SENATE SEP... AHEAD... PAULEY ISSUE

President Flatly Predicts Appointment Of Oil Man Will Be Confirmed

Washington, Feb. 16.—(AP)—President Truman set the stage today for the Senate's toughest political battle since the 1937 Supreme Court fight by sticking uncompromisingly to his nomination of Edwin W. Pauley for undersecretary of the navy.

Reluctant Senate Democrats saw a knock-down, drag-out job ahead, but Mr. Truman left them scant choice about taking sides after his emphatic declaration he expected Pauley to be confirmed.

In reaffirming his complete confidence in Pauley, Mr. Truman turned aside inquiries yesterday about his political plans for 1948, remarking that the question was a little previous. It was reminiscent of the way President Roosevelt used to parry questions about his third and fourth term intentions.

The President likewise was non-committal about the men he was considering in his search for a successor to Harold L. Ickes as secretary of the interior. The potential clue he yielded at his news conference yesterday was a remark that many legislators had recommended Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D-Wy) for the job.

Intimating that new evidence may somewhat challenge Ickes' charges against Pauley, Mr. Truman predicted flatly that the California oil man will be confirmed. He added, moreover, that Navy Secretary Forrestal recommended the appointment, and that Mr. Roosevelt originally had intended to make it.

Forrestal quickly issued a statement saying that when Mr. Pauley asked him to consider Pauley for the appointment, he replied he would prefer H. Struve Hensel, assistant secretary. Forrestal added he told Mr. Truman, after Mr. Roosevelt died, that he would "be agreeable" to the Pauley appointment.

Presumably the new evidence on the nominee would deal with Ickes' assertions that Pauley suggested to him in 1944 that men might raise $300,000 for the Democratic fund if the government did not.

Jap Gov't Sets Income Limits

Tokyo, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Under prodding of General MacArthur, the Japanese government took its first drastic steps today to control the shaky economy of a beaten country plagued by inflation and black markets.

Three imperial ordinances virtually froze bank accounts, required conversion of currency into new bank notes by March 7 and restricted distribution of foodstuffs to authorized channels.

The new government regulations abruptly will limit legal income amid rampant inflation. This undoubtedly will cause discomfort until prices decline in adjustment. Individual Japanese will have limited salaries and restricted bank withdrawals as their only currency, consequently will be unable to meet high prices.

The new ordinances will force all outstanding currency into recognized banking institutions from where recreation will be strictly limited. By converting present currency into new notes, the government apparently hopes to decrease the total amount in circulation and determine the banks' outstanding indebtedness.

Accepts Post

JOHN G. FLEMING

Pitt County Campaign Chairman Ty Wagner today announced that John G. Fleming had accepted the appointment as chairman for the Greenville 1946 Red Cross fund campaign. Mr. Fleming is a veteran of the Red Cross campaigns having most successfully headed the Greenville organization's campaign for the past four years. Mr. Fleming states that in assuming the chairmanship for the fifth consecutive time he is very optimistic in the forthcoming drive, which opens March 4th.

RISE IN FARM PRICES AHEAD

Senator Makes Forecast On Basis Of Higher Industrial Wages

Washington, Feb. 16.—(AP)—An "inevitable" drive to raise the price of farm commodities was forecast today by Senator Bankhead (D-Ala) as a result of the new national formula permitting higher industrial wages and prices.

Bankhead, a leader in agricultural legislation, claimed that the administration's revised economic policy would "increase tremendously the price of everything the farmer buys." Several other farm state lawmakers took the position that increases could not be allowed for two such major segments of the nation's economy as industry and industrial labor without extending similar benefits to farming, which constitutes a third.

Highway Patrolmen Are Urging Safety

The State Highway Patrol, under command of Lieut. Lester Jones, is conducting a "safety campaign" in all of the 27 counties of the North-eastern district. The patrolmen, with cooperation of other authorities, are distributing copies of a reprinted article from The Reader's Digest entitled, "And Sudden Death," and warning motorists to drive carefully and help to avoid the heavy toll of deaths and injuries and damage to property each week-end.

Everybody should read "And Sudden Death." It teaches a lesson in safety which will inspire any motorist who reads it to be careful. If a highway patrolman stops you on the highway or elsewhere between now and Sunday night, remember—he is seeking your cooperation in making the highways and streets safer.

GMC AND CIO HEADS CONFER AGAIN TODAY

Corporation And Union Heads Agree To "Sit It Through To The Finish"

Detroit, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Special mediator James F. Dewey today called to top officials of General Motors Corp. and the CIO United Auto workers back into a huddle which, he predicted, "could" end in a settlement of the 88-day GM strike.

For the second straight day corporation representatives were headed by President C. E. Wilson and the union delegation was led by President R. J. Thomas. Dewey said both had agreed to "sit through to the finish."

Although the U. S. Steel Corp. strike settlement was largely discounted by the special mediator as an important influence on the GM dispute, union leaders hailed it as a factor which would hasten an agreement.

Particular significance was attached by some observers to the fact that for the first time since he entered the dispute two weeks ago Dewey plans to stay in Detroit over the week-end. The mediator said "night and day sessions—Sunday included" would be held if necessary.

