Case Labor Bill Passed By House

Strong Coalition Of Republicans And Southern Democrats Had Clear-Cut Control Of Voting Hotly-Contested Bill, Passed By Vote Of 257 To 155, Now Goes To Senate

Washington, Feb. 7.—(AP)—The House today passed 257 to 155 the hotly-disputed Case bill to curb and seek settlements of labor strife.

Final action came on a roll call vote, sending the far-reaching strike control legislation to the Senate.

There, its foes predict it will meet tough sledding.

Just before the conclusive ballot, members shouted down a motion by Rep. Baldwin (R-NY) to send the bill back to the Labor Committee for further study.

The measure, by Rep. Case (R-SD), won tentative approval late yesterday by a 197 to 115 standing count.

But the clinching vote was delayed until today when Rep. Hoffman (R-Mich) insisted that the lengthy, much-amended bill be read to the House in its entirety.

The Case proposal, as it now stands, would:

- 1. Create a federal mediation board with authority to step into major labor disputes and forbid strikes or lockouts for 30 days while it sought to solve them.
2. Permit wide use of court injunctions in enforcing the cooling off period, preventing violence or swarming movement of perishable goods.
3. Provide for civil suits against either labor or management for breaking contracts.
4. Outlaw violence in picketing by either side. (Violators would be subject to court injunctions and to loss of their bargaining powers).
5. Ban boycotts used to force disputants to come to terms. Sponsors said this would prevent many jurisdictional controversies. (Violators would face loss of their bargaining powers).
6. Deny employ status to unions of supervisory workers, unless they do manual productive labor.
Case's backers—a powerful coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats—were clearly in control of the voting on more than a score of suggested modifications and substitutes.

Pilot Is Chosen For Bombing Tests

Washington, Feb. 7.—(AP)—The man who dropped the first atomic bomb on Hiroshima—Major Thomas Ferber of Mocksville, N. C.—will play the same role in the navy's test bombing of a fleet of warships next May.

Armed sources here disclosed that Major Ferber is a member of the 509th Composite Bomb Group which is being specially trained at Roswell Field, N. M., for the tests, to take place at Bikini Atoll in the Pacific.

Also in the group is Capt. Kermit Beahan, Houston, Texas, who was bombardier on the plane that dropped the second atomic bomb used against Japan, the one that devastated Nagasaki.

The bomb group will use a B-29 Superfortress in the Bikini tests similar to the planes used in the Hiroshima and Nagasaki bombings

BOARD VOTES ON SALARIES FOR TEACHERS

State Board Of Education Changes Ruling Affecting Teachers In Rural Schools

Raleigh, Feb. 7.—(AP)—A resolution authorizing superintendents of local school units to advance salaries to teachers in schools which have closed because of impassable roads was adopted today by the State Board of Education.

The resolution authorizes the superintendents to advance salaries to teachers who have taught as long as five days in a salary month and lost 10 days or more because of closed schools. It also specifies that, the lost teaching time must be made up by the teachers.

It was adopted after Mrs. Annie Laurie McDonald of Hickory, president of the N. C. Education Association, had told the board that a survey by NCEA revealed that 4,044 public school teachers had lost 11 or more teaching days as the result of schools being closed because of bad roads.

She said teachers in one rural school in Catawba County have not received a pay check since November 16. Some teachers have had only three paydays since the schools closed last spring, Mrs. McDonald reported. Salaries have been delayed because teachers have been required to teach 20 days a month (Continued on Page Five)

Fireman Injured In A Rocky Mount Fire

Rocky Mount, Feb. 7.—(AP)—One local fireman was hurt and several hundred dollars worth of equipment damaged today when fire broke out shortly after noon at the Dixie Feed and Provision Company here.

Benjamin Proctor, fireman, suffered a broken ankle and severe body bruises when, while standing on a ladder outside a second story window, his trousers caught fire causing him to fall to the pavement below.

Roy Fulcher, proprietor of the store, said that 200 chickens suffocated from smoke and that an unestimated amount of livestock feed bags articles and wire netting were destroyed. He said the loss was covered by insurance.

Marriage Ceremony Held In A Hospital

Charleston, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Winfred Johanna Witt and Machinists' Mate First Class Jerome Elwood Cammer were hurriedly married at the naval hospital here this morning, a day ahead of the church ceremony they had planned.

Both were injured in a train-autobile collision last night near the navy yard and in view of the seriousness of the young woman's condition, a Lutheran minister was summoned to the hospital to perform the marriage ceremony today. Immediately after the ceremony the bride was rushed to the operating room.

The WORLD TODAY

An Analysis Of The News

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

AP World Traveler Brussels, Feb. 7.—This is a very personal column, but I want you to meet my old friend Ernest Marchal, one of Belgium's heroes, who magnificently symbolizes the Allied spirit of freedom.

I regard Marchal with deepest affection, for at the end of World War One he rescued me here in Brussels from what, to put it mildly, was a most trying predicament.

I hadn't seen him since that time—28 long years—but one of the first things Mrs. Mack and I did on arriving in the capital was to call on Marchal and his wife and daughter in their home.

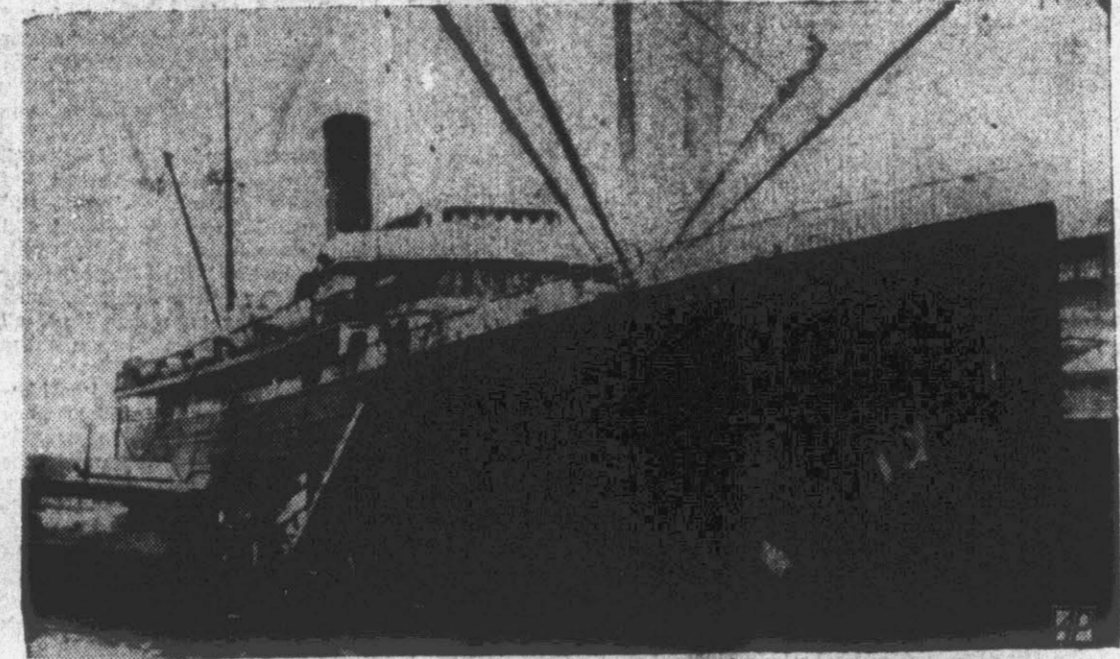

Back in the last conflict Marchal many times dared death to cross the German lines into France from occupied Belgium in missions for his government, in which he was a cabinet minister. A citation stenciled by the late King Albert himself declared in detail Marchal's vast heroism, and he wears a high decoration for his service to king and country.

