Strike Picture Brighter Today

Number of Idle Greatly Reduced As Several Labor Disputes Ended; Other Disputes Continue While Still Other Threaten; Telephone Workers May Quit

By The Associated Press A strike of AFL electrical workers shut off hydroelectric power to 14 large Texas towns and about 25,000 rural customers today.

The dispute involved a comparatively small number of employees, approximately 140, as the national total of persons away from jobs because of labor controversies fell to about $2,000, lowest in more than a week.

But there were threats of new stoppages within the near future. The power strike was at the four generating units of the Lower Colorado River Authority in central Texas.

Max Starcke, authority general manager, said the strike was called without notice and there had been no employee complaints regarding wages and working conditions.

In Washington, the CIO oil workers union announced settlement of strikes at two small Detroit plants. The union called this a "first break" as conciliation conferences were resumed with management in an effort to settle the eight-state oil refinery strike involving more than 36,000 workers.

The Pennsylvania-West Virginia coal mining dispute, in which 35,000 are off the job, remained deadlocked. The negotiating committee of the National Bituminous Coal Operators repeated its demand that the strikers resume work before the committee would discuss the dispute.

Directly involved in the controversy are mine foremen and supervisory employees who organized into a branch of the Unaffiliated United Mine Workers of America and demanded collective bargaining rights.

Another new strike kept 13,000 workers from their posts in five General Motors Corporation Frigidaire plants in Dayton, Ohio, where production of refrigerators, halted by the war, was resumed July 25.

A CIO union spokesman said the strike was a protest against "unjustified indefinite suspension of four workers." The company declined to comment.

BYRNES FACES MAJOR ISSUES

Secretary To Return From London Meet This Week

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER Associated Press Diplomatic News Editor Washington, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Secretary of State Byrnes is expected to return from London this week with reports of newly tangled Russian relations stamping the pattern of his main problems for the weeks ahead.

At the same time, Byrnes faces decisions on the virtual crisis which developed in the last few days over Argentina. One of his first tasks must be to confer with his assistant secretary for Latin American affairs, Spruille Braden, on possible strengthening of United States policy on Argentina.

The tension recently developed between Russia and the western Allies—Britain and the U. S.—is viewed here as springing mainly from two sources: 1. An evident desire of London and Washington to check the extent of Russia's direct control over countries in Eastern Europe.

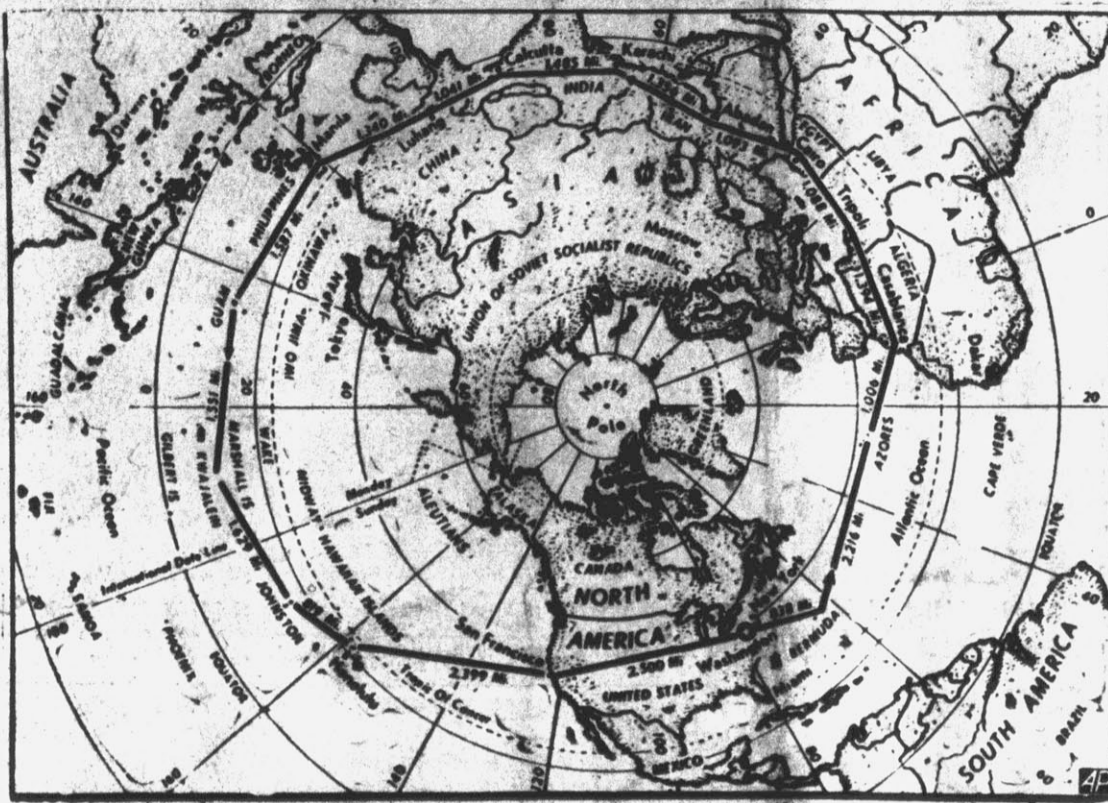

Both things vitally affect Russia's security. Both are believed here to be linked to the fact that the Big Three see eye to eye on virtually no major issue arising at the Council of Foreign Ministers meeting which has held Byrnes in London since early last month.

Here are the main problems ahead of Byrnes as he returns to his desk—the first two directly involving United States friendship with the Soviet Union.

The Balkans—American policy always has recognized Russia's claim to primary interest in the countries along her borders for security reasons. Thus while the United States has argued over the one-party political controls organized in Romania and Bulgaria, it has not directly challenged Russia's dominance there but based its criticisms on lack of a democratic setup.

Now, however, the United States appears to be competing with Russia for favor in Hungary—which Russia has been treating as she (Continued on page two)

Route Of C-54's Around-The-World Flight

This map locates the route of the gigantic C-54 plane's scheduled journey to inaugurate regular "Globster" around-the-world flights. The first plane chaps Washington for its point of departure September 28. Approximately 151 hours will be required for the trip, and flights are planned to start every Friday. (AP Wirephoto Map)

WORLD FLIERS REACH INDIA

Globster Expects To Reach Washington On Schedule

By PAUL MILLER Calcutta, India, Oct. 1.—(AP)—The world-circling Globster arrived here at 1:38 p. m. Greenwich mean time (8:38 a. m. eastern standard time) today and then took off at 3:10 p. m. (10:10 a. m. E. S. T.) for the hop to China.

The C-54 Skymaster was just five minutes ahead of schedule when it left this city in eastern India, and Air Transport Command officers were confident the flight would be finished on time in Washington by Thursday.

The next stop is at Lullung, China, where the transport is due at 5:35 p. m. eastern standard time.

Karachi, India, Oct. 1.—(AP)—The second of four Douglas Sky-master C-54s being used in relay on the new Globster run was readied for departure at 6:15 a. m. today Greenwich time (1:15 AEST Monday) for a 1,485-mile daylight hop to Calcutta.

The flight—first earth-girdling air service—was only slightly behind schedule, with the delay attributable to extra long stopovers rather than loss of time in the air.

A three-hour stop, longest since leaving Washington last Friday, was arranged for Karachi, where the Globster landed after a 1,356-mile flight from Abadan, Iran.

Air Transport Command officers among the seven men and one woman making the entire world-circling flight—the Globster is handling other passengers between intermediate points—are confident the party will be in Washington by Thursday.