Thomas said there was "nothing to report" that the union would agree to an 18 1/2 cents an hour (16 1/2 per cent) increase for the 175,000 striking GM workers, providing other issues were ironed out satisfactorily. The UAW turned down such a GM offer Tuesday, demanding at least 19 1/2 cents (17 1/2 per cent) as recommended by a presidential fact-finding board.

Automotive competitors of General Motors looked to the agreement with U. S. Steel as a means of paying the way for full production. (Continued on page three)

Davenport Trial Re-Opens Monday

The trial of Roderick Davenport was in week-end recess today and indications were that the state would return him to the stand Monday for cross-examination in its attempt to convict him on felony charges of conspiracy to defraud and fraud by false pretense.

Davenport, who operated a large jewelry business in eastern North Carolina in 1944, testified yesterday that he actually net more than $250,000, as against $160,000 he accepted from depositors.

He said that for about six months in 1944, he paid out $150,000 in interest to thousands of depositors and had debts outstanding totaling about $75,000 on August 29, when his business was closed under court order.

Davenport's impounded records were brought into court yesterday under order of Judge J. Paul Fritzel, and will be used by the defense in an effort to prove his solvency.

Bermuda Base To Have Latest Planes

Hamilton, Bermuda, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Major Gen. Laurence S. Kuter, commander of the Atlantic Division of the U. S. Army Air Transport Command, said today 5,000 Air Force personnel would be based permanently at nearby Kindley Field. Forty or 50 B-29 Super Fortresses and two fighter squadrons of the latest type planes probably jet-propelled—also will be based at the field, under a program which may commence in July, he said.

Whiskey Rationing Depends On Demand

Raleigh, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Whether rationing of whiskey will be resumed in ABC stores in North Carolina's 25 wet counties will depend on public demand, Carl Williamson, State ABC Board chairman, said yesterday.

Based predictions on announcements of greatly curtailed grain supplies in this country, Williamson said that present allocations of some brands of aged whiskeys may be received until July 1, but stocks of cheap, current whiskeys probably will diminish.

Soldier Sentenced For Murder Of Jap

Yokohama, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Pfc. Robert L. Dickens, 27, Negro, of Memphis, Tenn., was sentenced Thursday by a general court martial to life imprisonment and dishonorable discharge after being convicted on a charge of murdering a middle-aged Japanese in Tokyo, the Eighth Army announced today.

Dickens, member of the 71st Quartermaster Depot Unit, was convicted on the testimony of two soldier companions, a Japanese doctor, the Japanese widow, and two Japanese boys.

Canada Moves To Plug Leak Of Atom Secrets

Royal Canadian Mounted Police Make Arrests In Attempt To Keep Secrets From Unnamed "Foreign Countries"

Ottawa, Feb. 16.—(AP)—The Canadian government moved swiftly today to plug a leak of secret and confidential information which an authoritative source said involved handing over atomic secrets to the Russians.

The disclosure of the move came last night after the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, striking suddenly, had rounded up 22 employees and former employees of Canadian government departments and agencies.

Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King announced the appointment of two royal commissioners to conduct a thorough investigation and promised the government would institute prosecution "in cases in which the evidence warrants it."

In his announcement, the prime minister mentioned neither atomic energy nor Russia, but authoritative sources, which cannot be named, said both were concerned.

The investigation has been going on under cover since shortly after the war ended, informed quarters said, and the prime minister was reported to have discussed the leak with President Truman in Washington.

The atomic bomb was developed through the combined efforts of United States, British and Canadian scientists, and therefore a number of Canadians are familiar with the atomic secrets.

Babson Discusses Reserves

Babson Park, Fla., Feb. 15.—Too many people are careless with their money today, both in connection with investing and spending. Some "wise boys" are even unnecessarily borrowing money with the idea of paying up their mortgages with "phony" money when, as, and if inflation becomes rampant. Such policies are the biggest kind of gambling.

Advice to Small Business Men. Big business, which has had experience in Germany, France and other countries that have really suffered from inflation, will not get caught. It has learned from sad experience the great need of large reserves during an inflation period. In fact, as inflation advances, every concern should more than proportionally increase its reserves.

This especially applies to small business men who have not extensive credit facilities. They now fail to realize that when inflation gets well under way it will be very difficult to get credit either from banks or from wholesalers. As prices will then be going up without notice, and goods will be worth more than money, wholesalers will give no credits. All goods must be bought on a strictly cash basis. This means that a business will need more working capital than at present.

Advice to Wage Workers. Wage workers also need to lay up reserves during the next two or three years as well as do their employers. Systematically save a portion of your weekly wages. Some day you will be confronted with a lot of unemployment. Now is the time for you and your family to prepare for it and lay a reserve aside in bank accounts or Victory Bonds.

Don't be content to build up only money reserves. When unemployment starts in again the least efficient workers will be let go first. Those who show the most interest in, and knowledge of, their work will be kept and promoted. Ask your boss to recommend some trade paper to which you can subscribe or some correspondence course which will help you. Store up knowledge in your head as well as money in the bank.

What About Inventories? The average retailer now is carrying only a portion of the items normally carried. Moreover, the supplies of these items are much less than normal. Putting these two factors together it will be seen that much more capital will be required to carry a normal inventory as inflation progresses.

