RUSSIA SEEKS EXTENSION OF HER INFLUENCE

New Territorial Demands Indicate Soviet Determination To Become Mediterranean Power; Big Five Ministers To Meet Again Today And Tomorrow

By FLORA LEWIS London, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Reliable report that the Soviet Union has made territorial demands in the Mediterranean area considerably beyond anything the United States and Britain had anticipated was interpreted in diplomatic quarters here today as an indication of Russia's determination to become a Mediterranean power.

The report of the surprising Russian move came shortly before the council issued a communique announcing that all nations which warred against Italy would be asked to submit in writing their peace treaty proposals.

The establishment of Russian influence in the Mediterranean would reshuffle power positions in that area, already a source of Anglo-French maneuvering.

The big five foreign ministers were scheduled to meet again this afternoon and may hold another session Sunday.

British and American plans focus mainly on returning control of most Italian colonies to Italy with international supervision.

Since the vast majority of the Dodecanese population is Greek, it had been expected that these islands would be turned over to Greece.

Egypt wants at least a part of adjoining Cyrenaica and the Ethiopian Empire has claimed Eritrea and Italian Somaliland on the Red Sea.

Locate Two More Prisoner Camps

Tokyo, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Two more prisoner of war camps in Japan were added to the U. S. Navy list here today. Carrier pilots located one, with 400 internees, in the Kobe-Osaka area.

The other camp, Camp Kamikita in Aomori prefecture of northern Honshu, was reported by the Japanese.

Army and navy rescue teams sent word that 864 Allied prisoners were removed from the Sendai-Kamishiro area of northern Honshu Thursday. They included 586 Americans.

PRESIDENT IS ON VACATION

Enjoying Brief Holiday Among Home-folks

By ERNEST B. VACCARO Independence, Mo., Sept. 15.—(AP)—President Truman was having the time of his life today, mingling again with the folks who know him best.

The former Jackson county judge, casting aside for the week-end, cares of the nation's highest office, relaxed and enjoyed himself amid scenes of earlier struggles as an up-and-coming politician.

As Mayor Roger T. Sermon, proud as a peacock over having the President back home, put it, "I think he wanted to get back and put his feet on this Jackson county soil."

Folks who talked things over with Mr. Truman figured that he had no thought of doing anything more startling while here than visiting his "Mama," 92-year-old Mrs. Martha Truman, at Grand View, some time tomorrow, and calling by his offices in the Federal Building at Kansas City to look over his mail and shake hands with old friends.

They figured he would wait until after his return to Washington to announce his choice of a successor to retired Justice Owen J. Roberts as a member of the U. S. Supreme Court.

There are some grounds for belief the President may hold another (Continued on page two)

HURRICANE TO HIT FLORIDA LATE TODAY

Winds Of 125 Miles Per Hour Expected As Storm Sweeps Across State Between Miami And Key West; Miami May Miss Full Force Of Blow

Miami, Fla., Sept. 15.—(AP)—Grady Norton, chief forecaster of the U. S. Weather Bureau here, said at 9:30 a. m. (EWT) today that "Miami is definitely going to miss the worst of it" as a great hurricane, spawned by winds estimated at 125 miles per hour, sweeps toward the south Florida coast.

"I believe we (Miami) are going to get out of it with slightly less than hurricane velocity, but we'll get a hard blow," he said.

"According to latest aerial reconnaissance reports, it looks like our forecasts hit it right on the nose—and that the core of the storm will swirl over the keys somewhere between Key Largo and Key West."

Key Largo is about 50 miles south west of Miami; Key West about 165 miles.

"It should strike the keys between 2 and 3 p. m. with winds well over 100 m. p. h."

Morton said the storm was approximately 150 miles southeast of Miami at 9:30 a. m., driving on the same relentless course north northwestward with no sign of a turn to the north. When it strikes, he said, the hurricane will be traveling almost parallel with the necklace of "keys" which stretch out into the Gulf of Mexico.

Hurricane warnings—ominous black and red flags—were hoisted along the Florida west coast from the Bahamas to Naples as the great winds whirled on after battering the Bahamas.

Hurricane-wise residents in most outlying exposed areas had already moved to havens of safety.

Palm Beach reported winds of 25 m. p. h. at 10 a. m., whipped by blustering rain. Both Miami and Palm Beach had brief power failures as the storm slowly drew closer.

Over 100 patients at the Morris-on Field Hospital were moved to the Biltmore Hotel in Palm Beach. Forty per cent of them were bed patients.

