Pearl Harbor
Committee Calls
Secretary Hull Back
To Capital to Round Out Pattern Of Events as War Came To United States

Washington, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Former Secretary of State Cordell Hull testified today he believed the State Department was "thoroughly justified in wanting the fleet kept at Pearl Harbor in the critical days of late 1941."

The former cabinet officer took the stand before a Senate-House committee investigating the Pearl Harbor disaster for an hour's questioning.

In response to a question from Gerhard Gesell, committee counsel, about the State Department's attitude on keeping the fleet in Hawaiian waters, Hull said:

"We felt that it would be more or less useless, especially after the fleet was based at Pearl Harbor, that it remained there during the critical days of relations with certain other nations—Japan especially."

"We were dealing with one of the worst international desperadoes in the memory of man. He was at large, on a rampage, dangerous, treacherous and undependable in every way."

"It was a little more wholesome in the many matters under discussion for our navy to be standing there."

Hull said that "from all tangible and intangible reactions" he had received he was convinced that the State Department was "thoroughly justified" in that viewpoint.

Gesell reminded the gray-haired witness that Admiral J. O. Richardson, then commander in chief of the fleet, had testified earlier in the investigation that he warned Washington officials the security of the fleet was endangered by its remaining in Hawaiian waters.

Had Hull ever been advised of Richardson's view, Gesell asked.

"I don't remember at any time that any person suggested the idea that the fleet couldn't protect itself," Hull replied firmly.

Hull said a projected Pacific crisis message from President Roosevelt to Congress, November 29, 1941, was not delivered because it was felt this would only play into the hands of the war lords of Japan.

The message, a copy of which is in committee files, would have stressed the dangers of Japanese attack.

Hull said another reason for holding it back was that "public opinion in the country was split wide open on the question of nationalism, as some people called it, and a broader international viewpoint."

A evidence of this condition, he cited the fact that Congress had approved extension of the draft act only by a one-vote margin only a few weeks before.

President Roosevelt sent a personal message to the emperor of Japan on December 6, 1941, asking for the withdrawal of troops from Indo-China as a demonstration of peaceful intent by the Japanese.

Gesell brought out that other drafts of a proposed message had been prepared at least as early as (Continued on Page Four)

FIGHT FLARES
ANEW IN JAVABritish Say Indonesian
Nationalists Leaving Stronghold

By VERN HAUGLAND
Batavia, Java, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Long lines of Indonesians were observed retreating southward out of battered Soerabaja today, the British said, as fighting flared anew in Batavia.

A British press release stated the movement of the Indonesians toward Malang, 55 miles away, indicated that the native Nationalists were abandoning their last stronghold in the southern section of Soerabaja.

Inside the big Java naval base city itself, however, an Indonesian force backed by tank, a 47-millimeter gun and armored cars was dispersed yesterday after it attacked a British Indian unit. Two Indians were killed and one was wounded. Five Indonesians were killed and several were wounded in a second engagement near a Soerabaja hospital.

In Batavia the capital of troubled Java, the British said one of their Punja companies killed at least half of a force of approximately 100 attacking Indonesians.

British authorities sent rocket-firing Mosquito bombers into action for the first time in the Java fighting yesterday. The planes scored 13 direct rocket hits on the Nationalist radio station at Jogjakarta and nine on the radio station at Soerabaja. The pilots attacked an hour after Allied planes had dropped warning leaflets.

A national committee of the unrecognized Indonesian republic met at Batavia and heard Premier Sutan Sjahrir, counseling quiet among the people.

"The Indonesian Nationalists are seeking freedom from the Netherlands," he said.

The Dutch force in the Batavia sector consists of about 2,000 native troops from the islands of Ambon and Celebes and a number of pro-Dutch Javanese.

The British announced officially last week that Ambonese soldiers and their families would be withdrawn.

Next Term Superior
Court In January

No more sessions of Superior Court will be held in Pitt County this year, Clerk David M. House said today. The next term will be held in January.

This year's 1945—went down in legal history as having more and longer terms of Superior Court than any in the memory of court officials and members of the bar.

In addition to scheduled criminal and civil terms, two long special criminal terms when Dr. L. R. Meadows was tried for mishandling East Carolina Teachers College funds. The first special term lasted eight weeks and resulted in a mistrial. The second special term was in session 12 weeks.

The WORLD TODAY

An Analysis Of The News

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

(AP World Traveler)

London, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Well, just showing what a good prophet I am, here we are in London after flying the Atlantic on the first leg of a world tour which we shall chronicle daily in this column.

Here I should report to you rather relatedly that when I speak of "we," I'm not employing the editorial pronoun. I have a partner—an energetic and capable young woman—who will work with me on this assignment. Now, now—get your tongues out of your cheeks and meet Mrs. MacKenzie. From here on it will be the two of us.

