Discuss Message To General Short

Message To Hawaii Commander Told Him That Negotiations With Japan Appeared To Be Terminated To All Practical Purposes With Small Hope Of Success

Washington, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Senator Ferguson (R-Mich.) and Rep. Keefe (R-Wis.) sought to learn from General Marshall today why he said, directions for a 1940 army alert in Hawaii were more specific than the November 27, 1941 "war warning" that went to Honolulu.

With Marshall up for a fifth day of testimony before the congressional Pearl Harbor investigation, Ferguson told reporters he plans to question the former chief of staff about the 1940 message sent to Lt. Gen. Charles B. Herron, then in command in Hawaii.

Keefe said he is interested in the same subject, adding: "If G-2 (army intelligence) had sufficient grounds in 1940 to prompt the issuance of orders for an all-out alert, it had a million times as much grounds in 1941 for an even more specific order."

Committee records show that on June 17, 1940, the adjutant general acting for Marshall, sent the following message to Herron:

"Immediately alert complete defensive organization to deal with possible trans-Pacific raid, to greatest extent possible without creating public hysteria or provoking undue curiosity of newspapers or alien agents. Suggest maneuver basis. Maintain alert until further orders. Instructions for secret communication direct with chief of staff will be furnished you very shortly. Acknowledge."

Marshall testified last week that the alert was the real thing, not a ploy.

The November 27, 1941, message to Gen. Walter C. Short, Hawaii commander, told him that "negotiations with Japan appear to be terminated to all practical purposes with only the barest possibility that the Japanese Government will come back and offer to continue."

The message said that "hostile action possible at any moment," adding that short was "directed to undertake such reconnaissance and other measures as you deem necessary, but these measures should be carried out so as not to alarm civil population or disclose intent."

Short ordered into effect an alert against sabotage, not the full alert such as was called for in the 1940 message to Herron.

Ferguson asked Marshall yesterday to compare the message sent by Adm. Harold R. Stark, then the chief of naval operations, to Adm. Husband E. Kimmel, in command of the Pacific fleet at the time the Japanese struck Pearl Harbor, with the November 27 message to Short.

The Stark message said this dispatch is to be considered a war warning. Negotiations with Japan looking toward stabilization of conditions in the Pacific have ceased and an aggressive move by Japan is expected within the next few days.

Kimmel was told to "execute an appropriate defensive deployment" (Continued on page six)

POISON GASES TRIED ON MEN

Germans Tested Deadliest Gas In World On People

Washington, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Senators heard from a military government official today that Germany "developed the deadliest poison gas in the world" by testing it on concentration camp inmates. The testimony came from Col. Bernard Bernstein, director of the Division of Cartels and External Assets, U. S. military government in Germany. He submitted a statement to a Senate military subcommittee headed by Senator Kilgore (D-W.Va.).

Bernstein also offered what he said was a German denial of a Standard Oil Company of New Jersey contention that the U. S. benefited rather than suffered through Standard's pre-war relations with the big German dye trust, I. G. Farben-Industrie.

On the poison gas matter, he declared that many plants and all of the stocks of poison gas were destroyed by order of the German government before occupation by the Russians. Bernstein continued:

"But at least one of the terrible secrets which the Germans hoped to save for the next war was uncovered."

"Our investigation has disclosed that an I. G. Farben official at Wuppertal-Eberfeld developed the deadliest poison gas in the world. This gas, unknown to the military authorities of the Allied nations could have penetrated any gas mask in existence."

"I G. originally carried out its poison gas experiments on monkeys; later on human beings. These gases were not only used on helpless people during the stages of experimentation, but were later used with full knowledge and acquiescence on the part of Farben to exterminate whole groups in concentration camps such as Auschwitz."

The Senate hearing is directed at the question of cartels, or international agreements among companies as to the division of world markets and the exchange of technical information. (Continued on Page Six)

Canned Goods Drive For People Europe

The reports from the first days drive for canned goods for the war-stricken people in Europe are very favorable. Indications are that the citizens of Greenville and Pitt counties will do their share in providing the 20 million cans of food needed to keep entire populations from starving in the war-torn countries of Europe.

Reports have been received the last few days that parents in Europe have requested the American army officers to permit them to gather the left-overs in the mess halls for their children after the Americans have taken their meals. In many cases they have found men and women hunting food among garbage. Donate a can or two of some kind of food to the starving people. (Continued on page six)

ARMY AGAINST ANY MERGERS

Powerful Military House Committee Opposes Any Merging

Washington, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Leaders of the powerful House Military and Naval Committee aligned themselves firmly today in opposition to any merger of the army and navy. Proposing instead that an independent force be created, Chairman Andrew J. May (D-Ky.) of the military and Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) of the naval committees declared "unification of the army and the navy is not the answer to the problem of national defense under modern methods of warfare."

