Chester Bowles Warns Congress

New Stabilization Boss Says Inflationary Explosion Is Facing Nation; Urges Continuation Of Price Controls, Food Subsidy Program And Check Reins On Real Estate

Washington, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Chester Bowles told Congress today the nation faces an inflationary explosion with pressure "up to the bursting point."

But he declared that President Truman's new wage-price policy is "a program that will work" with "little or no effect" on food, rent or clothing prices if the bulge in the stabilization line is not permitted to become a break-through.

"I think it is a good program, and I mean to put everything I've got into making it succeed," the newly designated stabilization boss said in testimony prepared for the house banking committee.

Bowles appeared to urge extension "at the earliest possible moment" of the price control and other stabilization acts now set to expire June 30. He called too for action by Congress to stop the inflation in the real estate market if the administration's new hopes for veterans program is to succeed.

The price chief acknowledged that the new wage-price policy is not a perfect program, adding that under the circumstances which we face there can be no perfect program.

It would be difficult, he told the committee, to exaggerate the gravity of the inflationary crisis we face. "Everywhere men are betting on inflation."

"A speculative fever has taken hold of the country. The pressure in the boiler is up to the bursting point. The lobbyists and the profiteers are licking their chops. It is going to take firm and effective action . . . if we are to hold this country on an even keel."

Reviewing government actions since V-J Day, Bowles said that looking back . . . it is perfectly clear that we moved too fast and too soon in stripping off the wartime controls.

While he said he relaxed post-war controls, he said he would continue to work for their continuation.

PROBE OPENS ON PAULEY'S NOMINATION

Committees To Hear Witnesses Opposing Nominations of Pauley And Vardaman

Washington, Feb. 18.—(AP)—The Senate Naval Committee subpoenaed a ranking Justice Department official and a Chicago radio station executive for questioning today on Edwin W. Pauley's nomination to be under secretary of the navy.

In another offshoot of the same set of disputed presidential appointments, a banking subcommittee arranged to hear witnesses opposing the selection of Commodore James K. Vardaman, Jr., President Truman's naval aide, for a 14-year term on the Federal Reserve Board.

The Senate itself appeared to be set to confirm a third appointment, that of George E. Allen, former Democratic National secretary, to a two-year term as a Reconstruction Finance Corporation director despite Republican opposition.

There remained too the possibility that Mr. Truman might decide quickly on a successor to Harold L. Ickes as secretary of interior and send his name to the Senate.

Roderick Davenport Is Cross-Examined

State Attempts To Prove Defendant Was Engaged In Loan Business Prior To Organizing "Big Apple"

Continuing his cross-examination of Roderick Davenport, former New York produce dealer, who is on trial here on charges of conspiracy to defraud and fraud by false pretense, Solicitor D. M. Clark tried to show today that Davenport had been dealing in the loans business for several years before he organized his "Big Apple" brokerage early in 1944.

Davenport's trial thus entered its third week, and for purely "tag-war" tactics it has either of the Meadows trials beat by a mile.

She discussed the origin of the Mayo Clinic from the primitive medical days of the 1890's to the highly organized medical center that it is today. Mrs. Whedbee stated that the fact that the Mayo brothers often traveled east to study and observe the technique of the more famous doctors of that day and then came back home and improved on the methods which they had learned and seen was probably the greatest factor in establishing the reputation and growth of the Mayo Clinic; for today doctors from all over the world go there to study and observe new techniques.

Strasser-McDiarmid

Reverend and Mrs. Hector McDiarmid announce the marriage of their daughter Mary Elizabeth to Mr. Edwin Frances Strasser on Saturday afternoon, February the sixteenth. Nineteen hundred and forty-six Greenville, North Carolina.

At Home

After March first 5517 Kirby Road Cincinnati 23, Ohio.