Here is the picture in brief going into the Karachi-Calcutta flight: Miles flown: 8,583. Miles to go around the world: 12,254. Elapsed time (including stops): (Continued on page four)

Prospects For Political Peace In China Brighter

Eight Point Program Aimed At Settling Differences Between Communists And Nationalists

By CLYDE FARNSWORTH Chungking, Oct. 1.—(AP)—An eight-point program aimed at erasing differences of years standing between the Chinese Communists and the Kuomintang Nationalist Government has emerged from a month-long discussion between the two principals.

Final decision hinges, however, on whether the Communists will yield in their demands for virtual autonomy. Although danger of failure is still prevalent, prospects seem brighter.

Closely associated with the issue were the policies of Russia and the United States. The recent shifts of American State Department personnel have drawn the interest of the Kuomintang Government, while U. S. Marine landings in North China concerned the Communists.

Above all this, it was learned reliably that both sides agreed to a political union incorporating all party representation, including a section of non-party members. Negotiations presumably are pivoting on the selection of members, voting methods and a specific agenda.

Other issues upon which it is understood agreement has been arrived at are: A policy of peaceful reconstruction under the leadership of Chiang Kai Shek.

Recognition of the equal status of different political parties.

Punishment for traitors and disbanding of puppets. The government emphasized that traitors will be punished with due process of law and that in disbanding puppet troops the peace and security of certain districts were of the utmost consideration, implying the puppets should not be demobilized so swiftly.

Adoption of measures for the democratization of politics and nationalization of the armies, pending the end of one-party rule.

Abolition of laws at variance with the freedoms enjoyed by other democratic countries. Reform of the Central Government's secret police methods to restrict activities of the intelligence and forbid them to make arrests or other detentions.

The council agenda probably also will include such tasks as working out democratization processes for China. A method must be found immediately to deal with the question of participation by parties other than the Kuomintang in government arrangements for the forthcoming National Assembly.

The National Assembly, scheduled for December 12, is involved in one phase of the unsettled argument. The Communists want a postponement to allow revision of regulations governing it as well as revision of the draft of the constitution and a complete new election of delegates in place of the 956 delegates elected 10 years ago.

The government wants to retain all delegates but is willing to add delegates if that will satisfy the Communists.

Washington, Oct. 1.—(AP)—The administration, telling Congress today 8,000,000 people may be unemployed by spring, recommended axes be cut by $5,000,000,000.

This cut, as proposed, would affect individuals and corporations. It would make an estimated 12,000,000 low income people tax-free. It could mean less taxes for all individuals.

John W. Snyder, reconversion director, said the country must "face the fact that substantial unemployment lies ahead."

In his fourth report to Congress and the President, Snyder set the unemployment figure by next spring at perhaps a million.

The House Ways and Means Committee was to send to the full Congress this afternoon a report on its investigation into the "bad debt" case of President Roosevelt's son, Elliott.

There was no advance information on what the report by the majority of the committee would say. The majority is made up of Democrats.

But the Republicans—in a minority—filed a separate report which was made public at noon and said this: The late President "played an important part" in the $200,000 loan his son obtained from John A. Hartford, grocery chain executive.

2. Elliott settled the loan for $4,000 and Mr. Roosevelt "initiated" that settlement for his son. Democratic members of the committee, informed of what the Republicans were saying, said a statement in the record would be just the opposite from what the Republicans reported.

Congressmen Make Report To Truman

Atomic Bomb, Possession Of Enemy Islands And Disposition Of War Surplus Among Items Covered

Washington, Oct. 1.—(AP)—President Truman will send a message to Congress early this week on what he thinks should be done with the atomic bomb secret.

The White House made this announcement today shortly after a House Appropriations Subcommittee which recently toured U. S. military installations around the world left a nine-point recommendation with the President.

Among these recommendations was one that the secrets of atomic energy should be kept to ourselves pending study of the development by scientists who directed the project, the joint chiefs of staff, State Department and Congress.

The sub-committee, headed by Rep. Snyder (D-Pa.), handled the appropriation of funds "for, and maintained the secrecy of, the atomic bomb project," the group reported.

Another point made by the sub-committee, not directly connected with the atomic bomb, was that the War Department is sustaining a loss of prestige abroad because of the apparent lag in the discharge program.

The House group also concluded from their 39-day study abroad that: 1. Possession of enemy islands in the Pacific should be retained by the United States and "we should never have to take them again."

2. Allied islands which our forces found necessary to occupy should be made the subject of joint study to determine to what extent mutual interests, talks for maintenance of bases by lease or cession on mutually satisfactory terms.

3. American surplus war stocks in every foreign country should be regarded as a national asset, including lend-lease goods that the borrower does not now care to pay for. These stocks should be sold immediately or exchanged for the best values obtainable, including currencies, deliveries of raw materials, legation or embassy properties, commercial or military rights.

"Speed is necessary to avoid depreciation and to expedite demobilization."

4. The world wide networks of airways, landing fields, weather and traffic controlled facilities established during the war should be conserved and private lines encouraged to operate them.

5. There is a world-wide tendency to regard the United States as a country of unlimited wealth. We should say frankly to every country asking aid that here, as there, wealth is produced only by work and that if the supplies or credits (Continued on Page Two)

Discusses Philippines Washington, Oct. 1.—(AP)—President Truman discussed with Sergio Osmena, president of the Philippines, and others today how to make the islands "ready for independence," the White House announced.

It was said Mr. Truman will have something to say about this subject at his next regular news conference, scheduled for 4 p. m. Eastern Standard Time, Wednesday.

Scores Killed In Wreck In Britain

London, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Rescue workers expressed fear today that bodies of additional victims may be buried in the twisted wreckage of the Scottish Express, which cracked up 30 miles outside London yesterday with known casualties of 39 dead and 94 injured.

The express was nearing the end of its 450-mile overnight journey from Perth, Scotland, when the locomotive jumped a switch and plunged down a 20-foot embankment, dragging 16 passenger coaches with it.

He hasn't yet—tried to parry questions the way President Roosevelt, an expert question turner, did. His years in the White House gave Mr. Roosevelt plenty of experience in brushing off—by wisecrack or some other means—questions he chose not to answer.

"That's an iffy question," was one of his favorite devices for ducking a direct answer to a question about something that hadn't happened, but might.

This was another. To start talking about a man who had strawberries for sale.

Once Mr. Roosevelt—still ducking—told a questioner to go stand in a corner with a dunce cap on.

So far Mr. Truman's technique has been rat-a-tat: Answer the questions, most questions, fast and (Continued on page four)

Bank Of Japan Closed And 21 Other Institutions Seized By MacArthur's Forces During Investigation; Steps Taken To Prevent Use Of Shintoism By Militarists

By RUSSELL BRINES Tokyo, Oct. 1.—(AP)—American occupation authorities today began a quest for untold millions of dollars in gold, silver and currency which Japan was believed to have wrested from the lands it overran in its try for world domination.

The search paralleled other probes into imperialistic war-financing, made possible through General MacArthur's bold, secret seizure today of 21 government-controlled financial institutions in Tokyo and six other large cities, and the ousting of their officials.

The Bank of Japan, the nation's largest financial institution, one-quarter owned by the Japanese imperial household, was closed by an order of the Allied Command.

It will open tomorrow, said Col. R. P. Kramer, MacArthur's economic and scientific chief, "if the Japanese provide full cooperation" in locating the assets of the seized institutions which had office space in the Bank of Japan building.

American troops on guard around the bank assured depositors, many of them women sobbing in fear that they might lose their life savings, that their funds were safe.