Both of us have been busy combing the highways and byways of London since our arrival and our outstanding impression, apart from the battlescars and terrible drabness, is that Britain's capital is very, very tired. Of course, some of the country districts probably don't register the same degree of weariness but what is true in London undoubtedly is true of other localities which underwent the scourge of bombing.

This isn't snap judgment on our part. For we know our England and her people from many years of residence here. Everywhere you go in the capital you see strain and weariness registered on drawn faces.

When I was here in 1942 there were strained faces, too, for the war was its height. But then you didn't notice the weariness so much because everybody was going all out for victory and the dangers and thrills of battle kept the country keyed up. But with war's end there has come a tremendous letdown. My partner and I spent considerable time yesterday talking with strangers whom we met here and there, and a woman bus conductor summed the position up rather well for us.

"We are tired," she said—and her voice had that dead level which speaks intense weariness. "The war kept us going, but we thought that when peace came we should get relief from the hard times—but we haven't got it."

There was no bitterness in her tone—just tiredness which reflected the harsh privations which the people of this country still are enduring. Relief will come, but it's a good distance away as yet. The food isn't so good as it was when I was here in 1942, and such necessities as clothing and shoes are hard to get.

One great reason why relief is slow in coming to the people of England is that the government is diverting a large measure of manufacturers to foreign trade in an effort to bolster John Bull's lean purse. Sir Stafford Cripps, chairman of the Board of Trade, has preached "Austerity" so vigorously to the public that they call him Sir Austerity Cripps—a bit of humor (Continued on Page Four)

CHINA RELIEF
FROM STRIFEGeneralissimo Creates
Supreme Economic Council For China

Chungking, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek created a supreme economic council today to extricate China from the financial morass of war and civil strife.

As his armies drove on toward the prize industrial city of Mukden in Manchuria without challenge from the Communist rivals the man who has stiffened China's post-war economic destiny in these hands.

Premier T. V. Soong as chairman of his new economic council.

In what had been heralded as an important policy announcement, Chiang erected the council to assure "a united, democratic, strong and prosperous nation and a substantial rise in mass living standards of its people."

Chinese Communists had for popular support by distributing land to peasants in their areas of occupation to ease the sufferings born of years of war with Japan.

The council was empowered to use China's resources to the utmost to achieve the economic gains, to lay down broad plans to fulfill them and to co-ordinate the economic activities of the various governmental departments.

Nationalist press reports, meanwhile, said Chiang's troops had captured without resistance the railway city of Chinghsien, 100 miles inside Manchuria beyond their jumping off point Nov. 23.

A Communist spokesman in Chungking had predicted the first "big battle for Manchuria" would be fought at Chinghsien, where the hills rising from the coastal plain offer a natural barrier.

These accounts said the Nationalist forces—whose march into Manchuria so far has been almost unopposed—(Continued on Page Six)

Germany Incited
Japs To Attack

Nuernberg, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Evidence designed to show that German leaders incited Japan to make the attack on Pearl Harbor was placed before the international war crimes tribunal today by American prosecutors.

The documents were added by the tribunal to the mounting pile of Hitler's war plans which included cold-blooded schemes to assassinate the German envoy in Prague as a pretext for invasion of Czechoslovakia, to overrun Poland, seize the Balkan countries and, ultimately, to attack Russia.

American prosecutors in the trial of 26 leading Nazis produced photographic notes of talks between Hitler and Japanese Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka several months before the Pearl Harbor attack and asserted that "our evidence will show these Nazi conspirators incited and kept up a force that could reasonably be expected to result in war with the United States."

Labor Conference Off
To Inauspicious StartReported Plans Of Another Committee To Announce Failure Marks Beginning
Of Possible Final Week

Washington, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Reported plans of another committee to announce failure today sent the Labor-Management Conference off to an inauspicious start on what may be its final week.

A management delegate said the committee on jurisdictional disputes, due to meet for the first time in 10 days, was preparing to file two conflicting sets of recommendations—one from its labor members and another from the industry side.

This delegate, an official of the National Association of Manufacturers, who asked not to be identified by name, told a reporter the management plan calls for the labor organizations to work out some method among themselves for ending inter-union quarrels and to report their decision within three or six months to the Labor Department or the National Labor Relations Board.

Labor members of the committee—while concurring that the problem is labor's to solve—reportedly are insisting on the use of existing machinery.

The management men contend that these methods—for instance, AFL's Executive Council—have failed so far to solve AFL's own internal disputes and that more important no liaison exists between the AFL and CIO to prevent production-crippling conflicts between those rival labor organizations.

Another of the six conference committees—that on collective bargaining—filed a split report last week. It failed to agree to a management demand for penalties and legislation to enforce collective bargaining contracts.