In the present war Marchal has had a son serving as a major in the British Royal Air Force. Another lies in a Czechoslovakian grave where the Germans buried him after they had killed him by starvation and other inhuman treatment.

The first time I saw Marchal was when the Armistice of World War One was just beginning to be carried out in detail. I had motored into Brussels with two British officers before the period for the evacuation of that city had arrived, and under the armistice terms the Germans were entitled to open fire on such unofficial expeditions.

To reach the capital we had motored over miles along roads lined with cheering Belgians who heaped our car with flowers, because ours were the first Allied uniforms they had seen.

This Ship Aground On Alaska Rocks

The liner Yukon (above) ran aground on rocks near Ketchikan, Alaska, with 496 persons aboard. The vessel broke in two under a terrific buffeting by gales and the sea. Rescuers at first thought all passengers were saved, but last night a re-check showed thirty-two persons unaccounted for. The Yukon, shown tied up at a pier, was bound from Seward, Alaska, to Seattle, Wash. (AP Wirephoto.)

Davenport Employees On Stand With Testimony

Witness Asserts That The "Big Apple's" Rocky Mount Office Accepted Loans After Heads Of Firm Were Arrested

A former employee of the "Big Apple" loans brokerage business testified in Superior Court here today that the Rocky Mount branch of the business continued to accept loans from investors after the heads of the business had been arrested.

The witness, Miss Pauline Harrelson, former bookkeeper in the Rocky Mount branch of the "Big Apple," said she did not receive orders to discontinue accepting loans and that she continued to write Roderick Davenport's checks as security for the loans. The blank checks had been signed in advance by Davenport or an authorized associate, she said.

A star witness in the State's efforts to convict Davenport and five associates on charges of conspiracy to defraud and fraud by false pretense, Miss Harrelson occupied the stand during a full morning session as the trial entered its fourth day.

The trial, which has been progressing slowly, developed into a full tug-of-war with the introduction by the State of a number of records said to have been used in the Rocky Mount office of the "Big Apple."

In an effort to speed the trial along, Judge J. Paul Frizzelle of Snow Hill ordered the court reporter to enter a defense exception in to the records after each question asked of a State's witness by the prosecution. He said he would instruct the reporter, Walker Y. Worth of Raleigh, to enter his remarks when and if he sustained one of the defense's exceptions.

The defense had been excepting after almost every question put by the prosecution. Miss Harrelson, who said she kept books in the Rocky Mount branch for several months during the summer of 1944, testified that during the time she was employed by Davenport the office received deposits totaling $22,795 from investors, who were promised—and paid, in some instances—five per cent interest per week on their investments. Meat Rationing May Be Returned In Effort To Save Millions From Death By Starvation

Washington, Feb. 7.—(AP)—President Truman said today he would call for a return to meat rationing if it becomes necessary to prevent 10 to 15 million people from starving to death.

The President told his news conference that he thought it would not be necessary to ration meat, that he hoped not.

If, however, it becomes necessary to keep 10,000,000 to 15,000,000 people abroad from starving, he continued, he thought the country ought to do it.

He explained that he was vitally concerned with the prospect of widespread starvation in war-torn countries, accentuated by losses of wheat crops in some countries and other grains elsewhere.

He hopes, he said, that his wheat conservation order yesterday may make it possible to ship 6,000,000 tons of wheat abroad during the first six months of this year.

Friends and allies during the war, he said, are not to blame for their desperate situation. It would be un-American, he added, to permit people in enemy countries to starve.

Canada, Australia and other nations with food surpluses are being asked to cooperate, he said, adding he was confident that the American people will cooperate fully by buying less.

President Truman, in a statement declaring the world faces a food crisis which may be "the worst in modern times," yesterday ordered government agencies to draft emergency rules to cut consumption of wheat at home so that "mass starvation" abroad may be averted.

NAVY REVEALS BLUEPRINT OF FUTURE FLEET

Combat Groups Assigned To Atlantic And Pacific Oceans; Airpower Is New Key Weapon

Washington, Feb. 7.—(AP)—The navy revealed today its postwar blueprint for the nation's first line of defense—a fleet of 319 fighting ships fit "for instant action" and ready to launch a sky armada of 3,627 planes.

The biggest force would be allocated to the Pacific where a combat force of 176 warships is planned. The Atlantic detachment would muster 143 men-of-war.

Behind these main operating forces would be two formidable reserve fleets in stand-by condition, ready to be mobilized swiftly should changing world conditions necessitate reinforcements.

The Pacific and Atlantic fleets will be subdivided into half a dozen or more units, active, ready reserve, laid-up fleets, each with numerical designations.

The program, including the selection of specific ships for active duty, was outlined in the annual report of Secretary of the Navy Forrestal to President Truman. Its effective date was set for completion of deactivation next fall.

Here are the navy plans for the postwar fleets:

Pacific: Nine carriers; nine escort carriers; two 45,000 ton battleships; 20 cruisers; 81 destroyers; 16 destroyer escorts; 39 submarines. In ready reserve: Two carriers; three 35,000 ton battleships; eight cruisers; 18 destroyers.

Atlantic: Four carriers; four escort carriers; two 45,000 ton battleships; eight cruisers; 54 destroyers; 20 destroyer escorts; 51 submarines. In ready reserve: Three carriers; three 35,000 ton battleships; 10 cruisers; 22 destroyers; four destroyer escorts.

The carrier force in the two fleets include three of the new, giant 45,000 tonners. Assigned to the Pacific is the Coral Sea; to the Atlantic, the Midway and the Franklin D. Roosevelt.

TODAY IN CONGRESS

A Review Of Your Government In Action

Washington, Feb. 7.—(AP)—The house passed today a bill with broad powers to curb strikes and sent it to an uncertain fate in the senate.

Opponents predicted a senate veto—or a presidential veto—would kill the measure eventually.

The bill would: Set up a federal mediation board to handle labor disputes, ban strikes or lockouts for 30 days, forbid boycotts and violence in picketing, allow civil suits against violators of labor-management contracts.

President Truman had proposed a fact-finding method for checking strikes, patterned on the railway labor act. Hartin H. Miller, spokesman for the brotherhood of railway trainmen, told senate labor committee today the organization's experience with the act had been "generally bad."

