U. S. - RUSSIAN RELATIONS IN ORIENT, POOR

High-Handed Red Army Marshal In Changchun Threatens Any Sign Of Interference

By SPENCER DAVIS Changchun, Manchuria, March 5 (Delayed)—(AP)—This is Russia's back yard at the moment. "We don't want those with gold in their pocket to come in and hand down our friendship" with China, the Soviet commandant of Manchuria was quoted as proclaiming.

The commandant, Marshal Rodion Malinovsky, was "too busy" to see the one British and eight American correspondents — interned for reaching Changchun uninvited — who sought to confirm such statements.

He made his declaration at a recent banquet, reliable sources said, and added that if any hand of interference were thrust between Russia and China, "the Red Army will cut it off."

The Red Army currently controls Changchun, as it does Manchuria's other major cities; and China is represented only by a military mission and civilian officials.

Most Changchun shops are boarded up. Civilians leave the streets by 4 p. m. for fear of being accosted by soldiers. This applies to some 350 to 400 Chinese officials sent here by the Chungking government to take over control of Manchurian affairs. Their work has been at a standstill for two months or more.

Provincial administrators have been unable to carry out their duties pending agreement between Russia and China on the degree of economic collaboration between the two nations in this once rich land of industry and agriculture.

Since the fatal stabbing of seven Chinese mining officials on their return from the Fushun collieries in mid-January, there has been no further attempt to take over coal mines. The Soviets said they would be unable to guarantee protection of officials. This same lack of assurance for safety kept officials from proceeding to Dairen. Only a few have reached Harbin.

We nine correspondents took off for Peiping yesterday, escorted by two Russian fighter planes. Engine trouble forced the plane to turn back. A protest was filed with the Chinese by Red Army headquarters for a supposed infraction of orders in carrying us. Inasmuch as four Russians without passports were traveling on the same plane to Peiping, the protest hardly was valid.

Correspondents on the return to Changchun spent the night at the municipal hospital which is under Chinese administration. We took the train today for Mukden and South Manchuria due to heavy snow fall and to avoid further misunderstanding.

Behind us was the usual elaborate display of Russian flags and banners along Stalin Prospect (Changchun). (Continued on page five)

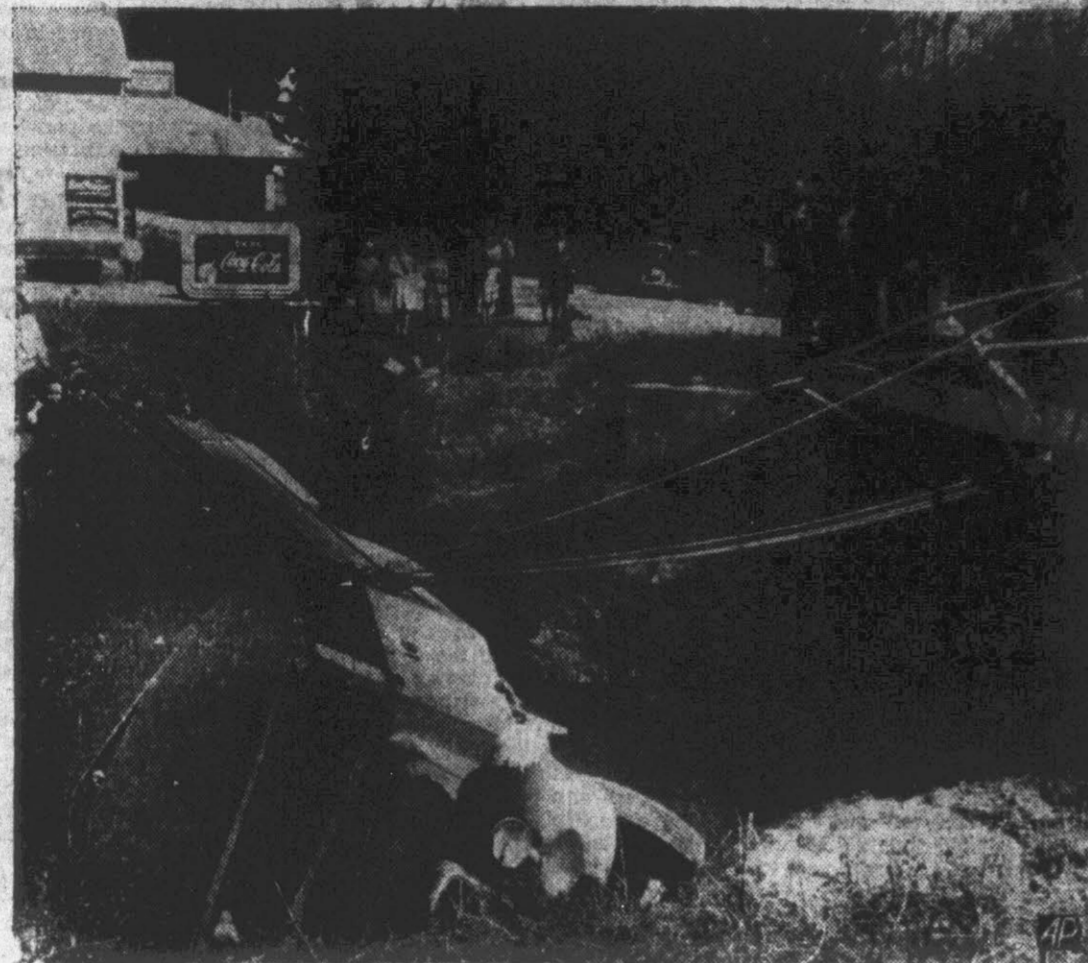

Streptomycin Helps Six Month Old Baby

Wilmington, March 8 — (AP) — Jane Greer, six months old child, was reported "steadily improving" today at a hospital where she has been given streptomycin treatments.

The child was found to be suffering with a kidney ailment when taken to the hospital several days ago. She did not respond to available treatments, so her physician decided to try streptomycin if possible.

None of the rare drug was to be found in North Carolina but through efforts of Governor Cherry a small supply was obtained elsewhere, and sent here.

NLRB Ruling Expected To Prolong Coal Negotiations

Decision Entitles Supervisory Employees To Collective Bargaining; Foremen Usually Are Classified As Part Of Management; Operators Will Fight Issue

By HAROLD W. WARD Washington, March 8.—(AP)—A controversial new factor entered the industrial picture today with NLRB's approval of full union membership for foremen.

The decision of the National Labor Relations Board promised to have immediate repercussions. Bituminous coal operators said it made them expect a prolonged battle with John L. Lewis in coming contract negotiations.

The board ruled late yesterday that supervisory employees are free to join Lewis' United Clerical, Technical and Supervisory Union and to be eligible for collective bargaining under the Wagner Labor Relations Act.

By past interpretations of the act, supervisors have been considered a part of management not to (Continued on Page Six)

Cigarette Price Hike Proposed By Board

Richmond, Va., March 8.—(AP)—A recommendation that the Office of Price Administration increase the ceiling price on cigarettes has been approved by the Board of Governors of the Tobacco Association of the United States.

