Tar River Expected To Reach 18 Foot Stage

By ASSOCIATED PRESS
Great improvement was noted today in Eastern North Carolina's highway system, which has been practically paralyzed all week due to four swollen rivers.

The Weather Bureau officials say the rivers—the Cape Fear, the Tar, Roanoke and Neuse—have reached their crests and are subsiding in their upper and middle reaches, but that the worst is yet to come in the lower reaches.

The Highway Department described the travel situation as much better and said that all main North Carolina highways are open except: U. S. 15-A at Lillington; U. S. 301 north and south of Fayetteville; N. C. 87 from Fayetteville to Acme; U. S. 74 from Maxton to Lumberton; N. C. 217 between Erwin and Lenoir; and N. C. 95 east of Rocky Mount.

A Fayetteville, the Cape Fear had reached a stage of 68.7 feet this morning and was standing. The river crested there at 8 p. m. last night, and officials expect the fall to begin soon.
At Weldon the Roanoke had gone to 46.4 feet and was rising slowly. The crest was expected there today. At Williamston the Roanoke had reached 10 feet and is still rising.
The Tar was falling along all of its upper tributaries, but highway and weather officials expect trouble at Tarboro. The river had gone to 24 feet there this morning and was still rising. It is expected to crest there late Saturday at 25 feet. At Rocky Mount the reading was stationary at 13.3 feet.

At Goldsboro the Neuse was rising and the worst is expected there Sunday or Monday. This morning's reading recorded 20.8 feet and rising. At Kinston the river was at 14.5 feet and rising. The Neuse was at 24.8 feet at Neuse and falling.

The highway department said it is probable that U. S. 701 will be closed over the Cape Fear at Elizabethtown late today or tomorrow. All main routes west of U. S. 1 are open and in fair passable condition, officials said.

Low Grade Beef Off Ration List

Washington, Sept. 21.—(AP)—The three lowest grades of beef will be sold without ration points on Oct. 1, food officials said today.

These grades, known as canner, cutter and utility, are used principally in canned and processed meats, hamburger, sausage and boiling meat. They make up about 20 per cent of the beef supply.
Fork, lamb and the three top grades of beef—commercial, good and choice—will continue to require ration points. The three top grades of beef are the sources of most steaks, roasts and other popular cuts.

The low grades of beef will remain technically on the rationing list, although their ration values will be reduced to zero. This makes it much simpler from an administrative standpoint, officials explained, to restore them to ration control should it become necessary.

Weather Forecast
Extended forecast for the Carolinas—Continued warm; temperatures four to eight degrees above normal over the week-end followed by considerably cooler weather Tuesday or Wednesday. A few widely scattered afternoon showers Thursday and Friday. Moderate showers Monday and early Tuesday.

Today In Congress

By Max Hall

Washington, Sept. 21.—(AP)—

A hum of activity came from the capitol today despite the fact that congress was in recess.

The hum came from committee rooms where:

The Senate Military committee approved house-passed legislation designed to encourage voluntary enlistments in the armed forces, and Chairman Thomas (D-Utah) dropped his plan to limit selective service to men 21 to 26 years old. The committee clearly indicated it was not ready to act on draft revision now.

Democrats of the House Ways and Means committee voted down a Republican proposal to question Elliott Roosevelt personally about his financial transactions. John Hartford, chain grocery store head, listed the major part of a loan to the son of the late President as a "bad debt."

The committee Democrats reportedly contended the group is without authority to subpoena witnesses without a special house resolution.
Nominations of Robert P. Patterson as secretary of war and W. Stuart Symington as surplus property administrator were approved by the Senate Military Affairs committee.

At a Maryland congressional delegation's conference with CIO representatives, urging enactment of President Truman's legislative program, Senator Tydings (D-Md.) walked out with the angry comment that "I don't intend to sit here and be threatened." Tydings made his exit after Robert Lamb, CIO national legislative representative, said "any members of congress who don't get on the bandwagon and vote for a 65-cent minimum wage are going to be sorry in 1946." Lamb said he had made no threats.

Harsh cries and rumblings echoed in Congress today:

1. The Unemployment Pay Bill—Whittled down and finally passed by the Senate—seemed headed for more carving by the House Ways and Means committee.

2. A long and perhaps bitter debate will start Tuesday in the Senate over the "full employment" bill, designed to prevent future depressions. The Senate Banking Committee has okayed it.

Round-The-World Flights Will Begin September 28

By PAUL MILLER

Washington, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Regular round-the-world air service, dream of American flying men since the Wright brothers first got off the ground at Kitty Hawk, N. C., begins September 28 from Washington National Airport.

Six and one-quarter days (151 hours) will be required for the 23,147-mile flight, scheduled as "The Globetrotter." Planes will leave the capital city each Friday.

As the U. S. Army Air Transport Command today it was learned:

1. Service will be restricted normally to military personnel, cargo and mail. However, a civilian certified as traveling in the national interest can make the complete flight for $2,431 plus 15 per cent transportation tax.

2. Later, when the army can get out of the business and planes are made available, U. S. Commercial Airlines will carry any civilian who wants to go; any civilian, that is, who (A) Has the price and (B) is willing to undergo inoculations for everything from smallpox to cholera.

The inaugural flight may have been arranged with one eye on publicity and one on an anniversary.

Three reporters will be aboard the first "Globetrotter." The departure date is the 21st anniversary of the U. S. Army Air Corps' first round-

3. Senate approval of Dean Acheson's appointment as No. 2 man of the State Department was postponed. Why? Because two senators angrily accused him of insulting the navy.

4. Rep. Carl Vinson, Georgia Democrat, chairman of the House Naval Committee, hollered for the State Department to come up and explain its policy on Pacific islands which the navy would like to use as bases.

5. Senator Elbert Thomas, scholarly Utah Democrat, chairman of the Senate Military Committee, suddenly demanded that all youths under 21 be relieved from the draft.

Today he told reporters—vigorously—that youths 18, 19 and 20 years old ought to be allowed to attend school in peace. He wants to write this into the pending bill which offers inducements to soldiers and sailors to reenlist.

Meanwhile Gen. George C. Marshall's peace pipe parley with Congress yesterday was considered by many lawmakers a good explanation of demobilization problems, but it didn't solve all congressional problems, nor quiet the clamor.

The real trouble is: Frustrated members still don't know how to answer Mr. Smith or Mr. Jones when he asks them to get his son Joe out of the army.

More and more law-makers are accepting the army's offer to take over all their mail relating to discharges and answer it for them.

Neither Senate nor House was in session today. But committees were working as usual. Here is the work schedule of the House Committee on Ways and Means:

Today: met hoping to reach some final decision on what to do about the financial affairs of Elliott Roosevelt.

Monday it considers the unemployment pay bill.

Both Chairman Doughton (D-D.C.) and top ranking Republican member Knutson (R-Minn.) have declared that this bill would "promote idleness."