Passenger Train Hits Tank Truck

Joliet, Ill., Sept. 15.—(AP)—A Wash. railroad train carrying the Brooklyn Dodgers from St. Louis to Chicago, crashed into a gasoline laden truck and trailer at nearby Manhattan today killing the engineer and injuring the fireman and truck driver. None of the ball players or other passengers was injured and the train was able to proceed to Chicago after a two hour delay. The Dodgers were riding in the rear car.

Witnesses said the trailer exploded following the crash and flaming gasoline set fire to the railroad depot and several buildings of a lumber company.

The Ford Company's layoff came as the CIO-United Automobile Workers' Union disclosed a postwar union program seeking 30 per cent wage increases throughout the industry with strikes as the weapon to get them.

The second ranking labor dispute was at the Westinghouse Electric Corporation plants in six eastern states, with 47,000 employees idle as a result of a strike of 10,000 salaried employees over a wage dispute. (Continued on page two)

Workers To Ask 36-Hour Week

Chicago, Sept. 15.—(AP)—A 36-hour work week in place of the present 48-hour week, with no reduction in weekly pay, will be asked of railroad workers employing 400,000 AFL shop workers, a union official disclosed yesterday.

Bert M. Jewell, president of the AFL railway employees department embracing seven unions of craftsmen employed by the roads, said the request would be served on September 25 on all the lines which the department has contracts. The union has contracts with all the nation's lines except the Pennsylvania and Western Maryland roads.

Jewell, who said a meeting of general chairmen of the seven unions in Chicago this week decided to ask for a 36-hour, six-day week, declared he believed this would be the first time such a demand has been made on the railroad industry. All other interstate commerce industries, he explained, have been on a 40-hour week since 1938.

Unions involved are machinists, boilermakers and iron shipbuilders, blacksmiths and dropforgers, sheet metal, electrical, car men, and firemen, others, helpers, roundhouse and shop laborers.

Crash Of Burning Plane Kills 14 At Miami

This is the smoking wreckage of a four-engine Navy Privateer plane which crashed near the Naval Air Station in Miami, Fla., Sept. 12 and killed 14 navy men. Its No. 2 engine on fire, the plane was being guided to cleared runways by radio when the crash came. One crewman, W. J. De Roche of Somerville, Mass., parachuted to safety and tried to rescue his comrades from the wreckage, but was driven back by flames and exploding ammunition. (AP Wirephoto).

Battle Lines In Congress Being More Tightly Drawn

WORKERS TO BE JOBLESS

Employees Of War Plants Must Look New Jobs

Washington, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Laid-off workers in the three biggest munitions industries—planes, ships and guns—may just as well start looking for peacetime jobs in other fields, War Manpower Commission studies indicated today.

Only one in 30 discharged aircraft workers can expect a new job in the slowly expanding civilian aviation industry by next February, by WMC's estimate.

Laid-off shipyard employees and ordnance plant workers face almost as bleak a prospect of being rehired at their wartime trades.

This left only the fourth-ranking of the "big four" armament industries—radio and communications equipment—as a field in which most workers can expect to stay on the job or be re-employed reasonably soon in the kind of work they learned during the war.

The radio and radar plants have few reconversion problems and a "bright future," the manpower experts concluded. Even so, the 400,000 workers they had when Japan quit will have dropped 25 per cent by mid-October, and it is doubtful whether all those released will be back at work within six months.

Full-Scale Fights Over Peacetime Legislation To Begin Next Week

By MA XHALL Washington, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Battle lines tightened today in this history-making postwar Congress.

Senate Republicans met to discuss what they are against and what they are for.

Supporters of President Truman defended two main points of his peacetime policy—more help for the jobless of today and national planning for the jobs of tomorrow.

Many of the committee room preliminaries on those two issues are out of the way. Full scale battles will start next week.

The Truman administration kept its thumb firmly on the Pearl Harbor investigation which is about to start. Six Democrats and four Republicans have been appointed to the investigating committee.

Allen Barkley, the administration spokesman in the Senate, is expected to head the group. He will be in a position to steer the course of the inquiry.

From an important member of Mr. Truman's own party, Senator Walter George of Georgia, came a declaration today that too much emphasis is being put on the possibility of mass unemployment.

He said not enough emphasis is put on management-labor teamwork to swing the country fast into full peacetime production.

From another Democrat, Rep. Lyle Boren of Oklahoma, came the first determined effort to have Congress declare the war legally at an end. The President has appealed to Congress not to do that. It would end presidential war powers and controls which he says are still needed.