Meeting here in mid-winter session the group last night also recommended that the United States give Great Britain a proposed loan of $3,750,000,000. The group pointed out that "present and future prosperity" of American tobacco interests depends in great measure upon resumption of trade with the British empire.

L. L. Graveley of Rocky Mount, N. C., association president, presided at the session.

Spanish Issues May Go To UNO

Paris, March 8.—(AP)—The Foreign Office said today Russia has replied favorably to a French proposal to take the Spanish question before the United Nations Security Council.

Diplomatic officials in Washington said it was virtually certain the United States would oppose the French plan, contending that the Franco regime, whatever else it might be, is not a threat to international peace and security and hence not a proper subject for the Security Council.

The French Foreign Office said Great Britain had sent a negative response to the French proposal and that France is currently carrying on talks with the British.

A spokesman said also that France is awaiting a reply from the United States.

The French Foreign Office gave no further details of the Russian attitude.

Commenting on one of the sources of irritation against Spain by Allied powers, the Madrid newspaper ABC denied in an apparently inspired editorial that three women Republican leaders had been sentenced to death for clandestine activities, as charged by newspapers and radios outside Spain.

CONGRESS MAY INVESTIGATE GMC WALKOUT

Senate Shows Increasing Concern Over Stubborn Deadlock

By MAX HALL Washington, March 8.—(AP)—Congress and the Labor Department showed increasing concern today over the stubbornly lengthening General Motors strike.

The Washington developments: 1. Proposals for a full-dress Senate investigation into the causes of "bribe disputes"—including the one at General Motors—moved a notch closer to a Senate vote.

Senator Morse (R-Ore), one of the sponsors of the proposal, predicted in an interview that the Senate will authorize its committee on education and labor to make such an inquiry. Morse said, "I think we've got to find out whether certain segments of industry are out to wreck unions."

2. Some sort of new government action toward settling the General Motors strike was hinted by Secretary of Labor Schwelienbach.

Schwelienbach, who is studying the written record of the recent proposals, counter-proposals, and bitter name-calling between the corporation and the CIO United Auto Workers, told reporters he expected to "come to a conclusion" today as to what ought to be done.

He didn't say when he would announce his conclusion. Nor would he speculate as to what it might be.

The documents he was poring over were brought to him yesterday by James F. Dewey, whom Schwelienbach sent to Detroit last month as a special mediator in the dispute that has made 175,000 workers idle since Nov. 21 and prevented the manufacture of all General Motors autos.

One possible step that Schwelienbach could take would be to invite the disputing parties to Washington. Indeed, the Detroit city council has (Continued on Page Four)

President Truman States UNO Will Not Fall Apart

For these three—Your Red Cross must carry...

Confident That Soviet Will Go Along With The Organization's Work; Washington Awaits Moscow Reply To Note Requesting Withdrawal Of Russian Troops From Iran

Washington, March 8.—(AP)—President Truman vigorously asserted at his news conference today that the United Nations Organization would not be allowed to collapse, and expressed confidence that Soviet Russia will go along with the organization's work.

The President's comment was prompted by questions about what might happen if Russia declines to comply with the United States request for the immediate withdrawal of Soviet troops from Iran.

That situation, Mr. Truman said, will be handled when it comes up. A reporter then suggested that a Russian refusal might mean a collapse of the world peace agency.

President disagreed strongly, asserting that the UNO would not be allowed to collapse.

"Even if Russia went down a one way street?" a reporter asked. The President replied he did not believe Russia was going down a one way street.

Official Washington anxiously awaited Moscow's reply to this country's request for immediate withdrawal of Russian troops from Iran.

Some officials believe that reply may go far toward determining whether American-Russian relations improve or continue to worsen. There was no indication when it would arrive from Moscow.

It was believed likely that the State Department would make public the second of those notes some time today. It concerns reported Soviet withdrawals of industrial equipment from Manchuria.

Declaring that the United States cannot remain indifferent to Russia's decision to keep troops in Iran, the note released last night said the Soviet action was contrary to:

The Roosevelt-Stalin-Churchill declaration in Tehran December 1, 1943, in which the three governments pledged maintenance of the independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity of Iran.

The British-Russian-Iranian treaty of January 29, 1942, which then pledged withdrawal of all foreign troops from Iran by six months after the end of the war—March 2, Principles of the United Nations. The note expressed the earnest (Continued on Page Six)

Churchill Becoming Crusader For Unity

Hero Of Britain's Darkest Hours To Devote Last Years Of His Life To Bring U. S. And England Together

Richmond, Va., March 8.—(AP)—Winston Churchill again called upon the people of his homeland and of the United States today to stand together "in defense of those causes we hold dear."

Here in the birthplace of a country which rebelled against England's rule, the war-time British prime minister told a joint session of the Virginia legislature that "above all, among the English-speaking peoples, there must be the union of hearts based upon convictions and common ideals."

"That," he asserted, "is what I offer. That is what I want." Not once in his prepared address did he mention either Russia or Communism. (AP)

"Oscars" Awarded Joan Crawford, Ray Milland

Hollywood, March 8.—(AP)—Ray Milland lost a week-end. And Joan Crawford lost the biggest evening of her life. But both won Oscars in the process.

They were the recipients last night of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences' awards for the best performances of an actor and actress in 1945. The scene was Grauman's Chinese Theater, the audience 2100 high stiff shirts and low evening gowns, garbling Hollywood's elite.

But the real drama took place eight miles away, in a Brentwood bedroom, there Miss Crawford, whose unsung aid to the forgotten and needy of filmdom has made her a solidly popular character in a make-believe world, danced around a sickbed.

For her, an attack of influenza had robbed her of the moment of glory of which every actress dreams—stepping up to receive her Oscar. But friends, headed by Director Mike Curtiz who accepted the award in her behalf at the theater, decided that even a temperature of 102 shouldn't cost her all of the thrill that goes with winning the highest honor Hollywood's thousands of workers—from grips to executive producers—can bestow. CHICOD MEETS ENTIRE QUOTA

Mukden, March 8.—(Delayed)—(AP)—The manager of the British-American Tobacco Co. in Mukden was fatally wounded after a telephone warning "you will never see American correspondents again."

Sung Chu-Hsiang, whose plant had been visited by allied journalists, was shot three times in the back by an unknown assailant on Red Army Day, Feb. 23. He died of his wounds March 3.

Sung was attacked as he was about to enter the front door of his home. He told attendants of the telephone warning.

He had said his plant was turning over two-thirds of its production to the Red Army without payment and was expected to close soon for lack of supplies.

Community Meets Challenge In Red Cross Campaign Assignment

Douglas Spencer, chairman for Chicod in the present and former Red Cross Fund Campaigns, reported last night his district had attained 100 pct of quota. He attributes the success in Chicod largely to the organization which was developed under him by William Manning and O. L. James.