Some congressional quarters interpreted the May-Vinson action as a move to split the army in its support of merger plans by lining up the army air forces behind the new proposal. Sources close to both May's committees told newsmen the measure (Continued on Page Six)

Inflated Lending and Sales Trends In North Carolina

(Editor's Note: The following article is based on findings of Mr. Whedbee in a survey he conducted for the government just prior to giving up his position with the Home Owners' Loan Corporation to become trust officer of the State Bank and Trust Company in Greenville.)

By WILLIAM L. WHEDBEE In order to get a proper perspective on lending and sales trends of residential real estate in North Carolina, it is necessary that we go back a few years and examine the conditions of the real estate market in this State under normal times.

North Carolina, in contrast to some of our other states, is not a State in which there are two or three large cities, strategically located, so as to prevent the economic growth of anything else in the State but comparatively small towns.

On the contrary, North Carolina is a State made up of many medium size cities: Raleigh, Durham, Greensboro, Winston-Salem, High Point, Charlotte, Asheville, Wilmington. These cities are well diversified both as to geographic location and economic structure. However, no one of them is really a big city.

Prior to 1940 each of these cities enjoyed a slow but steady growth. There was sufficient new construction of residential properties to take care of this growth. Money was sufficiently hard to make and financial institutions were as a whole cautious and conservative in their lending policies as far as real estate was concerned.

Then came World War II. The survey made by the United States Army and Marine Corps revealed the fact that weather conditions in North Carolina were ideal for year round training. Consequently an important military installation of some nature was placed in or near each of the above named relatively small cities. Almost coincident with this move WEP Construction Order L-1 was passed, virtually putting a stop to all residential construction, except that which was government sponsored, or for restricted personnel. Cherry Point and Camp Lejeune, two of the largest Marine installations in the world were quickly built

Today In Congress

By Max Hall Washington, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Two Republican members harked back to 1940 today in the Pearl Harbor committee's investigation. Senator Ferguson (R-Mich.) and Rep. Keefe (R-Wis.) told newsmen they say orders for an Army alert on June 17 that year were, in their opinion, so specific by comparison with a warning sent to Honolulu on Nov. 27, 1941. The former chief of staff, facing his fifth day on the stand, testified last week the 1940 alert was the real thing. The orders said "Immediately alert complete defensive organization to deal with possible trans-Pacific raid." The 1941 message warned of "hostile action possible at any moment" and directed the Hawaii commander to take "such reconnaissance and other measures as you deem necessary." In each case the commander was warned against alarming the public. Meanwhile the House came to a test vote on labor legislation which union members like just as little as they do President Truman's fact-finding proposal. It is a military committee bill

Russia Will Permit Flying China Forces

Russia Agreed Today To Permit The Flying Of Chinese Government Into Manchuria And Take Strategic Cities

By SPENCER MOOSA Chungking, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Russia agreed today to permit Chinese Government troops to fly into Manchuria and take over its most strategic cities, Central News Agency reported.

After weeks of tense negotiations, during which Chinese Communists had sought to take over ports and cities, the agency said the Chungking Government had won permission to plant itself firmly in this territory held vital for the recovery of war-ravaged China.

It reported that Central Government troops would be permitted by the Russians to fly into Changchun, the Manchurian capital. Mukden, largest city in the territory, and in Harbin, most important in the northern part of Manchuria.

Chinese Communists previously had been reported concentrating on both Changchun and Harbin and ready to take over Mukden if Central Government troops on the outskirts tried to move in.

A Chinese dispatch yesterday declared Communist headquarters at Yenian had ordered their troops to clear out of Mukden "to conserve the strength of Communist forces." The reported agreement covering Mukden, Changchun and Harbin embraces the most important cities in all Manchuria with the exception of the southern port of Dairen.

Mukden is the first objective of Central Government troops, who recently broke into Manchuria over the southern border after outflanking the frontier fortress of Shan-haikuan.

It lies between the free port of Dairen, at the southern tip of Manchuria, and Changchun, about 400 miles north of Changchun. Previously it had been reported that the Russians also agreed to permit Chungking troops to enter Dairen, which under the Sino-Russian agreement will be occupied by both powers.

