Watch That Bottle
Portland, Ore., Jan. 2—(AP)—A slogan of "Veteran, spare that bottle" has been suggested to Red Cross canteen workers greeting troops transients berthing here. Dairymen said it might help reduce a critical milk bottle shortage. Thousands of milk furnished returnees have gulped down milk and reached for more as they tossed the empty bottles overboard.

Working Man
Brawley, Calif., Jan. 2—(AP)—When Mayor William O'Dwyer of New York (population 7,454,995) was vacationing here a couple of weeks ago, he and Mayor Elmer M. Sears of Brawley (population 11,718) were standing around watching a sewer crew at work. "All you'd have to do is push a button," said Sears, "but out here we have to pitch right in and help." "Shucks," retorted O'Dwyer, "I'll water you haven't done a hard day's work since you became mayor." Sunday Mayor Sears took off his shirt, rolled up his pants and went to work on a clogged sewer. It was the sewer into his office.

Forty Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR January 2, 1906

Said an observing man to The Reflector, "I will tell one thing the matter with Greenville, the town has few originators and too many imitators." He went on to explain, "I mean by originators, of which there are few, men who bring new ideas and start enterprises that will be helpful to themselves and helpful to the community. The imitators of which there are too many are those who never think out anything themselves but wait until somebody else has started an enterprise and then rush into the same thing, creating an opposition and competition as to destroy what profit there might be in that particular enterprise."

active organization made up of students with high scholastic records in commercial work.

Miss Dempsey spent part of the Christmas holidays with her family in Greeley, Colorado, and returned to Greenville by way of Cincinnati.

NYLON SALE DREW CROWD

Blount - Harvey Sold 560 Pairs Today In Less Than Hour

Incidentally, hundreds of persons—men and women—were lined up for women's Nylon hose at Blount-Harvey's store this morning when the place opened at 9 o'clock, and block-long lines extended from two directions.

Incidentally, 560 pairs of Nylons were sold in the record time of 58 1/2 minutes, Manager Charles A. Blair told a Reflector reporter. It was a happy and orderly crowd—good-natured and hopeful that the supply would not be exhausted before the end of the lines got into the store. Some persons were disappointed, but the manager said that Nylon stockings in assorted sizes and improved quality soon would be coming on the market. The crowd was patient in the below-freezing temperature—so cold incidentally, that window washers along Greenville's main thoroughfare found water freezing as fast as it struck the ground.

Police Chief Jim Tanner incidentally had a squad of officers at the store entrance to maintain the lines. The officers complimented the orderly crowd.

