Housing Program Gaining Support

Republicans and Democrats Alike Applaud Emergency Campaign For 2,700,000 New Homes In Next Two Years; House-Building Program Is Greatest In History

Washington, Feb. 9.—(AP)—President Truman's recommendations for the greatest house building program in history won immediate and enthusiastic bi-partisan support on Capitol Hill.

Democrats and Republicans alike applauded the objectives of the emergency campaign which has set its sights on the construction of 2,700,000 new homes in the next two years.

Wilson S. Wyatt, the housing expert and generalissimo of the projected campaign, said it could move into high gear by April 1 if Congress acts promptly and votes the necessary legislation.

Only one phase of the over-all program failed to click with congressmen. That was the proposal that the 40,000,000 existing dwellings be placed under price control.

The National Association of real estate boards also registered opposition to the price control features but the program.

Announcing the vast undertaking last night, Mr. Truman called it a veterans' emergency housing program, and Wyatt emphasized it is intended to bring living space into line with veterans' pocketbooks.

The estimated cost to the federal government is $850,000,000.

Here's how Wyatt described it in detail:

1. Construction of 2,700,000 low and moderate cost homes must be started by the end of next year.

Take Religious Census Tomorrow

By CHESTER WALSH

Plans had been completed today for a city-wide religious census tomorrow afternoon, from 1:30 until 3 o'clock.

The purpose of the census is to ascertain how many white persons are affiliated with churches, what denomination, etc.

The canvassers will start promptly at 1:30 Sunday afternoon to make a house-to-house canvass to briefly interview householders.

The committee chairmen have requested that some one be at home during the canvassing hour to give the necessary information.

It will be interesting to know how many church members there are in this progressive city of Greenville.

We know how many Kiwanians, Rotarians, Farm Bureau members, and everything else there is and it would be valuable in many ways to know how many persons there are here who are affiliated with some church and how many are not.

If you really have to be away from home Sunday from 1:30 until 3 o'clock, write on a piece of paper the names of the persons who live in your house, what church they belong to, and those who are non-church members.

Tack the memorandum on the door for the canvassers and you'll be doing a good work.

How many Greenville people are church members? How many are not? That's what the religious census committee wants to know.

FIRST WEEK'S TESTIMONY IN TRIAL CLOSES

State's Evidence Against Davenport Pyramids With Associates' Testimony

After a week of testimony, during which the State piled evidence on Roderick Davenport and established a close connection between the "Big Apple" loan business and the "Big Apple" loan business and one of them the mayor, Judge J. Paul Fritzelle yesterday recessed a special session of Pitt Superior Court until Monday.

Davenport and five associates in the "Big Apple" loans business went on trial last Monday. Yesterday the State through Solicitor D. M. Clark accepted a plea of nolo contendere in the case of Wilson Boyles, one of the defendants, and took a nol pros with leave in the case of another defendant, Hal Whorton of Oriental.

Boyles and Whorton both turned State's evidence and during a day-long session told of Davenport's manipulations in a loans scheme which allegedly had the sanction of the Goldsboro mayor and police, and J. Faison Thompson, a leading attorney in Goldsboro.

Mayor Scott B. Berkley and Thompson are defending Davenport at his trial here. W. J. Bunker, a local attorney, also is assisting in Davenport's defense.

Specifically, Davenport and the three remaining defendants—J. R. Fleming of Greenville, Mrs. S. H. Powers and Johnny Heath, both of New Bern—are charged with conspiracy to defraud, and fraud by false pretense. The felony charges grew out of the defendants' connection with the "Big Apple" operations.

Yesterday, Boyles said he heard Attorney Thompson dictate to Davenport the text of newspaper advertisements which appeared in several newspapers, including the Reflector. The ads solicited loans to interest a week. He also said he had heard Thompson tell Davenport that "with $5,000 I can prevent the introduction of a bill in the 1945 Legislature to regulate loan brokers."

The Goldsboro branch of the business had a "freight and drayage" account which was used to pay Thompson's attorney fee and also to pay money to the Goldsboro police to follow up Thompson's letter.

President Truman's reaffirmation of his confidence in Pauley on Thursday evidently failed to move some members of the Senate Naval Committee.

Administration lieutenants who did not want to be quoted by name said a check indicated Pauley's Democratic support there was insufficient. They said a nose count of committee members indicated at least two Democrats would join with seven Republicans to cause a 9 to 9 tie if the issue were put to a vote there now.