The hunt for the missing funds that once belonged to the Philippines, China and other nations began with a conference of Colonel Kramer and Viscount Keizo Shibusawa, governor of the Bank of Japan, and other leading Japanese financial figures.

The Japanese denied that the Bank of Japan held any foreign money, denied any knowledge of a possible hiding place, and maintained they had no control over financial activities of field military commanders.

The bankers gave Colonel Kramer an estimate of the gold reserves of the country. The total amount was said to be Japan's total reserves, except for small amount earmarked for shipment to Indo-China and Siam, but the figure was not disclosed immediately.

Kramer previously had announced that the Finance Ministry estimated Japan's gold reserve at $125,000,000. Meanwhile, the newspaper Asahi reported that Kenji Kodama, former head of the Central China Development Company, one of the firms ordered closed, had been appointed new president of the Central Liaison Office, the Japanese agency that receives and passes on to the proper department the directives of the Allied Command.

Col. Ken R. Dyke, head of MacArthur's civil information and education section, announced an investigation of Shintoism. He explained "We aren't trying to interfere with anyone's religion, but we are going to be certain it isn't used as a tool for militarists. The government has poured a lot of money into Shinto during the war."

There were these other developments: Shigenori Togo, foreign minister at the time of Pearl Harbor who (Continued on Page Four)

Ministers Fail In Accord On European Peace Issues

By FLORA LEWIS London, Oct. 1.—(AP)—The Council of Foreign Ministers, still seeking a foundation for Europe's peace structure, made a last minute effort to reach agreement today after the Soviet Union reportedly refused to sign conference documents unless her Balkan treaty demands were met.

Delegates remained in session until after 1 a. m. debating the same subject which has been argued for (Continued on Page Two) so on to the next. This has served these purposes: It seeds up his news conferences, provides a lot of news, and gets a lot of questions answered.

Sometimes, though, Mr. Truman feels he is not prepared to answer a certain question and says so. So far no real damage has been done through Mr. Truman's answers which have given erroneous impressions of what he thinks or means.

Here's an example of how the White House feared a wrong impression might have been given. When he returned to the White House from a weekend outing, the President met reporters who asked him about reports that there had been a lively cabinet session dealing with the atomic bomb.

Mr. Truman said the reports were not correct, that the meeting simply produced a discussion on what administration policy was to be on the subject.

The President went on to say that in the final analysis he and he alone would take full personal responsibility for the future use and development of atomic energy.

Immediately this statement received front page play in newspapers and top spot on radio broadcasts. The next day the White House, explaining it didn't want the wrong impression placed on the President's meaning, said that what he really intended was this:

"There were taking the responsibility of deciding what recommendations he should make to Congress. (Continued on page four)

The WORLD TODAY

An Analysis Of The News

By DEWITT MACKENZIE AP Foreign Affairs Analyst They say the lessons we remember the best are those we learn the hard way, and on this basis the fiery conference of Big Five foreign ministers in London is likely to be productive in the long run, since it has defined sharp differences which should be reconciled if world peace is to prevail.

The fact that these divergencies exist shouldn't be discouraging. On the contrary, it has been certain all along that the remoulding of a large portion of our chaotic world would be attended by just such difficulties. What the council of foreign ministers has achieved is to bring these differences out into the open where they can be dealt with.

The main lesson of this two-day conference is that the United Nations must not—as they love their lives—accept the theory that the world has to be divided up again into air-tight spheres of influence among the Big Three or the Big Five or any other group of "Big's." That's what makes war.

Of course there always will be groupings of nations to meet collective interests. But these must be beneficial groups which will be cooperative with one another. They must be such as will fit into the structure of our new world security organization.

The trouble is that the "Big's" entertain a lot of hot suspicions of one another. Those suspicions can only be removed by putting all the cards on the table. That's why the foreign ministers' council has been doing useful work.

John M. Hightower, AP diplomatic news editor in Washington, says the tensions developed between Russia and the Anglo-American Allies, are viewed in the Capital as springing mainly from two sources: (1) An evident desire of London and Washington to check the extent of Russia's direct control over countries in eastern Europe. (2) Prolonged uncertainty in the American government over what to do with the atomic bomb secret.

There, I judge, we see the suspicions at work on both sides. Appropos of the atomic bomb, a London dispatch records an incident showing the bargaining power which the bomb gives Uncle Sam. Russian Foreign Commissar Molotov remarked at a dinner party that U. S. Secretary of State Byrnes "doesn't need to hold up a little bomb." Well, of course that must be labelled as a wise crack—but I think we may assume it was intended to pack a wallop.

Now there are two ways of dealing with these suspicions and differences of opinion. One is to bring them into the open and threaten them out with toleration. The other is to cultivate them until finally they have to be settled in another world upheaval. We can take encouragement from the fact that all the Allies appear to be anxiously seeking a peaceful solution.

One of the most hopeful developments of the foreign ministers' conference has been the American pro- (Continued on Page Four)

Walter Harrington War Fund Chairman

Sam B. Underwood, Jr., county chairman of the United War Fund has announced the appointment of Walter L. Harrington as township chairman for Greenville during the coming campaign.

Mr. Underwood feels that Mr. Harrington is well-qualified for the position, and feels that Greenville is fortunate in securing his service during this drive. Mr. Harrington will form a complete organization in Greenville township for the purpose of soliciting the United War Fund quota for the support of the Service agencies such as the USC and Foreign Relief agencies such as the Greek and Chinese. This campaign will begin the second week in October.

Veterans' Night

The High School Athletics Association announced today that they are inviting all service men and veterans to be guests at the Tarboro - Greenville football game here Friday night. All service men and veterans who attended the local school are to have reserved seats.

Coch Boley Fittley said in making this announcement, that it would be impossible to contact all the veterans personally and that he hoped that all alumni would turn out for the game. There will also be a get-together of former high school athletes and students who have been away in the service. More definite plans will be announced later in the week.

Today In Congress

Congress this week went into its second month of discussion with only one of President Truman's legislative proposals written into law. Without controversy, the President won approval of his recommendation that the Surplus Property Board of three members be telescoped into a single administrator.

Everywhere else along the line there have been fights, delays or just plain inaction.

Although the Senate remains in weekend recess until tomorrow, many of the members will be busy in committees.

One, the Education and Labor Committee, is reported about ready to stamp its okay on another Truman suggestion: A federal aid program for hospitals.

Biggest issue is whether the government should put up $100,000,000 or $50,000,000 a year during the next five years. A compromise may be still have to act, then the House worked out. The whole Senate will be out.

Thus far Mr. Truman's "old friends of the Senate" have been kindest—relatively—to his proposals. (Continued on page four)

"Reality" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science Churches and Societies on Sunday, September 30.

The golden text was from Lamentations 19: "Thou, O Lord, remainest forever; thy throne from generation to generation."