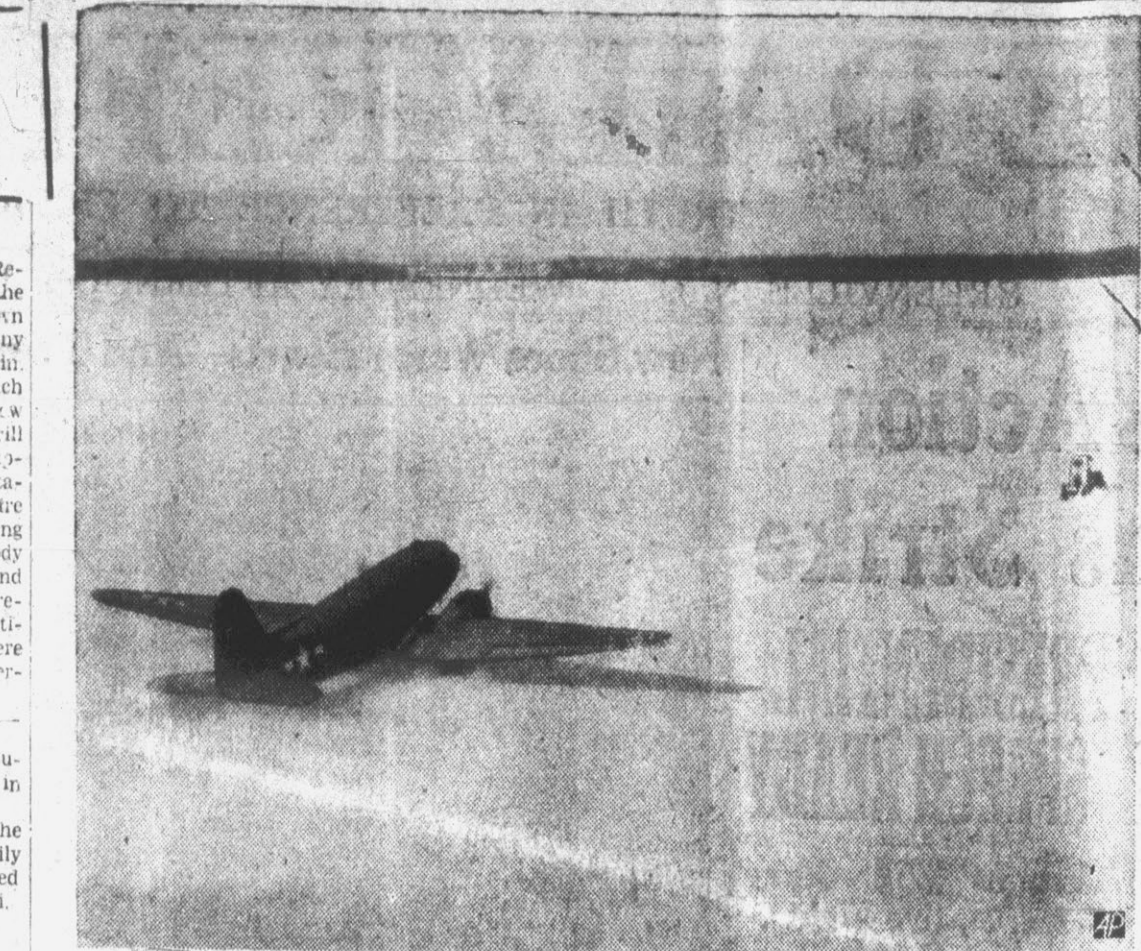

There was no waiting after the shoppers entered the store. From 15 to 20 customers were admitted at a time. The sale was conducted with military precision and there was not a hitch. Duplicate sales tickets were handed customers as they entered the store. They put their money with the tickets at two counters as they passed, keeping one ticket and handing that to clerks who incidentally queried "Nines or tens?" and they received their Nylon stockings without ever stopping half a minute. Customers left the store by a side exit.

"It was metropolitan merchandising," observers said, "and Blount-Harvey's deserves credit for the success of the Nylon sale without mishaps such as have been reported at similar sales in larger cities."

College Expecting Larger Enrollment

Though no official count of students registering at the college on Tuesday, January 1, has yet been made, indications are that the present number of students will exceed that of the fall quarter. Students are still registering today. Classes began at eight o'clock this morning, and the college library opened for work at the same time.

A number of men discharged from the services are entering college here this quarter. Ten received benefits under the GI Bill of Rights last term. So far, 28 additional young men have registered for work this term. Since all available rooms assigned to men at the college are filled, college authorities have appealed to townspeople for help in finding living quarters. The response has been gratifying, as rooms for approximately 30 students have been offered.

SECOND WRECK IN CAROLINAS

Mother and Daughter Killed; Many Others Injured

Blaney, S. C., Jan. 2—(AP)—The Seaboard Air Line Railway's crack New York - Florida streamliner, Silver Meteor, was derailed four miles north of this place at 5:15 a. m., today, killing a 22 year old mother and her four month old daughter, Beverly, and injuring at least 25 other persons.

The dead woman was Helen E. Wilson of Williamson, W. Va., who was en-route with her husband, Alonzo H. Wilson, and child, to Palm Beach to make her home. Her husband, who was unhurt, said his wife and child were crushed between two seats in the combination baggage car-coach which was immediately behind the locomotive and its diesel tender.

Six other cars, including sleepers, the train, the southbound East Coast Meteor, went off the track and down a high, steep embankment.

This was the second wreck on the Seaboard's main line in South Carolina in less than three weeks. The southbound West Coast Silver Meteor crashed into the Sun Queen, another New York-Florida train, near Cheraw Dec. 16 and killed six persons.

Most of the injured were in the car in which the woman and child were killed, but others in other cars were also among the injured.

The locomotive of the train remained on the track, but one of its diesel power units immediately behind plunged down the embankment and into a pine thicket at the bottom. The other derailed cars also piled up there.

