Investigation Of Pearl Harbor

Investigating Committee Questioning Whether Any Act of United States Officials Touched Off War With Japan; Japan's Story Challenged

By JACK BELL

Washington, Nov. 17.—(AP)—The Pearl Harbor investigating committee turned today to questioning whether any act of United States officials touched off the war with Japan.

Republican members told newsman they would challenge a summary of Japan's side of the story which Rear Admiral T. B. Inglis, naval intelligence officer, to lay before the committee in its third day of hearings.

Senator Brewster (R-Me.), who has had the summary in his possession since Thursday, expressed the opinion to reporters that the report was designed to show former Secretary of State Hull "was not responsible for the war."

Brewster said the summary undertakes to prove that the Japanese decision to attack Pearl Harbor was made long before Hull's negotiations with Nipponese "peace" envoys reached their climax with the presentation of final American proposals on November 25, 1941.

"In this way," the Maine senator declared, "the report is being used to say that Mr. Hull was not responsible for the start of the war."

Rep. Keefe (R-Wis.) insisted that orders to execute the Japanese plan for attack came only after Hull's proposals were handed to the envoys here.

Rep. Gearhart (R-Calif.) declared his belief that the Japanese were "doing everything in their power" to reach agreement with the U. S. adding that the report is "a propaganda as an ultimatum."

He said reporters that the Japanese attacking force, which already had started steaming east, "would have turned around and gone back home" if working agreement had been obtained in the diplomatic talks.

Brewster and Senator Ferguson (R-Mich.) said the summary contains only conclusions reached by the navy officials from the records of captured Japanese documents and interviews with Japanese documents and interviews with Japanese prisoners.

Backed by Gearhart and Keefe, the two senators said they want the original documents produced. (Continued on Page Two)

It was passed to keep the paved streets open while the mechanical sweeper in sweeping the streets at night.

The WORLD TODAY

An Analysis Of The News

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

AP Foreign Affairs Writer

You don't have to be vindictive or cold-blooded to feel extreme satisfaction that justice has overtaken Josef Kramer, the "Beast of Belsen," and 29 others who perpetrated the horrors of the Belsen and Oswiecim concentration camps in Germany.

The story isn't yet complete. A British military court at Luenburg has convicted these fiends who killed by torture for the pleasure they got out of it. The wages of their sins still have to be collected—and the world at large hopes that payment will be made in full.

Those sins are too well known to need much repetition here. Tens of thousands of wretched prisoners were killed by slow and deliberate starvation. Some of them in their anguish cut flesh from their bodies for food. Many were beaten to death or were tortured in other ways.

It would be a welcome relief if we could say that the deeds at these two camps were isolated instances. But these sadistic murderers represent far more than the atrocities for which they personally were responsible. They typify the fascist ideal of Nazi rule, for Hitler and Goering and the other leaders inspired this crime, even if they did not carry it out personally.

MEETING HERE WAS SUCCESS

District Education Convention at ECTC Was Inspiring

Approximately 1,100 delegates from schools in 22 counties gathered here Friday for the annual meeting of the Northeastern District of the North Carolina Education Association.

Highlights of the opening session in the afternoon were addresses by Chancellor J. W. Harrelson of State College and former Gov. J. Melville Broughton of Raleigh. The retiring district president, Mrs. Agnes Watson Gunter of Lenoir, presided over the two general sessions.

"There is no substitute for English," Colonel Harrelson said in discussing "difficulties which colleges have with high school students" at the afternoon session. He told of the poor rating in English made by freshmen on entrance tests at State College.

Success in any type of education, he said, depends upon mastery of the language.

Poor preparation in mathematics makes 50 per cent of the freshmen entering State unable to complete courses of college level in the subject, he added. Colonel Harrelson pointed out that a student in a technological school, like any other student, needs a good general education. Only three out of every 10 students who enter State are able to graduate, he said. He asked for greater cooperation between high schools and colleges in discovering remedies for these difficulties.

Other speakers on the afternoon program included Acting President Howard J. McGinnis of East Carolina Teachers College; Ethel Perkins of the NCEA, Raleigh; Bertha Cooper of the NCEA, Elizabeth City; and Mrs. Maude Baynor Foy of the State Congress of Parents and Teachers, Raleigh. H. H. Collier, superintendent of Pitt County Schools, introduced Colonel Harrelson. June H. Rose, superintendent of Greenville City Schools, gave a eulogy of the late Alger B. Wilkins, former superintendent of Cumberland County schools and chairman of the Legislative Committee of the NCEA.