Ukraine Bring Charges Against United Kingdom

Yamashita To Hang; Declares MacArthur

Japanese General Must Hang Like A Common Criminal, On Gallows Of City His Soldiers Destroyed

By MURLIN SPENCER Tokyo, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Lt. Gen. Omyuki Yamashita, his last hope for clemency denied by General MacArthur, must die secretly like a common criminal on the gallows in Manila—the city his trapped soldiers raped, pillaged and burned.

MacArthur, as final reviewing authority, today upheld the death sentence imposed on Yamashita by a military commission in Manila, and ordered that his one-time adversary meet his doom "stripped of uniform, decorations and other appurtenances signifying membership in the military profession."

Fate of the calm, shaven-headed Japanese general was left in MacArthur's hands after the Philippines Supreme Court refused to transfer the case from military to civil jurisdiction, and the U. S. Supreme Court last Monday upheld the death sentence.

MacArthur, in final review of the case against the foe who ignominiously failed to prevent his triumphant return to the Philippines, delivered this scathing denunciation of Yamashita: "It is not easy for me to pass judgment upon a defeated adversary in a major campaign. I have reviewed the proceedings in vain search for some mitigating circumstances on his behalf. I can find none.

"Rarely has so cruel and wanton a record been spread to the public gaze. "This officer x x x has failed his duty to his troops, to his country, to his enemy and to mankind. He has failed utterly his soldier's faith. The transgression x x x are a stain upon civilization and constitute a memory of shame and dishonor that can never be forgotten."

In commenting on the legal issues involved in Yamashita's trial, MacArthur said, "No one or retroactive principles of law, either national or international, are involved. The case is founded upon basic fundamentals and practice as immutable and as standardized as the most matured and irrefragable of social codes.

"The proceedings were guided by the primary rational of all judicial purpose—to ascertain the full truth unshackled by artificialities of narrow method or technical arbitrariness. The results are beyond challenge."

N. Y. C. FACES AN EMERGENCY

Drastic Fuel Rationing Enforced; Schools To Be Closed

New York, Feb. 7.—(AP)—A wartime "brownout" and a drastic system of fuel rationing went into full effect in New York today in a state of emergency proclaimed by Mayor William O'Dwyer after striking tugmen voted against returning to work despite federal seizure of the tugboat industry.

Meanwhile, representatives of the union, employees and the city announced early today after an all-night meeting that they had reached a proposal for settlement of the dispute which would be submitted to a referendum meeting of the union tomorrow.

Details of the proposals were not disclosed. O'Dwyer, declaring the strike had cut the city off from 5 per cent of its coal supply and 85 per cent of its fuel oil supply, also ordered all schools closed tomorrow and held in readiness for possible use as hospitals for pneumonia cases resulting from lack of heat. The schools will be closed for at least five days.

The new measures, which also turned off all electric outdoor display advertising and ended heating of transportation systems, were even more stringent than the requirements set for the city during the war.

Meanwhile, the Office of Defense Transportation, which seized the 91 tugboat companies operating in New York harbor and contiguous waters early yesterday, ordered 45 Army and Navy tugs to begin moving fuel supplies into the city today.

Governor Trying To Acquire Camp

Washington, Feb. 7.—(AP)—North Carolina Governor R. Gregg Cherry, here yesterday on several business matters, said that the War Department plans to declare Camp Butler, N. C., surplus on March 31, but may keep the camp as a peacetime base.

Cherry said the State will continue its efforts to acquire the 38,000-acre Butler property for use as a state hospital.

Accompanied here by Rep. John W. Umstead of Chapel Hill and Dr. D. S. Young, head of the State Hospital Board of Control, Cherry talked with the State's congressional delegation about obtaining the camp for use as a mental hospital. He said that hundreds of mental patients are now kept in jail for lack of hospitalization.

Cherry also talked with War Assets Corporation officials in an effort to speed delivery of road machinery the State bought at Granite City, Ill.

The governor asked federal officials to expedite procedure to enable North Carolina to secure 150 trailers from Camp Lejeune for use as housing for veterans attending N. C. State College.

Moscow Satellite Charges British Troops Were Used "To Suppress A People's Movement In Indonesia;" Greek Dispute Passes With Both Sides Yielding Issues

London, Feb. 7.—(AP)—The Ukraine told the United Nations Security Council tonight that British troops had been used deliberately to suppress a people's movement in Indonesia, and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin retorted "lie."

Foreign Commissioner Dimitri Mamulsky of the Ukraine, claiming the situation in Indonesia threatened international peace, asked the Security Council to send a special commission for "on-the-spot" investigation and to take necessary measure to establish peace. He said the Ukraine does not ask withdrawal of British troops from Indonesia.

Mamulsky said the "essence of the Ukrainian declaration on Indonesia is that it considers it inadmissible that British troops should be used for suppression of the national movement of the Indonesian people."

The 11-nation council was called into session at 5 p. m. (12 noon EST) and the first item on the agenda was the Ukrainian complaint, which followed closely the wording of the Soviet Union's complaint on the Greek situation.

In the background of the Indonesian controversy, however, was the Soviet Union's policy calling for the independence of colonial peoples. Opponents of British action in Java have charged that British forces were being used to keep the Indonesians under Dutch domination.

The British, on the other hand, have insisted that their forces were in Indonesia on the orders of the Allied combined chiefs of staff and that their only purpose was to preserve order while Japanese troops were removed and Allied internees and prisoners of war were rescued.

The British case had the backing of the Netherlands government. The unrecognized Indonesian government also has declared that British troops should remain in Java until all Japanese troops are disarmed and removed.

Despite the difficulties of the Indonesian case, the council faced it with one distinct advantage, and that was the experience they had gained in settling the Greek dispute without splitting the unity of the big powers.

The Russians yielded on every major charge against Britain as the council resolved the Greek crisis last night. Andrei Vishinsky, Soviet Vice Commissar of Foreign Affairs, (Continued on Page Two)

The NATION TODAY

By James Marlow

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Do the men who enlist or are drafted now receive the same government benefits as war veterans?

The quick answer is "Yes" but it needs explaining. The explanation here is from the veterans administration (VA) which handles the benefits.

Take the drafters first. Those drafted now are 18 months through 25 years of age. The draft law, unless Congress extends it, ends on May 16.

Veterans benefits are for those in service between September 16, 1940, and the official end of the war. It hasn't ended officially yet. To get these benefits a veteran must fulfill certain requirements, such as a minimum of service, usually at least 90 days.

Take an example: Jones is drafted May 14, one day before the draft law ends. And the war happens to be ended officially May 17. Having then been in service only three days, can Jones claim the same kind of benefits as veterans of the war, when it was a shooting war? Yes. To this extent.

If he's in service only one day before the war officially ends, he gets the benefit of the GI Bill of Rights—such as loans and education—provided he serves the required length of time before his discharge, is discharged under the right conditions, and so on.

For example: To get one year's education at government expense he must have served at least 90 days.

If Jones was drafted May 14, the war ended May 17, and he was discharged other than dishonorably August 14—or 90 days after being drafted—he'd get one year's education.

If he was disabled between the time he was drafted and the official end of the war, he'd get the full wartime pension.

