Possibility Of Imminent Telephone Workers Strike

Possibility Of Wide Strike Telephone Workers Hinted Today As Federal Mediator Expresses Hope For Early Settlement Of Auto Strike

By ASSOCIATED PRESS The possibility of a nation-wide strike of telephone workers was hinted today by Joseph A. Beirne, president of the National Federation of Telephone Workers, who arrived in Chicago to meet with union officials in an attempt to settle a strike of Illinois operators.

"The possibility of a national strike is not remote if the situation here is as bad as I think it is," he told newspapermen as he arrived at union headquarters after flying from New York.

"That is not saying that there will be a national strike," Beirne added. "I am going into this thing cold and am here to listen."

Last October 5 between 130,000 and 200,000 operators throughout the country quit work for four hours after the independent NFWU Union called the stoppage in a "show of union strength."

The Illinois Telephone Traffic Union called upon the NFWU, its parent union, to represent it in future discussions after negotiations for the settlement of a strike of 8,700 operators of the Illinois Bell Telephone Company broke down last night.

The walkout, now in its fifth day, has curtailed telephone service throughout Illinois and hampered long distance communications in Chicago.

Ernest Weaver, regional director of the federation, said that the threat of a national strike was not presented by the action of the Illinois union.

Company and union representatives remained deadlocked after a special meeting to consider what the union described as a "compromise offer" as settlement of the wage dispute. The offer, said company spokesmen, was virtually the same as the original demands.

The union stood on its $6 weekly wage increase but offered to amend its demand on retroactive payments by advancing the back pay period from May 9, to June 29. The company has agreed to the 30 per cent Board's annual Telephone Commission award of $4 weekly increase, retroactive to May 9.

The number of workers idle in the country because of labor disputes was more than 500,000, including some 200,000 at most of the 70-odd General Motors plants in 20 states.

In Detroit, CIO United Auto Workers Union officials awaited a management reply to its proposal for arbitration of the 30 per cent wage increase dispute by a three-man board.

REVISION IN FARM POLICY

Government Farm Price Policies To Undergo Sharp Change

Washington, Nov. 23.—(AP)—A sharp revision in government farm price policies after the post-war adjustment period appears to be shaping up as a goal of the Truman administration.

That revision would take the form of lower price guarantees for some crops—particularly those which now can be produced much more cheaply through use of mechanized methods. It also might result in somewhat higher prices for those requiring a high degree of labor.

Commodities which would be reduced in price include cotton and wheat, two major export crops. Under present government price laws, these commodities are too high for a world market amply supplied by other producing countries. Even now, the United States is employing subsidies to permit its cotton and wheat flour to compete in export market.

The export subsidy is 4 cents a pound on cotton and 18 cents a hundred pounds on flour. Indications on administration thinking have been given in recent speeches by Secretary of State Byrnes and Secretary of Agriculture Anderson.

Byrnes, in a speech at Charleston, S. C., last week, outlined foreign trade policies of the administration. Those policies seek, he said, the elimination of barriers to world trade and use of export subsidies in exceptional cases only.

All Meat Rations End Tomorrow

By OYD A. MARTIN Washington, Nov. 23.—(AP)—All meat rationing ends tomorrow. At that time all food fats become point-free.

Secretary of Agriculture Anderson made these announcements to a news conference today. The food fats freed from the ration program include butter, margarine, lard and shortening. The meat rationing termination also applies to canned fish.

Sugar is now the only food left on the ration list. Since September 30, about one-third of the meat supply has been ration-free. This included the lower grades of beef, veal and lamb. Only choice cuts of those meats and virtually all pork had remained on the ration list after that time.

The meats and fats rationing program was started March 29, 1943. The termination is effective at 12:01 Saturday.

Secretary Anderson said there is no immediate prospect of lifting sugar rationing.

Germans Hanged For Killing U. S. Fliers

Two German civilians stand on the gallows at Bruchsal Prison, Germany, awaiting execution for the murder of six American fliers who parachuted from a disabled plane in 1944. In all, five Germans were hanged for the same crime. At right, Johann Seipel, the first to be hanged, has his head before the trap is sprung. At left, Johann Oppner, second to die, hears the order for his execution read. (AP Wirephoto.)

TO BE CALLED TO TESTIFY

Former Postmaster General Walker Will Probably Testify

By JACK BELL Washington, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Former Postmaster General Frank Walker probably will be called before the Senate-House Pearl Harbor Committee to relate his part in the diplomatic negotiations with Japan before the 1941 attack.

Walker told New York newsmen earlier in the week that he had taken part in the conversations, about which the committee called former Secretary of State Hull to testify today. Walker is not on the committee's present list of witnesses, but Senator Lucas (D-Ill.) told a reporter, "I think he probably will be called."

Hull, 74 years old and in failing health, prepared a lengthy statement for the committee's perusal, covering the vents which led up to his delivery of a note to the Japanese "peace" envoys on November 26, 1941. The Japanese later called this note an ultimatum.

Committee counsel asked Hull to report on meetings with the late President Roosevelt and other cabinet members, Gen. George C. Marshall, former chief of staff, and Admiral Harold R. Stark, former chief of naval operations.

Lucas said he thought the information given by Hull, Sumner Welles, former undersecretary, and others might be rounded out by Walker.

Copies obtained by the committee of Japanese diplomatic messages intercepted in 1941 indicated that Saburo Kurusu and Kichisaburo Nomura, the "peace" envoys had talked with Walker and other officials in efforts to obtain some kind of diplomatic agreement.

The former postmaster general's name came into the Japanese exchange of messages on August 7, 1941.

