Bevin Denounces Russian Attack

"Mr. Vishinsky Says That Our Troops in Greece Are Protecting The Right, I Give The Lie To That," Says British Prime Minister In Hot And Heavy Debate

London, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Russia agreed tonight to drop her demands for Security Council action against the British in Greece—with the understanding that Britain would withdraw her troops there as soon as possible.

London, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin of Britain cried "lie" today in the United Nations Security Council to a charge by Russian Foreign Vice Commissar Vishinsky that British troops in Greece were protecting Rightist forces there.

In a hot and heavy argument over Russia's demand for the immediate withdrawal of the troops on the ground that they endangered international peace, Bevin asserted:

"Mr. Vishinsky says that our troops in Greece are protecting the right—I give the lie to that."

He spoke after Vishinsky, in a 90-minute statement had challenged Bevin's friendliness toward Russia in telling the Security Council last Friday that the real danger to world peace was Moscow propaganda against the British.

"I'm not unfriendly toward Russia," Bevin said in his detailed rebuttal, delivered for the most part in a calm, slow voice. "I just want equal treatment."

He did not say what equality he had in mind.

He stressed emphatically that Britain was in any way endangering the peace of the world and declared that if Vishinsky really believed it was, then Bevin should not be in the Security Council.

"Have I my government and the British people taken action in Greece or elsewhere to endanger the peace of Europe?" he asked in conclusion. "On that I ask an answer—I plead with you either to absolve us or brand us as guilty."

Vishinsky told the council earlier that nothing worse could have been said than Bevin's assertion (Continued on Page Six)

Four Victims In Catawba Tragedy

Charlotte, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Authorities today resumed dragging the Catawba River for the bodies of four persons drowned yesterday when their motorboat capsized in the Catawba colony section of the river, south of the Charlotte-Gastonia highway.

A fifth occupant of the craft narrowly escaped death.

Mecklenburg County officers listed the dead as William Stewart, 22, William Shields, 22, and Helen Overcash, 20, all of the Nivens community near Charlotte, and Sue Tumire, 19, of Hickory.

Miss Overcash, first cousin, Mildred Overcash of the Nivens section, managed to swim ashore and was the only survivor of the motorboat tragedy.

The three girls were student nurses at Charlotte's Mercy Hospital.

YOU'VE JAILED FOR SLAYINGS

Bladen County Boy Charged With Two Brutal Murders

Elizabethtown, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Woodrow Erwin, 18-year-old farmer and textile worker, was being held in the Bladen County jail here today in connection with the death of his wife and step-daughter, whose bodies were found yesterday in a shallow grave near the home.

Erwin, who was arrested Saturday after his wife's father and friends became suspicious of the youth's story that he had "run her off" along with the baby, confessed to slaying the mother and daughter, Bladen County Sheriff H. Marshall Clark said, after being taken to the scene of the burial.

Clark said Erwin's confession unfolded this story:

Erwin and his wife had an argument Thursday night at their home five miles from Elizabethtown. After a heated exchange of words, Erwin struck his wife on the head with a poker, knocking her to the floor. He then carried her into the yard, tied balling wire around her neck and hit her with a wire to a mule.

Leading the mule, Erwin dragged his wife approximately 500 yards across a field and through a swamp to a prepared tobacco bed. There he dug a hole about 30 inches deep, returned to the house, got his step-child and returned to the makeshift grave, where he choked the child to death.

A coroner's jury today found that the mother and daughter came to their death at the hands of Erwin. He was being held without bail.

Military Staff For UNO In Secret Meet

London, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The United Nations Military Staff Committee, which will control the world's international police force, met for the first time today. It was a secret session.

Seventeen high ranking officers representing the United States, Russia, Great Britain, France and China sat around a U-shaped table in a crowded committee room and talked for more than an hour.

One woman, Junior Lt. Nini Boskov of the Russian delegation, was among the numerous aides attached to each delegation.

Adm. Sir Henry R. Moore, chief of the British delegation, was named president of the first session. The delegates decided that subsequent meetings would be headed by the chiefs of the various delegations, presiding in alphabetical order.

British Brides Arrive After Bitter Voyage

Servicemen's Wives And Babies Suffer Nightmare Of Misery Aboard Storm-Tossed Transport For Nine Days

New York, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Storm-tossed and tired, but radiant with anticipation, the first group of "British brides"—English women who married American soldiers during the war—reached New York today on the Army transport, Argentina, after a nine-day nightmare voyage across the North Atlantic.

A total of 481 women and 175 children were aboard the ship which docked shortly before 7 a. m.

Mostly they represented in the majority Britain's middle- and upper-middle classes. Most of them took the Army transport only because it was the quickest means of rejoining their husbands.

The 481 and the Argentina were given passage from among some 27,000 applications under an Army system of priorities based on hospitalized and demobilized American soldiers.

It was a strange, pathetic and even a terrible voyage.

As the Argentina slipped past the docks in Southampton, the women, lined on the decks, began singing "There'll always be an England." Tears streamed down their cheeks.

That was Saturday Jan. 26.

On Sunday morning, as the ship passed Land's End and headed northward into the open Atlantic, she began to roll in a long, round-swell. Before noon, four-fifths of the women were violently seasick.

They collapsed on the decks, fell in the passageways, and sat on the stairs, with faces averted, limp and miserable.

Children were abandoned in the cabins, or left alone, screaming, by mothers who were too weak and sick to reach them. A little boy, clinging to the deck-rail, almost fell overboard before the horrified eyes of his mother who struggled, half-crawling, across the pitching deck toward him.

More than half the 175 children on the ship were under 18 months of age.

Mothers were physically incapable of caring for them. The few who were able to walk were organized by Capt. Beatrice Breeze, a WAC officer from New York City, as helpers.

None of them went to bed on the first two nights of the voyage.

Wednesday, Jan. 30, was the worst. (Continued on page six)

Congress Ponders Proposed Control

Washington, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The hour begins tentative nose counting today on sweeping new strike control legislation.

Up for decision is a series of amendments designed to tone down the bill by Rep. Case (R-SD) who proposes to set up a national mediation board with power to step into major labor disputes and forbid strikes or lockouts for 30 days.