CANADA WAITS ON U. S. LOAN

Ottawa, March 8.—(AP)—Finance Ministry officials said today that Canada's $1,250,000,000 loan to Great Britain was contingent upon the granting by the United States of a $3,750,000,000 British loan now pending in Congress.

The officials declined to speculate on what would be done if the American loan were not ratified, but one source said Canada "would have to renegotiate" her proposed credit. (Continued on Page Six)

He appointed Judge Lelf Erickson of the Montana Supreme Court, Frank M. Swacker New York lawyer, and Gordon S. Watkins, of the Economics Department of the University of California, to inquire into the grievances of two railroad brotherhoods.

The naming of the board automatically under custom will defer for 30 to 60 days a progressive walk-out by the Brotherhoods of Locomotive Engineers and Railroad Trainmen had scheduled to start Monday.

Mr. Truman announced the appointment of the board at a news conference.

He took the occasion also to note that wage questions in the rubber and telephone industries had been settled, strictly on a collective bargaining basis and in a manner satisfactory to both sides.

That, Mr. Truman commented, was done without any ballyhoo.

Stilwell Road, Air Bases Abandoned

Washington, March 8.—(AP)—The famed Stilwell Road, on which the United States spent $137,058,000, and 11 military airfields in Burma, which cost this country about $15,000,000, are being abandoned.

The Office of the Foreign Liquidation Commissioner, saying the Stilwell Road and the airfields played a key role in winning the war in Burma and China, asserted their abandonment would release more than 12,000 U. S. soldiers to expedite their return home.

It said there was "no commercial possibility" for the airfields and that bandit operations in their vicinity were "bold and increasing."

Fire Breaks Out On Big Queen Elizabeth

Southampton, March 8.—(AP)—Fire broke out this morning on the Queen Elizabeth, largest liner in the world, but firemen extinguished the flames a short time later.

The blaze started in the isolation hospital on the port side of the 85,000-ton vessel's promenade deck an official announcement by the Cunard Line said.

The announcement said the fire, the thirteenth ship ablaze at British ports within the last five weeks, was discovered by the line's own fire patrol but the cause had not been determined.

The vessel arrived here from New York Wednesday.

She had just completed her wartime troop transport service and was being refitted for entry into the North Atlantic passenger service. She carried hundreds of thousands of troops across the Atlantic during and after the war.

The NATION TODAY

By James Marlow

Washington, March 8.—(AP)—One of the bloodiest chapters in American labor history was that of the railroads and their workers. But there's been no major railroad strike since 1926. Why?

And why will the railroad strike threatened for Monday almost surely not occur? Because of the Railway Labor Act Congress passed in 1926, and which has undergone a few changes since.

A joint committee of representatives of the railroads and unions supported the bill which became the law. This law applies to railroads and airlines.

It sets up a three-man national mediation board. The members, appointed by the President, serve three year terms. Each receive $10,000 a year. The board handles disputes over wages and working conditions.

It works like this: say a union wants higher pay. It notifies the company. There can be no strike for the next 30 days, while company and union talk it over.

If they can't agree, the union asks the mediation board to step in.

If the board can't get the company and union to agree, it seeks both sides to submit their case to a special arbitration board set up to pass on this one case.

Neither side has to agree to submit its case to an arbitration board. But when both agree, both must accept the board's decision.

(There has been much bitterness over the decisions of some of these arbitration boards but they're still being used.)

Suppose a union refuses to submit its case to an arbitration board. What then? It decides to strike. In that case, the mediation board decides whether the strike will interfere with interstate commerce.

If the mediation board so decides, it notifies the President. He then appoints a fact-finding board to inquire into the dispute and report to him.

The fact-finders have to report to the President within 30 days. During that time there can be no strike. Nor can there be a strike for 30 days after the board reports. (Continued on Page Four)

The WORLD TODAY

AP World Traveler

Bern, Switzerland, March 8.—This country doesn't allow women to vote, but when you investigate the question you encounter the strange circumstance that the ladies in general don't appear to be over-anxious for suffrage in political affairs, although most of them would like a hand in settling social problems.

Many of the real crusaders for complete voting rights are among the elderly women, who were active in the days when the militant suffragettes were a world phenomenon. Curiously enough, the younger generation, broadly speaking, would be content with partial suffrage, at least for the present.

The average Swiss woman is essentially a housewife and has the old-fashioned notion that the woman's place is in the home, studying the welfare of the family. Also Swiss politics are complicated and demand more of the voters' time than most housewives feel they can spare from their duties.

There are few countries where citizens participate so intimately in the affairs of state as here in little.

Switzerland. The Swiss looks on this participation not as a "right" but as a "duty," with the result that he is constantly engaged in settling the problems of his community or the country as a whole.

To illustrate, take the city of Bern, whose government is 800 years old. Most local laws go directly to the voters, who are called up about once a month to deal with them. In some places the citizens even elect the school teachers by direct vote. The Geneva Canton Council a few years ago passed a law abolishing taxes for people of the lower and middle classes and putting the whole burden on the rich. In Geneva all tax measures must be submitted to the voters as a whole, and in this case they turned down the law as being unfair even though the majority would benefit by it.

Forty Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR

March 8, 1906

When the consumer finds his coal has risen 25 cents a ton, he can conclude that an advance of ten cents has been made to the miners. New York stationers are now displaying the latest thing in marriage licenses with divorce coupons attached to be clipped off as desired.

fairness he enjoys the friendships of his colleagues of all parties. At the same time he is respected as a statesman of ability, conviction and courage.

After Mr. Rayburn studied law and received his degree from the University of Texas he practiced law for a short time in Bonham, his home town. It was not long before he was elected to the Texas house of representatives where he served six years, the last two as speaker.

The year Woodrow Wilson was inaugurated, Rayburn was elected to the national congress from the fourth Texas district, and in 1937 was appointed majority leader of the house of the 75th congress.

At the death of Alabama's Mr. Bankhead he was elected to the speakership in the 77th congress. He has served as speaker of the house for the last five years.

Mr. Rayburn's whole war effort evolved around the idea of unity between nations, between administration and legislation, between the people and their government. He was almost fanatical in his anxiety to create and keep unity without which we would fall in the mighty struggle.

As 42nd speaker of the house Mr. Rayburn has many responsibilities to prevent anything disastrous happening to the Democrats, to guide, shepherd and rule the sometimes unruly four hundred and thirty-five representatives of the people of the United States. His job often has been called the second most powerful job in the nation. No one in the 155 year history of the speakership held it in a more difficult time than Sam Rayburn. Some Washington observers have called him the greatest compromiser since Clay.

When pressed to define his political and economic convictions, Rayburn is likely to say that a little applied Christianity wouldn't hurt anybody.

Rayburn typifies much of what is most attractive in American life. He is a man of simple faith and simple utterance, indignant in the presence of injustice and scornful of sham, restrained in his tastes and pleasures, determined but not dogmatic, dignified but not pompous, intelligent but not brilliant, hardworking, honest, kind and patient.

