General Marshall Says Point System May Be Abandoned By Winter

Tells Congress Army Discharges Will Reach 800,000 A Month By November; Tax Reduction And Unemployment Pay Among Important Pending Legislation

Washington, Sept. 20.—(AP)—General George C. Marshall told Congress today that the point system for demobilization of soldiers can be abandoned by winter.

The Army Chief of Staff advised a joint Senate-House meeting that the present discharge of 80 points could be lowered to 70 points by Oct. 1 and to 60 points by Nov. 1.

"We may reach a point in late winter when the point system will cease and all men with two years service will be released," Marshall said.

Speaking quietly and informally in a dark basement room in the old Library of Congress across the street from the Capitol, Gen. Marshall carefully reviewed the military manpower program since the start of the war.

He asserted that the sudden Japanese surrender had nullified extensive plans for a huge invasion of Japan on Nov. 1.

That surrender, he explained, had reversed numerous personnel plans for the Army.

Marshall assured Congress that demobilization was going forward as rapidly as possible. He said there was no relationship between the rate of discharge of men from the Army and War Department plans for a postwar army.

Any such postwar plan, he told Congress, can wait until the middle of next year.

Marshall predicted that 450,000 soldiers would be released during September and 550,000 during October.

Thereafter the release will be at a rate of 700,000 to 800,000 a month, he said.

Marshall reported that both General Dwight Eisenhower, commander in the European theater, and General Douglas MacArthur, Army head in the Pacific, had vigorously protested when the initial 85 point discharge score was reduced to 80 points. The theater commanders contended that key leadership personnel, such as master sergeants, technical sergeants, and cooks, were among the long service veterans who would be entitled to release first, Marshall said.

"If the 85 point score) took away the first team, and a point reduction took away the second team," the general said.

"Further reduction would take everyone away."

The general's appearance before the group was only one of several developments on the demobilization front—presently the main topic of discussion on Capitol Hill.

Others include:

1. Disclosure that the War Department has set up a special correspondence section to handle all letters to congressmen on the subject of getting men out of the army. (Continued on Page Two)

RIVER STILL RISING HERE

May Reach 18 Foot Stage Saturday Or Sunday

By CHESTER WALSH
The flood in Tar River here today was approaching the 15-foot stage and the stream will reach the 18-foot level by Saturday night or Sunday morning, the U. S. Weather Bureau at Raleigh warned, through Mrs. B. T. Clark, official river observer here.

Farmers who have corn or other crops and livestock in lowlands are warned to protect their interests.

The river will flood the Bethel Highway on the north side when the water reaches the 16-12 foot level. If the flood continues and the water rises to the 18-foot level, as predicted, traffic on that highway will be blocked. The river at Tarboro is expected to reach the 26-foot stage by Saturday.

Cpl. John Laws of the State Highway Patrol today said none of the roads in this county had been blocked so far by high water.

Four turbulent North Carolina rivers fed by overflowing tributaries continued on the rampage today making many highways in the eastern part of the state impassable and destroying thousands of dollars worth of property.

Latest reports to the Highway Patrol were that 15-A was open now from Raleigh to Creedmoor; 87 and 15-1 were open from Manchester to Fayetteville and Raeford to Fayetteville, respectively; 1 was open all the way, waters having subsided at Monrovia; 64 was open from Apex to Biltmore; No. 258 over the Roanoke River near Scotland Neck was expected to be closed this afternoon.

The situation throughout the east was serious, more so than yesterday, said Capt. Charles Farmer of the patrol. He said that the Neuse might rise higher at Smithfield and the Cape Fear likewise at Fayetteville.