The conference executive committee, made up of eight leaders each from labor and business, resumed work under heavy pressure to bring something concrete out of the parley, which so far has failed to get results on any major issue.

This pressure developed in several quarters during the delegates' 4-day Thanksgiving recess.

First, Irvin Mosher, president of the NAM and a conference delegate, issued a statement calling for renewed effort "here and now" to get agreement on five specific matters—including creation of fact-finding machinery and a solution to jurisdictional quarrels.

Second, some conference leaders voiced fears privately that proposed for a smaller business-labor pact (Continued on page four)

Today In Congress

By Max Hall

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Washington, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Congress begins debate today on a bill to make this country an actual member of the United Nations.

But before the Senate settles down to the oratory on how to prevent future wars, the Pearl Harbor Committee looked to aiding Cordell Hull for more details on how this country got into the war just won.

Other committees turned their attention to UNRRA and President Truman's war powers.

The United Nations bill puts into black and white just how this country will carry on its membership. Available provisions are one to make available a quota of American soldiers to be used when necessary to put down a would-be Hitler. Still another bill, however, will have to fix the number of troops in that quota.

Democratic Senator Tom Connally of Texas and Republican Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan, who helped write the United Nations charter at San Francisco last spring, are behind the bill.

There are possible fights ahead over amendments, but Connally told reporters he thinks the amendments will be beaten and that not more than 15 "no" votes will be cast on the final test. The House will act later.

The Senate-House Pearl Harbor Committee, which first heard former Secretary of State Cordell Hull last week, invited him back to the stand today. Members want to question him about some of the individuals who took part in the pre-war "peace" negotiations with the Japanese.

UNRRA the last $350,000,000 of this country's original pledge has run into another snag. This time it's a proposal by Senator Elmer Thomas (D-Okla.) to require the United Nations Relief Agency to pay parity prices for any farm products bought with the money.

The administration was ready to fight this amendment when the Senate Appropriations Committee takes up the bill for final action before sending it to the Senate floor for a vote. The House will have to act again, too, because of changes made by the senators.

The House Judiciary Committee stamped its okay on a six-month extension of Mr. Truman's emergency war powers, now due to expire December 31, but added in a report:

"It is the determination of Congress to recapture those powers as speedily as may be wise in accordance with the sower but more desirable processes of democracy."

Otherwise on Capitol Hill, Senator Downey (D-Calif.) wrote a letter to each of his colleagues saying he wants them to vote a $50,000 a year raise for Congress and the same $2,500-a-year expense money for senators that House members now get.

He said he'll make the proposition formally when the bill calling for a 20 per cent pay hike for civil service workers comes up for action.

Mr. Truman has proposed doubling the present $10,000 congressional salary.

And Chairman Mead (D-N.Y.) of the Senate's Defense Investigating Committee said his group will open hearings Wednesday into the army's program for stockpiling supplies. Mead said first studies have shown that the army plans to keep enough of some materials on hand to last until 1959.

Worry Over IranIncreasingly Serious
View Taken Of Situation
Developing Between Russia And Iran Over Recent Uprising

Washington, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Allied diplomats here are taking an increasingly serious view of the situation developing between Russia and Iran over an uprising in the remote province of Azerbaijan.

Some fear it may present the United Nations with a critical test at the very outset of organized efforts to protect the peace and security of all nations.

The United States has moved cautiously into the situation by asking Russia for information about the activities of its armed forces in Azerbaijan.

Essentially the question is whether the Red Army has prevented Iranian troops from acting effectively against the rebel bands and whether this involved violations of Iran's sovereignty.

A Moscow dispatch last night quoted diplomatic quarters as saying that Soviet Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov during discussions with Iran's ambassador, Majid Aliyev, had given assurances that Russia would respect Iranian sovereignty.

The dispatch added that Molotov was said to have expressed surprise at Iranian contentions that Red army troops had refused free passage to Iranian forces in Azerbaijan.

Reporting that stories of Red army interference had been described officially in Moscow as exaggerated, the dispatch went on to say it was understood that such progress had been made in the Molotov-Aliyev conversations that a projected Iranian mission to Moscow had been cancelled.

Washington officials obviously hoped these more optimistic reports would be borne out by Moscow's reply to the American note, and by later developments.

The fact remained, however, that the Iranians already have complained of restrictions on their freedom and independence and presumably may continue their complaints until the United Nations organization meets formally in London in January.

At that time Iran would have an opportunity, if she still were of the same mind, to bring formal charges against Russia.

Red Army forces occupy the northern section of the little middle eastern country and British troops the southern section. American forces operated railroad and truck lines in Iran during the war for lend-lease deliveries from the Persian Gulf to Russia, but most of the Americans have been pulled out.