A marriage of impressive beauty and dignity was solemnized on Saturday afternoon at five o'clock at the First Presbyterian Church when Miss Mary Elizabeth McDiarmid became the bride of Mr. Edwin Frances Strasser of Cincinnati, Ohio. The church with its background of fern, bridal greenery, white gladioli and snap dragons illuminated by the soft glow of myriads of cathedral candles formed a lovely setting for the double ring ceremony.

Acting as ushers were Messrs. Roy Coburn, W. N. Spruill, and W. S. Brown of Greenville and Hector McNeill of Warsaw, cousin of the bride. Honorary bridesmaids were: Misses Margaret Anne Johnson and Delphia Flye of Greenville, Virginia Walker of Fayetteville, Esther Lou Albritton of Maury and Anice Miller of Shelby. A program of nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. Guy Smith, church organist, as friends and relatives assembled. Her selections included, "The Old Refrain" by Kreisler; "Intermezzo" by Provoost, "Always" by Berlin. The traditional wedding marches were used and "Traumerlied" was softly played during the ceremony. To the soft accompaniment of the organ, Miss Josephine Gibson, as soloist sang "I Love You Truly" by Bond and "At Dawning" by Cadman. At the close of the ceremony Miss Gibson sang, "O Perfect Love" as the final blessing of the church.

Miss McDiarmid chose as her maid of Honor and only attendant, Miss Mae Fleming of Blackshear, Georgia. She was indeed lovely in her gown of candlelight blue marquisette with matching quaint head dress and carrying an arm bouquet of Better Times roses.

The bride entered with her father, the Rev. H. N. McDiarmid who gave her in marriage and later performed the ceremony assisted by Dr. R. S. Boyd, her pastor. They were met at the altar by the bridegroom and George B. Gwin of Tupelo, Mississippi as the best man.

The bride wore an exquisite wedding gown of white Duchesse satin, with long fitted basque, high round neck with yoke of marquisette and an intricate scroll of shirred satin edging the shoulders of the bodice. Her full skirt of satin fell in soft folds that terminated in graceful train. Her full length veil of imported English illusion was draped to a "Mary Queen of Scott" head-dress. She carried a formal bouquet of Calla lilies, phalaenopsis and freesias.

The bride's mother was becomingly attired in navy blue sheer, with navy accessories and wore a corsage of Cymbidium orchids. Mrs. Strasser is the only daughter of Rev. and Mrs. H. N. McDiarmid. She received her education in the city schools of Shelby and Greenville. She is a graduate of Pease College, Raleigh, having majored in commerce and music. For the past year she has been studying organ under Paul Saunier, in Richmond, Virginia. She is highly esteemed wherever she is known for her charming personality and absolute sincerity.

Mr. Strasser, who has recently been discharged honorably from the United States Naval Reserve after serving for nearly four years, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Strasser of Cincinnati, Ohio. He received his education in the schools of that city. He is a young man of sterling worth and good business ability. After March first Mr. and Mrs. Strasser will be at home at 5517 Kirby Road, Cincinnati 23, Ohio.

For traveling the bride wore a handsome black and coral suit of soft wool and gabardine with black accessories and a corsage of phalaenopsis taken from her bridal bouquet.

Announcement: Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Edwards announce the engagement of their daughter, Grace, to Clarence William Wellons, Jr., of Newport News, Va. The wedding will take place Saturday, February 23 in St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