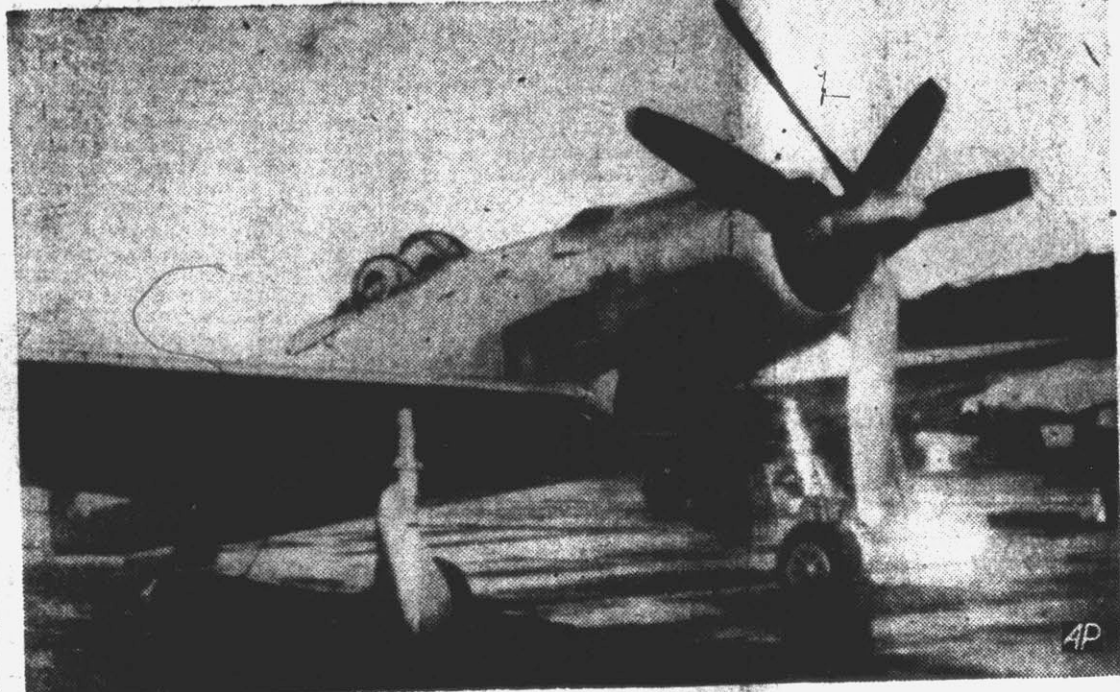

After being introduced by Dr. McGinnis, Broughton gave the principal address of the evening on the theme "Education and Citizenship." "The teacher asks only that compensation be kept commensurate with the cost of living," said (Continued on Page Two)

Bond Show Was A Big Success

The bond show at Pitt Theatre last night was a big success with more than $41,000 worth of Victory Bonds being purchased by those in attendance. Admission to the show was by bond purchases only with tickets being issued throughout the week by bond selling agencies throughout the city.

Last night's picture was the late Ernie Pyle's "Story of GI Joe" and was highly praised by those in attendance.

NATIONALISTS SEEM MOVING

Chinese Nationalist Headquarters Announce Taking City

By RICHARD BERGHOLZ

Chinwangtao, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Chinese Nationalist army headquarters announced its troops captured Shanhaikwan yesterday in a flanking movement that forced the Chinese Communist Eighth Route Army to abandon the great wall gateway into Manchuria.

The Chungking press today reported, however, that Chinese government officials who earlier had accepted control of postal and telegraph facilities from the withdrawing Russians at Changchun, Manchurian capital, now were returning to Chungking.

"They had lost the protection of the Soviet occupation garrison," these reports said, and "fully armed Chinese Communists have been seen in the vicinity of Changchun, in which Nationalists had only a handful of officials. Among those withdrawing," they said, was Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's elder son, Chiang Chung-Kuo, special commissioner for foreign affairs in Manchuria.

"We have driven 10,000 Communist bandits out of Shanhaikwan and have taken the city," said Gen. Tu Li-ming, commander of the Nationalist forces assigned to take over Manchuria after withdrawal of Russian troops.

North Carolinian In Trial Of Tojo

Greensboro, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Carlisle W. Higgins, U. S. attorney for the Middle District of North Carolina, will be appointed first assistant attorney to lead in the prosecution of Tojo at the trial of Japanese war criminals slated to begin early in 1946. It was revealed here today.

Higgins said this morning that he can "neither confirm nor deny the reports. It is understood, however, by federal officers here and in Washington that the local man is to be named officially within the next few days.

"Any announcement must come from Washington," the district attorney said.

A late afternoon news dispatch from Washington stated yesterday that Joseph B. Kenan of Cleveland, Ohio, and Washington, has been named head of the Japanese trials, his appointment to be analogous to that of Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas in Hiroshima.

Today In Congress

By Max Hall

Washington, Nov. 17.—(AP)—This week it's Nimitz vs. Eisenhower, with Congress as the referee. The army and navy are throwing big guns into the battle over whether to put the land, sea and air forces under a single chief.

General Dwight Eisenhower, who flew here from Germany a few days ago, testified in favor of unification yesterday before the Senate Military committee.

Admiral Chester Nimitz, who flew here from Pearl Harbor, was scheduled to appear today on the other side of the argument.

And the Pearl Harbor investigating committee drove right on with its public hearings today. It expects to examine witnesses morning and afternoon, every day except Sunday, for several weeks. Big names will be in parading before the five senators and five representatives next week.

On this third day of Pearl Harbor hearings, the committee turned to the question of whether a particular occurrence pulled the trigger for the war with Japan.

Re public members were prepared to challenge a summary of the Japanese side of the story. This summary has been pieced together from captured enemy documents. It was expected to be presented today by a navy spokesman.

Senator Brewster (R-Me.), who has seen the summary, told reporters he believes it is designed to show that former Secretary of State Hull "was not responsible for the war." Brewster said he is a friend of Mr. Hull's but thinks the

Babson Discuses Investments

New York City, Nov. 16.—This column is no place to discuss investing for profits. Stock market profits are too risky for a reader to strive for without competent impartial advice. Readers are, however, justified—even from a safety point of view—in putting part of their money in good dividend-paying stocks listed on the New York Exchange.

Why Buy Stocks? Interest rates on savings are now very low. The best banks pay only from one to two per cent. No interest is received on checking accounts. Most good corporation bonds yield much more than government bonds. I do not care much for preferred stocks unless they are non-callable. This means that if one has $1,000 to invest he would do well to put $500 in Victory Bonds (my cousin Paul T. Babson figures the U. S. bonds yield 3.30 per cent) and $500 in the capital stock of some good dividend-paying company listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

As an illustration, I mention the following 32 companies which have paid dividends every year for over forty years:

Amer. Tel. and Tel. (utility); Borden Co. (food prod.); Colg-Palm-Peet soap mfg.; Commonweal Edison (utility); Conto Insurance (insurance); Diamond Match (misc.); Dow Chemical (chemical); Eastman Kodak (misc.); General Elec. What Industries Look Best In my opinion, the following industries are favorably situated and the prices of their stocks have not generally discounted prospects: Railway equipment, oil, labor saving machinery, steel, copper, electrical equipment, variety chains, chemicals, casualty insurance.

