Widespread Strikes Push Idle Total Above 300,000

New Disputes Entered Nation's Disrupted Labor Picture Today; Service And Maintenance Workers In New York Office Buildings Left Jobs Today

By ASSOCIATED PRESS Two new disputes entered the nation's labor picture today, boosting the number of idle to more than 300,000 and reemphasizing the wage issue as the crux of most of the difficulties.

After 10,000 New York painters returned to work, the total idle had stood at 300,000. Some 60,000 members of the AFL Lumber and Sawmill Workers, however, later were called off their jobs in the Pacific Northwest, while on the other side of the continent, New York City building service employees numbering 23,000 also began to leave their jobs.

Some 348 mills and logging camps were involved in the lumber dispute, which revolves about union demands for a minimum hourly wage of $1.10 as well as union determination to force industry-wide bargaining instead of individual company negotiations.

The building service employees affecting 1,900 Manhattan buildings—objected to a War Labor Board award, contending that under its terms workers in office buildings and lofts would undergo a reduction in pay. The WLB had granted a $2.50 weekly raise to the apartment house employees and had reduced the hours of other such employees.

The WLB also rejected demands for union security, severance, holiday and vacation provisions. Other disputes were unchanged, the only notable event coming when Chrysler Corp announced a conference tomorrow with officials of the sprawling CIO United Automobile Workers Union on the latter's demand for a 30 per cent wage increase.

Strike votes were in the picture at both Ford and General Motors, the other two members of the Big Three. More than 90,000 in the Detroit area are idle as a result of automotive difficulties.

The CIO's International Oil Workers followed the UAW lead in demanding a 30 per cent pay boost. And informal gas rationing was instituted to conserve supplies. A conference was planned for tomorrow between industry and union representatives to attempt a settlement.

One of the largest single disputes—38,000 out—remained in plants of the Westinghouse Electric Company over six states. Demands are focused on bonus and incentive.

ECTC Has 12 New Faculty Members; Dr. Slay Chosen Dean

By CHESTER WALSH East Carolina Teachers' College will open for the 1945-46 term Tuesday with 12 new faculty members. Registration of students will begin Tuesday morning. Freshmen will register Tuesday and Wednesday; upper class students Thursday. Regular classes will begin Friday morning.

Acting President Howard J. McGinnis today announced the appointment of Dr. R. J. Slay as dean of the college. He was formerly head of the science department.

Dr. Edgar W. Knight, professor of education at the University of North Carolina, addressed a general faculty meeting this morning. Preceding this meeting the faculty held an organization conference, with Dr. McGinnis presiding.

Dr. J. Oppelt has been appointed director of practice teaching and director of the College. (Continued on Page Six)

Says Thousands Were Murdered In Concentration Camp Gas Chamber

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN Lunenburg, Germany, Sept. 24.—(AP)—A Polish Jewess today told how 3,000 women as Oswiecim concentration camp were lined up naked by the camp commandant and selected for a Christmas Day parade to the gas chamber.

Testifying at the trial of 45 Nazis charged with prison camp atrocities, Mrs. Sophia Litwiska, 28, of Lublin, said she lived through the horrors of the lethal chamber because she was mysteriously pulled out at the last moment on Christmas, 1941.

"Who was in charge of that parade?" the prosecutor asked. "Commandant Hessler," the witness shouted, pointing to one of the defendants. "He is a murderer responsible for the death of thousands."

While Hessler lowered his head, the witness continued: "We were lined up quite naked while Hessler and two doctors made selections for the gas chamber. The victims were then loaded into numerous trucks and hauled to the crematoriums where they were then dumped out like potatoes."

The victims filed into the gas chamber, which looked like a shower room. "Inside the chamber there were cries, tears—people were shaking and striking each other. Then I noticed yellow fumes entering the room. I had a violent coughing spell. My name was called. I raised my arm, for my voice would not answer. Then someone pulled me out of the chamber, I don't know. (Continued on Page Two)

BIG FIVE GROUP MEETING WITH DIFFICULTIES

Efforts Being Made To Compromise Conflicting Views On Peace Treaties For Italy And The Balkans

London, Sept. 24.—(AP)—The Big Five Council of Foreign Ministers sought in two successive meetings today to compromise conflicting views which have prevented essential agreement on peace treaties for Italy and the Balkan nations. Diplomats familiar with the divergent views of the Russian and American-British delegations regarded the sessions as decisive. One expressed it this way: "It generally is conceded that the discussions will determine largely whether the council should continue its efforts to solve its problems, or seek other means to write the peace of Europe."

Europe's inland waterways and the immediate future of Austria were among problems to be dissolved. Some observers already are predicting that the council may be dissolved and another means found to write Europe's peace.

This view was reflected in an editorial today in the Daily Mail that said: "It has become clear that the first meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers has not succeeded. . . . Before the delegates depart some face saving formula will no doubt be advised to cover their activities."

The immediate issue threatening Big Five unity is a Soviet objection to France and China participating in Hungarian treaty discussions. Russian complaints shelved the Hungarian talks—last peace terms on the agenda—until the procedure was straightened out.

Russian Foreign Commissar Molotov reportedly raised his protest on a Potsdam agreement that only signatories to the armistices would discuss the peace treaties at this initial stage. It was learned reliably that Molotov brought up the subject only after the conferees found they were not reaching any basis agreement.

Diplomatic sources said the Russians apparently feared the United States and Britain might pull China and France over to their side. (Continued on Page Two)

Negro Man Killed By Car Saturday

Joe Parker, 54-year-old Negro farm laborer of Stokes, was killed Saturday night when struck by a car driven by Marcus H. Whichard of Stokes. Parker was walking along the highway at the time of the accident.