Congress was not in session today—but the Senate Republicans were. They expected to talk about unemployment pay, full employment and other aspects of Mr. Truman's program.

They also planned to debate this question: Whether or not they should propose names to the President whenever he fills governmental positions that must—under the law—be occupied by minority party men.

On the big questions of the President's postwar program, some of the Democrats were making it very plain that they will fight any compromises.

Senator James Mead of New York said yesterday he will support Senator Harley Kilgore of West Virginia in his coming fight on the Senate floor to increase weekly payments to jobless people—in some cases up to $25.

Rep. George Outland of California told the House that 106 representatives sponsoring the so-called "full employment" bill will make no compromise.

CRASH KILLS TWENTY-TWO

Nineteen Overseas Veterans Among Victims

Kansas City, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Twenty-two persons, including 19 veterans of European battlefronts, were killed early today as a C-47 army transport plane crashed in flames 14 seconds after clearing Fairfax Airport.

Only three of the 24 military personnel aboard the plane were removed alive from the flaming wreckage and one of those, Sgt. Bernard C. Tucker, Etna, Calif., a European overseas veteran, he was being flown to Camp Beale, Calif., for discharge.

A survivor said all three members of the crew perished.

Others brought to the hospital were Sgt. Ora D. De Long, Barstow, Calif., and Cpl. Fred Ebert, Pasadena, Calif.

The plane was bound from Newark, N. J., to the West Coast, and had stopped to refuel.

Army officials at Fairfax Airport withheld names of the passengers and immediately placed the wreckage under a military police guard.

The plane had just crossed the Missouri River when it exploded and crashed, one witness said.

"It looked like the entire sky lit up," said William F. Maxwell, a tourist hotel operator, nearby. "But I only heard a small explosion."

Wreckage of the huge transport was scattered over a wide area but most of the fuselage fell on tracks of the Burlington Railroad about five miles north of Kansas City's business section.

MacArthur Bluntly Tells Japan She Is Not An Equal Of Allies And Must Stop Acting Like One; Press And Radio To Be Permitted On Limited Basis

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Tokyo, Sept. 15.—Lt. Gen. Masaharu Homma, conqueror of the Philippines, and the Filipino puppet president, Jose P. Laurel, were among seven wanted men taken into custody today as General MacArthur's headquarters bluntly informed Japan that she was not an equal of the Allies in any way and would have to quit acting like one.

Besides Homma and Laurel, those who surrendered or were seized today included Lt. Gen. Shigenori Kuroda, Homma's successor in the Philippines command; Col. Kingoro Hashimoto, the man blamed for the sinking of the U. S. gunboat Panay in China in 1937; Yoshitaka Ueda, Japanese geopolitical expert; Laurel's son and Benigno S. Aquino, president of the former puppet assembly of the Philippines.

Homma and Kuroda surrendered together to Japanese police; the other Japanese surrendered at Eighth Army headquarters; and the Philippines were arrested near Osaka and flown to Eighth Army headquarters.

Meanwhile Col. Donald Hoover, head of censorship in MacArthur's counter-intelligence office, called in the heads of Japan's press and radio, told them that their distorted stories of the occupation must cease forthwith and that Japan was "a defeated enemy which has not yet demonstrated the right to a place among civilized nations."

Hoover announced that the Domei agency, suspended yesterday because of distortions and bad faith would be permitted to resume operations only on a limited domestic scale and under 100 per cent U. S. censorship, but that Domei and any others who transgressed again would be closed.

Homma glibly asserted that he had not ordered the Bataan death march and that it wasn't so bad, anyhow, brushing off the proven horrors of that cruel herding of captured Americans on Luzon. He acknowledged, however, that as the commander he was responsible for acts of his subordinates.

Kuroda, evidently not trying to be humorous, remarked, "We lost the war—there must have been some mistake"

"Looking over the Tokyo and Yokohama industrial bomb damage, he exclaimed, "Terrible!"

Both generals were high on MacArthur's list of men wanted for questioning and possible trial as war criminals.

At the same time Yoshitaka Ueda offered himself at Eighth Army headquarters. He was number 24 on MacArthur's list although his activities were unknown even to many of the Japanese, he is credited with being the master mind of the Imperialistic Japanese Geo-Political Bureau.

On the MacArthur list, he had been called Ueda Yoshitaka, but his name transposed, spelled differently and listed only as a government official.