A Chinese press dispatch said the government's 94th army would be flown from North China to Changchun.

Mocking Shadows Shown On Screen

Nuernberg, Germany, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Mocking shadows of the years when they turned Germany into an arsenal of blood came back to plague 21 Nazi leaders from a movie screen today in their trial before the international military tribunal.

A documentary film, assembled in Berlin by two United States naval officers from confiscated enemy libraries and estimated to run four hours, was scheduled to take up most of today's session.

Titled "The Nazi Plan" the film portrayed the rise of national socialism from "political" street fighters, to a frenzied ex-corporal, to a terror that swept over Europe. Its closing scenes showed the trial of Germans who attempted to kill Hitler with a bomb July 2.

He has had a blood transfusion. The colorful commander of the U. S. 15th Army had a good night and his general condition was "maintained at a satisfactory level," an official bulletin said. Corp. FORD COMPANY STUDIES PLAN

Ford Motor Company Studying Plan For Curbing Strike

By The Associated Press The Ford Motor Company, the only one of automotive's "big three" under contract with the CIO United Auto Workers, today studied a union plan for curbing unauthorized strikes and prepared to discuss wages with the union.

The wage negotiations between Ford and the union were arranged for tomorrow after the UAW-CIO crossed its plan for "company security" against wildcat strikes. Earlier the company had rejected discussion of the union's demand for 39 per cent wage rate hikes.

The union's offer, termed by a union spokesman as an unprecedented "company security" plan which he believes will be acceptable to the company, provides that instigators of wildcat work stoppages in Ford plants be discharged and that participants be fined.

While the Ford-union negotiations appeared moving along smoothly, there was nothing to indicate settlement of the 21-day old strike at General Motors involving more than 200,000 employees. The number affected was more than half of the total of about 400,000 idle throughout the country because of labor disputes.

General Motors announced termination of its contract with the union, but negotiations on a new contract were to be resumed today. GM President C. E. Wilson said in any new contract the corporation "will insist on provisions requiring union responsibility and assurance of uninterrupted production."

UAW-CIO President R. J. Thomas termed the cancellation of the contract, which would have expired on April 28, 1946, "another high-handed effort by management to evade the central issue in dispute—a 30 per cent wage increase."

Meanwhile two CIO unions met to consider strike action, involving thousands of workers.

In Pittsburgh, the 175-man wage policy committee of the CIO United Steelworkers planned a meeting to decide what a union spokesman said was "the date of a nationwide steel strike." He said the strike decision will be announced later today and that the walkout probably would be called "sometime in January."

The WORLD TODAY An Analysis Of The News

By DEWITT MACKENZIE AP World Traveler

London, Dec. 11.—War has brought England a heavy increase in divorcees, most of which have been based on infidelity, and in addition to those that actually have reached the courts there has been a flood of matrimonial suits which have been adjusted through the kindly offices of welfare societies.

This seems so contrary to the ultra-conservative character of the Briton, who always has been severe to washing family linen in public, that in searching for the reasons one naturally comes up against the question whether there has been any change in moral standards.

Mrs. Mac and I have been delving into this highly important subject in many places, including the crowded tenement district of South London, and have talked with three British experts—one military and two civilian—who are engaged in handling thousands of so-called "poor person's cases" that is, the cases of folk who haven't enough money to finance litigation without aid.

This widely experienced trio agrees that a slump in John Bull's moral standards is not among the reasons for the increase in divorce. There obviously has been a slump in conduct, due to the extreme circumstances created by the world conflict but the moral outlook is held to remain about the same.

It seems paradoxical, in view of the fact that most of the divorce cases are based on adultery, it may be explained by the fact that atomic age society, reveals what it used to

Bill By The House Military Committee On Proposed Labor Legislation To Restrict Political Activities Of Unions And Penalize Violations

By CLAIR JOHNSON Washington, Dec. 11.—(AP)—A test vote shaped up in the House today on proposed labor legislation. Several law makers said the outcome will be a "preview of what is in store for other pending measures designed to curb industrial strife."

Before the members is a bill by the Military Committee to restrict political activities of unions and penalize them for violating no-strike contracts.

House leaders announced, however, that today's vote will concern only the rules that shall prevail during consideration of the measure. Chief among these is one that would ban any amendment unless it had been approved by the Military Committee which wrote the bill.

Labor supporters told newsmen they will try to defeat "this resolution, thus barring consideration of the bill itself until it has gone back to the Rules Committee for further action."