To help the board, Case would permit wider use of court injunctions against either labor or management, outlaw boycotts, picketing or organized boycotts, and provide for civil suits against either side breaking a contract.

Members said the preliminary tests on amendments to eliminate one or more of those provisions will indicate clearly how the house will go when the bill itself comes to a showdown vote tomorrow or Wednesday. Foes of the Case bill have two main hopes of defeating it. One is the Republicans might fail to support it in a bloc as some party members have indicated they will. The other is for the opponents to get together solely behind a compromise. So far they haven't.

ISSUES MADE OF UNO SITE Many Inhabitants Protest Leaving Ancestral Lands

By JAMES H. PORTERFIELD Greenwich, Conn., Feb. 4.—(AP)—This normally peaceful Connecticut community, its nearby hills dotted with homes of many wealthy New York City lawyers, bankers and business men, was in turmoil today over its inclusion in the site recommended for the United Nations world capital.

An estimated one-third of the town of Greenwich lies in the 42 square miles of Connecticut and Westchester County, N. Y., countryside numbered No. 1 by the UNO site inspection committee, which announced New York City as its primary choice for interim headquarters.

Protests also came from some of the New York State communities affected, especially the 200-year-old town of North Castle, all of whose 1,000 inhabitants live in the proposed permanent site, but it was in Greenwich that the storm struck hardest.

On one side property owners confronted with the prospect of eviction from land that has been in their families for generations protested that the choice was "unfair."

Davenport Trial Is Opened Here Today

Roderick Davenport, former New Bern produce dealer, and five co-defendants went on trial today at a special term of Pitt County Superior Court on felony charges of conspiracy to perpetrate a fraud and to defraud by false pretense.

The cases grew out of loan operations allegedly conducted by Davenport and his associates in a number of eastern North Carolina towns and cities in 1944.

Twelve persons accused of lesser charges in connection with the loan business, some of which also will face felony counts, will be tried at this term after the felony cases have been concluded.

At the opening of court today, Judge J. Paul Frizzelle of Snow Hill denied defense motions to dismiss the charges of conspiracy to perpetrate a fraud and to defraud by false pretense. Defense counsel successfully objected to a suggestion by Solicitor D. M. Clark that similar charges now pending in Craven County be consolidated for trial here.

In addition to the two felony charges, Davenport and his alleged associates are being tried on a variety of misdemeanor charges, including conspiracy to induce people to give worthless checks, conspiracy to violate the state banking laws by receiving deposits, and conspiracy to violate the state's usury laws. All of the charges carry heavy prison sentences in the event of conviction.

Co-defendants being tried with Davenport on the conspiracy charges are Mrs. S. H. Powers and Johnny Heath of New Bern, J. R. Wharton of Oriental, and Wilson Boyle of Winston-Salem.

Charles P. Jones, Kingston barber who was manager of Davenport's Greenville branch store, who was tried in the two bills, died several months ago.

Selection of a jury from a 60-man venire started just before noon. However, none had been seated when

WITNESS ASKS FOR CHANGES IN TESTIMONY

Naval Officer Reverses Previous Pearl Harbor Testimony In Surprise Move

Washington, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Naval Capt. L. F. Safford, reversing his previous Pearl Harbor testimony, said today "I have no suspicion against any individual" as to high command violation of laws against destroying public records.

Earlier in the day Safford had testified that "suspicion exists" in his mind that Gen. George C. Marshall and Adm. Harold R. Stark had so broken the law.

The question at issue was whether copies of a "winds code" message which Safford said gave Washington a three-day notice of the Japanese attack on December 7, 1941, was received here and later destroyed.

Under questioning by Senator Lucas (D-III) of the Senate-House committee, Safford said he did not suspect responsibility for destruction of the records rested with a group of naval officers, as he had said before.

"But you do have suspicion against Stark and Marshall?" asked Lucas, referring to a reply Safford had given Rep. Clark (D-NC).

"I have no proper basis for suspicions against any individual," Safford replied.

"Do you want to change your testimony of a while ago?"

"I would like to change my answer to Mr. Clark's and your question. I have no suspicion directed against any individuals who can be named."

Rep. Cooper (D-Tenn) said he couldn't understand that kind of answer, that it appeared that if Safford had suspicions they must be directed against persons.

Safford testified that an intercepted Japanese message was received by the navy three days before the December 7, 1941, attack and has now vanished from the files. He said there was "an appearance of a conspiracy" and that it was human to try to cover up a mistake.

Marshall was the war time chief of staff and Stark was the 1941 chief of naval operations.

MacArthur Proposes Plan For Conversion

Tokyo, Feb. 4.—(AP)—General MacArthur's headquarters today announced organization of a Japanese non-profit committee for converting to civilian use more than 2,000,000 tons of steel from the beaten nation's armaments.

The committee, organized at a recent conference of American military government officers and Japanese steel makers, is charged with collecting and smelting all scrap metal and weapons into ingots and diverting the steel into reconstruction channels.

Submarine Included In Navy's Research

Submersibles Carrying Planes Or Rockets May Compete With Aircraft Carriers In Event Of An Atomic War

Washington, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Atomic warfare, if it ever comes, may find the submarine ranking, with the carrier-borne airplane as a prime naval weapon.

This likelihood shaped up today as the result of a series of expressions hinting at the trend of future planning as well as rippling away the secrecy from some high policies of the past war.

If the latter connection was the disclosure that this country's sea arm went along with the total war philosophy of the axis by issuing an order in the first days after Pearl Harbor for "unrestricted air and submarine warfare against Japan."

The wisdom of this, the navy reasoned, was shown in the fact that Japan's supply lines to her conquered empire were cut. 276,000 Japanese killed and 1,944 ships sunk by Allied submarines.

The final decision on the submarine's role in the atom age is expected to evolve from the forthcoming A-bomb tests against warships at Bikini Atoll.

But even now the mounting importance of the undersea fleet will give added significance to current proposals for United States acquisition or control of former Japanese held islands in the Pacific and other far off shore bases. Such bases would have high operational value for watching, trouble spots of the world by means of submarines.