This situation led to persistent reports that Pauley, who has been serving as the President's Reparations Commissioner, might ask Mr. Truman to withdraw his name, although the President made it plain Thursday he was standing firmly behind his nominee.

Ickes told the Naval Committee that Pauley had suggested at a meeting in his office that $300,000 in Democratic campaign funds could be raised from interested oil men if they could be given assurance the government would not seek to claim title to off-shore ocean lands from which they are producing oil.

Pauley's oil company had such offshore holdings in California, Senator Eastland (D-Miss.) said.

San Francisco, Feb. 9.—(AP)—The army has completed detailed plans for bringing home America's World War II dead beginning this spring. If congressional authorization is granted, the San Francisco Chronicle said today.

The paper did not disclose the source of its information, except to state the information was contained in documents now being submitted to high War Department officials for approval.

A bill dealing with return of war dead has passed the House and now is before the Senate Military Affairs Committee.

Other points included in the Chronicle story:

The dead will be returned from 454 sites in 86 countries and islands. New York will be the major receiving point for dead from Europe and the Atlantic area. San Francisco for those from the Pacific area.

The first burial ship is scheduled to leave San Francisco April 1 and thereafter one ship a month will leave both San Francisco and New York.

The project is expected to take at least 18 months. Cost of the project has been unofficially estimated at 500 million dollars.

If next of kin desire, the dead will be left where they are now buried. Civilian employees under army supervision will be used extensively in the graveyard work.

Liberty ships, painted white with a purple band around the hull, will carry the dead. The caskets will be walnut stained, each covered with an American flag.

Each burial ship will carry from 6,500 to 7,000 boxes. Longshoremen handling the unloading will be asked to wear clean blue dungarees and be hatless. Specially converted trains will carry the dead to distribution points.

Boston, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Twelve clergymen in the department of social service of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Massachusetts informed President Truman today that it was strongly against bringing America's World War II dead back to this country.

Pointing out that it was estimated that the program would cost 500 million dollars, the letter said: "Would it not be more fitting tribute to the dead to use that large sum in a work designed to alleviate the suffering of humanity for whom they gave their lives?"

"It was in Europe and Asia that they spilled their blood," the letter added. "Would not their graves in foreign lands serve to remind us and all men—that he task of winning justice, peace and equality for all men is still incomplete?"

Babson Discusses Home Mortgages

Loan Association of New Haven, Connecticut, offering to "loan money for building and equipping a home with all mechanical conveniences for comfortable living."

Up to the present time, when these electrical appliances were available, it has been possible to buy them on installments, running over about eighteen months. This, however, has been a heavy burden on young people. Now, under "packaged" mortgages, all these brand new appliances can be included with the original cost of the house, and paid over a period of twenty years.

Furthermore, this program is much more convenient to the borrower because he is dealing with one and making payments to only one concern, namely the bank, instead of the several local dealers. I estimate the cost of such equipment would add only about sixty cents a month for every one hundred dollars worth bought on the above basis.

To keep the house up-to-date, these "packaged" mortgages allow for replacement of appliances and the addition of a few cents to the above-mentioned monthly figure. It should also be remembered that under such a program the cost of the appliances is considerably reduced as the agent's commissions are either eliminated or cut down to a nominal figure. Whether or not your bank will pay for your electrical appliances, it will take your mortgage on (Continued on Page Two)

One Remaining Stumbling Block In Steel Strikes; President Is Optimistic

UNO CLOSING HELD UP BY SITE DEBATE

Movement Underway To Keep Headquarters Somewhere In Europe

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

London, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Adjournment of the United Nations General Assembly, informally scheduled for this week-end, was delayed today by a number of unsettled problems, topped off by a first-rate fight over the selection of a home for the UNO.

Leaders had indicated over a week ago that they expected to pack up and go home by today, but when the time arrived they found they still had on the agenda about half of the issues which were before them when they started out four weeks ago.

UNO officials, with the constant urging of U. S. delegation chief Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., are shooting now at adjournment by Tuesday or Wednesday of next week.

The site controversy has reached a point where some delegates reported privately that a movement was underway not to let UNO headquarters be established in the United States at all but to keep it in London for a few years.

Some European leaders have favored a European setting all along. Other factions within the Assembly's site committee are working for New York and San Francisco as temporary headquarters.

The group of nations, opposed to the site inspection committee's choice of the Connecticut-New York area as a permanent site, was said by informed quarters to be gaining strength in their efforts to postpone a decision until next September or later.

When the Assembly's site committee adjourned yesterday to meet again today, some American delegates said the outcome at the moment was highly uncertain.