Certain big corporations now have the reserves to weather the inflation storm; but this is not so with the small merchant or manufacturer. Many small stores will some day be crowded out. This will not be due to "bigness" but because the large concerns are now saving their profits and are paying small dividends while the little ones are pulling out all their profits for their families to spend foolishly.

What Are the Best Reserves? There are many ways for small business men to store up reserves. What I have said above to wage workers applies also to shopkeepers and little manufacturers. Now is the time to spend money and hours on study to become more efficient in your own line. Of course, money in the bank is always a good reserve. Non-perishable and standard inventories are good reserves to have stored away.

During the troublesome years that business will some day encounter, other reserves than money or merchandise will be needed. Looking back over my 50 years in active business, I am greatly impressed with the relationship between physical reserves and business success. Unknown men who have the physical reserves to "take the gaff" rather than the "brilliant leaders" are the ones who survive panics and depressions.

Let's Not Forget Spiritual Reserves. I must say a word about all-important spiritual reserves. There is an old saying: "Troubles never come singly." When things are going well it is easy to forget God and the Church and Prayer. Then when troubles come we complain because we cannot quickly get that all-powerful help from Faith for which we are so hungry. To enjoy spiritual help in time of trouble, we must build it up in our daily lives when things are going well. Before going to bed tonight read in your Bible how Jesus ended up. His famous Sermon on the Mount as told in Matthew, Chapter 7, verses 24-29.

Steel Settlement Starts Wheels Of Reconversion

Bulletins

Batavia, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Dutch troops made an unopposed landing at Salajar Island, south of Celebes, last Tuesday and repulsed an attack by 200 Indonesians Thursday, it was learned today. The situation in Java, where Indonesians are considering a Netherlands offer to establish a commonwealth, remained comparatively quiet.

London, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Reuters said today the Vatican had announced that cardinal-designate Josef Mindsbenty, archbishop of Strigonia and primate of Hungary, had been refused Russian permission to leave Hungary to attend the consistories in Rome.

Churchill, Man., Feb. 16.—(AP)—The Canadian army's motorized musk ox force has set a six-mile-an-hour pace on the first leg of its 3,100-mile arctic tour.

A radio report after the 12 snow vehicles started, said the party had reached a position 36 miles north of Churchill without incident. The journey will take the force near the magnetic pole.

End Of 25-Day-Old U. S. Steel Strike Is Based on 18 1/2 Cents Average Hourly Wage Increase, With Corporation Getting $5-A-Ton Increase In Steel Prices

By HAROLD W. WARD Washington, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Final settlement of the troublesome U. S. Steel strike today jarred the nation's stalled reconversion bandwagon back into motion again.

Administration leaders were jubilant over the termination of the dispute, for they looked for a salutary reaction in the strikebound automobile and electric manufacturing industries.

"Big Steel," as U. S. Steel is known, has long been considered the bell—whether of American business and other enterprises were expected to follow, as in the past, the broad general pattern it set.

The end of the 25-day-old U. S. Steel strike was announced last night on behalf of President Truman by Reconversion Director John W. Snyder. The settlement was on the basis of an 18 1/2 cents average hourly wage increase previously recommended by the President, with the corporation getting a compensatory $5-a-ton increase in steel prices.

The settlement applied only to approximately 130,000 U. S. Steel employees, but it opened the way for the return to work of some 620,000 striking CIO steelmen employed by other companies.

CIO President Philip Murray announced that collective bargaining will begin with the rest of the industry today, and another unquibbled CIO official predicted that agreements would be reached with all the key steel companies by the middle of next week. It was made plain, however, that strikes would continue at all these companies until agreements have been signed.

U. S. Steel meanwhile was reported already heating its furnaces back up, and some CIO men said the corporation would be ready to resume making steel by Tuesday, although full production probably will not be reached for two weeks.

Officially the U. S. Steel strike will end at 12:01 a.m., Monday, Feb. 18—the same hour to the minute that it began on Jan. 21.

The settlement climaxed two weeks of secret negotiations in the U. S. Steel's suite at the Carlton Hotel, three blocks from the White House. (Continued on Page Two)

Chinese Parade In Protest Of Soviet

Russian Troops In Manchuria Is Target Of Demonstration; U. S. To Aid Chinese Troop Movements

Chungking, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Chungking witnessed its first demonstration against the Russians today as the turbulent Manchurian situation reached a boiling point and China was given American support in a request to move more troops into that vast area.

Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, U. S. commander in China, told a press conference that General Marshall approved the request to move more Chinese armies into Manchuria. He did not elaborate.

Two hours later a Chinese Communist spokesman charged that Government forces, preparing to seize Yingkou, important port, and five other Manchurian towns, had clashed with Communists. He said the Communists had withdrawn from Panshan and Taian "to avoid aggravating the conflict."

Almost simultaneously, 400 members of the Manchurian Guild marched through Chungking streets to government headquarters and presented nine demands. It was the first public demonstration ever seen here against the Russians.

The paraders carried banners inscribed "We demand withdrawal of Soviet troops from Manchuria."