Iran is a critical testing ground whether or not it becomes a specific issue for the United Nations. Here are principal big power interests in the country.

1. The British navy gets much of its petroleum from Iran, and American oil interests sought concessions there during the war. This effort was dropped when the Iranian government said it would not grant wartime concessions not granted Russia had demanded comparable rights in the northern military zone.

2. Iran is a bridge or a wall, depending on the point of view. (Continued on page four)

School Bus Tragedy

Wenatchee, Wash., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Sheriff Bruce Parkinson said today 15 or 16 pupils were drowned when a school bus left the Chelan Highway and plunged over a 50-foot embankment into 50 feet of water in Lake Chelan.

First reports said 40 students were thought to have been trapped in the bus. Later information from the scene, 10 miles from the town of Chelan, indicated that most of the children had escaped.

Sheriff Parkinson said "five or six" swam ashore and were rushed to hospitals.

Officers were still attempting to piece together the fragmentary reports of the tragedy while divers were being rushed from Coulee City and Seattle.

The sheriff said the accident occurred during a blinding snow storm. Highways in the district were slippery. The bus plunged down a 50-foot embankment into the lake.

force Curfew Along
Half Palestine Coast

Jerusalem, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Police and troops battered into the surrounding Jewish settlement of Shefayim with batons, rifle butts and tear gas today and Jewish casualties mounted to two killed and 30 wounded. Fighting continued.

In the coastal region of Palestine men, women and children tried to storm areas that had been cordoned off by police and military authorities in a search for arms which on Saturday night attacked two coast guard stations with arms and explosives and wounded 14 officers.

The attacks on the stations were believed to have resulted from interception by the authorities of a ship which had brought 200 illegal Jewish immigrants to the Palestine coast.

Troops and civilians clashed for two hours in Shefayim, one of three Jewish settlements cordoned off. Windows and furniture were smashed and shots were fired into the air before the inhabitants were forced indoors. Police then began a house-to-house search for arms. Resistance to the house-to-house search continued.

Four truckloads of resistors were carried off by police.

British Sixth Airborne troops enforced a curfew along more than half the Palestine coast and stationed guards around three Jewish settlements today after 14 Palestinian deaths.

HOW STRIKERS LIVE.

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Striking auto workers get help, but no pay—from their union.

How then can they afford to strike against the General Motors? How do they live?

Officials of the United Auto Workers (UAW), parent organization of about 100 local unions, give this answer:

The strikers have to live off their savings, try to extend their credit, and perhaps seek help from their friends.

The locals set up soup kitchens for strikers and their families, providing them with three meals a day.

A striker about to be thrown out of his home because he can't pay his rent, or lose his gas, lights or heat because he can't pay, who needs medical care and can't pay for that.

UAW says it has approximately $4,000,000 in its so-called war chest. The locals have funds of their own, amount unknown, set aside for the strike purposes.

If UAW attempted to give weekly pay, say to 200,000 strikers, the 14,000,000 wouldn't last long. It

Seventy Five Thousand CIO Employees Of Big Mail Order House Begin One-Week Demonstration Strike As Automobile Workers Go Into Sixth Day Of Walkout

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Montgomery Ward and Company returned to the labor scene today as 75,000 CIO employees of the big mail order house began a one-week "demonstration" strike.

A new move was made by the CIO United Automobile Workers as the General Motors walkout, idling 200,000, went into its sixth day.

A break came in the Northwest Pacific lumber tieup which has kept 60,000 AFL unionists away from their jobs since September 24. In Maine, 2,800 CIO Textile Workers resolved their difference with two cotton mill operators, but 7,200 employees of seven other mills remained on strike.

Telephone service in Illinois and two Northern Indiana counties was back to normal after the company and 8,700 operators compromised their wage dispute.

Altogether, 575,000 workers were idle across the nation. Other major strikes involved 10,000 AFL and CIO machinists in San Francisco, a strike which has kept 50,000 other workers off their jobs; 6,100 Brown & Sharpe Manufacturing Co. employees, Providence, R. I., and 4,300 Greyhound bus drivers in 26 states.

But the Ward strike occupied the center of the labor stage. CIO unions have been asked to picket more than 600 Ward stores and mail order outlets in 42 states.

At issue are the union's demands for a closed shop, check off union dues and wage demands.

"We are going out for one week and then, from time to time, might repeat the operation," said Union President Samuel Wolfson.

At Detroit, the UAW-CIO reiterated its demand that negotiations with General Motors Corp. for a 30 per cent wage increase be resumed in the full glare of publicity. Walter P. Reuther, union vice-president, told GM officials that press and radio representatives should be permitted to attend the wage talks.