However, it is never wise to select a group of stocks merely on industry prospects. Seemingly adverse developments may oftentimes help a given industry. For example, if the Full Employment Bill should pass as originally drawn, the effect of such spending would be very stimulating to a number of lines, including variety and food chains.

Admiral Opposed To Merging Of Forces

Admiral Nimitz Asserts The Theoretical Advantages Of Merging Armed Forces Are Unattainable

Washington, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Admiral Chester W. Nimitz asserted today the "theoretical advantages" of merging the armed forces "are unattainable, whereas the disadvantages are so serious that it is not acceptable."

Events which led to the Pearl Harbor disaster, the Pacific fleet commander told the Senate Military Committee, "have shown clearly enough that not only between the War and Navy Departments but between both of them and the State Department there should have been more coordination of thinking and action."

But to bring this about in the future, Nimitz said, he favors not a single department of defense but a national security council, composed of the secretaries of State, War and Navy, as proposed by Secretary of the Navy Forrestal.

Acknowledging that this stand against merger reverses his opinion of a year ago, he said: "For this change of opinion, I make no apology, since it represents my conviction based on additional experience and further study of the proposal and its current implications."

As a witness, Nimitz followed by a day General Eisenhower, the European theater commander, who urged strongly that air, sea and land services be placed under a single department headed by a civilian.

After reviewing the successful prosecution of the war in the Pacific, Nimitz said: "It is clear from this brief sketch of the last year that many operations by many forces—land, sea and air—were closely integrated in our strategy."

"It is also clear that the defeat of Japanese sea power, and the preponderance of our own sea power, played a tremendously important part in the result."

"I feel that the successes which led to this result are convincing evidence of the merit of the system under which they were accomplished."

"Our successes were more rapid than I had believed possible a year ago."

"I believe we should have very good reasons—better reasons than any offered so far—before we change a system that has proved itself so effective."

In the Pacific victory, Nimitz declared, "I believe there is credit enough for all. In particular I wish at all times to give full credit to air power, which I have consistently held to be as essential in war as ships or troops."

He remarked, however, that the Navy provided and protected the ships which supplied the bomber bases "and would be required to protect such shipping in the future" for the maintenance of bombers based outside the United States.

Nimitz said he wished to make these other main points against the merger plan:

1. "There are faults in the present (Continued on page two)

Capture Escaped Prisoner In Bethel

Gus Wells, 18-year-old Negro, who jumped from a third-story window at the City Hall and made his escape yesterday morning, was recaptured at his mother's home in Bethel last night. He will be tried in Police Court Monday for escaping.

Wells made his desperate chance to escape after Judge Jimmy Roberts in Police Court had ordered him held for Superior Court on six charges of breaking and entering and one of larceny.

Wells was with other prisoners in an unbarred room adjoining the courtrooms. He crawled through a narrow opening in the window, swung from the ledge by his hands a moment, then dropped three stories to the pavement and escaped. Chief Jim Tanner figured Wells would go to his mother's home and the chief and Patrolman Corbett went to Bethel about dark last night and left Patrolman Harris and Marine MP Eugene Fisher there to wait. They made a fire and waited. After dark Wells walked in-right into the arms of the law. He said his ankle was slightly sprained and his hip ached, otherwise he was all right. Bethel police cooperated in making the arrest.

FUNCTIONING OF COMMITTEE

Government Believes Commission Can Function Soon

Charleston, S. C., Nov. 17.—(AP)—The United States government believes the proposed United Nations commission for the control of atomic energy—particularly the atomic bomb—can be functioning in two months.

Secretary of State Byrnes held out that possibility in a speech here last night.

In the first administration pronouncement of atomic energy since the President and the prime minister of Britain and Canada issued their declaration Thursday, Byrnes said the period of three-nation secrecy on industrial know-how "need not be unnecessarily prolonged."

Referring to the proposed establishment of the commission, the secretary said, "This can be done within sixty days."

He emphasized again the willingness of this country to exchange immediately the basic scientific information on atomic energy and said the three nations "look forward" to the cooperation of the other United Nations.

At the same time, Byrnes conceded that the three-power proposals represented "a very modest first step in what is certain to prove a long and difficult journey."

He said Americans should not (Continued on page two)

Market Nearing 60-Million Mark

The Greenville market was within less than 50,000 pounds of its 60,000,000 pound goal as sales ended for the week Friday afternoon.

Market figures through Friday show a total of 59,914,606 pounds of tobacco sold, and with approximately six more selling days, local tobaccoists are sure of passing the poundage mark they set as a goal early in the season.

No definite date has been set for closing the market. Sales will be operated Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. The market will be closed for the Thanksgiving holidays, reopening on Monday, November 26 for several days.

Greenville warehousemen expect sales to be very light after Thanksgiving. They are not keeping the market open in expectation of selling any great amount of tobacco, only to give a few tobacco growers who have not been able to work up their crops an opportunity to sell the balance of their crop.

At yesterday's lengthy meeting of the conference executive committee, management for the first time mixed into the wage question.

The three wage resolutions which finally evolved were given to a new six-man subcommittee. This group (Continued on Page Three)

The NATION TODAY

By James Marlow

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Nov. 17.—(AP)—This country within two days has laid down the most far-reaching terms for the rest of the world. We have the atomic bomb, industrial production, and money. Other nations don't have the bomb, production of many has been devastated, and they have no money.