The Senate, before passing the measure, killed a provision for higher weekly payments to the unemployed. The bill now provides:

Federal cash to stretch the duration of state payments to 26 weeks for most unemployed workers. (Continued on Page Four)

STRIKES CAUSE GAS SHORTAGE

Transportation Operations Cut In Large Cities

By ASSOCIATED PRESS
Gasoline was back on the scarcity list in some sections of the nation today as a strike of CIO oil workers gained headway.

More than a dozen refineries and plants were closed, and others were ready to shut down as workers took strike votes. Emergency rationing of gasoline was ordered in Toledo, Ohio.

As the federal government stepped into attempts to effect a settlement of the strike started last Monday by the oil workers, the stoppages curtailed gasoline supplies in scores of cities and idled more than 20,000 workers. Elsewhere across the nation, labor disputes kept an additional 200,000 men and women away from their jobs.

The oil strike hit hardest in the Texas gulf coast region where 14,000 were idle in refineries and affiliated industries. Another 5,300 were ready to leave their jobs and thousands more were taking strike votes. The closing of the only remaining refinery in the Toledo area last night resulted in emergency rationing of gasoline for the Ohio city.

Large cities feeling the pinch of gas and fuel shortages included Chicago, Detroit and Cleveland.

Some 5,000 oil workers in the Chicago-Indiana area were idle by the closing of four refineries and one terminal which resulted in the shutdown of several gas stations.

CIO union leaders mapped final plans for the closing of the huge Standard Oil plant at Whiting, Ind., the only large refinery in northern Indiana continuing in operation.

In the Detroit area, where more than 80,000 of the country's 220,000 idle are out because of strikes and shutdowns, union leaders went on with plans for strike votes in plants of the Big Three—Chrysler, General Motors and Ford.

In Portland, Ore., President Ballard of the CIO International Workers of America said that an unofficial tabulation of 30,000 ballots cast by members in Oregon, Washington and California showed an "overwhelming" approval of giving the union authority to call a strike.

The union's negotiations committee will meet Wednesday and has power to call a strike if it decides the demands for a $1.15 an hour and a 40-hour week are not met. (Continued on Page Four)

Keels Plan To Have Biggest Warehouse

Keel's Warehouse, in the western part of Greenville, has bought a tract of land in the rear of the warehouse containing 72,000 square feet of space and will erect an addition to the present warehouse, giving the house a total of 171,450 square feet of floor space. Rufus V. Keel, veteran tobacco warehouseman, has announced. J. E. Winslow & Co. sold them the lot. The transaction was consummated Wednesday.

When the addition to Keel's warehouse is erected the auction sales house will be the largest tobacco warehouse in North Carolina and next to the largest in the United States, Keel said. There is a warehouse in Kentucky with more floor space, it is understood.

Keel said his plans provide for allotting a part of the newly acquired land for a street and the name will be Keel Street. There is a short street abutting the property called Washington Avenue. Incidentally there is a Washington street, paralleling Evans street.

Not Today

Pasadena, Calif., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Everything was quiet outside the home of the Rev. Charles G. Long today as 7:33 a. m., the hour at which he had said the world might dissolve in a cloud of shattered atoms, came and went.

The Rev. Mr. Long had set another deadline for humanity today. Should the globe safely weather his 7:33 a. m. forecast, he said, its destruction might be delayed until 5:33 p. m. today or possibly Sept. 29 or even next fall.

The 72-year-old retired missionary said the first deadline today was based on Jerusalem time, based on California time, and that he didn't know which would prevail. He bases his prophecy on a vision seven years ago.

Long and his son, Richard, 32, declined to see reporters yesterday and a telephone inquiry brought the response: "Wait for news from heaven."

TO TURN BACK LOCAL AIRPORT

Navy To Release Property At An Early Date

Washington, N. C., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Many naval air stations and other facilities in the Carolinas are scheduled to be declared surplus during the last quarter of this year or the first quarter of 1946.

The House Naval Committee yesterday received from Assistant Secretary for Air Sullivan a list of 74 major installations to be released this year.

It included the Harvey Point, N. C., base scheduled 1946 release. The list for the first quarter of next year included the following figures representing acres in each case: Beaufort, S. C., 1,305; Mantoloking, N. C., 312; Charleston, S. C., 568; Congaree, S. C., 2,306.

The committee was told also that Charleston, S. C., was one of the points chosen as a berthing area for a part of the post-war fleet reserves.

Besides the major facilities scheduled for release, the committee received a list of outlying or satellite fields to be designated surplus during the final quarter of 1945.

Included were, with parent base (Continued on page four)

Subject Of Order Had Recently Been Appointed Head Of First Jap Army With Allied Approval; 10-Point Guide For Press And Radio Operations Issued

Tokyo, Sept. 21.—(AP)—General MacArthur today ordered the "immediate arrest" of Lt. Gen. Kenji Hara—whose recent appointment to command Japan's First General Army was given Allied acceptance—and issued a 10-point code to guide operations of the censored Japanese press and radio.

Japan's cabinet met meanwhile for three hours to discuss problems which well informed sources said included mounting food shortages and repatriation of Japanese civilians from Manchuria and Korea.

The newspaper Asahi today added another dime novel thriller to the tales of Japanese surrender-crisis intrigue, reporting that former Premier Kantaro Suzuki barely escaped with his life from a band of armed Japanese soldiers on August 15. The band, evidently grew by surrender plans, machine-gunned in quick succession two houses from which Suzuki had recently departed.

Dolhara, once called Japan's "Lawrence of Manchuria," was his country's advance agent in its Asiatic conquest.

His appointment as commander of the First General Army, succeeding Field Marshal Gen. Sugiyama, who committed suicide, was a surprise to many Japanese, who said his past record was not one that would inspire American confidence. American army officers, nevertheless, said after the conference that Dolhara had pledged full cooperation and was "courteous and cooperative."

General MacArthur's code for the Japanese press specified that news "must adhere strictly to the truth" and said that "nothing may be printed which might directly or indirectly disturb public tranquility."

Meanwhile American Marines prepared to expand the smoothly running occupation of Japan to the big naval base of Sasebo on Kyushu. The Fifth Amphibious Force is scheduled to take over the base tomorrow.

The only trace of violence in the occupation thus far was an accidental ammunition explosion that killed one American soldier and injured another. (Continued on page four)

The WORLD TODAY

An Analysis Of The News

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

AP Foreign News Analyst

The Big Five council of foreign ministers in London seems to be moving with determination though with due caution for a closer inspection of the several crises in the Balkans—those small but troublesome states which comprise the political atomic bomb of Europe.

The matter of immediate importance is to clear the way for the further conference of the Big Axis satellites—Hungary, Bulgaria and Romania. In the interest of accuracy it should be said that Hungary technically isn't one of the Balkans, but it's a Danubian country and so is generally included.