From Vice Adm. Charles Lockwood, who is leaving command of submarine forces in the Pacific to become the navy's inspector general, comes some highly interesting thoughts about navy planning. He told a weekend news conference that:

"The navy is 'very much interested' in the possibilities of rocket-carrying submarines. There would seem to be no reason why a submarine couldn't carry and launch an airplane bearing an atomic bomb or, even better, a buzz bomb with an atomic warhead because 'then you don't have to get the plane and pilot back.'"

Yes, he believed, the submarine could survive the A-bomb threat. The three atomic bombs exploded so far showed no crater effect, so it could be presumed "the blast and pressure would not reach a submerged undersea boat."

The three bombs, however, "have been exploded in the air." The new tests will include one at surface and "one under-surface detonation as well as the initial experiment of a burst several hundred feet above the anchored target ships."

The discovery of nuclear fission may in itself aid the submarine. If a way is found to harness atomic energy to machinery, it could mean a faster submarine with great space-saving in propulsion machinery and a corresponding increase in range and weapons.

RECORDS FALL TO AIRLINERS

New Transcontinental & TransAtlantic Speed Marks Set

New York, Feb. 4.—A new transcontinental commercial plane record was set yesterday as a TWA Constellation—which flew non-stop from Burbank, Calif., to La Guardia Field in seven hours, 27 minutes and 48 seconds.

The bi-axial aircraft set a record for the number of persons carried on a coast-to-coast hop—43 passengers and a seven-member crew.

The former west-to-east commercial flight mark, 11 hours and 55 minutes, was set by a TWA strato-liner in July, 1940.

Jack Frye, president of Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., who piloted the Constellation on yesterday's flight, said the average speed was 345 to 350 miles an hour, with a maximum of 375 miles an hour between Fort Wayne, Ind., and Hayesville, O.

New York, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Pan-American Airways said today one of its Constellation planes had set a new transatlantic commercial flight record of 12 hours and five minutes, flying 3,400 miles from La Guardia Field to Hurn, England, with two stops en route.

The plane left La Guardia Field at 4:17 p. m. EST yesterday and landed at Hurn at 7:50 a. m. EST. An airline spokesman said the plane carried 30 passengers and a crew of 10 and averaged 306 miles an hour while over water from Gander, Newfoundland, to Shannon, Ireland. Stops were made at both Gander and Shannon. The previous record for the trip was 14 hours, two minutes, set January 4 by a Pan-American Clipper plane.

Strike Of 3,500 Tugboat Workers Will Cut Off 80% Of City's Fuel Supply

And Nearly Half Its Food; President Holds Conference With Murray And Schwellenbach

By The Associated Press

A strike of 3,500 New York harbor tugboat workers was termed 98 per cent effective by a union leader today, and city officials mapped emergency plans to avoid a fuel and food shortage.

Capt. William Bradley, president of Local 333, United Marine Division of the AFL International Longshoremen's Association, said the last time New York harbor was tied up by so extensive a strike was in 1919, when the walkout lasted seven weeks. Bradley said "Half a dozen tugs or so" still were working at incomplete tasks taken on before the strike started.

Mayor William J. O'Dwyer estimated the strike would cut off 80 per cent of New York City's fuel supply and nearly half of its food. He said the city government was preparing a "blueprint" against an extended emergency.

About 35,000 members of the AFL International Longshoremen's Association backed up the tugboat workers, affiliated with the ILA's United Marine Division, in their wage dispute with the New York Tugboat Exchange.

ILA President Joseph P. Ryan said his Longshoremen would refuse to load or unload any ship which normally would be operated by strikers. Troopships, which are served by Army tugs, will not be affected by the strike.

Railroad-owned tugs and a few boats owned by two oil companies also were expected to continue operating.

Washington, Feb. 4.—(AP)—President Truman held a hurriedly-called conference with Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach and CIO President Philip Murray today in a renewed White House effort to end the steel strike deadlock.

Neither Schwellenbach nor Murray would comment as they emerged from the half hour session, which began at the unusually early hour. (Continued on Page Six)

Probes Open On Fire Which Took 13 Lives

Cleveland, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Investigations by at least three separate groups were under way today in the Saturday fire which took the lives of 13 residents of Jennings Hall, Catharine Home for the Aged in suburban Garfield Heights.

Cuyahoga County Coroner Samuel R. Gerber said his office would conduct an investigation similar to that in the East Ohio Gas Co. explosion in which 126 persons lost their lives here in October of 1944.

The coroner said probes also would be made by the Garfield Heights fire department and state fire yards. The Cleveland fire department also may help, he reported.

Death toll in the flash fire rose to 13 yesterday when John B. Walters, 84, succumbed to burns. Of the seven persons remaining in hospitals, the condition of only one was regarded as critical.

The WORLD TODAY

An Analysis Of The News

By DEWITT MACKENZIE AP World Traveler

Paris, Feb. 4.—(AP)—General Charles De Gaulle's resignation as president of France and his "retirement" present an intensely interesting political situation, for there is widespread belief among observers that the general merely intends to lie doggo until the new Constitution is adopted next June and then come out again for leadership of the Republic.

Now that's not such an odd thing as it might seem at first glance. As a matter of fact, the general appears to be in process of trying to execute a grand coup of which his "retirement" is the strategic key-stone. If this assumption is correct, then the reasons for it follow along naturally enough. On thumbnail the situation is this:

France's economic position is a matter of grave concern, for she has just about hit bottom. Her recovery calls for strong governmental action involving long-term policies. But these strong, long-term policies are denied to the present government by the fact that its life can run only to June, when a new Constitution will be adopted and another government will come into power.

The corollary to this is that the present government has small chance of achieving the sweeping economic betterment for which the heart of every Frenchman is crying. This being so, the leader of the government may arrive at election time with a heavy black mark against his name in the public mind.

The man in the street will be inclined to overlook the handicaps, and will see only the fact that life for him and his family is the same grim struggle it was when the government assumed control. So he will look for new leadership.

General De Gaulle is keeping discreetly silent, but I believe it's fair speculation that these thoughts passed through his mind as he tossed his presidency back into the Assembly after holding it for some two and a half months. One of his fundamental policies is that of a strong army—had me, with powerful opposition in the Assembly, and his views of foreign affairs clash with the extreme left in many respects.

