

Expect Russia's Demand To Lose

Soviet Faces Defeat On U.N. Iranian Issue; Support Cues; Among M. For Austr. Proposal To Investigate Spain; Poland Ready To Back Inquiry

New York, April 20.—(AP)—The United Nations Security Council begins its second month of deliberations next week with the prospect that Russia's demand for dismissal of the Iranian case will be rebuffed and that Franco Spain may be investigated by a council subcommittee.

The Iranian issue comes up first when the council meets at 3 p. m. (EST) Tuesday to review a report from its committee of experts on procedure, who told the council they were split, 8 to 3, over the Iranian case on lines identical with those around the council table.

An Australian proposal for appointment of a five-member subcommittee to conduct a four-week investigation of the Franco regime inside Spain gained strength, in the meanwhile, with Poland, author of the charges against Spain, reported ready to back such an inquiry.

Russia, Poland and France were the minority dissenters in the experts' report which ruled that the council had authority to keep the Iranian case on its agenda as long as it desired, despite the fact that Iran has withdrawn her complaint against Russia.

U. S. senators in private conference with Secretary of State Byrnes in Washington yesterday got the impression that Byrnes and other American policy-makers believed the U. N. secretary general, Trygve Lie, overstepped his authority in suggesting early this week that the council's jurisdiction in any case ceased with the withdrawal of the complaint.

The American and British leadership against Russia's demand for dropping the Iranian case has a clear majority of council votes to keep the matter on the agenda pending re-examination May 6 of the status of Red army evacuations from Iran.

Greenville Gets Flight Proposal

By CHESTER WALSH
South East Airlines, Inc., of Charlotte, has made a proposal to the Pitt County - Greenville Airport Commission to establish a schedule of three flights a day through Greenville. The proposal for a place on the airways was made by William C. Teague, president of the company, at a meeting of the commission Friday. C. F. Frye, traffic manager, accompanied Teague here.

One of the proposed schedules would be for daily round-trip flights between Asheville and Morehead City through Greenville. Another flight would be daily round-trip flights between Elizabeth City and Charlotte by way of Greenville. A plane would leave Greenville daily at 6:20 p. m., and arrive at Morehead at 7:20 p. m. Returning, the plane would leave Morehead next morning at 7:52. This flight would include stops at Washington and New Bern.

The Airport Commission will meet Monday night at the Chamber of Commerce to take action on the airline's proposal. Executive Secretary Willard T. Kyzer said. The Navy has not yet surrendered its lease on the airport.

OFFICERS PLAN FOR DAY OF RECKONING

Army Occupation Officials Keep Close Watch Over Subversive Plots

By FRANK L. WHITE
Tokyo, April 20.—(AP)—Many former Japanese army officers are forming groups, some on government-subsidized farms, and secret supplies in the obvious hope of one day regaining power.

This I learned from reliable sources—Japanese, killed nationals and American occupation officials—during a careful investigation of more than two months.

American officials, rather than looking upon it with undue alarm, see in the situation a naturally expected one. In many instances, the identities and locations of the groups are known. They are being watched.

"To date there has been no evidence of any subversion on any extensive scale," said an authoritative source at General MacArthur's headquarters.

Former Major Robert D. Kirk, of Houston, Tex., safety officer since deactivated and back in civilian life in the United States as an attorney, gave the information and the contacts which started the survey.

Each of the evidence cannot be divulged now for obvious reasons. But here are some of the findings: On so-called "cooperative farms," Japanese army officers are well equipped with vehicles, maintain formality of rank, are well financed and are on guard for snooping neighbors.

One such farm near Tokyo is under close allied surveillance. North of Tokyo, a Japanese former major and a large staff live in a shrine near a former arsenal and, through connivance with police, have obtained ample supplies of (Continued on Page Six)

PRICES CLIMB ON DWELLINGS

Real Estate Inflation Blamed For Pyramiding Costs

Washington, April 20.—(AP)—The cost of low-priced homes has jumped an average of 65.1 percent since 1940, the National Housing Agency reported today, blaming real estate inflation.

Such dwellings—those which sold for $6,000 or less in 1940—have "skyrocketed" an average of 96.3 percent in the Pacific coast states, the agency said in releasing findings of a survey completed a fortnight ago. The raise has been greater for small homes than those in the medium-price ($6,000 to $12,000) bracket. (Continued on Page Six)

NATIVE OF CITY DIED SUDDENLY

Col. Frank W. Wilson Succumbed to Heart Attack At Swannanoah Early Today

Col. Frank W. Wilson, commanding officer of Moore General Hospital at Swannanoah, died suddenly today at his quarters on the post. He was 58. Death was attributed to a heart attack.

Attendants said Wilson, who had planned to retire soon and settle in Asheville, had been in apparently good health until today's sudden attack.

A native of Greenville, Col. Wilson had served many years in the army. He went to Swannanoah as commanding officer of Moore General Hospital. (Continued on Page Six)

Chinese Officials Flee Harbin Fearing Capture

Communist Armies Capture Manchurian Capital; City Of Harbin Is Undeveloped By Chinese Nationalist Forces

By The Associated Press
Chinese government officials in Harbin, frightened at the prospect of capture by Communist forces—a fate that presumably befell their fellows in Changchun—fled by plane today to government-controlled Mukden.