Many men of his kind have sat in the house before him and helped direct America in the paths of greatness. He is a fine example of our civilization, created and tempered by the peculiar conditions of American life.

Sam Rayburn is a great man but at the same time a kindly, human and understanding man, a man who believes that his job is bigger than himself and is humbled by the confidence which his people have placed in him. His life and his career should be a challenge to every young person who might make a study of it.

Mrs. Stancill being a native Texan and a member of a family who has long enjoyed Sam Rayburn's personal friendship was well qualified to add to her scholarly paper sidelights both interesting and informative.

Mrs. F. D. Duncan, president, presided over the business session. Miss Lorené Weaver, guest for the afternoon, assisted Mrs. Bradshaw in serving delicious refreshments. The house was beautifully decorated in early spring flowers.

One of the most enjoyable of recent social events at East Carolina Teachers College was the dance given in the Wright building on the campus last Saturday, by the freshman class in honor of the junior class. Among the Pitt County students taking part in the figure, which was formed by officers of the two classes and their partners, were Marie Rouse of Greenville, Frances Lewis of Farmville, Eileen Burney of Grifton and Wilton Joyner, William Tucker and Henry Harris of Greenville.

Decorations carried out the idea of spring. The ceiling was hung with a canopy of pastel colors. Spanish moss, ivy and flowers created a lovely scene. Hal Thurston's orchestra furnished the music.

Wesleyan Service Guild Meeting
The Wesleyan Service Guild of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church met Monday night, March 4th, at the home of Mrs. V. P. Seoville, with Miss Frances Gross as assisting hostess. The meeting was opened by the president, Miss Gross, who expressed the regret of the Guild that Miss Lorene Weaver, director of religious education of the church, is leaving to accept work in Greensboro.

The roll was called and 24 members answered. One new member was welcomed to the group. Minutes of the last meeting were read and the Treasurer's report was given. There were two letters from Supt. Barnes of the orphanage, stating that the little boy sponsored by the Guild had been dismissed and another boy offered his place. The Guild voted to accept this new member at the orphanage.

Various committees reported, and announcement was made that "Little Women" produced by the Wesleyan Foundation, would be given at the church three nights this week. The Guild was also reminded of the World Day of Prayer on Friday.

Miss Gross and Mrs. McKinney were elected to attend the conference held in Burlington this week-end. Mrs. Seoville was elected to attend the conference of the Womens Society of Christian Service.

The president read a beautiful prayer, and Miss Frances Wahl gave the devotional, the subject being, "World Order and Peace." She stressed that "One world may be built through prayer and the working together of Christians."

After an ice course the meeting adjourned to meet again the first Monday in April with Misses Jane Hancock and Eloise Ellington.

Chatham Book Club
Mrs. Earl E. Forbes was hostess to the Chatham Book Club at its regular meeting on Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Spring flowers were used for decoration throughout the house. Guests for the afternoon were Mrs. O. G. Guiley, Mrs. Pattie Forbes and Mr. R. L. Humber.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. Carl Adams, the meeting was presided over by the vice president, Mrs. C. A. Bowen. Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. After all old and new business was disposed of the books were exchanged.

Mrs. Bowen introduced, as guest speaker, Mr. Robert L. Humber, who has gained national and international fame in his endeavor to form a world federation.

Mr. Humber cited the various instances in world history where treaties had failed to prevent war because, being only contracts between nations, they could not be enforced except by reciprocity, and if one nation failed to fulfill the agreement, the only recourse was the battlefield. He stated that in September, 1939, there were 10,000 treaties in operation.

He went on to show why the League of Nations could not prevent World War II. Being an assembly of diplomats, who could be recalled or exchanged, it had no authority to pass laws, only resolutions, and no power to enforce resolutions. Therefore it could not withstand the crises which confronted it.

He continued with the observation that the United States was fast becoming a world community, economically, industrially and financially and the rest of the world is looking to us for leadership in the stabilizing of human existence. Mr. Humber asked the question, "What is the answer?" and followed it with these words in brief: "By law! We cannot have order without law. They are synonymous. Under law man is free. Without it he has no security. Upon what principle will we build the world of tomorrow? There are two ways—by law or agreements, which are substitutes for law. If you want law, there is only one way—by government, World government."

"Thus a World Federation with laws to operate on individuals and world courts to enforce them. The individual alone should be held responsible, not the nation. He should be tried in open court and if found guilty, sentenced according to his crime."

"Implement the individual and make him a world citizen and responsible to world law."

"That's the only answer!"

In his closing remarks, Mr. Humber expressed the belief that out of the terrible aftermath of war would come peace for all nations if we would only "have faith in our race."

As the conclusion of the program, the hostess, assisted by her mother-in-law, Mrs. Fattie Forbes, served a tempting dessert course with coffee and salted nuts.

Meeting of Greenville Garden Club
At the regular monthly meeting of the Greenville Garden Club held on Wednesday afternoon, March 6, at the Woman's Club, many members and visitors greatly enjoyed hearing Mr. James Feiger, superintendent at Orton Plantation, near Wilmington, talk on "Camellias," and seeing the beautiful colored slides shown. His talk was most interesting and instructive, and he said that the Camellia was distinctly a southern flower, coming back to its own as the aristocrat of the south. He told of the culture, diseases and their treatment, fertilization, pruning, rooting and grafting of camellias, and suggested hardy flowers easily grown in this area. Specimen flowers with their names were on display, and plant lists from the Orton Nurseries were distributed.

During the business session, Mrs. N. T. Ennett, vice president, presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, who is with her husband, ill in Duke hospital. Mrs. Ennett welcomed the many visitors as well as the good number of members. Reports were heard from several chairmen of committees, and Mrs. C. E. Oakley, Bird Committee chairman, told many nice facts about the red bird or cardinal, and declared that this bird had no faults and brought only cheer and good will. Attention of the members was called to the North Carolina Garden club meeting to be held at the Pine Needles hotel in Southern Pines on April 29th and 30th and held at State College Raleigh on March 26, 27, and 28.

Mrs. J. L. Fleming, chairman of Garden Club maps, reported that the maps were formerly $2.50, but were now reduced to $1.00 each, and that she had taken orders for 18 this year.

A report on city planning was read from Mrs. Key Brown, by Mrs. J. T. Little. She stated that Greenville gardens will be opened to the public on a Sunday soon. Mrs. Little, program chairman, also stated that Mrs. J. S. Mitchner, of Raleigh, State Garden Club president, would be with us to talk to us at our April meeting.

During the social hour that followed delicious refreshments were served from a lace-covered table, centered with a crystal bowl of daffodils and flanked with lighted tapers, by Mrs. W. J. Spell, Mrs. H. L. Andrews, Mrs. Charles Reynolds, Mrs. B. H. Stancill, Mrs. W. T. Wooten, Mrs. J. E. Splimman and Mrs. C. E. Oakley, hostesses.—Reported.