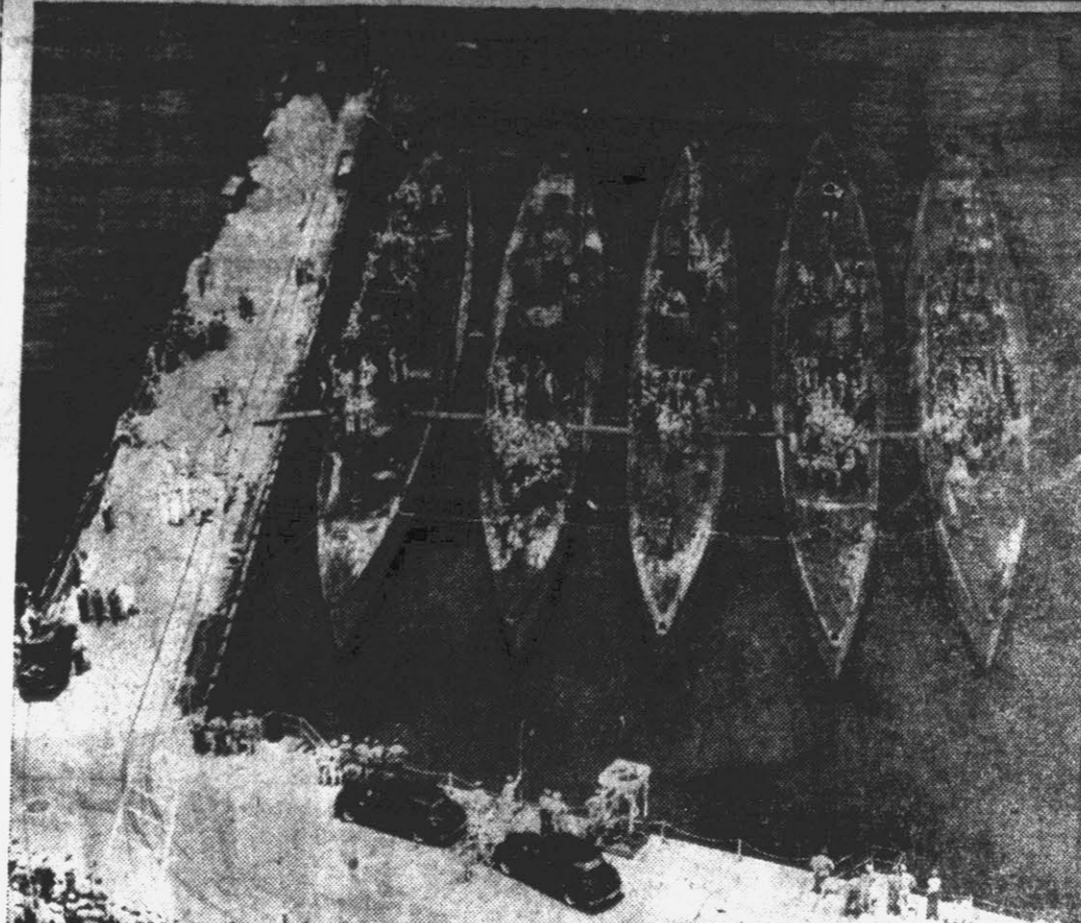

Among the citations comprising the lesson-sermon were the following from the Bible: "Lord, thou hast been our dwelling place in all generations. Before the mountains were brought forth, or ever thou hadst formed the earth and the world, thou art God. Let thy work appear unto thy servants, and thy glory unto their children." (Psalms 90:1-2, 16)

The lesson-sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "There is but one primal cause. Therefore there can be no effect from any other cause, and there can be no reality in aught which does not proceed from this great and only cause. Reality is spiritual, harmonious, immutable, immortal, divine, eternal."

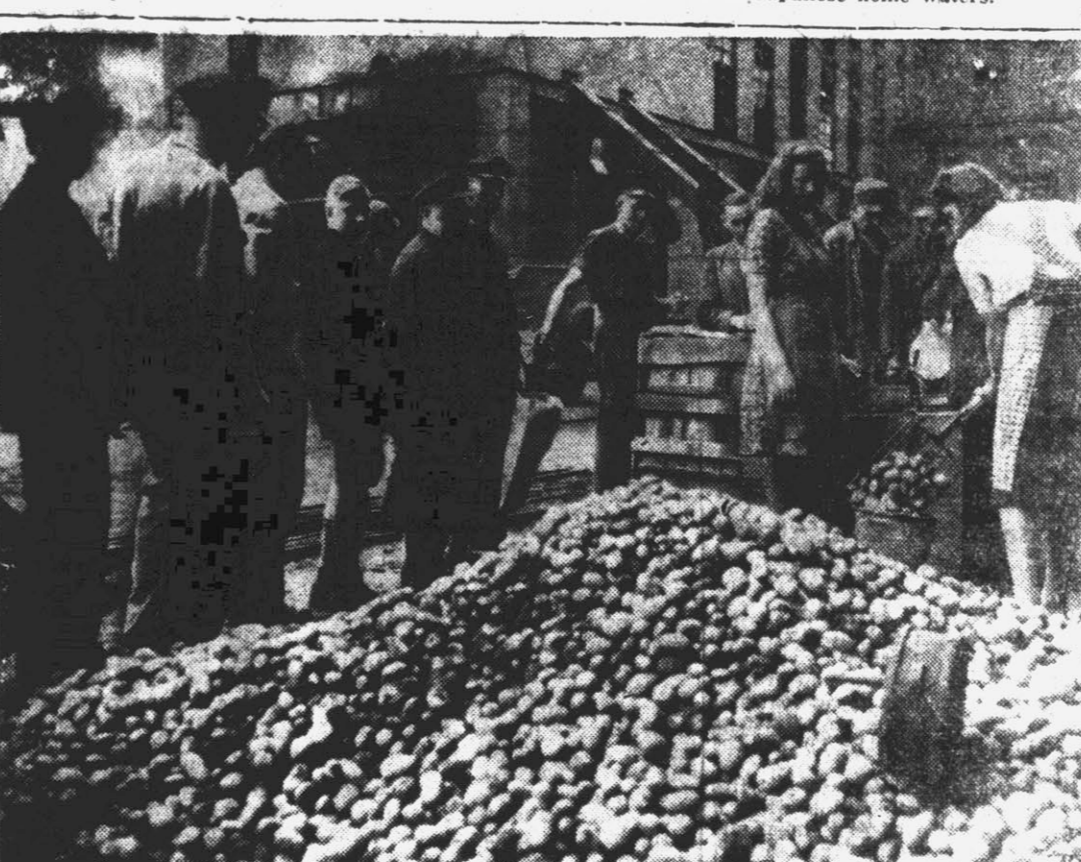

WOMEN IN THE CHURCH
The National Board of the Young Women's Christian Associations of the United States is collaborating with the World Y. W. C. A. and with South American associations in a "Good Neighbor Policy" of their own. They are planning to add to the number of "Y" staff members serving in Mexico, Brazil, Chile, Argentina, Uruguay and Peru; and are planning to train new national leaders, extend their services to new cities and rural centers, and develop a health education program, and a program for young women in educational institutions.

Children from homes of Protestants, Roman Catholics and Jews attended an interfaith vacation church school at Mitchell Gardens, a federal housing project near Mitchell, S. C., during the summer. The school was directed by Miss Martha Jean Leath, field worker for the Volunteer Service Division of the Home Missions Council, an interfaith agency of 23 denominations. The members gave their services three mornings each week for three weeks, leading the children in religious, recreational and educational programs. Because of the inter-faith aspects of the school, religious teaching was based on common elements in the children's understanding of faith, such as prayer, hymn singing and the leadership of minister, priest, or rabbi. Interpretation of Old Testament stories was worked out in song, dramatization, drawings and storytelling. Sixty-two children registered for the school.

In a message addressed to the women of the world, Mrs. Sibley, president of the United Council of Church Women, declares: "The framework of the Charter of the United Nations is merely the skeleton of the new world organization. It must have flesh and blood and the breath of life. The women of the world are needed to make it come alive. The women of the church have a special commitment to its fulfillment. We know that the new world order must be built on new world-minded persons; that international trusteeship must be founded on the concept of personal responsibility. We must match the sacrifices of war with sacrifices worthy of the peace for which we pray. We must set our faces against the temptations of fear, indifference and disillusionment."

