

BRITISH LOAN ENDORSED BY SEC. BYRNES

Loan Described As Projecting "Tangible Gains" For U. S. And World

New York, Feb. 12.—(AP)—The proposed $3,750,000,000 loan to Great Britain was endorsed today by Secretary of State James F. Byrnes as projecting "tangible, firm gains for the United States and for the rest of the world."

In his first speech of the proposed multi-billion dollar loan and trade agreement made public Dec. 6 and now awaiting congressional action, Byrnes declared:

"Without it our efforts to construct an expanding world economy may well be frustrated. With it we shall have won the support of a powerful ally in our efforts to break down those harmful economic practices which throttle trade, perpetuate poverty, engender ill will among nations and sow the seeds of conflict."

"What we gain is the chance for expanding world trade, for freedom, for goods and money to flow where they may, for a prosperous world and not a lean world."

His address was delivered before a meeting last night of the Foreign Policy Association.

Denying that the loan would require the U. S. to extend similar credits to other governments, Byrnes said he believed that some of the most significant American benefits from the credit would come from the pledge to support U. S. trade, contained in the British "White Paper," issued simultaneously with the loan proposal.

The "White Paper" calls for a collective assault by the United Nations, on all trade barriers to promote a freer flow of goods in post-war world commerce. It will be the basis for an American-sponsored world trade conference this summer.

By this commitment, the British take their place at our side as our economic allies and not our economic enemies," Byrnes said, adding that the British could not participate in the program for freer trade unless the loan was approved by Congress.

Ex-U. S. Servicemen Moving To Australia

Sydney, Feb. 12.—(AP)—One hundred and fifty-two ex-U. S. servicemen arrived here today from San Francisco aboard the liner Monterey full of enthusiasm for jobs they said they would seek in Australia—and with an average of $1,000 in their pockets to start life in this country.

They told newsmen that lower living costs and the more leisurely tempo of life had brought them to Australia. Most of the Americans had served on this continent during the war.

GI's Life Insurance Faces Broad Changes

Washington, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Congress will get to work soon on veterans' insurance—perhaps next month. Then millions of policyholders can look for broad changes.

Many bills are pending to amend the 1940 act authorizing national service life insurance. The Veterans Administration itself has one. It would do this:

- 1. Allow death settlement in a lump sum. Instead of monthly payments over long periods. The GI's have hollered for this.
2. Let anyone be named a beneficiary, instead of only close relatives.
3. Permit conversion of the policy to an endowment plan.
4. Allow total disability benefits.

BOWLES PLANS LONGER LIFE FOR CONTROLS

Revised Summary And Time-Table For OPA Submitted To Nation

Washington, Feb. 12.—(AP)—The house appropriations committee told congress today there will be long delays in lifting many of OPA's price controls.

Rents—instead of dropping controls in 60 areas by the first of this year as planned earlier, OPA moved out of only 30 areas, meanwhile adding 17 to its original list.

Board Approves Plan For N. C. Vets Care

Raleigh, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Early inauguration of a plan for medical care of North Carolina war veterans by their local physicians or community hospitals is expected by Director Wiley M. Pickens of the State Veterans Commission.

The North Carolina Medical Society, through its executive committee, has approved the plan for local medical and hospital care for veterans with service connected disabilities, and a contract is expected to be signed with the Veterans Administration in the near future, he said.

Under the plan, second such to be inaugurated in any state, veterans will be authorized to receive treatment at or near his home if veterans hospital facilities are not available to him. The veterans themselves may not elect whether they wish treatment or hospitalization through a regular veterans hospital under terms of the program, Pickens said, but must continue to apply to the administration.

Housing Program Goes To Congress Next Week

Washington, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Despite the pleas of Housing Boss Wilson Wyatt, the homes for veterans bill will go to the House floor next week minus the price ceilings President Truman wants on old houses.

A fight on party lines is probable on that issue, but Wyatt last night got Republican and Democratic leaders to agree to another key portion of Mr. Truman's two-year program for 2,700,000 new homes.

Wyatt contends the premium payments have two advantages over higher prices as a production spur: They do not bring about higher prices for finished houses, and they

CONGRESS MAY DELAY ACTION

Washington, Feb. 12.—(AP)—A "cooling-off" period on any labor legislation—until present major wage disputes are settled—appeared today to be in store for the Senate.

Chairman Murray (D-Mont) will call the full committee together Thursday to decide on a schedule of public hearings on the board labor disputes bill approved by the House. It was introduced by Rep. Case (R-SD).

Churchill Silent On Capitol Trip

Washington, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Former Prime Minister Winston Churchill left by air at 11:50 a. m. today for Miami after a 41 hour stay in the nation's capital during which he conferred with President Truman.

In high spirits and good humor, Churchill remained silent to the last on the nature of his sudden trip to Washington and the topic of his discussion with Mr. Truman.

Metropolitan Areas Tied Up In Labor's Shutdown

Strike By Pittsburgh Power Company Employees Closes Great Industrial Plants, And Schools Are Closed; City In Confusion As Mayor Declares State Of Emergency

Pittsburgh, Feb. 12.—(AP)—A strike of power company employees started in this industrial center today, but electrical current was still flowing several hours later to thousands of homes and buildings in the strike area in which 1,500,000 persons reside.