The WORLD TODAY

An Analysis Of The News

By DEWITT MACKENZIE AP Foreign Affairs Analyst Lt. Gen. Robert Eichelberger, commander of the U. S. Eighth Army occupation forces in Japan, says "If the Japanese continued to act as they are acting, within a year this thing (the occupation) should be washed up"—explaining that "when an insular country loses its land, sea and air power, and is without raw materials and has big countries sitting on its flanks, it can't be much of a threat."

That's an encouraging statement, but probably the general would advise us to bide a wee before accepting such an early termination as a certainty. We have a titanic job to do there if the edict of Potsdam is carried out. This decreed that Allied forces should occupy Nippon until certain objectives had been achieved, and among them were these:

Destruction of Japan's war-making power. Complete disarmament. "Stern justice" for all war criminals. "Freedom of speech and religion and of thought, as well as respect for the fundamental human rights, shall be established." There's a lot more of it, but that's plenty to get on with.

General Wainwright, hero of Corregidor, speaking in New York yesterday demanded that there be neither "a soft occupation nor a soft peace." He declared "the Japanese are not sorry for what they have done to countless thousands in the populations of countries they have overrun" and "they are not sorry for the torture they have inflicted on American soldiers." He added: "I am a soldier and so do not pretend to know how long will be required or by what steps the bestial elements in their nature can be eradicated. But until we are assured that these qualities have been extinguished—not simply submerged—then the Japanese nation, powerless as it is today to make war, will remain a menace to the world."

With striking coincidence, General MacArthur stated in Tokyo that the surrender terms "aren't soft and they won't be applied in kid glove fashion." He didn't venture to estimate how long it would take to enforce the surrender terms—but, one finds it difficult to escape the stern logic of the warning by Wainwright, who has suffered so much from Japanese barbarism.

Changing the nature of the Japs is an educational job. Can it be done in as short a time as twelve months? If we do it we shall be magicians.

Japan's premier, Prince Higashikuni, in a statement to Russell Brines, Associated Press correspondent, calls upon the people of America to forget Pearl Harbor as his country builds "a completely new, peaceful nation."

"It is my belief," he said, "that the new Japan which will emerge will be shorn of militarism and will (Continued on page Two)

The NATION TODAY

By JAMES MARLOW Washington, Sept. 15.—(AP)—You need tubes for your radio? Can you get them for your old set? or will they be held up for the new models being made?

Here's the score. It's all given by the War Production Board. The government has dropped all controls over tubes, no longer has any say-so over who gets them, where they go. It had say-so in wartime.

2. The tubes are being made now—millions of them—for civilian use, either in old or new sets.

3. But it's up to the manufacturers to decide whether you can get them for your old set or whether they should be held back for the new sets.

The pressure of war so expanded the ability of the industry to make tubes that by V-J Day it was turning out 14 million a month.

In a few months just before V-J Day the industry was making ten million tubes a month for the armed services, four million for civilians.

Now the military needs have been cut to a dribble, perhaps two million tubes a month. The industry therefore is now able to make about 12 million tubes a month for civilians.

This doesn't necessarily mean that that many will be made monthly. But that many could be made.

There are about 32 million radio sets in homes and eight million in automobiles. Many have been without tubes a long time because in wartime there was such a scarcity.

GREATER THAN THE STARS

One of the most mystifying experiences of life comes when we look up at the stars on a clear night. They are without numbers. Our amazement increases as we hear the astronomers tell that such and such a star is thousands of light miles away. A visitor to the great observatory at Mt. Wilson, California, once asked the astronomer who was showing him about whether there was not danger of collisions because of the crowded sections of some parts of the universe. The scientist's reply was, "If you were to take five shrimps and plant them in the Atlantic ocean, putting one at Greenland, one at Newfoundland, one at Bermuda, one at the equator, and one in the south Atlantic, there would be just as much danger of their colliding as there is of a collision of the heavenly bodies."

"The heavens declare the glory of God and the firmament showeth his handiwork." "What is man that thou art mindful of him and the Son of man that thou visitest him?" Our first thought is we look at the heavens is that we are so insignificant that surely the God who manages the planets can have no interest in the affairs of insignificant creatures like ourselves. Yet what are the planets but dead lumps of matter? We are living beings. The stars should make us feel not insignificant but confident and content. The most humble among us are greater than they. God is more interested in the last-born baby than He is in that million-year-old planet which goes plunging through stellar space.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By JACK STENNETT

Washington—The end of the war caught the United States Navy in a medal muddle that may take years to straighten out.

While many of their brothers in the Army Air Forces can sport banks of ribbons, a lot of cork Navy and Marine pilots will see their uniforms go into mothballs before they get even a look at the Air Medal. Some may never receive it at all if present orders stand.