Meanwhile, the Security Council which already had disposed of the Iranian and Greek controversies, (Continued on Page Two)

Judge Accused

The House of Representatives Judiciary Committee has reported in Washington that former Federal Judge Albert W. Johnson (above) of Johnston, Pa., "sold justice" in his court "for all the traffic would bear." (AP Wirephoto).

Washington, Feb. 9.—(AP)—President Truman was reported "quite hopeful" today that the end of the steel strike was at hand.

The President's optimistic attitude toward solution of the nation's biggest strike, now in its 20th day, was described by a White House official after Mr. Truman had cancelled his Florida vacation trip because of the immediate critical situation.

The official, who asked to be anonymous, said "good progress is being made" and that the U. S. Steel Corporation and the CIO Steel Workers are "not very far apart."

CIO President Philip Murray likewise asserted that the two sides are in substantial agreement, and that he was eager to obtain a one-year contract.

The sole remaining stumbling block, according to those in a position to know, was agreement on how retroactive to make the pay increase that will affect 750,000 strikers. Murray asked that the boost be effective as of January 1—the same date suggested by President Truman when he advanced his compromise proposal for an 181-2-cent hourly wage increase.

MASS MEETING ENDS IN RIOTS

Cairo Students Shout "To The Revolt—Down with Britain"

Cairo, Feb. 9.—(AP)—More than fifty Egyptian students and several police were injured today when fighting broke out during a mass demonstration in which students surged through the streets of Cairo shouting "To the Revolt" and "Down with Britain."

The demonstration started after a mass meeting protesting against the recent British reply to Egypt's request for revision of the 1936 British-Egyptian treaty.

The fighting flared up when approximately 3,000 students, caught between police lines near a Nile river bridge, started hurling stones. Bystanders joined in shortly on the side of the students. Police Chief Lewa Russell Pasha, who was on the scene during the melee, immediately summoned mounted police.

An estimated 5,000 students attended the meeting at Faud University, while Egyptian police and British military police patrolled the streets and public squares. The city was declared "out of bounds" for British and American troops.

Banners were hoisted proclaiming "Down with Imperialism." "The question of the country is international" and "Get out of the Nile Valley."

Sole Issue Holding Up Steel Peace Is Agreement On Retroactive Pay; Unions And Industry Said To Be "Not Very Far Apart"; N.Y.C. Fuel Situation Most Serious

Washington, Feb. 9.—(AP)—President Truman was reported "quite hopeful" today that the end of the steel strike was at hand.

New York, Feb. 9.—(AP)—The most drastic system of fuel oil rationing in the history of New York City was ordered today by Mayor William O'Dwyer after tugboat workers rejected for the second time proposals to end their last strike.

The mayor's action, extending a previously proclaimed state of emergency, was taken "in the interests of the health and safety" of the city's millions "to avoid an epidemic of respiratory illness or disease and to replenish the fuel supplies of hospitals and other institutions."

"There is a complete embargo in effect now," said Commissioner of Purchase Albert Breydel, acting fuel administrator. "Until rationing starts at noon, no oil will be moved at all except for emergencies. To say that the severity of the system is unprecedented for the city is putting it mildly."

He also told newsmen that the same rigid controls may be applied to coal Monday if present conditions did not improve.

O'Dwyer said in a statement last night that the fuel situation in the city was as follows:

1. Less than one day's supply of fuel remains in one of the largest hospitals in the city.

2. There are now many apartment houses absolutely without heat and with no possibility of relief.

3. Hundreds of dwellings, single and multiple, are without coal.

4. Fuel oil supplies in all public buildings are dangerously low.

5. Thousands of people in cold water flats are without gas and therefore without heat.

6. Additional public buildings must be closed.

7. This condition will multiply because there are absolutely no reserves.

The WORLD TODAY

An Analysis Of The News

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

AP World Traveler

Luxembourg, Feb. 9.—Here in the medieval setting of this little grand duchy we find one of the finest exemplifications of the brotherhood of man which our war-torn world boasts.

The some 300,000 folk living in Luxembourg's tight 1,000 square miles are just one big family, in which its all for one and one for all. It's difficult for the stranger to understand such a Utopian situation. You really have to visit this story-book principality to get the feel of it, and even at that I don't believe I should have got the full significance of the situation but for a remark dropped by Prime Minister Dupong while Mrs. Mack and I were chatting with him in his private office.