Street railway service was halted shortly before the strike began, but a spokesman for the struck Duquesne Light Company said it was supplying current on an emergency basis.

He expressed belief that, despite the strike, the company could continue to provide service to institutions and homes—but only if householders limited their consumption to vital needs.

Steel mills and fabricating plants in the great industrial area around Pittsburgh, which ordinarily consume great quantities of electricity, were already closed by the general steel strike. The spokesman said all other industrial users were "operating" 100 per cent. In conservation of the available supply so householders and hospitals might have the entire supply of current available.

City officials had feared the power shutdown would quickly affect power supplies to most of the inhabitants in the district.

Meanwhile the city remained in a state of confusion and Mayor David L. Lawrence declared a state of emergency. Many resident curtailed their use of electricity.

Public schools were closed under plans announced in advance that they would not open if the strike were called. Most of the district colleges were closed, including the University of Pittsburgh.

Cotton Men Plan World Wide Meet

Washington, Feb. 12.—(AP)—The seventh annual World Cotton Congress will be held July 7 and 8 in Texas. Burrus Jackson of Hillsboro, chairman of the Texas Statewide Cotton committee, announced today.

Dallas probably will be the site, Jackson said. The Texas Cotton committee, which sponsors the event, will select the city in March. Congress attendance is expected to be the greatest since before the war, Jackson declared. Grower, ginner, shipper and manufacturer, will be represented. The Agriculture, State and Commerce Departments will have displays.

Emphasis will be focused at the meeting on two points: Research to meet competition with synthetic fibers and revival of foreign markets, which in normal times consumed about 50 per cent of American cotton production.

"The Cotton Congress could be called a cotton clinic," explained Jackson. "We try to diagnose the ills of our industry and see what we can do to remedy them."

A tremendous research program to lower the cost and improve the quality of cotton products is necessary to meet the competition of synthetic fibers. It is also essential to put American cotton in world markets in competition with foreign-grown cottons.

Siberia is almost twice as large as continental United States. Washington, Feb. 12.—(AP)—The south remains the stronghold of the "moonshine" liquor industry. In nine southern states the federal alcohol tax unit seized 7,397 illicit distilleries in the 1945 fiscal year, compared with only 947 in the remaining 39 states and Hawaii.

Trolleys Move Under Guard

Third Co-Defendant On Stand For State

Mrs. S. H. Powers Pleads Guilty To Charges; Says "Big Apple" Deposits Amounted To Approximately $1,904,000

Mrs. Sadie H. Powers, former secretary to Roderick Davenport, today revised her estimates of money taken in by the "Big Apple" loans business and said deposits totaled approximately $1,904,000 from the time she first became associated with the firm in March 1944 until it was closed by Solicitor D. M. Clark in August of the same year.

Mrs. Powers said Davenport had a "decoy" deposit system whereby more people were induced to bring in deposits.

Turning her attention to the period during the latter part of August, when "runs" were being made on the business by dissatisfied depositors, Mrs. Powers said he knew when Davenport closed out his bank account in New Bern on August 28, and that after depositors were assured they would get their money on presenting their checks to the same bank.

She corroborated other witnesses in saying that Davenport hid himself for several days after he saw the crash coming. He couldn't be found for four days before he was arrested on the morning of August 28 in a Tarboro hotel, she said.

Prior to that, Davenport told Mrs. Powers that several people had tried to buy into the business, but the witness said Davenport told her he refused, saying "I want to run my business my way." She said he told her he had enough money in his personal book account to take care of "all his obligations."

She said that when she first realized "everything was all wrong," she was "in it so deep I couldn't do anything but stick."

Mrs. Powers testified that prior to the SBI investigation, Davenport told her on a number of occasions.

After scribbling steadily for several minutes, Mrs. Powers said her figures indicated deposits reached the $1,904,000 mark and that her estimate was a conservative one.

The two remaining defendants besides Davenport are Johnny Heath of New Bern and J. R. Hurn of Winston-Salem, former manager of the Greenville and Kingston stores, pleaded nolo contendere last Friday, and the state took a nol prosequi in the case of Hal Whorton, who acted as manager of Davenport's produce and fruit business.

Stoppage By Mere Handful Of Tugboat Operators Closes Businesses Of Eight Million New Yorkers

Proclamation Allows Operation Of Only City's Vital Services

New York, Feb. 12.—(AP)—New York City was paralyzed today as a fuel emergency induced by the nine day strike of 3,500 tugboat men had caused an unprecedented business and amusement shutdown.

Police Commissioner Arthur W. Wallender said a disaster control board of 22 city department heads now was "the governing body of the city as much as if we were in military circumstances and we were being governed by martial law."

In a drastic proclamation, Mayor William O'Dwyer ordered:

All industrial, business, and amusement activities closed.

Operation of only essential services such as hospitals, transit, newspaper, news services, radio stations, communication services and restaurants—deemed vital to the city's health and general welfare.