Actually, while there is hot competition for power among the three major parties—the Communists, the Socialists and the Movement Republicain Populaire—none seems particularly anxious to shoulder sole responsibility for the next several months before the new election. Thus a great fight for leadership is brewing and is likely to break at that time.

The general's belief among observers is that De Gaulle will emerge from "retirement" and, with a party of his own or perhaps a moderately conservative coalition, make his bid for the captaincy of the ship of state. Whoever comes (Continued on Page Four)

The NATION TODAY

By James Marlow

Washington, Feb. 4.—(AP)—President Truman is at one of the critical crossroads of his administration. You're involved in it, too. Seriously.

It's a triple problem he had to handle: The steel strike, price control and inflation.

A White House spokesman, recognizing that those three things which affect our future are closely linked, said:

"You can't divorce the steel strike from the nation's general economy." This statement was made after Mr. Truman had talked in re-lays with his top government advisers Saturday.

First Secretary of State Byrnes and Treasury Secretary Vinson, both former reconversion directors; then OPA Boss Bowles and the present reconversion director, Snyder; then again with Byrnes and Vinson.

The conferences lasted for hours. Then Mr. Truman decided that this week he would call in men from outside the government to discuss the steel strike and other economic affairs.

Take the triple problem step by step: The steel strike, over higher wages, is crippling reconversion and will paralyze it if the strike lasts that long enough. Mr. Truman wants to end it.

He asked the CIO and the U. S. Steel Corporation, weather-vane for the industry, to settle for a wage increase of 181-2 cents an hour. The CIO accepted although it had been asking for an increase of 25 cents an hour.

The U. S. Steel Corporation, after the strike started, took this stand: If it is going to grant a wage increase of 181-2 cents an hour the government must allow it to increase the price of steel more than $8.25 a ton.

"The government's policy to prevent runaway prices is this: Wage increases, if they mean price increases, can't be granted without government approval."

OPA has checked the steel industry's figures and says it should be allowed a price increase of only $2.50 a ton.

Latest reports from within OPA say it would be willing to allow a steel price increase up to $4 a ton, but no more—as a compromise gesture.

But it is reported, on extremely reliable authority, that reconversion Director Snyder thinks it would be all right to give the steel companies more than $4 a ton.

So Mr. Truman has to consider this: How much will U. S. Steel settle for in the way of a price increase to end the strike and give the 181-2 cent wage increase: $4 a ton? More than $4? How much more? More than $6.25? (Continued on page four)

Christian Science Service "Love" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science Churches and Societies on Sunday, February 3.

The Golden Text was from Ezekiel 34:15, 16. "I will feed my flock, and will cause them to lie down, saith the Lord God. I will seek that which was lost, and bring again that which was driven away, and will bind up that which was broken, and will strengthen that which was sick. Among the citations comprising the lesson-sermon were the following from the Bible: "And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying, Speak unto all the congregation of the children of Israel, and say unto them, Ye shall be holy, for I the Lord your God am holy. Thou shalt not avenge, nor bear any grudge against the children of thy people, but thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. I am the Lord" (Lev. 19:12, 18).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "God gives the lesser idea of Himself for a link to the greater, and in return, the higher always protects the lower. The rich in spirit help the poor in one grand brotherhood, all having the same Principle, or Father; and blessed is that man who seeth his brother's need and supplieth it, seeking his own in another's good. Love giveth to the least spiritual, idea might, immortality, and goodness, which shine through all as the blossom shines through the bud." (Page 518).

Entertain at Bridge Grifton, Feb. 4.—Mrs. Roy Jackson was at home to members of her contract club and invited players for four tables on Thursday night at her home here. Seasonable decorations were in evidence throughout the rooms where players were received. Scoring high during the evening were Mrs. Sam Nelson, Mrs. Walter Patrick, and Mrs. Clay Burney. Other guests were Mrs. Ben G. Tucker, Mrs. Julius Chaucery, Mrs. Carey Garris, Mrs. Elmo Smith, Mrs. Milton Hart, Mrs. Josh Worthington, Mrs. Edward Hart, Mrs. Christine Moye, and Mrs. New McGlohon, Jr. The hostess served a delightful supper plate with a sweet and hot tea.

Hostess to Bridge Club Grifton, Feb. 4.—The Thursday bridge club met with Mrs. Vance Wall on Thursday night at an enjoyable supper session. The home was decorated with early spring flowers and potted plants. Four tables were appointed for the games which were played following supper in three progressions. High scores went to Mrs. Jack Tucker, Mrs. Jesse Quinerly and Mrs. George Sugg. Other players were Mrs. Eleanor Gower, Mrs. H. P. Quinerly, Mrs. A. D. Wall, Mrs. T. J. Williams, Mrs. Jack Chapman, Mrs. R. A. Nelson, Mrs. Robert Mewborn, Mrs. L. D. McCotter, Mrs. L. L. Mewborn, Mrs. Ivan Bisette, Miss Bert Johnson, Miss Louise Mewborn and Miss Hazel Patrick.

Woman's Club The regular meeting of the Woman's Club was held on Friday, February 1st at the club house.

Mrs. Robert Humber, president of the club, presided over the business session which was opened by singing of Club Woman's hymn. Mrs. C. E. Oakley read the minutes and Mrs. Harvey Ward gave the treasurer's report. The secretary read replies received from our congressional representatives, Messrs. Hoey, Bailey and Bonner, in answer to letters sent them embodying a congressional delay in settling labor disputes.

Mrs. C. C. Hilton, chairman of "Youth Conservation" in the local club, gave a vivid and interesting report of the state-wide conference on Youth Conservation which was held in Raleigh January 25. She stated that "Governor Cherry and Mrs. J. Henry Highsmith had called this conference because of an interest and appreciation and concern of the youth of our state." Outstanding speakers in the field of education, health, recreation, welfare, vocational training, family relations, law enforcement and citizenship were present and brought facts on the situation in each field. At the close of the conference the Federation of Women's Clubs adopted a seven-point program to help the youth of today.