The prime minister said that all Luxembourgers are related by blood. Well, of course, I don't suppose he meant that to be taken literally, but it's probably true that there aren't many people in his tiny state who aren't related if you trace their lineages back a bit.

So there you have your Luxembourg family. Probably like most families they have differences among themselves. But let an outsider pick a row with a Luxemburger and you'll find the rest of the family coming in to the rescue.

And impartial observers who know the duchy well will tell you that if misfortune befalls one member of the family the other help him out. You need only one illustration to show the spirit of brotherhood here. Not only is there absolute freedom of worship but the state contributes to the maintenance of all religions represented in the country.

It happens that Luxembourg is preponderantly Catholic, but that doesn't enter into the calculations. Every taxpayer in the grand-duchy, Catholic, Protestant, Jewish or otherwise, contributes to the freedom of worship of his fellows.

One's first impulse on sitting down to write about this ancient state in the Ardennes highland is to try to turn some poetic sentences. There's utter fascination in the fairytale capital which hundreds of years ago was built as a military stronghold atop the towering rock that rises sheer from the gorge cut about it by the river Alzette.

Still, it strikes me that there's nothing more beautiful than this exemplification of the brotherhood of man. It looks like democracy in its best sense.

One finds it easy to accept the statement by a well-informed foreign observer that there has been no illiteracy since 1847. There never has been an unbalanced budget.

Washington, Feb. 9.—(AP)—The Case bill to curb strikes and some union activities during strikes—was passed in a rush by the House.

The bill has been praised and attacked inside and outside Congress. But perhaps the strongest attack came from Rep. Clare E. Hoffman, Michigan Republican.

He attacked the bill for something which he himself put into the bill. As it stands, the bill has portions which do not read grammatically. And some of its sponsors can't say precisely what interpretation may be placed on certain sections.

Because they are not explicitly stated, some of the bill's implications can be very far-reaching and very tough on labor.

The Senate is certain to change the bill, if it ever considers it at all, because of the lack of preciseness in some of its language.

The bill, although it is major legislation, did not receive the treatment which other major legislation gets.

Most important bills first go through a committee when they are examined carefully and witnesses can testify on their faults or virtues.

deduced by Rep. Francis Case, South Dakota Republican.

The bill would do a number of things, such as: Forbidding strikes for 30 days while the government sought to settle a dispute; imposing penalties for strike violence; imposing penalties for boycotts.

The bill, as offered by Case, would inflict this penalty on a worker who committed strike violence. It would deprive him of his rights under the National Labor Relations Act.

Congressmen who fought the bill before its passage, said this penalty meant: The worker was barred forever from joining a union or being represented by a union.

They said it would mean "forever" because the language of the bill set no time limit. But that penalty stayed in the bill, unchanged, from start to finish; the penalty for violence.

Case introduced the bill Feb. 4, on Feb. 5 Rep. Hoffman got the House to accept an amendment which he offered. This amendment would inflict on a worker who engaged in a boycott the same penalty imposed for violence.

The wording of his amendment—as to the penalty for boycotting—was exactly the same wording as Case used in the penalty for violence. But on Feb. 7, when the House (Continued on Page Two)

Strength FOR THE DAY

By KARL L. DOUGLAS

WHAT IT MEANS TO REPENT

What is repentance? The term is in Greek—and the New Testament which frequently mentions repentance was originally written in Greek—means to change one's mind. A little girl defined repentance by saying "It means being sorry enough to quit."
There is a sorrow for wrongdoing which is little more than the shrug of one's shoulders and the heaving of a sigh. This is not repentance. Repentance results in action.

The absence of a sense of unworthiness is an unfailing sign of spiritual shallowness. People who think highly of themselves can't share their sentiments. The saintliest people in the history of the Christian Church have, without exception, been plagued almost continuously with a sense of sin. They looked at the glory of God and then at the condition of their own souls and hid their faces. When we see a man walking with head held high, glorying in his personal righteousness, we can be pretty sure that a mighty fall is imminent.

A truly repentant man is a changed man. Not only is his behavior changed, his philosophy of life is changed also. He has a new set of ideas as to what constitutes right and wrong. If his sorrow is superficial it is sorrow for self; if it is genuine, then it is sorrow for sin. To repent means to be sorry for one's sin—sorry enough to quit committing them.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By JACK STINNETT

Washington—Incidental prognostications. The President, in his annual message, urged "a greater measure of local self-government" and at least national ticket votes for the voteless citizens of the District of Columbia.

Don't expect anything more out of it than a renewed outburst of agitation by the poor, misgoverned residents of your national capital, who are the best civic example in the country today of hope springing eternal.