The situation is difficult and it is delicate for it presents a sharp clash of views between the Anglo-American Allies and the Russians. Indeed it's so delicate that Allied statesmen have hesitated to give their true names and have feigned rather in euphemisms. The further the conference of the Big Five ministers proceeds, however, the more openly the matter is being handled.

The background of the whole picture is the emergence of Russia as dominant power of the Eastern Hemisphere.

Since the Balkans represent one of the red hot spots it's well for us to get clearly in mind what is involved. To take the lid off the battle, the position is that the new governments of Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria are strongly Communist, which represents a heavy swing to the left. England and the United States refuse to recognize these regimes, on the ground that they don't represent the people as a whole. Washington and London want fresh elections held under conditions which will guarantee representative government.

Russia maintains that the present governments do speak for all the people. Moscow is well satisfied with them—an attitude which is easy to understand, since the Soviet government would indeed display an odd tendency if it went about ousting other Communist regimes.

Naturally this situation has given rise to debate in diplomatic circles whether these Red governments on Bulgaria, Hungary and Romania were in effect installed by Moscow—whether Russia is taking unilateral action in the Balkans. The Soviet answer is that it favors these governments and that they are truly democratic.

Anyway there's no compromise in sight among the Big Three, Uncle Sam and John Bull both insist that peace treaties shouldn't be signed with the present governments. This may hang the treaties for a considerable time.

And what is likely to be the outcome? Well, I don't think it matters a hill of small potatoes to the final picture what happens to the present governments of Bulgaria, Romania and Hungary. Russia already has established herself as the dominant power of the Balkans, barring Greece and Turkey, where her influence will be strongly felt though they probably will continue to lean towards England.

Now of course acceptance of this (Continued on Page Three)

Detroit, Sept. 21.—(AP)—The auto workers want a raise that will average them more money hourly—working a 40-hour peacetime week—than they averaged in wartime working 48 hours.

But this raise—according to the figuring of the CIO's United Automobile Workers (UAW)—would still give the workers less money to take home every week than they got in wartime.

The UAW is demanding a 30 per cent wage increase from the entire auto industry. The figures given here on earnings are from the UAW.

They will be used here because there is very little difference between them and similar figures on auto workers earnings obtained from the Automobile Manufacturers' Association.

In 1940—before war pressure was felt and while workers still were on a 40-hour week—auto workers' basic hourly average rate of pay was 94.6 cents.

(Some of course made more, some less. But 94.6 cents was the basic hourly average rate of pay.)

By 1944 their basic hourly average rate of pay—through wage increases and more people working in higher paying jobs—had climbed to $1.15.

But their average earnings per hour—as distinct from just the basic hourly average rate of pay—climbed higher. And for this reason:

tra eight hours which they did not work in peacetime.

Because of that overtime and some other factors, in 1944 their average earnings per hour were $1.27. Here it is briefly:

1940—Basic hourly average rate of pay—94.6 cents.
1944—Basic hourly average rate of pay—$1.15.
1944—Average hourly earnings—$1.27.

Now the auto workers, with the war over, are back on a 40-hour week.

UAW people estimate that auto workers now are getting a basic hourly average rate of $1.12, or about 17 cents an hour more than in peacetime's 1940.

Because UAW is asking a 30 per cent increase for all its workers, 30 per cent of $1.12 would be 33 cents. That 33 cents—added to the present basic hourly average rate of $1.12—would give the auto workers a basic hourly average rate of $1.45 now.

Let's see what would be involved in that $1.45. It would be $1.45 an hour week—the auto workers' average hourly earnings were $1.25, or 18 cents less than they want now for straight time.

Actually—the way UAW figures it out—not all of that 30 per cent increase would be a flat 30 per cent increase to all UAW workers.

About 7 per cent would go for things like these: Making wage adjustments in different positions, making adjustments in seniority (Continued on Page Four)

The King's Daughters Meet
The Patient Circle of The King's Daughters and Sons held their monthly meeting on Tuesday evening, September 18, at the home of Mrs. T. A. Person on Evans Street, the first meeting after a delightful summer vacation. The president, Mrs. W. R. Jones, called the meeting to order.

Mrs. T. A. Person led a very beautiful devotional taking as her background the 45th Psalm, which has always been claimed as the Psalm of the Order. She stressed the thought of the Psalmist: "The King's Daughter is all glorious within; her clothing is of wrought gold. The King's Daughters were among thy honorable women; upon thy right did stand the queen in gold of Ophir." This was followed by a prayer for us and our future work.

The business was taken up by reports from various committees. A very white worthy family was reported as having lost all in their home by fire. A donation had been given of $75 in used furniture which enabled them to start life anew. Next the nominating committee was asked to report.

The following slate of officers was voted on and accepted unanimously by the members: Mrs. A. E. Shackelford, president; Mrs. T. A. Person, vice-president; Mrs. C. A. Bowen, secretary; Mrs. Virginia Perkins, treasurer.

Mrs. W. R. Jones, the retiring president, was given a rising vote of thanks for her untiring efforts in carrying on this wonderful work. The hostess, assisted by Mrs. E. L. Baker in serving delicious refreshments.

The meeting was closed with the very worthy white family was re-prayer of the Order.—Reported.

"Forsaking not the assembling of our selves together, as the manner of some is."

Twin Oaks Chapel school will meet at 4:30, and we are looking forward for a visit from Miss Sarah Little, who surveyed the community and organized the Sunday school just a year ago. Our goal for rally day, October 7, at Twin Oaks is 110. Help us attain it. The attendance runs between 50 and 60 most of the time now, and the offerings are splendid. Some twenty of the people of the community met at the Chapel recently, cleaned the yard, and washed the windows of the building, and put up a nice sign, presented by Mr. Hunter Irving, with the name of the Chapel on it.

Postal Employees Enjoyed Banquet

By CHESTER WALSH

Postmaster J. Knott Proctor and all of the employees of the Greenville postoffice "took time out" last night to enjoy a period of fellowship and feasting at the Rotary building and it was a delightful affair. Steak supper with all of the trimmings was served. The presence of the men's wives and sweethearts added color to the occasion. There was music, singing and interesting short talks by Mayor Jack Boyd and Executive Secretary Willard T. Kyzer, and Chester Walsh. The evening's entertainment was topped off with some delightful wit and humor, flavored with much of life's philosophy, by Edmund Harding of Washington, N. C., one of the State's most useful citizens. Proctor said:

Mamie Jack Boyd made a hit with the postoffice people when he recalled that he has been "under the gun" of Greenville for about three months, and that during that time, "I have heard complaints about practically everything except the postoffice—but not a word against the postoffice," and then paid tribute to the great work the postoffice is doing, lauded Postmaster Knott Proctor and said some nice things about the fine personnel in the organization.