Other reports were given by department heads. The membership committee introduced the following new members, Mrs. J. R. Etheridge, Mrs. Lee Moore, Mrs. K. R. Bland, Mrs. R. Spears, Mrs. J. D. Aman, Mrs. R. E. May, Mrs. J. J. Stauffer and Miss Mary Hines Leonard. At the conclusion of the business session, Mrs. D. M. Clark introduced Mrs. Paul Davenport of Pictou, guest speaker. Mrs. Davenport in her introductory remarks told how interested in fine arts had grown in Greenville because of Woman's Club leadership particularly in the fine arts festival, local art gallery, flower shows. Mrs. Davenport's subject was "Music in the Home." She was assisted in her program by Mrs. Knott Proctor and Jim Haney.

The first music the home is interested in is lullabies. A number of great artists have sung these on so many occasions and made them dear to all ages. As an example of this type of music Mrs. Knott Proctor sang Brahms Lullaby accompanied by Mrs. Davenport.

Next are the folk songs which are popular in the home. Of the most famous writers Stephen Foster wrote our best folk songs. The club sang several of these numbers and Mrs. Davenport played two, explaining the difference in the compositions. Mrs. Proctor sang one of the most loved of these folk songs written by John Howard Payne, "Home, Sweet Home."

Last but not the least is "listening music" which is so important in the home. We can as mothers create a taste for better music by planning to hear the best programs on the radio or by playing good music in the home. Jim Haney played "Ave Maria" by Schubert on the violin as a type of good listening music.

Mrs. Proctor sang, "My Heart Is Thy Sweet Voice," by Camille Saint-Saens. The entire program was enjoyed by the club. At the end of Mrs. Davenport's talk guests were invited to a lovely tea table covered with imported cloth and centered with an arrangement of red carnations, fern and white candy tuft in a silver bowl flanked with red tapers in silver candelabra. Tea was poured by Mrs. J. L. Fleming and Mrs. S. T. White. Dainty refreshments were served by other hostesses.

Hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. J. L. Winstead, Mrs. J. L. Fleming, Mrs. H. G. Haney, Mrs. J. K. Proctor, Mrs. G. V. Smith, Mrs. S. T. White, Mrs. Hortense Moye, Mrs. D. M. Clark, Mrs. F. P. Brooks, Mrs. K. R. Rowe, Mrs. Dink James, Mrs. J. B. James and Miss Bessie Brown.

Women IN THE CHURCH by Mary Fowler

As a help in character-building, in curbing juvenile delinquency, and in lifting the moral tone of young and old, the powerful California Federation of Women's Clubs has urged Governor Earl Warren and the California State legislature, to write into the laws a requirement that the Bible be read daily in all schools. The women feel the issue is important enough for a special session of the legislature if necessary.

The Ministry of Education of the Chinese Nationalist Government has sent a request to American and British missionaries in China to assist in vast new plans for post-war education. Especially do they ask qualified missionaries to do volunteer part-time supervision of the teaching of English in government and private schools. The Board of Missions of the Methodist Church is now looking for a large number of college-trained teachers, men and women, aged 24 to 34, to take three-year contracts as teachers of English in China, or to enter such careers for lifetime service. Dr. M. O. Williams, 150 Fifth Avenue, New York City, is in charge of recruiting these workers.

"The years of silence," when the war cut Korea off from the rest of the world, were a "real experience" of appreciation for the human ties that transcend space and time," Miss Helen K. Kim, president of world-famed Ewha (Christian) College, Seoul, Korea, wrote recently to friends in America. "Your prayers upheld our common cause," she adds, "and I was conscious of it all the time. Only this consciousness was what made me feel strong and brave even in the darkest hours. So many times I have been advised by friends as well as enemies to give up the struggle. 'Why endure such humiliations (at the hands of the Japanese) indefinitely?' was their reasoning. But every time the picture of a chained watchdog popped up in my head, and my determination to keep my post until death became stronger. Abuses and teasing will not cause a watchdog to desert his post while his master is away. While you were away, and while the Awha constituency here in Korea was all scattered, I could not leave the place for even a day or night. But this was not a difficult thing to do, because your fellowship always gave me the necessary strength." Since American occupation, Ewha College has reopened with 900 women students and many of its old faculty.

Shortage Of Male Teachers Decried

North Carolina needs more men in the profession of teaching, according to answers made by 80 superintendents of state schools to a questionnaire sent out by R. M. Garrett of Greenville, member of the Board of Trustees of East Carolina Teachers College.

At the meeting of the Board of Greenville on January 31, Garrett gave a report made up of facts and figures gathered from the questionnaire to 88 superintendents of schools in eastern and central North Carolina. Those answering revealed a desire among superintendents to employ trained men as principals, teachers, and coaches and to have in their schools teachers holding the master's degree.

Garrett, who is chairman of a committee studying the training of men as teachers, sent out his questionnaire on January 8. Answers came in promptly from 80 of the superintendents, a response which indicates an interest among educators in securing well-trained men for work in the public schools.

"We need more men in our schools so that they may be trained to be principals," said one superintendent. "Another comment ran, 'More men are urgently needed to teach science, mathematics, industrial arts and physical education.' It seems to me that we should have more men from East Carolina Teachers College but they have not been available," said a Wake County superintendent. Preference for men as teachers was shown by a number of superintendents. Garrett's report stated, answers indicated that, in the area covered by the questionnaire, 1,012 men would be employed in school work next year if they were available. To the question "Would you like to have more men teachers?" 87 superintendents answered "Yes," and only 2 "No." For principals' positions, 68 superintendents prefer men, particularly in high-school work. A need for more men to serve as athletic coaches was expressed by 2 superintendents. Teachers with master's degrees are likewise in demand, according to those who answered.

The court, said the judge, never had been informed officially of the fatal shooting of Sanjuan by an unknown person last month.

The Fourth Mrs. Baker

By Ernestine Adams

Chapter 19
(Monday 7:37 p. m. to 9:40 p. m.)
She was trembling so when she entered the cold room she had to clench her teeth to keep them from chattering. Inspector Venable and the man he called Brown accompanied her. An attendant pulled out one of the long drawers which lined the room and began to remove the cover when the Inspector stopped him.