(Soviet forces are reported preparing to remain in Manchuria until June 1, although they had been scheduled to turn over administration of the territory on Feb. 1. However, the Yalta agreement gives Russia joint control with China of two railroads in Manchuria. There are unofficial reports that the Russians have made economic demands upon China. Chiang Kai-Shek said yesterday Sino-Soviet discussions are in progress, but did not elaborate.)

Police did not interfere with the demonstrators but took care to see that no untoward incidents occurred.

Observers attached importance to the demonstration as marking a possible start in a nationwide movement against any concessions to Russia going beyond terms of the Sino-Soviet treaty.

Stelle Calls For Committee Meet

Indianapolis, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Commander John Stelle of the American Legion plans to tell his executive committee tomorrow why he thinks the hornet's nest he stirred up by an attack on the Veterans' Administration should be prodded again now and—once a month thereafter.

The committee, the Legion's policy-making body between conventions, will meet in special session only the fifth time since the first World War.

Stelle called the meeting after his demands for a congressional investigation of what he called a "tragic breakdown" in the Veterans' Administration brought a sharp report from Gen. Omar N. Bradley, VA administrator, that he doubted Stelle's views were those of the Legion.

The WORLD TODAY An Analysis Of The News

By DEWITT MACKENZIE AP World Traveler

Amsterdam, Feb. 16.—Holland has taken a terrible beating from the Huns, but finally has a solid footing on the energy path to recovery and the indications are that with good crops this coming season she will do relatively well—a long way from normal, mind you, but headed safely in the right direction.

That is our summary of the position, having had a chance to look things over. As I sat down to write this article I asked my distaff partner what her outstanding impression of Holland was, and got an unexpected reply.

"It's that I have heard a lot of young folk singing in the streets," Mrs. Mack said, "and you see people smiling and even laughing everywhere. That's an astonishing thing to find in a country which has suffered so much as Holland."

Well, I guess she's right. The Dutch have been hurt so badly that it doesn't take much easement to make them happy.

Morale is tops in Holland, and is getting better with the approach of spring. It's nearing tulip time in Haarlem and we've seen the growers working diligently and lovingly over their bulbs.

So far as material things go, the best indication is that there no longer is actual hunger in the country. That doesn't mean that there is anything like enough food, for there is a great scarcity of most things and rations are terribly tight. Still, the starvation of a year ago has been beaten.

There has been lack of nourishment and the result has been much illness and death from pneumonia and other diseases. To cap the misery, the whole country has suffered from cold. Coal, of course, is one of the crying needs of all Europe. Holland's plight is strikingly illustrated by the fact that the shortage of electricity forces the street cars to quit running at 6 o'clock in the evening and on Sundays they don't run at all.

The record of fuel shortage has been chiseled in crude and astonishing form on the face of Amsterdam. When the war started there were some 80,000 of more people living in the famous and picturesque Jewish quarter. All these and scores of thousands in other parts of the country were carried off to Germany. Only about 220,000 of these persecuted folk have returned to Holland and most of the rest are (Continued on page two)

The NATION TODAY By James Marlow

(Editor's Note: This is the second of two stories on the new employment bill which the President was expected to sign into law today. It used to be called the "full employment" bill.)

By JAMES MARLOW Washington, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Congress faced a revolutionary social step when it set out to consider a bill which said:

1. Every American able to work had a right to a job.

2. The government would assure jobs for everyone.

3. The government would make jobs, if necessary, to provide full employment.

This was the full employment bill first introduced a year ago. Congress, which is generally conservative and not given to sudden revolutionary steps, took a look at the bill and shook its head. The government had never undertaken anything like that before although during the depression of the 1930s it set up the WPA to provide jobs. But that was an emergency measure. The government has never planned in good times, like the present, to prevent unemployment in bad times, which may lie ahead. But Congress decided this:

It would be all right to plan year by year to prevent widespread unemployment, provided Congress had the final say on how—or if—the plan should be carried out and whether the government would spend money on it.

For the so-called full employment bill it substituted one called the employment bill. It doesn't say anything about everyone having a "right" to a job. And it doesn't assure anyone of a job.

And it doesn't say anything about the government's spending money to make jobs. But the bill does say the government has a responsibility in trying to see that there is maximum employment.

Sponsors of the full employment bill weren't happy about the changes but accepted the substitute and Congress passed it. The President was expected to sign it into law today.

The bill has plenty of loopholes, but this generally is how the new employment law will work: An economic council of three men—appointed by the President—will watch the country's economic condition and decide what's necessary to keep it good or make it better. This means: How to have maxi-

HYPOCRISY
Hypocrisy, in the minds of most people is regarded as the most despicable of all vices and is passionately inveterate against those who consider themselves free from its taint.

Many self-appointed prosecutors of hypocrites accuse professing Christians of being the worst offenders. With a sneer they point out the profound contrast between the professions of certain pious people and their everyday actions.

No one, of course, would want to defend hypocrisy. But it is only fair to point out that Christians, because of the high ideals to which they aspire, often lay themselves open to accusations of guilt which are not made against those who profess no religious faith.

Christians set up for themselves high standards. But because they are only human and best by sins is all men are, they inevitably fail to realize these ideals. Accordingly, the world regards them as hypocrites. It would be much easier, of course, for a Christian to say to himself, "I am a sinful man and always will be, so why should I try to be anything else?" This attitude would absolve him of any charge of hypocrisy in the eyes of the world, but it would also constitute a denial of his Christian faith.