Three cars on the rear of the train stayed on the track and were not damaged.

Entire sections of wheels beneath several units of the train were torn loose. The rails were torn up for a considerable distance.

At one point, a large section of rail was lifted completely from the road bed and twisted into a might "S" shape.

Paris F. Barton, New London, Conn., an Army private on his way to Fort Jackson at Columbia, said "I could feel the train go off the track. It seemed to go up in the air and then it went down the embankment."

Barton's shoulder and ankle were hurt but his injuries were not serious.

PRESIDENT—Felix Gouin, (above) French Socialist deputy, was chosen president of France's constituent assembly, charged with writing a new constitution for the nation.

Another service man, Albert Molten of the Bronx, New York, said, "The first thing we knew I noticed the baggage started flying from one end of the coach to the other."

H. A. Lanzer of the Park Central Hotel, New York, said there was "a terrible cracking noise before the train left the track."

Siamese Treaty Will Make Rice Available

Singapore, Jan. 12—(AP)—Siamese participation in international tin, rubber and rice control arrangements was assured by the terms of a peace treaty signed here yesterday by representatives of Siam, Great Britain and India.

At the same time Siam was pledged to participate in security measures approved by the United Nations for Southeast Asia and to restore pre-war agreements on navigation and civil air services. She also agreed to make restitution for British war losses in Siam and to abandon any claims to British territory in Burma and Northern Malaya seized while Siam was allied with Japan.

It returned Britain and India promised to sponsor Siam's candidacy for membership in the United Nations Organization.

Under the treaty Siam—a rice exporting country—promised to make available to the British a maximum of 1,500,000 tons of surplus rice, needed in some Far Eastern areas to avert threatened food shortages.

All newly elected and appointed officers and all other members are invited to attend.

Who should receive the benefits of improved methods when industry gets back into its peacetime production stride?

Judging by their strike demands, UAW-CIO leaders seem to think that such benefits should go entirely to union members.

They forget that it is important for consumers to benefit through reduced prices or greater values. This has the added advantage of increasing volume and thus expanding job opportunities.

They forget too that improved production methods come largely from the use of improved machinery and tools supplied by the owners of the business.

Over the years the automobile industry has grown and prospered and contributed substantially to the welfare of our country because it has adhered to the principle that customers, employes and investors must all benefit from improved methods.

The decision on how best to distribute the benefits calls for experience, judgment and—above all—a primary interest in the welfare of all concerned.

That's why such decisions must be left to management, which is equally concerned with the interests of employes, stockholders—and customers!

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

ST. FRANCIS GOES PREACHING

St. Francis of Assisi once promised one of his monks that he would take him along the next time he went preaching. Sure enough on a certain day Francis called the monk to him and said that that day they would go through the streets of Assisi preaching.

Francis first went to the market place. Here he hailed several merchants, talked with them pleasantly about their wares and inquired whether their business was good or bad. He passed to have a cheerful word with the little old woman who sold flowers. He met several people on the street whom he stopped and talked with, inquiring about the members of their families and, as tactfully as possible, inquiring also about the condition of their souls. He stood outside a circle of children who were singing as they played a game, and the good Saint kept time by clapping his hands. He listened intently as a man with a troubled look on his face spoke earnestly in low tones.

And then St. Francis and his monk started back home. "But Brother Francis," said the monk, "when are we going to preach and where?" "We have been preaching," said St. Francis. "Or Lord's command was, 'As ye go, preach.' One does not have to have a pulpit in which to preach. We can witness to the Lord and his gentleness anywhere we happen to be. And when we do so witness, we preach."

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By JACK STINNETT

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
(For Jack Stinnett)

Washington — A "vouching" Supreme Court of the United States moves quietly into another year of helping chart the course of the nation.

The average age of members of the present court is 57-14 years younger than the average 71 of the court into which President Roosevelt nine years ago unsuccessfully sought to inject "new and younger blood."

When Mr. Roosevelt asked Congress for authority to name new justices if the old ones did not retire at the age of 70—the court to have a maximum of 15 instead of nine members—six of the justices were over 70.

Today only one member of the court, 73-year-old Chief Justice Harlan F. Stone, is over 70. Stone, incidentally, is the only member of the current court who was on the high bench when President Roosevelt launched his battle to enlarge the court.