At that time, the Japanese embassy, reporting to Tokyo, said the occupation of French Indo-China had caused a break-off in the negotiations and made the American official return to their original opinion with regard to Japan.

Scheme For Rebuilding German Army Revealed

Veil Of Mystery Around Powerful German Industrialists To Rebuild German Army Lifted Today

By DANIEL DE LUCE Nuremberg, Nov. 23.—(AP)—The veil of mystery around the powerful German industrialists who became merchants of death for Hitler's schemes to rebuild the German army was lifted by American prosecutors today at the war crimes trial of 20 top Nazis.

Heads of the vast Krupp steel empire and the I. G. Farben chemical trust, Assistant Prosecutor Thomas Dodd charged agreed to finance the Nazi party as an antidote to Communism and later cooperated in a secret rearmament program.

Defendant Hjalmar Schacht was re-faced as he heard himself described from German documents as the financial wizard who was secretly appointed as plenipotentiary for war economy in 1935 and won the praise of a Reich general as "the man who made re-construction of the German army economically possible."

The head of the great Krupp Works, Gustav Krupp Von Bohlen und Halbach—who was indicted but thus far has escaped trial because of illness—was shown by German records, Dodd asserted to have aided in raising campaign funds for Hitler in 1933 and to have declared after Hitler's ascension to power that German industry "puts itself at your disposal."

Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel denied earlier that he participated in the Hitler cabinet meetings that planned the Nazi flood of aggression. As the fourth day of the historical opened, counsel for defeated Germany's No. 1 soldier declared two places today. One was the big, marble room where the hearings are being held. The other was the floor of the Senate, where some hot rebuttal was likely as a sequel to an outburst the other day by Senator James Tamm (D-De).

Tamm said Republicans on the investigating committee were acting like "apologists for Japan" and were trying to "snatch the memory of the late President Roosevelt."

Cortell Hull, though ailing, was reported anxious to testify because of criticism aimed at him by an army investigating board. This board in its report made public last August said that counter-proposals which Hull handed to the Japanese on November 26, 1941, served as a button that touched off the Pearl Harbor attack.

ATOMIC BOMB POSSESSION

Bombs Made In United States To Be Held For Time Being

Washington, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Atomic bombs now being made in the United States almost certainly will remain here until the United Nations act on proposed world control measures.

So far no question of sharing physical possession of the bombs even with Britain has arisen officially, it was learned today from top government informants. Their hope is that it may never have to arise.

American policy, these authorities said, is pegged to international handling of the whole range of atomic problems. Hence officials would like to avoid any impression that this country and Britain were dividing up the bombs between them as if in preparation for a war which actually they are seeking to prevent.

The question of who is to possess the bombs in the immediate future was raised with various persons familiar with the recent Truman-Attlee talks as a result of a series of incidents indicating Britain might have asked and been promised a share of them.

Former Prime Minister Churchill told Parliament November 7 that Britain, which helped develop the bomb should aid the United States in guarding it "as a sacred trust" until eventually the United Nations take over. Then he added that the British should make the bombs and should have them in Britain "even if manufactured elsewhere" with the least possible delay.

Three days later Prime Minister Attlee arrived here and began the conference with President Truman and Prime Minister MacKenzie King which resulted in the proposals to hand over to the United Nations the problem of working out controls. Then this week Mr. Truman told a news conference that the bombs are still being made in this country for what he described as experimental purposes.

This posed the question, Did Attlee ask and receive assurances from Mr. Truman that some of the bombs should be turned over to Britain (Continued on Page Four)

Ex-Secretary Cordell Hull Declares That He And President Roosevelt Played Desperately For Time Before The Attack On Pearl Harbor

Washington, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Cordell Hull told congressional investigators today that he had expected war with Japan prior to the Pearl Harbor attack and that he and President Roosevelt had maneuvered desperately to gain time.

The ailing 74-year-old former secretary of state gave his account of diplomatic negotiations on the eve of hostilities in a prepared statement to a Senate-House committee investigating the disaster.

He said he and Mr. Roosevelt had sought to avoid a "showdown" with the Japanese and never gave Japan any ultimatum.

Because of Hull's health, the committee permitted a committee counsel, Gerhard Gesell, to read the former secretary's memorandum. Hull himself was excused from the morning session after putting in an early appearance.

Before the inquiry resumed after a Thanksgiving Day recess, Senator Lucas (D-Ill.) told reporters that former Postmaster General Frank Walker probably will be called to tell of his part in the diplomatic talks with Japan before the Japanese struck at Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941.

Hull told the committee his statement had been prepared under his direction by State Department experts, and represented his considered views.

PLAN OFFERED BY DE GAULLE

President Offers To Assembly Program For Nationalization

Paris, Nov. 23.—(AP)—President De Gaulle presented to the Constituent Assembly today a program calling for quick nationalization of France's credit, electricity and insurance industries.

He called for reforms in public service and administration, judicial reforms and a constitutional change in the military structure of the national defense. The general asked for "nationalization" of mining, industry and agriculture and said the franc must be revalued so French raise wages without raising prices. This wasn't popular with businessmen and business sympathizer.

Maybe the labor-management conference, which he called, will come up with some solution for the labor-industry struggle. Maybe it won't. Mr. Truman himself may still have to solve that one.

And solving it will mean a terrific decision.

But the domestic situation is no more disturbing than the foreign one. Our relations with Russia have deteriorated gravely.

And even the London conference of foreign ministers, including our own, failed to solve all the problems it tackled.

So far Mr. Truman's most clearly enunciated action in the foreign field—keeping the atomic bomb secret until other nations prove they won't use it—has had a mixed reception.