"The public interest can best be served by free and fair public discussion of the issues," Reuther's telegram declared. General Motors once before had rejected a proposal from public conferences, contending the talks must be kept private until "decadecked."

Meanwhile, union officials predicted that 248,000 workers would be idle in the GM dispute before the day was over, including 175,000 production workers and 73,000 salaried employees kept away from their jobs by pickets.

It appeared that 4,000 of the 60,000 idle AFL lumber and sawmill workers in Oregon, Washington, Montana and Northern California might go back to work soon.

A union policy committee has recommended acceptance of a 15-per cent hourly wage increase in the Tacoma, Wash., area. The union had asked for a 20-cent raise and the (Continued on Page Four)

Women IN THE CHURCH
by Mary Fowler

In appealing to young people to consider the Christian ministry, missionary service, and other vocations within the church as their life work, a resident Hugh C. Stuntz, of Scarritt College for Christian Workers, Nashville, Tenn., said recently: "Ten million men and women, our relatives, have cheerfully sacrificed every normal ambition to serve in the destructive phase of this gigantic construction job to build a new world. Many will return maimed, blind, or deranged. Is it too much to ask that a few thousand choice young men and women shall undertake the most rewarding tasks imaginable in helping to build the religion of Jesus Christ into the structure of tomorrow? Is it too much to ask that they shall prepare for that service? Is it too much to ask that the church support such a project with all of its resources?"

Two graduates of Gilling College, a women's college in China supported by a number of Christian mission agencies, have been honored by important appointments. Miss Dju Yu-bao, who has served as a social worker in factories in Wushih, and in the Labor Board Division of the Municipal Council of Shanghai, is en route to Montreal, Canada, where she will be connected with the International Labor Office; meanwhile she is visiting industrial centers in the United States. Dr. Lu Gwei-djen has been appointed on the staff of the British Council as adviser for nutritional sciences.

"Education, proper to her sex, of the young girl, and not rarely also of the grown woman, is a necessary condition of her preparation and formation for a life worthy of her," said Pope Pius XII recently to the Catholic women in Italy. "The ideal would evidently be that this education should begin with infancy in the intimacy of the Catholic home under the direction of the mother. It is, unfortunately, not always possible. However, it is possible to supply at least in part for this deficiency by securing for the young girl who of necessity must work outside the home, one of those occupations which are to some extent a training ground and a novitiate for the life for which she is destined. To such a purpose also serve those schools of domestic economy which make of the young girl of today the wife and mother of tomorrow."

Adventure, Travel With U. S. Marines

Marines are the fellows who get around, see and do things. After an enlistment period in the corps a Leatherneck's diary looks like a travelogue. He has seen mysterious China; the exotic East; beautiful South America; snow-capped islands.

Marines shake the dust of many foreign lands off their feet, only to follow more trails of adventure. A Marine gets to know the wide expanse of the Pacific as if it were his own back yard. Leathernecks serve aboard all the capital ships of the U. S. Navy, such as battle ships, cruisers, and aircraft carriers. When one of these "Soldiers of the Sea" returns home he has many wondrous tales to tell to the envious and unlucky fellow who stayed behind.

At present, the Marine Corps has openings for voluntary enlistments. If you are a red-blooded American youth between the ages of 17-25, inclusive, who wants to really see the world, have adventure, and get an education, see your Marine Corps representatives, S. Sgt. John Bullock and Sgt. Lou Womble, at the Post Office, in Greenville. They will be here through next Thursday. After the above date write or visit the headquarters at the Post Office Building in Raleigh.

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

WE HAVE A DESTINY
Thomas Carlyle declared that man's unhappiness comes from his greatness. God has created man in His image, after His likeness, and because there is an infinite in him, which with all his cunning he cannot bury under the finite, he is restless with life as he lives it. "Always there is a black spot in our sunshine," declares Carlyle; "it is even the shadow of ourselves."

When we are angry we are usually angry with ourselves. We may appear to be angry with others, but what angers us is that our contacts with them, or something they have said, reveal to us our own inadequacy. As we go through life it is with the realization that we are only half living our lives. We are ashamed as we compare what we are with what we might be. We were created for high and noble ends. We have been satisfied to play, like children, with great issues, and to sell many a precious birthright for a mess of pottage.

Much of our unhappiness comes from the fact that there are infinite capacities within us which we cannot bury under the finite. We are made to be comrades of God, yet we are satisfied with our own poor company, intent, as very small children are, upon insignificant matters.

Man is happy only when he remembers that he is a child of the living God and day by day lives his life as such.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By JACK STERNETT

By JAMES J. STREIBIG
(Substituting for Jack Stinnett)
Washington — The Navy learned literally to come in out of the rain for air attacks on the Japanese. It learned also that it was wise to sidestep typhoons.