No, it is the Christian's task to make higher professions than he can live up to, to strive for higher ideals than he can reach. Only one man ever succeeded in this task, the son of God, and it led him to the cross.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By JACK STINNETT

By ARTHUR EDSON
(For Jack Stinnett)

Washington—Notes jotted down while wandering about the wilds of Washington:
Your congressman's doctor thinks he knows a way to improve his patient's health and to provide better government. His plan gives the congressman pensions.

"Security means a lot to anyone," says Dr. George W. Calver, Capitol physician.
"Put yourself in a congressman's place. You're getting older. You haven't managed to save much money. You know that the public is sickle and that you may be booted out at any time."

Calver reasons that if a congressman were assured of a pension, no matter how the elections turned out he'd be relieved of one of his major personal worries.
With this fretting out of the way, Calver says, a congressman would have (a) better health and (b) more time for the world's biggest business, the U. S. government.

Rep. Albert J. Engel (R-Mich) thinks plumping offers a foolproof way to keep desirable hired help.
Engel owns a filling station and a resort back in Michigan. When he gets a good worker, he aims to keep him.
So?
So he has built a nice home—with a fine, modern bathroom—for his helper.
"Now if he ever decides he wants to leave, do you know what will happen?" asks Engel. "His wife will take one look at that nice house, with its fine bathroom, and she'll say, 'Nope.'"
"They'll stay."

Charles A. Plumley, Vermont's only representative, says his constituents are about as opinionated as any group in the country.
"A Vermonteer certainly has a mind of his own," says Plumley, himself a Vermonteer for these past 70 years.
"It takes them a little while to reach a decision. Then they write, 'Dear Charley,' and give it to me."
One of the most interesting bits of reasoning Plumley has come across lately was by a woman who had decided she was against any plan for a nationalized health program. She wrote:
"Dear Charley: No surgeon general of the United States is going to tell me when to have a baby." Echnslav Martinu, distinguished Czech composer, has written a new piece, "Thunderbolt—P-47," for the first time recently by Washington's national symphony orchestra.

The World Today

Well, during the last year of the German occupation with the Jewish quarter vacated and the rest of Amsterdam freezing, people tore down a large number of the old brick houses to get the wood finishing for fuel. They worked so methodically from the roofs down that nothing but the bricks are left and there was no haphazard or wanton destruction.

Steel Settlement

The settlement agreement was for a period of one-year, expiring Feb. 15, 1947.
U. S. Steel's President Benjamin F. Fairless said the wage increase will amount to approximately $32 per employee for each full month of work, and described the boost as the largest in the industry's history.

Murderer Dies In N.C. Gas Chamber

Raleigh, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Walter Hightower, 39-year-old Negro, was executed today for the knife murder of a fellow-convict in Wilkes County prison camp.
Hightower was convicted last August of slaying William Bunker, Negro short-temper, whom Hightower bludgeoned for causing him to spend time in a dark cell. Hightower was serving a 5-30-year sentence imposed in Guilford County for the murder of a Negro woman in 1939.

RESOURCEFUL

Kansas City, Feb. 15.—(AP)—William Robert Endsley, now 16, spent 21 months in the Navy under his sister's name, which he used for enlistment when he was 14.
Now he has been discharged as minor, still one-year shy of legal enlistment age.
The youth explained that he used the birth certificate of his 17-year-old sister, Sammy Louise Endsley, after erasing the "e" in Louise.
Mrs. Mary Endsley disapproved strongly but said her son's pleas persuaded her not to notify the Navy until after the war with Japan was over.
In the early 1800's, no newspaper had a circulation of 1,000.

The Fourth Mrs. Baker

By Ernest Adams

Chapter 30
(Wednesday 2:35 a. m. to 4:15 a. m.)
She reflected dimly that someone was on the window sill—only a tense lurching arm kept that person from falling as Robey had fallen. But the knowledge seemed to come from far away. It was a nightmare and did not greatly concern her.

"What do you want?"
"That was the Inspector which proved that it was a dream because he wasn't here."
"Toss me your gun, quick."
There was a faint sound as something struck the rug and at the same time the arm which held her started to pull away.

"Julia!"
It was a desperate and demanding cry and it pierced the sense of unreality that held her. She lifted her head and pain shot through her as someone clutched her hair. For an instant she was suspended in space, held only by the mass of curls on top of her head. Then she was pulled through the window and laid unceremoniously on the floor. When she opened her eyes it was still dark so she closed them again and tried to quiet her shaking body. She heard rushing feet and loud voices. Above the noise came the sound of two shots. Then everything faded.

When she opened her eyes again the lights were on and she was lying on her bed with a blanket thrown over her. Grace was pouring brandy unsteadily against her lips and it ran out at the corner of her mouth. She swallowed. It was fiery and life giving.

"How's that?" Grace asked.
"Better."
"Here, Ginnie, you need it, too." Grace poured the glass half full and banded it across Julia to the girl on the other side of the bed.
"I'm sorry," Julia said.
Virginia's skin was drawn over her fine bones tautly.