Garden Club Meeting

The Greenville Garden Club met on Friday afternoon, February 15th, in the New Classroom building at East Carolina Teachers' College with Mrs. Felix Scheller, Mrs. H. L. Winstead, Mrs. Henry Rivers, Mrs. R. M. Garrett, Mrs. J. T. Little, Mrs. Wiley Brown and Mrs. K. B. Pace, hostesses. Mrs. N. T. Ennett, vice president, presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, who is at the bedside of her husband, ill in Rex hospital, Raleigh. The members expressed their desire to send flowers to their beloved president as a testimonial of their love and loyalty and their anxiety and hope for an early recovery for her loved one. Mrs. Ennett called attention to the North Carolina Garden Club meeting to be held at the Pine Needles hotel, Southern Pines on April 29 and 30, and to the Garden School, which will be held at State College on March 26, 27 and 28. Many members are urged to make their plans to attend both meetings. Mrs. Hicks Corey, reporting on the success of dogwood week, said that the State Forestry Department has shipped nearly 5,000 dogwood seedlings and had orders for over 7,000, among them many local orders that could not be filled, but are expected to be filled from local nurseries. Mrs. R. M. Garrett, horticulture chairman, reported that she could still place orders for roses. Mrs. K. B. Pace introduced Professor B. B. Brandt of the Science department of E. C. T. C., who showed colored slides of "birds." Mrs. Pace assisted with the records of the bird calls, and she asked that Garden Club members work hard to fight the two greatest enemies of birds, small boys with guns and slingshots, and cats. This was a most informative and interesting program and greatly enjoyed by all present. Mrs. Pace explained that the bird program was moved up a month because the speaker for the "camellias" program had no open date until March, and plans to come on Wednesday, March 6th. He will have specimens of azaleas and camellias, and will take orders for plants, and members are asked to remember the date and plan to attend and bring friends with them. Mrs. Scheller, chairman of the hostess committee, then invited everyone to the dining room for a social half-hour. The table was covered with an arrangement of early spring flowers and Mrs. R. M. Garrett and Mrs. R. L. Humber poured tea from each end, while delicious sandwiches, nuts and cookies were passed by the other hostesses.—Reporter.

Fellowship Fund of A. A. U. W.

The Fellowship Fund of the American Association of University Women, to which the Greenville Branch will contribute at its meeting this evening, is making it possible for six young women students from war-devastated countries to study in the United States for a year.

Anne Sofie Oestvedt, a twenty-five-year-old Norwegian woman, who was second in command of three thousand underground workers in Norway, is one of the six.

Miss Oestvedt was hunted so intensively by the Germans that she had to take on a disguise complete enough that her own father failed to recognize her.

Miss Oestvedt is studying the chemistry of foods at the University of California at Berkeley, preparing to do much-needed nutrition work in Norway. Letters recommending her highly as a student in this field also disclosed the important role she played in Norway's underground movement during the war.

Until the A. A. U. W. secured permission to release her story, the details of Miss Oestvedt's resistance activities had been sealed by the official injunction: "Top Secret—Not to be published."

She entered the underground organization as editor of a leading resistance newspaper, and also served as a courier entrusted with important messages to Sweden. Later she functioned as proxy to the chief of the South Norway underground. Frequently, during the absences of her chief, she was acting leader of the whole resistance organization of southern Norway.

At one time the Gestapo, determined to arrest her, sent forty-five men to block all entrances to the flat where she lived. Falling to find her, they took her sister as hostage. To protect her from capture, the Norwegian "illegal police" gave her a new identity and a complete disguise, which included changing her from a blond to a brunette with a set of new eye-lashes and brows. They gave her strict instructions to disclose her identity to no one, not even her family and close friends.

"I personally remember one occasion," wrote Frederick Myhre, her father, "when she stood beside her mother in a tram car, without revealing anything and without his recognizing her. Anne Sofie Oestvedt is alone among our male or female cooperators to have stood the nervous strain of two and a half years without contact with family or friends."

Because of the war a whole generation of university students in Europe has lacked normal educational opportunities. For the nations concerned, this wartime lapse in professional training means a shortage of teachers, welfare workers, doctors, scientists and other trained personnel never more needed than now.

As an answer to an obvious educational need, and as a warm and human gesture from the university women of this country to women in countries that have suffered most from the war, the American Association of University Women has set up the International Study Grants.

They have been selected to study in the United States for a year.

They will be selected to study in the United States for a year.

The Express was still home to Rush. There he had learned the newspaper business. There Michael Daley, the editor, had discovered and developed Rush's peculiar ability to find the truth in a tangled web of mystery, and had persuaded him to open his own agency.