On Thursday we said we'd share the atomic bomb secret with others provided they, satisfied us, meant to play ball and provided safeguards could be set up to prevent use of the bomb in warfare.

Last night Secretary of State Byrnes outlined a program for improving world trade. That program is not a one way charity street. It would help other nations. It would help us very much.

Mr. Byrnes, making a speech at Charleston, S. C., very realistically called his shots in proposing his program. He said:

"Whatever foreign loans we make will of course increase the markets for American products, for in the long run the dollars we lend can be spent only in this country."

"The countries devastated by war want to get back to work. They want to get back to production that will enable them to support themselves. When they can do this they will buy goods from us. America, in helping them, will be helping herself."

"We cannot play Santa Claus to the world but we can make loans to governments whose credit is all

Conference Makes First Step Toward Industrial Peace With Filing Of Report Indorsing Conciliation And Voluntary Arbitration In Case Of Disagreement

By STERLING F. GREEN

Washington, Nov. 17.—(AP)—The labor-management conference made its first step toward industrial peace today with the filing of a report indorsing conciliation and voluntary arbitration when employers and workers disagree.

In negotiating initial agreements between a union and a company, a conference committee agreed, no strike or lockout should be called until all peaceful bargaining measures have been exhausted.

The report, still subject to approval by the executive committee, and the full conference, was the first so far made by six committees working on methods of reducing industrial strife.

But on the hot issue of a national wage increase policy, the conference was more warlike than ever before.

Three resolutions now are before the executive committee, all indorsing collective bargaining but in three shades of opinion.

Management offered a proposal yesterday which would rule out any conference deliberation on national wage levels. "John L. Lewis put in another suggestion," the proposal said, "without regard to the President's policy of raising wages generally without raising prices."

And Philip Murray, CIO president, declared he would continue to fight for his resolution, calling for immediate collective bargaining everywhere "within the framework" of the President's declaration that wage increases are needed.

If the executive committee kills his resolution, Murray said at a news conference last night, he will demand that he be allowed to state CIO's position before a full meeting of all 36 labor-management delegates. Such meetings are open to the press.

A management official meanwhile predicted there would "be a job for everyone who wants to work" if the conference succeeds in minimizing labor strike and government curbs on business are lifted.

"Give us labor government restrictions and the prospects of peace so that we can get on with our work," he said, "is the task."

He said, "the people would decide the issue quickly and fairly."

At yesterday's lengthy meeting of the conference executive committee, management for the first time mixed into the wage question.

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

SPIRITUAL LEND-LEASE TO GERMANY

A young minister of German background and a graduate of a seminary in this country has recently announced his intention of returning to Germany. He believes he can render better Christian service in Germany than anywhere else in the world. He knows the language, and because he was brought up in a German household he knows the ways of the German people. He intends to work as a laborer in Germany and so to acquaint himself with the problems of the people. Then he expects to attend a German seminary and so get to know the Church and its personnel. He plans to become a German citizen. He believes that the best missionary work he can do is not in Asia or Africa but in Germany, identifying himself with the radical stock from which he sprang. As a host of brave men were willing to give their lives to break the power of evil in Germany, so this young man is willing to give his life to build up the power of good among this conquered people.

We are told in the New Testament that our Lord Jesus pleased not Himself. It was His utter willingness to efface Himself and His personal interests which made Him the Saviour of the world. Any man who is willing to deny himself, to give up comforts that others may have a better chance to live, becomes a little like Jesus, a replica of the Man of Galilee whose badge of universal honor has been that he went about doing good.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By JACK STERNETT

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
(Substituting for Jack Sternett)

Washington. When Harry S. Truman was sworn in as President Tuesday a half hour after the death of Franklin D. Roosevelt last April 12, he immediately became willingly the leading possibility for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1948.

Political history indicates that Mr. Truman will continue to be the Democrats' No. 1 prospect for 1948 unless he definitely refuses to accept the nomination. It's a long and strongly established political custom, just about as unwritten as the rule in both major parties to honor a President by renominating him.

In the last half century of Republican-Democratic struggle for the nation's highest office, no President has failed to get a second-term nomination. The Democrats have elected three Presidents since the Civil War—Grover Cleveland, Woodrow Wilson and Franklin Roosevelt. They all easily won renominations.