The Cape Fear and the Neuse continued to rise. At Fayetteville, where the Cape Fear was slowly rising, the Weather Bureau observer was not allowed on the bridge. Last night's reading reported the river had reached a stage of 65.7. (Continued on page Two)

'Ghost Fleet' Of The Air On A Carolina Field

Here are some of the 400 Martin Mariner patrol bombers, some of them scarred by battle, which are being assembled at the abandoned Naval Air Station at Harvey's Point, N. C., to await sale by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation—if buyers can be found. Each bomber, with full equipment, cost $300,000. Thus far, no bids have been received by Judge Richard B. Dixon, R-P.C., representative. The abandoned naval air station occupies the 1,200-acre plantation in Perquimans county which belonged to Governor James Harvey 268 years ago. (AP Photo.)

STRIKES HALT RECONVERSION

Number Of Idle Grows As More Work Stoppages Begin

By The Associated Press
Disputes along the nation's labor front, which for more than a week have kept the strike idle around the 200,000 mark, spread today, taking new groups of workers away from their jobs.

New work stoppages during the last 24 hours hiked the army of idle to about 210,000 and threats of additional strikes in the oil industry indicated a new high for the summer would be on the national total before the end of the week.

There was comparative calm in the labor-troubled Detroit area where some 80,000 workers are idle by strikes and shutdowns but there apparently was no letup in the CIO oil workers' movement to strike in efforts to attain their demands for a 30 per cent wage increase.

Oil workers already have quit their jobs in refineries and plants in Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, West Virginia and in Texas where the strike threatened to sear over the entire oil-rich Gulf coastal region.

More than 10,000 oil workers were off their jobs in the Texas plants while in the Chicago area four plants, employing 3,000, were closed.

Other oil workers had joined the strike movement in plants in the Detroit area, and in Ohio, Michigan and West Virginia. Strike votes were scheduled in several Texas plants, as the idle in the Port Arthur area jumped to more than 13,000 as three refineries, three rubber plants and two affiliated industries closed or were closing because of labor disputes.

War Economic Controls Are Now Being Reviewed

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Washington, Sept. 20.—(AP)—Wartime economic controls that were applied against Spain and Argentina are up for review by the United States and Britain.

There is a possibility that they may be sharply modified or abandoned.

Any such steps probably would be interpreted in Buenos Aires and Madrid as a softening of Allied disfavor despite the many harsh words recently aimed at their militarist governments.

Nevertheless, there is official uncertainty here over two points:

1. Whether Britain and the United States can agree on measures for continued joint enforcement of the controls, and

2. Whether such measures are practical when applied to American trade alone.

One of the most effective wartime controls was the limitation on coal and oil shipments to Spain and Argentina. These two badly needed fuels present entirely different problems at the moment.

Coal for instance is a shortage item, and no difficulty should be encountered in maintaining controls through the winter.

In the case of oil, however, adequate supplies are on hand. And there are pressures both in this country and in Britain to knock off all petroleum export restrictions.

This issue is reported to be figuring in both the Anglo-American oil treaty conversations now under way in London and in the financial and commercial policy talks in progress here.

Here are the situations involved as reported by various officials here:

Spain—at the moment the United States is shipping coal to Europe at the rate of 1,400,000 tons a month. Not a lump is supposed to be reaching Spain. That country is expected to ask soon for an emergency allocation, but the United States is disposed before hand to take an unfavorable view. Spain has been receiving some coal from British sources but none from the United States in the last two or three months, officials insist.

Of oil, Spain is now allowed a maximum of 575,000 tons a year from British and American sources. This is described by American government oil experts as "far below" normal Spanish needs. And even the maximum is not met a good part of the time.

Argentina—no coal has gone to Argentina except that specifically approved by the United States ambassador at Buenos Aires, Spruille Braden. This control has given Braden a weapon on his on-the-spot opposition to the militarist Argentine government.

The oil now going to Argentina is at the rate of approximately 500,000 tons a year, dating from last May 8. This is all heavy fuel oil and is exchanged for linseed and flaxseed oils which are in great demand in the United States and Europe. The Argentine were using these oils for heating. In the exchange they actually got only an equivalent amount of petroleum heating fuel. Argentina's own petroleum industry meets about 60 per cent of her needs. She gets an additional quantity from Ecuador. But even (Continued on Page Two)

Of oil, Spain is now allowed a maximum of 575,000 tons a year from British and American sources. This is described by American government oil experts as "far below" normal Spanish needs. And even the maximum is not met a good part of the time.