Explaining the board's operations, Wallender said, "We make recommendations to the mayor and he issues the edicts either by himself or through Commissioner Ernest L. Stebbins of the Health Department. The restrictions gave hundreds of thousands of residents a forced holiday."

War-time restrictions at their very worst never imposed such austere curbs as Mayor O'Dwyer's fuel saving proclamation closing all places except those most vitally concerned with public safety and health because of the tugboat strike.

The city's 8,000,000 inhabitants—many forbidden to work—still were a little stunned, and bewildered.

They were told to stay off subways. They could not see a movie, go to other amusement centers, or even drink a friendly glass of beer in a bar.

American Legion Needs Sign Painter

The Servicemen's Roster Board on the courthouse lawn, erected by Greenville Post No. 39, American Legion, to honor the men and women who were in the armed forces during World War II, is not complete yet, said Dr. H. G. Chaney, chairman of the Legion committee in charge. He has a list of several hundred names to be placed on the roster, but so far he has been unable to secure the services of a painter. The man who painted the other names on the board was to have returned to finish the job, but he failed to show up.

Dr. Chaney wants to complete the roster and he needs a painter. Any person knowing a painter available to do the job is requested to get in touch with Dr. Chaney—telephone 2859.

Christian Science Service
"Spirit" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science Churches and Societies on Sunday, February 10.

The Golden Text was from I Corinthians 2:10. "The Spirit searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God."

Among the citations comprising the lesson-sermon were the following from the Bible: "Am I a God at hand, saith the Lord, and not a God afar off? Can any hide himself in secret places that I shall not see him? saith the Lord. Do not I fill heaven and earth? saith the Lord." (Jeremiah 23:23,24).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The three great varieties of Spirit, omnipotence, omnipresence, omniscience—Spirit possessing all power, filling all space, constituting all Science—contradict forever the belief that matter can be actual. These eternal verities reveal primeval existence, and the radiant reality of God's creation, in which all that He made is pronounced by His wisdom good." (Page 106).

Women in the Church

by Mary Fowler

In August 1917, the Rev. and Mrs. David Lovaas, newly appointed missionaries of the Norwegian Lutheran Church of America, were en route to missionary service in Madagascar, when their ship, the British "City of Athens," struck a mine and sank off the coast of South Africa.

The three were rescued and eventually reached Madagascar. A few days ago, that baby, now Miss Evelyn Lovaas, graduate of Augsburg College, the Lutheran Bible Institute, and the University of Minnesota, was commissioned a missionary of the church her parents represented. Soon she will be sailing for service at Fort Dauphin, Madagascar, the mission station her parents, and where she lived with them for 14 years.

According to Miss Edith E. Lowry, secretary of the Home Missions Council of North America, the best code for housing of migrant industrial and agricultural laborers is that of the State of New Jersey. The council works on behalf of the migrants in some 24 states. It is now urging these legislatures to enact housing standards as good or better than those of New Jersey. The council is also asking ministers and lay leaders of churches throughout the country to begin educating their people in developing better understanding of and attitudes toward these migrant laborers, especially those brought into local communities for seasonal work.

The National Association for Refugee Children (of China), of which Madame Chiang Kai-shek and other prominent Christian Chinese women are leaders, is working with the Hsiang Shan Kindergarten Normal School in preparing a large number of "warphan" girls (left orphans by the war) for child welfare work in rural communities. It is pointed out that most social workers are prepared for city service, and prefer to do their work in cities, while 80 per cent of the nation's children and perhaps as large a percentage of the warphans come from rural communities. The course at the Normal School is planned for rural conditions, and since there are no textbooks on the subject, the faculty members have been making their own. For practice work, the girls organize in the villages among younger warphans, clubs that are Chinese and junior copies of the 4-H Clubs of rural United States. The program will be expanded to other training schools.

The Lincoln Legend

What Was Ann Rutledge's Role?

Abraham Lincoln

found an article, "A Romance of Reality," which told of the love between an "awkward youth" and an "angelic lady." The youth was named—Lincoln—the lady was not, but unmistakably she was Ann Rutledge.

The story dovetailed with Herndon's version. It had been published four years prior to Herndon's Springfield speech which generally had been accepted as the first public utterance of the story. It proved that Herndon had not originated the tale.

Even this has not stilled the debate, however. J. G. Randall, professor of history at the University of Illinois, and author of the recent "Lincoln the President," points out that the Hill story too is indirect testimony (a son reciting his father's memory), and cites flaws in the narrative.

Further, after an exhaustive assaying of all sources, he says he has found "no thoroughly verified utterance of Lincoln, written or oral, in which Ann Rutledge is even mentioned."

One hope of settlement beyond challenge remains. That hope lies in the unpublished Abraham Lincoln papers, approximately 10,000 items, which are under seal in the Library of Congress.

They have been there since 1923, when Robert Todd Lincoln, son of the President, decided them to the library with the proviso that they not be published until 21 years after his death.

That 21 years will end July 26, 1947.

The great bulk of these papers are official documents.

But there is just a bare chance that somewhere among them may be evidence—a letter to or from Ann Rutledge, perhaps—which will establish the Lincoln-Rutledge story in its true historical status.