Under the law, justices who have reached 70 and have served 10 years may resign and continue to draw full pay of $20,000 a year for the remainder of their lives. Comparatively few justices, however, have retired at 70.

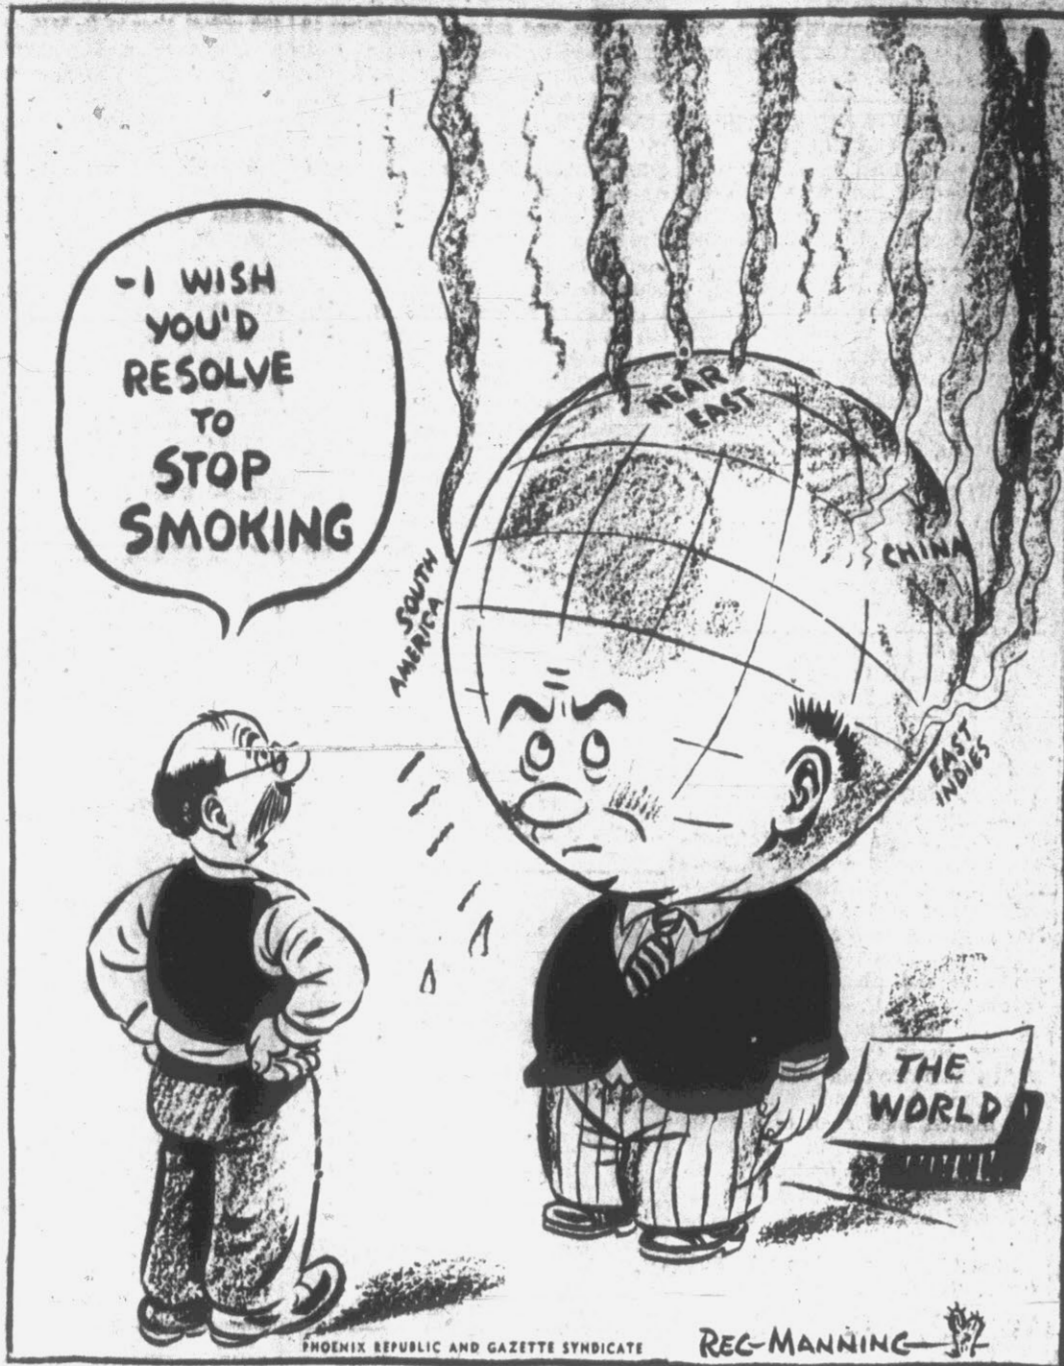

Oliver Wendell Holmes, whose intellectual vigor in his late eighties was internationally recognized, was the oldest man ever to sit on the Supreme Court. He was going on 91 and had been a justice 29 years when he resigned in 1932 because of failing health. The late Louis D. Brandeis was 82 when he retired from the court in 1939.

Charles Evans Hughes retired in 1941 at the age of 78. Thirteen years earlier before he became a member of the court, Mr. Hughes defended the capacities of judges who were 70. In a lecture at Columbia university, he said:

"Under present conditions of living and in view of the increased facilities of maintaining health and vigor, the age of 70 may well be thought too early for compulsory retirement. Such retirement is too often the community's loss. A compulsory retirement at 75 could more easily be defended."

Friends of Stone have said that he would remain on the bench as long as his good health continued. Stone, apparently in excellent health, will have served 21 years on the high court next March 2. The baby of the present court is

Two of Story's associates were also youngsters. William F. Johnson of South Carolina was 33 when he went on the court in 1804 and Bushrod Washington was 36 when appointed in 1798.

Compromise Ends De Gaulle Crisis

Paris, Jan. 2.—(AP)—A government crisis, in which President De Gaulle threatened to resign over proposed slashes in the army budget, was ended late last night when the constituent assembly voted a compromise measure.
The measure, as finally approved, authorizes expenditures of 39,020,000,000 francs ($327,900,000) for national defense in the first quarter of 1946 on condition that a promised program of army reorganization be submitted to the assembly by Feb. 15.