"I think I already knew it because I didn't feel surprised."
Suddenly Julia sat straight up. "Where's the Inspector? Is he all right?"
"Oh, for God's sake you're supposed to keep quiet, Julia," flared Grace, then subsided. "I'll tell you if you'll lie down." She pushed Julia back on the cushions. "Are you hearing for the handsome Inspector before Robey's even buried? Servus him right." She did not say who. "He got shot but just enough to make him look like a hero. Wau-cel and some police surgeon are in there now dressing the wound. He got Frank after Frank shot him. How did he get the Inspector's gun?"
Julia told them as briefly as she could.

"A sort of an accessory," Virginia said. The brandy had brought some color into her face. "Frank told all before they took him away. I think he liked the drama and he never had a better audience."
"He took a ticket from Robey's look when he married this Adelaide somebody. That was before his wife died and this gal had some money he wanted to get his hands on so he used Robey's name. He used the money to back 'Pins and Pyramids.' It took poor dumb Adelaide eight years to find out that Robert C. Baker was Robey's real name and she came on to New York from the West. The day Robey was killed Frank ran into her near here and went with her to the Janis Hotel."
"And pitched her out the window?" finished Grace. "Want another brandy, Ginnie?"
"No, I'm going to be sick."
Virginia stumbled toward the bathroom and Grace, following her, demanded, "Where's that damn doctor?"

Queen Victoria did not know that she one day would be ruler of Great Britain until she was 12 years old, when she heard it during a history lesson.

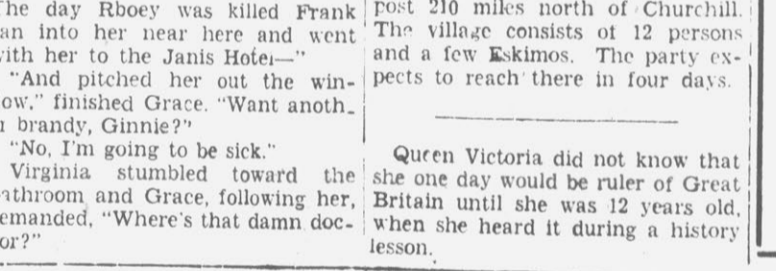

Expedition Goes On Arctic Trek

Churchill, Manitoba, Feb. 15.—(AP)—The Canadian Army's muck ox operation—47 men traveling in 12 streamlined snow vehicles—headed north across Hudson Bay ice today on the first leg of an 81-day, 3,100-mile experimental trip through the uncharted wastes of Arctic Canada.

A cannonade from two ancient six-pounders in the public square of this bleak northern trading post sent the party off under sunny skies in 43 below zero weather that had moderated from yesterday's severer of the winter.

The immediate objective was Eskimo Point, a Hudson Bay trading post 210 miles north of Churchill. The village consists of 12 persons and a few Eskimos. The party expects to reach there in four days.

W. S. Tyson Becomes Solicitor Of Labor Washington, Feb. 16 — (AP) — William S. Tyson, of Greenville, N. C., a Department of Labor attorney since 1939, was sworn in yesterday as solicitor of Labor after seven months as the Department's acting counsel.

Tyson, who has been associated with government legal work since 1933, has held Labor Department posts in Charlotte and Raleigh, N. C. In 1942 he came to Washington as senior attorney in the Opinions Section of the Solicitor's Office and became assistant solicitor in 1944. He was made acting solicitor in July of last year.

He is a graduate of the University of North Carolina law school.

Aviation Training Is Offered In Army There is no place in the world where young men can get more complete training in aviation than they are given in the U. S. Army Air Forces. This fact was revealed today by Lt. James B. Pagett, Rets. and 1st. Officer at Greenville Recruiting Station.

"The Army Air Forces are the greatest aviation organization in the world," he said. "We're not only keeping abreast of every important new development in the science of flying, but we are specializing in every skill and trade which pertains even remotely to aviation."

"This means that young men entering the Army Air Forces are given the opportunity to study any of scores of subjects which would not be available to them elsewhere."

Elaborating on the educational advantages, Lt. James B. Pagett pointed out that, in addition to flying crew training, which is offered to many men who enter the Air Forces, there are such specialists as radar technicians; radio operators; repairmen and mechanics; airport control tower operators; communications technicians; meteorologists; electrical and mechanical aircraft engineers; television operators and many others.

"There is undoubtedly an enormous future in civilian and commercial aviation," continued Lt. Pagett. "Young men can best prepare themselves for careers in this growing industry by enlisting in the Army Air Forces. They will not only receive the finest possible training, but they will also be paid while they are learning. Their education will cost them nothing, and they will receive their food, clothes, and quarters free.

"Under the GI Bill of Rights, they may also attend either a college or trade or business school at Government expense after they leave the Army."

"It's an opportunity that's pretty hard to beat," he concluded.

Singers Made Hit At Kiwanis Meet

By CHESTER WALSH A Hollywood audience would have enjoyed the musical program presented by Dan Varnholt and four talented young singers at the Kiwanis Club's weekly supper meeting last night.

They were Josephine Gibson, known to hundreds of music lovers as "Jo" Gibson; Mimi Tripp, Sallie Margaret Johnson, and Mary Elaine Justice. Mrs. Karl Gilbert was accompanist at the piano. They sang one wonderful number and gave as an encore, Victor Herbert's "Thine Alone."