But—if he was drafted before the war ended and was disabled after the war ended, he'd get only the peacetime pension for disabled servicemen, which is only 75 per cent of the wartime pension.

This story is meant only as an outline of the VA interpretation of the law. If you have specific questions affecting you, ask the VA. Now take those who enlist. The law says anyone who enlists or reenlists before October 6, 1946, gets the benefits of the GI Bill of Rights no matter when the war ends. Take an example: Tom Smith enlists on October 3 and the war ends officially October 7. His enlistment is—say—for three years.

Even though the war ended officially October 7, two days after his enlistment, so far as Smith's benefits are concerned the war for him (Continued on page four)

Forty Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
February 7, 1906

The End of the Century Club was charmingly entertained on Tuesday afternoon by Mrs. R. W. King at her home on Dickinson avenue.

A unique feature of Mrs. King's entertainment was an auction of articles concealed in oddly shaped packages to be purchased with beans, fifty of which were given to each guest. The bidding was fast and furious while the packages lasted. Mrs. B. W. Massey was the able auctioneer. Delightful refreshments were served.

Mrs. Uzzle Did Fine Work Here

By CHESTER WALSH

Mrs. James T. Uzzle, who recently resigned as executive secretary for the Greenville Girl Scouts, is now making her home at Wilson Mills in Johnston County, and is teaching school in Smithfield. Mrs. Uzzle, who had done a grand job for the Girl Scouts here, resigned shortly after her husband, former Boy Scout executive here, received an honorable discharge from the army. He was in the armed service about two years and was stationed in Porto Rico.

Mr. Uzzle after a brief vacation, accepted the post of executive for the Boy Scouts of Salisbury, N. C. He began his work there about a month ago. Salisbury has a housing problem and the former Greenville scout executive has not found a house for his family. Mrs. Uzzle and the children are staying with Mr. Uzzle's people at Wilson's Mills.

Mrs. Uzzle's work as executive secretary for Girl Scouts here was outstanding and the work among young girls progressed to a gratifying extent. There was a marked increase in troop memberships and troop leaders and Mrs. Uzzle maintained a harmonious spirit of cooperation between the troops and the Girl Scout Council. She will be missed at Eighth Street Christian Church, where she took an active part in church activities. Incidentally, Mrs. Uzzle is a daughter of Herbert Stuckey, regional executive for Boy Scouts in Atlanta, Ga., who was one of the first Boy Scout executives in Greenville.

Greenville USES Office Aiding GI's

More than 3,818 contacts were made last month by the Greenville office of the U. S. Employment Service, it was announced by Mrs. J. B. Soltman, manager.

Of this number 2,443 were with veterans, and 1,375 were non-veterans. The total number of contacts was 1,370 more than made during December.

The activities of the veterans employment service section locally reflected the increasing numbers of returning servicemen.

During January six additional local employers were approved for on-the-job training.

Mrs. Soltman urges all employers to list actual job openings with the office since the number of returning veterans is far ahead of the job openings.

Devin gave ground, too, in not pressing for formal council action to exonerate Britain of the charge. In earlier debate he had demanded a flat "yes or no" verdict.

Under a compromise worked out by U. S. council member Edward R. Sietinus, Jr., in secret negotiations, the case was closed by a simple statement by Chairman N. J. O. Makin of Australia. The statement merely said that the council took note of the charge and denial, and of declarations made by other members of the council, Makin said.

Homma also asked the high tribunal, by airmail, that he be taken out of the hands of the military and that the Supreme Court review a refusal by the Philippine Supreme Court to grant him a writ of habeas corpus.

The Fourth Mrs. Baker

By Marjorie Adams

Chapter 22
(Tuesday 1:30 a. m. to 3:15 a. m.)
Alma had escaped and Moore was gone! There must be some connection between those two unusual facts.

She gazed silently through the kitchen and opened the back door. A plain clothes man sat on a tilted chair. He got up almost instantly when he heard her but she was sure he had been dozing.

"What's the matter, lady?"
"My servant is gone and some one called to tell me that the woman in the hospital has escaped. She may come here."

"Listen, Mrs. Baker, you go tell the man at the front door to call headquarters. I'll stay at this door and listen if you need me but nobody's going to get me away from here." He was belligerent and at the same time apologetic.

"There's a phone in the kitchen. I'll call if you'll tell where I can get Inspector Venable."

He gave her a number and she went to the telephone and dialed. The inspector answered immediately, his voice anxious when he recognized who was speaking. She repeated what she had told the guard and answered brief questions.

"Where are you now?"
"In the kitchen."

"Have you talked to Horowitz, the man in the back hall?"
"Yes. He's standing in the door now."

"Put him on the phone, please."

She turned to the man and held out the receiver.

"He wants you."
Horowitz closed the door before he took the phone, holding it so he could keep an eye on Julia. He answered the voice on the wire in monosyllabic assents. When he hung up he said, "Show me your rooms. I gotta search them and you gotta stay in there with the doors locked. Them's orders."

He followed her into her bedroom, looked through the closets and the dressing room and bathroom. Going to the windows he closed and locked them. Julia saw him glance at her desk and pause. She did not dare snatch the paper lying there with her questions written on it. He moved on almost immediately, however, and dropped to the floor to look beneath the bed.

"No one in here, ma'am. O'yd better go to sleep and we'll take care of everything. Be sure you lock the door when I get out and don't open the windows. Strict orders."

Behind her locked doors Julia sat down again at her desk. She looked at the page she had written and wondered if the detective had read any of it. He had merely glanced at it. She started the second page.

6. Who killed Robey and why?
a. Moore because he was envious of him.

b. Alma because she thought he had ruined her career or because she had learned she was not legally married (?)

c. Grace because she thought she was still his heir or for some reason as Alma's second one.

d. Jerry because Robey had struck him and he thinks he is in love with me.

e. Frank because he got Robey's half of the show.

f. Doctor Wandell because he loves Alma and thought Robey had a sinister influence over her.

g. Virginia? Why?

h. Steinway? Why? Blackmail? She tapped her pen idly for a moment. It all looked like notes from a lecture in school. Then she added:

1. One of the above because Robey knew he or she murdered the woman in the red hat.

2. I, Julia, because I wanted to get away—because he left me his insurance—because I learned he had tricked me into marriage—because—

She stared at the last sentence and grew weak with apprehension. She tried to gain courage by reminding herself that only one of those damaging points was known to the police—the fact that Robey had left her some money.

Sounds came from the other rooms. More men had come in. Perhaps Venable was with them. In sudden panic she picked up the two sheets on which she had written and tore them into bits. Going into the bathroom she put the pieces down the drain. That is what I should have done with the scrap of certificate.

A knock on the door took her back to the bedroom on flying feet. "Who is it?" she asked, her ear pressed against the door.

"Inspector Venable."

She unlocked the door and he came in followed by Horowitz. His eyes were hard, his face set sternly.

"Why did Moore run away?" he shot at her without preliminary.

"I don't know. I didn't know he'd gone until Doctor Wandell called. Horowitz grunted and the Inspector turned a fierce glance on him.

"Did anything happen after I left?"

"We found the blue threads in the music closet and they must be from Alma's handkerchief."