Up on Capitol Hill Mr. Truman started out to get along with Congress by feeding it money. He was taking just the opposite course from the late President Roosevelt, who had been pretty stern and often used a whip.

Mr. Truman had been a lawmaker himself only recently. Then he laid down his 21-point program to Congress' lap. Most of it is still lying there.

The WORLD TODAY

An Analysis Of The News

By DEWITT MACKENZIE AP Foreign Affairs Analyst. By the time this column is in print, you and I will be starting a fresh adventure abroad—first stop England.

That is to say, I'm hoping you will go along in spirit, for the sole purpose of this trip is to enable you and me to get behind the scenes of the great crisis which is ushering in a new world epoch. Our old globe never before has been anything approaching the travail of this change.

Take Europe. Vast reaches are so battered and torn by the instruments of war that millions are now without homes. Thousands in thousands are perishing of starvation and disease, and others are facing death from these same grim killers. Hungry hordes are moving over the countryside, pillaging and murdering that they themselves may live. Huge sections of displaced populations are among the wanderers in this wilderness.

Large Motor Patrol In New York City

New York, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Crime and violence mounted in New York City today even as new armed police mobile divisions—the largest motorized patrol in the city's history—roamed the streets in combat against a reign of terrorism.

A 28 year old man, Rocco Loscalzo, was shot to death early this morning in the Greenwich Village section. Police, expressing the belief the shooting was a gang slaying, said Loscalzo died under a fusillade of shots fired from a doorway. Five bullets penetrated his back and two entered his head, they said. Police said Loscalzo was freed in bail Oct. 24, after being arrested on a charge of grand larceny in the theft of $20,000 in liquor August 30 from a warehouse.

The slaying brought to 66 the number of persons who have met violent deaths in the last 74 days. Audrey Beasley, 19, also reported to police that she was shot in the right knee while crossing a street in downtown Manhattan. She told police she heard the shot and then felt a "sting" in her leg.

In another eruption of violence, a 20 year old youth, Phillip Becero, was shot in the right side by police while attempting to escape arrest as a suspect in a series of early morning burglaries in Brooklyn. Police said he was in serious condition.

Today In Congress

By Max Hall

Washington, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Congress cups an ear today for Cordell Hull's own story of the events leading up to Pearl Harbor.

Here is a quick summary of the day in Congress: Pearl Harbor: Former Secretary Cordell Hull, 74 years old and in poor health, testifies before the Senate-House committee investigating the December 7, 1941, disaster.

And it was indicated that another ex-cabinet member, Frank Walker, will testify later in the hearings. Walker as well as Hull had a part in the pre-war negotiations with the Japanese.

Atomic Energy: Rep. Helen Gahagan Douglas (D-Calif.) says she wants President Truman to invite Russia and Britain "immediately" to a Big Three conference on the atomic bomb. She prepared a speech on the subject for delivery on the House floor.

Labor Conference Abandoning Hope

Washington, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Industry delegates to the labor-management conference have virtually abandoned hope of arriving at any solution of jurisdictional disputes.

A delegate of the National Association of Manufacturers predicted to a reporter today that the question would be referred for long-term study to the proposed semi-permanent executive board whose creation is now favored by conference leaders.

Despite President Truman's flat challenge to the conference at its opening—"Some substitute must be found for jurisdictional strikes"—members of the subcommittee assigned to the task quit and went home last Friday for a ten-day breathing spell.

They will reassemble again next Monday, but the industry members—who are largely bystanders to an issue which can be settled only by the labor delegates—were pessimistic of results.

When the committee began its work, management men said, they suggested that labor work out its own answer to inter-union squabbles and submit it in writing. The labor group was reluctant to try for such a quick answer.

The NATION TODAY

By James Marlow

Washington, Nov. 23.—(AP)—It was nice while it lasted. When Mr. Truman took over last April, there seemed to be general agreement to hold back the bricks, to let him show what he could do.

His simplicity and directness made a good impression. But now that the war is over and Mr. Truman has to make decisions to fit new situations, home and abroad, criticism is hitting him hard.

This week one commentator undertook to tell him how to run his day: whom to see, whom not to see, what telephone calls to answer or ignore.

Attend Council

Mrs. Viola Baker, president of the Greenville Business and Professional Women's Club, Miss Alva Taylor and Mrs. Chester Walsh attended the mid-year council of the North Carolina Federation in session last week-end at Sedgewick Inn near Greensboro.

The theme of the annual council was "Our World to Build" and the subject speaker giving the keynote address, "Economics of Peace" was Eugene Pfaff, of the history department of Woman's College, who declared that "the ultimate responsibility for peace or war in the world does not rest on either end of Pennsylvania Avenue, but much of it rests on Main Street, U. S. A."

He stated the recipe for world peace is to send technicians with the know-how for solving the economic and social ills of the world and on political machinery to put that know-how to work. It depends, too, on a development of a generation of Americans who have lost narrow national prejudices, hatreds, and intolerances. He declared that the two big jobs facing America if it is to realize the hope for world peace are to send technicians with the know-how for solving the economic and social ills of the world and on political machinery to put that know-how to work. It depends, too, on a development of a generation of Americans who have lost narrow national prejudices, hatreds, and intolerances.

Dr. I. G. Greer, superintendent of the Baptist Orphanage, Thomasville, spoke at an inspirational breakfast "Building International Understanding" and pointed out that recognition of the brotherhood of man is basic to the construction of genuine human understanding in the world. "If we are to build a better world," Dr. Greer said, "we must recognize and appreciate our dependence upon each other. We must secure our desires in such a way as to help people instead of getting even with or crushing them. We must act upon truth and justice instead of prejudice and opinions in our economic, political, social, religious, and racial lives. Guns and the atomic bomb are but temporary assurances of security. The hope of the world is our learning how to live together in the brotherhood of man."