"This isn't going to be a pleasant sight, Mrs. Baker, but I hope you can tell me if it is the woman you saw."

She tried to steel herself against the shock. She nodded without trying to speak.

The cloth was lifted. Even if she had known what they looked like she could not have recognized the smashed features. But the long blonde hair, which she could see now was dyed, brought the vision of loose curls waving toward the errant red hat.

She fought the nausea that threatened her. She couldn't let the Inspector see her being a sissy. Lightness swirled through her head and merciful unconsciousness came to her rescue. As from a far off cloud she felt the Inspector's arms about her—she hadn't the smallest doubt about whose arms they were—and knew nothing more.

The pungent odor of ammonia was the first thing her senses recognized. Then she saw the white uniformed woman who held the cotton.

"That's better," the woman said. "Let's have some in water." came the Inspector's voice.

Julia drank and felt better.

"I'm dizzy because I haven't had anything to eat," she apologized.

"When did you eat last?" the Inspector bent over her.

"Breakfast, I think," she told him meekly.

"Get her up, Miss Annie. We're going to eat."

She was strong enough to powder her nose with some care and retouch her lips.

Resolutely she pushed aside the image of a woman with blonde hair who had stepped so lightly across the street two days ago.

Inspector Venable put her in a taxi and directed the driver to an Italian restaurant. She felt weak but somewhat composed as if the mounting horror that filled her had reached the saturation point and nothing more could touch her.

"I let Harma know you were with me. He was worried," the Inspector said after they were seated at a small table with a spotless table cloth. He gave an order to the round-faced waiter and red wine and minestrone appeared almost instantly. Filling their glasses he kept on talking while she ate.

He talked of everything but murder while Julia consumed food—soup, spaghetti, veal fried in cheese, green salad with wine and vinegar dressing and, finally, tortoni. Color came back into her cheeks and her eyes grew brighter. With renewed strength came fresh courage to face this last fantastic tragedy and to guard against the man opposite her who had a way of pushing through her defenses.

She accepted a cigarette and leaned forward for a light. After a drag, she asked, "Who is she?"

"I don't know." He at least didn't try to evade her.

"Then why—"

"She fell from the sixteenth story of the Janis Hotel about seven o'clock on the night your husband was killed. There was nothing to identify her. The peculiar thing was that she had no hat. There was none in her hotel room and she certainly had none on when she fell. A porter noticed that she wore a red hat when she went out in the afternoon and some one else saw her come in without it. When the ad appeared it was immediately connected with this unidentified woman—not, of course, with the Baker case."

She understood now the odd behavior at headquarters.

"My pictures must flatter me," she said smiling.

"They can't—" he caught himself and went on crisply. "When Brown went to pick up whoever came for replies he brought you in. You should have told me about the incident."

"I didn't think of it until later and it seemed to me if I could find the woman perhaps I would know more."

"Did you think she might be involved?"

The question was one she had been trying to avoid. She wasn't going to tell him about the certificate or he might feel he didn't need a confession. Robey had tricked her into a marriage and if she had found that it wasn't legal it gave her a formidable motive.

"Because I saw my husband give her some money and he was very close with money. And, another thing, Moore often left the latch off when he stepped out for a short time so he need not be bothered about unlockin the door. He might have done it when he went for the medicine for Jerry."

"You thought the woman in the red hat might have come in?"

"I didn't know."

"She wouldn't have answered your ad if she had."

"I had to try." A thought struck her. "Why would she commit suicide?"

"She didn't," said Venable positively.

Julia's heart started a hard, painful throbbing and panic spread through her.

"There wasn't a thing left to identify her—no letters, no labels in her clothing, no laundry marks. There was only some silver change in the red purse and a compact and handkerchief. She left no note—which most suicides will do. My theory is that the killer gave her a blow which produced unconsciousness—there was no trace of drugs—and then went over the room carefully before he pushed her out of the window and escaped. He evidently took the money Baker gave her and everything that might have pointed to any connection with him."

"You think it was a man?"

"It could have been a woman."

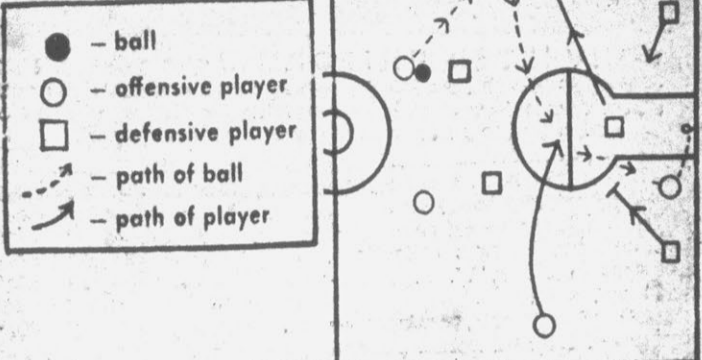

"And there is no clue?"

"You have given me an important one. I am convinced that whoever killed the woman with the red hat also murdered Robey Baker."

Winning Basketball Plays

By Clair Bee—Long Island University Coach

AP Newsfeatures

"That's the ball," says Coach Clair Bee, pointing to the white marker on his home-made basketball court. It goes from the left guard to the left forward who throws it to the other wingman cutting in from the right. The right forward shoots, if he is clear, or passes to the center under the basket. Note how the defense maneuvers.

AP Newsfeatures

In this play, the two guards are in the back court, the center on the foul line in front of the basket, and the forwards to the right and left of the net. Note the changes in positions as the ball is passed. The right guard snaps it to the left, then dashes in front of the ball to a spot just left of the foul line. The left forward comes up and takes the place of the left guard who after passing the ball to the center, moves around the right to the front of the basket to receive the ball from the right forward who got it on the fly from the center—a crackerjack of a scoring play.

Phantoms Meet Elizabeth City's Basket-tees Here Tuesday Night

By JIMMY FUTRELL

Greenville High School's unbeaten conference quint faces the Elizabeth City Yellow Jackets tomorrow night at 8 o'clock on the local High School court.

This contest is the first of two conference games to be played this week. The other contest pits the old rivals, Washington and Greenville together once again on Friday night in Washington.