Simultaneously, an official spokesman in Chungking conceded that the Communist could take Harbin without a struggle after Russian troops withdrew from that important north Manchurian city next Friday. He said the government has no troops there. The Communists dominate north Manchuria.

He also made the startling acknowledgment that national troops have not captured Szeppingka, despite previous claims—and belatedly reported the fall of Changchun, the capital of Manchuria.

In fact, said the spokesman, the central Manchuria situation is "very grave" from the government viewpoint.

He gave this explanation of the battle for Szeppingka, important railroad center about halfway between government-controlled Mukden and Changchun:

A vanguard of the government's new First Army entered Szeppingka, met strong Communist resistance, and halted to consolidate its forces. It was the withdrawal of Russia's last occupation troops from Changchun last Sunday midnight that precipitated the Communists' successful onslaught on the Manchurian capital.

Harbin, 150 air miles north of Changchun, is the key communications center for north Manchuria. Associated Press Correspondent Spencer Davis learned of the flight of Harbin officials to government-controlled Mukden, 325 air miles to the south, at Sino-American truce headquarters in Peiping.

Babson Discusses the U. N.

Babson Park, Mass., April 20.—I cannot understand why there is so much pessimism regarding the world in general. There is little justification for much of the fear which radio broadcasters are putting out over the air.

Regarding the Veto
We hear much talk that the new World Organization is to be a failure. All impartial evidence is to the contrary. It is succeeding wonderfully. The very fact that all the discussions are in the open for the entire world to hear is of itself a great forward step. It makes a bad impression to read of these U. N. squabbles; but it is much better to have all discussions "on top of the table."

There is much criticism that any one of the five great powers can veto measures; but this works to the advantage of the United States or England as well as to Russia. Besides, there are so many good things which the U. N. can do upon which they all are in agreement, they had better forget other matters for the present. World peace will never be attained by mere majority votes. They must be unanimous to truly hold and succeed.

What About World War III?
Of course, wars are not at an end. There will be more wars and there may be another World War; but there is nothing in sight today which makes it probable. The atom bomb is more likely to insure peace than to bring about war. This present talk about a war with Russia should stop. It is largely to help Communists sell their wares. (Continued on Page Four)

He said the Harbin officials fled "for reasons of environment"—fear of a reputation of Changchun's violence.

However, some Peiping sources told Davis they doubted that a conflict such as Changchun's would follow the Soviet evacuation, explaining that the Harbin mayor never had been supported by the Chinese government.

Davis said Sino-American headquarters had no word concerning seven Americans—five correspondents and two Army men—who went to Changchun last week to observe the Russian withdrawal. Headquarters assumed that Chinese government officials in Changchun were taken into custody by the Communists.

The government Peace Daily News in Chungking, published a special dispatch from Szeppingka reporting that government troops which entered the outskirts early this week "found the city devastated, with corpses piled many places, including the bodies of women and children."

It said the government troops were busy burying the dead and clearing the city.

Communists took 50 government officials prisoners as they withdrew northward, the dispatch added. In Chungking, General Marshall's headquarters today sought the removal of seven Americans from Changchun, Manchurian capital whose fall to Chinese Communist forces after five days of fighting was acknowledged by the central government.

A government spokesman acknowledged the fall of Changchun, claimed by the Communists yesterday, and said the government had no word about the seven Americans and more than 100 Chinese government officials sent to take over (Continued on Page Six)

Fake Drugs Found In Raid On Racketeers

Berlin, April 20.—(AP)—Allied police announced today the discovery of a million-dollar cache of fake drugs which they said were prepared by a ring of German racketeers, all of whom are under arrest.

American and British intelligence agents jailed seven men and three women on charges of manufacturing possession and sale of fake penicillin, which they were accused of representing as the wonder drug that army physicians use to combat venereal disease.

American military court agents identified the chief of the group as Peter Domke, 26, former German army private. Agents said some of the fake penicillin found in his possession was poisonous. A Russian officer who received an injection now is in a critical condition.

STATE SHOWS INCREASES IN EMPLOYMENT

Two-Percent Over-All Increase Reported Since January 15

Raleigh, April 20.—(AP)—R. Mayne Albright, state director of the U. S. Employment Service today reported a two per cent over-all increase in employment in North Carolina industry since January 15, and said there were prospects of another three per cent by May 15. A survey of 427 key industrial plants just concluded, he said, showed employment totaling 133,282 on March 15, compared with 130,688 on January 15. These same firms reported they would need an additional 5,000 workers by May 15 to fill job openings.

The needed workers, Albright said, are in a variety of occupations in a large range of industries, including construction, textiles, manufacturing, structural clay products, and iron and steel.

The State's greatest decline in employment, according to Albright, has been in the shipbuilding industry, which has been in the Wilmington area. Albright said, experienced a decline of 1,773 workers, or 24 per cent of the total employment, during the two months ending on March 15.