Gum Swamp Sunday School News
This church school meets each first, second and third Sunday mornings at 10:30 o'clock and on fourth Sundays at ten o'clock, this being our preaching Sunday. The Sunday school is progressing nicely and growing rapidly under the leadership of our superintendent, Mr. Floyd P. Harris, and our four teachers. Mr. Arthur Morris is teacher of the adult class, Mr. Roosevelt Spain of the Intermediate class, Mrs. Johnny Carraway of the Primary class and Mrs. Floyd P. Harris of the card class. We feel very fortunate in being able to have such consecrated teachers.

The people of the community are showing keen interest and we are taking this means of letting the people know what we are doing and to extend to all a hearty welcome to take the family each Sunday morning and come out to the house of God to study His word and learn more of His infinite love and tender mercies.

At present we only have four classes but we are hoping to have more in the near future as we are planning to repair our church and build class rooms.
We have purchased many good books for our library and hope the cabinet, which is now being made will soon be completed so that the people will be able to read more Christian literature. We have chosen as our librarian, Miss Ruth Morris.

We had set as our goal one hundred. We have reached that number and will you come out Sunday and help us to at least keep it?—Reported.

Red Oak News

In spite of the fact that Mr. Fenner Allen picked up three good mechanics to help him with his new Cadillac that he is driving to Los Angeles filled with all the boys and men of Red Oak Sunday school last Sunday he had another blow-out and his car is now thirteen miles behind the bright red Ford driven by Mrs. B. L. Tyson. His new occupants were Messrs. Scott Kittrell and Crawford. Mr. Leon Tyson says that he is mighty glad to have these men join them as he will have more help when dish-washing time comes. There were 42 present. We lost a few passengers since last Sunday but we hope they will be back with us next Sunday morning at 10 o'clock sharp.

If you like to hear some real good singing, if you like to mingle with your neighbors for an hour of good fellowship, if you would like to devote a part of each Sunday in studying the Bible and in singing the old hymns, if you are not in Sunday school anywhere else, then the members of Red Oak Sunday school cordially invite you to be present at Red Oak next Sunday morning from 10 to 11 o'clock. We shall expect you.

Attendance pins were presented to the following officers and pupils of Red Oak recently:
Mary Louvenia Stocks, one year pin. Nancy Allen, Robert Allen and Douglas Allen, members of the Busy Workers class, 3rd year pins. Supt. F. L. Allen, who has been our most faithful superintendent for the past four years, 4th year pin. Mr. Billy May, one of the oldest and most faithful members of our Sunday school was presented the 4th year pin for perfect attendance and Charles Allen, member of the Sunshine, was presented the 5th year pin. Congratulations to these folks and may this be an inspiration to the rest of us.

"Little Women" Is Well Received

An enthusiastic and responsive audience witnessed the opening night of "Little Women," Louisa May Alcott's immortal classic, last night on the stage of the Religious Education Building of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church. It is the second production this year of the Wesley Foundation Players, students of East Carolina Teachers College who frequent the Methodist Student Center. "Little Women" will be given again tonight and tomorrow night.

As soon as the stiffness of the opening lines had been got over, they threw themselves into the spirit of this pleasant, picturesque costume play of New England in the 1860's.

Mary Taylor as Jo turned in a competent job in the leading role. Her consistency afforded the play a gratifying coherence. From boyden to coquette, Jean Chaplin as Amy fairly sparkled being most fortunately cast in her role. As a near dying girl, Pearl Arnold as Beth gave a beautiful illusion that was quite convincing. Kay Mann, Dorothy Lewis, and Ralph Gurranus contributed in supporting roles. Otis Peete got off a good accent as Professor Bhaer. For those who need someone to hate or hiss, there is Aupt March played by Janet Rose who with rasping voice, irascible temper and pounding cane sets one into a pet every time she appears.

The director was James Warren. The set afforded an effective background for the frequent picturesque tableaux the players presented in their grouping about the stage. The costuming was complete in coloring and styling, starched petticoats arching full skirts and ruffled men's cuffs.

To set the mood of the period piece was a sextette of young ladies singing familiar folk tunes of the period. They sang before the first curtain and in the intermissions. The lights went up on the dot of eight and intermissions were not prolonged.

Grapes were introduced to China from western Asia in the second century B. C.

Charge Showman Attempt Sodomy

By CHESTER WALSH
In City Recorder's Court today Judge J. W. H. Roberts found probable cause in the case against Jack Baker, Toledo, O., showman, for an alleged attempt to commit an act of sodomy—a crime against nature—with Neal McLawhorn, 15-year-old white youth, and sent the case up to Superior Court for trial by jury.

In the original warrant Baker was charged with the act. Testimony in court today only sustained ordering Baker held for the higher court for an attempted act of sodomy. The court reduced Baker's bond from $3,000 to $1,000, which he provided in cash.

According to McLawhorn's testimony, Baker took him for a ride in a car, stopped in woods near a paved highway, and made improper proposals to him. McLawhorn admitted on the stand that he willingly accompanied Baker, that when improper proposal was made, he did not attempt to leave or call for help, and that Baker did not intimidate or threaten him in any way, but gave him $2. McLawhorn testified that he accepted the money because he was afraid, and intended to report the matter to police. McLawhorn will be 16 next October. He is well grown and told the court he was in good physical condition and weighs 137 pounds. Solicitor Eli Bloom told the court that McLawhorn had changed his story of the incident since talking with him and Chief Jim Tanner Wednesday night, shortly after his ride with Baker.

French Forces Land Without Opposition

Saigon, Indochina, March 8.—(AP)—First elements of French occupation forces have landed in Tonkin Province of northern Indochina without further opposition from Chinese troops ashore, the French high command said today.

General Lu Han, commander of Chinese troops in northern Indochina, ordered the Chinese field commander to cease unauthorized hostilities against the French, who reported 10 soldiers were killed in a clash Wednesday when Chinese artillery fire damaged the French light cruiser Triomphant, which returned the fire.

British sailors' neckerchiefs were changed to black in 1805, to commemorate the death of Lord Nelson.

Sports

Daytona Beach, Fla., March 8.—(AP)—For all their preliminary gyrations, which included for the past month at Sanford, Fla., a sort of three ring circus conducted by that vaillant ring master, Professor Branch Rickey, the Brooklyn Dodgers still lack pitching and first-basing of big league caliber. If they do better than third place in the National league this year, it should call for a congressional investigation.

The new flashiest baseball empire is, of course, just aborning. Rickey, the genius of St. Louis, has had for the first time this Spring an opportunity really to demonstrate his stuff on new ground. He has been working with hundreds of young ball players.

In time, say those who admire El Branch's methods, he will give Brooklyn a raft of fine ball players, plus pennants, until that baseball happy burough is surfeited. He has lined up, in all, 17 ball clubs to which he can parcel out future Brooklyn grats.

In other words, there will be a happy day in Brooklyn, but it isn't yet. Rickey, at the moment, is not prepared to deliver to his field manager, Leo Durocher, the athlete of whom poems are written.