This represents a reduction of 1-600,000,000 francs ($13,445,378) made by the government in its original estimates for the first quarter. The government's proposed expenditures for the entire year for national defense are 125,000,000,000 francs ($1,040,450,000).
The compromise provides that if the reorganization program, which includes reduced army expenditures, is not presented to the assembly Feb. 15 the army's credits will be reduced automatically by Feb. 28 by 20 per cent, the amount demanded by the Socialists and Communists.

Prisoners Failed In Jail-Break Attempt

Raleigh, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Six long-term prisoners escaped from their cells and made their way to the roof of Central Prison here late last night but were apprehended before they could clear the high prison walls, Warden Hugh Wilson said today.
Wilson said two of the prisoners sawed through their cell doors, then used skeleton keys to unlock the prison's cell locking device, which opened doors within their immediate cell block. The six then used additional master keys to unlock trap doors leading to the roof of the prison. They were discovered by a guard immediately.
Wilson said an investigation was underway to determine how they obtained the saws they used on the

By TED MEIER

New York, Jan. 2—(AP)—A rash of 69 touchdowns delighted the 397,000 spectators who turned out for yesterday's 13 Bowl football games from coast to coast and who saw most of the favorites win.

The victorious Alabama, Oklahoma A and M, Texas, Miami, Georgia, New Mexico and Wake Forest teams all contributed to this New Year's display of gridiron fireworks, but perhaps the most thrilling "TD" of the lot came in the very last second of the Orange Bowl at Miami.

A capacity crowd of 38,000 was startled as Substitute Al Hudson intercepted a Holy Cross aerial and sprinted 89 yards for a touchdown to give Coach Spike Harding's Miami Hurricanes a 13 to 6 triumph. The final whistle blew as Hudson crossed the goal line in a storybook finish.

Alabama's Crimson Tide and the Oklahoma Aggies, both unbeaten and untied during the regular season, lived up to their press notices by routing Southern California and St. Mary's, respectively, in the Rose and Sugar Bowls.