The postmaster, who was toastmaster, expressed pride in being at the head of the postoffice in Greenville, and complimented the employees individually and as a group. He said Secretary Kyzer, a valuable man in the community, had been given great assistance to the postoffice in many ways. Proctor introduced Assistant Postmaster P. L. Whitehurst and Supt. of Mails Joe Dudley and praised their work.

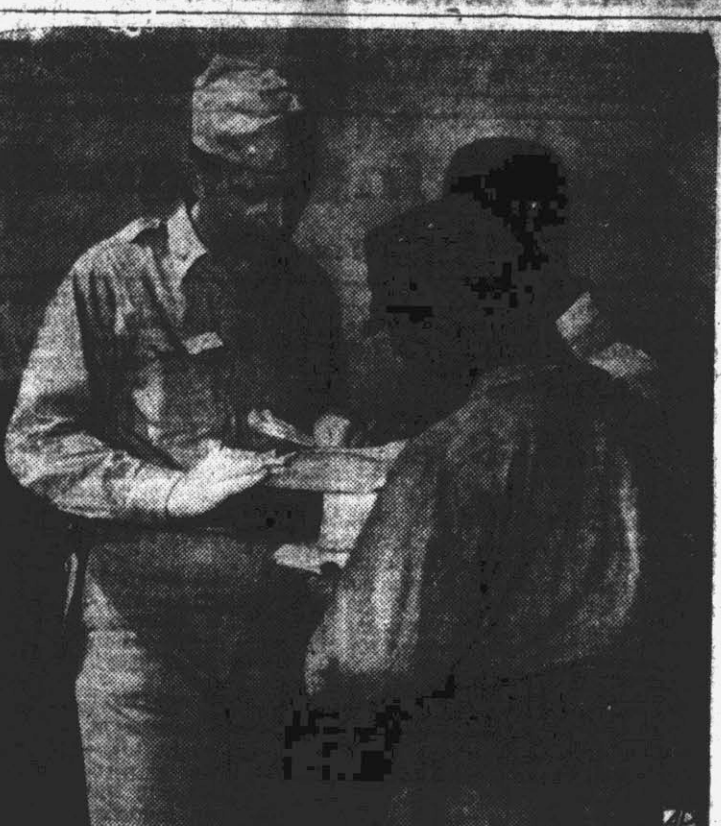

Postmaster Proctor's tribute to Washington's Edmund Harding was eloquent. He enumerated some of the fine services North Carolina's "humorist laureate" has done and is doing, and then turned the meeting over to Harding and that meant fun—lots of it. For half an hour Harding kept his audience rippling with laughter, sighs and tears. He was "Mark Twain's shadow in a big way" and some of the yarns he told will be retold many times. An interesting feature of Harding's wit and humor is that every story carries a moral and a lesson in philosophy. "They are fine folks—the men and women at Greenville's postoffice," he said.

NO DEFENSE IN TRIAL OF EPES

Case To Go To Jury Late Today Or Tomorrow

By HENRY LESENE

Columbia, S. C., Sept. 21.—(AP)—The case of Lt. Samuel C. Epes, charged with killing his wife with an overdose of sedative, will go to the jury without defense testimony.

Defense Attorney Edgar A. Brown announced the defense would not offer any witnesses, after Judge A. L. Gaston overruled a motion for a directed verdict of acquittal.

Brown's announcement came as the State completed the mass of testimony it contends shows that Epes killed his wife for love of another woman.

The defense claimed the State had not proved a crime had been committed other than Epes' own statement he had buried his comely young wife in an abandoned foxhole.

The defense of young Epes, while admitting he secretly buried his wife in a moment of panic after she died from an overdose of sedatives, steadfastly has denied killing her. Counsel for the 27-year-old son of a wealthy Virginia industrialist insisted no statement of an accused could be used against him unless the State proved a crime had been committed.

This, they said, the State had not done.

"The young man may have acted like a fool in a moment of panic but he is not charged with being a fool in the indictment," said Brown.

He referred to the bizarre burial of petite, 98-pound Mary Lee Epes whom the State claims Epes drugged and suffocated.

By electing not to offer any testimony the defense will get in both the opening and closing remarks to the jury.

Although arguments have not been limited it is believed likely the five-day-old trial will go to the jury today or tomorrow.

The State rested its case in the fifth day of the dramatic trial for his life of handsome young Epes, who admits burying his wife in a foxhole grave but denies killing her.

The 27-year-old son of a wealthy industrialist, has, in statements to officers, attributed the death of his wife to an overdose of self-administered sedative tablets.

The prosecution, however, offered medical testimony that the 98-pound Mary Lee Epes would have been in a deep anesthesia before she had taken the amount of the drug disclosed by an autopsy.

The State was unable to bring here, under subpoena the "other woman" in the case, blonde Nelson Kingsland of Lake Charles, La., but put in evidence Epes' correspondence with her.

Epes met Miss Kingsland while on maneuvers in Louisiana in 1944. The State, through letters and testimony, has sought to show they spent many weekends together.

Predicts Hard Peace For Japs

San Francisco, Sept. 21.—(AP)—

There will be a "hard" peace for Japan; assets of her commercial firms will be taken over and her corporations entirely broken up. Edwin W. Pauley, American member of the Allied Reparations Commission, asserted on his arrival here by plane last night from Los Angeles. He expects to leave for Tokyo within a month.

"The American people will never forget Pearl Harbor and it is going to be tough on Japan," he said. "The one consideration will be to eliminate Japan's war-making potential, the same as Germany's."

Japanese and German assets in the United States, estimated at less than $500,000,000, are being taken over by the Alien Property Custodian, he said.

Pauley expects Nipponese payment of indemnities to take this form: (1) To Russia; the Kurile Islands and Port Arthur. (2) To the other Allies, material good instead of money.

"There is no need of deceiving the American people. You cannot de-industrialize a country and at the same time get a large payment out of it," he explained. "No sum has been set for indemnities."

When flood waters blocked railway line between Louisville and Charlotte, Floyd Griffin, local pilot and automobile dealer, piloted a light plane carrying the child to Charlotte, where she will be given emergency treatment for polio. County doctors had said the child was in need of immediate specialized treatment if her life was to be saved. The flight required two hours.

Chapter 22

There were times in the ensuing two weeks when Jane wished she might awaken in the morning to find she were twins, even triplets. Yet nothing important was left undone.

Things are running too smoothly, she thought. Men like Lisle Carter don't turn into cooperating angels overnight. He controls enough of the stock to hold us to a stalemate: we try to branch out. And we're going to need to branch out to take care of the tentative orders coming in. He must come out into the open soon.

One evening, as they were preparing dinner Evelyn timidly approached her. "There's something I want to ask you, Jane. It's about my inheritance. Roy made some investments. The administrator says he has received a marvelous offer for them and that it would be better for me to sell now, while values are at their peak."