New York—Any time anyone sets out to compile a list of the best love stories in American history, the names of Abraham Lincoln and Ann Rutledge are pretty certain to be close to the top.

Yet there's a question today whether the Lincoln-Rutledge story belongs on any historical list, or whether it should be consigned to the category of legend.

There is fact mixed with the fiction of course. But, despite all the patient probing into every scrap of memory or manuscript that might illumine some fragment of Lincoln's life, historians still are not sure which is which.

There is no quarrel with the basic facts: That Lincoln and Ann Rutledge knew each other more than a century ago in New Salem, Ill., that there was friendship, even affection, between them, that Lincoln was grieved deeply by her death.

But was there a betrothal? Was Lincoln's sorrow at her death so formy that he almost lost his reason? Were his mind and heart and soul irreparably scarred? Was Ann Rutledge the only woman he ever loved?

These are questions to which historians still seek unchallengeable answers.

It is only in comparatively recent years that the doubts have emerged. For more than a half century, the story had stood as it was told by W. H. Herndon, Lincoln's passionately faithful law partner and biographer, in a lecture at Springfield, Ill., in 1866.

Herndon's story was the story popularized by Hollywood, stage and schoolbook.

Herndon didn't imagine it. He talked to people who had known both Lincoln and Ann in New Salem, their friends and relatives and neighbors. He set down what they told him. He wrote letters and carefully kept all his correspondence. He pursued every clue. All of his evidence has been preserved.

But he had one undefeatable enemy: Time. All of his material was accumulated 30 years after the event.

He was dependent upon memories, or worse, the recollections of what some second party had said.

It is a point to consider also that he was amassing material at a time (1866) when a person's eagerness for self-glorification through any association, however remote, with a recently martyred president would tend to color memory.

As this lack of contemporary evidence became apparent, historians began to raise their voices in question of the story. Careful biographers conceded that the Herndon

Strength FOR THE DAY

WE NEED ANOTHER LINCOLN
 In the last analysis the thing which counts in the life of a family, a corporation, or a state is the character of those who lead. Brilliance of intellect is never enough. Cleverness first and then then putrefies. Men who worship force end as the Fascist-Nazi gang did—with dissolution, bitterness, suicide, and vengeful execution.

Abraham Lincoln is revered by all the peoples of the earth because he was one of the most sterling characters that ever lived. He was as simple as one would expect a man to be who had been born in the back woods and brought to maturity under the bludgeoning of tragedy. His honesty had about it the crystal-clear quality of a high grade diamond. The venerable Job himself did not have more patience than Lincoln. He put his country first, and such matters as personal sacrifice and the surrender of his own life were of so little consequence that he treated such trifles with the indifference he felt they deserved.

The world is crying out today for statesmen of character. We have plenty of brilliant men, well-informed men, clever men, whom we need is the type of man in whom everyone, rich and poor, can put his trust—the variety of man who loves country above self and smiles at the threats of pressure groups.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

Washington — Is the Civil Air Patrol going to become a war casualty?
 There are few, if any, civilian organizations which made such a contribution to the war effort as CAP. Over-age pilots, flying their own little planes, patrolled the coast.
 They towed targets for gunnery practice. With mock air raids, they showed many cities how real that danger could be. Their rescue flights to spot downed planes, overdue ships, and to scout floods and other disasters would fill a volume. In addition the CAP cadet corps trained thousands of under-age youngsters in the elements of pre-flight education for work both in the air and on the ground.

So important was CAP, that the Army Air Forces took it over. Now, on March 31, the AAF is going to cut it loose again. Some promises of help have been made, but unless CAP can find a way of financing its local units and maintaining its national organization, it will disappear, or at least become a distinguished group of state organizations, strong in some states perhaps, but virtually inactive in others.

A couple of weeks ago Gen. Carl Spaatz, acting commanding officer of the AAF, promised he would do what he could to help CAP if it becomes a federally chartered non-profit membership organization.