As larger industries get into full production, thus providing the equipment, tools and supplies now needed by North Carolina industry firms in this state will accelerate their hiring and their production, Albright commented. "We look forward to fuller employment, and greater production and more general prosperity in all areas in North Carolina during the coming months."

Convention Lays Plans For Furthering Peace And Stability

Washington, April 20.—(AP)—The American Society of Newspaper Editors studied today the means whereby the press can best concentrate its efforts for world peace and stability.

Secretary of State Byrnes and Undersecretary Dean Acheson had planned to give the news executives an insight into the nation's foreign problems at a luncheon meeting. Trygve Lie, secretary general of the United Nations, will speak at the convention's concluding banquet tonight.

The convention will consider a half dozen or more resolutions that may help serve as a chart for appealing to American opinion in the coming months.

Domestic Flour Consumption Cut By Twenty-Five Percent; Pleads For More Vigorous Self-Rationing Of Food In Homes; Effort To Mean Life Or Death To Millions Says President

Washington, April 20.—(AP)—The United States opened an intensive new attack on the global food crisis today, ordering a 25 percent slash in domestic flour consumption and calling for even more vigorous self-rationing of food in American homes.

The emergency, President Truman revealed, has become so acute that this country's already low wheat reserves are going to be cut even further to furnish famine relief.

Mr. Truman somberly told the nation it confronted "the greatest threat of mass starvation in the history of mankind."

"Millions will surely die unless we act less," he said in a plea to the "warm heart of America" for greater voluntary food conservation by the people.

The flour consumption cut was a direct step toward helping the country supply famished overseas areas with a million tons of wheat monthly—the target set by the President for the next three months. The reduction order is effective at midnight tomorrow and will continue in effect until June 30.

Agriculture Department officials estimate that the flour cut will yield the equivalent of 25,000,000 bushels of wheat in the period.

Mr. Truman summoned the nation to redouble famine relief efforts in a nationwide all-network radio broadcast last night. He was joined on the program by former President Herbert Hoover, speaking from Egypt. UNRRA Director General Fawcett La Guardia and Secretary of Agriculture Anderson also were present.

It was Anderson who announced the flour reduction order as part of a six-point administration program to provide more food for export. Other points:

1—A government bonus to farmers of 30 cents a bushel for wheat delivered up to May 25—an inducement aimed at siphoning upwards of 160,000,000 bushels of wheat from farm storage.

2—A like bonus per bushel to farmers for 50,000,000 bushels of corn, to be resold to feeders and processors in urgent need.

3—A government offer to buy an unlimited amount of oatmeal for starvation areas.

4—25 percent cut in the amount of wheat used by food manufacturers in products for domestic human consumption.

5—A reduction in the wheat inventories of millers and food manufacturers to not more than 21 days. La Guardia appealed "desperately" to farmers to supply the needed wheat fast for shipment to lands where "people are dying."

Former President Hoover, recommending an export target of 1,500,000 tons of wheat monthly, recommended that the government resort to wartime measures providing mandatory set-asides of food.

Hoover reported on the dire food situation he has found in Europe and the Middle-East on his survey inspection trip undertaken at Mr. Truman's request. Hoover is honor chairman of the Famine Emergency Committee.

The United States, he said, will have to shoulder a big part of the load in providing relief supplies, but he called upon Britain, Russia and Latin American nations to do their full share.

He termed the crisis unique but (Continued on Page Six)

(Editor's Note: This is the second of two stories explaining what the House action of lifting OPA price controls could mean.)

By JAMES MARLOW
Washington, April 20.—(AP)—The House voted on OPA would knock price controls into a cocked hat.

(This won't become a fact unless the Senate agrees with the House action and the President approves.) But why does the House want to get rid of price controls so fast, since the administration wanted a strong OPA continued another year?

Here are some of the arguments offered by those who want an end to price controls quickly:

1. The wartime rise of costs and the OPA lid on prices have squeezed profits until it's tough or impossible to do business.

2. There's a huge demand for goods of all kinds but the supply of those things is not great enough to meet the demand.

3. The supply is being held down because manufacturers can't produce and still make a profit because of OPA ceilings.

4. If the ceilings were taken off business could make a profit that would encourage production.

5. With production soaring, supplies would soar and supply would come closer to meeting demand.

The government's side of the story is this:

It has tried to keep living costs and prices in hand for four years. It is lifting price controls wherever it can, to prevent hardship on business or because there's danger of prices in a certain field going haywire.

It wants to continue this gradual easing of controls so that the nation can finally get into full peacetime production without much increase in living costs.

The government has fought the idea of a widespread lifting of controls on these grounds:

A sudden wide end to the controls would let prices get out of hand, undo all the efforts of the past five years, and send the nation skating into a ruinous inflation. But if price ceilings are removed (Continued on Page Four)

An Analysis Of The News

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Out of Warsaw comes an unpretentious news item which is lost among the more sensational current headlines but which really represents one of the most significant developments of the moment.