Alabama, sparked by Harry Gilmer, ended USC's unbeaten streak in the famed Pasadena game, by smearing the Trojans, 34 to 14, before 93,000, the largest crowd of the day. The Southeastern champions turned the game into a one-sided affair by running up a 34-0 score before USC counted twice in the last period.

A crowd of 75,000 at New Orleans, the largest ever to see a football game in the South, saw the Aggies spot St. Mary's a touchdown, in the first six minutes, then come from behind to take a 14-13 lead at the half and pull away to a 33-13 triumph in the second half.

The duel between the two-All-America halfbacks, Bob Fenimore, of the Cowboys, and Herman Wedemeyer, of St. Mary's, came out pretty much even-Stephen.

A 42-yard touchdown run by Alan Dekdebrun, Cornell's star quarterback, and a placekick by Purdue's Tom Hughes gave the East All-Stars a 7-7 tie with the West All-Stars in the Shrine Bowl at San Francisco before 60,000. Later in the game the East reached the West three-yard stripe, but three plays failed and on fourth down Hughes missed a field goal try from the 18.

Texas and Missouri reached the heights of the day's touchdown orgy in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas. Bobby Layne sparked the Longhorns to six scores and a 40-27 victory. Touchdowns came so fast that the 46,000 on hand were hard put to keep up with developments.

Charley Trippi led Georgia to a 20-6 victory over Tulsa in the Oil Bowl at Houston. A crowd of 27,000 saw Tulsa trail by 7-6 for three quarters, then watched Trippi throw a 54-yard touchdown pass and sew up victory a few minutes later by running back a Tulsa punt 60 yards.

Chapter 6
(Sunday 3:30 a. m. to 5:15 a. m.)
Inspector Venable seemed to think this information somewhat less than important. He asked a few more questions and said that would be all for now.

"You're worn out, Julia, dear," said Frank. "Why don't you go to bed and I'll take care of things here."

"Yes, that's a good idea," conceded the Inspector.

She said good night and went into her bedroom. She was glad to get away from that room.

She sat on the edge of her bed and stared into space. Her mind was crowded with bits of things she had seen and felt and heard. If I could put them all on a table and push them around, I could make them fit. She looked at the clock set in the night stand and saw it was 3:30—only two hours since Robey had been killed. She was sure of that—Robey had been killed.

There was a knock on the door and she said "Come in" a second time before it was opened.

"I thought you wouldn't mind having me around," said Virginia. She had pushed her hair back of her ears and her skin seemed to be pulled tightly over the fine bone structure of her thin face. She began unfastening the jade brace of her arms.

Julia's eyes clung to hers but she did not speak.

"Maybe crying would help."

"This last was in a lower tone but still cool—indifferent.

"Shall I sleep here or in Robey's room?"

"Oh, here. Here, please. I'll get you some night clothes. Is every one still out there?" She motioned toward the door to the salon.

"They're all gone. All but Moore and a cop who is guarding the door—ar is supposed to. Why, I don't know. Robey would be furious if he thought he'd have to have a co-star in his grand climax."

"You think he committed suicide?" Julia paused in the act of drawing off her stockings.

"I don't know. Let's sleep, old thing. I'm dead—yes, dead," Virginia finished deliberately.

After they had got in bed Julia dozed fitfully. The pale turquoise curtain that hung straight to the floor swayed restlessly in the uncertain breeze from the windows opposite the bed. The room was very dark except for the dim light that came from the court.

Once when she awoke she was trembling. She stared across the darkness at the windows. She could not see the curtains. Stifling a feeling of alarm she decided that Virginia had pulled the draperies together. She turned toward the other side of the bed and put out her hand.

At that instant she heard a thud as if someone had fallen in another part of the house. She sat up in bed quickly, automatically, then froze into immobility. The frantic beating of her heart roared in her ears.

She forced herself to move though it was like stepping into an abyss. She ran her hand over the other side of the bed. No one was there. Somehow she had known that Virginia was gone. Pictures of the girl falling flashed through her mind. She must find her quickly. Holding back the panic that threatened her she moved to meet this unknown danger.

Fearing to turn on the lights, she threw a dressing gown over her shoulders and circled the foot of her bed in silent bare feet. At the door to the salon she listened for a few seconds intently, ear against the wood. Once or twice she thought she heard some one moving about. If she could get to the policeman who was guarding the door, he would help her find Virginia.