"What are they? And why, if they are bringing such a fabulous offer now, shouldn't you hold them and reap profits from them?"

"The administrator said they'd be dropping to the bottom soon."

"But what are they?"

"I don't know. When he read Roy's will, he just mentioned something like a 'block of diverse items valued at so much.'"

"Haven't you seen a copy of the will; haven't you one?"

"He said he'd have one made up for me, but the girls in this office have been so busy I haven't wanted to insist."

Jane stared at her a moment and then laughed. "I'm getting to be a most suspicious person. Before you agree to selling anything, like yourself down to the courthouse and read Roy's will from cover to cover, learn everything there is in it—or better, hire an attorney you can trust to do it for you."

Evelyn thought this over, then shook her head. "I'd rather wait. Questioning the administrator would be questioning Roy's judgment."

Jane shrugged. "Administrators have been known to make mistakes of judgment. Oh well, here this chicken at least looks cooked."

Another week of quiet "business as usual" passed. Jane sat at Mark Sheridan's desk and held off the insistent voices that came across telephone wires. Supplies, she explained, had been derailed to allow a troop train passage. Oh, yes, indeed, they were on hand now, and delivery of pumps could be expected within a few days.

Guffrey winked; he also wrote. He had pooled the Sheridan order with a trainload of government supplies moving west. The order could be expected in record time.

Jane drove down to the Athletic Club to talk to Sheridan, he having given up the open-doored hospitality of a hospital for a place comparatively safe from feminine invasion.

"Just assure me that the firm's income can be used, immediately and without the confirmation of the board, on the outlay, and I may be able to sleep nights instead of planning bank robberies."

"All income from our pumps goes directly to the firm and can be dispensed without too much interference. We have a public accountant who goes over our accounts every sixty days, and his signature is necessary on any check over $100,000."

"Has he ever questioned any bill?"

"He hasn't thus far," frowned Sheridan.

He hadn't thus far, but he did the next day.

Jane had been aware of a fussy little man in a suit and pepper suit, darning in and out of the bookkeeper's office. And she had seen old Mr. Langley, the bookkeeper, wandering in and out after him.

They came into Sheridan's office together at five o'clock. Langley introducing the little man as "Mister Chaffrey."

"Too much sail," he began; "you're carrying too much sail. Won't do; won't do at all. Look here; one thousand dollars advance to the

C. C."

"That one thousand, Mr. Chaffrey, has been paid, as you'll notice."

"You'll also notice the notation both on the canceled bill and on the books stating the source of payment was a personal emergency fund provided by Mr. Sheridan."

"No provision made for personal funds. No business—"

"Mr. Chaffrey, do our books show any discrepancies?"

"At present, no. I can't find any particular—But too much sail, Miss Grey, swamps the craft. Now here is an invoice on cast iron en route from New York. There is no provision made to meet—"

"You'll pardon me, Mr. Chaffrey. Jane smiled at the man. "I hadn't realized you were here in the capacity of an administrator."

"I'll have to refuse my signature on other bills due now until you prove you can meet payment on this Guffrey invoice."

Jane moved toward the door. "If you were as assiduous at studying the terms of the Guffrey account as you are at obeying Mr. Carter's injunctions, you would notice no date of payment is mentioned."

"However, to ease your professional conscience, Mr. Chaffrey, I'll call in a C. P. A. tomorrow at my own expense."

Chapter 23

Chaffrey scuttled out, and Langley, after a long, slow wink at Jane, ambled after.

Jane put in a call to Mark Sheridan. She talked earnestly for a few moments, hung up, made two more calls, then waited for the accountant to take his busybody self out of the building and rang for the bookkeeper.

Jane studied the old man a minute, then dropped her gaze to the desk, fingering a pencil. When she looked up again she found the bookkeeper surveying her with a paternal smile.

"Mark Sheridan says you can be trusted implicitly, Mr. Langley."

Langley gave a funny little old-fashioned bow and waited.

"We, Mr. Sheridan and I, want you to help us do something that may seem irregular to you. I'll take the responsibility, and I'll be working under Mr. Sheridan's orders."

"We want you to gather the books of the Sheridan Pump Company together in such form they can be smuggled out of here immediately after office hours."

The man's eyes widened. Miss Grey, I assume we are taking these books to a place where a C. P. A. can work unobserved?"

"You are a gentleman of discernment, Mr. Langley," Jane said, laughing. "You understand, of course, that we are not questioning the condition of your books."

"Yes, indeed. If I may make a deduction, I would say you and Mr. Sheridan are taking this method of securing a C. P. A.'s affidavit on the condition of the company, as of this date."

Jane stood up. "I'm glad you're on our side, Mr. Langley."

The C. P. A. arrived at seven with his own secretary. Supplemented by Miss James and Miss Grey, Mr. Langley felt completely efficient, almost anticipating the man's needs.

It was three o'clock when the C. P. A. left, taking the books with him.

Mr. Langley left soon afterward, with an apprehensive yet no sooner had he appeared at the office the following morning than a special messenger arrived, and could that have been a private detective in the care with him? Mr. Langley didn't know. He didn't take time to investigate further; he was too busy putting his precious books back in their accustomed places.

Mr. Langley hadn't had time to ascertain whether or not the man with the messenger was a detective, but he had time really to scrutinize the man who came into the building shortly before one o'clock.

"A process server if I ever saw one," he murmured, and he watched anxiously, hoping Miss Grey would take him into her confidence

SHIP SILHOUETTES—Units of the British fleet steam through Sydney Heads, early this year. Left to right, a cruiser and aircraft carriers HMS Indomitable and Illustrious.

When his buzzer sounded, he set out for the other office at such a lope the girls, just leaving for their Saturday afternoon holiday, gazed in amazement.

"Here it is," cried Jane joyfully, as she waved a legal looking document before his nose. "You'll have yours in a moment. See, the men in there now."

"But—but what for?"

"Our books are bound over to Civil Court until this plea for an injunction is heard."

Mr. Langley readjusted his bifocals and frowned at the document, laboriously he studied the phrasing.

"To show cause why an injunction should not be issued against the Sheridan Pump Company."

Miss Grey, could you explain the rest of this and what it means?"

"It means Mr. Carter, as a stockholder, together with the other holders he controls, is tired of trying to gain control of the company via the stockholder route. He has gone to court with his plea that a reorganization of the company be ordered."

"He had been much too quiet the past few weeks. I couldn't believe he was watching every corner and having nightmares because I feared I'd overlooked some possible method he might use to beat best us."

Yesterday—well, call it woman's intuition, but I felt something more than personal hostility prompted Mr. Chaffrey's attitude. I believe he is an excellent accountant had quite honorable."

"He is, indeed, Miss Grey."

"When Mr. Chaffrey became alarmed at the idea of a C. P. A. being called in," she resumed, "I became suspicious. It means one of two things: either he was planning some unethical act or had been told to avoid forcing an issue with me; particularly one which might cause me to call for outside assistance."