Now he was on his way to him for background.

The cab drew up in front of the Express building and he ran up the steps and knocked on a door bearing the one word—EDITOR.

"Come in," shouted a muffled voice.

Rush opened the door and walked in.

"Hi Pappy," he said to the baldish man with the childlike face and the ancient eyes who sat behind the desk watching him with a calculating smile.

"Don't ask me, Rush," he said. "I don't know a thing. The old boy asked me for advice and I sent him to you."

"Okay," Rush sighed. "I've got to get something going. There's a couple of leads I'll have to run down to start with. After that I'm on my own."

"Yes," said Pappy Daley, "you certainly are. So long."

Rush was suddenly aware of a knowing feeling in his stomach and turned into Barney's.

"I'm going back to a booth and take it easy for a minute or two. Send me back a ham on rye, and if Merwin comes in, send him back, Barney."

"Okay, Rush."

Rush didn't like this job. Nobody seemed to be enjoying it. It wasn't any fun for the old man, and while the girl seemed to be having one hell of a time, he wasn't sure about her either. In the room he had visited earlier he had sensed an urgent compulsion. Rush was quite sure that anyone who tried so hard to sin must get very little pleasure from the result.

Suddenly a nondescript figure materialized in the booth opposite Rush. First the booth was empty, then Merwin was there. It was a nice trick.

"Got something for me, Rush, eh?" Merwin asked, in a voice somewhat between a stage whisper and a hoarse shout.

"May have, Merwin. But keep your voice down."

Rush gave it to him slow and in bare outline. More, Merwin couldn't handle with his limited capacity. Merwin thought it through. Finally he had it all in place. He shook his head slowly from side to side.

"I don't get it," he whispered. "I don't get it at all."

Rush stopped him before it got too deep. "Don't worry about it, Merwin. Our problem is just to find out everything we can about this girl. Who she sees, who she knows, and such stuff."

That Merwin could understand.

"You want I should nose around?"

"Not quite yet, Merwin. I want you around where I can get you, maybe later tonight. If you go anywhere leave a number with Barney. I may need you."

"Okay, Rush. Yeah, I'll keep close to you you can find me."

Rush decided to visit his office. Gertrude graced the desk in the outer office. She burst into a frenzy of typing as the door opened to admit Rush. Then she saw him and relaxed into her usual desuetude.

"Oh, it's only you. And about time, too. Where you been?"

"Business, darling. And what do you care?"

"There's a client in your office. He's been waiting almost an hour."

Rush went into his office. Sitting in a straight back chair, his hands folded in his lap, was a slight mouse-colored man, wearing glasses. He might have been 25 or 45.

"How do you do?" Rush said, walking around behind his desk. "What can do for you?"

"I need protection, Mr. Henry."

"From what or whom, Mr.—?"

"I'd rather not say, yet, but some time ago I obtained some valuable articles on the coast. I've been followed ever since. I believe my life's in danger."

"Look, Mr. Blank, you'd better be a little more frank with me," Rush said. "What valuable articles?"

"I won't tell you until I'm sure you're working for me."

"Okay," said Rush. "My fee is a hundred and fifty dollars a day, with a ten-day advance."

The little man hesitated. "That would be satisfactory, only—"

"Only what?"

"Only I'm afraid I haven't the $1500 or even the first hundred. Right now, that is."

"I'm sorry," Rush said. "I think there has been some misunderstanding on both our parts."

The little man felt the finality in Rush's voice, and he turned and left the office with only one backward glance. For the first time Rush recognized the terror in the man's eyes.

A half hour later, the sound of a police siren drew him to the street, where, in an alley alongside the building, he gazed at the lifeless form of the man who had occupied a chair in his office less than 30 minutes before.

used a reminder that workers who have reached age 65 and have been employed in jobs covered by the Social Security Act long enough to be insured may "peg" their old-age and survivors insurance benefits...

