit today for examination of a back injury and may not leave with the Tigers tonight for their last eastern trip.

Washington gained by dividing a twin bill with the New York Yankees. After Joe Page outpitched Dutch Leonard 4-2 in the opener, for the Yankees, Roger Wolff came on to whitewash the McCarthy men 3-0, although he needed help from Mickey Haeffner in the ninth. Nick Etten drove in three runs with a base-clearing triple to win the opener. The Yanks, in fourth place, are four and a half games away from the top.

St. Louis' Browns retained their third place hold by halving a pair with the White Sox. Eddie Lopat stopped them with a 6-0 five-hit performance in the opener, but the Browns bounced back to win the second, 3-2 when Myron (Red) Hayworth singled in Mark Christman in the ninth with the payoff tally.

Philadelphia's Athletics swept a pair from Boston's Red Sox, 1-0 and 7-2, with Bobo Newsom applying the whitewash brush to Pinky Woods in the opener. A single by George Kell brought in Dick Siebert with the only marker in the curtain raiser.

DON'T FENCE ME IN—Topzida, brown filly, stood on her hind legs, tossing her rider, I. Graza, when an effort was made to get her into the starting gate at Del Mar, Calif. Topzida later entered the gate and finished third.

Pittsburgh won both contests from Cincinnati 4-2 and 7-3 as Walter Beck and Nick Strincevich handcuffed the Reds. Beck gained his fifth in a row since purchased from the Reds, while Strincevich won his 13th. The Phillies and Braves split, Philadelphia winning the second 5-4, after Jimmy Fox was beaten in the opener 6-3 as Tommy Holmes of Boston hit his 27th homer.

Yesterday's results:
American League
Philadelphia 2-7, Boston 0-1.
New York 4-0, Washington 2-3.
Cleveland 3, Detroit 2.
Chicago 6-2, St. Louis 0-3.

National League
Brooklyn 7-2, New York 4-6 (2nd game called 7th darkness).
Philadelphia 3-5, Boston 6-4.
Pittsburgh 4-7, Cincinnati 2-6.
Chicago 4-0, St. Louis 1-4.

International League
Syracuse 8-5, Jersey City 7-9.
Newark 9-4, Baltimore 6-3.