Coroner Griffin H. Rouse will hold an inquest at the City Hall tonight at 8 o'clock.

State Highway Patrolman Cpl. John Laws, who investigated the accident, said Parker was walking on the wrong side of the highway at the time he was struck. No arrest was made.

Today In Congress

By Max Hall

(By The Associated Press) Washington, Sept. 24.—(AP)—President Truman will dump one of the world's big problems—what to do with atomic energy—into the lap of Congress.

He'll do it by making recommendations to Congress, fairly soon. This is what his press secretary, Charles G. Ross, said today.

Ross said he didn't want the impression to get out that Mr. Truman was going to handle the problem by himself. Congress will have to pass a law on the subject.

And Dean Acheson, acting Secretary of State, sent a batch of documents to Senator Wherry (R-Neb) to explain why he cracked down on General MacArthur for deciding by himself how many troops were needed to occupy Japan.

Wherry had asked for an explanation from Acheson on the State Department's relations with MacArthur and its policy on occupying Japan.

Acheson told Wherry "It is plain to me from your letters that you have not had before you the statement which I made x x x."

Mr. Truman turned over to the State Department the job of disposing of American wartime surplus—millions of dollars worth—throughout the world.

Reconversion Director John W. Snyder gave this information to the Senate War Investigating Committee. He said there is $6,000,000,000 dollars worth of materials in Europe. He couldn't guess, he said at the worth of surplus war goods in the Pacific.

Meanwhile, the House was to receive an 800 page document on the results of an investigation into Briz.

Government Policy Reveals Long Occupation Of Japan

HIROHITO GOT PEACE NOTES

Emperor Couldn't Resist War Tide Within Japan

By RUSSELL BRINES Tokyo, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Emperor Hirohito received both President Roosevelt's peace message and the U. S. State Department's Nov. 26, 1941 peace memorandum but ignored them because his advisers told him it would be "unwise to resist the war tide within Japan."

In the opinion of his close adviser, Marquis Koichi Kido, Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal.

Kido told the Associated Press in an exclusive interview today that he gave the emperor the same advice because Japan was "compelled" to go to war by the freezing of Japanese assets and that Kido personally hoped the nation could fight long enough for a "50-50 break" through a favorable compromise peace.

The official, who is one of the emperor's closest advisers, said he had "good evidence" to prove that the emperor was informed early in.

America To Have Final Say In Matters Of Control Of Nippon

By JOHN W. HIGHTOWER Washington, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Acting Secretary of State Acheson told Senator Wherry (R-Neb) today "to test" for himself the correctness of Acheson's view on Japanese occupation policy and General Douglas MacArthur's role.

Wherry promptly labeled Acheson's statement "unsatisfactory" and told reporters he would fight to send his nomination as Undersecretary of State back to committee.

Acheson wrote Wherry in response to a letter from the Republican Whip asking nine questions relating to occupation policy in Japan.

Wherry joined in delaying confirmation of Acheson last week after contending the acting Secretary had insulted MacArthur.

Acheson's reply, made public today by the White House, said: "My dear Senator Wherry: "It is plain to me from your letter of September 21 that you have not had before you the statement which I made in response to a question from the press. I enclose the stenographic transcript of both question and answer. I also enclose a copy of the Potsdam proclamation calling your attention specifically to.

FLOODS TAKE FIVE LIVES

Rivers Receding Upstate; Still Rising Here

The flood in Tar River here was at the 17.7-foot stage Sunday. Today at noon it was at the 18.6-foot level, a rise of nearly a foot in 24 hours. The water crosses the Beetham Highway here at about the 20-foot level, highway engineers said.

Flood waters, which have taken five lives in the Carolinas, were receding steadily today in the upper and middle reaches of North Carolina rivers.

The State Highway Department reported the three most critical points to be the Cape Fear at Elizabethtown, the Neuse at Goldsboro and the Tar at Tarboro. All are expected to reach their crests late today or tomorrow.

The death toll was brought to five Sunday when William Harvey Newcomb, 13, of Dudley, N. C., was drowned while swimming in flood waters in Indian Springs township.

On Saturday, Norman Jones, 23, of Marion, S. C., recently discharged soldier, drowned in the Great. (Continued on Page Six)

Jap Ruler Expected To Make Call At MacArthur's Headquarters At Early Date; New Restrictions Placed On Japanese Communications And Industries

Tokyo, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Well-informed Japanese sources said today that Emperor Hirohito has arranged to pay a 10-day visit starting with General MacArthur at the latter's residence in the American Embassy building. No date was specified.

The decision on a meeting place of conqueror and conquered was reached, these sources told Associated Press Correspondent Russell Brines, at a recent conference between MacArthur and Admiral Fujita, Grand Chamberlain.

Official confirmation was lacking, although a meeting of MacArthur and Hirohito long has been expected. If the emperor goes to MacArthur's residence at the embassy, it would be the first time in modern history that any Japanese emperor has gone to another ruler for an audience.

The Allied high command today blocked any atomic-bomb research in Japan, directed rigid control of Japanese economic life including wages, prices and all traffic in currencies and negotiable assets, and moved toward free Japanese press.

The news order directed the Imperial government to remove itself completely from direct or indirect control of newspapers and news agencies.

Stripping the present Domei agency of its special privileges, the order gave the way for establishment of new and truly free competing agencies.

Two other far-reaching directives aimed at freezing traffic in currencies and other negotiable assets to facilitate the task of dismantling Japan's assets at home and abroad.

Prohibited are export or import of gold or silver coin; gold, silver, and platinum bullion or currency; and securities, checks, bank drafts, bills of exchange, powers of attorney, proxies and any evidence of indebtedness or evidence of property ownership not specifically exempted.