Dr. Irman Henderson-Smathers, Asheville, physician who heads the organization, presided over the business sessions and the board of directors meeting attended by Mrs. Baker member of that group.

The first meeting of the state nominating committee was held Saturday afternoon and Mrs. Walsh is the representative from the Seventh district.

The Seventh district won second prize in a stunt contest portraying the part women have taken in the war effort, the sixth district winning first.

The 1946 convention will be held in Charlotte the third week-end in June and Miss Mabel Bacon, president of the Charlotte club, heads the program planning group for the June meeting. It will be the first state convention since that of 1943, as war travel restrictions prevented the holding of the 1945 one.

Mrs. Allison James, office manager of the Greensboro office of the War Finance Committee, addressed the luncheon on Saturday and told of plans for the Victory Loan Drive and asked the business women to emphasize "Women at Peace Week," which is set for December 1-8.

More than 200 Tar Heel care workers attended sessions at Sedgewick field with the Greensboro, High Point and Thomasville clubs providing special programs of music, entertainment, and fellowship.

State Alumni Held Quarterly Meeting

By CHESTER WALSH

State College Coach Beatty Feathers, former All-American back and member of the Chicago Bears and Green Bay Packers professional football teams, was guest speaker at the quarterly supper meeting of Pitt County Chapter of State College Alumni Association at the Farmville Country Club Wednesday night. Country Chapter President Arthur Tripp presided.

Members of the Greenville High School football team and the Griffon High School boys were special guests. Bobby Clark introduced the Greenville players. Pop Taylor of Raleigh, State College alumni secretary, delivered a special message in which he said Beatty Feathers is the best coach State College ever had.

Chester Feathers made an informal talk about football prospects at State College next year. He answered questions fired at him by the high school players and gave some wholesome advice about sports in colleges and schools. He stressed the point that athletic training and contests in various sports impresses the players with the value of fair play and helps to mould a sturdy character.

Brief talks were made by J. T. Thorne of Farmville and Chester Walsh of Greenville, recently elected honorary members of the Pitt County alumni chapter; Elbert M. Tyson of Farmville, George W. Davis of Farmville, member of the State Legislature; L. T. Walston, Farmville banker; "Tarzan" Morris, famous cheer leader, and Walter Jones of Farmville, the latter welcoming the guests.

President Tripp reviewed the alumni chapter's activities since the midsummer meeting at Aiden and reminded that the membership is steadily increasing. Secretary Platt to Evans followed with a gratifying

Chapel Hill, Nov. 23—In response to inquiries from the public, Dr. Ralph W. McDonald, North Carolina State Chairman of the March of Dimes, emphasized today that the nationwide March of Dimes, to be conducted Jan. 14-31 as usual, has no connection with any other infantile paralysis fund appeal.

The March of Dimes, he said, has become synonymous with the organized fight against poliomyelitis directed and unified by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, whose 1946 campaign will be commemorating the late Franklin D. Roosevelt, who created the National Foundation and symbolized its continuing crusade.

Pop Taylor of Raleigh, State College alumni secretary, delivered a special message in which he said Beatty Feathers is the best coach State College ever had.

Chester Feathers made an informal talk about football prospects at State College next year. He answered questions fired at him by the high school players and gave some wholesome advice about sports in colleges and schools. He stressed the point that athletic training and contests in various sports impresses the players with the value of fair play and helps to mould a sturdy character.

Brief talks were made by J. T. Thorne of Farmville and Chester Walsh of Greenville, recently elected honorary members of the Pitt County alumni chapter; Elbert M. Tyson of Farmville, George W. Davis of Farmville, member of the State Legislature; L. T. Walston, Farmville banker; "Tarzan" Morris, famous cheer leader, and Walter Jones of Farmville, the latter welcoming the guests.

President Tripp reviewed the alumni chapter's activities since the midsummer meeting at Aiden and reminded that the membership is steadily increasing. Secretary Platt to Evans followed with a gratifying

The Curious Case

BY RUFUS HEED

Chapter 28

"It isn't a pretty story, but Potter's death follows Dolores' quite logically. You know what went before, how Dolores demanded more money for the dossier and Potter consented. He took the dossier to his room, got several hundred dollars, and started for Suzy's bedroom, where he knew Dolores was coming back to dress after the Fashion Show. He came down the hall toward the door of the room, just as Suzy was coming out of her sitting room door.

"Everything was over by that time. Without looking back, Suzy ran down the stairs to the second floor and Potter went into the bedroom. But the killer had seen Potter—Potter had seen the killer—so he had to die."

"That's logical enough," Gardner said in a level voice. "But why didn't Miss Van Tyne take the plans from his hand after she shot him? They were her father's plans and she had been very much concerned over their loss."

"Suzy was frightened. Her only thought was to get out of the room. I think any girl in that horrible spot would have done the same thing."

"Then you agree with Waldo as to time Potter was shot?" Cobo asked.

Ramon nodded, and lit another cigarette before he answered. "Yes, Waldo's accurate this time. Suzy had dinner with me that night and said she was going to stay in her room all evening. I did not see her after half past eight. Potter was shot at nine. As a matter of fact, I called her on the telephone at 11, and she did not answer then. Naturally, I thought nothing of it and started for Miami a few minutes later."

"About 11:15?" Cobo asked. Gardner looked at him a little irritably. Why ask apparently useless questions when he already knew the answers? Then he suddenly realized that Cobo was working on his own suggestion. Suzy's time table. Time, time, time was what the stenographer was putting down as Ramon talked.