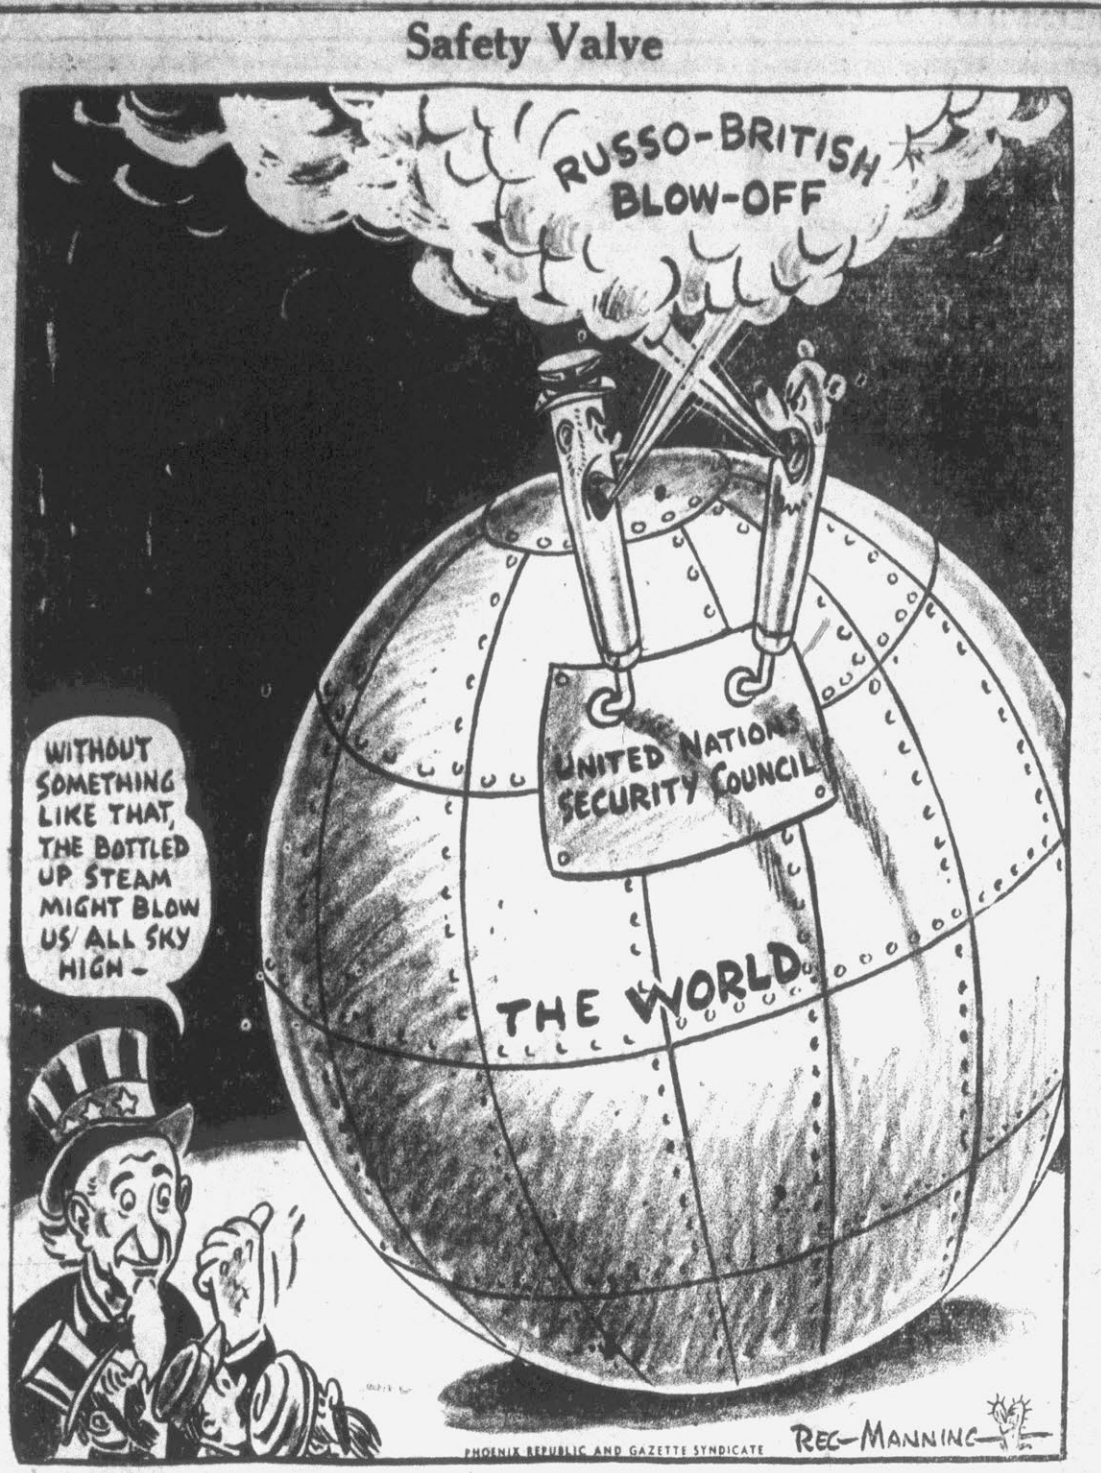

The Air Power League (APL), which is organizing rapidly throughout the nation to promote both civil and military aviation, has offered its help. Tentatively, APL has suggested that CAP use its state and local headquarters, rent free. This would solve one of the major CAP finance problems, but many CAP members and officials fear that this will mean absorption by APL.

In mid-February a national CAP committee will make its recommendations for perpetuation of the organization.

In the meantime, CAP is receiving around 5 new membership applications a day and about 75 per cent of these are veterans of the Army and Navy Air Forces.

CAP is a kind of Red Cross of the airways. Its oldest job on missions of mercy throughout the land. Its cadets get basic training which equips them to become pilots and ground workers.

No other organization quite fills that gap between amateur and professional interest in aviation.

Where Should the Pitt County Basketball Tournament Be Played?

A question has come up as to where the Pitt County Basketball Tournament should be held. It seems that the officials have decided to play the series of games in Farmville, which is entirely unfair. Most people, including many basketball players on the various teams of Pitt County, think it should be played on a neutral court such as the one at East Carolina Teachers College.