One of the emperor's closest advisers, meanwhile, disclosed that in his opinion Emperor Hirohito did receive President Roosevelt's peace plea and the U. S. State Department's No. 26, 1941, peace memorandum—but ignored both when Warlord Hideki Tojo and other advisers told him it was useless to resist the rising war tide in Japan.

The official adviser, Marquis Koichi, Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal, also told Associated Press Correspondent Russell Brines that he believed the emperor had no advance knowledge of the Pearl Harbor attack.

Furthermore, said Kido, reports of abdication moves are "false." Kido said that he himself had advised war, in the belief that the nation could fight long enough for a "50-50 break" through a favorable compromise peace.

Other well-informed Japanese sources said that General MacArthur vetoed the appointment of Selhoun Feeds, former finance minister, as president of the central bank. (Continued on Page Four)

The WORLD TODAY

An Analysis Of The News

AP Foreign Affairs Analyst This is Blue Monday for the Big Five Council of Foreign Ministers who are struggling in London to rehabilitate a Europe which has been pulled to bits and tossed about like a haystack in a whirlwind.

Things haven't been going well in fact they've reached a point which the London Daily Mail to say: "It has become clear that the first meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers has not succeeded. Before the delegates disperse some face-saving formula no doubt will be devised to cover their activities."

That isn't very cheering. However, there's more than that to the story. I think we must take into consideration that the council is encountering difficulties which long had been foreseen. We have known that just such crises were bound to arise in the remaking of Europe—a fact that has been discussed often enough in this column.

Our hope has been not that these critical situations could be avoided, but that they would be overcome due course and that in the end we should have a solid peace. Thus far, while certainly the progress in Big Five Council meetings isn't pleasant reading, there's nothing to cause despair.

In analyzing this situation we must bear in mind not only that Europe has been ripped to pieces politically and economically, but that Russia has emerged as the new and dominant power of the Eastern hemisphere. And at the

Prepared

New York, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Two men who came to work today prepared for the elevator strike were Thomas J. Buzalski, 36, of Cranford, N. J., and Joseph Lombardi, 45, of Baldwin, N. Y., television engineers for the National Broadcasting Company.

They arrived at their offices on the 85th floor of the Empire State building a half hour before the walkout was called. Said Buzalski: "We're prepared to remain for three days. We've got two beds, a stove, an ice box and a locker full of food. If it goes beyond three days, of course, it will be too bad."

The NATION TODAY

By James Marlow

By JAMES MARLOW Washington, Sept. 24.—(AP)—The current strikes—and threats of strikes—show plainly there is no strong government machinery for settling labor disputes.

Maybe the labor-management conference here November 5 will lay the foundation for such machinery.

In wartime the War Labor Board settled most of the disputes that troubled. There were penalties for ignoring the board's rulings. A labor union could be fined or a plant could be seized by the government.

The board is dying now by its own wishes and those of the President, even though Secretary of Labor Schweinfach still may try to make some little use of it.

The board was the government's strongest instrument but it was purely a wartime service. Before the war the government had an arbitration board. When the conciliation service failed to settle a dispute, the arbitration board could against Japan—as a member of a naval group of guerrillas, intelligence agents and weather observers behind the Japanese lines in Asia vessel which carried President Roosevelt to the Cairo conference in 1943.

Naval Guerrillas Washington—It can now be revealed that Lt. (jg) Rufus H. Forrest, Winterville, and J. T. Little, Phm. 1-c, of Falkland, played a role in one of the most romantic and dangerous episodes of the war.

The group, now known as SAGO—Sino-American Cooperative Organization—began shortly after Pearl Harbor as strictly a weather reporting unit.

The project grew until it was providing the U. S. fleet, the army's 14th Air Force and the Chinese and American Army headquarters with weather reports and with intelligence on movement of Jap ships, troops and supplies. Finally, it became a dangerous fighting outfit, killing Japs, blowing up trains, raiding Jap outposts. Its activities finally extended all the way from Indo-China to the Gobi desert.

SAGO intelligence allowed the 14th Air Force to mine coastal waters, forcing Jap shipping out to sea, where they were attacked by American submarines, on information from SAGO.

Weather information helped the navy decide when to stage invasions on islands and raids on the Jap homeland.

Usually it was possible to enter or depart from Jap territory by air, but SAGO Americans became adept at Chinese disguises and, guided by SAGO Chinese, slipped through enemy lines when they chose. Through months and years not one SAGO member was detected.

The trustees of the Kasturba Gandhi national trust fund—a large fund raised in India in memory of the wife of Mahatma Gandhi—has called upon the Christian Medical Association of India (interdenominational) to assist in its plans for a wide service to the women of India villages in the fields of medicine and sanitation. The Mahatma, a trustee of the fund, believes that the project can be kept "close to the villages" and that village women can be trained as nurses and midwives, while local herbs can be developed for their medicinal properties. As a beginning of the service, the C. M. A. is recommending that mission hospitals and mission medical and nurse training schools assist in providing large numbers of newly-trained nurses and medical assistants and doctors. It is planned to consider for this training young women from the villages who will be pledged to return to their villages on completion of schooling. A number of trustees of the fund are Christian Indian medical doctors.

Christian Science Service

"Matter" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science Churches and Societies on Sunday, September 23.

The golden text was from Isaiah 43:12 "I have declared, and have saved, and I have showed, when there was no strange god among you; therefore ye are my witnesses, saith the Lord, that I am God."