Back in 1942, President Roosevelt issued an executive order authorizing the Air Medal as an award to any person who, while serving in any capacity with the armed forces subsequent to Sept. 8, 1939, distinguishes himself by meritorious achievement while participating in aerial flight.

As soon as possible the Army got out a policy ruling on this to guide commanding officers in making award recommendations.

The ruling is a little complicated but what it amounted to was that pilots and crew members (or even observers) were to be eligible for the Air Medal after five flights, with Oak Leaf Clusters for each additional five flights until they reached 20, when they were to be eligible for the Distinguished Flying Cross.

The Navy failed to follow suit immediately. Its Air Medal started out as an award for "extraordinary achievement" considerably different from the well merited but more or less routine award of the Army medal.

By the time the policy difference in the award was discovered, the Navy was too busy sinking the Japanese navy to stoop for the paper work involved in shaking down the record of every pilot, crewman or observer.

Apparently in an effort to right the wrong, and order finally was issued adopting the Army award order and making the effective date of that policy Dec. 18, 1944. So the Army and Marine pilots received their air medals and their missions between Pearl Harbor and that date (three full and 11 days) were to get medals.

Included even such heroes as Marine Maj. Gregory (Poppy) Poston, who did get a "posthumous Congressional Medal of Honor" when he was discovered alive after 20 brutal months in a Japan-use prison camp, but no bank of Air Medals for the 26 planes he shot down.

But more importantly, it included hundreds of Navy and Marine flyers who battled the Japanese in the early days and thousands of crack pilots who since have taken off and landed on bucking baby flat-tops in all kinds of weather—and at night—for "routine patrols." Come glassy calms or 52-knot winds, when a few inches miscalculation means a duck in the icy drink and almost certain death, the patrols are always "routine."

Maybe this inequity has had something to do with the snail's pace at which awards under the new order have been made in the Pacific. It does hardly seem right for youngsters flying missions over an enemy-less ocean to get the medal while the aces and the ghosts of aces who flew in darker days stand by with blank tunics.

The medal muddle will be straightened out some day, no doubt, but don't wait until then to express your personal gratitude to the Navy and Marine boys who flew the oceans when...

Well, this column doesn't challenge the prince's sincerity. His declaration is welcome, and we hope he's right. However, he will forgive us if we accept it now at face value, and ask him to repeat it a year or so from now.

Twenty-five squadrons of Royal Air Force fighters today circled over London to mark the fifth anniversary of the climax of the battle of Britain. That historic day a handful of British planes—virtually all that had survived the protracted German onslaught—shot down 185 attacking enemy machines and thus broke the determination of the Hitlerites to continue the campaign. It was the RAF's defense of England—then the focal point of the Allied cause—which called out Winston's historic tribute: "Never in the field of human conflict was so much owed by so many to so few."

And so here's a salute to a gallant airforce!

But there is one more feature which should be noted. It usually costs more to sell goods than to make them; but not so at Polly Cove. The overhead advertising and sales expenses of these women amount to only 1 1/2 per cent. Hence, each woman gets 98 1/2 cents of every dollar which the retail stores pay for the goods. These women carefully are teaching manufacturers something in connection with distribution. This lesson alone entitles this story to be in this weekly financial column. But most important of all, this is proof that nothing succeeds like true cooperation. Here all have the same powers, vote opportunities and yet the income of each is based upon her own individual efforts. Questions: Why cannot this cooperative principle be applied to many other products? May there not be a suggestion here for returning veterans who want to be both independent and useful?

However, WMC thinks the 200,000 or more workers in airplane automobile companies—in Detroit, and engine plants operated by the Flint and Buffalo—have a good opportunity of getting into automobile production by February.

Unemployment impacts will be most severe in the predominantly aircraft areas.

The makers of light civilian airplanes will convert almost at once, WMC said, but will offer "insignificant" job opportunities.

As for ordinance plants, only one worker in 20 will be on the job by next February. This represents a drop from 1,000,000 workers in August down to 50,000 within six months after the end of the fighting.

Some of the ordinance plants—those which made artillery, tanks, fire control equipment and heavy ammunition, for instance—will be reconverted to the manufacture of farm machinery, railway equipment and steel products. These, it is judged, will use about 175,000 peace time workers.

Shipbuilding and ship repair work will employ about 344,000 by next February, compared with 1,092,000 in July.