"I couldn't conceive of the first alternative, so accepted the second and acted accordingly."

"The court order to pick up the company books following immediately upon the injunction would not have given us time to learn what, if anything, had been done to those books."

"Mr. Sheridan sent for the attorney last night, after talking long distance. It seems if we could file the C. P. A.'s report, immediately after being notified of the plea for injunction, we could prove no attempt had been made to change the records. Naturally, we couldn't file until such a plea had been established. As the county courthouse closes at one o'clock on Saturdays, they had to remain there to 'get under the line.' Mr. Carter planned his timing to forestall any such defensive action."

"And you, a young woman, thought all this out?"

"Goodness no, Mr. Langley. I merely became suspicious, relayed my suspicions to Mr. Sheridan and asked permission to hire the C. P. A. I had a feeling his certified report of our condition was vitally important."

"And it was," breathed Mr. Langley.

"It will save time, and time is important. If we can keep on operating without awaiting a long legal battle."

Even came in, flushed and triumphant. "We filed," she said. "We had only one minute to go, but the affidavit and report are all in and the time established."

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

IS YOUR SIGHT NORMAL?
A German oculist many years ago said he was certain that the unusual character of Turner's pictures was due to the artist's stigmatism and that if they were viewed through the proper astigmatic lenses, these paintings would appear as those of other painters with normal eyes.

In other words, this scientist believed that because of his stigmatism, the world had an appearance to Turner which it does not have to other men. Turner painted what he saw, but this was so much different from what you and I see that today we look at his pictures not only with awe and admiration but with a feeling that we have never seen anything as glorious as this in real life.

Perhaps this was so, or perhaps Turner had better eyes than anyone else and saw things that ordinary men do not see. Certainly there are people in the world who have such capacity. Artists see colors in the landscape which miss the perception of the ordinary person. Seers look to the center of truth and see realities there which cause us to marvel at their penetration. In phenomena to which the ordinary scientists pay no attention,
the truly great scientist sees patterns of behavior on the part of physical forces which lead him to great discovery. St. Paul was caught up into the third heaven and there heard words which it is not lawful for a man to utter.

We owe more to seers, artists, and great scientists than we can ever repay. They lead the world because they see what the world cannot see.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By JACK STINNETT

Washington—The emphasis these days is heavily on interim unemployment, but apparently there's another side of the picture.

As reports roll in of the closing of such factories as Willow Run, the shipyards and other heavy war industry plants, the numbers "out of work" appear to be growing into millions.

But Everett C. Watkins, longtime Washington newspaper man who is knocking around his home
state of Indiana, finds there are quite different aspects of the production scene. His facts are verified by reports reaching the Department of Commerce here.

"Unemployed around here," Watkins writes from Peru, Ind., "are almost all workers with pockets full of war wages who have decided to "take it easy for a while or grab off a little to enjoy a temporary compensation (20 a week in Indiana)."
"At the same time every county newspaper I have seen is carrying display ads pleading for workers
under such headings as: 'Mechanics, Permanent Jobs at Good Wages.'"

"In Peru are 30 factories employing from 40 to 175 persons. Three of them are building additions and will increase employment to catch up with the backlog of postwar orders. At Batesville, a hospital furniture plant is building an addition for the same purpose."

"At Marion, a malleable iron works switched overnight from war to peace and now is far behind in its orders for railroad castings. Two other factories there making insulated wire for war communications have orders for months for telephone wire. A refrigerator plant and a radio factory are temporarily shut down for retooling but will be open soon with more business than they can handle. The same conditions exist in Anderson and Kokomo."

"For one reason or another, most of these factories are producing far more and far better than they did in prewar days."

"An example is the Sherrill Research Corp. here. Before the war, Burl Sherrill employed 20 persons making a magnetic automobile compass in a factory composed of a few rooms in a building on the square."

"As a result of wartime demands and developments, Sherrill is now making 10 types of compass for

And Just As He Got In That Shiny New Car

automobiles, boats and small, private airplanes (he produced magnetic compasses for tanks and steel life boats during the war). He has 140 employees, none of which lost a day of work in reconversion, and he will employ 100 more before the year is out. His factory, still across from the court house, has a half block front and is a block in depth.

"That's just a sample. There are 190,000 of these smaller factories in the United States and surely the ones in Indiana aren't exceptions."
"In my judgment, unemployment figures used in Washington and forecasts of additional unemployment are grossly exaggerated," says Watkins.

"About the only thing business
needs from Washington is congressional action on tax reduction and from there on less government," he concludes.

I don't know about that conclusion, but I do know that in the main, Watkins has something worth recording. The commerce department says 80 per cent of the war plants will need no retooling at all to convert to peacetime products.
"There definitely is another side of the picture."

The Nation Today . . .

within plants, and providing health insurance.

But the remaining 23 per cent—
it's approximately 23 per cent—
would be a flat increase to all UAW people.

A 23 per cent increase on the present estimated basic hourly average rate of pay—$1.12—would be 25 cents an hour.
This would bring the basic hourly average rate of pay to $1.37 a hour week—would still be 12 cents more than the average hourly earnings of $1.25 an hour when in wartime the workers did a 48-hour week.

Workers with a basic hourly average rate of $1.37—a 40-hour week—would earn $54.80 a week.
Those same workers—with an average hourly earning of $1.25, work-

viewpoint doesn't mean that Britain and America shouldn't stand fast by their principles and insist on elections in these satellite countries. My point is that no matter how you add it up—whether you have new elections or whether you don't—you will get the same answer which is that the Balkans already have been incorporated in Moscow's sphere of influence. That's not so surprising when you stop to think that before the war the Balkans (down as far as Greece and Turkey)
were in Germany's zone of domination.

Then—after disposing of the un-tee will plunge into the writing of a tax-cutting bill.

The two senators who said Dean
Acheson had reflected on General
MacArthur were Chandler (D-Ky.)
and Wherry (R-Neb.). They didn't like Acheson's statements along this line: That the government, and not any officer of the army or navy, will establish U. S. policy in occupying Japan.

The Senate may approve Ache-son's nomination as undersecretary of state next Monday—but a hot discussion started by Chandler and Wherry at a late hour yesterday prevented approval at that time.

authorities said an American sol-

dent and that no Japanese sabotage was suspected.

The roundup of war criminals
continued smoothly, with U. S. 8th
Army forces taking Australian John Holland, allegedly linked with Tokyo radio broadcasts, from a barber shop at Soppore on Hokkaido
to join ex-Premier Hideki Tojo's
"Pearl Harbor gang" in jail at Tokyo.

MacArthur's headquarters asked the Japanese Government for information on the whereabouts and welfare of the Turkish Ambassador

no immediate elaboration. The ambassador, Ali Muzaffer Goecker, ar-

Strikes Cause . . .

hour minimum wage cannot be obtained through negotiation.