Leo puts it more succinctly: he needs pitchers and a good first baseman and fewer holdouts among his outfielders. The latter in particular, seem to irritate him.

The best pitcher Leo can lay his hands on at the moment is one Hal Gregg, who won 18 and lost 13 for last year's third-place outfit. That isn't good.

West Baden, Ind., March 8.—(AP)—A four year period away from strenuous training for ring warfare ended today for Joe Louis.

The world's heavyweight boxing champion launched a 40-day tuning up program at this village spa in the first phase of his conditioning in preparation for the defense of his title against challenger Billy Conn in New York's Yankee Stadium June 19.

The second phase begins May 1 at Pompton Lakes, N. J., when he starts his boxing drills.

Louis was discharged last October after serving three years and nine months in the army. He appeared eager to get started.

Louis, who will be 32 years old on May 13, weighs 220 pounds, 13 above his fighting weight. He plans to melt off this excess by walking and jogging over the hilly countryside for an hour each morning, engage in other outdoor exercises in the afternoon and eat only two meals daily. He also will play golf and ride horseback. He is shipping two spirited animals here.

His training will be all out-of-doors. There will be no gymnasium work, no boxing. The Brown Bomber will remain here until April 26 and then proceed to Pompton Lakes.

Memphis, Tenn., March 8.—(AP) Bill Terry, who bowed out of baseball three years ago with a blast at the national game, is going to devote his spare hours this Spring to teaching his son's prep school team "to take it better than I could."

Terry, a successful Memphis cotton man, will spend his afternoons coaching Christian Brother College where his son, Ken, is an aspirant for a starting pitcher's berth.

The former first baseman, who led the New York Giants to three national league pennants and one world championship, said, "One of my main ideas in getting out with these youngsters is to teach them something I never learned—how to lose as well as win."

"I was considered a poor sport because I always played to win. I want them to learn to play the game for the sport's sake and not just for the victories."

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

AS WE GIVE WE GET

Centuries ago, an advisor to the King of France recommended to his royal patron that he create an iron cage in which the captive could neither lie down nor stand up and that he use this for the punishment of political prisoners. The cage was made. Some years later, however, this courtier fell into disfavor with the king, and for 14 years was imprisoned in the instrument of torture he had devised for others. "With what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again," said Jesus. This is a universal law. We get for ourselves what we give to others. The universe is put together in such a way that those who plan evil for their fellows experience a terrific kickback. God sees to it that in the end, the evil we plan for others comes back to plague us. But there is another side to the picture. While it is true that evil brings retribution, it is also true that virtue brings reward. Many people sneer at this and point out the cases where justice is violated and virtue abused. But the world being full of sinful men, intent on opposing the will of God, it happens that justice often temporarily triumphs, and those who have done the right thing have to wait until in his vast eternity the righteous judge of all the world vindicates them and gives them their dues. As the courtier had to live in the instrument of torture he devised, so we have to live in the kind of world we have made for ourselves. Let us therefore be careful as we fashion this world day by day.

ALL SHOULD HEAR HIM

(Elizabeth City Daily Advance)
It is seldom that a civic club gets an opportunity to hear so thought provoking an address as that of Robert Lee Humber yesterday. Every civic club in the city and in the Albemarle should hear Mr. Humber. The Advance believes.

North Carolina has the distinction of being not only Mr. Humber's native state but also of being the first state in the Union endorsing the World Federation as a means of preserving the peace and freedom and promoting the happiness of human kind. The North Carolina General Assembly in March of 1941 took this step, which has now been followed by New Jersey in 1942; Connecticut, Rhode Island, Maryland and Alabama in 1943; Virginia and Louisiana in 1944; Tennessee, Oklahoma, Utah, New Hampshire and Florida in 1945.

Thus, over a period of five years, beginning before the trenches of American isolationists were blasted to bits at Pearl Harbor one state after another, in divers parts of the Country, has gone on record as recognizing the need of and as favoring a world federation to establish on earth a reign of law and peace to replace the present system, so replete with danger to all mankind.

This week comes the news that a fourteenth state, the eighth Southern commonwealth to join the lengthening roster, has endorsed the principles of world federation so eloquently promoted by Mr. Humber for years past. That state is Georgia, whose Senate last Monday, followed by its House on Wednesday, endorsed the philosophy of world brotherhood.

The Daily Advance can but congratulate Georgia for its new-found liberalism. Mr. Humber for his perseverance. The importance of Humber's work in advancing a cause which we all need hope will sweep the world lies, we believe, in that he has managed to personalize and bring to the attention of the fundamental bodies which represent the people issues which have all too often in the past seemed abstract and cosmopolitan to the individual. Each citizen of this country needs to feel that he may go to his elected representative, in his own home state, and give expression to his ideas for a better world community. The tireless and hopeful crusade of Mr. Humber has, it seems, made that possible for an increasingly large number of our citizens, simply by furnishing the standard around which they may rally.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By JACK STINNETT

MITCHELL AND BIKINI

(First of Two Articles)

Washington—In May, on the lonely little atoll of Bikini, halfway between the Philippines and Hawaii, an atomic bomb will be exploded over 92 ships of war.

Two months later, according to present plans of "Operation Crossroads," as the joint chiefs of staff have dubbed this experiment, a barge will drift into the lagoon to explode another atomic bomb among warships at surface level.

Exactly 25 years before this latter test, in July, 1921, Brig. Gen. William Mitchell and a handful of his flying Jennies proved to the world that a battleship could be sunk by bombs from the air.

It will be well for the people of this country to evaluate the Bikini atomic bomb tests in the light of those conducted a quarter of a century ago, when a 42-year-old "flying fool" tried to make the world understand that the warfare of tomorrow would be something else again.

"Billy" Mitchell is now vindicated by acts of a Congress that once brushed him off; is now honored by military men who sit in the same chairs of those generals, admirals, and cabinet members who contributed to his court martial and disgrace.

Perhaps unfortunately for the nation, there is no one individual screaming at the top of leatherlined lungs about the consequences of the Bikini atomic bomb tests as Mitchell yelled for a unified department of defense, with Army, Navy and air branches; for aircraft carriers; for airfields in the Aleutians.

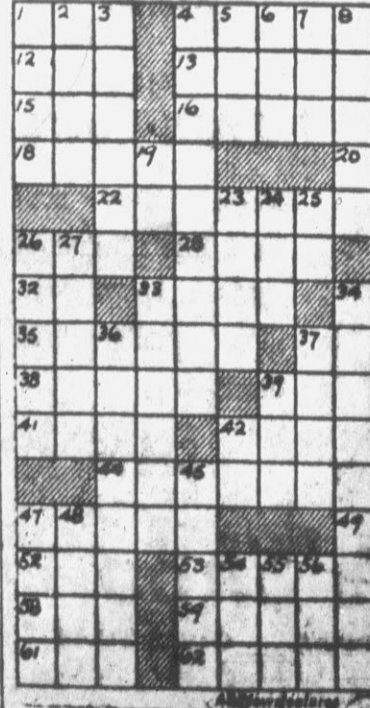

When Bill Mitchell made his tests in 1921, he was operating under orders designed to make success of the experiment virtually impossible. Those orders were that he was not to use anything heavier than a 600-pound bomb and that the bombing planes must fly at 10,000 feet or higher when they dropped their bombs.