Weather was as important as any phase of fighting in the Pacific. That is why it has been decided, although no formal announcement has been made—to establish special meteorological air patrols from Pacific bases.

Two squadrons of long range planes are being formed and equipped on the West Coast. They probably will be broken up into groups so that a number of strategic locations can be staffed. Among possible base sites are Eniwetok, Guam, Iwo Jima, Peleliu, Okinawa, Samar and Manila.

The air crews will be equipped with the best the Navy can supply in the way of equipment. Their planes for the present at least will be Consolidated-Vultee PB4Y2 Privateers.

The Japanese used bad weather to screen their approach to Hawaii. They had a big advantage because they were on the approach side of weather movement.

Our first use of weather cover was a strike at the Marshall and Gilbert Islands in February, 1942. The American ships approached through an overcast, broke into the open for a sharp blow, then ducked back while enemy planes searched vainly.

Two months later the carrier Hornet, steaming through storms, carried Lt. Gen. Jimmy Doolittle's raiders to a launching point for their attack on Tokyo.

The Japanese used storms to slip up on Midway Island, but the Midway attempt flopped because the weather front disintegrated.

We lost the carrier Lexington because the Japanese were able to launch planes from a storm-protected area while our force sailed under clear skies.

Weather was a factor in every important operation. Special units were assigned to forecasting the state of the sea and the swells which might be expected for amphibious operations. Such data were particularly important to sea-planes.

The Navy's aerology unit comprised fewer than 200 officers and men in 1940. When the war ended, it had more than 6,500 personnel.

Isn't Peace Grand?

nel assigned to 1,400 activities afloat, at island bases and in "weather centrals."

Rockets may be used to obtain weather reports 20 to 30 miles above the earth.

Radar is already an important weather device. It is used to photograph disturbances, to track balloons sent up through overcasts for calculating wind direction and velocity, and for sending back reports from altitudes up to 70,000 feet. Weather work with radar is continuing.

Another step under consideration is the distribution of weather maps by radio photographs.

which has a rather harsh connotation for the man in the street who has patches on his trousers.

Now don't get the wrong impression from what I've said. England is dog-tired, and more than a little disappointed because peace hasn't brought relief from the privations of war—but John Bull hasn't lost his fighting spirit. The situation as we see it here today reminds me of an incident I encountered in the first World War when I was attached to British general headquarters in France as war correspondent.

The Fifty-first British Division—I'm writing from memory—was subjected to a fierce attack by ten German divisions. The Fifty-first fought doggedly, pulling back foot by foot but not giving much ground. This went on for seven days and seven nights until the exhausted Tommies would drop in their tracks and fall asleep instantly when there was the slightest lull in the fighting. At the end of the week the Germans sent over a little balloon which had attached to it a note written in English, presumably by an officer who had lived in Britain. It read:

"Good Old Fifty-first, still sticking it. Cheerio."

So it is with England today. It's mighty tired—but still sticking it.

ing to a strike," each state may suffer.

A survey over the weekend showed that few, if any, of the current strikers are eligible for unemployment compensation.

The inability of UAW to give its striking members weekly pay does not mean that all unions in this country are unable to do so.

Some American Federation of Labor unions can give striking members weekly pay, but never more than 50 per cent of their pay while working. This explanation was given at AFL headquarters here.

operators originally offered 121-2 cents.

The Maine textile workers ended their three-week-old strike in Pepperell Manufacturing Company's Lewiston and Biddeford plants. The maintenance of union membership, 90 per cent guarantee of base rates for piece workers, 75-cent hour at minimum wage, and paid two-week vacations for five-year employees.

Illinois Bell Telephone Company operators in Chicago, 115 downtown Illinois communities and Lake and Porter counties, Indiana, ended their six-day strike Saturday night. The operators accepted a $4 weekly increase, retroactive to May 1, and got the promise of an additional $2 weekly by February 1.

pending on its political complexion, between Southern Russia and the Persian Gulf with its connections with worldwide shipping routes. In this respect the country may very well figure in Moscow's plans for securing permanent outlets to the sea.

3. As a frontier between the Soviet Union and the British empire, Iran probably has its greatest immediate importance in relation to Turkey, which again involves Russia's traditional efforts to get secure sea approaches. Iran touches Turkish territories for which the Russians have entered a claim on the grounds that they actually belong to Russia traditionally. This in turn is believed by diplomats here to be linked with the Soviet Union's real objective of securing practical domination of the Dardanelles Straits.

The United States has proposed to the British and Russian governments that the armed forces of all three nations be entirely withdrawn from Iran by Jan. 1.

The proposal was contained in the text of the note which U. S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman delivered to the Russian government in Moscow Saturday. The State Department made it public today.

At the same time, this government made plain that regardless of British and Russian response to the proposal all American forces would be evacuated from Iran by the first of the year.