Argentina—no coal has gone to Argentina except that specifically approved by the United States ambassador at Buenos Aires, Spruille Braden. This control has given Braden a weapon on his on-the-spot opposition to the militarist Argentine government.

The oil now going to Argentina is at the rate of approximately 500,000 tons a year, dating from last May 8. This is all heavy fuel oil and is exchanged for linseed and flaxseed oils which are in great demand in the United States and Europe. The Argentine were using these oils for heating. In the exchange they actually got only an equivalent amount of petroleum heating fuel. Argentina's own petroleum industry meets about 60 per cent of her needs. She gets an additional quantity from Ecuador. But even (Continued on Page Two)

Washington, Sept. 20.—(AP)—Wartime economic controls that were applied against Spain and Argentina are up for review by the United States and Britain.

There is a possibility that they may be sharply modified or abandoned.

Any such steps probably would be interpreted in Buenos Aires and Madrid as a softening of Allied disfavor despite the many harsh words recently aimed at their militarist governments.

Nevertheless, there is official uncertainty here over two points:

1. Whether Britain and the United States can agree on measures for continued joint enforcement of the controls, and

2. Whether such measures are practical when applied to American trade alone.

One of the most effective wartime controls was the limitation on coal and oil shipments to Spain and Argentina. These two badly needed fuels present entirely different problems at the moment.

Coal for instance is a shortage item, and no difficulty should be encountered in maintaining controls through the winter.

In the case of oil, however, adequate supplies are on hand. And there are pressures both in this country and in Britain to knock off all petroleum export restrictions.

This issue is reported to be figuring in both the Anglo-American oil treaty conversations now under way in London and in the financial and commercial policy talks in progress here.

Here are the situations involved as reported by various officials here:

Spain—at the moment the United States is shipping coal to Europe at the rate of 1,400,000 tons a month. Not a lump is supposed to be reaching Spain. That country is expected to ask soon for an emergency allocation, but the United States is disposed before hand to take an unfavorable view. Spain has been receiving some coal from British sources but none from the United States in the last two or three months, officials insist.

Marine units in navy occupation zones, nor fleet personnel.

In Washington, acting Secretary could determine now the number of

of State Dean Acheson remarked sharply that the United States Government, not the occupation forces under MacArthur, is determining American policy toward Japan. He expressed surprise that anyone forces necessary for the occupation. MacArthur's staff officers pointed out that thus far the occupation has been without incident.

The general's chief of economic and scientific planning said today that Japan's food and shelter crisis would reach its peak in three or four months. Staff officers emphasized that MacArthur's predicted reduction to 200,000 occupation troops would follow this period.

Discussing Acheson's comment point by point, staff officers noted that he specified that occupation policy making is a U. S. Government function and requires that Japan be stripped of her present economic and social system which makes for a will to war. And they pointed to a paragraph in the general's reduction announcement which said:

"The questions involved in this matter are entirely independent of the future of Japan's politico-governmental structure. . . . This problem is one of the ultimate solution of which necessarily awaits completion of military phases of the surrender. It is one which unquestionably will be determined upon the highest diplomatic levels of the United States. . . ."

Another war crimes suspect—the only woman on MacArthur's original wanted list—meanwhile was taken into custody by the U. S. Eighth Army today. The woman, Lily Abegg, known also to Tokyo and Kobe pre-war foreign colonies as Sybille Abe, was allegedly linked with Tokyo radio propaganda.

The Tokyo newspaper Mainichi reported more Japanese on MacArthur's suspect list had been arrested. They were Col. Akira Nagahama, former commander of gendarmes in the Philippines; Shigeru Osonai, former civilian official at a Japanese prisoner of war camp, and Sgt. Seichi (Gunzo) Miura, guard at the same camp. All three were accused of brutalities.