The President, the district's committee chairman (our "mavens") in Congress, committee members, all publicly declare for votes for district residents. Both parties even write a plank to that effect into their platforms every four years. But the right hand of action never seems to get around to knowing what the left of promises is up to.

There are complications in the who's business but one factor regarding greater "local self-government" is simply that the congressmen, most of whom live here a large part of their political lives, can't stand the idea of relinquishing this little sliver of power.

Note: Unless Congress does something about it some of these years, there won't be any more citizens in the district to govern. The privately owned area of the district is shrinking. In the last 10 years, the government has purchased outright or otherwise taken over nearly 2,000,000 acres of district land. The voteless citizens now own only a little more than half the D. C. The rest of it is all government buildings, parks, etc.

Any day now look for an administration proposal to get the public behind the $4 billion British loan, with addresses by Treasury Secretary Vinson, Commerce Secretary Wallace, Assistant Secretary of State Will Clayton and others explaining why the loan is a world economic necessity.

The administration isn't much afraid of opposition to the loan in the Senate (although there's going to be some) but the House fight may be a bitter one. Administrative pulse takers on Capitol Hill are privately reporting a noticeable slowdown in a heart-beat for the British loan since congressmen came back from talking to the folks at home.

That same vein with the voters has reportedly increased considerably in favor of holding prices down. It's considered possible now that when the question of extending price controls comes up. Administrator Chester Bowles' OPA will receive quite a few less hick-bits than it would have a couple of months ago.

This doesn't mean smooth-sailing for OPA by any means. The resistance of business and merchants to government controls isn't any less. Their general argument is that the law of supply and demand will take care of prices without any interference from government. The housewives and salaried workers aren't so sure any more. What happened when the lid was taken off citrus fruit prices is being put forward as a strong argument for necessary extension of controls over the h.c.l.

When I saw the government cancelling its big war contracts with the General Electric, the Westinghouse, and other similar companies after Japan collapsed, I became fearful. The more, however, I study these "packaged" mortgages the more hopeful I become for the electrical appliance stocks. Certainly, if this new form of loaning money to home builders becomes general, it should be a boon to the electrical equipment industry. Home owners will buy much more equipment and

He added that Davenport told him he had the mayor and chief of police of Goldsboro on his side "and you can feel safe in the business." E. I. Iler, Boyles had testified that he paid a 10 per cent commission to a Wilson policeman who brought in a $1,000 deposit which he had solicited.

Whorton, who formerly was in the insurance business with Davenport in New Bern and later took over management of his fruits and produce stores, told of hearing Thompson tell Davenport to "reduce the deposit records" on the books carrying the amounts which investors put in the "Big Apple."

Throughout the trial, the State has attempted to show that Davenport was not solvent and that he solicited deposits for which he gave worthless checks as security. Solicitor Clark has produced evidence to show that Davenport closed his account at a New Bern bank early in August, 1944, and that thereafter deposits rolled in. For each deposit, Davenport gave his personal check to cover the amount of the deposit. All checks were drawn on the account which already had been closed. Davenport was said to have sold each depositor that the checks were good, thus committing fraud and a false pretense.

The defense, through cross-examination, has attempted to show that each of the depositors was in effect violating the State's usury laws which set the interest rates on loans at six per cent a year. Davenport's depositors were promised 10 per cent interest a week, or should be a boon to the electrical equipment industry. Home owners will buy much more equipment and

TRUMAN OPENS SCOUTS' WEEK

President Of United States Commends Boy Scout's Activities

President Truman, in a message to the Boy Scouts of America on its 30th anniversary yesterday, said that the "theme for the year, 'Scouts of the World—Building Together' is timely, refreshing and appropriate."

In his message to the 1,977,463 members of the Boy Scouts of America, of which he is honorary President, Mr. Truman said, "Your record for wartime services accomplished is enviable."

President Truman's message, made public today by N. M. Schaum, president of the East Carolina Council, Boy Scouts of America, follows:

"To the Boy Scouts of America: In a world that has suffered so grievously from the most awful war in history, your theme for the year, Scouts of the World—Building Together, is timely, refreshing and appropriate."

"Evidence of your determination to help your fellow Scouts in other lands less fortunate than ours is worthy indeed of the Boy Scouts of America. Your record for wartime services accomplished is enviable. Analyze it and you will find that planning, enthusiasm and, above all, cooperation helped you win through in your various campaigns."