Red Oak News

This paragraph is directed to the twenty-eight people in Red Oak community who did not, for various reasons, attend Sunday school anywhere last Sunday. If you had been present, our roll would have read, one-hundred present instead of seventy-two. For three months we have been striving hard to have one hundred present at Sunday school and only one Sunday have we accomplished our goal. Please the twenty-eight of you, who missed last Sunday, won't you come next Sunday? We need you, you need us and we want you to come. Be on time, ten o'clock and we promise that you will be dismissed on time every time. We'll be looking for you!

New life is beginning to come back to the community as our boys and girls are coming back home—some to take their places in the life of the community, some on a visit and some on furloughs.

Charles Manning, who is a R. O. T. C. student at State College, was home for the week-end and he was in his place at Sunday school. Charles is one of the finest boys in the neighborhood. He has always taken an interest in the betterment of the community. He graduated with highest honors at Winterville High School last June and we wish him the best in his future life wherever he goes. He is the fourth son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Manning.

Miss Joy Tyson spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Tyson. She graduated from Greenville High this past spring and she is now a student at King's Business College in Raleigh.

Milton May received a fifteen-day extension and was present at Sunday school last Sunday. Milton was one of the most faithful members of the Sunshine class. He always has taken a great interest in Red Oak and has always filled his place when he could.

Aibion Bright, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Bright, has received an honorable discharge from the army after having been in service for several years.

He left Greenville with the National Guard and saw action in the European theater of war. We are glad to welcome Aibion back.

Clifton Crawford has received his discharge and is spending some time at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Crawford. Clifton is a graduate of E. C. T. C. and was principal at some school out of the county prior to entering the service. He saw service in England, France and Germany. Clifton played the piano at Sunday School yesterday. He played the organ for six days in camp in England and he would play the piano in the pubs while soldiers and sailors gathered around to sing

COUSIN—Miss Jean Martineau, who is a V.A.D. at St. Thomas hospital, London, is the only daughter of Mrs. Cyril Martineau, who was a first cousin to President Roosevelt.

We are always glad to have Clifton come back to Red Oak.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Ferrell spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Causey. Mrs. Ferrell was Dean Allen before her marriage. She and her husband work at the shipyards in Portsmouth.

Elby Forest has received a fifteen-day extension and was a visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Tyson this week-end.

"Plans For Your Home," will be the topic discussed at the Home Demonstration Club which will be held at the club house Wednesday night, October 3rd, at 8 o'clock. The men are invited to attend this meeting with their wives. Lets have a large crowd present.

Miss Lillian Joyner and Miss Mimi Tripp and Bud Joyner are attending E. C. T. C. Lillian and Mimi are staying in the dormitory.

The Russians based their insistent demands on the Potsdam decision that only nations which signed an armistice with the defeated Axis satellites be permitted to write peace treaties with those nations. China and France, both members of the Five Nation Council, were not armistice signatories.

With the conference's end imminent, informed sources gave these reasons for failure of the ministers to agree on major peace problems:

1. Lack of preparation and advance exchanges of views.

2. The fact that three of the ministers—James F. Byrnes of Britain, and Wang Shih-Chieh of China—are new appointees.

3. What was described as Soviet sensitivity over publicity which pictured the U. S. in a more powerful economic and military position.

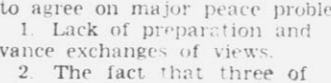

4. Mutual suspicion.

5. The varying interpretations of such words as "democracy" among the powers.

SAYS MILLIONS TO BE JOBLESS

Snyder Predicts Eight Million Idle By Next Spring

Washington, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Reconversion Director John W. Snyder said today there may be 8,000,000 unemployed by next spring with "high unemployment" persisting through 1946.

He made this prediction in a 46-page report to the President and Congress. It was his fourth report. He labeled it "Three Keys to Reconversion—Production, Jobs, Markets."

Snyder's forecast was based on the contention that job-giving will be unable to keep pace with a prospective million-a-month demobilization.

But he was "firmly optimistic" about the future, provided the nation works as a team. He asserted: "Prompt, peaceful settlement of labor-management differences is a reconversion 'must.'"

2—Congress should act promptly on those four points in the President's program call for "full employment, transitional tax adjustments, broadening and raising unemployment compensation, and raising minimum wages."

(Three tax steps recommended were: repeal of the 3 per cent normal tax on individuals, repeal of the excess profits tax, effective January 1 next, and extend a definite date for reducing excises.)

3—The executive branch "must and will be as vigorous in its policies and programs to solve peacetime problems as it was in solving wartime problems."

4—Cooperation and teamwork among "management and labor, business and farmer, federal, state and local governments" is indispensable, if there is to be a rapid expansion of peacetime production, jobs for all those willing and able to work, and stable markets for business and agriculture.

Pointing to prospects of about 8,000,000 unemployed by spring, Snyder said the country must "face the fact that substantial unemployment lies ahead."

"That, in itself," he continued, "will not stamp reconversion successful or unsuccessful. It takes time for industry to turn around—to stop work on munitions and retool for work on peacetime products."

Asserting that the nation has "come a long way in reconversion," Snyder added:

"The initial shock is over. Most war contracts have been cancelled, most lay-offs are behind us. Though the government is withdrawing from the market on a record scale, there is an offset in per-capita, record-breaking demand for goods of all types by consumers and producers both at home and abroad."

Of the future the reconversion

Congressmen Make . . .

6. China offers "the largest and most fruitful angle" field in the world for American foreign trade.

7. Current appropriations for the War Department should be reviewed and reduced by at least $27,000,000,000. (The President only recently recommended such a cut.)

The subcommittee said care should be taken to insure continuing research and development in such fields as jet propulsion, radar, rocket projectiles and atomic power.

Instead of Him

By PEGGY O'MORE

Chapter 29

As the days passed, Jane found that she alone was holding out. Another board meeting was scheduled, and she would have to make up her mind soon.

Mark Sheridan wired the day before the board meeting. "Read your report; what's holding you? Advise me but will rely on your judgment."

Jane did not sleep that night. Instead she paced the floor of her room until it became so hot she went down through the darkened house and paced the terrace outside.

Was she being bull-headed, stubborn, suspicious? Maybe. Yet, considering what Carter had done in the past, could risk Gram's and Sheridan's future by voting yes, for Gram too would take her word.

Evelyn lighted the small fire laid on the hearth, then hurried to the kitchen to mix a hot lemon wine which Jane sat close to the flames, thinking what a fool she was acting for an executive.

"Here, drink this," Evelyn ordered. "You've decided what you're going to do?"

"I suppose I'll have to vote for the expansion," Jane answered. "We need it so terribly, even for the work at hand. And the orders—you know how our mail and wire service has grown. It breaks my heart to answer that we can't promise delivery; that we'll let them know in a few days or weeks when we know it may be months."

"But, Jane, if Mr. Carter weren't mixed up in this, if it were only a normal board with everyone pulling together honestly, you wouldn't worry about the assessments, would you?"

"No, we'd follow each step and curtail. We couldn't do that with less than a fifty-one per cent vote."

"And there isn't anyone now holding stock that you could swing to you?"

Jane had put another small log on the fire, had watched the flame catch the peeling bark and then the heart of the wood, flaring up until it turned the dark room into a golden cave.

"No," she sighed, "unless it would be the mythical man, L. Johnson—"

"Jane."

She looked up to see Evelyn, hands to both cheeks, her eyes wide with horror.

"Evelyn, what on earth?"