Detroit, Sept. 21—(AP)—A strike-caused gasoline shortage threatened today to give Detroit a worse
immediate problem than its idleness of more than 80,000 men in the automobile manufacturing industry.
A gasoline shortage supplies for the city of 1,800,000 were described as sufficient to last only until Monday. Supplies were halted by the walkout of refinery employees and other CIO oil workers.

The city transportation system ordered certain services reduced or eliminated, and some police cars were operating on gasoline "borrowed" from other city sources. Forty per cent of the city's 3,400 filling stations were "soul out."
Commissioner Frank Rising of the municipally owned transportation system said the strike was
"cutting the throat" of the system.
He called the walkout "an outrage."

Roosevelt . . .

eral Marshall (U. S. Army Chief of Staff), not yet ready.

"The political impact of such a charge, if supported by the evidence of code-cracking, would have been terrific, and might well have landed Chamberlain in the White House."

Chamberlain said Dewey's decision to remain silent came after Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, said lives would be lost if the Japanese learned America had cracked the "ultra" code.

"More than 15 hours before Pearl Harbor, Roosevelt and the members of the Washington high command knew that the Japanese envoys were going to break with the U. S. the next day," Chamberlain wrote. "The only thing they did not know was the precise point of the military attack, which they assumed would be toward the East Indies and or at the Philippines or Guam."

Herbert Brownell, Jr., Republican national chairman, and another top advisor to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey in the 1944 presidential campaign said today the governor knew during the campaign that the United States had "cracked" Japan secret code,
but that Dewey declined for patriotic reasons to use the information.

Brownell and Elliot V. Bell, State Banking Commissioner, made the statement in commenting on an article in the current issue of Life magazine.
"Our information indicated,
among other things," Brownell said

In a statement, "shocking lack of coordination between the President,
the State Department and the armed forces leading up to the tragedy of Pearl Harbor."

Dewey made his decision not to use the information, the national chairman said, after Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, had advised him to do so would tip off the Japs that their code had been broken, and might impede the war effort and imperil "untold American lives."

"In the face of this," Brownell continued, "Gov. Dewey decided,
and told me, that he would not use the Pearl Harbor data because he believed in Gen. Marshall's integrity and he would rather be defeated for president than to risk sacrificing needlessly the life of a single American boy."

Bell, at a press conference, said Dewey's decision "was one of the most extraordinary examples of patriotism and self restraint that's ever been exhibited, because it was tantamount to giving up his greatest chance to become president of the United States."

Would Exempt Veterans

Washington, Sept. 20—(AP)— Legislation exempting veterans of all wars from the Hatch act has been introduced by Senator Elmer Thomas (D-Okla.).

Thomas told reporters that under a strict interpretation of the act veterans drawing any income from the government, including disability compensation, would be prohibited from taking part in politics or even talking about government policies.

The act is directed primarily at government employees.

The manufacture of basic chemicals now ranks as a major industry in Canada.

LABOR BOARD TO CONTINUE

Action Of Schwellenbach Saves WLB From Collapse

By HAROLD W. WARD
Washington, Sept. 21—(AP)—A swift guarantee of independence saved the War Labor Board from possible collapse today.

The pledges came from Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach who thereby materially strengthened the government's hand in reconversion labor troubles.

Reason: His own job of keeping industrial peace was made easier by the assurance that WLB will continue to function at least during the critical weeks immediately ahead.

Meanwhile, anxiety over the spread of strikes—with the exception of new walkouts by CIO oil workers
—lessened among labor and conciliation officials.

In an effort to halt the oil
strikes, conciliation chief Edgar L.
Warren is calling a labor-management conference of the industry early next week. The conference will provide Warren his first personal role in a dispute since he took over his new job this week.

Warren already has sent 20 conciliators to Detroit to watch developments for him in the automobile industry.

Although one or two more public
members may follow Chairman
George W. Taylor out of WLB, it appeared that Schwellenbach's quick assurance of continued autonomy for the agency had halted any wholesale resignations.

Some officials had expressed fear privately of this possibility after President Truman granted Schwellenbach policy-making power over the board in transferring it to the labor department.

The secretary said yesterday he did not choose to use that power.
That statement seemed to satisfy board members.

Mr. Truman yesterday accepted
Taylor's resignation "with regret."
It was made effective October 15 after Taylor wrote that he wanted to resume his regular duties. He is an economics professor at the University of Pennsylvania.

WLB will last only until after the labor-management conference here beginning November 5. Top business and labor leaders arranging it hope
the meeting will produce some machinery for handling disputes in peace time as WLB did in war.

Not To Resign

Washington, Sept. 20—(AP)— Herbert H. Lehman said today he is not now and never has been on the point of tendering his resignation as director general of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

Fate Of Jap Ship Still Uncertain

Tokyo, Sept. 20—(AP)—What's to become of the damaged Japanese battleship Nagato was a question today for which even Adm. Raymond A. Spruance, who last night took over command of American fleet
forces in Japanese waters, had no answer.

Commander Paul C. Smith, information officers for the fleet
forces, said Spruance knew nothing of a rumor that the ship was to be the guinea pig in an atomic bomb test at sea.

Smith said that plans to take the Nagato to San Francisco for use as the centerpiece of a victory bond drive were jettisoned after orders were received from the Navy Department to do nothing pending instructions.

Burma is approximately the area
of Texas.

Baseball

By JACK HAND
(AP Sports Writer)

Detroit may back into the American League pennant by matching Washington loss for loss but the St. Louis Cardinals are taking care that Chicago will have to win the National League flag the hard way.

Harvey (The Cat) Brecheen played with Charlie Grimm's dancing Bruins last night, shutting them out with only six hits, 2-0, for the Cardinals' 15th victory in 20 starts against the Cubs.

The Red Birds are only two games behind Chicago with eight to go. Two more with the leaders are slated next Tuesday and Wednesday after the Cards entertain Cincinnati twice while Chicago is at home to Pittsburgh for a three-game set.

St. Louis' three night games produced three keen pitching duels. Brecheen's decision over Ray (Pop) Prim was most important to Billy Southworth's tattered crew which would have been virtually eliminated, four games behind, if they hadn't won.

Despite Brecheen's fancy southpawing, it took a sensational double play engineered by Marty (Mr. Shortstop) Marion in the ninth inning to make it stick. Brecheen, the league leading pitcher, now has won his last six straight, allowing only a total of 29 hits in the six routines. He has come the route 11 times in his last 12 starts.

Phil Cavarretta, Chicago's candidate for the league batting title, slammed his first hit of the series, double in the ninth, while his average shrank to .350, only one point ahead of Boston's Tommy Holmes.