In Pittsburgh, Marshall Daugherty, president of Local 601, CIO-United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, said his union planned an immediate drive to enroll the striking "white collar" workers as members. The strikers, members of the Federation of Westinghouse Independent Salaried Unions, had walked out last Monday, demanding a 10 per cent incentive wage system.

Union leaders and War Labor Board officials failed to effect a settlement.

The biggest continuing work stoppages included the strike of 15,780 employees of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company at Akron, O., and 10,000 painters in New York City. A dozen additional strikes were in progress in scattered sections of the east and south.

conference on the matter at Washington before acting definitely on the Supreme Court vacancy.

After he and Mrs. Truman flew in from Washington on the big C-54, the "Sacred Cow," they had supper in their old white frame home at 219 Delaware street.

The President then went over to Mayor Sermon's house for a little stag reception where he renewed friendships which have been a source of pleasure to him since his days as an artillery officer in the First World War.

The Trumans arrived at the Kansas City airport at 7:03 p. m. (CWT) yesterday. They climbed into a waiting automobile for the 10-mile drive to Independence along streets where occasional clusters of Missourians applauded or waved handkerchiefs.

As they reached their old home, locally described as "the Little White House," 200 neighbors, drawn up on the other side of the street, clapped their hands in applause.

The East Pittsburgh mill employing 22,000 has closed and production was curtailed at other plants in eight cities.

In Pittsburgh, Marshall Daugherty, president of Local 601, CIO-United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, said his union planned an immediate drive to enroll the striking "white collar" workers as members. The strikers, members of the Federation of Westinghouse Independent Salaried Unions, had walked out last Monday, demanding a 10 per cent incentive wage system.

Union leaders and War Labor Board officials failed to effect a settlement.

The biggest continuing work stoppages included the strike of 15,780 employees of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company at Akron, O., and 10,000 painters in New York City. A dozen additional strikes were in progress in scattered sections of the east and south.

"The center of the hurricane may pass over the keys by mid-afternoon," the advisory said.

Gale force winds clocked at 58 miles an hour and of gradually increasing velocity whipped across the Miami area just before 11 a. m., sending palm fronds and tree limbs flying and churning Biscayne Bay into racing whitecaps.

THE DAILY REFLECTOR September 15, 1905 Wonder if the automatic girl telephone exchange they are going to install up in Pennsylvania will have a contrivance that can say "busy now" when you ask for a number. From the way local tax districts are being established in the interest of longer and better schools, people are ascending readily to increased taxes to educate their children. When the same interest is aroused in public roads they will also see the wisdom of levying a tax to improve the thoroughfares. We take it that better education will soon be followed by better roads.

SOIL MAKING MAGIC WORK

Takes 600 To 1,000 Years For Inch Topsoil To Form

By CHESTER WALSH Twenty-five per cent of the top soil of this country has eroded or washed away to such an extent that it will never be suitable for agriculture, Stanley M. Daughtridge, district government soil conservationist, told the members of the Greenville Kiwanis Club at its weekly supper meeting last night. The soil specialist shocked his hearers when he said it is estimated by scientists to take from 600 to 1,000 years for a single inch of topsoil to form naturally. Mr. Daughtridge made a fine impression on the Kiwanians—businessmen, bankers, farmers and professional men. He was given much praise at the conclusion of his talk on "Soil Conservation for Agricultural Purposes." Many of the Kiwanians asked him questions. The soil specialist, after explaining how soil erosion destroys tillable land, gave a brief outline of the Soil Conservation Department's work. He told of surveys and borings made some years ago to map the various types of soil in the State—county by county—and that the department had issued booklets with colored maps showing the types of soil and contour of terrain.

He explained how a soil conservation district can be incorporated, and said the government, without cost, provides a soil specialist as to direct the drainage and reclamation projects. He said that's what he's doing in these four counties of Pitt, Greene, Edgecombe and Martin.

This project was incorporated as the Coastal Plain Soil Conservation District. He exhibited maps of land in this area that is being scientifically improved. There is no cost for the landowner. This district was organized in July, 1942, under Daughtridge's direction, and is doing effective reclamation work. He said that all agricultural agencies—national or state—are supposed to cooperate in this work.

Dr. Robert S. Boyd, program chairman, introduced the speaker. Ed Eyal reported that a score of local Kiwanians attended the charters presentation at the Stantonsburg Kiwanis Club's meeting last Tuesday night. N. C. Brooks will entertain the Kiwanis directors at their next meeting at his home on Greene street Tuesday night, Sept. 24. Charley Blair won the attendance prize, given by President J. M. Barrett.