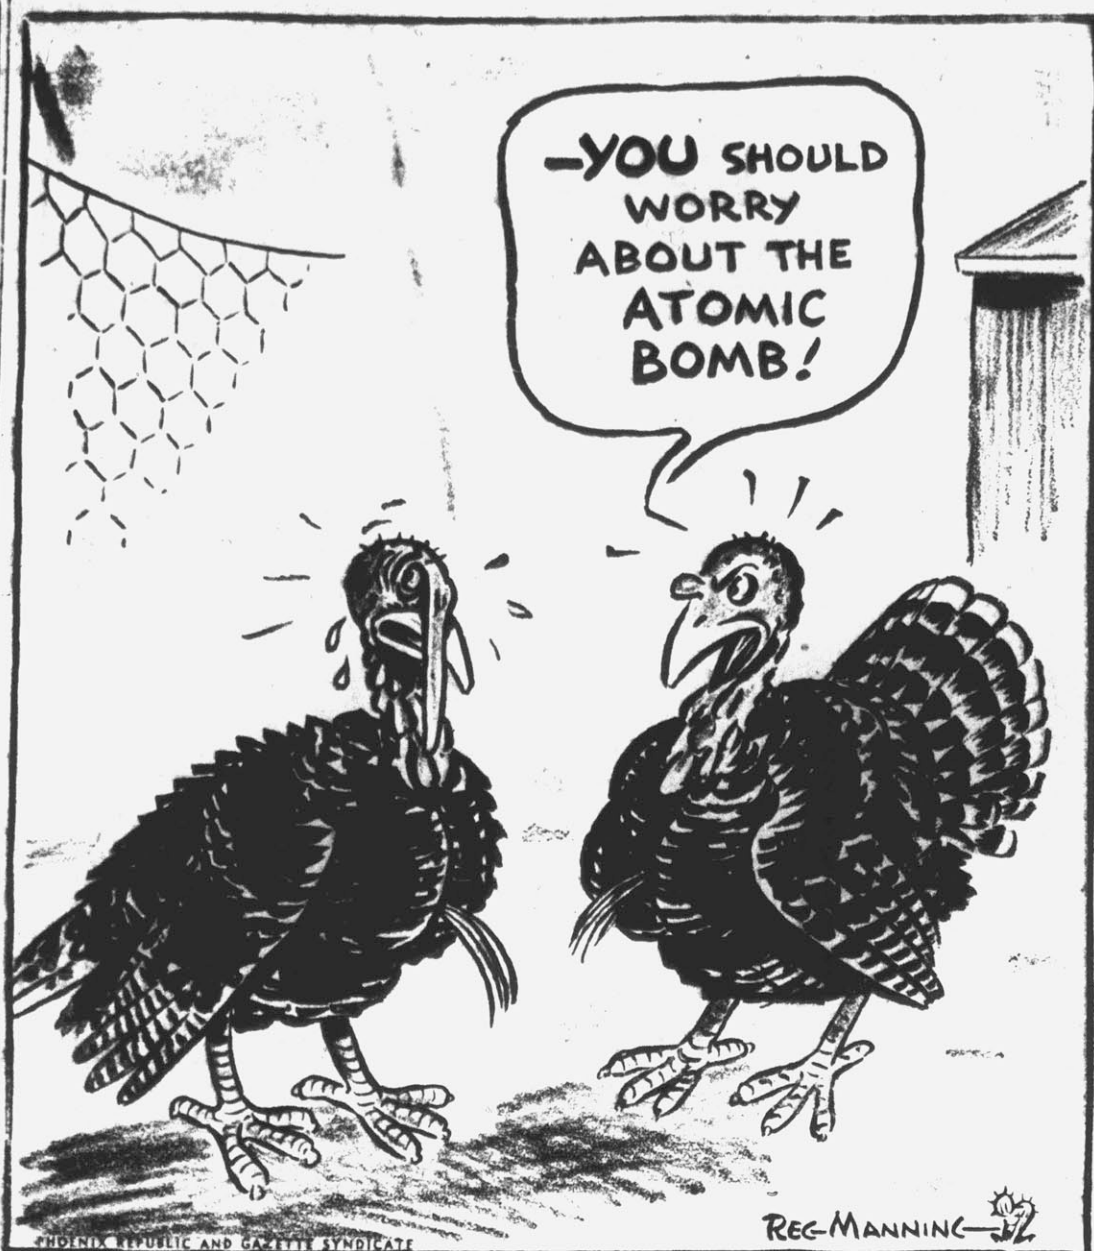

Cleveland was nominated three times, losing his second race for the Presidency. Wilson won renomination in a walk and undoubtedly would have been nominated for a third term if he had not been stricken by illness during his second term.

The Republicans renominated two Presidents who had run into heavy trouble. President Taft was renominated despite a break with popular Teddy Roosevelt which split the party wide open and resulted in the election of Wilson. Herbert Hoover inherited the terrific political liability of a business depression, but there was no strong opposition to his renomination.

Failure to nominate for a second term would be construed in political circles not only as a slap in the face for the chief executive but also a total admission by the party that their administration had been a fiasco.

When President Truman recently fought 1 off attempts by reporters to get him out on the question of renominating term in the White House, he was following another old political custom. White House incumbents just don't answer questions of a kind. Presidents Taft, Wilson, Coolidge, Hoover and Roosevelt carried in one way or another similar queries. Mr. Roosevelt, of course, set an all-time record for dodging the $64 political question.

So customary is the expectation that a party will renominate a President (and the President accepts the renomination) that Mr. Coolidge's famous statement, "I do not choose to run," was for a long time not generally considered to be a refusal.

If President Truman is renominated, he will set a modern record for an elderly man in the role of campaign standard-bearer. At 65, he would be the oldest man nominated since William Henry Harrison, 68, was chosen by the Whigs back in 1839.

The Armistice Day celebration in Greenville was carried off with "merriment," our veterans of World War II being entertained. (Our dead honored.)

Those who gave their lives for the freedom of our country, those who left us with aching hearts never to return to us again. I wonder what they would say about the entertainment if they could arise and speak today?

Would they be pleased to know they were honored by beer drinking and drunkenness in our own city? Do we expect the blessing of God upon us when we take our sons and our neighbors' sons that have been spared by the great hands of God and brought back to us from the awful war they went through, and give them all the beer they want to drink, "celebrating Armistice Day," send them out on the streets and highways to endanger the lives of humanity, and break the hearts of their loved ones and friends.

Who is responsible? The ones that gave them the drink, and the one that sells them the drink, let it be the individual or the government.

May God help the leaders of our city and state to see the destruction ahead of us, on account of beer and wine in the reach of our youth today.

May every minister and Christian worker in our community cry out against the awful curse of strong drink that is in our midst. That is destroying our manhood and womanhood. Surely God will hold us responsible if we fail to do our whole duty.

What will we do about it?

end of the Great Wall, would make it unnecessary to attempt any amphibious operations along the coast of Manchuria.

General Tu said the Nationalists were principally concerned with reopening the Tientsin-Mukden railway, and would insist the Chinese Communists withdraw at least 50 kilometers (about 32 miles) from the rail line.