Demobilization of the Japanese has continued at the rate of 50,000 men daily, he reported. There were 2,253,000 Japanese under arms in the home islands August 15, and approximately 1,645,000 had been demobilized by September 17—with only 608,000 to go by the October 15 disarmament deadline.

A 100-mile-an-hour typhoon that lashed the homeland islands September 17 and 18 killed 48 Japanese and destroyed more than 2,000 homes, but no Americans were injured seriously, the Japanese Home Ministry reported today. Aircraft and trucks were rolled into wreckage at Kanoya Airfield on Kyushu, hardest-hit area. The storm swept across Kyushu, Shikoku and Western Honshu before heading out into the sea of Japan.

In addition to American navy personnel passengers being ferried home for discharge, crewmen themselves on many of Halsey's 17 warships expect to remain in the United States.

Three other battleships and some lesser fleet units will join the homeward bound convoy at Okinawa. Admiral Halsey was expected to join the fleet at Pearl Harbor for its triumphant return to the United States. Admiral Nimitz also is to make the homeward journey.

The battleship West Virginia is one of the capital ships in the convoy.

Other ships of the Third Fleet remained in Japanese waters, integrated with the Fifth Fleet under Adm. Raymond A. Spruance.

Undisclosed numbers of navy personnel are being returned to the States on the Third Fleet warships which weighed anchor at 12:45 p. m. (11:45 p. m., Wednesday, EWT). It was reported unofficially that the Iowa alone was bringing 1,200.

Doughboys of Lt. Gen. O. W. Griswold's 14th Army Corps spread the peaceful occupation to Sendai today. Occupying the city 200 miles north of Tokyo was without incident.

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

OUR RESTLESSNESS FINDS REST

Many years ago the great psychologist and philosopher William James wrote: "We hear in these days of scientific enlightenment a great deal of discussion about the efficacy of prayer; and many reasons are given us why we should not pray, whilst others are given us why we should. But in all this very little is said of the reason why we do pray. The reason why we do pray is simply because we cannot help praying."

There can hardly be found a person who never utters a prayer. Silently, or in seasons of great stress,
we all offer up our petitions. Probably a majority of people utter at least a brief prayer at some time during the day or night. There are others for whom prayer is a regular and conscientious practice, with its appointed times and places. Probably those whom the Lord loves best are the ones who pray only once a day, and that all day. Their prayer is both a spoken word and a continual attitude of heart and mind.

But whatever the program of prayer, we all pray because something within us makes us pray. Henry Ward Beecher put it picturesquely
when he said: "I pray on the principle that the wine knocks the cork out of the bottle. There is inward spiritual pressure; the release comes in prayer."

We pray because God has fashioned us for Himself, and our souls are restless, until they find their rest
in Him.

the college. In other words,
in view of records of the other
two committee members, Horton occupies about the same position on the committee as an unwanted child
at a family reunion.

Frankly, at the present
time East Carolina Teachers' College is in "low cotton" so far as the confidence of the people of North Carolina is concerned, and the action of Dr. Erwin in the appointment of such a committee to pick a president, only helps to reduce what little confidence the people still have in the institution.
Dr. Erwin should not have overlooked the fact that when a jury convicted Dr.
Meadows it likewise convicted the eight members of the old Board of Trustees, in the eyes of the people of North Carolina. (The grand jury that returned the first true bills against Meadows, asked legal advice as to whether the board members could be included in the indictments). It was unfortunate for the State that there seemed no legal way to get rid of the whole board, including the chairman, and start over from scratch, but certainly with several new members now on the board,
Dr. Erwin could, in our opinion, have made a much better choice of his committee.