"Find out who searched the drawing room and get him here—now," he commanded Horowitz who went out closing the door behind him.

"Now show me what you found." She took the bit of blue from a folded white handkerchief and told him about the discovery and what she and Moore had said. The Inspector looked at it and when he spoke the words came tightly as if it hurt him to speak.

"You are so clever, Mrs. Baker. How can you prove that you and your servant have not connived at a building false evidence—now that he has disappeared."

Chapter 23
(Tuesday 3:10 a. m. to 4:35 a. m.)

She felt the sting in her palm before she realized that she had struck him. The quick anger died out of her and she waited, astonished and dismayed at what she had done. But beneath the apprehension came a surge of satisfaction as if striking out had given her courage.

The Inspector reached a hand toward his reddening cheek unconsciously. His eyes were a blinding light. Almost instantly he changed, his hand dropping to his side and the muscles of his face relaxing.

"Your actions are more revealing than your words, Mrs. Baker." He took two long strides to the door and without turning, he ordered, "Lock your doors and stay here."

She turned the latch after him then sank into the chaise, her legs too weak to hold her. A small smile twitched at her lips and spread to her eyes. The Inspector's hasty retreat gave her a conqueror's sense of victory even though she knew how momentary it was.

At least she wouldn't be bothered for a time. Lying back she closed her eyes and tried to shut her ears to the commotion outside her room in order to ponder on the facts she knew.

Moore must have left soon after she had talked with him. How he had slipped out she did not know but the big question was why he had run the risk. He was either escaping himself or had gone to meet some one—perhaps to kill again! And that brought her right back to the question of whether Moore or some one else killed Robey. Her thoughts went round and round and finally she dropped to sleep from sheer exhaustion.

Pounding on the door and some one calling "Mrs. Baker" awakened her. The lights were still on and outside the open window the night was still dark. It was only four o'clock so she had barely slept. She stumbled to the door, drugged with sleep.

"Open it, please, Mrs. Baker," said Venable's voice.

She snapped the lock and he came in.

"Are you all right?"
"I must have gone to sleep."

"Miss Pratt is here and I thought you might be able to help her. I've sent for a doctor and nurse."

"Where is she?"
"I put her in the other bedroom."

She turned instantly to the door to Robey's dressing room, unlocked it and advanced to the bedroom. Alma was sitting on the long couch where Robey had often lain for his short naps before going to the evening performance. Her crisp hair was untidy and her round blue eyes held an unnatural stare. She wore a white uniform under a dark blue nurse's coat. There were soiled blue satin boudoir slippers on her feet but no stockings.

"Where's Robey?" she asked. Julia was startled but she patted the singer's shoulder. It was comforting to know the Inspector was standing in the shadows of the dressing room. The poor thing was insane, of course.

"Robey killed some one," Alma went on and the poignancy of her voice as well as the words sent a shiver through Julia. "I heard him but I won't tell."

"Let me help you with your coat and then you can lie down."

Alma sat docilely while the coat was removed and the damp, grass stained slippers taken off, then stretched out on the couch, a nicely obedient overgrown child. Julia brought a soft blanket from the closet and tucked it around her.

"Is that better?" She sat on the edge of the couch and held one hand in both of hers.

"Who are you?"
"I'm a friend of yours—Julia. I'm glad you came to see us."

"Where's Robey?"
"He'll be here" soothed Julia. She kept asking questions but did not seem to hear the answers. Julia decided to try some questions of her own.

"Did you hide in the closet when you ran away?"

A smile appeared on the pale pink lips. "I scared Robey. He was angry. Then he kissed me and we made up."

It was several moments before Julia decided she was probably going back to some episode in her married life in this same place.

"But he didn't find you the other night."

The smile faded and a worried expression shadowed the doll-like face. "Robey killed somebody because he didn't marry her."

Julia's heart stopped. She thought it would never start up again. She must say something for the Inspector's benefit but no words came. She managed to stifle a gasp. Somewhere in her shocked brain Alma carried the secret of Robey's death but now the things she talked about were in a jumbled puzzle—all too likely to be misconstrued by some one who had a pattern to make of all the events.

At last she managed, "I'll turn outside the open window the night out some of the lights so you can see still dark. It was only four o'clock so she had barely slept. She

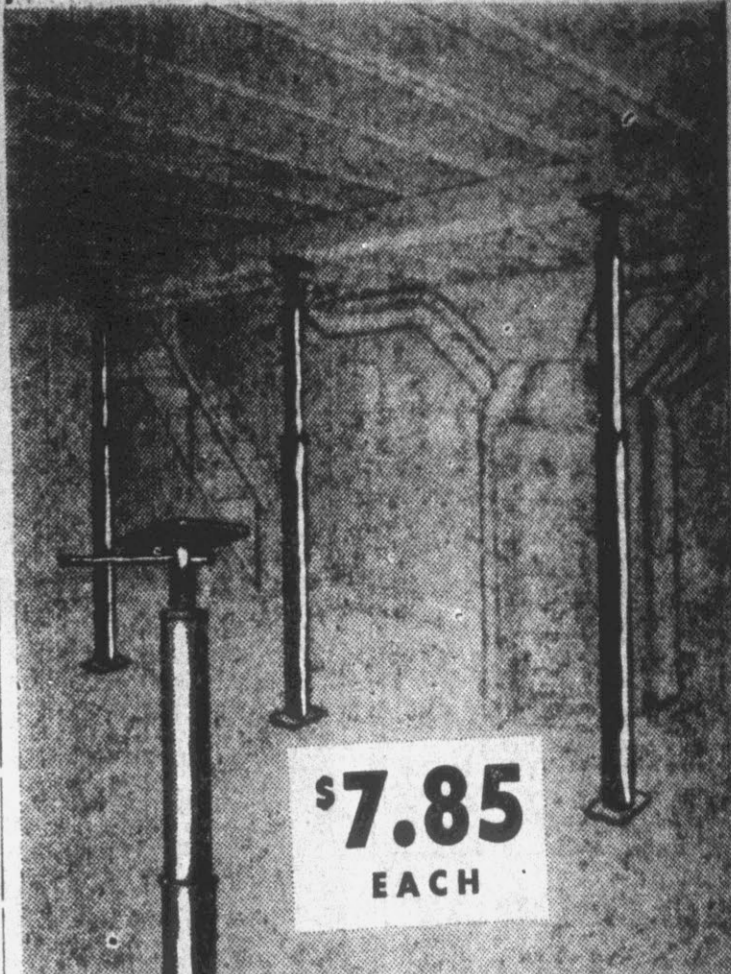

Alma did not answer and the Inspector came forward. "You had better go to your room. The doctor will be here presently and I can take care of her until then."

WILSON'S WEEKLY Bulletin

Get Best Flavor from Meat Dishes
What a treat it is these days to find U. S. Choice and Good quality meat more frequently. Have you forgotten how to cook some of these better cuts for greatest tenderness and best flavor? Just in case, today we review the latest method of preparing breaded veal cutlet to the king's liking.