Among the citations comprising the lesson-sermon were the following from the Bible: "For I know the thoughts that I think toward you, saith the Lord, thoughts of peace, and not of evil, to give you an expected end. They shall thou call upon me, and ye shall go, and pray unto me, and I will hearken unto you. And ye shall seek me, and find me, when ye shall search for me with all your heart." (Jeremiah 29:11-13).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "To infinite Spirit there is no matter, all is Spirit, divine principle and its issue. The divine Mind, not matter, creates all identities, and they are forms of Mind, the ideas of Spirit apparent only as Mind, never as mindless matter nor the so-called material senses. God's ideas reflect the immortal, unerring, and infinite. To mortal, erring, and finite human beliefs, which appertain to themselves a task impossible for them, that of distinguishing between the false and the true. Therefore matter, not being the reflection of Spirit, has no real entity." (Pages 475, 505).

Then the overhead floodlights were flashed on and the witness was led in front of the prisoners' cage. She identified 14 of them as guilty of atrocities at the camp, Irma Grese.

Mrs. Litwinski testified that the Forster woman caught a teen age girl steading a potato, dragged her into the kitchen, beat her unmercifully and forced her to eat her own excrement.

"I could not watch and turned away. Later she dragged the girl outside and beat her until she died. She has beaten so many persons there must be a thousand who have seen her."

Ise Forster, a short blonde of about 25, remained tight-lipped and defiant during the accusations.

Judge Roberts Will Speak In Farmville

J. W. H. Roberts, judge of Greenville Recorder's Court, will be the speaker at the Farmville Kiwanis Club's weekly supper meeting at the Farmville High School tonight at 6:45. Dr. Rod Williams, the president, will preside. O. H. Lemmon has charge of the program.

The Farmville Kiwanis Club, organized last February with 35 members is taking an active part in community affairs. It is now sponsoring a "Junior Safety Patrol," whose members are taken from school classes from the seventh grade up. Police Chief Harris of Goldsboro, who has a similar patrol in Goldsboro, outlined plans for the "Safety Patrol" there, and School Principal J. H. Moore is backing the project.

Vice-President Charley Hotchkiss of the Kiwanis Club pioneered the patrol movement.

Quilting Appeals Oslo, Sept. 24—(AP)—Vidkun Quisling appealed to the Norwegian Supreme Court today for reduction of his death sentence for treason. The hearing is expected next week.

The main stumbling block, which has been building up for years, assembly involves the old question of spheres of influence. The question of outlining spheres of influence throughout the world for each major power and deciding as to what each power should wield exclusive control in its own sphere is high in the minds of the council delegates, but thus far has been carefully skirted in direct discussion here.

Instead of Him

By PEGGY O'MORE

Chapter 24

The courthouse stood white and stately beside the misty waters of Lake Merritt. Jane, ascending the many steps Monday morning was aware of what it should mean—justice, the right of a man to defend himself, the right of the law to protect.

And now the clerk was calling their case.

Miss Carter's attorney was standing.

"I would like to call Miss Jane Grey, so called, to the stand."

"Mr. LeGrange, you will explain that term, so called, to the court," intoned the judge.

"I intend to prove, your honor, that this young woman is not one Jane Grey, but Jane or Jeannette or Jeanne, as the occasion demands, Kensington."

Jane walked to the stand and took the oath, repeating every word seriously.

"Now, Miss Kensington," began Mr. LeGrange.

"If Your Honor please," interposed her defense, "we are in a position to prove Miss Grey's identity."

"And, Your Honor, we are also in a position to explain the truly astonishing charge brought by the opposition."

The judge looked over his glasses at Jane. "You may proceed with this item, the explanation of this confusion of your identity."

"I object."

"Overruled," declared the judge. "You yourself have placed this young woman on the stand. It is for the court to accept testimony from this person before she has been identified."

"We are willing to concede her right to the name of Jane Grey," pleaded LeGrange.

"Your concession is a little late, Mr. LeGrange. Proceed, Miss Grey."

"I was living in an apartment house immediately after joining the Sheridan Pump Company. While there I learned that the manager, who was also the janitor, had found the conversation in my apartment with listening to by keyhole."

"You are prepared to substantiate this eavesdropping, Miss Grey?"

"Yes, Your Honor."

"Then proceed."

"One day I received a wire—I have here—from my former employer in New York, advising me that one Mr. Haskins had wired him asking for information concerning me, information above and beyond that pertaining to my efficiency as a business woman. On that same day I became aware of this eavesdropper, Miss Evelyn James, who was rooming with me, and I thought we'd play a joke on the lot of them. I wrote a wire to a name I picked at random, and an address, chosen the same way, Miss James gave this, supposedly to a telephone operator, while I waited beside the door against which this janitor was leaning while he listened."

"The name, Miss Grey?"

Jane straightened the curve of her lips, just as the judge had straightened his. "Mrs. Maurice Kensington. I thought, Your Honor, there should be several in New York City, and it would keep my friends quite busy for a while."

A titter arose in the courtroom, to be stifled by the clerk's rap for order.

"Your Honor—LeGrange smiled painfully—"the identity of the witness is immaterial."

"And now I would like to ask Miss Grey, why one of her supposed talents as an executive accepted a position as a typist-clerk in the Sheridan Manufacturing Company?"

"Mrs. Champ Stanton, who holds the largest single block of shares in the company, wired me and asked me to go to a conference. I came by plane at her request and her expense. She asked me to take the position as typist-clerk to learn from the inside what she had been unable to learn as a stockholder. I'm really sorry," Jane said. "I couldn't give them to anyone but Mr. Sheridan. Suppose you get in touch with him. I'm quite sure he'll turn them over to you. Good-bye now."

Jane had her temper well under control by the time she reached the plant. Mark Sheridan was in his office; the attorney, she noticed, with Mr. Langley.

"Here are the keys to your car, Mr. Sheridan," she said evenly, laying them on his desk.