The reminder, Mrs. Duffy said, is intended to help prevent any loss of benefits by older workers who may lose their jobs, may suffer reductions in total pay, or may lose considerable time from work because of illness or a change of jobs.

"Once a benefit is pegged, by the worker or former worker," Mrs. Duffy said, "it cannot go down. But it may go up, if the worker gets a new job or increased pay. The Board will recalculate the benefit once a year, if the worker requests it and if it will result in higher monthly benefits for him."

Mrs. Duffy pointed out that the Board has been urging workers and former workers in employment covered by the Social Security Act to confer with its local officials at age 65, so that the Board people may advise them of their proper action to take in order to protect their full benefit rights.

"Many have come in and filed claims to protect their rights, others have failed to do so," Mrs. Duffy said. "With the cut-backs that have occurred in many lines of work since the war ended, it would be well for every man and woman who has worked in covered employment and has reached the age of 65 to check up on social security benefits. We're ready to help and we have worked out a system that is practically loss-proof."

"Many workers aged 65 or over do not realize that when they lose considerable time from covered employment, for any reason whatever, or when their total pay goes down, their old-age and survivors insurance benefits may go down also. We want them to realize that and to get the necessary information from our office to prevent any loss of benefits."

"So we're not only inviting, we are urging, all workers and former workers in private industry and commerce — those who have done some work under social security — to come in to see us. Our office is located at the Post Office Building, and we are open from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Mondays through Fridays."

A representative of this office will be in Greenville at the Employment Office every Thursday at 10:00 a.m.

Ottawa, Feb. 18.—(AP)—The arrest of several FBI men from Washington stirred speculation here today of possible developments affecting the United States in connection with the Canadian Government's inquiry into an alleged leakage of secret and confidential atomic information.

It was learned, meanwhile, that the inquiry into the case—which an authoritative source said involved the transmission of atomic secrets to Russia—had spread to London, where a Canadian official was reported taken into custody for questioning.

Twenty-two employers, or former employees of the government previously had been rounded up in Canada in connection with the investigation.

All were being held incommunicado—many of them in the Mountie Police barracks near the Rockcliffe Airport on the outskirts of Ottawa.

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS HE WALKED THE WAY OF LIGHT

A few days ago I attended the funeral of a man who had given more than sixty years of service to his fellow men. During all that time he had taught in a university for negro boys. As he hurried to a class one day last week, he collapsed on the campus and died.

There was something very inspiring about his funeral service. The negro president of the college who had studied under this teacher for several years, gave the funeral address. The dean of the theological seminary, also a former student of the deceased, read the Bible and prayed in a moving fashion. A student sang "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot." After the benediction had been pronounced, eight negro students came to the front of the chapel, lifted the casket to their shoulders, and carried it out into the bitterness of a winter afternoon.

What impressed me most was that these students did not carry the casket as pall bearers usually do, in a slow, lugubrious, and solemn fashion. There was something triumphant in the way they marched out, not as men overwhelmed with sorrow but as men inspired by the realization that they were bearing the body of a loved one who had gone to better things.

As the casket passed my pew, I found myself saying, "Thank God for Walter Wright, and men like him." He was teacher, president of the university, friend of a generation of needy and aspiring men.

Sixty-two years of service to one's fellows is something before which we may well stand in solemn reverence.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

Washington—Regardless of whether he had a case of "blight," when American Legion Commander John Stalle attacked Gen. Omar N. Bradley, administrator of veterans affairs, he spoke against one of Washington's favorite people. It is significant that not one government official here or one member of Congress has backed Stalle publicly in his charges that there has been a "tragic breakdown" in the Veterans Administration.

Legionnaires in Washington say frankly that the repercussions in the Legion will be terrific.

Criticism of VA since Gen. Bradley took over is nothing new. The new administrator had battles with the budget bureau and civil service over control of VA positions. Gen. Bradley has been adamant in his refusal to take Army and Navy hospitals which, he felt, because of size or geographical locations, would become white elephants.