"On earth—he isn't Jane, that's Roy. Jane—Roy is Leroy Johnson."

"I'd forgotten about the stock; I never really knew Roy was working at the plant when it first opened; that made him eligible."

"Why, Jane?" She sat up. "Jane Grey, go you realize Carter had to put the sale of that stock through before I received my inheritance or he'd lose control of the stock? He'd lose even his fifty per cent control of the votes and we'd have—"

"Fifty-two," answered Jane softly. "Yes, I realize that."

"That's why he's been so nasty—nice to me, trying to influence me if he couldn't buy. And, Jane, that's why he's tried to spoil our friendship."

"Yes."

"Jane hadn't this ever occurred to you before?"

"Once," murmured Jane. "And you didn't tell me?"

"How could I, Ev? I'd suggested you check on the stocks before you sold. You remember what you said, presented, and I will always listen to your side before I make a decision."

A shipment of iron from Guffery had been caught in the Ogden, Utah, bottleneck. It would take action on the spot to have the car singled out, rerouted and sent on its way in time to dovetail the finished orders going out.

"Ev—Jane, hat barely on her head, spoke to her companion—"

"Take over, will you? I'm catching the next plane for Ogden; some blessed man had a change of heart and I won his seat. Better get Judge Morgan in; Carter is being a very good boy since you became an acknowledged stockholder, but I still don't trust him."

"I don't know how long I'll be away."

It was really too easy. This was an agricultural country, and the Sheridan pumps were well known. Jane started back to Salt Lake City, from where she'd take her west-bound plane.

If a man, heading for the east-bound plane, hadn't received a telegram at the precise moment he was passing Jane; if he hadn't also had a reservation at the New Strathmore in Washington, D. C.—but he had, and who was she to fly in the face of destiny?

Chapter 30

Jane came down into the airport, bewildered, and her bewilderment increased as they approached the capital. It seemed suddenly corpulent, overgrown, even rowdy. Eagerly she identified landmarks, reassured herself that this was a former home ground.

She spoke to the cab driver as they near a spot where she'd once sat swinging her heels while her mother watched models parade. "Can you take my bags on to the hotel?"

Her family name was magic. They had exactly what Miss Grey would need; yes, they'd send everything to the hotel by messenger, immediately.

No sooner was she in her room than she was at the telephone.

The operator seemed forever reaching Mark Sheridan's office. When she did, an impatient voice insisted Mr. Sheridan was not in nor would he be in before the following day.

She tried his club. He was not there. No, they could not say when or if he'd return that evening; was there any message?

From the club secretary, after identifying herself, Jane received the comforting news that Mr. Sheridan was dining at the New Strathmore that evening with his former secretary. "As you are his Western manager, Miss Grey, you doubtless know Miss Hansen."

The boxes had arrived from the modiste's while Jane was talking. She turned to eye them now. "And to think of the money I've wasted—"

Or had she? "But if he's fool enough to be even seen with Carla—"

And how did she know that his dinner engagement with Carla wasn't business?

Suddenly her head went up and she dashed to the telephone to call friends in Alexandria. She'd dine in the same room with Carla and

"Don, Jane Grey speaking. Don, would you and Ruth be my guests this evening?"

Ruth was in North Carolina, but Don would be delighted to act as Jane's escort.

She found him awaiting her, handsome and distinguished in his lieutenant-colonel's uniform, and it was balm to her torn spirit to realize this husband of an often-visited school friend didn't recognize her.

"What have you done to yourself?" he demanded abruptly. "It's that hat with the shiny thingamabobs on it?"

"Russian shako with sequins," laughed Jane. "And the dress?"

He shook his head. "Ruth's been bemoaning the passing of long formals, but that—"

"He laughed with her. "I'll bet before this evening's over Ruth's going to receive a wire from green-eyed Mata Hari. That calls for orchids, green ones, and wine telling her I'm stepping out with a boy rounds them up we'll have cocktails and you'll tell me what's hiding behind those restless eyes. You know you've looked at every man in the lobby in the last five minutes."

In the shadowy intimacy of the cocktail lounge she told him everything, and was rewarded by the boyish grin which was ever his greatest asset, fooling his enemies into believing no genius could look so guileless.

"Tell me," she ordered.

"Your Miss Carla has been wanting to work on me for some time," he confessed. "I'll give her the opportunity tonight. We'll try to make it a foursome, and if I can tear her away from the mighty Mark, I'll take her off his hands and drop her some place—Speaking of the angels—"

Mark and Carla were just entering the lounge. Jane found her hands making strange little feminine movements, smoothing the blouse with its adroitly set sequins. She took a hurried glance into a nearby mirror for reassurance.

They waited quietly until the other two repaired to the dining room; that is, Don waited quietly. Jane hadn't known she had so many nerves, all clamoring for action.

"Ready?" Don stood up and offered his arm, and slowly, taking their dignified time, they walked to the dining room and to their table, not to far from Mark Sheridan's.

"Don't look," whispered Don, "but our girl friend is about to be carried out on a stretcher. She has no pulse; she's drawn his attention to you—Here he comes—"

Jane looked up to see Mark Sheridan, having committed the unpardonable sin of leaving Carla alone, bearing down on their table.

"Why—why, Miss—Miss—"

"Good evening, Mark; haven't you two met before? This is Miss Grey."

Don, thought Jane several times that evening, was being wasted in Washington. He should have been a field marshal. She other three merely responded to his direction.

Somehow he caught and held Carla Hansen's indignant attention away from the other two.

"I—" began Sheridan, when Don arose, Carla with him. "Excuse us a moment," he asked. "There's something I want to show Miss Hansen. They were barely out of the dining-room when Sheridan arose abruptly. "Let's get out of this place. About as much privacy as in a fish-bowl, and what I want to discuss—"

Plenty Of Floor Space—Plenty Of Selling Time

The Greenville warehousemen cleared their floors Friday afternoon. With lots of tobacco growers giving their time to peanuts and hay this week, sales will be lighter on the Greenville market. Lighter sales, plus plenty of floor space and the selling time of five sets of buyers means prompt sales.

Strength FOR THE DAY
 By EARL L. DOUGLAS

THE BEST THING OF ALL
 A few days before John Wesley died, as he lay in bed, he raised his gaunt arms toward heaven and cried out: "The best thing of all is that God is with us." They carved these words on his tomb in Westminster Abbey.

It must have been hard for Wesley to believe this sometimes. He was a minister of the Church of England, yet the doors of practically every church in that communion were barred against him. When he appeared in public to preach the gospel of love, he was met with fury and a volley of stones. His home life was one long tragedy. He began to preach when the moral of England were at a low point indeed, and all his life had to protest against evil in a country where the light of true religion was almost ready to snuff out. Yet through all these years Wesley carried in his heart the unshakable conviction that God was always with him and with his people.

Certainly the best thing in all the world is and always has been the certainty men may have God's unflinching support. No tragedy is too deep, no disappointment too devastating, no sinful relapse too shameful, if the reality of this great truth.

If we can only keep vivid in our minds a sense of God's perfection and His unflinching faithfulness in all things, it will make bearable many a heavy burden.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK
 By JACK STINNETT

(Last Of Four Articles)
 Washington—International Training Administration: The service organization for hundreds of foreign on-the-job trainees in United States industry and agriculture is one war-worn agency that is expanding.

It is in the midst now of moving to larger quarters. It also is in the midst of "processing" 250 newly-arrived young Chinese who will not see their native land again until the second anniversary of the surrender of Japan.