If they have the strength to kill the resolution, these members said privately, they then will be able to steer the course of other labor legislation from now on.

Proponents of the Military Committee's proposal expressed belief, however, that they could win approval of the resolution and then could call up the bill itself "when we desire."

Chairman May (D-Ky.) said this timing "depends on how fast the Labor Committee moves." The latter group is considering President Truman's request for legislation to set up fact-finding boards to help settle major industrial disputes, and to provide for a 30-day strike ban while the boards function.

Informed that the Labor Committee had no hearing scheduled today, May said he might call his group together to discuss adding the President's proposal as an amendment to the union-regulation measure. May said last week he would do this if the Labor Committee did not act promptly.

Acting Chairman Ranspock (D-Ga.) of the labor group told newsmen he was anxious to speed hearings but that some members "want to filibuster."

He added, however, this had no connection with the absence of a hearing today. He said Eric Johnston had been scheduled as a witness this morning but had been heard late yesterday instead. He announced that William Green, the head of the American Federation of Labor, Ira Mosher, head of the National Manufacturers Association will testify Wednesday.

Johnston, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, and John L. Lewis, United Mine Workers' chief, both took issue yesterday with Mr. Truman's request for legislation before Christmas.

Johnston said action should be delayed until several changes had been made in the proposal and careful consideration given to it. He endorsed fact-finding generally but asserted it should be on a voluntary basis. (Continued on Page Six)

The NATION TODAY

By JAMES MARLOW Washington, Dec. 11.—(AP)—You can see the pattern taking shape in settling lend-lease: Wipe out the overwhelming part of what our Allies might owe in cash and, as a result, try to improve world trade. The settlement just completed with Britain is an example. This came as no shock. President Truman told Congress in effect last August this would be the policy. He said: Lend-lease had been repaid in victory. Our Allies had done all they could to help win. They had used up the greater portion of lend-lease. Asking them to pay for what they used up would have a bad effect on world trade. We gave our Allies about $42,000,000,000 in lend-lease goods and services. In reverse lend-lease they gave us about $7,000,000,000. The day after the President spoke Secretary of State Byrnes said there is, however, no justification that we are simply wiping out all debts of some kind of settlement for lend-lease already used up. He went on to say "We are not seeking paper contracts to pay dollars which will not be available to our debtors. But that does not mean that there are no lend-lease settlements to be negotiated." Now, after the settlement with Britain, State Department and treasury officials point to Article 7 of the master lend-lease agreements worked out with our Allies in war-time. It says in part: "In the final determination of the benefits to be provided to the

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

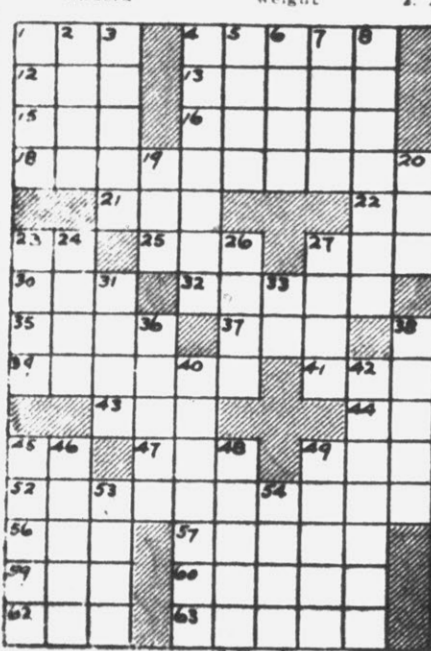

"WHOSOEVER"
Abraham Lincoln once said that God must love the common people because He made so many of them. Do you ever get weary of crowds? Do you ever experience a sort of nausea as you mix hour after hour with the milling crowds on the street, on public conveyances, in the stores, in the movies?
This is a natural feeling. But how unlike the divine attitude toward the crowds! To God every person is more precious than is a beautiful and satisfying child to the most devoted mother on earth. That careless, vacant looking girl you just passed on the street; that coarse and over-worked woman; that poorly dressed man; that swarthy, sophisticated youngster—they are all of God's brood. The unstable and shiftless are His wayward children. The thief and the drunkard are the brothers for whom Christ died. His heart is hungry for those who hunger only for the things of this world.
You and I are of the crowd. Perhaps other look at us and grow weary and disgusted. But not so God. There is divine purpose wrapped up in every life. The humbled man on earth is heir to a mighty destiny. God's love extends to all. "Whosoever cometh unto Me I will in no wise cast out."
Jesus was thinking of crowds, including you and me, when He said "whosoever."