This is the disclosure of the scope of the new Russo-Polish commercial agreement. It provides for exchange of commodities equivalent to $196,000,000 during the coming year and the Soviet Union probably will get virtually all Poland's big coal output, running into some 48,000,000 tons. Here it should be said that coal in chaotic Europe is worth its weight in anything you want to name these days.

And why is this trade agreement significant? Because it's one of the main arches in the great economic structure which Russia has been quietly, but speedily building in Eastern Europe and which now is towering high enough to cast a long shadow. The foundations were well laid months ago.

Moscow is taking over—has taken over, for the most part—the vast economic prize which Hitler threw away when he decided to try to enslave Europe by force. The Nazi dictator had all of central and eastern Europe and the Balkan peninsula right in the palm of his hand economically, and that gave him political domination as well. Russia is demonstrating how it should have been done.

How do America and Britain with their great trade interests like this development? Well, less than a little. As a matter of fact the western allies six months ago protested to Moscow against its proposed trade pacts with Romania, Bulgaria and Hungary, on the grounds that it wasn't right to ally to conclude agreements with enemy countries before the other allies had made peace with them. That protest still hangs fire, but meantime Moscow has been making economic hay.

Hitler's politico-economic domination was based on the scheme of keeping this vast territory mainly agricultural to provide Germany with foodstuffs while absorbing the manufactured products of the rest of the world. He had so far succeeded in perfecting this program that (Continued on Page Four)

Mrs. Lucy J. Moye returned Wednesday from an extended trip to Nashville, Tenn., where she visited Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Bessie. Mrs. Moye is the former Miss Mary Moye Carter of this city.

While away Mrs. Moye spent several days with Rev. and Mrs. J. J. Walker in Memphis. Mr. Walker was pastor of the Christian Church in Greenville for five years. Asking for a leave of absence in the early part of 1918, he joined the armed forces where he served as chaplain for eight months, after which he received a call to Woodland Christian Church in Nashville. In the same small he received a scholarship to Vanderbilt University. He accepted both, took his master's degree and served the church there for seven years, erecting a new brick church while pastor. He then received a call to Central Christian Church in Memphis.

Mr. Walker is in his 21st year with Central Christian Church. A handsome white brick structure has been erected on the corner of Peabody and McLean during his pastorate and 2,970 members have come into the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Walker are remembered by a host of friends in Greenville where they were loved by all who knew them.

Holy Week
Holy week is here at last. We are not glad it has passed.

On Sunday Jesus went to Jerusalem. And many people followed Him.

Blind Bartimaeus was beside the road. "According to your faith, 'Christ said, 'You are made whole.'"

Zacchaeus was very small. And he wished he was tall. When the multitude came, he could not see. So Zacchaeus climbed a sycamore tree.

Christ was very sad this week. He prayed to God His soul to keep. To Bethany, for comfort, Christ went. And three very pressing days He spent.

On Thursday night Christ did eat. After which He washed His Disciples' feet.

For thirty pieces of silver, Christ was sold. And Judas thought himself very bold.

In the Garden of Gethsemane Christ prayed. For all those by whom He was betrayed.

Suddenly the Roman soldiers came. Judas kissed and betrayed His Holy Name.

Peter cut off the soldier's ear. Christ said, "I will heal it here."

Christ was taken by the angry mob. And He could only hear His mother's sob.

The angry mob cried: "Crucify Him, crucify Him." But Pilate said, "I find no fault in Him."

Friday at noon, Christ was nailed to the Cross. At three o'clock He had paid sin's cost.

Christ was laid away in Joseph's tomb. And the whole world suffered a great gloom.

On Easter morning, Christ arose. From the tomb the Romans had closed.

So to everyone Christ did bring. A happy Easter every spring.

Girl Scout News

Leaders Meeting

The leaders of the Girl Scout troops met in the Scout office on Monday night, April 8, for their regular monthly meeting. Many interesting phases of the Scout program were discussed, and the best way to handle the program to obtain maximum results. The possibility of taking the troops to Camp Hardee for a day's camping was considered. This activity has always been enthusiastically received by the Scouts in the past. They will probably hear more about this later.

Brownie Troop No. Two with their leaders, Mrs. E. E. McLawhorn and Mrs. Carl Crawford, went to the Blind Center on April 4 to give one of the Scouts monthly programs. The Scouts are very interested in giving these programs, and they are graciously received by the Blind Center. Miss Nell Stallings' Troop No. 9 will give the program on May 2.

With all travel restrictions removed and the prospect of cabins, this season promises to be the biggest one that Camp Hardee has had. Registrations are coming in rapidly. Mrs. Katharine Adams, who has had much experience in camping and the past two years at Camp Hardee, will be director this year. A very able staff is being selected to insure the Girl Scouts a most profitable and happy time.

The regular monthly meeting of the Girl Scout Council will be held in the Scout office on Tuesday, April 23.

Revival Meeting Is Planned For Sunday

The revival meeting at the Memorial Baptist Church will begin Sunday with the pastor, Rev. Richard E. Hardaway, preaching morning and evening. At the morning service Easter will be observed with special music and a sermon on the subject, "The Dawn of a New Day." At the evening service the pastor will speak on "The Plenteous Harvest."