Mitchell violated both orders when he and his infant airforce sank the German battleship Ostfriesland off the Virginia Capes.

His planes carried one-ton bombs and although one of them got to the height of 11,000 feet on the previous test, most flew at a height of a mile or slightly over. Considering the antiquated planes, the fact of adequate bombights, the fact that they had to fly their loads 60 miles off shore and dump them without the aid of modern mechanisms, the miracle is that they hit anything at all.

But the Ostfriesland went down in from four to 20 minutes. (Official reports vary that much).

Air Commodore Francis Charlton of the British Navy, who was one of the observers, messaged Mitchell: "This shot will ring around the world. I am leaving for England convinced that you have shaken May Lord Nelson rise from his tomb naval tactics to their foundation, and smite me if I'm wrong." (Tomorrow: Japan, Germany and Mitchell.)

of the Canton. They stand in a big circle—maybe 5,000 or 6,000 men—and vote by a show of hands. If the presiding official can't determine the vote in this way the circle separates into two opposing bodies and there is a count of noses. Everybody turns out for this town meeting, that is all the voters, but the chances are that somebody has to stay home—and that will be mother.

This intimate association of the citizen with local affairs extends to the national government. The Federal Assembly can pass a law, but if 30,000 voters ask for a plebiscite they can have it.

The average woman doesn't feel that she has the time to go to innumerable communal meetings and debate political issues, or yet stand in circles and vote. However, she would like to vote for the teachers who are to instruct her children, and to vote for anything else relating directly to the welfare of the family. Beyond that the Swiss woman is a home body.

Thus a strike is banned for 60 days. (There's nothing in the law actually preventing a strike within those 60 days. But by a sort of gentlemen's agreement, the strikes don't occur.)

After the fact-finders report to the President, neither company nor union has to accept the fact-finders' say-so. But they usually do. And thus the disputes are settled.

The present dispute started last summer. The non-operating unions—such as clerks and maintenance men—asked for a wage increase of 30 cents an hour and changes in their working conditions.

The operating unions—such as engineers and firemen and conductors—asked for $2.50 a day more and changes in their working conditions.

The unions served upon the companies the usual 30-day notice. The talks which followed lasted till December. No agreement having been reached, the unions appealed to the mediation board.

That board stepped in and after several weeks accomplished this: Three operating unions agreed to submit the wage demands to an arbitration board while the mediation board continued to try to settle their demands for changes in their working conditions.

But two of the biggest unions—the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen—refused arbitration and voted to strike Monday morning.

Now the White House has announced the President will appoint a fact-finding board. As explained, this will delay the strike 60 days.

Also, as explained, neither the companies nor the unions have to accept the fact-finders' report. The union still can strike at the end of 60 days. But it isn't likely to do so.

President Truman has sought to have Congress pass a law setting up fact-finding boards in other kinds of industrial labor disputes—with a prohibition on strikes while the on peacetime conscription. Martin claimed that the proposal was sure of certain approval if the members of the House Military Committee had a chance to vote on it, and he pressed for a decision by the end of the month.

The House also was told by a member of its committee on un-American activities that foreign efforts to secure atom bomb secrets have failed both in Canada and in America.

Rep. Parnell Thomas (R-NJ) offered the assurance in a statement, but the committee was otherwise hush-hush about its investigation into alleged current attempts of alien spies to secure the secrets. However, Thomas declared his group is on the trail of something big.

So they went to her rambling Brentwood home and there, while Joan sniffed and cried, handed her the statuette.

"Usually," she choked, a little ruefully, "I'm ready with the wisecracks. But I can't say anything. My tears speak for me."

She won the award for her dramatic portrayal of the spurned mother in "Mildred Pierce." It was the best part the former Kansas City department store clerk had given in her 20 years on the screen.

The 18th announcement part was a night for veterans, Milland, Welsh-born, has been in Hollywood 13 years. And his performance as the pitiful drunk of "The Lost Week-End," sparked that picture to one of the greatest sweeps since "It Happened One Night" hit the screen in 1934.

For Paramount, "Week-End" won the selection as the best picture. For Billy Wilder it won the directorial award and a share of the palm for the best written screenplay with Charles Brackett.

Other major awards went to James Dunn for his superb job as the father in "A Tree Grows In Brooklyn"—also a dramatic role—and to the one comparative newcomer to films, Ann Revere—who also played a mother—in "National Velvet." They were chosen for the best supporting performances of the year.

To Peggy Ann Garner went a special award as the most promising child actress.

but in defense of those causes which we hold dear not only for our own benefit but because we believe they mean the honor and the happiness of long generations of men."

Then he declared—even as he told Congress in Britain's darkest hour during the wartime disasters of 1941—that:

"We ought to walk together in majesty and peace." "I am sure, is the wish of the overwhelming majority of the 200 million Britons and Americans who are spread about the globe. That is our destiny, or, as most of us would put it, the will of God, seems sure and certain. How it is to be expressed, in what way and in what hour it is to be achieved, I cannot tell."

Churchill said that he had read "the other day" that an English nobleman had said that Britain would have to become the 49th state of the union; he said, too, that he had read only yesterday a senator's argument that United States should not be asked to re-enter the British Empire.

"It seems to me," he went on, "that the path of wisdom lies somewhere between these scarecrow extremes. We must find the means and the method of working together not only in times of war and mortal anguish, but in times of peace with all of its bewilderment and clamour of tongue."

"For," said Churchill, "it is in the years of peace that wars are prevented and that these foundations are laid upon which the noble structures of the future can be built."

"But," he cautioned, "peace will not be preserved by pious sentiments expressed in terms of official grimaces and diplomatic correctitude."

"It will not be preserved," he said, "by casting aside in dangerous times the panoply of warlike strength. There must be earnest thought. There must also be faithful perseverance and foresight."

"Great heart must have the sword and armour to guard the pilgrims on their way. Above all, among the English speaking peoples, there must be the union of hearts based upon conviction and common ideals. That is what I offer. That is what I seek."

is in charge of the school. There is a staff of 10 instructors and a number of part-time teachers.

The school, the first of its kind in the United States, was established to instruct and inspire the sightless with a desire and a will to live normal lives and be useful citizens.

A striking feature of the school is the understanding and generous spirit of those in charge to gradually train the blind, develop each individual's special talents and do it without the apparent pity so frequently manifested toward the sightless. It is a noble work. Those selected to manage the school and to teach and otherwise train the students have the spirit of the Good Samaritan. One of the great joys of living is to talk to one of the students and hear the story of how he has been assisted to live a normal life and become self-supporting. There are 80 students—about one-half white, the others Negroes.