Soon after ITA started as a government agency called "Inter-American Trade Scholarship" an intensive survey of 400 companies brought responses from 99 per cent of them that they would be willing to give hand-picked young men and women of other countries on-the-job training.

As the program got under way, the benefits to the United States to our "good neighbors" and to American business men became strikingly apparent.

What had been an idealistic dream of some State Department officials and some forward-looking exporters suddenly became the concern of a large number of the fact that the young men and women would be trained in American industry and commerce. As a result, they would be able to help our country in the war effort.

The State Department, the War Relocation Authority, and the War Relocation Authority in China and India have a common matter in the solution of the war effort.

The young men and women who have been trained in American industry and commerce are being sent to their native lands to help in the war effort.

fit, industry-sponsored private service organization, such men as William L. Batt of SKF Industries; James B. Carey, CIO secretary-treasurer; Julius G. Luhrs, executive secretary of the Railway Labor Executives Assn.; Harrison Jones, chairman of the Coca-Cola Co.; Robert J. Watt, AFL executive; and Joseph Rovensky, vice president of Chase National bank, were among those joining hands on ITA's board of directors.

The end of lend-lease put an end to any future projects from the Foreign Economic Administration, which was the largest unit ITA was serving. But it is believed that some other government agencies, governments of other countries, and industries and civic organizations here and abroad will more than take up that slack.

The lesson has been learned, Hanson and his associates say.

 posal, put forward by Secretary Byrnes, that the carrying out of the Japanese surrender terms be placed under the direction of a Far Eastern commission. This would comprise not only America, Russia, Britain and China but France, the Philippines, Australia, New Zealand, Canada and the Netherlands. That is a generous and friendly gesture by the United States. We haven't had time yet to learn its effect, but it may well be the entering wedge which will help crack open the Balkan differences between Russia and the Western Allies. Solution of the Balkan troubles would in turn give a fillip to adjustment arguments elsewhere.

We have a long, tough road to travel before all our problems are solved, but there's no occasion for great pessimism now.

Today In Congress

 They passed a so-called "full employment" bill last week. It was a watered down version of the administration leaders wanted, but most observers thought it would be satisfactory to the White House.

The Senate also approved an unemployment compensation measure. But it was one Mr. Truman did not like much. He said the senate let him down when it didn't provide for $25 jobs per 100 weeks. Later a House committee shelved the whole thing.

Still later the White House issued a statement emphasizing that Mr. Truman's $25 a week proposal "does not mean that everybody would get $25 a week." The statement stressed that the figure would be a ceiling and that state laws which determine weekly benefits on a percentage of wage loss would remain in effect.

In passing the bill, the senate took another which cut off Mr. Truman's recommendations. It wanted the wartime Employment Service kept in Federal control for a while. Senate voted to give it back to the states.

For its efforts the House could show its approval of the surplus property measure and a bill to create a three-year highway program costing $1,500,000,000. That one of Mr. Truman's in his words "recommendations seemed in line for quick Senate approval."

The Senate voted 60-40 on another presidential proposal of $100,000,000 federal aid yearly for support construction.

But nothing concrete has been done yet about the bulk of Mr. Truman's major proposals.

The newspaper Imanichi reported that Kiyoshi Miki, professor and philosopher, died in prison Wednesday and that other Japanese political prisoners, arrested six months ago without explanation, still were in jail.

Gen. Robert L. Edelberger, commander of the U.S. 8th Army, said he would inspect all units of his occupation force on Honshu, and visit Hokkaido after the 81st Division lands at Sapporo, administrative center of Hokkaido, Oct. 5.

Gen. Toyama formerly surrendered the 51,000 troops of his 88th Japanese army on Cheju Island, in the East China Sea south of Korea.

The First Marine Division—veterans of Guadalcanal, Palau and Okinawa—landed at Tientsin in northern China to help Chinese disarm 250,000 unconquered Japanese troops.

The Marines, not an occupation force, are to help the Chinese police the area, liberate 2,900 Allied prisoners of war and civilian internees; prevent trouble by 232,000 Chinese puppet troops; arrest war criminals; protect United States nationals, property and records, and guard and care for 200,000 Japanese civilians.

By SID FEDER

Detroit, Oct. 1—(AP)—Autotown was a somewhat series-silly city today.

Probably the hottest of all diamond-daffy burps — not excepting Brooklyn — when things are going along just normal-like, Detroit let its hair down and blew the roof off for fair this time.

And some of the folks were even thinking of a Greenberg-for-mayor movement for that grand slam Hank hammered to win Detroit's seventh American League pennant for the Tigers in St. Louis yesterday.

But, in spite of the delirious doings, there were still a lot of headaches — and not of the hangover variety — in the way of setting up the stage for the start of the world series with the Chicago Cubs Wednesday. The toughest touch was not only in how to fit 300,000 customers into a 55,000-seat ball park, but also how to cram thousands upon thousands more into hotels already bulging at the seams.

The local ins are so loaded, in fact, that two lake steamboats have been tied up at the Woodward Avenue docks to handle the overflow — and they already have the standing-room-only sign out, too.

Naturally, there aren't going to be 300,000 in Mr. Briggs' ball yard when the Tigers and Chicago Cub curvers — presumably Lefty Hal Newhouser and the $100,000 arm, Hank Borowy, for the opener — walk out there for the kickoff at 1:30 p. m. Eastern Standard Time, day after tomorrow. But that was the number of requests.

All over capacity were turned down, so there probably will be between 54,000 and 55,000 in the seats out at Michigan and Trumbull Avenues for the opener of the usual four-out-of-seven set. And there's a chance that the Detroit series crowd record — 55,189 for one game in 1940 — will be surpassed.

Back of Newhouser, Manager Steve O'Neill's going to run into a pitching problem when he reaches into the trunk for succeeding relievers. However, if Newhouser loses the first game — and he's a 10 to 11 favorite not to — the Tigers' elbow in the second scuffle is slated to be Virgil "Fire" Trucks, the right-hand fastballer fresh out of his sailor suit.

If Hal comes home agalloping the second-game hurler, barring switches between now and then, will be Stubby Overmire, the stumpy southpaw who looks like he's running into

Football

By The Associated Press

Football fireworks will explode on a widespread front the coming week-end for Carolina grid machines, with the meeting of Duke and Navy, assured of attracting 43,000 spectators at Duke Stadium, the top home performance although the Wake Forest-Army tussle at West Point held considerable interest.

The meeting of the Blue Devils and Middles, which marks the first time in history a Navy team has played in North Carolina, will find the Big Blue looking for revenge for defeats suffered the past two years. Navy won 7-0 last year, and 14-13 in 1943. The teams previously met four straight years from 1927 to 1930, their only victory in the first six games of the series.

There is no basis for comparing the strength of the competitors so far this year. Duke has won from South Carolina 60-0, and last Saturday swamped the Bogue Field Marines 76-0. The Middles opened Saturday against Villanova with a crushing 49-0 win.

Wake Forest's Deacons, taking on the nation's other big service eleven, may surprise the customers for the Tar Heel outfit showed unusual strength in holding Tennessee to a 7-6 score Saturday. Army has played only the Personnel Redistribution Command of Greensboro, winning 32-0.

Besides the Duke-Navy tilt, the only other "home ground" game for North Carolinians Saturday is the Clemson-N. C. State night encounter at Raleigh. The Tigers lost 20-0 to Georgia Bulldogs Saturday, while the Wolfpack encountered a tartar in Virginia at Norfolk losing 26-6.

North Carolina which proved a surprise package against Georgia Tech Saturday, holding the Jackets to a 20-14 score, will journey to Roanoke, Va. to meet an unknown quantity in Virginia Poly which is returning to the football wars.