"I checked with Peabody that evening. I knew he didn't see Miss Van Tyne, either at dinner or before he went to bed. Check and double check," Gardner said, more to himself than to the other men in the office.

Ramon swung around on the end of the table, and looked at Gardner with an amused smile.

"You went to a lot of trouble. Gardner, to prove the time Potter was shot. I still don't know why you were so hell bent to be thorough about something any medical student could have told you in three minutes."

Gardner flushed slightly and took the glasses from his forehead with a jerk. He opened his case, put them in and snapped it shut before he said:

"What was so juvenile about what I did?"

"Well, you got the right answer from Waldo. He said Potter had been shot at nine o'clock Monday night. Then what do you do? You get Blair and there is a confab with another doctor—about what? nothing! Holding medical consultations over a corpse is pretty silly in my opinion—especially for a man with your reputation."

Very deliberately, Gardner walked over to Ramon. He swung his hand out so swiftly the dancer had no time to dodge and caught him on the shoulder. With a strong heave, he dragged him to his feet and stared straight at him with his eyes only a few inches from Ramon's.

"Keep a civil tongue in your head," he spoke curtly, eyeing the man in front of him steadily. "Maybe you don't like my methods, but when I want your opinion of them, I'll ask for it."

"Aw, forget it," Ramon shrugged off the federal man's hand and turned away. "What's eating you anyway? People around here are getting on each other's nerves. Jeez, I was just saying what I thought! This is a free country—why not—nothing to get sore about—"

"Potter had been dead at least nine hours when his body was found the next morning. That's all."

"Jesus y Maria," Cobo said, in a low voice. "I guess that is all."

For a moment no one spoke or moved. Then Gardner turned abruptly to Cobo and said shortly:

"Now what, Chief?"

"This breaks the case," Cobo answered quickly. "It answers questions we did not know. You agree with me."

"Perfectly. All that is left is the official windup."

Cobo motioned his stenographer that she was through. As the girl gathered up her pencils, and notebooks, he straightened the papers on his desk, and said to Ramon:

"You are the coroner for these two murders and I will make an arrest this evening. It is important that you be present also."

"Oh, of course, Chief. I'll be there."

"Okay. When is Potter inquest?"

"Tomorrow at eleven. After you get through tonight, the inquest will not take long."

"That is right. Every one in Hale's office tonight at eight. Glad you came in, Ramon."

"Oh, that's all right. You know I'd help you any time, Chief. But the whole thing is a damn shame."

"And it's certainly going to be a hard evening for you, Ramon. Cobo observed quietly, as he bent down and locked the top drawer of his desk. "I understand you in love with Miss Van Tyne."

"Yeah. That part isn't so good. I admit I fell pretty hard. But girls will be girls, and Suzy certainly turned out to be a honey, didn't she?"

"Yes, and then there was Dolores. It might be hard on you tonight, Ramon, because of Dolores also."

Gardner, who was at the door, turned with a slight frown on his face. Cobo was a funny little guy. He'd swear he had something back of all this—and then it came out!

"That's over now, Cobo," Ramon answered easily. "I just lost an assistant, that's all."

"No, that is not all," Cobo insisted softly. "It is always hard for any husband to face fact that wife was murdered. You were married Christmas day, Ramon. Dolores was your wife."

Football

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

New York, Nov. 23—(AP)—Thirteen incorrect guesses last Saturday sent this corner's average below the .800 mark for the first time in more than two years.

Nevertheless, here are this week's probable college football winners: Notre Dame - Tulane; Off their one common foe, Georgia Tech, this game should be a pushover for the Midwestern outfit. It probably won't be that easy but the Irish shouldn't have to work too hard. Notre Dame.

Purdue - Indiana: The Hoosiers need this victory for their first Big Ten title. A setback would give the crown to the winner of the Ohio State-Michigan tussle. Indiana.

Ohio State-Michigan: The Buckeyes apparently have recovered from their mid-season difficulties but the Wolverines appear to have more polish. Winner of this game will be Big Ten champion if Purdue spills Indiana, Michigan.

Cornell - Pennsylvania: Cornell's team, revamped after the Nov. 1 Navy transfers, still has too many rough edges. Pennsylvania.

North Carolina - Duke: A neighborhood brawl in which past performances mean nothing. Duke, however, is the only college team to score twice on Army this year. Therefore, Duke.

UCLA - California: The Uclans were "up" for their victory over St. Mary's last week but should have enough zip left to repeat their early season win over the Bears. UCLA.

Texas Christian-Rice: Temporary second place in the Southwest Conference is at stake with the Owls favored by about the three-point margin by which they lost to the Frogs a year ago. Rice.

Dartmouth-Columbia: Coach Lou Little openly predicts his Lions will win this one. He should know. Columbia.

Oklahoma A & M-Oklahoma: The there.

"Okay. When is Potter inquest?"

"Tomorrow at eleven. After you get through tonight, the inquest will not take long."

"That is right. Every one in Hale's office tonight at eight. Glad you came in, Ramon."

Aggies have one of the year's most brilliant ground-gaining machines. Oklahoma A & M.

Oregon State - Southern California: Even the weatherman smiles on the Trojans when they play at home. Southern California.

Yale - Princeton: The first Big Three game since pre-war days comes with many of the Princeton players in bed with influenza. Yale.

Clemson - Georgia Tech: Clemson walloped Tulane last week but will find this goes too much. Georgia Tech.

Skipping over the remainder in a hurry:

Far West: Texas Tech over New Mexico, Colorado College over Colorado A & M, Washington State over Washington.

Midwest: Northwestern over Illinois, Iowa over Nebraska, Wisconsin over Minnesota, Missouri over Kansas.