"Now that hostilities have ceased you Scouts and your brother Scouts overseas can help the world maintain a secure peace by fostering good-will, understanding, and respect through continued cooperation."

"Good Scouts, good Scoutmasters and good Scoutmums! There is a real contribution to the new world now in the making.
"Keep in Building Together in this, the thirty-seventh year of the Scout Movement in America, and all the years to come!"

Dried Eggs Go Back To English Kitchens

London, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Dried eggs appear today to be headed back to a place in the British larder, after a kingdom-wide howl of protest which greeted the announcement last week of a halt in their distribution.

Food Minister Sir Ben Smith, who said the allocation was stopped because Britain lacked the dollar credits to buy powdered eggs from the United States, was reported to have been told by the government to renew the orders.

London newspapers reported that the new orders would amount to about $40,000,000.

Mrs. Haney in her charming manner presented some of the deficiencies in the home and also gave some constructive plans for improving the home. Among the things enumerated as being wrong there: lack of parental discipline, absentee parents and bad examples by parents, such as family quarrels, high nerves, fast living, lack of cooperation and serving liquors. A mother who serves liquor in her home cannot complain if her son grows up to be a drunkard. Mrs. Haney emphasized that influences and ideals for children should be planned; that children should be made to feel free to go to their parents for answers to any and all questions of life; above all there should be a love and reverence for the church permeating the entire home life for real Christianity can solve all problems. During the social hour the hostesses, Mrs. C. L. Russ, Mrs. H. L. Andrews, Mrs. Hinton Best and Mrs. W. J. Bundy, served delicious sandwiches, home made cake and Russian tea.

EDUCATOR URGES MORE STRESS ON GEOGRAPHY A plea for training in geography from the elementary grades through graduate school, was expressed in an article written by Dr. P. W. Picklesimer for the January issue of the "Journal of Geography." The Doctor is the chairman of the Geography Department of East Carolina Teachers College. Pointing out, among other errors in present methods of teaching geography, that the subject has too long been regarded by educators as suitable only for the elementary grades, Dr. Picklesimer makes a case for geography as an essential concern of the adult. Much of the political unrest and economic distress which brought on the last war, he says, was geographic in origin, and problems of peace and avoidance of future conflict depend on a wide-spread understanding of geography. Dr. Picklesimer makes a number of suggestions for the improvement of teaching geography, including more highly trained teachers, more modern and scientific textbooks, a new emphasis on world geography, and an increased attention to the subject in school curricula on all levels.

ASTAIRE AND MORGAN HAVE POLICE TROUBLE

It's a case of identification in scene from technicolor musical, "Yolanda and the Thief," Pitt Sunday and Monday.

LOCALS KEEP CONFERENCE SLATE CLEAN

The Green Phantoms overcame practically every bad break in the book last night in Washington and still were able to post a thrilling 48-44 triumph over the Pam Pack in a typical Greenville-Washington encounter. The Phantoms' younger school mates on the Junior High team had considerably less trouble in their game, winning handily 37-8.

The Phantoms, without a doubt, badly outplayed the Pack, but overzealous officiating by the referees came mighty near costing them the game. As the last quarter started, four of five Greenville starters had been put out of the game on what the officials termed fouls. Under the steady hand of veteran Jimmy Futrell, however, second stringers did their share of scoring and held the Pam Pack at bay during that hectic last quarter.

The Phantoms got off to one of their typical slow starts in the first quarter and by the end of that period were ahead by only an 8-5 score. However, in the second quarter, Greenville shots began to sink regularly and at one time they were leading the Pack by a 20-7 count. But before the half ended the rallying Washington team had cut that lead to 23-16.

In the third quarter, the Phantoms were able to keep a fairly comfortable lead under their belts, but the Pack managed to keep in the ball game by making a large percentage of the thirty odd free throws given them.

In the last period substitutes held out to the margin between victory and defeat to keep the Phantoms' perfect conference record intact and cement Greenville's number one court rival.

Greater height under the baskets was one thing that kept Washington in the game, for without that height the margin between the two scores could have been fifteen or twenty points.

Jimmy Futrell, always hottest when the going is toughest, led the Greenville scoring attack with 18 points. Billy Harrington once again played a great game as ball handling and play-making guard and got the greater part of the rebounds for the Phantoms.

Starters for Greenville were Billy Harrington and Mac Batchelor at guards, Jimmy Futrell and Ed Williams at forwards, and J. T. Williams at center.

Substitutes who saw action were Julian White, Billy White, Henry Turner, Jack Whitehead, and Dave Clark.