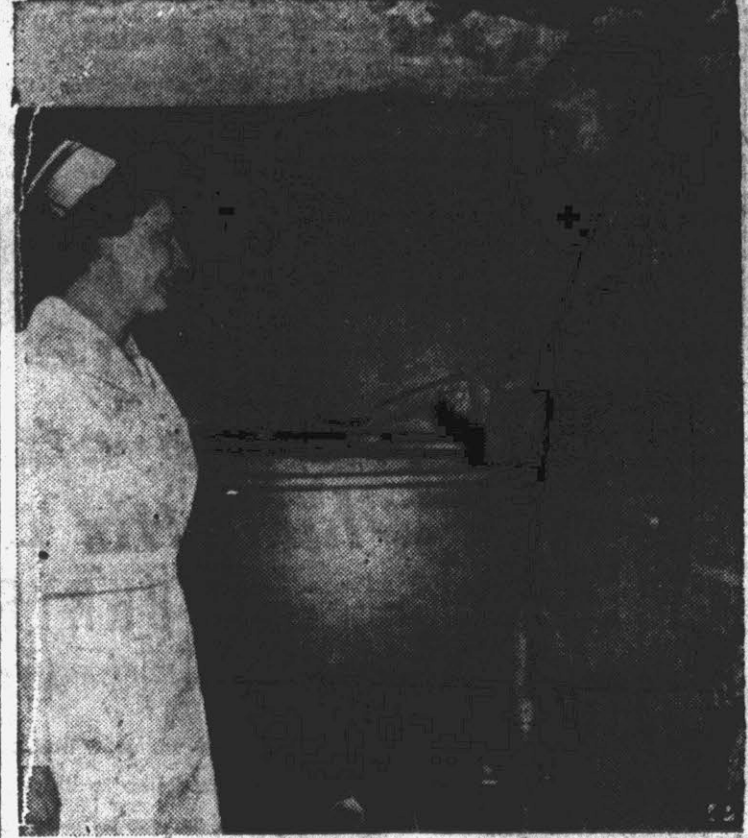

"The what?" He looked up, frowning. "What do I want with them, or are you tired of—"

"Your sister met me outside the courthouse. She said she'd be doing any further chauffeuring necessary."

"And you—"

"No, I didn't feel I'd the right to turn the keys over."

He snatched the keys. "So she'll do the chauffeuring, will she? Well, she will not. Who put her up to this? Is she out in the car now?" And he reached for his crutch.

"Probably," answered Jane demurely, "but the car, Mr. Sheridan, is in the courthouse parking lot."

It took him a moment to comprehend, and then he began to laugh, only to sober. "Was Mrs. Sheridan with her?"

Jane shook her head. "Only Miss Carla Hansen."

Mark Sheridan brought his fist down on the desk so hard it seemed as if the whole room bounced. "As though I didn't have enough on my mind without women. Why do I have to be eternally pestered by them? I can't turn around—"

He did turn around, and saw Miss Jane Grey, reeling slightly. "Well, don't you feel that way?"

Jane swallowed. Just what did he think she was? And why was she as furious with Mark Sheridan for failing to realize she was a woman as she'd been angry at Guffery for refusing her recognition because she was?

"Well, now what's the matter?" he demanded angrily.

Had he been pleasant? He hadn't. Jane tipped her head and told him exactly what was the matter. "You mentioned hands. Have you ever noticed your sister's? No, I thought not, she's a woman. Or have you ever taken any member of your family into your confidence. Have you told them what part of the board has been trying to do to you? Or did you believe, because they were women, they couldn't possibly understand?"

She'd started out of the door when he called her back, motioned with one hand to sit down and with the other answered the telephone. "Yes, Well, tell her to call me back in five minutes."

A frank statement about the gasoline situation

WHEN the history of World War II is written, the contributions of the American oil industry will make a big chapter. Since Pearl Harbor, for instance, it refined 90 billion gallons of gas—82% of all the gas produced by the United Nations. This year, U. S. production of that super fuel, aviation gas, reached the incredible total of 22 million gallons per day! We, the American Oil Company and the Pan American Refining Corporation, are proud of our part in this great achievement.

Petroleum science has learned a lot in war. Great progress has been made. There will be better gasolines—yes! But they won't be atomic. No fuels will take you zooming to Mars. They won't make your car into a B-29.

Our fuels will embody all of the latest scientific advances of the oil industry. Behind them are the great facilities of the American Oil Company and its affiliate, Pan American Refining Corporation.

Now the oil industry is rapidly being converted to peacetime use. Tankers are being released. Restrictions of all sorts are being lifted. Of course, all this can't be done in a day. Benefits for motorists are coming. First came the end of rationing. Better grade gasoline is rapidly going back to the pumps.

We don't want to engage in a battle of adjectives about them. We just want to remind you of the pre-war reputation of Amoco-Gas and American Gas—and promise you that every advancement petroleum science has made will be embodied in these two fine motor fuels in full measure.

AMOCO-GAS and AMERICAN GAS have always been honest products—honestly described. You will buy with confidence knowing that no finer motor fuels can be made. It's not what's in the ads—it's what's in the pumps.

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

CARRYING HEAVY BURDENS
Have you ever watched men loading a moving van? They appear to be able with ease to carry the most impossible burdens. As one watches them it is with the feeling that here are men of superhuman strength.

Yet it is not so much a matter of strength as it is of skill. These men are able to carry such heavy loads because they know how to carry them.

Burden-bearing is an art. We see it not only in the way movers carry heavy pieces of furniture but also in the way people bear the burdens of everyday living. There are some who appear to be able to bear no burdens at all. They break under the least strain. But as in the case of the movers, this is largely a lack of skill rather than a lack of strength. Men who can carry heavy loads in their arms and on their shoulders know first of all how to take hold of their burdens. Furthermore, they know how to lift in such a way that every ounce of strength is utilized. They carry with ease because they know just where to rest the burden.