Overhauling the organization, he has been forced to shelve employees who had been with the bureau for years.

All of these things have engendered some bad feeling, but the disposition of officials heard enough to make any public outcry heard has been: "Give Gen. Bradley time; he will straighten out the mess."

A mess it was too. Faced with handling the multitudinous problems of more than 13,000,000 new veterans under a law granting benefits far broader than under any previous veterans act, it was apparent from the outset that the framework of the VA of World War I was outmoded.

When Gen. Bradley took over, it was freely predicted that he had been given an assignment as difficult as any he had had on the battlefield of Europe.

When the general assumed his new command there were already 17 million veterans on the administration's rolls; in the six months that he has held office, the number has more than doubled.

Each case has to be dealt with individually. The processing task alone is one of the greatest in any branch of the government.

But all of these difficulties mean very little. One thing that does count is Gen. Bradley's personal

It is an amazing spectacle, but the point to which this column wants to direct your attention is that the Germans — at least in this zone—haven't lost their spirit in the disaster which has overwhelmed them.

They are the same hard working, systematic and persistent folk upon whom the Prussian militarists and finally Hitler have depended for strength to carry out their schemes for conquest.

That is an energy which must be guided into the right channels and held there until a new generation of peace minded Germans can be reared.

It's an energy which can do great and fine things or which can cause incalculable damage. In any event it is something which can't be stopped, for it is a fundamental part of German character. It has to be harnessed.

SENTIMENT IN FAVOR ACTION

Will Ask Legislature To Complete Training School Building At College

By CHESTER WALSH
The Parent-Teacher Association of the Training School at a recent meeting voted unanimously to petition the State Legislature to provide definite funds for completing the training school building on the campus of East Carolina Teachers College. Dr. Howard J. McGinnis, acting president of the college, was present.

City Supt. of Schools June H. Rose, in a review of school needs here pointed out that the training school building, built by the State for practice teaching and training of elementary school teachers, was erected in 1929, and that today it is only two-fifths completed. He said the training school building is lacking in numerous facilities for successful work by teachers and students, including adequate rest room, recreation room, cafeteria, etc.

More elementary school teachers (ECTC students) are trained at the training school on the college campus than in any other building in the State. There are urgent needs for completing the building and providing the necessary facilities to make it modern and convenient and better serve the purpose for which it was built. Mr. Rose declared.

The time has come for all of us who are interested in education to acquaint the candidates for the Legislature with the importance of completing the building and installing adequate facilities, and to urge the introduction of a bill in the General Assembly providing for a definite appropriation for completing the training school building," the speaker said.

He called attention to the fact that in the proposed program of capital improvements at East Carolina Teachers College, the item of $192,000, needed to complete the training school building, is ninth on the list, and it should be near the top of the list. New class room space is needed for the eighth grade, and auditorium, cafeteria lunch room, library room and conference room for teachers and students.

Considerable surprise was manifested here when it became generally known that the training school building is only two-fifths completed. The building is on the college campus—state property; the State has the money to finish the building and to provide adequate facilities for training teachers and teaching children, friend of education in Greenville said today. One citizen actively interested in schools said the Legislature would promptly provide special funds for the building if they are acquainted with the need for it. The teachers at the training school are doing wonderful work under difficult circumstances.

Jilted Suitor Kills Woman, Shoots Self

Kansas City, Feb. 18—(AP)—A 36-year-old grandmother on her way to work was slain today by a jilted suitor, who then shot himself and fell a few feet away from her body. Police Detective Leo Hoedl said.

The bodies of Mrs. Loree Bowers and a man Hoedl identified as Byron Marsh, 40, were found in an alley near a grade school at 7:30 a. m. Crowds of curious school children stopped on their way to school to stare at the covered bodies.

Hoedl explained that Marsh, the father of four children, apparently waited for Mrs. Bowers to enter the alley on her way to the streetcar and then shot her in the back as she ran for safety. Both Mrs. Bowers and Marsh were employed at Montgomery Ward.