R. S. Atkinson, vice-president and a director of the Kenly Kiwanis Club and a tobacco buyer for the E. B. Fickler Tobacco Company here, was a guest last night.

Instead of Him

by PEGGY O'MORE

Chapter 19 As they drove toward the plant Jane asked, "Has Judge Morgan checked on the stockholders?" "Yes, of course. Aside from Laird and Haskins, the holders are so represented on the board. There is only one exception; one employee still retains two shares. Carter—dryly—votes his shares for him, through Laird."

"Then we'll have to reach him. Who is he?" "Johnson," groaned Mrs. Stanton. "L. Johnson. And I defy you to find him. He left the company soon after he bought the stock, and only Lyle Carter could tell us where he is. You can imagine him doing that."

"Well, but L. Johnson—" "Dear child, there are sixty-seven L. Johnsons around the Bay area. The Judge never had more telephone records slammed in his ear."

"I'll put my detectives on it," decided Jane. Judge Morgan had had no difficulty. "And you had no—" "Well, now, there was a minor disturbance. Mr. Haskins came in about one o'clock. He seemed quite disturbed to find me sitting in the chair of the general manager."

"And what did he do then?" "He didn't do! he said. He said he'd left some important papers in the middle drawer of the desk, and if I didn't mind he'd pick them up. So I arose, and allowed him to sit down."

"Yes?" "Well, then he asked me for the keys. I told him you had them, but I knew you'd be glad to come back and open the drawer for him and that he could find you in conference with Mark Sheridan at the hospital. He didn't quite die of apoplexy," he concluded with relish.

"I'm beginning to wonder what's in that top drawer," said Jane thoughtfully. "Let's look." They opened the drawer. It was empty. Jane turned to her Gram to find her looking serene.

"Half of the danger of Bluebeard's chamber was the fear of it," Gram remarked sententiously. "I think our Mark is quite a lad. Maybe you'd better lose that key, Jane. I wouldn't care to contemplate you being tapped on the brow some dark evening."

"They wouldn't know I'd lost it," Jane objected. "I'll see they do." Mrs. Stanton insisted. "Or hadn't I told you? We are having another board meeting tonight. The subject—'The dismissal of Miss Jane Grey.'"

"Why didn't you tell me before?" "Operator, please get Mr. Sheridan's attorney on the telephone. And when I've finished, call the hospital and see if Mr. Sheridan can talk over the telephone."

"Now what?" demanded Mrs. Stanton. "Carter has discovered that my vote could have been thrown out at the last meeting. I must go in there assured I am representing Mr. Sheridan and carrying visual proof in the form of papers drawn up by a shrewd attorney."

"You do think of everything," commented her great-grandmother admiringly. "That evening, as they drove into the city for dinner at the club, Evelyn talked and Jane listened, feeling as if her ears were equipped with amplifiers.

"Of course I'd met her before," Evelyn said, "but I'd never really thought of her as Mrs. Sheridan, a mother. She's such a frail, dainty little woman, if you know what I mean."

Jane sighed. "I know. My mother is one of those slim willows." "Then you understand why I couldn't be rude when she asked such personal questions about you. 'About me?'"

"Please, what else did she ask—anything really important?" "About your background and age and whether or not you lived with your parents and if you'd been married. And really, if Doctor Hamlin hadn't come up then and given me a chance—Drive in here."

The club was just around the corner. And at the top of the wide stairway they saw Carla Hansen, a vision in dusky blue, a small flowered hat pressed low over her curls, a fur jacket tossed carelessly over the arm of the chair she occupied.

Jane asked, "Evelyn, do you see any indication of a malignant disease breaking out on me? Carla took one look and flew down the stairway as though the furies were riding her cape tails. . . . Where are you going?" "To see why she's in such a hurry," Evelyn called back. "Jane waited in the chair Carla had occupied. She watched Evelyn return after a few moments, and was puzzled by the girl's sober expression.

Phantoms Romp Over LaGrange

Locals Win Easy 27 To 0 Victory At Guy Smith Stadium Here Last Night

By DAVE CLARK

A goodly number of fans watched Coach Snag Clark's Greenville High griders coast to an easy 27-0 victory over the LaGrange High School squad last night under the familiar lights of Guy Smith Stadium.

It was Greenville all the way from the opening to the closing whistle as the LaGrange's game of it, never seriously threatened pay dirt. Nor were they ever able to successfully stymie the Greenville combination of power, deception and speed.