The same principles apply to bearing burdens of heart and mind.
We have to be resourceful about the way we take hold of them. We have to be able to muster all our strength for the big lift. We have to know where to rest the burden; and that of course is not on our own hearts
but on the Lord's.

When we can do these things, we can carry burdens which seem far beyond our poor powers.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By JACK STINNETT

Washington — Your Capital in Peacetime.

The end of the war has brought about no change in the scarcity of hotel rooms in Washington. If you must visit your nation's capital, be prepared to take a hotel room
sixty miles away from it. Mr. F. Bannell, of New York, representative of Pan-American Airways, did

Bannell was staying at the Hay-Adams. Notified that his five days were up he said a word or two and would have said more but he managed to talk the management of another hotel, the Washington, into taking him in.

Checking out of the Hay-Adams, Bannell recalled he had left something in his room and hurried back up stairs, only to find the new tenant was an old friend.

"To think that I should be moved out of my room for you, Bannell moaned.

"Don't blame me I had to go somewhere, said his friend. "My five days were up and I was just evicted from the Washington."

The friends decided to have a tall one on that and set out for the taproom—at the Statler.

In the loud clamor over discharge inequities for the sailors and soldiers, the plight of many men who wear stripes, bars, leaves or eagles has been overlooked completely.

Two days after Pearl Harbor, 44-year-old Dr. Blank kissed his lucrative Baltimore practice good-bye and offered his services to the medical corps.

He served one year in the hospital in a base training camp in the south, another at a desert training camp in Arizona, two years more (almost) at a base hospital in England (not considered in a combat zone).

Home on his first furlough in all that time, the lieutenant-colonel doctor came to Washington the other day to pick up what he thought was to be his requested discharge.

Instead, he got orders to report to a base hospital for occupation troops in Germany.

If you think this isn't tough, consult your family physician—if you still have one.

It is such cases that are kindling wrath in Congress. Already legislation is threatened to force the Army to return a portion of its physicians to civilian life.

George Abbott, the Broadway entrepreneur, is probably the only producer on record who can take credit for "discovering" an assistant secretary of state.

Some years ago, John Monks, Jr., and Fred Finkelhoff persuaded Abbott to produce a little opus titled "Brother Rat." It had to do with some high-jinks at Virginia Military Institute and the authors called in a VMI classmate to double-check for technicalities.

The World Today

Soviet and British interests clash, and where other interests conflict.
We see that already in the Balkans and in the Mediterranean theater.

These and other controversial factors are creating the difficulties which are troubling the Big Five conference. But all this has been in the cards since the start. These delicate and admittedly dangerous adjustments must be made.

The Nation Today

When management comes to the conference it may feel that some wage adjustment is necessary. But it will almost surely balk at such demands as those of the CIO's super-workers who want a 30 per cent increase.

Here's the best advice that we can give to Plymouth, DODGE, DeSoto and CHRYSLER owners—

With gasoline rationing lifted, we know that now, more than ever, you want to get the best possible use out of your car and we'd like to help you in every way we can. So we offer these suggestions in an effort to be of service to you if you own a Plymouth, Dodge, De Soto or Chrysler car.

1-TAKE CARE OF YOUR CAR UNTIL YOU CAN GET A NEW CAR

Plans are now underway for the making of automobiles during the coming months. But it may be some time before you can get one.

So the wise thing from your standpoint is to give your present car the care it needs to keep it in good running order.

2-TAKE IT TO THE DEALER WHO IS SPECIALLY EQUIPPED TO GIVE YOU SERVICE

There are many reasons why it is to your advantage to take your car to the Plymouth, Dodge, De Soto or Chrysler dealer.

He knows your car and he has special facilities to give you good service. He can apply the experience, equipment and factory-engineered parts to take care of the job.

The Tickers open a two-game stand against Cleveland yesterday and then jump to St. Louis for a pair on Saturday and Sunday.

Binks' boner came in the 12th with the score tied 3-3. At the start of the inning, the sun, which had been hiding in a murky sky all day, came out while Washington was at bat.

Outfielder Sam Chapman of Philadelphia stopped the game and called for his dark glasses. However, when Washington took the field, Binks left his glasses on the bench.

Walter Masterson, second National hurler quickly set two men out and Ernie Kish's high fly to center should have retired the side. But Binks lost the ball in the sun and it fell for a double. After Dick Siebert was purposely passed, George Kelly stroked the payoff poke, a single to right which sent Kish over the plate with the winning run.

The National League flag chase remained unchanged as both Chicago and St. Louis won. The Cubs protected their game and a half net victory by trimming the Pittsburgh Pirates 3-1 in the opener of a scheduled twin-bill. The second game was washed out by a thunderstorm, necessitating a doubleheader today.

The Cards continued to hound the Cubs by battering four Cincinnati hurlers for 12 hits including a home run by White Kurovski, to whip the Reds 9-5. Marty Marion, celebrating the day set aside in his honor as the National League's most valuable player, struck a double during a three-run fifth inning.

The New York Yankees spoiled Dave Ferriss' day at Boston by upsetting the Red Sox rookie 2-1 in a curtailed five-inning second game after the Sox had won the opener 6-5 in 14 innings.

Bobby Feller humbled the Chicago White Sox with four hits in pitching Cleveland to an 8-2 victory.

Hal Gregg pitched Brooklyn to a 9-0 win over the Philadelphia Phillies who turned around and shaded the Dodgers 4-3 in the nightcap.