Breaded Veal Cutlet... golden brown and taste tantalizing

Order 2 lbs. veal round steak, cut 3/4 to 1/2 inch thick. Sprinkle with 1 1/2 tsp. salt 1/4 tsp. pepper Roll in flour, dip in a mixture of 1 CLEAR BROOK EGG, beaten with 1 tbsp. water

Roll in fine bread crumbs and brown slowly on both sides in 1/4 cup ADVANCE SHORTENING Add 2 tbsp. hot water, cover tightly and continue cooking slowly about 20 minutes longer or until tender. Make a gravy of the drippings, adding WILSON'S B-V to taste. Serves 6.

May Prepare in Advance The veal cutlet may be breaded in the morning and stored in the refrigerator... convenient, and crumbs cling to the meat better. Veal steaks cut from shoulder and loin may also be breaded and braised (browned and cooked with moist heat) as described above or they may be braised without breading.

To Cut or Not to Cut Cutting the meat into pieces for serving makes turning slightly easier. The choice is up to you. Either way, veal cutlet combines well with mashed potatoes and gravy, green beans with cheese sauce, tossed vegetable salad and apricot Borden cream.

A few wedges of hard-cooked Clear Brook Eggs and strips of Certified American Cheese add interest and flavor to the vegetable salad.

Cheese Sauce a Triumph Making a rich, tasty, smooth cheese sauce is a real triumph... not that it is difficult to do but it does require care. Melt 2 tbsp. Clear Brook Butter or Certified Margarine, add 2 tbsp. flour and stir until well blended, using low heat. Stir in 1 cup milk, gradually, and when blended increase heat. Stir constantly until thickened and smooth. Remove from heat, add 1 cup grated Certified American Cheese (about 1/4 lb.) and stir vigorously until cheese is melted. Serve at once. Bits of pimiento or green pepper add color and extra flavor to cheese sauce. To serve, place cooked beans in a serving dish and pour sauce over them.

Sincerely, George Rector

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

RELIGION IS POWER

Henry Adams, one of America's greatest historians, was intensely interested in discovering the forces which lie behind historical movements. As he looked back over the stream of history, he tried to read its lessons and use them to discover a central force in history, if such a thing existed. What was it that made men strive to attain certain ends, to murder each other in war, to die for ideals, to create great works of art, and to perpetrate great crimes? If they were aiming for something, what was it?

He found an answer that satisfied him for one period of history at least, in the early Middle Ages. The force behind the development of that period was religion, the aspiration of men toward God. Under its stimulus they created the great cathedrals, and the no less monumental structures of medieval theology. But as suddenly as the force came, it departed.

Those of us who are Christians will agree with Adams' answer but not with his limitations or with his method of arriving at his answer. Adams might have saved himself years of futile mental effort if he could have had religious faith.

Our puny mental equipment is no match for the infinite but our religious faith is. What appeared darkly to Adams is crystal clear to the rest of us. Religion is and always has been the governing force of humanity.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By JACK STINNETT

(Second of Two Articles)
Washington — Charges ranging from bureaucratic demagoguery to picking the public pocket in the greatest land grab of modern times have been hurled by both sides in the controversy over whether the federal government or the individual states own title to the submerged lands in the three-mile zone of our seas.

As bitter as the fight is, it isn't out of proportion at all to the billion-dollar question which may be settled as result of hearings now coming before the Senate Judiciary Committee on legislation to abandon all claims to the lands to the states.

The Department of Justice, in its Supreme Court suit to obtain title to specific oil producing submerged lands along the coast of California, contends that title to the so-called three-mile zone has never been decided by the courts.

The fight of the states is spearheaded by California's Attorney General Robert W. Kenny, but others claim that far more than oil off Santa Barbara and Long Beach is involved.