She crossed the corner of the room to the door which opened into Robey's dressing room. It opened silently with a gentle push. Utter darkness greeted her. She could hear no sound but there was a pulsating quality in the blackness that made her want to scream out for help. It was as if voices were crying out silently in the blackness. Time was endless on that trip across the dressing room and Robey's chamber. Each second is a balloon, she thought, and these are all full blown, almost to the breaking point.

At last she reached the door to the foyer, opening it cautiously. There was still no light! Surely the policeman would not sit there without a light.

The tile felt cold on her feet and she welcomed the soft wool of the square rug. Her groping hand touched the table that was in the center of the rug and she guided herself around it. Her foot touched something and she would have stumbled if she had not been moving so slowly. Instantly she was crouched low, feeling on the floor. It was a man lying on his stomach. Her hand crept up to find his head. She jerked it away. The head was sticky. She never knew what kept her from crying out. She didn't know who it was or whether he was alive or dead. But she saw another vision of a tall girl lying somewhere. Where was Virginia?

It occurred to her later that Virginia's could have been the hand that struck down the policeman on guard but that night no suspicion of the girl entered her head.

She thought of Moore but shuddered at the thought of going back to arouse him. The closest bell to his room was the doorbell. The quickest means of getting aid was the telephone. It was inclosed behind a door flush with the wall near where she stood. The very air was inimical. She dared not move farther than she had to. The small door was stuck a little and she worked carefully to open it without making a sound. A small creak escaped before it finally came out with a soft "plug!" Her hand had tightened on the handle to lift it before she realized that someone was near her. She had a crazy thought that the man on the floor had risen to grab her. Then she was struck. Everything was blanked out instantly.

Child Has Two Heads
Birmingham, Eng., Jan. 2—(AP)—A child with two heads was born yesterday to the wife of an American soldier, officials of the Selly Oak Hospital said today.

Nurses in the maternity ward said the child—born about a month prematurely—was being kept in a ward with other premature babies and that she awakes for feeding and cries normally. They said however, that she was "quite feeble."

Hospital officials said both the child's heads were perfect and were attached to twin necks on normal shoulders and body.

Merchants said that the rush to purchase ration-free automobile tires began as soon as places of business were opened today, after a New Year's holiday.

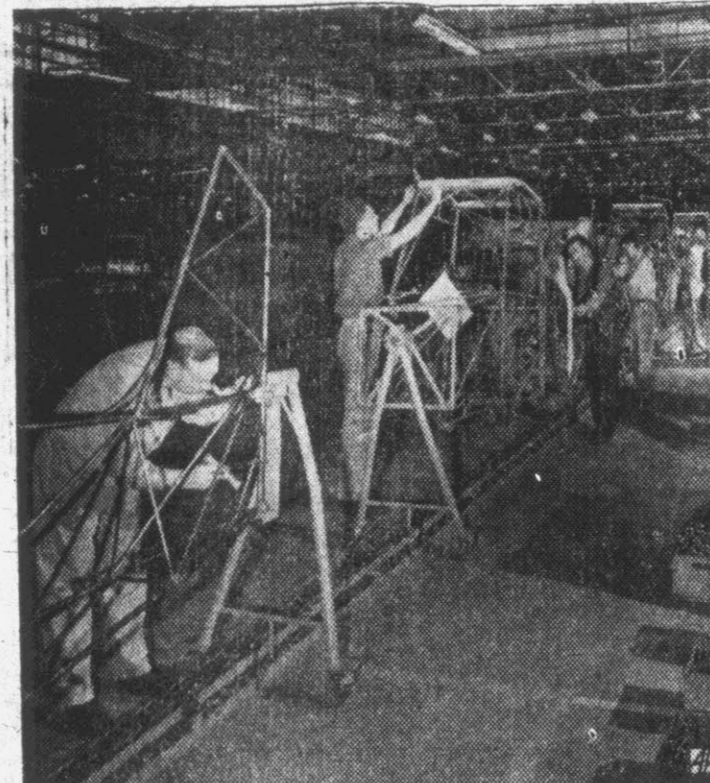

"And what's more," one dealer said, "we don't know when we're going to get any more."