Boston's Braves slapped down the New York Giants twice, 4-1 and 7-3, to even their season's series at 9-9. Chuck Workman hammered his 24th homer in the opener and Jim Wallace gained his first win for Boston in the second game.

Yesterday's results:
American League
St. Louis 5, Detroit 0
Philadelphia 4-3, Washington 3-4
Boston 4-1, New York 5-2
Cleveland 8, Chicago 2

National League
Chicago 7, Pittsburgh 3 (2nd pld. wet grounds).

AP Sports Writer
Should the Washington Senators fail to win the American League pennant by a single game, the name of George (Bingo) Binks may go down in baseball's history books alongside such celebrated ones as Fred Merkle, Fred Snodgrass, Heinie Zimmerman, Mickey Owen and others whose "boners" cost their respective clubs either a pennant or a World Series.

It was Outfielder Binks' failure to equip himself with sun glasses that cost the Nats a chance for a clean sweep of yesterday's doubleheader with the Athletics and a virtual tie for first place with Detroit's league-leading Tigers, who were beaten by the St. Louis Browns.

The oversight enabled Philadelphia to win the opener 4-3 in 12 innings, the identical score by which the Senators copped the nightcap which was limited to eight innings by darkness.

The split left the Senators one full game behind the Bengais, but three lengths back in the losing column. The Senators can't do anything about it in their own behalf, as their regular ended Sunday. It left Washington in a spot where Detroit now needs to win only two of its remaining contests to cop the flag, in which case the final standings would be:

After Wherry wrote his letter, the White House made public the text of a directive to MacArthur setting forth a policy that made certain military occupation of Japan for a good many years to come.

At the same time disclosure of United States plans for converting the Japanese people into a peaceful people brought to light what probably is the key to criticism expressed by Washington officials of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's estimate of occupation force needs.

This is the revelation that American policy is to be supreme in the control of Japan. However, when possible, agreement of the other big powers—Russia, Britain and China—is to be obtained.

MacArthur said last week that in about six months American forces in Japan probably could be reduced to 200,000 men, a total considerably smaller than earlier estimates.

Without explaining why, Acting Secretary of State Dean Acheson first expressed surprise at the estimate. Then he sharply demurred the general in a public statement that policy is made in Washington and not at headquarters in Tokyo.

Acheson did not explain what was at issue in his criticism.

As a result, confirmation of his promotion from assistant to Undersecretary of State was delayed in the Senate last Thursday. Senators Wherry (Neb.), the Republican Whip, and Chandler, (D-Ky.) blocked action because they contended Acheson had "insulted" MacArthur.

The Senate takes up the nomination again today.

While Acheson did not elaborate in his statement, one point much emphasized by other officials was that the United States should not give any indication to the rest of the world that it was unwilling to carry through the job of making Japan harmless and peaceful.

It now becomes evident that American control of Japanese occupation policies would be lost if this country's forces were reduced to the point where Allied nations provided a large proportion of the occupation troops.

Japan's war leadership is to be housecleaned even down to lesser officials and industrialists who merely helped prepare for aggression.

Its great family monopolies, eight in all, are to be broken up.

Its political system is to be liberalized soon and completely overturned if the Japanese people want that.

Its educational system is to be stripped of militarism and ultranationalism and filled with democratic teachings.

Officials here said all of these things would not be accomplished immediately or in the initial period of military occupation.

The expectation is that after the military leaders have finished their main job of disarming Japan, removing its war supporting industries, and ending its military power, long range control will pass into the hands of civilian officials.

These facts were not known publicly at the time Acheson voiced his criticisms of MacArthur's estimate. Nor were they known Saturday when Wherry announced that he had sent Acheson a long list of questions bearing on Japanese occupation policy.

"With the documents before you, you will have the exact text of my answer and also the official pronouncements of the government on the same subject with which to test the correctness of my statement."

The statement which prompted Wherry's questions were made in response to a news conference question after MacArthur had announced the armed forces in Japan would be limited to 200,000 men. The Army said earlier estimates were 500,000.

In replying, Acheson said "I am surprised that anybody can foresee at this time the number of forces which will be necessary in Japan."

He also said that "the occupation forces are the instruments of policy and not the determinants of policy and the policy is and has been that the surrender of Japan will be carried out."

Japan's war leadership is to be housecleaned even down to lesser officials and industrialists who merely helped prepare for aggression.

Its great family monopolies, eight in all, are to be broken up.

Its political system is to be liberalized soon and completely overturned if the Japanese people want that.

President To Submit Recommendations Soon

By ERNEST B. VACCARO
 Washington, Sept. 24 (AP)—The White House disclosed today that President Truman will submit to Congress his recommendations for the development and use of atomic energy.

Press Secretary Charles G. Ross told reporters that the President "is not setting himself up as sole arbiter of the future of the atomic bomb secret."

The President told reporters last night that he was taking sole personal responsibility for administration policy on the use of atomic energy.

Ross said he wanted to make it clear today that this did not mean that he would play a lone hand.

"The President will submit his recommendations to Congress," Ross said. "He is taking advice from the cabinet but his is the responsibility of deciding what the recommendations to Congress shall be."

It is expected the recommendations will be sent to the hill fairly soon.

 1944 of foreign reports of Japanese atrocities against Allied prisoners. He said he had no specific knowledge of the emperor's reaction, but he believed the emperor told his military leaders and foreign ministry "take action" against such practices.

Kido said that in his opinion the emperor himself had no advance knowledge of the Pearl Harbor attack.

The emperor realized, however, that war at that time was imminent, Kido added. Kido also was not informed in advance that Pearl Harbor was to be attacked, he asserted, and he first heard of it from a radio broadcast he received in his private residence.

Kido was generally regarded by well-informed Japanese, however, as one of the closest wartime henchmen of certain militarists, including Tojo; and he is today one of the strongest members of the Oligarchy currently seeking to prolong its own rule.