South: Miami over Michigan State (Friday), Auburn over Louisiana Tech, Alabama over Pensacola Navy, Mississippi State over Mississippi, Tennessee over Kentucky, Virginia over Maryland.

Southwest: Southern Methodist over Baylor.

East: Harvard over Boston University, Holy Cross over Boston College (Sunday), Colgate over Brown, West State over Pittsburgh, Kings Point over Brooklyn.

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

MORAL TRANSFORMATION POSSIBLE

We often say quite glibly that of course everybody is a sinner. This the New Testament affirms, but it means by such a declaration not that everybody commits scandalous sins but that everybody is by nature a transgressor. We bring into this world with us, because we are human, a vast propensity toward evil. Basic in all religious teaching is the contention that the evil a man brings into the world with him will surely overwhelm him and that if good and evil are left to fight it out alone, evil will win. This goes quite contrary to much modern theory. We like to believe that man's natural goodness is much stronger than his natural evil. But experience does not so indicate. Without some help from a power higher than himself, man will limp through life morally impeded by a weak will and be drawn aside from the doing of what is right by the enticement of things that appeal to his selfish nature.

Christianity calls upon every man to acknowledge himself a sinner and face the fact that he is unable alone to meet his sin and overcome it. He must therefore seek divine forgiveness and must promise obedience to the God who has forgiven him. God has designated Christ as the agent of this forgiveness and has told men to make their plea through Him. This is what we mean when we say that a man's sins are forgiven through Christ.

The whole experience of moral transformation begins in the experience of forgiveness.

Pitt County's quota in E Bonds is $515,000. As we failed to subscribe to our E Bond quota in the Seventh War Loan Drive we have added to our quota $235,000, which gives us a self imposed quota of $750,000 in E Bonds in the Victory Loan Drive.

We have sold up to date $250,000. We need to sell to be over the top in E Bonds in all drives up to date $500,000 more. We have already over-sold our overall quota in Bonds excluding E Bonds. We need now to concentrate on the sale of E Bonds. An E Bond costs 75 cents on the dollar, face value, and pays back face value in 10 years, which is 2 1/3 per cent simple interest or 2.9 per cent interest compounded semi-annually. It may be redeemed at purchase price on and after 60 days from date at any bank. It pays more interest than any other bond issued by the Government. Have you purchased the limit of your capacity? If not, now is the time to do so.

The war is over. The peace has not been won. Our boys have not returned home. We still owe them a great obligation and it can only be met by subscribing to the bonds offered by our Government.

During the Victory Loan Drive a new $200 E Bond is being offered which costs $150. It has a picture of Franklin Delano Roosevelt on it and is a memorial to "Man-hours works by all clock workers versus units of stock."

All clock employes, he explained, would participate in the profits of a company in an equal amount with the stockholders—"so many man-hours worked against one unit of stock, based on wages earned and the actual cash originally put into working stock."
An organization which claims to represent the workers in 2,500 corporations suggests "a wage differential which automatically gears increased compensation to increased earnings—a governor-control to meet fluctuations of business or living standards without incurring warfare at every variation."

Don't think that the conference is ignoring these baffling formulas. Some of them are addressed to the conference in general, some to Labor Secretary Schwelmbach; some to President Truman, but all are getting a "thank-you" note in reply. Conference employes also are culling the whole batch; all of those which seem to have real merit—and many do—are passed along for the serious consideration of the conferees.

So far there's one suggestion that hasn't been acted upon. That is that the conference print copies of Edgar Guest's poem "Labor-Capital" and place one on each of the desks of the conferees.

"It would help promote a bit of unity and understanding," says a Michigan woman.

There are few persons around the conference table who won't readily admit that they could use some.

avoiding the risk of war but of making "a definite and clear move to self defense."
That act, he said, brought about the July 6, 1941, order of President Roosevelt to freeze Japanese assets in this country.

Hull noted that at the Atlantic Conference of the President and Prime Minister Churchill in August, 1941, "Mr. Churchill had informed President Roosevelt that the British government needed more time to prepare for resistance against a possible Japanese attack on the Far East."
"This was true also of our defense preparations," Hull said.

"Furthermore," he went on, "President Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill had agreed that the American and British governments should take parallel action in informing Japan that, in the event the Japanese government should take further steps of aggression against neighboring countries, each of them would be compelled to take all necessary to safeguard the legitimate rights and interests of its country and nationals and to insure its country's safety and security."
Mr. Roosevelt gave the Japanese ambassador this warning on August 17, but agreed at the same time to continue negotiations. He and the President knew that the Japanese were "unreliable and treacherous," Hull said, adding that while "our government desired peace, it could not brush away the realities of the situation."

Accordingly, they continued to talk with the Japanese in the hope that, at least, "the conversations would give our army and navy time to prepare."
Hull said Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek reported early in November that the Japanese appeared to be preparing to attack Kuming. He asked for American air units and for a warning against Japan. At Hull's suggestion, the army and navy studied this appeal but recommended against any armed intervention in China beyond the "Flying Tigers" volunteers. They urged additional material aid to China but wanted "no ultimatum delivered to Japan."
The former secretary said that as early as November 7, 1941, he told the cabinet that "relations were extremely critical and we should be on the lookout for a military attack anywhere by Japan at any time."
He added that Ambassador Joseph Grew cabled warnings November 3 and 17 "of the possibility of sudden Japanese attacks which might make inevitable war with the United States."
He said Saburo Kurosu, Japanese "peace" ambassador, suggested that a temporary agreement might be reached, but that on November 20 the Japanese envoy presented a new proposal "which on its face was extreme."
"The whole issue presented," he said, "was whether Japan would yield in her avowed movement of conquest or whether we would yield the fundamental principles for which we stood in the Pacific and all over the world. They were armed to the teeth and we knew they would attack whenever and wherever they pleased."
On November 25, he said he told the War Council, consisting of the President, secretaries of state, war and navy, the army chief of staff and the chief of naval operations, that "the Japanese military were already poised for attack."
At a November 27 meeting of the War Council, Hull said he pointed out that there was "practically no possibility of an agreement being achieved with Japan." He reiterated, he declared, that it was up to ambassador this warning on August 17, but agreed at the same time to continue negotiations. He and the President knew that the Japanese were "unreliable and treacherous," Hull said, adding that while "our government desired peace, it could not brush away the realities of the situation."