In a one-sided tilt last Thursday night the G-Men opened up a sharp shooting offensive that resulted in a 75-22 triumph for the Phantoms. After a good workout this afternoon the Fairymen should be in excellent condition for the Jackets, who, incidentally, were deprived of a 51-15 score by the Kingston Red Devils, a team which bowed both times to the locals.

Greenville's probable starting line up is expected to be Bill Harrington and Mac Batchelor, guards; Ed Williams and Jimmy Futrell, forwards; Immy Williams, center.

Billy White and Jack Whichard, guards; Julius White and Henry Turner, forwards, and Dave Clark, center, are expected to see much service against the Elizabeth City aggregation.

In what seems to have settled down to a scoring race between two members of the same team, John Dillon, sharpshooting North Carolina ace, replaced Teammate Jim Jordan today (Monday) in the basket-making scrap for the Southern Conference.

Dillon has scored 65 field goals and 24 free tosses for a total of 194 points in 10 conference games, while Jordan, who plays both forward and guard, is close behind with 144 markers.

Meanwhile, the big change in the conference during the past week was Virginia Tech's rise to third place, and this is the way the three top teams — the ones with any chance of coming out on top at the season's close—stacked up:

Teams	W	L	Pts	Opp
Duke	10	1	552	366
North Carolina	9	1	588	356
Virginia Tech	4	1	217	137

Coach George S. (Gummy) Proctor's Gobblers, currently the best defensive quintet in the 16-team conference, jumped in the standings by beating the University of Richmond Spiders twice and swamping Virginia Military Institute during the last week.

Maryland probably has the best opportunity to throw the wrench into the workings of one of the leaders this week. The Old Liners, vastly improved over the early part of the season, met North Carolina at College Park Friday night. They beat Duke the last time the Blue Devils visited them.

Duke and Virginia Tech also have conference tests this week. The Blue Devils risk their 10-1 record Tuesday night, against Wake Forest at Durham, and Virginia Tech journeys to Lexington to battle Washington and Lee.

Four league games Saturday night saw North Carolina rout Wake Forest, 61-32; Duke race past North Carolina State, 56-33; Maryland blast George Washington, 48-38, and the Citadel stave off a late rally to edge Davidson, 41-39.

In non-conference competition involving loop teams, the Little Creek Amphibs dumped William and Mary, 33-24; McGuire General Hospital downed Virginia Tech, 40-27; Clemson won from Presbyterian, 56-46, and Georgia Tech was too tough for South Carolina, 55-45.

Nelson returns to the golfing wars after being away for almost a month for a physical check-up and to take care of some business matters.

New York, Feb. 4—(AP)—In an attempt to put more scoring into the game, the Joint Rules Committee of Softball has voted to reduce the number of players on a team from ten to nine with the short-fielder being eliminated.

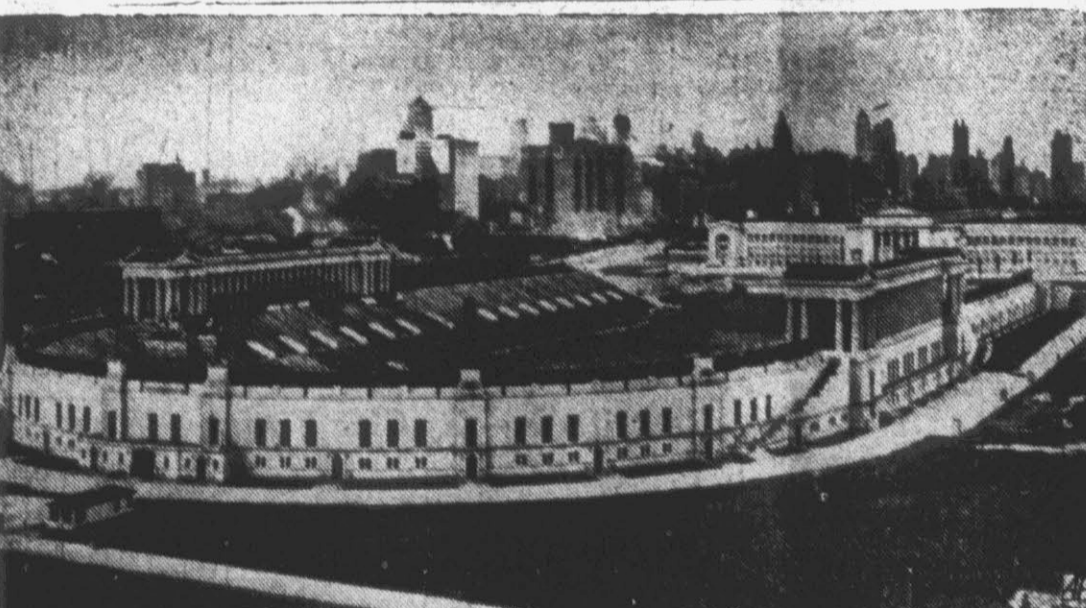

Three others changes to aid the offensive were made by the committee at its meeting here Saturday. The officials ruled that the distance between baselines be reduced from 60 to 55 feet, that a hot batsman be permitted to take first base and that the batter's box be enlarged to three feet in front and three feet behind the plate.

The GHS Midgets lost to a larger and more experienced Goldsboro Midget team by a 31-12 score in a game played here Saturday morning. The Midge team is composed of boys under 14 years old.

The much taller Goldsboro boys controlled backboard play throughout the game and had little trouble winning over the comparatively short Greenville boys for the second time this year.

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

PULL!

Some years ago a young American visiting Switzerland decided, in spite of warnings he had received from experienced mountain climbers, to try to scale a certain high peak.

He started out with his guide. After many hours climbing they came to a narrow ledge from which the mountain ascended precipitously on one side and descended precipitously on the other. After proceeding a little distance along this ledge, they came to a crevasse about three feet wide. The guide leaped across and then reached back for the young American.

Before the boy took the leap, however, the guide said, "Last year an Englishman lost his footing at this crevasse and was killed. Two years before that a Frenchman dropped out of sight at this point and his body has never been recovered." The young American was indignant at such untimely reminders. "Brother," he said to the guide, "if you want to get me across here you've got to stop talking and pull."