Inflated Lending . . .

prepared to absorb the influx of population which resulted from the military and industrial expansion unparalleled in our history.
There has been no great amount of surplus housing facilities to take care of so sudden an increase. There was no way to provide adequate housing. There was no control on the sales price of residential real estate. And so slowly at first, but with a rapidly increasing pace, the sales price of residential real estate began to rise.
Concurrent with this increase in housing pressure along the seaboard states, has been a tremendous increase of individual income. The sources of this increase in income have been many: (1) The pay received by officers and enlisted men at the many camps and bases near our cities. (2) The almost 100 per cent employment of all persons who are not in the military service. (3) The good wages, bonuses, and overtime pay which most of these workers have received. (4) The high prices which have been received by the farmers for tobacco, cotton, corn and food products in those sections of the State which are agricultural instead of industrial centers. (5) The large profits which have been made by the merchants who have had an almost unlimited market for anything that they had to offer for sale.
This increase in individual income has paced the shortage in housing and the increase in the price of residential real estate gradually adding fuel to the fire of inflationary sales as money became more plentiful and places to live became harder to get. It is estimated that the average sales price of residential real estate in North Carolina has increased from 35 to 100 per cent since 1940.
I am listing below ten causes which, in my opinion, have served to boost the price of real estate beyond its actual value, and which, if continued and unabated, will mean an even worse inflation in real estate than the one which exists at present:
1. The previous restriction on construction during wartime. This prevented new residential construction from keeping pace with normal increases in population, as it had done in the past.
2. The high cost of new construction during this period of high labor costs and scarcity of materials.
3. The concentration of large masses of population during the war period: (a) Due to military installations placed in this section. (b) Due to war industries (shipyards, etc.). (c) Due to "in-migrant" labor for war-expanded industries.
4. The great increases in income since 1940: (a) Farmers (both landlord and tenant), (b) Army personnel heretofore unemployed, or if redeeming features:

1. It is usually cash which has been accumulated with comparative ease under the present boom-time conditions.
2. If not spent for the purchase of real estate, it is likely to be dissipated for less substantial purchases.
3. Every cash dollar so spent, only serves to drain off just that much of the surplus income of this country, and thereby helps to prevent a general inflation in all commodities, as this money usually goes into hands which are more conservative about spending it.
However, if these inflated sales of real estate are made with only a nominal cash payment and the balance is financed by one of our mortgage lending institutions, it is another story.
If this practice of lending on inflated values should develop and becomes widespread; if the leaders of our financial institutions do not resist and resist firmly, the almost overpowering urge to think that these boom-times will last always; then we are headed straight down the road that followed World War I, which everyone remembers all too well.

The World Today

The divorce law so that a woman could get a divorce for adultery, desertion for three years or more, physical (not mental) cruelty and incurable insanity. The result was an immediate heavy increase in the number of suits filed. This slump-ed temporarily after the outbreak of war, but the present year has seen all previous figures exceeded.

The Nation . . .

2. She agreed to work with us to improve world trade, which would mean by lowering tariffs and improving other barriers to commerce.
And—she agreed to join us in calling for next summer an international conference on trade and employment to set up under the United Nations an international trade organization.
What we do in settling lend-lease with the other Allied nations, may vary in detail from the settlement with England but generally the pattern is clear.
Since they're broke, wipe out the bulk of what they might owe us in cash for used lend-lease and get them to agree on methods for improving trade.

A Christmas gift for old and disabled people at this time of the season will be most greatly appreciated. Won't you help us to help others? J. E. Foreman, Scout Master Troup No. 131, Greenville, N. C.

Dangerous mixture . . .

During the war there was little production of civilian goods, and a lot of the things people had were worn out or used up—
People did not spend the high wages they earned, so savings increased rapidly.
The result is that America has built up tremendous buying power.
Lots of buying power and little to buy make a dangerous combination—like chemicals that explode when put together.
When people need things badly and have plenty of money, they are apt to pay too much for what they need. INFLATION then begins!

GENERAL MOTORS
"More and Better Things for More People"

It's a dangerous mixture—shortage of goods and plenty of money.
The answer to high prices and inflation is plenty of goods.
America's factories should be working day and night to turn out the things people need—to balance needs with goods.
Instead—what do we have? A demand by UAW-CIO leaders for a 30 per cent wage increase. More than that, a strike which has closed down General Motors plants. Both are inflationary. Both make the mixture still more dangerous.