The reasons for this protest are:

- (1) It should be nearer the center of the county.
 - (2) It is not fair for a team to play on its home court.
 - (3) ECTC's gym has a far larger seating capacity than Farmville.
- To prove these points they are explained more fully below.
- (1) Last year many people did not get to go to the games for the simple reason that it was too far from their home town. There are no direct bus connections to Farmville from every point in the county. The basketball fans that didn't have a way could take a bus to Greenville.
- (2) Just as a librarian knows where each book is in the library, the Farmville players would know the characteristics of their court and goals. Hence, Farmville will have a much better chance to defeat their opponents.
- (3) The end of the war brought about the lifting of the rationing of gas and tires, therefore more people will likely go to the tournament. Farmville's gym, which was overcrowded last year, certainly would not have space for the additional

 Well, we saw the family pictures and talked about everything excepting the subject which she kept evading—her benefactions. It was only when we were visiting her big cow barn—for she is a dairy farmer—that she inadvertently gave us a chance to get her story by remarking that during the Nazi occupation Dutch underground agents lived beneath the great haymow.

That broke the ice and with the chauffeur's help we got the story by hard work. The widow not only had risked her life to help the underground cause but in that same haymow hunger marchers slept every night, unaware of the agents beneath them.

"Daily the widow took in these poor people, sometimes 20 or more at a time, but as she remarked simply: "They needed help."

She not only provided a place for them to sleep but they warmed themselves by her kitchen stove and she fed them as best she could from her supplies without cost. Even when she did not have sufficient food for her own family she still shared her home.

Most certainly it was through such as she that the Netherlands bore the torture of the Hitlerites. Likely fame will find her out, but it is pleasant to think of her as she waved to us through a window while her youngsters pressed eager nose against the panes—the unknown widow of Wervershoff who typifies the heart of Holland.

Congress May . . .

 Leaders, has promised CIO leaders there will be full Senate committee hearings on the Case measure.

Meanwhile the chairman, with backing of the Labor Committee, is delaying Senate action on "fact-finding" legislation, repeatedly requested by President Truman, until hearings are completed on the Case bill. Both provide, among other things, for cooling off periods in cases of major strike threats.

Third Co-Defendant

 signs that his attorney, J. Faison Thompson of Goldsboro, and Davenport "were in this thing together."

"Almost every day, she said, Davenport bought liquor on the black market at $10 to $14 a quart and gave it away to depositors. He also gave away baskets of fruits and produce to depositors, sometimes charging them to his personal account in the Big Apple store."

On cross-examination by Thompson, Mrs. Powers said she never saw Thompson and Davenport together, nor did she know of any money paid to Thompson by Davenport. However, other witnesses have testified that the Goldsboro branch carried a "freight and drayage account" which was used to pay Thompson's salary and to pay Goldsboro police. The police allegedly followed up letters mailed to delinquent borrowers by Thompson.

Under questioning by Thompson, Mrs. Powers said she never had any reason to believe Davenport's business was not legal, and added she would never have become connected with it in any capacity had she believed different.

She admitted she was the only employee of the firm which was authorized to write Davenport's signature on bank checks. The checks later were filled in and given to depositors, the sums covering the amounts of the deposits and considered as security for the deposits.

Telling of the indiscriminate handling of money taken in by the firm, she said that on one Saturday the New Bern office took in $27,000, and that the money was packed into an apple basket and placed in the boot of her car which, incidentally, was furnished her in her own name by Davenport. The money lay in the car over an entire weekend unguarded.

(Controls on most of these items were scheduled to have been lifted around April 1, 1946.)

Consumer goods—no suspension of textile or apparel items appears probable for the spring of 1947.

(Earlier, OPA had told the committee it hoped to give serious consideration to removal of these controls by April 1, 1946.)

Locals Play New Bern Here Tonight

Coach Bo Farley's Green Phantoms clash with the New Bern Bears here tonight in the Phantoms' ninth conference tilt of the current season. The two schools' junior teams will meet in a preliminary battle at 7 o'clock.

The Greens shouldn't have too much trouble chalking up their ninth conference and eleventh win of the season over a reputedly weak Bear five, but Coach Farley will start his usual boys in order to take no chances on spoiling a perfect record. Should the Phantoms score a resounding win tonight it will be sweet revenge for 19-12 and 7-6 licks from the Bears in football. Starters tonight will probably be Harrington and Batchelor at guards, Futrell and Williams at forwards, and Williams at center.

Sports

By The Associated Press
North Carolina climbed into a tie with Duke for the Southern Conference basketball lead last night, trimming a stubborn N. C. State quintet, 55-44.

The victory, 14th in a row for the Tar Heels, was their 23rd in 25 games this season.

Forward John Dillon, leading scorer in the State and Southern Conference races, added 15 points to his total to lead the Carolina scoring, and was followed closely by "Bones" McKinney, who racked up 17 for his highest total since he joined the Carolinians in mid-season.

North Carolina will be idle tonight, but will be host Wednesday night to V.P.I. in a game which, if won by the Tar Heels, would put them atop the Southern Conference race for the first time this season.