Information contained in the note also was delivered simultaneously to the British government, the department said.

Labor Conference...

nel to continue after the conference might prove to be merely a convenient receptacle for the meeting's unfinished business.

Third, the national labor outlook darkened when strike-bound General Motors refusing the CIO's arbitration proposal and with OPA's rejection of higher steel prices. The latter action sealed off one avenue of settlement for the wage crisis in the steel industry.

When the conference recessed last Wednesday, however, it was with a resurgence of hope that the coming week's deliberations would produce some major decisions.

The optimism was based largely on the fact that the executive committee itself had decided to tackle the problem of devising fact-finding machinery. The committee decided to start its debate by considering a management proposal today.

Hull Recalled...

October 17. He asked why a message to the emperor had not been sent sooner than December 6.

Hull replied that "the primary reason was that the military in Japan was in supreme arbitrary control and the emperor appeared to go along with them, and under their domination."

"They were so powerful they could have touched the emperor on the shoulder and say 'You sign up in blank a declaration of war.'"

Hull continued that "we felt satisfied that if the military saw the President going over their heads, it would only react against the whole situation and the military group would merely tighten up."

"Honey, I've got the best retirement plan on earth!"

THIS new Army Retirement Plan doesn't cost me a penny, and yet I can retire after 20 years of service with a good monthly income as long as I live. And remember—I'll still be under 40!

"Why, if I wanted to PAY for a plan that would give me the same retirement income that I will get as a Master Sergeant, it would take just about $84 out of my pay envelope every month."

"And think what it will mean to us. We'll be able to do the things most people can never afford to do. Travel. Go places. Do things. But most important, we'll have financial security."

"In the meantime, I'll have a good job in the Army that will pay me well. I'll be getting fine training in a good trade. You'll get a family allowance, too."

"Not a bad proposition, is it, honey? Aren't you glad you're the wife of an Army man?"

The ability to retire at half pay at any time after 20 years of service, and on up to three-quarters pay after 30 years, is only one of many important privileges offered in the new Armed Forces Recruitment Act of 1945. Read all the highlights of this new Act. Find out why thousands of men are enlisting in Uncle Sam's new peacetime Regular Army. Better still, stop at your nearest Army Recruiting Station and get the whole story.

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE NEW ENLISTMENT ACT

- Enlistments for 1½, 2 or 3 years. (One-year enlistments permitted for men now in the Army with at least 6 months' service.)
- Enlistment age from 17 to 34 years inclusive, except for men now in the Army, who may reenlist at any age, and for former service men, depending on length of service.
- Men reenlisting retain their present grades, if they reenlist within 20 days after discharge and before Feb. 1, 1946.
- The best pay scale, medical care, food, quarters and clothing in the history of our Army.
- An increase in the reenlistment bonus to $50 for each year of active service since such bonus was last paid, or since last entry into service.
- Up to 90 days' paid furlough, depending on length of service, with furlough travel paid to home and return, for men now in the Army who reenlist.
- A 30-day furlough every year at full pay.
- Muster-out pay (based upon length of service) to all men who are discharged to reenlist.
- Option to retire at half pay for life after 20 years' service, or three-quarters pay after 30 years' service. All previous active federal military service counts toward retirement.
- Benefits under the GI Bill of Rights.
- Family allowances for the term of enlistment for dependents of men who enlist or reenlist before July 1, 1946.
- Choice of branch of service and overseas theater in the Air, Ground or Service Forces on 3-year enlistments.
- Privilege of benefits of National Service Life Insurance.
- Reserve and A.U.S. commissioned officers released from active duty may be enlisted in Grade 1 (Master or 1st Sergeant) and still retain their reserve commissions.

Football

(By the Associated Press)
College football teams of the Carolinas will ring down the curtain Saturday on the 1945 season with two big clashes on tap to focus the attention of gridiron fans. The slate looks like this: Virginia vs North Carolina at Chapel Hill.
Wake Forest at Clemson.
Additionally, High Point College plays Milligan College at Johnson City, Tenn., Thursday, Tennessee's Thanksgiving Day, in the "Burley Bowl" game.
From a standpoint of purely Carolina interest the Wake Forest-Clemson battle will claim chief attention for it will find two of the really great teams of the two states coming to grips to determine supremacy. It is Clemson's home coming game and 20,000 fans are expected to see the tilt.

The Tigers are fresh from three great victories chalked up consecutively against Virginia Poly, Tulane and Georgia Tech, while Wake Forest's Deacons emerged recently from a 14-13 triumph over their old rivals the North Carolina Tar Heels, but followed this with a 13-13 tie with South Carolina's Gamecocks in Charlotte on Thanksgiving.
Clemson's 47-20 win over Tulane a week ago was followed by another great performance in Atlanta Saturday when they humbled Georgia Tech 21-7.