Tu said Shanhaikwan was taken without heavy fighting, and casualties on both sides were light.

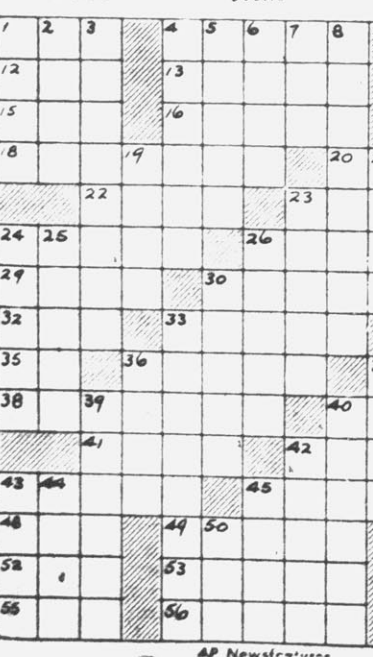

Troops led by Lt. Gen. Chao Kung Wu flanked the Communists to the west, passed through the Great Wall at the virtually undefended town of Chiumen and then cut back into the rear of the Reds.

Tu laughingly volunteered the opinion that American combat planes flying low over the area may have caused the Communists to believe they were about to be strafed. "So they withdrew from their positions," he added.

No American planes have been used in support of Chinese Nationalist movements.

"Imagine wishfully that overnight there can arise full-grown a world government wise and strong enough to protect all of us and tolerant and democratic enough to command our willing loyalty."

Hence, Byrnes said, when Mr. Truman and Prime Ministers Attlee and King got around to determining how soon the know-how of atomic energy should be shared with other nations, "only one answer was possible."

"Until effective safeguards can be developed, in the form of international inspection or otherwise, the secrets of production know-how must be held, in the words of the President, as a sacred trust—a trust in the exercise of which we are already under definite international obligation," he declared.

The civilized world cannot survive an atomic war, Byrnes said, "but it is not enough to banish atomic or bacteriological warfare."

"We must banish war," he said. "To that great goal of humanity, we must ever rededicate our hearts and strength."

system of supply and use of resources but "I believe the remedy proposed x x x is not only unnecessary extreme but it gives no assurance of an adequate solution x x x."

"I believe, rather, that what we really need is a national agency of much broader scope to coordinate the intelligent use of allocation of our national resources."

"Should the strategic air force be set up as a separate entity, with its own administration and supply systems, the duplication in services and facilities which is frequently advanced as a reason for merging the Army and Navy, would become a possibility of triplification."

"A single department of national defense will have one of two consequences for the naval component. Either the Navy will retain all the autonomy, integrity and prestige necessary to carry out its functions, in which case it might as well remain a separate department; or

"It will lose these advantages, either gradually or at once, and become a secondary service."

The Republicans disclosed their strategy is to question Admiral Ingalls and Col. Bernard Thiel, who have been on the stand for the last two days, in such a way that the committee must call additional documents for its records and summon additional witnesses.

be evident everywhere in 1946. I warn against over-optimism. During recent years, I have continually urged readers to maintain a large part of their assets in common stocks. Next year many thoughtless speculators may be attracted to the stock market, but they may find they are coming in at the end of the party. The wise investor will use periods of over-optimism and high spirit to batten down his hatches and prepare for the coming storm. Proper diversification is the first step in such a constructive program.

The Nation Today ...

This information was obtained from a government official very close to the program. Asked whether this was asking another country in some cases to do twice as much as we were willing to do, he said:

"I know it. But we'd be poor traders if we didn't try." Agreements under the act have been worked out with about 30 countries since it was first passed in 1934. None has been worked out since it was renewed last June. Some agreements take more than a year to achieve.

Meeting Here ...

Brought in discussing the question of teachers' salaries. He then pointed out the fact that the nine months term and an increase in salaries were recent gains in the teaching profession in the State. He praised teachers for placing the lengthening of the school year before personal gains. Both ends were gained, he said, but the unselfish attitude of teachers should not be forgotten.

The former governor called upon teachers to stress American ideals in meeting the challenge of peace. Governor Thomas J. Jarvis, he said, was a North Carolinian who rose to fame, and following the best of American ideals used his influence for the good of others in helping to found East Carolina Teachers College. The teachers must also recognize new techniques, he continued. The experiences of the armed forces in trying to train ill-prepared young people for service showed many defects in present techniques of teaching. Our present way of life is threatened, he said, by such new weapons as the atomic bomb. The teaching profession and the ministry, he concluded, and all who believe in greatness and goodness must dedicate themselves to making the world a better place in which to live.

District officers to serve during the coming year were unopposed. They are Ernest W. Morgan, Aulander, president; John T. Biggers, Winterville, vice-president, and Phoebe Emmons, Washington, secretary. Presidents of divisions were elected as follows: Classroom teachers, Mrs. Emma Turner, Elizabeth City; principals, J. H. Moore, Farmville and superintendents, J. G. McCracken, Elizabeth City.

Twenty department meetings were held during the afternoon at which reorganization of the groups as before the war was effected. District principals completed for the first time organization of a branch of the United North Carolina Principals Association. D. S. Johnson of Rocky Mount presided over the principals meeting, and I. E. Ready of Roanoke Rapids, and H. A. Helms of Raleigh spoke to the group. O. E. Dowd, principal of the Greenville High School, was one of the delegates to the State United Principals Association elected at the meeting. Superintendents held a dinner meeting at the Old Towne Inn at which J. G. McCracken of Elizabeth City served as chairman. Classroom teachers met in the Training School cafeteria for dinner.