Duke, hosts tonight for Georgia Tech's always dangerous Engineers, will have another fling at a conference on Thursday night when they play Clemson. If both Carolina and Duke defeat their league opponents this week, they will enter a Saturday night White Phantoms-Blue Devil classic at Durham tied for the conference lead, with 12 wins and one loss each.

Elsewhere last night, Atlantic Christian dropped a 56-54 decision to the Kinston Marines, and Cherry Point's Marines, on a Florida invasion, lost to Jacksonville Naval Air Station, 49-29.

In South Carolina, Wofford trounced Presbyterian, 42-34; and Newberry turned back the Citadel, 61-50.

Last night's basketball scores:
North Carolina 55, North Carolina State 44.
Wofford 42, Presbyterian 34.
Newberry 61, Citadel 50.
Tennessee 53, Georgia 28.
Florida 66, Jacksonville Cavaliers 51.
Ouachita 50, Henderson 46, overtime.
Chattanooga 50, Hiwassee 47.

Chicago, Feb. 12—(AP)—Willie Hoppe and Jake Shaffer, both one-time world champions, were only three points apart today as they continued their 1,000-point three-cushion billiard match here.

Hoppe, who took a 50-44 lead in the first block of the match yesterday afternoon, dropped three points in last night's block to hold a 100-97 lead. The two will play two 50-point blocks daily for nine more days.

Greenville, S. C., Feb. 12—(AP)—Fort Bragg's 13th Airborne Division walked away with honors in the pen Division and the Florence team annexed the Novice Class title in the fifth annual Golden Gloves tournament, which ended here last night.

Pete Tatsy, 13th Division Open middleweight who defeated teammate Leon Thompson in an upset match, was awarded a trophy as the outstanding individual performer of the tourney. A crowd of 5,000 fans watched the finals of the tourney, which opened Friday and continued three days in big Textile aHil.

Milk Mixture For Stomach Ulcers

A recent medical discovery now being used by doctors and hospitals everywhere has proven unusually successful in the treatment of stomach ulcers caused from excess acid. It is a harmless preparation yet so effective that in many cases the pains of stomach ulcers disappear almost immediately after it is used. Also recommended for gas pains, indigestion and heartburn due to hyperacidity. Sufferers may now try this at home by obtaining a bottle of Lurin from their druggist. Lurin contains this new discovery in its purest form. Easy to take. Just mix two teaspoonsful in a half glass of milk. Costs but little. Try a bottle. It must satisfy or money refunded. Lurin for sale by Bissette's and drug stores everywhere.

J. B. James, Jr., Back From Japan

By CHESTER WALSH
T-S J. B. James Jr., U. S. Infantry, who was on Okinawa and in the airborne invasion of Japan a week after General MacArthur landed at Tokyo, who with his wife, recently visited his parents, Attorney J. B. James and Mrs. James, had some interesting experiences before and after the invasion.

"Reading the Greenville Reflector was one of the greatest comforts of the campaign," he said.

Describing the army's impressions when landings were made with the men fully armed, T-S James said, "We might as well have left the armaments behind. We were greeted in a friendly way by bowing and kowtowing Japanese, and had no trouble at all. The American invasion of Japan was one of the greatest gambles in warfare since the Siege of Troy in ancient times." The Greenville soldier said, "James' regiment, walked 10 or 12 miles to their destination, Zama, where the Japanese Military College is situated, and had an opportunity to observe the people and the countryside. They remained there two weeks and then proceeded to Muramatsu. Japanese children were very friendly in their greetings to the American soldiers."

Japanese families invited the Americans into their homes for tea and rice wine. The soldiers visited Geisha houses, "but we could hardly put them in the same category as Ann Miller or Eleanor Powell as entertainers," T-S James said.

Since returning to the United States James reenlisted in the army and has been assigned to the Second Engineers' Special Corps, and is stationed at San Luis Obispo, California.

Mrs. Lucy Bullock Claimed By Death

Mrs. Lucy Mayo Bullock, 71, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. H. O. Warren of near Stokes, at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon following six weeks' illness.

Funeral services will be conducted from her home, 304 East 14th street, at 3:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon by her pastor, Dr. H. G. Haney, pastor of Eighth Street Christian Church. Burial will follow in Greenwood Cemetery.

Mrs. Bullock spent her entire life in Pitt County and had lived in Greenville for the past 25 years, where she was well known.

Surviving are four sons, Clifton Bullock of Greenville, Clyde Bullock of Newport News, Va., William C. Bullock of Washington, D. C., and Nathan Bullock of Washington, D. C., two daughters, Mrs. H. O. Warren of near Stokes, and Mrs. J. C. Cutler of Hampton, Va.; 15 grandchildren, and one great-grandchild.

Victim Of Shooting Reported Improved

Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson said today he is holding in jail here Robert Daniel, Negro, on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill Roland Clemmons, Negro, in Pactolus last Saturday night.

Clemmons told officers Daniel shot him following an argument. The shot struck Clemmons about the knees, making gaping flesh wounds in both legs. He is in a Washington hospital and was today reported to be improving.