The Rev. J. Clyde Yates, pastor of the Allen St. Baptist Church, Charlotte, will arrive on Monday and preach his first sermon at eight o'clock. Services will be held each week day evening at the same hour. Rev. Mr. Yates will also conduct the morning devotionals over WCTC radio at eight-thirty.

The members of the church are urged to attend these services, and the public is most cordially invited to attend.

Superior Court In Recess For Weekend

Judge Leo Carr of Burlington yesterday afternoon recessed the two-weeks criminal term of Superior Court until Monday morning at 9:30. The Alamance County jurist disposed of a considerable number of cases the past week. The grand jury returned numerous true bills. Quite a number of nol prosses were taken by agreement of Solicitor Dave M. Clark.

Variety Is Keynote Of Rubinoff Program

FAMOUS VIOLINIST

Music ranging in spirit from Bach to Boogie Woogie will be featured by Rubinoff when he appears at Austin auditorium at the college on Monday, April 20 in a concert of light popular and classical music.

Years of pleasing his tremendous following as radio artist, orchestra conductor and composer, has made the violin virtuoso a master of program selection. Highlights of his program will be the soul-stirring "Liebestraum" by Liszt, "Intermezzo" from the motion picture of the same name, the hauntingly beautiful "Rhapsody in Blue" of George Gershwin played as a violin solo for the first time, and the wildly exciting "Dance of the Russian Peasant" as well as other popular selections.

As usual, Rubinoff will perform on his matchless Stradivarius violin.

A number of important cases are on the calendar for trial next week.

U. S. And Canada Good Will Week

Kiwanis clubs will observe United States-Canada Good Will Week from April 21 to April 27, with programs that will recognize the friendship existing between the two nations.

One of the most important programs sponsored by Kiwanis International, United States-Canada Good Will Week has been acclaimed by the executives of the American and Canadian governments for helping to achieve a closer relationship.

President Harry Truman stated: "In this first year of peace, the service rendered by Kiwanis International in sponsoring the annual United States-Canadian Good Will Week deepens in significance. 'Between Canada and the United States there has been no let-down in the spirit or the habit of cooperation. Our two peoples work together as closely today as they did a year ago and will keep on doing so. The world as a whole desperately needs to profit from our North American example. Under these circumstances there is even more need today for Kiwanis everywhere to drive home the lesson of the Canadian-American relationship.'"

To commemorate the understanding between the two countries Kiwanis International has erected 19 bronze boundary tablets along the border. The first tablet was erected in 1935, and it is the aim of Kiwanis to place one at every important boundary crossing.

At the meeting of the Greenville Kiwanis Club President Ed E. Rawl announced a special program has been arranged for next Friday evening.

Deacons Drop Game To Greenville Nine

Manager Payne's Greenies Take 2-1 Decision Over Wake Forest In Yesterday's Contest

By BERT MOYE

Manager Virgil Payne's Greenville Greenies of the Coastal Plain League edged out a 2-1 decision over the Wake Forest Demon Deacons here yesterday afternoon in an exhibition contest. The game was featured by the five hurlers, who only allowed four safeties.

Wake Forest scored in the initial frame when Fleet walked, was sacrificed to second by Davis, and came home on Lougee's timely single. The Deacons were never able to score after the initial frame, though they threatened several innings after that.

Greenville was unable to score until the seventh when Carlson was issued a free pass to first, went to third on Seccian's double—the only extra base hit of the game—and scored when Fleet threw the ball wild to first in an effort to get Rainweller for the third out.

Greenville pushed the winning run across in the eighth when Charles Futrell singled, went to second on Mayer's sacrifice, advanced to third on an infield out, and then scored when Skelding made a wild pitch.

The game will be a return game, the two teams having played each other on last Sunday with the locals coming out on the bottom end of the score 5-4. Quite naturally the local boys will be out for revenge this Sunday.

When Greenville played in Goldsboro last Sunday more than a thousand fans were in attendance. So how about you ladies and gents with your new Easter bonnets taking time off Sunday afternoon and coming out and help support the team get 'n its feet.

Game time is 3:00 o'clock—the place, Guy Smiths stadium.

Referee Released On Bail Pending Probe

New York, April 20—(AP)—Arthur Donovan, 54, boxing referee, was free in $2,500 bail today pending an inquiry into the death of a Swedish glass importer who, police said, was struck down by Donovan in Fifth avenue yesterday after an argument.

Donovan was arrested on a felonious assault charge shortly before the importer, David S. Corcoran, 58, died in Roosevelt hospital.

Assistant District Attorney Karl Grebow said the charge would stand until Donovan comes up for a hearing next Friday.

Colored News

The B. T. U. of Sycamore Hill Baptist Church is sponsoring a panel discussion Sunday afternoon at 6:30 at the church, led by Levy suitable for the occasion. An important feature of the evening was a program with Mrs. A. B. Taft as mistress of ceremonies, who gave the welcome address. Response in most fitting expressions were given by Mr. Herman Forbes including his thanks and gratefulness to the mothers and auxiliaries of the various churches for their prayers for the men who served their country in World War II. The duet by Misses Barrett and Hemby was very appropriate, followed by an enjoyable number by Mrs. Malissa Harper. Mrs. Ella L. Hemby sang a solo entitled, "The Bible." Mr. Anderson, an interesting and able speaker held the guests spell-bound with his pleasant experiences in World War II. Every one was deeply indebted to Mr. Anderson for such an enjoyable account of his travels in Scotland, Germany, France and England. We also feel most grateful that he has returned to his family, church and community.