Accordingly, they continued to talk with the Japanese in the hope that, at least, "the conversations would give our army and navy time to prepare."
Hull said Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek reported early in November that the Japanese appeared to be preparing to attack Kuming. He asked for American air units and for a warning against Japan. At Hull's suggestion, the army and navy studied this appeal but recommended against any armed intervention in China beyond the "Flying Tigers" volunteers. They urged additional material aid to China but wanted "no ultimatum delivered to Japan."
The former secretary said that as early as November 7, 1941, he told the cabinet that "relations were extremely critical and we should be on the lookout for a military attack anywhere by Japan at any time."
He added that Ambassador Joseph Grew cabled warnings November 3 and 17 "of the possibility of sudden Japanese attacks which might make inevitable war with the United States."
He said Saburo Kurosu, Japanese "peace" ambassador, suggested that a temporary agreement might be reached, but that on November 20 the Japanese envoy presented a new proposal "which on its face was extreme."
"The whole issue presented," he said, "was whether Japan would yield in her avowed movement of conquest or whether we would yield the fundamental principles for which we stood in the Pacific and all over the world. They were armed to the teeth and we knew they would attack whenever and wherever they pleased."
On November 25, he said he told the War Council, consisting of the President, secretaries of state, war and navy, the army chief of staff and the chief of naval operations, that "the Japanese military were already poised for attack."
At a November 27 meeting of the War Council, Hull said he pointed out that there was "practically no possibility of an agreement being achieved with Japan." He reiterated, he declared, that it was up to embassy made to revise neutrality legislation in the summer of 1938 so as to have "strengthened the hands of the western democracies."

This, Hull recalled, "was violently opposed and blocked on the whole by mistaken theory that no war was likely to occur, and, if it did occur, no attack against us was likely."
"On November 30," he said, "I was informed by the British ambassador that the British government had important indications that Japan was about to attack Siam and that this attack would include a seaborne expedition to seize strategic points in the Kra Isthmus."
Hull telephoned Mr. Roosevelt on November 30 to come back from Warm Springs.
Then on December 6, Hull said the government received reports that a Japanese fleet of 35 transports, eight cruisers and 20 destroyers was moving from Indo-China toward the Kra Peninsula.
"This was confirmation that the long threatened Japanese movement of expansion by force was under way," he said.
He noted the President's telegraphic appeal that day to the emperor of Japan to avert the "tragic possibilities."
"On December 7, the Japanese struck Pearl Harbor," he concluded at this point.
Hull said that from the very outset of the pre-war talks with Japan he estimated there was "not one chance in 20 or one in 50 or even one in 100 of reaching a peaceful settlement."
"But if there was a chance that new agreements would contribute to peace in the Pacific," he added, "the President and I believed that we should not neglect that possibility, slim as it was."
Hull attributed Japan's record of duplicity largely "to the fact that the Japanese military were a law unto themselves and consistently overrode commitments which civilian 'Japanese had given.'"
Under a subheading "Situation in the United States," the former secretary recalled that as far back as 1933 the Senate Foreign Relations Committee turned down a proposal which would have authorized U. S. cooperation in an arms embargo against aggressor nations.
"This and similar actions, he said, were interpreted by aggressors as meaning the U. S. would not oppose effectively their policies of conquest."
"For further illustration, he mentioned efforts he and Mr. Roose-

"She Is Just Away"
I cannot say, and I will not say
That she is dead, she is just away!
With a cheery smile and a wave of
of the hand.

And left us dreaming how very fair
It needs must be, since she lingers
there.
And you, oh you, who the wild-st yearn.

Think of her faring on, as dear
In the love of there, as the love of here.
Think of her still as the same, I say,
She is not dead, she is just away!

"We'd like to put them in for all who want them"

BUT even if we had telephone instruments for all who want them, we could not connect a majority of them now. That's because there just aren't enough existing lines, cables, switchboards and other central office equipment.

Though the war in the Pacific is ended it will still take time to reconvert and manufacture equipment, engineer central offices and build the new equipment into the existing system before service can be made available to all who want it. But we are working orders as fast as possible under existing conditions. We appreciate the patience of those who are waiting.

Farmers Urged To Vote In Election

Every eligible farmer in North Carolina should attend the AAA election meeting in his community on November 30 and take part in naming his AAA community committeemen for the coming year. I. O. Schaub, director, State Extension Service, said today.

One of the most important jobs facing the newly elected committeemen as they take the oath of office will be to determine best practices to meet the needs of the county and distribute the allocation of funds that has been allotted to the counties and communities so that individual farms will receive conservation assistance based on actual needs. Besides helping farmers select practices that will speed re-conversion of North Carolina's farmland from the strains of wartime production, AAA committeemen will be faced with other post-war problems, such as crop prices, marketing difficulties, and production adjustment.

"Due to the magnitude of these problems," Schaub said, "the men elected at these meetings should have the confidence and support of every eligible farmer in the community."