The East Carolina Teachers College Alumni Association and the English teachers served tea during the afternoon. Music for the evening meeting was furnished by the Greenville High School Glee Club under the direction of Miss Ona Shindler.

Each child tried to find a different story and picture. After reading about them they were able to draw and write some interesting stories, one of which follows:
A long time ago only Indians lived here. They lived in wigwams. Their food was animals and wild turkeys. They killed them with bows and arrows. Some of the Indians were friendly.
This study of the Indians led to the story of the Pilgrims and why

Hauling Cotton Back Home
Something The Reflector does not recall ever having known before in Pitt county has occurred several times during the past week. It is farmers bringing their cotton to market and then hauling it back home. The reason for carrying it back was that the owners had been holding for 11 cents and finding the price below that figure took the cotton home. This is the kind of termination on the part of the farmers that will win out in the fight against low priced cotton.

we have Thanksgiving in which we are now interested.

Fourth Grade News
This week we have had some parents to visit our room. Mrs. Richard Manning, one of our grade mothers came to see us Thursday. Mrs. Andrew Ross, another grade mother, came Wednesday and gave us a wonderful surprise. She served delicious individual pumpkin pies with glasses of milk. This was enjoyed not only by the students, but also each teacher was remembered.

Report To Jaycees On Local Airfield

By CHESTER WALSH
The Junior Chamber of Commerce at its supper meeting at the Olde Towne Inn last night heard a comprehensive report from Mayor Jack Boyd on plans for disposition of the county-city airport after the Navy Department surrenders its lease. Altop Barrett introduced the mayor.

It was pointed out at the meeting that the Junior Chamber of Commerce pioneered the movement to provide for having a landing field for Greenville. It was a delegation of Jaycees that appeared before the Board of Aldermen and the County Commissioners before the war and persuaded them to appropriate a few thousand dollars to purchase the initial tract of land across Tar River for an airfield. The Junior Chamber worked diligently for the airport and did such effective work that a later administration granted them the right to name the airport when the armed forces are through with it. It was recalled that Navy Lieut. David W. Mosier (who was present last night) went with former Mayor Bruce Sugg and others to Washington to help get the airport project approved. Incidentally, Lieut. Tom Wilson, another Jaycee, recently retired from the Army Airforce, was "back in harness" with the Jaycees last night. President Belle Lamm presided.

Mayor Boyd's report showed that he and the city administration are consulting authorities on airfields and that the city is proceeding on lines which will lead to the leasing of the airfield for civilian purposes in a way that will be most beneficial to the citizens and for the best interest of freight and passenger and mail service. The airfield has three 5,000-foot paved runways and the largest planes can land there. It cost more than $1,000,000.

President Lamm reported that arrangements have been completed for entertaining the army detachment which comes here Sunday to demonstrate a pilotless target plane, controlled in flight by radio from the ground. The demonstration will be at Guy Smith Stadium Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock to arouse interest in buying Victory Bonds. Admission will be free. No bonds will be sold at the park.

James W. Butler Kiwanis Speaker

By CHESTER WALSH
"No man can build a better tomorrow until he knows what's wrong with yesterday," asserted James W. Butler of Greensboro, an eloquent after-dinner speaker at the Kiwanis Club's weekly supper session last night. He quoted Emerson as saying, "Any movement is the shadow of some individual," and then gave the Kiwanians some timely suggestions on what civic clubs are for and enumerated many methods of accomplishing greater things for the community, State and Nation. Incidentally, Butler who is executive secretary of the Greensboro Chamber of Commerce, was recently elected president of the North Carolina Association of Commercial Secretaries. Bill Taft, program chairman, introduced Butler. Willard T. Kyzer, executive secretary of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce, was a special guest of the club.

Fellowship featured the meeting. Ed Bloom led the singing of Kiwanis songs with Mrs. Ray Tyson as accompanist. Miss Mary Blane Justus, talented vocalist, sang several songs, with Miss Virginia Greene as accompanist. Vice-President Ed Rawl presided for Dr. J. M. Barrett, who is ill, but now convalescing satisfactorily. Bert Bosche and Wyatt Highsmith donated a nickel for each year of their age for the underprivileged child fund. Lieut. (s.g.) David W. Mosier, U. S. Navy, and former Army Lieut. Francis H. Worsley and Leon Cranford were special guests. Mosier is still on active duty, now home on 15-day leave; Worsley was recently honorably discharged from the army.

Childhood Training Group Meets ECTC

Representatives from Rocky Mount, Roanoke Rapids, and Wilson attended yesterday a meeting of the Association for Childhood Education in the new Classroom Building at East Carolina Teachers College. The student branch of the organization at the college took an active part in the events of the day. The theme of the program was "Folk Art."
At the morning meeting Miss Lucy Nulton presided. Mr. Dan E. Vornholt of the Music Department of the college made a talk on Folk Music and led group singing of the folk songs of various countries. Mrs. Martha Cammack also of the music faculty took part in the program. Mr. Howard Ford, who teaches at both the college and the Greenville High School, spoke on "Folk Art," stressing handicrafts.

At the close of the regular meeting a buffet luncheon was served. Miss Alma Browning, chairman of the program committee, presided over the luncheon meeting. Group singing led by Miss Cammack was again a feature of the session. The luncheon was served by the sophomore food class of the college under the direction of Miss Stella Cox. Exhibits of folk crafts, especially from North Carolina, and of folk literature were arranged in the new Classroom Building. Various publications of the ACE were also displayed.

Infringement Of Institution Held

Fort Worth, Texas, Nov. 16—(AP)—An official of the Baptist general convention here expressed belief that a resolution approved by the group yesterday would not affect Baylor University's offer of an honorary degree to President Truman.
Rev. Rev. L. Johnson of Canyon Texas, convention secretary, referred to the resolution which took note of the President's "reported attitude as a Baptist toward gambling and drinking." The convention instructed trustees of all Texas Baptist colleges and universities not to confer an honorary degree on persons holding "to such a position." Johnson said he believed Baylor trustees may interpret the action as applying to future invitations and not to the bid already extended to the President.