Court routine at the palace continued throughout the first day of the war "with nothing unusual occurring," Kido added.

Kido, a short, bespectacled maker of premiers and one of the most influential men in Japan, received me in his plain office in one of the administrative buildings within the Tokyo Imperial palace grounds.

He was appointed to his present post in June, 1940, and long has been considered as one of the major figures in subsequent international events.

Kido said that the emperor had not talked to him about abdication and said that all reports of abdication plans were "false."

Asked what advice he would give if the emperor consulted him upon the question of abdication, Kido said "I haven't decided yet." He added that "abdication is impractical anyway; the emperor is committed to see that provisions of the Potsdam declaration are carried out."

Kido said he told the emperor after the fall of Saipan that the war was lost, but "the real reason" why the emperor was able to obtain surrender 14 months later was the fact "Japan actually was beaten down," and the militarists lacked power then to oppose the throne by continuing the war.

Kido said that he personally had not seen Roosevelt's peace plea, but he said he was convinced that War-time Premier Hideki Tojo had delivered it to the palace and that the emperor ignored it on Tojo's advice.

Kido, however, received the Nov. 26 State Department memorandum with "a shock," he said.

"I had hoped that the Washington conferences might prove fruitful," he added. "But the State Department memorandum which stipulated removal of Japanese troops from China and other requirements made it clear to me that the conferences had gone backward. I submitted the memorandum to the emperor. At that time, I gave no advice."

Others, however, reiterated Kido's previous advice "that it would be unwise for the emperor to oppose

 Pee Dee river near his home.

Three negroes drowned last week at Fayetteville, where the Cape Fear river today had dropped well under the 60-foot mark after being at the record high of 68.9 last week.

All but 100 of the 2,500 persons who had been forced from their homes by flood waters last week, had returned today. The Red Cross was still caring for the others.

At Wilmington, where the Cape Fear's crest is expected to be reached either Wednesday night or Thursday, no great damage was expected. However, weather observer Paul Hess predicted a foot of water and flooded warehouses on Water street.

Meanwhile, in South Carolina the State Highway Department reported at least 10 points closed. Latest to be closed by high water was route 311 at Black River, north of Andrews.

The N. C. Highway Department reported conditions somewhat better today with all main highways opened into Fayetteville from any direction. U. S. 301 at Fayetteville was opened this morning.

Those highways still blocked are: Highways still blocked are: U. S. at Lumberton; U. S. 64 and U. S. 258 at Tarboro, which probably will be opened Tuesday night or Wednesday morning; N. C. 95 east of Rocky Mount, which probably will be opened late this afternoon; U. S. 117 south of Goldsboro, which will be opened during the latter part of the week; and U. S. 701 which will be reopened by the middle of the week after the Cape Fear crests. N. C. 87 remained closed from Elizabethtown to Wilmington and N. C. 53 between Fayetteville and Atkinson.

Highway engineers began surveys today in an effort to determine damage done to the State's highway system, which remained virtually paralyzed east and south of Raleigh for almost a week. They said that no monetary estimate would be available until all surveys have been completed, and added that secondary roads have suffered untold damage.

FRANCE TURNS TO THE LEFT

Communists And Socialists Win In Elections

By ROBERT WILSON
 Paris, Sept. 24 (AP)—The people of France appeared today to have swung overwhelmingly to the left as Socialists and Communists piled up gains in legal government elections.

Returns from yesterday's voting are incomplete, but with one third of the ballots tabulated for 90 councils general—equivalent to American state legislatures—Communists had gained 23 seats and Socialists 102.

The center, represented by the Radical-Socialists and minor parties, had lost 53 seats, while the right wing, represented by Paul Reynard's followers and other groupings, had dropped 121.

No complete census of party strength will be available for another week, since many candidates failed to obtain majorities. There will be a run-off election Sept. 30 to decide these seats.

Detailed assessment of France's political complexion will have to wait until the national elections on Oct. 23 decide the fate of the fourth republic.

Gen. Charles De Gaulle was assured of no embarrassment when all but two of his ministers emerged victorious for unsalaried councillor general posts, which provide administration for France's departments.

War Minister Andre Diethelm failed to win a majority in the Ille-et-Vilaine Department, but his candidate is still subject to run-off elections next week. Interior Minister Adrian Tixier was a candidate in the Haute-Vienne Department, where elections were postponed because of strikes.

Capt. C. W. Tucker Killed In Crash

Mrs. Gay Dupree Tucker, 906 Evans Street, received word September 18th that her husband, C. Waylan Tucker, was killed in an airplane crash July 28th.

Captain Tucker has been reported missing since August 3rd and no details of the crash have been received to date. A letter from the War Department stated he was pilot of a C-100 cargo plane which departed from China on a cargo mission to his home base in the Assom Valley, India. It was also stated the plane was neither seen nor contacted by radio after take-off. There were three others in the crew besides the pilot.

Capt. Tucker enlisted in the army in December, 1940, as a private. In January, 1942, he entered flying school and graduated from Spence Field, Ga., in August, 1942, as a flying sergeant. He was then stationed with the air transport command, Nashville, Tenn., and in November, 1942, received his commission as a second lieutenant.

As a transport pilot Captain Tucker made a dozen or more trips delivering planes of various types to Iceland, Greenland, England, South America, Africa and India before leaving for permanent over-seas duty in February, 1945.

He was stationed in India and flew with the A. T. C. in the I. C. D. theatre ferrying supplies over "the hump." He had completed 36 hump trips and had received the air medal.

Captain Tucker was the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Tucker, 525 Greene Street. He is survived by his wife and young daughter, Juan.