There is one way that East Carolina Teachers' College
can again regain its proper place as a leading educational institution and that way is to rid it of the blot
of the Meadows influence and make a new start. This

Mysteries Of The Deep

apparently cannot be done
as long as it is run by a board of trustees, many of whom feel that it is still necessary to uphold Dr. Meadows' wrongdoing in order to vindicate their own previous acts that have now been proved wrong by the courts of our State.

like the beginning of wide industrial warfare.

But none of the strikes occurred
against the big auto plants; General Motors, Ford, Chrysler.
Last week Ford shut down and laid off 50,000 workers with this explanation:
Strikes against small, independent firms which supply Ford with parts had made Ford production impossible.

The strike in one of these firms
supplying Ford—the Kelsey-Hayes Wheel Company—is embarrassing
the top officials of the UAW's International union.

It was a local UAW union which struck at the wheel company. The members of that union refused to go back to work when the officials of the international union requested them to do so.

a dozen years elapsed from the time he assumed power in 1933 until he struck the first blow of the second World War. However, Hitler had got a grip on many German before 1933, and he also had the advantage of working in a militaristic country.
In that brief time Hitler turned the young boys of his country into barbarians. He taught the young girls that it was their duty to have babies, had never mind marriage.
He even provided fine maternity homes for these misguided children.

The lesson is conclusive. It is the young whose natures can be changed easily. And they will respond to good teachings quite as readily as to the wickedness of Hitler and Mussolini. Concentration over a period of say ten years might turn the trick in Japan.

miles to Washington in just over two hours.

He added that the Great Circle
route over which he led the flight is the shortest one and that the United States will use it often.

Gilles disclosed that the fueling
stop was more a matter of caution than necessity. One plane had 1,200 gallons left of the 10,000 with which it started, another had 1,000 and the third 700 gallons. The B-29s use around 400 gallons an hour
at fast cruising speed.

Uncertain weather made it inadvisable to try to squeeze home.
Gilles said, adding that the projected non-stop flight was a "practical test, and not a stunt."

General of the Army H. H. Arnold, commander of the Army Air Forces, said the object was to see what could be expected from the B-29. Reason: It had gone from the drawing board directly into production and combat, without all of the usual tests given a new plane.

The flight to Chicago was about 200 miles short of a Russian hop from Moscow to California, and 1,000 miles under the world record set by two British planes in flying from Egypt to Australia.

The plane commanded by Gilles,
deputy commander of United States
Strategic Air Forces in the Pacific, reached Chicago 26 hours and 25
minutes after leaving Alibon, Ala., port in Japan. It averaged about 231 miles an hour.

Brig Gen. Emmett (Rosy) O'Donnell, commander of the first B-29
group to hit Tokyo, reached Chicago in 25 hours 43 minutes. He led the procession although he was the last to take off from Sapporo.

Maj. Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, trailed in at 27 hours.
Each plane carried 12 men.

Strikes Halt . . .

halted by a strike by the United Automobile workers (CIO).
"Because of the actions of irresponsible union leaders," the corporation said, "our national economic machine may be so hopelessly stalled that we will be headed straight for another depression."

The corporation demanded of UAW-CIO President R. J. Thomas "What is your answer, Mr. Thomas?"

No reply was immediately forthcoming from union sources.
A strike at Murray began earlier this month over company reorganization plans. Certain limitations on union stewards' privileges of access to various plant areas were involved.

Seven conciliators were sent here from Washington by the U. S. Labor Conciliation Service to assist conciliation officers already on the ground who have been attempting to straighten out Detroit's labor troubles.

Both labor and management kept a close watch on Washington to see what action the newly reorganized Labor Department would take in the situation believed to be the first major tieup in the nation's reconversion program.

These were the questions that observers asked as they watched the companies and the United Automobile Workers (CIO) jockey for position in the troubled situation:
1. Will Edward L. Warren, named Tuesday at Washington as head of the U. S. Labor Conciliation Service, head for Detroit to personally seek a solution of the tieup?

2. How soon will the UAW-CIO carry out its announced intention of seeking strike votes against the industry's "Big Three"—Ford, General Motors and Chrysler—if they refuse to grant the 30 per cent increase?