The chief executive had been invited by President Pat M. Neff of Baylor to receive an honorary doctor of laws degree at Waco, Dec. 5. Mr. Truman, after tentatively accepting the offer, cancelled the trip recently because of pressing business in Washington.

Labor-Management

will try to combine them into some form the whole conference can accept. It called an afternoon (2:30 EST) session to tackle the job.

At the executive committee meeting management first offered a resolution to substitute for Murray's. The industry proposal was that the conference "not consider national wage policy" nor seek formulas to "implement the wage policy announced by the President"—evidently a reference to Mr. Truman's statement that many industries could grant wage increases without raising prices.

The management document said the ability to pay higher wages varied from company to company. The resolution recommended that collective bargaining be utilized "with full understanding that when the facts necessitate denial, genuine collective bargaining does not require concessions which either party may consider economically impossible or unsound."

An NAM official said this passage referred to situations like that of the U. S. Steel Corporation, which has declined to resume wage talks with the CIO steel workers on the grounds it cannot grant increases until OPA gives the industry higher prices.

Murray said he would be willing to drop the reference in his own resolution to the White House wage policy and substitute a recommendation for "substantial wage boosts" by President William Green objected. He said AFL wanted wage increases but it didn't believe such an amendment would help bring them about.

Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, then offered his proposal in a statement which said that scientific advances and volume production will lower retail costs, and permit shorter work weeks and higher pay, and that industry and labor should proceed "with all diligence" to make such advances possible.

President David Sarnoff of the Radio Corporation of America finally suggested that all three resolutions be handed to the special subcommittee. This was approved by a 12-3 vote, with CIO's three representatives voting No.

FINAL GAME ENDS IN TIE

Last Period Scoring
By Kinston Knots
Score at 13-13

By DAVE CLARK

The Kinston Red Devils came roaring back in the last period to score 13 points and tie the score at 13-13 last night in Guy Smith stadium, thus turning a dearly hoped for victory into a disappointing tie for the Green Phantoms.

Coach Bo Farley's Phantoms just didn't click the way they did last week, and after taking a 13-point lead through the first three quarters they fell down in the final period to allow their lead to be overcome.

Jimmy Futrell, who was carried off the field with a wrenched knee early in the second period, could have meant the difference in a tie and a victory for the Greenies. Big Xen Sideris did a terrific job in carrying on for the star full back, but Futrell's long, booming kicks could have kept the Red Devils out of Greenville territory as they have done many times to keep other opponents out.

For Coach Farley and the whole Greenville squad, the tie was a great disappointment, but for the 16 graduating seniors it must have been doubly disappointing since it was their last high school game and the last game anywhere for many of them.

The Phantoms kicked off to start the game and J. T. Williams' booming kick went deep into Kinston territory as usual. After failing to gain a first down, Kinston punted to the Greenville forty. The Phantoms rolled up one first down then Futrell kicked to about the 15 of Kinston. Here Futrell intercepted one of the Devil's many passes and lugged it back down to about the 15 in a series of plays with Futrell doing most of the ball toting. The Phantoms scored. Harrington was the boy that took it across standing up. J. T. Williams' kick was good and it looked as if the Devils were to become another of Greenville's swamped opponents.

With the score standing 7-0 in their favor, Greenville kicked off again, and the Devils quickly proceeded to put the Greenies in a hole by driving deep into their territory. Time and again, the Red Devils drove toward pay dirt only to be held off by valiant stands by the Phantoms.

On one occasion J. T. Williams ball hawking line backer for Greenville, intercepted a Devil pass on the Greenville forty, and took off down the side line on a beautiful run to cross the goal line, only to have the play called back because of illegal use of the hands.

The half-ended with the score at 7-0 in Greenville's favor. Kinston kicked off to open the second half, and straight away the Phantoms began to march. Starting on their own 30, the Greenies pushed up over the mid-field stripe and down into Red Devil territory. Here Billy Harrington began to hit Mac Batchelor and other receivers thick and fast with his bullet-like passes and Greenville seemed to have come to life again. Xen Sideris smashed through the Kinston line time and again and finally scored right through center from about five yards out. The kick was not good, making the score Greenville 13, Kinston 0.

Greenville kicked off again deep into Red Devil territory. After running a few plays, Sterling Gates, Kinston back, broke into the clear and almost got away. Lewis Lawrence finally pulled him down from behind on about the Greenville 35-yard line. From here the Kinston boys drove for a touchdown. The kick for the extra point was a beauty, straight through the uprights, making the score, Greenville 13, Kinston 7.

After a punt exchange Kinston got the ball again and brought it way down into Phantom territory on a long pass. They scored after a few plays, but the kick for the extra point was just a little wide, knotting the score at 13-13.

The game ended after the Phantoms had run one play. Except for Greenville's touchdown drives, they were badly outplayed all night. They just were not near as strong as they were last week when they set Goldsboro back 32-0.

Substitutions for Greenville were Henry Turner, L. F. Kittrell, Stump Garrett, Rodney Roberts, Cleveland "Red" Gilbert, Jimmy Lee and Zen Sideris.

The starting lineup was Jimmy Ward and Julian White at ends, But Whitehurst and Lewis Lawrence at tackles, Jack Whitchard and Bobby Clark at guards, J. T. Williams at center, Jimmy Futrell at full back, Billy Harrington at tail back, Mac Batchelor at blocking back, and Earl "Spooky" Morgan on the wing.