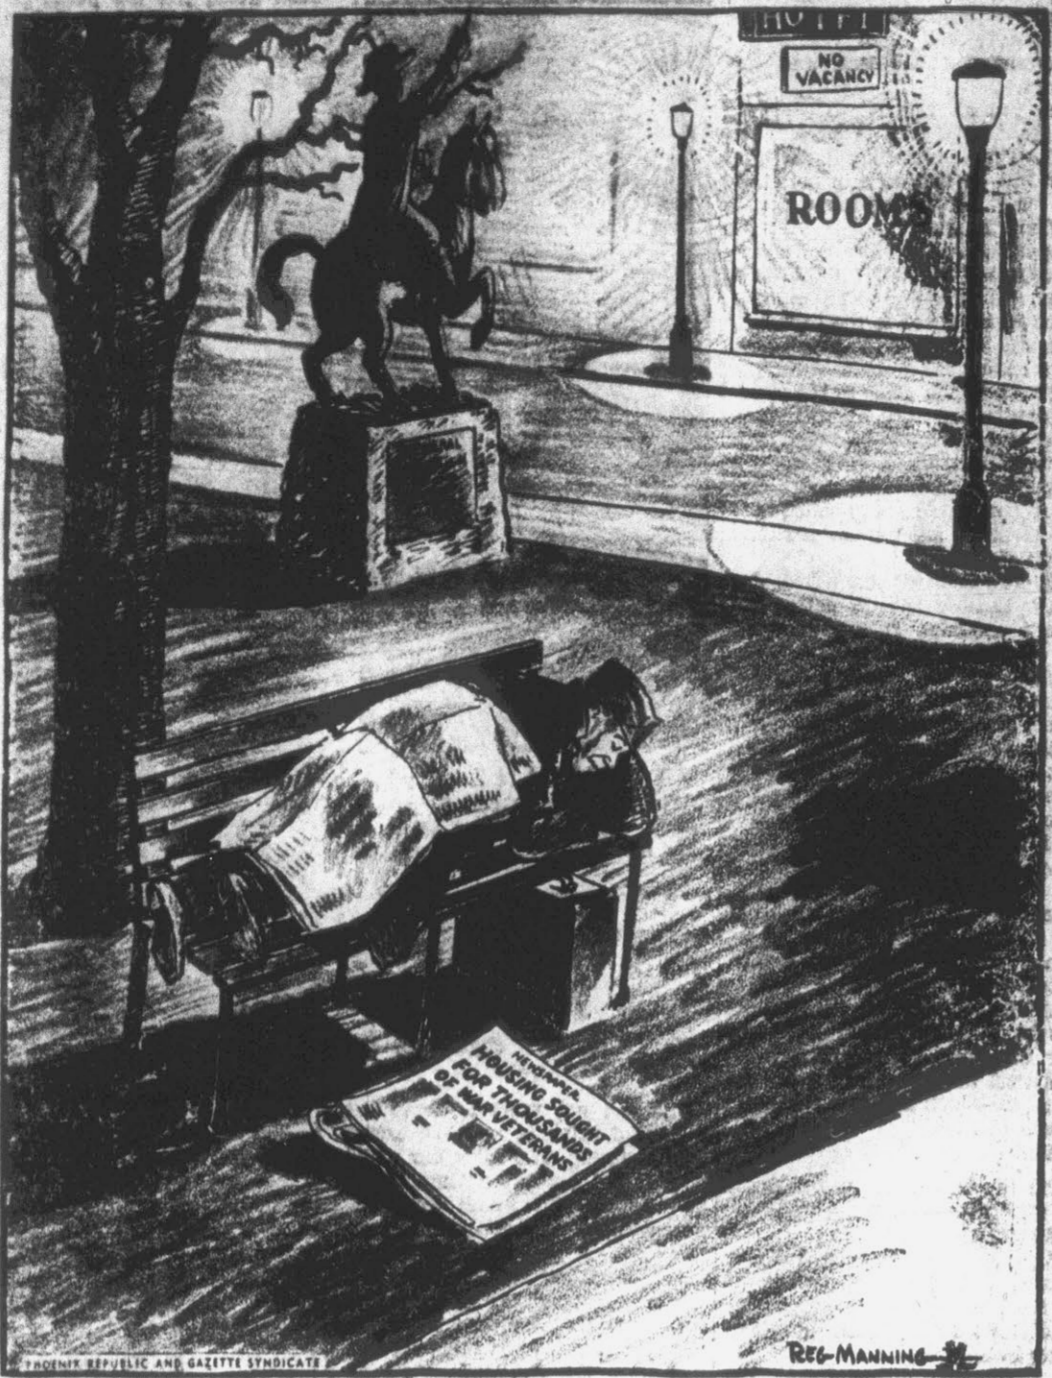

They argue that titles to the reclaimed areas of Back Bay Boston, the steel pier at Atlantic City, the oyster beds of the Atlantic and Gulf coasts, the reclaimed portions of Florida, the shrimp beds of Louisiana and the docks and harbors, or navigable rivers and lakes of almost every state in the union are involved.

On the one hand, it is charged that unscrupulous oil companies are behind the fight to protect titles to leases advantageously obtained from the states. Yet it is charged that equally unscrupulous promoters are trying to cloud title to the lands in the hope of obtaining development permits from the federal government. It is claimed that Secretary Harold L. Ickes is trying to put over a stupendous land grab for the Department of Interior.

Secretary Ickes says: "For eight years I have consistently and repeatedly taken the position that this issue of ownership was a legal one which should, like all similar ones, be resolved by the courts."

The Department of Justice feels that the question of ownership of these lands certainly is arguable by the courts. Although former Attorney General Biddle termed his original suit a "friendly" one, Attorney General Tom Clark has tied no such term to the one he has filed, making

TRUE TALE OF HESS UNFOLDS

British Present Hess' Role To Military Tribunal

Nuernberg Feb. 7.—(AP)—The British Government disclosed to the international military tribunal today that Rudolf Hess flew to Scotland in 1941 with proposals to unseat the Churchill government and make peace with a new cabinet which would assure the Nazis a free hand in Europe.

Hess, a scarecrow figure in a second-hand suit, clutched his hands on the prisoner's dock rail as a British army officer demanded his punishment as one of the 22 Nazi defendants here.

Opening the individual prosecution case against the former No. 3 Nazi, the British presented reports of interrogations of Hess that were recorded after he parachuted onto a farm near Glasgow, May 10, 1941.

In these reports Hess declared he had come to convince Britons that "Hitler would sincerely regret the collapse of the British Empire" and that they should make peace before it was too late.

He sought to show the British that "avaricious Americans" had evil designs on the empire and Canada would certainly be incorporated in the United States.

Captured minutes of a conversation between former Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop and Benito Mussolini in Rome three days after the flight said Hess had sent a farewell letter to Hitler and promising to "use Great Britain's Fascist circles to persuade the British to give in."

Ribbentrop told Mussolini, however, that Hitler became very angry and declared he "would have Hess shot immediately if he returned to Germany."

TRUMAN BACKS HIS NOMINEE

President Says He Is Convinced Pauley An Honest Man

Washington, Feb. 7.—(AP)—President Truman said flatly today he will not withdraw Edwin W.

Pauley's nomination as navy under secretary. The President said that Interior Secretary Harold L. Icket had not consulted him in advance concerning his testimony criticizing Pauley but that he did not believe this would change his relationship with Icket.

He told a news conference he was backing Mr. Pauley and believes he is an honest man and a very capable administrator who did a magnificent job as reparations administrator.

Icket can very well be mistaken as well as the rest of us, Mr. Truman added.

The interior secretary has told the Senate Naval Committee, which is considering Pauley's nomination, that Pauley had advised him he could raise $300,000 in Democratic campaign funds from California oil men if they got assurance that the government would not file a suit seeking title to tidelands oil reserves.

The State of California party to the suit. Both Biddle and Ickes have said that they feel Congress is encroaching upon judicial territory through the resolution, already passed by the House, and now on its last legislative lap as hearings open before the Senate committee. That resolution would quiet title to the lands, presumably giving them over to the states, lock, stock and barrels of oil, forever.

He found an answer that satisfied him for one period of history at least, in the early Middle Ages. The force behind the development of that period was religion, the aspiration of men toward God.

Those of us who are Christians will agree with Adams' answer but not with his limitations or with his method of arriving at his answer. Adams might have saved himself years of futile mental effort if he could have had religious faith.

Our puny mental equipment is no match for the infinite but our religious faith is. What appeared darkly to Adams is crystal clear to the rest of us. Religion is and always has been the governing force of humanity.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By JACK STINNETT

(Second of Two Articles)
Washington — Charges ranging from bureaucratic demagoguery to picking the public pocket in the greatest land grab of modern times have been hurled by both sides in the controversy over whether the federal government or the individual states own title to the submerged lands in the three-mile zone of our seas.

As bitter as the fight is, it isn't out of proportion at all to the billion-dollar question which may be settled as result of hearings now coming before the Senate Judiciary Committee on legislation to abandon all claims to the lands to the states.

The Department of Justice, in its Supreme Court suit to obtain title to specific oil producing submerged lands along the coast of California, contends that title to the so-called three-mile zone has never been decided by the courts.

The fight of the states is spearheaded by California's Attorney General Robert W. Kenny, but others claim that far more than oil off Santa Barbara and Long Beach is involved.

They argue that titles to the reclaimed areas of Back Bay Boston, the steel pier at Atlantic City, the oyster beds of the Atlantic and Gulf coasts, the reclaimed portions of Florida, the shrimp beds of Louisiana and the docks and harbors, or navigable rivers and lakes of almost every state in the union are involved.

On the one hand, it is charged that unscrupulous oil companies are behind the fight to protect titles to leases advantageously obtained from the states. Yet it is charged that equally unscrupulous promoters are trying to cloud title to the lands in the hope of obtaining development permits from the federal government. It is claimed that Secretary Harold L. Ickes is trying to put over a stupendous land grab for the Department of Interior.

Secretary Ickes says: "For eight years I have consistently and repeatedly taken the position that this issue of ownership was a legal one which should, like all similar ones, be resolved by the courts."

The Department of Justice feels that the question of ownership of these lands certainly is arguable by the courts. Although former Attorney General Biddle termed his original suit a "friendly" one, Attorney General Tom Clark has tied no such term to the one he has filed, making of organized labor—fought the plan bitterly. They declared it would strip workers of their rights and promote industrial discord.