Two Palmetto teams encounter service opposition Saturday as Presbyterian College goes to Jacksonville, Fla. to meet the Navy Air Base which flattened Cherry Point's Marines yesterday 26-0, and Charleston's Marines meet South Carolina in Columbia. The Gamecocks smothered P. C. Saturday 40-0.

Preceding the Saturday menu, the Kingston Marines which nipped Ft. Monroe, Va., Saturday 13-7, will meet Catawba's Indians at Salisbury on Friday. Catawba lost to William and Mary Saturday 19-6.

Another Friday contest finds the Georgia J-yves playing at Newberry.

PROBLEMS OF RECONVERSION

Director Snyder Makes Report To President

Washington, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Seven special problems resulting from the war were listed by reconversion director John W. Snyder today as requiring urgent attention:

Briefly, he had this say about each:

1. Surpluses: Of immediate interest are large supplies of industrial supplies and raw materials—paper, steel, industrial diamonds—in government stocks and contracts inventories. In use today they would speed reconversion and expand production; six months from now they will have far less value or utility.

2. Housing: With relaxation of controls, construction of more than 60,000 houses is expected to start in the fourth quarter. Over 400,000 homes will be begun in the coming year.

3. Food and Agriculture: Three months ago there was "considerable anxiety" about food shortages. Since Japan's surrender the situation has improved substantially and the prospect is for "adequate supplies of most foods."

4. Transportation: After November 1 the only controls necessary will be (a) to assure an adequate supply of railroad passenger equipment for demobilization of the armed forces, (b) to avoid freight congestion at the ports, and (c) to assure an adequate number of freight cars by regulations of loading. Rationing of new trucks and commercial vehicles will be discontinued November 1.

5. Overseas Problems: Speedy supply of liberated areas with great quantities of American goods and equipment is needed to reestablish their economies on a sound basis and help world economic recovery.

6. Demobilization: A rate of a million a month will be exceeded by November. This will place a heavy load on agencies concerned with veterans' programs.

7. Scientific Development: The fruits of the work done in government laboratories or with the aid of government funds during the war are of the highest importance to the future of science. "In the hands of industry and agriculture these new products and new methods should prove a potent factor in speeding reconversion in opening opportunities for new industries, new skills, and additional employment."

Make Plans For Future Airfield

By CHESTER WALSH
County and city officials have not had any definite information from the Navy Department when it will surrender its lease on the county-city airport across the river. Mayor Jacob Boyd said today.

The last Marine air squadron left here some time ago. Since then a small detachment of Marines from Cherry Point has been guarding the field. Word went out from Washington some weeks ago that the Greenville air base would be discontinued.

Mayor Boyd said the city and county administrations have had several applications from persons seeking to lease the airfield as an operating base, but nothing will be done about this until later. One applicant would build hangars, provide certain lighting, etc., it was stated. Whoever gets a lease will be required to give the county and city substantial assurance that the airfield will be maintained in accordance with Civil Aeronautics Administration regulations. In the meantime the Chamber of Commerce is working diligently to secure for Greenville a connection with one or more airlines to transport passengers, freight and mail.

The airfield has three 5,000-foot runways, ample warming-up aprons and an abundance of space for hangars, shops, etc. The city and county own the site. The CAA spent nearly $1,000,000 for grading, paving the runways, and installing water and lights and adequate drainage and sewerage. The Navy paid a dollar a year for rent of the field.

ADMIRALS IN EMBRYO—All Annapolis midshipmen must be proficient in handling small boats and sail boats like these moored at the academy provide excellent training.

In the Newark, N. J., area. The Westinghouse strike involved workers in Pennsylvania, Ohio, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Maryland, and New York. Leo F. Bollen, president of the Federation of Westinghouse Salaried Unions, said members voted to go back "pending the outcome of negotiations."

In New York the building service men struck in protest against a regional WLB directive which increased hourly rates but reduced the hours per week, resulting, the union contended, in a pay cut. The strike ended when the union bowed to an ultimatum from Gov. Thomas E. Dewey that it accept arbitration. Dewey named George Frankenthaler, former New York State Supreme Court justice, as arbitrator. He scheduled a meeting with interested groups for today.

The Colorado fuel and iron strike in Pueblo ended when members of the CIO United Steelworkers Union voted to return pending a WLB hearing. Michael J. Soldren, International Union representative, described the stoppage as a "vacation" stemming from a union complaint to the WLB that the company had failed to comply with a directive forbidding supervisors to do the work of subordinates.

The two largest strike threats arose in the Dayton Frigidaires and from the telephone workers. The latter, the National Federation of Telephone Workers, called an executive board meeting for today to discuss a tentative National Labor Relations Board order.

The order recommended disestablishment of a federation affiliate, the Western Electric Employees Association, in New York and New Jersey, charging it to be company-dominated. NFW President Joseph Beirne thought a "demonstration" work stoppage was a "definite possibility."

DeGaulle Forces Win

Paris, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Supporters of Gen. Charles DeGaulle, clear cut victors in run-off local elections yesterday, looked forward with renewed confidence today to the Oct. 21 referendum which will shape France's third republic.

Gen. DeGaulle's followers polled approximately 60 per cent of the popular vote.

Victim Struck By Three Cars

Alexandria, Va., Oct. 1.—(AP)—Three cars struck a man who was killed last night on Route 1, about 7 miles south of here, hurling him from one side of the highway to the other.

The victim was identified by State Trooper R. H. Lester as A. K. Smith of Lorton, Va., a 46-year-old contractor. His permanent home was listed as Charlotte, N. C. Lester's version of the accident:

Smith evidently was hit first by a southbound car and was hurled across the four-lane highway, landing on the hood of a northbound taxi operated by John Cannon, Alexandria. The impact threw the body back across the highway where it was run over by a third car, southbound. Both of the southbound cars failed to stop.

Deny Charges Georgia Case

Washington, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Twenty railroads asked the Supreme Court today to throw out Georgia's complaint that they had fixed rates which restrained trade by discriminating against Southern States.

The court agreed last March to consider Georgia's complaint. At the request of the railroads, Georgia later filed an amended complaint giving additional details of its attack on the rate structures.

The rails, 12 of them so-called Northern lines and the remainder Southern companies, in answers presented to the court today denied "all charges of discrimination, coercion and other wrong-doing."

They said they had done nothing to restrain trade or to injure Georgia or the South.

The railroads contended that the structure of through rates between points in the North and the South is not only harmful but is beneficial to the section.

The railroads' petitions were filed as the Supreme Court opened its new fall term. The court will announce later what action it will take on the railroads' requests.

Charge Young Man Serious Offense

Ray Peters, 17, was arrested Sunday afternoon on the charge of attempting to rape Miss Nora Lee Edwards, 26, a semi-invalid, in a barn back of the Edwards home in the Washington highway, several miles from Greenville. Deputy Sheriff L. E. Manning and Policeman Jasper Lee Mills made the arrest.

At a preliminary hearing before Magistrate H. L. Jenkins this morning he found probable cause and sent the case up to Superior Court. Peters was ordered held under $1,000.

Archbishop assassinated. London, Oct. 1.—(AP)—The Exchange Telegraph in a Cairo dispatch today said Archbishop Theophilus, Orthodox patriarch of Jerusalem, was assassinated while strolling in the fields armed with a rifle in Upper Egypt.

The archbishop, who had gone to Egypt in connection with the election of a new Coptic patriarch for that country, was visiting a convent at Berisuef, the diaphch said.