Legion Backs . . .

facts on Veterans Administration operations. Stelle will report on what they find.

It decided to send him to Washington with a committee to call on General Omar N. Bradley, VA head, who declined an invitation to appear here.

Meeting amid the heat of a controversy stirred by Stelle's assault on Bradley's administration and the Legion commander's demand for a congressional investigation, committeemen unanimously approved a resolution which read:

Stelle was acting on Legion information and carrying out convention mandates.

There was a "substantial failure in administration of veterans' affairs" and Stelle "had no other alternative than to bring it to the attention of Congress and the public, and we commend and approve his taking that action."

Since Stelle acted, Bradley has taken steps to correct failures and to improve service.

The Legion "is ever ready, as it always has been," to work with Bradley and "has not and does not demand" the VA chief's resignation or removal.

E.C.T.C. Will Hold School Band Clinic

A clinic for the eastern division of the North Carolina All-State Band will bring to East Carolina Teachers College on Saturday, February 23, representatives from 16 high schools in the state. Dr. Karl V. Gilbert and Harold A. McDougle of the college department of music, who are making arrangements for the event, indicate that the clinic bids fair to be one of the most successful to be held in this section of the state.

Earl A. Stocum, leader of the University of North Carolina band, will conduct rehearsals during the day and a concert to be given in the evening. The public will be welcome at these programs.

The best performers from 16 high school bands will be chosen to attend the clinic. The band so formed for the meeting in Greenville will include 90 members. Rehearsals held during the day will be in preparation for the concert in the evening.

High schools from the following cities and towns will be represented: Greenville, Raleigh, Roanok Rapids, Greensboro, Lumberton, Oxford, Durham, Fayetteville, Elizabeth City, Rocky Mount, Roxboro, Henderson, Sanford, New Bern and Wilmington, which will send students from New Hanover High and Wilmington Junior High.

Prelates Receive Cardinal's Rank

Vatican City, Feb. 18—(AP)—Thirty-two eminent prelates, among them four Americans, were elevated to the college of cardinals today with churchly pomp and ceremony.

Formally, Pope Pius XII announced at a secret consistory of the college, attended by 28 of the 37 existing members, the creation of the 32 new princes of the Roman Catholic Church. All but three of the 32 were in Rome, and papal emissaries delivered to them immediately their biretta, or formal notations. With this notification the designees formally became cardinals.

The new American cardinals, making up with Dennis Cardinal Dougherty of Philadelphia the five Americans in the 69-cardinal col-legating to it have disappeared.

Safford quoted Hart, former commander in chief of the Asiatic fleet, as having told him not to testify to something he could not prove—destruction of records—because "I have seen your winds message."

Hart is now a Republican senator from Connecticut. He told the Senate-House Inquiry Committee today that he had told Safford he had "sighted something in the files about the winds messages." Hart continued an inquiry into the Pearl Harbor disaster himself, in that, he recalled, "Captain Safford stated as a fact that one of all dispatches (on the winds code) had been removed from the files."

"I told him that in my entire naval career I had never known of one instance of files being falsified and he needed to be very sure," Hart continued.

PEARL HARBOR QUIZ GOES ON

Former Admiral Thomas Hart On Stand For Testimony Before Board

Washington, Feb. 18.—Thomas C. Hart, senator and former admiral, denied to Pearl Harbor investigators today that he once definitely told Capt. L. F. Safford of having seen a "winds code" message in naval files.

Safford has said that such a secret message from Tokyo came in three days before the Pearl Harbor attack, and provided Washington with an advance warning of war. Safford also said that papers related to one nation, but to all peoples of the human family which are redeemed by the divine blood of Christ."

This was the first consistory since 1940. The Pope, whose reign of nearly seven years has seen almost continual warfare in the world, showed he was still troubled.

"Real peace is not yet shining on mankind," he said.