Special and honored guests included the Rev. E. M. Hill who gave timely remarks and expressions concerning the Christian life and the church activities of Mr. and Mrs. Anderson. Rev. S. Hemby also paid a lovely tribute to the Anderson family. Mrs. Rosa Jones of Stuebenville, Ohio, made a lovely contribution to the happiness of the occasion. The Rev. Churchill Thomas and two other ministers from Enfield and Fairmont, N. C., took active parts on the program.

The guests were then ushered into the church dining room by the decoration committee, including Mesdames Lillie Vint, Ethel F. Daniel, Ada L. Joyner and Rosa Sparkman. The tables were lovely in red and white roses, white high geraniums and carnations. The birthday cake and other decorations marked the table for the honored guest. The color scheme of red, white and blue and a large picture of Christ was carried out. Every table was the scene of red, white and blue candles added to the beauty and charm of the room.

The serving committee, Mesdames Christina Coppers, Alice Corey, Lillie Barrett and Mrs. Lizzie Killebrew graciously served all present with a delicious three-course supper.

The many valuable gifts which

Mr. and Mrs. Anderson received including several dollars, bore eloquent testimony of their honor and popularity.

The City Missionary Union met with the circle of Sycamore Hill Baptist Church last Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. A large number of members from the various churches were present to discuss and plan matters pertaining to finance in treasure. Before the meeting adjourned the names of 14 of the sick, or less fortunate of the city were listed and each sent an equal portion. This union has been the "Good Samaritan" for 33 aged, sick and unfortunates since its brief organization. The president and vice president, Mrs. A. B. Taft and Mrs. Ella Dupree are striving earnestly to interest the community churches to become a part of this union.

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

THE DAWN DRIED THEIR TEARS

Waiting is always tedious and never more so than when one waits in grief. The disciples had buried the body of Jesus on Friday evening, hastily preparing the body with a mixture of myrrh and aloes, about a hundred pounds waited tearfully for the dawn of the first day of the week, that they might go and complete burial arrangements for their loved one.

When they laid him in the sepulcher, they laid their hearts down with him. All that they had hoped for and dreamed about had come to an end.

But something of transcendent glory was about to occur. There is no end in God's divine economy, and resurrection is one of the many ways by which God has taught mankind that great lesson. He never taught it more convincingly than on that first Easter Sunday. Now we know that death is conquered. Now we know that behind the veil there is no darkness. For all time we are to be assured that Christ is with those who open their hearts to receive him.

The resurrection was God's great way of vindicating his triumph over evil. It speaks a great message on the immortality of the soul. It reminds the world which hangs between the earthly life and the heavenly and bids us live joyously every day in the light of God's great promises.

WASHINGTON PAYBOOK

By JACK STINNETT

(Third of Six Articles)

Washington—If ever a bridegroom soaked a bride, Congress did just that to President Truman and long before the legislative and administrative branches had been wed a year.

The honeymoon started out all orange blossoms and honey, but in six months the Congress was alternating with slap-downs and the stink treatment. The President told a friend: "I must have been naïve."

If there was any line of demarcation, it was drawn when President Truman sent that 16,000-word, 21-point message to Congress on Sept. 6. It was the second longest such message on record.

Four and a half months later, in his double-barreled message on the budget and the state of the union to the new session of Congress, President Truman still was pleading for those 21 points and five additional.

The end of his first year saw only a handful of them passed and those of minor importance. The rest were either bogged down, dead or, in one instance, weighted down with a rider that Senate leaders said would result in the President's veto.

As his first year drew toward its close, President Truman was openly pointing his finger at Congress and speaking of "a handful of men" (in committee) blocking the administration's legislative program.

Three weeks before his first anniversary, the President was publicly pleading for the Democratic majority in Congress to assume its "party responsibility" and cooperate in carrying out "the party platform."

The Democrats in Congress, of course, are the majority. The President's legislative program could be neither defeated nor balked with-out desertions to the Republican side.

Once more, it was the old story that has plagued Democratic unity since the Civil War—a split between the liberals and the southern conservatives.

The southern Democrats talked to death the President's Fair Employment Practices act. The southern Democrats threatened the minimum wage scale revisions (although it was the Senate farm bloc that draped it with the parity farm price changes, to which the President was so opposed).

They had a big hand too in changing the so-called "full employment" bill.

When the shouting is all over, more of the President's program will be passed, with compromises no doubt, but passed nevertheless. Big fights on two major domestic issues and one major foreign issue strongly recommended by the President are still ahead. These are a health and pre-paid medical care program (the Wagner-Murray-Dingell act) universal military training, and the $3,500,000,000 British loan.