A good deal of heft was missing from the Phantoms forward wall as Coach Clark's proteges were forced to do without big guards, Kenneth Dail and Bobby Clark, Jack Whichard, another guard, who is light, but plenty good, was out, along with Kenophon Sideris, power driving full back.

Greenville received the opening kickoff and marched from about its thirty to a touchdown with Harrington and Futrell doing most of the ball carrying. The touchdown play came when Harrington sliced off right tackle, cut back to his left, and raked 25 yards for a score. Futrell plunged over for the conversion.

The Phantoms kicked off and a LaGrange back ran the ball back to the forty five yard line. After gaining one third down, they were forced to kick to Harrington down on his own ten yard line who got back to the fifteen before being nailed. The Greenvilles began to march once again, with Quarterback Batchelor calling mostly straight power plays. After about six minutes of the second quarter, Futrell plunged over from the five for another Greenville score. The try for the extra point failed.

The half ended without further scoring.

Greenville kicked off to open the second half and a hard running LaGrange tailback then began to cause right much trouble for Greenville. However, LaGrange never got past the Greenville thirty five.

The third Greenville touchdown came when Harrington, standing on his own forty tossed a long pass to wing back "Spooky" Morgan on the visitors' twenty who raced over for a touchdown. A pass for the extra point was good.

No more scoring occurred in the third period, but the final frame, Greenville turned on the power once again and marched to the ten where Mac Batchelor, running from full back after Jimmy Futrell had been slightly injured, scored through the line. Another pass for the extra point was good.

This ended the night's scoring at 27-0.

Credit must be given the LaGrange eleven who made a good game of it against a bigger and more experienced Phantom squad. Substitutes played a large part of the game for Greenville and made an excellent showing for themselves. Subs seeing action were: Henry Turner, Billy White, John Tatt, L. L. Kitzler, Jimmie Sutton, Rodney Roberts, Junius Rose, Early "Spooky" Morgan, and Mahlon Tucker.

The starting 11 was: Ward and White at ends, Lawrence and Whitehurst at tackles, Flye and Garrett at guards, Williams at center, Futrell at full back, Harrington in the tail back, Batchelor at blocking back, and Lee on the wing.

Then Reliever Pete Center walked George Case with the bases loaded to see the game.

St. Louis swept a three-game set from Boston, 4-1, tightening their grip on third place via Jack Miller's five-hit chugging. A New York-Chicago series finale was washed off the books.

The two losses suffered by the St. Louis Cardinals at the hands of Leo Durocher's Brooklyn Dodgers, 7-3 and 6-1, can doom the Red Birds' hopes for the National flag. Vic Lombardi and Hal Gregg did the chugging, dropping St. Louis 3 1-2 games back of Chicago.

The Cubs had given the Birds an opening by splitting two with the Phillies, bowing to Hugh Mulcahy, 4-3, but evening matters, 6-0, on Claude Passeau's 17th victory.

Faced with the prospect of losing a seventh straight contest by one run, the New York Giants rallied for three in the seventh inning to trim Cincinnati, 7-5.

Boston and Pittsburgh had played their game at a previous date.

Yesterday's results:

Baseball

By JACK HAND (AP Sports Writer)

Baseball's big series of 1945 is at hand as Detroit invades Washington for a vital five-game set that should determine the American League winner.

If either the Tigers or the Senators, who trail the leaders by only a half game, can sweep the series or take four of the contests, the race will be over for all practical purposes.

After the Bengals leave town Monday night, the Nats will have only five games to play and Steve O'Neill's gang, which has been on top since June 12, will have but eight more to go, four each with Cleveland St. Louis.

In 17 previous meetings, the knuckleball pitching staff of the amazing Senators has been able to throttle the Tigers' power 10 times while losing seven. Mickey Haefner and Dutch Leonard are slated to take dead aim at first place today against such defenders as Hal Newhouser and Stubby Overmire.

Both gontenders had tight squeaks yesterday, the Tigers downing Philadelphia, 1-0, in a game cut to five inning by rain, and decided by one lucky run. Washington had to come up with three in the last of the ninth to trim Cleveland, 6-5.

Bob Maier scored the lone tally of the Tiger-A's tilt, twisting past Buddy Rosar to score just when it appeared an attempted squeeze play had been foiled by Dick Fowler's pitch out. Rosar insisted Maier ran out of the baseline but Umpire Art Passarella stuck to his decision.

Just when the Senators' fans had given up on their club, trailing Cleveland, 5-3, with one out and nobody on in the ninth, the challengers started to rally. Joe Kuhel's triple, two singles, a walk, and Al Chock's error tied the score.