But when the test votes came, about all they accomplished was slight modification of the provisions applying to court injunctions.

Davenport...

the same period the office loaned a total of $7,261.60 to borrowers, who were obligated to pay back 10 percent interest per week.

Telling of the loans business, she said the office made one loan of $100 and another of $75 while she was bookkeeper. The other loans never exceeded $25 and averaged only about $5 to $10.

When a loan was made to a borrower, she said, the individual was required to give his check for the amount of the loan and would be given cash in return. The check was the only security the brokerage accepted.

Miss Harrelson testified yesterday afternoon that she made two sets of books for the office under instructions from Davenport, through an associate, Wilson Boyles of Winston-Salem. One set, she said, carried the correct amount of money taken in and loaned out by the office, and the other carried incorrect but seemingly accurate figures.

The correct set was kept in the rear office, while the incorrect set was kept in the front office.

The two sets of books were made, she said, after the State Bureau of Investigation began its probe of "Big Apple" operations.

Miss Edna Hughes, who was the bookkeeper for the firm's branch here, testified yesterday that she also received orders from Davenport to alter the office books. This she did, she testified, making one set of correct figures and another set of incorrect figures along the same lines that were followed in Rocky Mount.

Miss Hughes said she first was employed by Davenport in Kingston, and later was transferred here when Davenport said he needed a bookkeeper.

Another star witness, J. D. Alford of Kenly, who was manager of the Rocky Mount branch, gave damaging testimony against Davenport yesterday. He said he received the order to falsify the books in his office from Wilson Boyles, who at the time was manager of the Kingston office. Boyles, Alford said, told him the orders were from Davenport.

J. Faison Thompson, Davenport's defense lawyer, was involved in the case through Alford's testimony. The Rocky Mount manager said he was told by Davenport that "in case of trouble, and you can't find me just get in touch with Mr. Thompson at Goldsboro. He'll tell you what to do."

Alford said he visited Thompson in Goldsboro three days before Davenport was arrested and after an SBI agent had paid the Rocky Mount store a visit. Alford said Thompson told him to keep the store open "so that produce I had there would not spoil."

The witness said Thompson had charged him $10 for giving him the advice.

Miss Harrelson, who spent two hours under cross-examination by Davenport's attorneys, said a plentiful supply of blank checks signed by Davenport or his authorized agent were kept in the office at all times. These were to be used in giving security for loans received from investors. She also said that while she was bookkeeper she forwarded about $8,000 to Davenport at New Bern.

On re-direct examination, she said the records introduced in court here were the correct ones, and that the false set of books were burned in a trash bin in back of the store after the SBI investigation was made.

On cross-examination by Charles L. Abernethy, Jr., of New Bern, Boyles attorney, Miss Harrelson said that when Boyles told her to change the books, she "presumed" Boyles was carrying out Davenport's orders, and that the orders were not his (Boyles') own.

Before the noon recess, the State placed two more witnesses on the stand. They were S. B. Farmer and T. J. Heath of near New Bern. Farmer said he invested $1,000, and never got it back, and Heath said he put in $500 on Davenport's advice. He said Davenport told him his money was safe.

World Facing...

The presidential action was made necessary largely by the fact that Americans—and American livestock—have eaten more wheat since last harvest than the government had planned. This fact did not become known until recently, however, when a government survey indicated stocks to be 61 million bushels below what they should have been.

Now it is necessary for Americans to make up as much of this 61-million bushel deficit as possible—by reducing consumption—if the country is to come anywhere near fulfilling its promises to hungry people abroad.

Coughs That Cause Restless Sleepless Nights

Resulting from Colds

But adults can't expect real results from the same sweet syrupy concoction that you'd give to a child. When you want to throw out a bothersome cough from a cold you've just got to have a real cough medicine; then you should ask your druggist for a bottle of good old Bron-chu-line Emulsion. Bron-chu-line isn't a cheap cough syrup mind you, for first-raters are never cheap. But if you want relief and are willing to pay a little more for real results, get a bottle today and notice how the first dose takes right hold and gives you real relief from the coughing and soreness.

Don't ignore a cough—get relief as quick as you can. Ask any progressive druggist for a 45 cent bottle of Bron-chu-line Emulsion and keep this in mind—if not joyfully satisfied—money back.

Washington, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Congressional investigators turned to naval Capt. A. D. Kramer today to learn whether he ever approached Adm. William F. Halsey about a campaign to vindicate Adm. Husband E. Kimmel.

The senate-house committee investigating the 1941 disaster at Kimmel's Pearl Harbor base already has heard that Kramer did not answer a secret-code suggestion from a fellow officer that he try to line up Halsey in the cause.

That suggestion came from Capt.

Phantoms To Play Washington High Sports

By DAVE CLARK
The Washington High School Pam Pack plays host to the Green Phantoms in Washington tomorrow night in a conference game renewing one of the strongest high school sports rivalries in the state.

The last time the two teams met was back in 1943 when the Phantoms won a decision over the strong Pam Pack team of that year. Due to war time restrictions and other difficulties, the teams haven't met since then, however, and renewal of the series should bring some exciting contests.

The Pam Pack, according to reports, isn't as strong this year as it has been in past years, but they should give the Greenies a good game.

Kinston beat the Pam Pack last week by about 10 points, but as has been proven many times on the basketball courts of the nation, scores mean very little in determining the way a game will go.

Stokes Teams Split Games With Belvoir

Stokes, Feb. 6.—Coming back from a 20-25 defeat which Bethel caregivers handed them Monday night, the Stokes boys pulled another one out of the fire by defeating the Belvoir boys 36-32 in a see-saw battle. Turning on the power in last few minutes the boys took the lead and went on to win. At the end of the first quarter the score was 14-14, half 19-19 and third quarter 24-23. The Stokes girls lost by a 21-17 count.

Perkins took scoring honors by tossing in 20 for the winners, and Walright tossed in 16 for the losers. The Stokes teams will play Winterville Friday night at Winterville.

Ten Steps to Happy Marriage

YOU'RE IN LOVE... But that's only the start, says Public Affairs Committee in pamphlet on happy marriages.

YOU'RE PARTNERS NOW... Remember "we" comes before "you" or "me." Common interests help.

NO, NO! Settle the question of who holds the purse strings in the beginning and avoid future arguments.

DON'T RUN HOME TO MAMA... Thrash it out yourselves and learn to quarrel constructively, if you quarrel.

BUT MY IN-LAWS!!! Don't carry a chip on your shoulder. Often your in-laws can be a real help to you both.

TIME OUT... For playing together. Mutual hobbies and recreation make happy marriages, and can be built up.

RECESS... To do some things by yourself. In every marriage a little privacy is necessary for harmony.

IF SHE WORKS... Then he'd better don an apron and offer a helping hand around the house. It's only fair.

BE AFFECTIONATE... Learn to respond to each other. Satisfying physical relations are highly important.

IF YOU NEED ADVICE... Don't hesitate. See your doctor, your pastor or a specialist in marriage relations.