Great Experiments

Only the future can tell which of the above systems will ultimately win out; but each should be given a fair chance to succeed if it can. My own feeling is that there may be a happy medium between Communism and Capitalism. Certainly, no World War III is needed to settle the question. In fact, the real answer can be found only during an era of world peace.

Yes, we have much for which to be thankful. Although very "noisy," yet international conditions are safer today than ever before. The U. N. will succeed; the much despised "veto power" may be an assurance measure. Let us first be tough with our own people and discipline ourselves, as individuals. This will be the best sign of the much needed spiritual awakening for which so many of us are praying.

The World Today

when I toured the Balkans just before the war he was compelling them to accept anything that Germany wished to unload in exchange for agricultural products. Hitler was dumping outmoded armaments and other unwanted supplies wholesale. He had even forced the Greeks to take 100,000 mouth-organs.

Just what economic program the Russians intend to pursue isn't wholly clear as yet. However, we shouldn't fail to note that Moscow's new five year plan complements the developments in central Europe and the Balkans. Nikolai Voznesensky, chairman of Russia's state planning commission, has summarized the five year plan thus:

"It is to rehabilitate our ravaged regions, to restore industry and agriculture to pre-war levels then to surpass this level by a considerable extent."

The first task is said to be restoration and development of heavy industry—iron, steel, fuel, electricity, machine tools and so on. The huge amount of coal which Russia will receive from Poland under the new pact fits into this picture.

The Soviet in previous five year plans has demonstrated the titanic industrial development which it is capable of achieving in a short time. On past records it may not be long before Russian industry is capable of meeting the demands of its new politico-economic empire.

The Nation . . .

Sure. Very few people would try to deny this. But how high up? No one knows exactly. There are only guesses.

Says OPA's Deputy Price Administrator James G. Rogers: Prices will rise 50 per cent in the next eight months, if controls come off. This estimate may be too high. But, again, no one knows.

But if prices soar, will they stay there?

This is where those in favor of removing price controls step in and say:

"Prices may go up at first, while goods are still not sufficiently plentiful to meet demand, but once this is met—"

"Then prices will start falling because that is how our economy works. Which means:

"Businessmen are always in competition with one another. When goods are plentiful and buyers can pick and choose, the competition for sales will keep prices down. For this reason:

"In order to sell their goods in a competitive market, business men will have to sell them as cheaply as they can and still make a profit.

So, when supply meets demand and the real competition to sell begins, prices will come down?

But how far down? No one can honestly answer that question now. If they went up 50 per cent now, with supplies short they might drop back to where they are now when goods become plentiful.

On the other hand: They might not drop, or drop back only 25 per cent and stay there, just remaining 25 per cent higher than they are now.

But in the meantime something else might happen to compel prices to stay higher than they are now. If prices go up—which means if living costs go up—labor unions certainly will demand higher wages.

If wages go up: The cost of producing the needed goods will necessarily increase.

That necessarily will mean which prices to make up for the increased production costs. If price controls go off, the government can't attempt to keep any effective wage controls.

Poland's Coal To Go To Russians

Warsaw, April 17—(AP)—(Delayed)—Foreign trade experts say Soviet Russia probably will get virtually all of Poland's coal exports for the next year.

Under a new commercial agreement signed recently in Moscow, Russia and Poland agreed to exchange equivalent to $196,000,000 from April 1, 1946, to April 1, 1947, and coal is the principal product which Poland at present is able to export.

Thus although she recently joined the European coal organization which opened the western markets to her, there now appears little likelihood that western Europe will see much, if any, Polish coal the coming year.

Poland expects to get considerable supplies of raw materials from Russia under the new agreement, including wool and cotton to keep textile industries running and building materials.

Terms of the agreement have not been published here.

Foreign embassy sources say that what coal Poland has exported to countries other than Russia has been on a fixed charge of about $5 a ton. They declared coal sent to Russia has been exchanged at a rate equivalent to about $1.50 a ton.

DISEASES DECLINE

Tokyo, April 20—(AP)—Smallpox and typhus cases are on the decline throughout the country, with a total of 19,078 reported Thursday, the Welfare Ministry said today.

An average of 170 cases of typhus have been reported daily, a decrease of 50 per cent from the daily average of the latter part of March.

Ivanhoe

Chapter 9
The marshals of the field were the first to offer their congratulations to the victor, praising him, to suffer his helmet to be unhinged, and to receive the prize of the day's journey from the hands of Prince John. The Disinherited Knight, with all knightly courtesy, declined their request, alleging that he could not at this time suffer his face to be seen, for reasons which he had assigned to the heralds when he entered the lists. The marshals, therefore, pressed no farther into the mystery of the Disinherited Knight, but, announcing to Prince John the conqueror's desire to remain unknown, they requested permission to bring him before his Grace, in order that he might receive the reward of his valor.

The marshals brought forward the Disinherited Knight to the foot of a wooden flight of steps, which formed the ascent from the lists to Prince John's throne. The Prince, with a short eulogy upon his valor, caused to be delivered to him the warhorse assigned as the prize.

The Disinherited Knight spoke a word in reply to the compliment of the Prince, which he only acknowledged with a profound obeisance.