Two great old rivals come together at Chapel Hill as Virginia's Cavaliers invade the Tar Heels' stronghold. It will be Virginia's only appearance in the state this season. The Cavaliers lost an upset to Maryland's Old Liners in the last minute of play Saturday 19-13. It was the first loss for Virginia in 15 starts.

Carl Snively, who believes the upset will make the Virginians all the tougher to handle the coming Saturday praised his young eleven for their fine showing against Duke Saturday. The Tar Heels lost 14-7 to the Big Blue, but Snively described it as the team's "best game of the year."
Besides the college battles, the week-end offers two service games involving Carolina teams. Cherry Point's Marines will play at Keeler Field, Ala., and the personnel distribution command's Ramblers of Greensboro will play Training Command at San Antonio.

Blue Devils are not going to play in anybody's bowl New Year's Day, according to Coach Eddie Cameron.
The reason is that the boys are going to be studying for exams—three of them particularly. Gordon Carver, Cliff Haggerty and John Crowder, who are medical students and whose examinations come up early in January.

To put a stop to rumors that Duke was considering a bid to one of the bowls, Coach Cameron issued this statement Sunday night:

"Duke University has not received an invitation to any bowl. Our season is ended. Even if we had been approached, which we were not, we could not have considered it because of the heavy scholastic schedule facing several of our players."

Some 24 hours before this announcement, Cameron had previously stated that Duke had received no invitation to a bowl contest. His earlier denial followed a report, quoting unnamed Duke officials, that the Blue Devils had received bids to both the Sugar and Cotton Bowls.

The Blue Devils finished their season Saturday by defeating North Carolina's Tar Heels 14-7 to take possession of the Southern Conference title for the second consecutive year.

Presumably Maj. Gen. A. L. Bois

British military commander of the civil district of Lydda, ordered the restrictions to prevent further landings of illegal Jewish immigrants.

The curfew, effective from 5:30 p. m. to 5:30 a. m., applied to that section of the coast extending from the northern boundary of Palestine to a point about 12 miles south of Jaffa and Tel Aviv. It was not operative in the immediate area of owt nsand villages.

A British communiqué said a "party of armed Jews" attacked the coast guard stations at Olvat Ol, ga and Sidra Saturday night and added that both stations were badly wrecked. An unexploded bomb was found in the Sidra building after the raid.

The disorders were believed to be connected with the capture of the Greek motor schooner Demetrios which brought 20 illegal Jewish immigrants to the coast. Twenty of the immigrant party were captured but the rest managed to land and disperse before the police intervened.

The Jewish settlements of Givath Haim, Rishon and Shefayim were surrounded by British troops. Jews as Shefayim said their leaders were in conference with the British seeking to prevent a search of that colony.

Excellent Move To Protect Wild Life

By CHESTER WALSH
The Pitt County Wild Life Association at a recent meeting unanimously went on record as favoring the proposal to affiliate with the North Carolina Wild Life Federation. President Tom Smoot, Jr., presided.

R. Ross Stevens of Raleigh, secretary of the federation, made an interesting and impressive talk at the meeting, explaining the reasons why wild life in North Carolina can best be conserved by separating the wild life department from the State Department of Conservation and Development, which now controls seven departments. Stevens explained that the setting up by the State of a special department for conserving the wild life of the State, would produce good results. He gave numerous common-sense reasons for making the change, and predicted that if this is done wild life in the State will perceptibly increase, there will be more inducement for sportsmen and hunters from the North visiting the State, and that sooner or later there will be an abundance of wild life here as a result of directed and diligent work for the protection of wild life and preserving its feeding grounds.

Johnny Overton, auditor at the Guaranty Bank and Trust Company and secretary of the Pitt County Wild Life Association, said all of the members here and other sportsmen in Pitt County favor making a separate department for the protection of wild life.

Billy Branch Sells In Kentucky This Year

When the Kentucky tobacco market opens next Monday, December 3, Billy Branch of Winterville, veteran auctioneer who worked at Keel's warehouse again the past season, will be chanting the bids at an Owensboro (Ky.) warehouse. Branch has been a tobacco auctioneer since 1916, when he started in Greenville and he has kept it up during nearly 30 years. He auctioneered at Carthage, Tenn., for 12 seasons after the bright belt markets closed, and last summer he auctioneered at an Adel, Ga., warehouse. Branch's sales record for a single day was 350,000 pounds. On a four-day stretch he auctioned off 1,250,000 pounds of bright leaf. Branch went to Kentucky a week ago. Mrs. Branch and three of the children, Joyce, Dorothy and Ashley, accompanied him. Ashley Branch is a student at Chapel Hill.