"Thine Alone," Jo Gibson sang as a solo. "All the Things You Are," and displayed exceptional ability. The musical presentation was one of the best the Kiwanians have heard in years. Dan Varnholt's leading in the group singing made a hit.

Chairman Hunter Keck flavored his musical program with several numbers by the Kiwanians. These were: "We're Here For Fun," and "Let Me Call You Sweetheart" and "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes."

Mrs. Ray Tyson played for the singing of Kiwanis songs. President Ed Rawl presided. Dan Varnholt, head of the music department at ETC, directed the singers.

Special guests of the club were President Charles Hotchkiss, Vice-President Alex Allen and Secretary Seth Barrow of the Farmville Kiwanis Club.

Incidentally, this was one of the best meetings in a long time and the attendance was 100 per cent.

President Rawl announced that the Kiwanis Club will attend the annual banquet of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce at East Carolina teachers College on Friday night, March 15.

Medical And Dental Society Hold Meet

The Pitt County Medical and Dental Society held its regular monthly meeting Thursday night at Proctor Hotel in Greenville. Dr. P. P. Brooks, the president, presided.

The scientific program consisted of a symposium on electrocardiography. "History and Fundamental Principles of the Electrocardiogram," by Dr. Brooks; "Interpretation of the Electrocardiogram," by Dr. D. B. Armistead. A report was made on the work of the Pitt County Health Department for January by Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, health officer.

The health officer stressed the fact that home visiting in general, and especially school follow-up work, was materially restricted on account of the shortage in the nursing force. He also said the health department is badly in need of sanitary force.

Dr. Francis L. Norris who recently became associated with Dr. Joseph Smith of Greenville was nominated for membership in the society.

Diamonds were first added to wedding rings by the vegetarians.

The Fall Guy BY JOE BARRY

Chapter 1 "No," said Rush Henry. "No, Mr. Germaine. This isn't the kind of work I do."

Paul Joseph St. John Germaine frowned. "It is my understanding that you will take any case, if it interests you and the money offered is sufficient. I'll stand a certain amount of holding up in this case."

Rush smiled but the smile didn't reach his eyes. "Perhaps the mistake is on my part. It didn't seem logical that you would pay my price for an elementary job of shadowing. So, as you say, I'll hold you up."

"Agreed. Name your price." "My usual rates are fifty dollars a day and expenses. It'll cost you double."

"When can you start?" "Just as soon as you tell me why you are so anxious to have your daughter followed."

"Let me give you a little background, Henry. I presume that you will keep whatever I have to say, in the utmost confidence."

An angry light lit Rush's eyes. "You wouldn't have called me here today if you didn't already know the answer to that question."

"No offense, Henry. Mr. Daley of the Express gave you the highest recommendation. He paused for a moment searching for words.

"Until a month ago," Germaine said, "I thought that Leslie was growing up as any normal girl should, in her position, when I received a tremendous shock that brought me up short. He reached into the desk drawer behind him and brought out a sheet of heavy notepaper folded twice. He tossed it across to Rush. "This, I think, will explain."

Rush unfolded the paper and read: "Get your daughter out of my hair. She has been hanging around here for six months getting in my customers' way. She hints that she might like to work for them once in a while. The little devil scares me. Call her off."

Rush looked at the note and there was a question in his eyes. "I have known Marko for a great many years. I have occasionally had business with some of his customers."

"This does make it a little different," Rush said. "What, exactly, do you want me to do?"

"I want you to find out where she goes and whom she sees. When you learn everything, I want you to buy or frighten every wretched one of them into having absolutely nothing to do with Leslie."

"That," Rush said, "is a large order. How do you expect to handle Leslie when I have done my end of the job?"

"I think that an iron hand minus the velvet glove will handle the situation, once you get your end taken care of."

"Rush didn't think so. He thought a psychanalysis was indicated, but he was being paid for something else so he kept still."

"Is there something else you'd like to know before you begin?" "No," said Rush, "but, I'd like to search her room for anything I can find that will give me something to go on."

"I'll take you there now." They climbed a winding staircase to a long hall. Leslie's door stood slightly ajar and Germaine threw it open.

"There, I'd rather not come in, if you don't mind." "Okay," said Rush. "I'll come by your study on my way out."

"I'll have a check for you." At first glance it was an ordinary room, such as any girl of eighteen might have. Then the room changed. A faint sensuous perfume rose to his nostrils. He took a step to a bookcase beside the bed and read the titles. Kraft-Ebing, Freud, and a well worn poorly printed, Studies in Criminal Psychology. Now where had an eighteen-year-old girl gotten that collection of books, and why? He went to the chest and pulled out drawers. Lingerie, blouses, hosiery, jewelry, nothing else. The desk gave him nothing but a sheaf of photographs. He noted a surprisingly voluptuous figure for her age and a slightly vicious look about the face. She didn't look like a happy person. Rush went to the bathroom adjoining. Behind the usual beauty aids in the cabinet set in one wall he found a bright metal and glass hypodermic needle. He hesitated for a moment, then put it back.

Germaine was waiting for him in a moment, check in hand. "Will that be enough for a retainer?" "Rush looked no further than the three zeroes and the word 'before' there in the corner of the slip of paper.