The people of Pitt County have done outstanding work in assisting the blind in a constructive way. Several years ago, when Frank M. Brown was president of the Greenville Lions Club, he and others organized the Pitt County Association for the Blind. More than a thousand members enrolled, and the good work went on. Brown led the movement to have the Preconditioning School for the Blind established in Greenville.

Years of pioneer work by these men bore fruit last summer when Dr. Roma S. Cheek of Raleigh, executive secretary of the State Commission for the Blind, came here and announced that the project in Greenville had been approved by the N. C. State Commission for the Blind. Through the influence of June H. Rose, superintendent of Greenville schools, the old NYA property on the suburbs of the city was procured. Starting from scratch, those in charge of the school, with the assistance of Frank Brown and the Lions, have done a wonderful job and improvements are being made from time to time.

An impressive program will be presented at the dedication exercises Sunday afternoon. Others to participate are Frank M. Brown, president of the Pitt County Association for the Blind; Mayor Jack Boyd of Greenville; Okey J. Anderson of Winston-Salem; Lions district governor, and a member of the Council of State Governors, Lions International; W. H. Imbody of Charlotte, president of the State Association for the Blind; Dr. Marie K. Frampton of New York City, superintendent of the New York Institute for the Blind, and lieutenant-commander in charge of the naval and marine program for the blind, and Preston Cherry, blind student war veteran, representing the student body of the Pre-conditioning Center for the Blind, who will accept the school following Governor Cherry's presentation address.

Two Die Beneath Wheels Of Truck

Creswell, March 8 - (AP) - Tragedy struck a double blow here yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock when a young mother was killed instantly in an unsuccessful attempt to snatch her small daughter from the path of an oncoming truck.

The dead are:
Mrs. Ellen Ledford, 27, of near here, and Mary Lee Ledford, 5.

Mrs. Ledford and her daughter had ridden to their home on U. S. highway 64 about four miles west of here on a mail truck. The truck stopped in front of the J. J. Dayenport service station and the little girl ran to the back to cross the road.

SELF REGULATION

How It's Accomplished

The chief function of the North Carolina Committee of the United States Brewers Foundation is to see to it that beer is sold in strict accord with public sentiment and with the high standards of the brewing industry.

Trained field men employed by the Committee tour the state constantly, observe actual retail outlet operations, report their findings. Where necessary, the Committee makes suggestions for improvement. As most beer retailers believe it sound business policy to operate properly, such suggestions are usually accepted readily. However, if cooperation is not forth-coming, the proper authorities are notified.

Thus strict supervision of beer retailing and close cooperation with law-enforcement authorities assure the maintenance of wholesome conditions wherever beer is sold.

HOUSE READY FOR OPA TILT

Democrats Plan Fight For OPA Extension Measure

Washington, March 3.—(AP)—House Democratic leaders began reforming their lines today in the hope of saving OPA from the slashing that befell the administration's housing bill.

The Banking Committee signaled for the spotlight by calling New York City Mayor William O'Dwyer (3 p. m. EST) for his views on continuing price controls beyond their present June 30 death sentence.

Looking to the inevitable fight ahead, Democratic Leader McCormack of Massachusetts told reporters he did not expect a frontal attack on the OPA extension measure but an effort to put in crippling amendments that would make price control ineffective.

Meanwhile, there were these other developments on the price control front:

1. The House postwar economic policy committee, headed by Rep. Colmer (D-Miss) and comprised of Democrats and Republicans, recommended modified extension of OPA for another year with no cut in existing federal income tax rates.

2. James B. Brownlee, deputy to Economic Stabilizer Chester Bowles, disclosed that a deputy soon will be appointed in OPA with the one job of seeing that price controls are discontinued as soon as supply and demand balances relieve inflationary pressures.

3. Secretary of Agriculture Anderson told the Banking Committee the world food shortage makes it imperative to continue price controls and subsidy payments for a limited time. He added that he wants the government to get out of the subsidy field at the earliest moment when inflation dangers subside.

4. A group of approximately 100 House members set up an unofficial committee to study revisions of the OPA law which Chairman Hartley (NJ) said would seek to make OPA more acceptable and remove what he termed injustices.

congratulated Mr. Spencer and his assistants on their accomplishment in making Chicod the first district in the County to attain quota. The generosity and patriotic endeavor of the citizens of Chicod are an inspiration to the other districts of the County, Mr. Moye stated.

The privilege of contributing to the Red Cross should be offered individually to every one. Each worker in the campaign is asked to please complete his assignment in full, without regard to any dollar quota assigned to him or his district. Those who have been solicited to date have given generously and willingly; Pitt County will greatly exceed her goal if each of us does his part in the campaign.

be included in a production workers' union whose members they supervise.

Lewis' United Mine Workers staged a brief strike last October over the issue, but put off the show down until the next contract negotiations. This began here next Tuesday.

Edward R. Burke, president of the Southern Coal Producers Association and leader of the operator opposition to bargaining with a foremen's union, said the NLRB decision was very bad and would be fought by every resource of the industry. He added that he could see rather a lengthy argument on the issue.

"There can be no divided loyalty among all these parts of management we call foremen," Burke told a reporter. "If I am any judge of the coal industry, it will not be content to let the NLRB have the final word in this matter."

At Pittsburgh, John A. McAlpine, president of the supervisory union, said without amplification, "peace in the coal industry now lies entirely up to the operators."

Burke said the Jones & Laughlin Steel Company, which was ordered to comply with the decision at its four Western Pennsylvania mines, might carry the case to the Circuit Court of Appeals, and thence to the U. S. Supreme Court.

Biron H. Cannon, Jr., secretary of the Western Pennsylvania Coal Operators Association, said the ruling most certainly will be appealed.

A spokesman for the United Mine Workers said the board has granted to the supervisory forces of the coal industry their inherent right of citizenship under the laws of the land.

to Britain.

In an exchange of letters between J. L. Isley, Canadian Finance Minister, and Hugh Dalton, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, it was agreed that loan document had been "drawn up in the expectation that the Anglo-American agreement will be approved by Congress."

"If, however, Congress does not approve the Anglo-American agreement," Isley wrote, "our understanding is that x x x a major change would have occurred in the international financial situation which would have materially altered prospective benefits and obligations flowing from our agreement, and that consequently it would be necessary forthwith to consider what changes in the provisions of our agreement the two governments should agree to."

hope that Russia would do its part by withdrawing immediately all Soviet forces from the territory of Iran, to promote the international confidence which is so necessary for peaceful progress among the peoples of all nations.

It is requested that it be promptly advised of the Soviet decision.

Meanwhile, optimists pointed out two developments yesterday and expressed the hope that they were streaks in the wind. These were:

1. Russia's belated decision to send a delegation to the International Monetary Conference which opens today on Wilmington Island, near Savannah, Ga.

2. The announcement that the United States, Russia and Britain had agreed on a plan for dividing up Germany's remaining merchant ships, while permitting the Reich to keep 200,000 gross tons of shipping—about one-seventh of the total.