That is good advice for the world in general, and for you and me in particular. In an age when the world is trembling with uncertainty, we need to stop our pessimistic forebodings and begin doing a little pulling. It is easy enough to shake our heads and sigh when the going gets tough but the world just at present is in considerable of a fix, and it is our duty to pull—not to prophesy failure.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By JACK STINNETT

(Third of Four Articles)

Washington—Despite its general public unpopularity, there is NO doubt about the effectiveness of the filibuster in shaping legislation.

It has been recognized as such for a century. As a matter of fact, as far back as 1853 there is a recorded use of the word as coming from a Dutch word meaning freerooter or buccaner. In its political sense in Congress, one worthy member whose opponents were using delaying tactics in blocking a vote on legislation, charged them with "filibustering against the United States."

However, the filibuster is like the atomic bomb. The threat of its devastating result is almost as effective as the use of the weapon itself.

Roland Young, in his book, "This Is Congress," records an instance in 1928 when a House-passed amendment to the Food, Drug and Cosmetic act, regarding whiskey, was thrown out in conference merely because the late Sen. Copeland of New York told the conferees that "some of the most able filibusters in the Senate were so opposed to it that we could not accept it."

This also is an example of where the filibuster (or threat of it) had direct bearing on House legislation. A filibuster itself is impossible in the House simply because debate there is limited.

Why, it may well be asked, do Senators so fear a filibuster, if it is recognized as a practical legislative weapon?

1—Because it does and even recently has upset the apple-cart of a legislative program which a majority of the Senators were eager to get action on.

The last great filibuster—the one on the anti-lynching bill in 1938—lasted 29 days. This meant that for 29 days, even though the Senate was in session, not one piece of important legislation could be considered.

In that instance, the anti-lynching bill proponents finally had to give up. The filibusters won. Why? Because they were blocking consideration of the then vitally important $250,000,000 emergency relief appropriation bill, as well as the government reorganization bill which the administration was eager to get passed.

2—There is the secondary reason that frequent use, or misuse, of the filibuster might lead to further curb on unlimited debate in the Senate.

The Man Who Talks Like A Bear

REC-MANNING

While numerous senators might be mad as hops at the southern senators for launching a filibuster against Sen. Dennis Chavez's bill for establishing a statutory Fair Employment Practice Commission at a time when Congress has been criticized for delaying tactics, there are very few who would like to see anything done about it.

Why? Because they realize that if the tables were turned, that is if they were in a minority on some proposed bill vitally important to their state or section, further limitations on debate would make them powerless to do anything about it.

The World Today

to power then will have a far better chance to achieve great things. That period, too, is likely to determine the political complexion of France for a long time to come. The question is how far to the left the country will swing. The situation now is too confused to make speculation profitable on this score.

The Nation . . .

If steel prices go up, that means the cost of steel will be higher for great many industries which use steel. They'll be a cinch then to demand higher prices for themselves.

If U. S. Steel gets a big increase other industries which don't use steel at all can come in and demand higher prices, too, on the grounds that what's fair for U. S. Steel should be fair for them.

Pretty soon the price rise—or the demand for a price rise—might be general and that would cause in the government's whole effort to prevent inflation by keeping the prices down.

A general price rise means inflation. It means your dollar won't be worth what its worth now. It won't buy as much.

It's this caving in of the price line when OPA's Bowles fears and what he has been fighting against.

Sir Francis Drake claimed California for England in 1579.

Supreme Court Refuses To Save Enemy General From Gallows

Washington, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The Supreme Court refused today to save Japanese General Yamashita from death on the gallows.

Chief Justice Stone delivered the Supreme Court's 6-3 decision. Justice Jackson, now acting as chief U. S. prosecutor in the War Trials in Europe, had not participated in Yamashita's case. Justices Murphy and Rutledge dissented. The court overruled Yamashita on all points. Stone's 7,000 word opinion declared: "It appears that the order convening the commission (of five generals who tried Yamashita) was a lawful order, that the commission was lawfully constituted, that petitioner (Yamashita) was charged with violation of the law of war and that the commission had authority to proceed with the trial, and in doing so did not violate any military, statutory or constitutional command."

Yamashita was convicted by the American Military Commission in Manila of condoning uncounted atrocities by his invading troops in the Philippines. The enemy general was the first Pacific war leader to be tried as a war criminal. In appealing to the Supreme Court he contended that the military commission did not have authority to try him.

(Continued From Page Four) of all the nine days. Early that morning, the Argentina collided with a full gale. The wind at times reached a velocity of 70 miles an hour. It moaned and cried in the rigging, and whipped rain and hail across the deck so fast that it took the paint off the masts. It was the worst storm, officers said, of a winter that has already broken bad-weather records in the use of North Atlantic. There were a number of minor accidents when women fell down the staircases, and a small child was thrown from his crib. The storm lasted nearly two days, but even after it ended, the sea remained torn and ragged, and the wind strong. As a ship's officer said, the Argentina "didn't get a single break."

Bevin . . .

Friday's session of Police court was unusual, Judge Roberts said, when he looked over the docket and found only three drunks confronting him. There were 11 cases for failure to have city and state motor vehicle license tags. The following cases were disposed of: No city license tag: Ralph Evans and John P. Steele, called and failed, capias issued; R. A. Smith, Edward Brooks and Mrs. W. H. Phillips, prayer for judgment continued; D. T. Beaman, called and failed, capias issued; R. E. Vick, $5 on costs; Mrs. Martina Forrest, nol prossed. No state license tag: Arthur Moore and Tom Forrest, both nol prossed; E. R. Willis, called and failed, capias issued. No state or city license tag: George Streeter (colored), nol prossed. Speeding: Jacob Ed Tyler, $15; G. B. Register, $10. Drunks: Marvin Barrow and Thomas Smith, each paid $15; Ernest Martin, colored, $15. Assault: Shire Greene, colored, $75 in installments. Disorderly conduct and profane language: James H. Harris, James E. Brewer and Leonard M. Harris, each paid $20. Hit and run: Leon L. Cherry, found over to Superior Court, $1,000 bond. Violating general law: Inez B. Corey, nol prossed with leave. Transporting whiskey: Bernard Smith, colored, $100.