Daniel fled the scene shortly after the shooting. Deputy Sheriff Lloyd Manning apprehended him near Pactolus Monday. Deputy Cle-tus Jackson and ABC Officers J. M. Ward and L. Taylor assisted in the investigation.

First reports of the shooting indicated that Clemmons did the shooting. This was an error.

Scientists Prepare "Crossroads" Tests

Los Angeles, Feb. 12—(AP)—Scientists of the once-super-secret Manhattan project supervised today the stripping of five veterans of the wars for a new test, probably the most important of their valiant careers—atomic bombing.

In drydock to be prepared for the Bikini atoll experiments in May are the Battleships Nevada and Arkansas, heavy cruisers Pensacola and Salt Lake City and attack transport Oryntendon. Opposite them the sea-plane tenders Albemarle and Cumberland are being fitted as floating laboratories from which the scientists will direct "operation crossroads."

The 14-inch guns of the battleships and the eight-inch rifles of the cruisers will be left aboard, but smaller batteries and expensive equipment of other types are to be removed. Soon to go into drydock for similar stripping is the carrier Independence.

Human Eye Willed To Aid The Blind

Newark, N. J., Feb. 12—(AP)—A human eye taken at death from a man who had willed it to the eye bank for Sight Restoration, Inc., was rushed to the Manhattan Eye hospital in New York City early today after being flown here by Eastern Air Lines from Miami, Fla.

The name of the donor who died yesterday was not announced and at Manhattan hospital officials declined to discuss the operation to be attempted there in a move to restore sight to an unidentified person.

The Miami operation took place yesterday morning and the eye was placed in a sealed thermos jug maintained at a temperature of 40 degrees. The jug was placed aboard an Eastern Air Lines silverliner at 3:53 p. m. and arrived in the care of Capt. Henry Osmer, the pilot, at 11:51 p. m. at Newark airport.

Miss Blanche Gammell of New York City, an American Red Cross motor corps member, took the container to the hospital behind a motorcycle escort.

There was but one political party and one candidate for each position.

Humber Sees . . .

He insisted that the public must be considered in prices and that prices must decrease as costs decrease.

"Where are we integrated into that national picture?" Mr. Humber queried, rhetorically. Picturing the South in terms of its social and racial uniformity, he declared no section of the country is more wholesome.

At this point he mentioned the three handicaps that have held back the South since the War Between the States, using frequent numerical figures to make his point clear. Decrying the financially handicapped South, the speaker cited the instance of the handicap inflicted by the loss to the South of an estimated two billion dollars' worth of slaves during the war in the 1860s. At two per cent interest—and invested in industry, it would have earned much more—two billion would have drawn down to today $9 billion in interest, which the South might have had to present a better financial picture, he cited to make his point.

Mr. Humber mentioned the protective tariff and discriminatory freight rates and how they have kept the South back financially. Without the money to invest in industry "the absence of machinery and dependence on hand labor" accounts for our further lack of money and power in the South.

He cited figures which indicated considerable growth in spite of economic handicaps in North Carolina. Since 1900 the wealth of North Carolina has increased seven times. Our population has increased from 1,800,000 to 3,500,000.

To follow up this idea he traced the sources of the increases of wealth in the State. In passing, he quoted President Roosevelt's comment on North Carolina's being a balanced state—balance of agricultural income and industrial income. "The figures—$42 million dollars from industry and $38 million dollars from agriculture annually, reveal the balance."

One source was the tobacco in the North Carolina economy. Industrially, North Carolina rates first in textiles, third in furniture as additional sources. In spite of this, North Carolina rates 44th in per capita income in the Union, he added.

"I think it comes down to this—low wages on the farm. This holds the per capita income rate down. Here is the point I wish to consider: If we can pay $12 per day to steel workers, are we going to be willing to pay agricultural labor $3 or $4 a day? If we do, we will continue to fall behind in per capita income," Mr. Humber said.

Pursuing the economic plight of North Carolina further, as it is affected by wages, Mr. Humber cited the figure of 321,000 persons who left the State during the war period to secure more lucrative employment because higher wages could not be afforded them here. "If we are going to build solidly, we must afford them the same inducements." To choose farming, represents making two and one-half times less than industrial occupations.

Then the speaker turned to a presentation of an optimistic picture of the potentialities of North Carolina. He said "there are great potentialities in the Old North State in every field." He cited the attractive prospects for cattle raising in Eastern Carolina. Grapes, he indicated with actual figures, would be a most lucrative field. With the possibility of income of $600 per acre, with $200 per acre costs of production, with a wait of only four years to begin to earn, with six years to come to the figures mentioned, and with farm agents with contracts on hand for all Scuppernon grapes grown or which might be grown, grapes were made to appear as a profitable crop. Figs were mentioned as a likely item to produce in Eastern Carolina.

Mr. Humber pointed to the fish and shell industry and forestry products. He suggested better pay for school teachers in order to attract the best teachers.

In concluding, Mr. Humber said "I speak of wealth because it means power—the power to mold a more wholesome and happy life. I believe if we intelligently approach the problems—diversification of agriculture and development of industry—we can make North Carolina one of the leading states of the nation."