Approximately 350,000 Tar Heel farmers are eligible to cast ballots in the 1,733 AAA community elections. Eligibility to vote is restricted to farmers who participated in the agricultural conservation and Federal crop insurance programs.

In Atlantic City, N. J., the executive board of the CIO Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America said it would seek a $1 a day wage increase, an old age retirement fund and six paid holidays each year for its 150,000 clothing workers in the United States.

Union President Sidney Hillman said the union's negotiation committee would confer tomorrow with representatives of the Clothing Manufacturers' Association. Another official said negotiations also were under way for wage hikes and other benefits for 75,000 cotton garment workers in 32 states. One strike settlement was reported. workers of the Proctor Electric Co. in Philadelphia ended after they accepted a 10 cents an hour wage increase. They had struck for a $2 a day wage hike. The CIO United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers Union said the company also had granted maintenance of membership and checkoff of dues, other issues in their demands.

Association Buys More Victory Bonds

The Greenville Production Credit Association, which serves Pitt and Greene counties, has purchased $11,500.00 in Victory Bonds, F. L. Little, Jr., secretary-treasurer, announced. He also called attention to the fact that the Greenville Production Credit Association is an issuing agency for these bonds and will be glad to issue all residents of these counties Victory Bonds during the drive.

The offices of the association are located at 310 Evans Street, Greenville, and opposite the courthouse, Snow Hill.

To Be Called . . .

"Last night the secretary (Hull) expressed his deep disappointment to me. According to the postmaster general, that disappointment on the part of the secretary was all the deeper because he had been so very interested in bettering the relations between Japan and the United States.

"I have already reported that Secretary Hull and his very good friend Walker were put on an exceedingly embarrassing spot in their relations with their cabinet colleagues."

On August 16, Nomura messaged to Tokyo that he had "tried to interest a member of the cabinet who was intimately associated with the secretary of state" in helping to arrange a conference between President Roosevelt and Prince Konoye, the Japanese premier, but added that the cabinet member "also had shown little interest in the subject." The cabinet member was not named.

In Japan recently, Kurusu told newsmen that a member of the American cabinet and another influential but unofficial American worked closely with the Japanese diplomats in an effort to prevent war.

Kurusu declined to reveal the names, and Walker said in New York he was not sure whether he was the cabinet officer referred to.

Plan Offered . . .

De Gaulle declared that the threat of atomic destruction was hanging over the world and that French foreign policy would be directed toward a role of harmony among the nations of Western Europe.

He said France's policy would not be one of blocs, but one of "cooperation." This, he said, did not exclude France from signing accords with specific countries. He recalled the French-Russian treaty of 1944 and described Russia as a nation "like ourselves, primarily interested in preventing in the future any German menace."

He said that in the spirit of this treaty, France is trying to foster good relations with the U. S. and was discussing a possible future accord on questions of common interest with Great Britain.

He was reported to have asked Finance Minister Rene Pleven and National Economic Minister Ambroise Croizat to have ready for him by next Tuesday detailed plans for putting the nation's credit and electrical power under state control.

The Assembly named a 44-man commission yesterday to draft a new constitution for a fourth republic and was expected to approve De Gaulle's cabinet and program today.

Revision In . . .

(Continued on page four) price goals of present farm laws "have little relation to reality" in their application to some commodities. He cited cotton and cautioned that it faces possible loss of market at home and abroad.

As administration leaders see the situation, this country has only these three courses open to it:

1. Reduce prices of the export commodities so that they may move freely into world markets.
2. Subsidize exports if present price policies are retained.
3. Re-establish production controls to limit output to domestic requirements if present price policies are kept and export subsidies are eliminated.

The Byrnes and Anderson speeches indicate an administration preference for the first course. It would be supplemented by international collaboration designed to stabilize prices at levels fair to both farmers and consumers and to divide world markets among producing nations so as to prevent cut-throat competition.

American Missing In India's Riots

Calcutta, Nov. 23 —(AP)— One American soldier was missing and more than 30 had been injured today as Indian anti-British rioting raged for the third day in Calcutta and spread to Bombay and Delhi.

The demonstrations, touched off by the trial of Indian officers who sided with the Japanese in the war, threw Calcutta into civil turmoil. More than 20,000 municipal workers went on strike.

The missing U. S. soldier was reported to have left Camp Howrah, across the Hooghly River from Calcutta, last night in an ambulance. The ambulance was found this morning overturned and burned. The name of the missing man was not disclosed. At least 15 American trucks and command cars have been attacked by unruly mobs since the disturbances started here. Crying "Down with British imperialism," students clashed repeatedly with police in Bombay. Twenty demonstrators were reported injured. A British soldier who refused student demands that he shout "Jai Hind (victory to India)," was beaten. The Red Mogul Fort where Indian national army men are on trial on charges of aiding the enemy was the scene of Delhi's demonstration. Columns of students marched past the fort. Their leaders indicated all college students in Delhi would be asked to quit classes in protest against shootings in Calcutta.

Jet Bomb

Los Angeles, Nov. 23 —(AP)— A jet-propelled buzz bomb, carrying 3,700 pounds of explosives, has been under production for the army since the summer of 1944. Northrop Aircraft, the manufacturer, has now disclosed.

The bomb, resembling a small fighter, could be launched from a landing craft (LST) with the installation of tracks, 59 feet in length, the announcement said.

Live Stock

Raleigh, Nov. 23 —(AP)— The North Carolina State College Extension Service is planning a series of horse and mule clinics in many sections of the state this winter in order to put livestock in condition for next spring's farm work. A licensed veterinarian will attend each clinic and make examinations and give treatment.