3. Will the UAW be able to settle the unsanctioned strike of 4,500 union employees of Kelsey-Hayes Wheel Company of Detroit, the men having been out since Aug. 23 despite back-to-work orders from the International Union?

Locals Play New Bern Here Tomorrow Night

Phantoms Will Seek Victory Over Bears At Guy Smith Stadium

Skippers "Bo" Farley and "Snag" Clark are feverishly preparing their feet of fast moving backs and staunch linemen for the clash tomorrow night in which the Green Phantoms will attempt to bombard the New Bern Bears into submission. The battle is slated to get under way in the Guy Smith Stadium at 8 o'clock.

The locals dealt the New Bernians two decisive setbacks last year and, doubtless to say, the Bears will be out for that old phrase, "sweet revenge," come tomorrow night. However, according to rumor, the Bears will have a ball club that is just as good as last year's—maybe better. Only last week they yielded to Wilmington by only 19-7.

The Phantoms are weakened by a greatly depleted by the G-Men casualties. This ever existing factor in the line, the familiar face of Kenneth Dall will be missed. Bobby Clark and Jack Whichard, valuable linemen, may see only limited service. J. T. Williams may play a great part of the game if his understanding of the game is still troubled by his arm.

Spooky Morgan, Mr. Speed himself, is bothered slightly by a knee injury and will probably share the wing back with diminutive Jim Lee. Fullbacks Putrell and Siders cannot be counted on for much service tomorrow night. Several others on the squad have slight injuries but nothing to handicap them greatly.

If the Phantoms are victors over the Bears it will make their season's record stand at two victories and one setback. Their defeat came at the hands of Goldsboro.

Will Call Meeting Of Baseball Fans

"Greenville should have organized baseball here next year and I believe the fans will support a good club," said Guy Smith, president of the Greenville Club in the old Coastal Plain League. "We ought to have a public meeting of fans, talk the thing over and get busy."

and organize, the ardent baseball fan and supporter said. Greenville has been out of organized baseball since 1941. Dave Moore, Jr., secretary of the ball club, was enthusiastic about reorganizing a club here. Present plans are to call a meeting of fans here within the next several weeks and get busy.

In Kinston yesterday Charles Lar-kins revived interest in league baseball by calling a meeting of fans at the courthouse there next Monday night at 8 o'clock. Kinston fans hope the city will provide a park there.

Guy Smith Stadium in Greenville needs much overhauling in the dressing rooms and a new fence.

Fans in Rocky Mount, New Bern and other eastern towns are expected to call meetings shortly.

Discuss Tuition For War Veterans

Raleigh, Sept. 20.—(AP)—President Frank P. Graham and other officials of the University of North Carolina discussed informally today with Governor Cherry the question of tuition at state supported colleges and universities for returning servicemen.

They reached no conclusions, and adjourned their meeting pending receipt of additional information from Washington.

Attending the conference were Attorney General Harry McMillan and R. G. Deyton, assistant director of the budget.

Under the G. I. Bill of Rights, tuition costs for ex-servicemen are the same for all, no matter whether they are citizens of North Carolina. Educational costs will be deducted from any future bonuses.

There are more than 400 veterans now in school in this state.

To Close Pre-Flight School At Carolina

Washington, Sept. 20.—The navy announced that the pre-flight training school for prospective naval aviators at the University of North Carolina will close with the present class on October 15.

In addition, the pre-flight school at the University of Georgia, will close October 1.

Approximately 1,000 of the 1,400 North Carolina trainees will be sent to Chapel Hill to navy separation centers for release to inactive duty and civilian life. The others, who have expressed a desire to continue in the naval aviation program will be transferred elsewhere for training.

Facilities of the University of North Carolina, which have been occupied by the pre-flight school since its commissioning in May, 1942, are being turned back to the University as rapidly as possible, Comdr. James P. Raugh, commanding officer at the school, said.