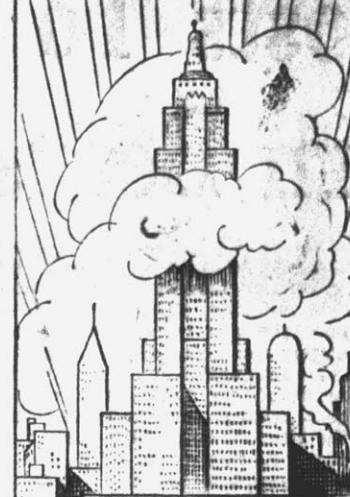

Both National League contenders are idle today with the only action a two-night doubleheader between Philadelphia and Brooklyn which dropped a 3-2 game to Boston yesterday.

Washington missed a chance to go into a virtual tie for the lead and Detroit blew an opportunity to take a commanding lead when the two pennant scrapers dropped respective 6-1 decisions to New York and Cleveland.

Allie Reynolds tossed the Indians to a 6-1 edge over the desperate Tigers just when it looked as if Detroit was going to squeeze through with a 1-0 verdict for Al Benton.

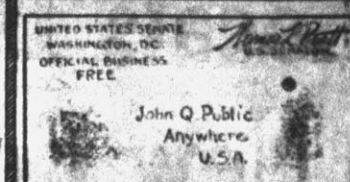

With Washington running out of games to play—they have only four more counting today's finale with the Yankees—the odds favor Detroit although they don't play again until Saturday and Sunday when St. Louis invades Briggs Stadium for two single tilts. In all the Tigers

Locals Hosts To New Bern Bears

Phantoms Promise Good Game At Guy Smith Stadium Tonight

After an absence of nearly two years Coach Bo Farley has returned to the gridiron wars where he will direct the Green Phantom strategy against their arch rival, New Bern, whom they square off against tonight at 8:15 in Guy Smith Stadium. The New Bern Bears, losers to the G-Men twice last year by scores of 32-6 and 19-6 are supposed to have one of the classiest ball clubs the locals will meet all season. They will probably outweigh our boys approximately ten pounds per man which is a considerable advantage to them. As usual, our eleven is expected to be a trickier and faster club than the New Bernians with a great part of our scoring punch being based on a dangerous aerial attack—with senior tailback Billy Harrington on the pitching end. Coach Farley and capable assistant, Snag Clark, have stressed the air part of the game this week, and this phase of the game should be more effective. The running game probably will be a powerful weapon of the Phantom offensive when Batchelor, Harrington, Morgan and Lee put their cleats in the dirt—Jim Ward will do the punting. Fullbacks Futrell and Sideris will see no action in the game while Jack Whichard and Bobby Clark can be counted on for only part-time service. These boys have suffered slight injuries in previous games. From end to end Coach Farley's starters will probably be: ends, Turner and Ward; tackles, Whitehurst and Lawrence; guards, Flye and Clark; center, Williams; in the backfield, tailback, Harrington; fullback, Batchelor; blockingback, Whichard; wingback, Morgan. The game will be highlighted by the presence of the band and the selling concessions of the Monogram Club. Probably the most famous apple tree in the world is the one under which General Robert E. Rape Charge Not Proved In Court

In Superior Court at Elizabethtown, Bladen County, yesterday, James Brock, 22, of Greenville, who was charged with raping Mrs. Bertha Pollard, 26, of Greenville, during a picnic at White Lake last July 1, submitted a plea of assault on a female, a misdemeanor, and the State Solicitor accepted it. Brock was on trial for his life. The plea was entered after Defense Attorney E. Hoover Taft of Greenville had made his argument to the jury and by agreement with the solicitor. The presiding judge entered a judgment of assault on a female, placed Brock on probation and allowed him until next March to pay the court costs. Blount and Taft were counsel for the defendant. According to the testimony, the alleged assault was committed during a picnic at White Lake on Sunday, July 1. The party of picnickers returned to Greenville in a truck. The warrant against Brock was sworn out two days later.

Quiet Today
Buenos Aires, Sept. 20—(AP)—Argentina's capital city returned to work today after virtual suspension of commercial and industrial activities yesterday while a throng estimated unofficially at almost a half million, march through the streets in a demonstration arranged by opponents of the military government. The only incident reported was a brush between a group of demonstrators and mounted police as saboteur-brandishing officers sought to disperse the group.

ROUGH ROAD FOR TRUMAN

House May Defeat Curtailed Jobless-Aid Bill

Washington, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Given the severest Senate rebuff since he took office, President Truman may be in for even rougher treatment in the House on the issue of aid to the jobless.

Mr. Truman's proposal for broad expansion of unemployment compensation was tossed over to the House after the Senate turned its thumbs down on a large part of the administration program. The chamber did, however, agree to extend unemployment benefits to a maximum of 26 weeks at federal expense—aid to pay travel expenses for displaced war workers. Senator Wagner (D-NY) said the bill, passed by voice vote in the Senate yesterday, is greatly "watered down" from urgent presidential recommendations. Administration troubles were multiplied in the House, as leading members of the Ways and Means Committee declared the legislation, as proposed by the President, would "promote idleness."

The Senate rejected Mr. Truman's proposal that Congress provide benefits up to $25 a week by supplementing jobless programs administered by the states. This act left payments at the various state rates, which range from $10 to $20.

The bill as passed by the Senate provides for:
1. Payments to the jobless for 26 weeks, with the federal government taking over after the state's duration of payments is exhausted. For instance, if a state provided $20 a week for 20 weeks, the federal government would pay $20 for six weeks more. Present state programs range from 14 to 26 weeks.
2. Unemployment compensation protection for some 2,900,000 federal civilian workers and 400,000 maritime workers. Payments to these persons who lose their jobs would be at levels of the state where the employees worked.

3. Travel allowances to permit former workers to go home or to a new job. A $200 limit is put on the amount for one worker and his family.
4. Return of the U. S. Employment Service to the states within 90 days.
Members of the Ways and Means Committee predicted the House strike out the provision for extending the duration of benefits. A few said the committee, which takes up the bill Monday, might kill the measure completely.
During hearings on the legislation as recommended by the administration, both Chairman Doughton (D-NC) and Rep. Knutson of Minnesota, senior Republican, said it would promote idleness. Doughton said he viewed the problem as not one of unemployment but of redistributing workers.

To VETERANS AND THEIR BRIDES or Their Brides-to-Be....

Watch for the men who wear this button on the lapel of their coats. These are the boys to whom we owe so much... former service men, honorably discharged. Let's go out of our way to give these fellows a break. Let's show our gratitude to them in every possible way. If it were not for them, we would find the barbaric Jap on our own doorstep right now... our country invaded.

We are reserving a royal welcome for every service man and his bride, or bride-to-be, who visit our store. And this welcome will be just as cordial, just as sincere, just as warm whether they buy or not. They are welcome to come here at any time, stay as long as they like and just "aisle-shop." If they want to make a purchase, we'll see to it that they get a "top" value with the longest, easiest, most liberal terms possible to extend.