"That will carry me for a while," he said. "I'll have an itemized account at the end."

"I've been thinking of the end, Henry. As an added incentive to reaching that end, I'll give you a thousand dollars for every day over ten that you take for the completion of the assignment."

RUSSIA SEES PEACE THREAT

London, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Soviet Russia told the United Nations today 120,000 Polish troops under British command remained in Italy and that they constituted a possible threat to peace, calm and order on the Yugoslav-Italian frontier.

Polish Troops In British Command Called Danger To World Peace

The memorandum did not request action by the Security Council, but it came a day after Britain had received from Poland a demand that Polish troops in Italy and Britain be returned to their homeland. The British foreign office had estimated at 107,000 the number of Poles in Italy.

The United States, meanwhile asked the council to settle the dispute over the Levant with a declaration expressing confidence that it would be negotiated promptly and that French and British troops would be withdrawn "as soon as practicable." Syria and Lebanon have charged that the troops endanger peace, and therefore are a subject for council action.

Russia asked for amplification of the American proposal, and Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., agreed to give further details at a session tonight. British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin observed:

"I have an itemized account at the end."

"I've been thinking of the end, Henry. As an added incentive to reaching that end, I'll give you a thousand dollars for every day over ten that you take for the completion of the assignment."

"Fair enough," Rush said, and turned to go. "Expense has no bearing on your conduct of this case. I have a great deal of money and I'll spend all of it, if necessary, to accomplish what I have set out to do."

"Right," said Rush, and left. At the large, wrought iron gateway he turned left and headed for the Outer Drive, intent on hailing a bus for the Loop. Then he remembered the check in his pocket and grinned. He hailed a passing cab and leaned back against the leather seat.

"The Express building," he said. To Be Continued

Truck Sideswiped Car On Highway

Highway patrolmen today said they arrested H. M. Bowen, Route 1, Ayden, last night, and charged him with driving while drunk, reckless driving and hit-and-run. He will be tried in County Court.

Patrolmen Teague and Massengill said Bowen, driving a truck loaded with beer, sideswiped a car driven by Louis D. Buckner of Tennessee, ex-serviceman who had just received an honorable discharge from the army. Buckner's car was considerably damaged. The collision occurred last night about 9:30, two miles west of Farmville on highway 264.

Story Of Night Of Dec. 6th Told

Washington, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Senator Ferguson (R-Mich) proposed today that congressional investigators recheck Adm. Harold R. Stark on whether President Roosevelt notified him the night before Pearl Harbor that Japan seemed ready to strike.

Before the Pearl Harbor inquiry was surprise testimony that Mr. Roosevelt looked over some freshly-intercepted Japanese messages that evening and said: "This means war."

The testimony came from Cmdr. Lester R. Schulz who also told the committee that while he was in the President's White House study the evening of December 6, 1941, Mr. Roosevelt tried to get Stark by telephone.

In brief this was the account that held committee members in close attention: A pouch of intercepted Japanese code messages was delivered at the White House from the Navy Department about 9:30 p. m., and five minutes later Schulz delivered the papers to Mr. Roosevelt in his second-floor study.

Harry L. Hopkins was there. Mr. Roosevelt was seated at his desk and Hopkins paced back and forth as the President read the intercepts. Then Hopkins scanned them and Schulz recalled, the President said in substance, "This means war."

E.C.T.C. Pirates Defeat Guilford

The East Carolina Teachers swamped the Guilford College Quakers here Friday night by a score of 66 to 46. Guilford took the lead during the opening minutes of play, but soon dropped behind as the ECTC Pirates started their offensive rolling. Swift-footed Blaine Moye turned the tide in ECTC's favor with his interception of a number of passes that caught the Quaker team off balance. Capitalizing on these interceptions, the Pirates jumped ahead and it was their game from there.

C. B. Moye, fast breaking Pirate forward, sparked the scoring as he broke loose under the net, time and again, to lead with 25 points for ECTC. Running second was Jesse Parker. ECTC's other forward, with 16 points. Lawhorne collected 11 points to lead the Guilford quintet.

In a preliminary game East Carolina's junior varsity bowed to the LaGrange All Stars, 45-12.

Quinnerly led New Bern with 6 tallies.

In the Junior game, which was close and exciting until the Greensies began to pull away in the fourth quarter. Joe Allgood was high scorer with 12 points. Jimmy Cox got 7 markers to follow Allgood.

Starters for the Phantom varsity were Jimmy Futrell and Ed Williams at forwards, Billy Harrington and Mac Batchelor at guards, and J. T. Williams at center.

Subs who saw action were Henry Turner, Jack Whichard, Billy White, Julian White, Cletas Jackson, Denby Posey, "Spooky" Morgan, Dave Jones, Marcel Humber, Rex Guthrie, and Dave Clark.

New York Cotton

New York, Feb. 16—(AP)—Cotton futures opened 5 cents a bale lower to 50 cents higher.

Heavy general demand pushed cotton prices into the highest level for the past 22 years today. The buying movement started shortly after the opening call and prices advanced almost $1 a bale before the demand was satisfied.

Cotton prices sagged in late trading as a result of week-end profit taking.

Futures closed 25 cents a bale lower to 30 higher.