The horse was led into the lists by two grooms richly dressed, the victor himself being fully accoutred with the richest war-furniture, which he had scarcely added to the value of the noble creature in the eyes of those who were judges. Laying one hand upon the pommel of the saddle, the Disinherited Knight vaulted without making use of the stirrup, and brandishing aloft his lance, rode twice round the lists, exhibiting the point and paces of the horse with the skill of a perfect horseman.

In the meanwhile, the bustling Prior of Jorvaulx had reminded Prince John, in a whisper, that the victor must now display his good judgment, instead of his valor, by selecting from among the beauties who graced the galleries a lady, who should fill the throne of the Queen of Beauty and of Love, and receive the prize of the tourney upon the ensuing day. The Prince accordingly made a sign with his truncheon, as the knight passed him in his second career around the lists. The Knight turned towards the throne, and, sinking his lance, until the point was within a foot of the ground, remained motionless, as if expecting John's command; while all admired the sudden dexterity with which he instantly reduced his fiery steed from a state of violent emotion and high excitation to the stillness of an equestrian statue.

"Sir Disinherited Knight," said Prince John, "since that is the only title by which we can address you, it is now your duty, as well as privilege, to name the fair lady, who, as Queen of Honour and of Love, is to preside over next day's festival. It is your undoubted prerogative to confer on whom you please this crown, by the delivery of which to the lady of your choice, the election of tomorrow's Queen will be formal and complete. Raise your lance."

The Knight obeyed; and Prince John placed upon its point a coronet of green satin, having around its edge a circlet of gold, the upper edge of which was relieved by arrow-points and hearts placed interchangeably, like the strawberry leaves and balls upon a ducal crown.

The Disinherited Knight pacing forward as slowly as he had hitherto rode swiftly around the lists, seemed to exercise his right of examining the numerous fair faces which adorned that splendid circle. It was worth while to see the different conduct of the beauties who underwent this examination, during the time it was proceeding.

At length the champion paused beneath the balcony in which the Lady Rowena was placed with Cedric her fiancé. Athelstane in attendance, and the expectation of the spectators was excited to the utmost.

Whether from indecision, or some other motive of hesitation, the champion of the day remained stationary for more than a minute, while the eyes of the silent audience were riveted upon his motions; and then, gradually and gracefully sinking the point of his lance, he deposited the coronet which it supported at the feet of the fair Rowena. The trumpets instantly sounded, while the heralds proclaimed the Lady Rowena the Queen of Beauty and of Love for the ensuing day, placing with suitable penalties those who should be disobedient to her authority.

Morning arose in unclouded splendour; and ere the sun was much above the horizon, the idlest or the most eager of the spectators appeared on the common, moving to the lists as to a general centre, in order to secure a favourable situation for viewing the continuation of the contested games.

According to due formality, the Disinherited Knight was to be crowned as leader of the one body, while Brian de Bois-Guilbert, who had been rated as having done second-best in the preceding day, was named first champion of the other band. On the present occasion, about fifty knights were inscribed as desirous of combat upon each side.

As soon as Prince John observed that the destined Queen of the day had arrived upon the field, he rode forward to meet her, doffed his helmet, and, alighting from his horse, assisted the Lady Rowena from her saddle.

"It is thus," said Prince John, "that we set the dutiful example of loyalty to the Queen of Love and Beauty, and are ourselves her guide to the throne which she must this day occupy. Ladies," he said, "attend your Queen, as you wish in your turn to be distinguished by like honours."

So saying, the Prince marshalled Rowena to the seat of honour opposite his own, while the faintest and most distinguished ladies present crowded after her to obtain places as near as possible to their temporary sovereign.

No sooner was Rowena seated, than a burst of music, half drowned by the shouts of the multitude, greeted her new dignity.

Chapter 10
The knights, entering at either end of the lists arranged themselves in a double file, precisely opposite to each other, the leader of each party being in the centre of the foremost rank.

The marshals then withdrew from the lists, and with a voice of thunder, pronounced the signal words—Leissez aller! The trumpets sounded—the spears of the champions were at once lowered and placed in the rests—and the two foremost ranks of either party rushed upon each other in full gallop, and met in the middle of the lists with a shock, the sound of which was heard at a mile's distance.

The consequences of the encounter were not instantly seen, for the dust raised by the trampling of so many steeds darkened the air. When the fight became visible, half the knights on each side were dismounted, and were closing hand to hand with those of their antagonists who were in the same predicament. The mounted knights, whose lances had been almost all broken were now closely engaged with their swords, shouting their warcries, and exchanging buffets, as if honour and life depended on the issue of the combat.

During the varied fortunes of the combat, the eyes of all endeavoured to discover the leaders of each band. Both displayed great feats of gallantry. They repeatedly endeavoured to single out each other, spurred by mutual animosity. Such, however, was the crowd and confusion, that, during the earlier efforts to meet, were unavailing. But when the field became thin the Templar and the Disinherited Knight at length encountered hand to hand, with all the fury that mortal animosity joined to rivalry of honour, could inspire.

But at this moment the party of the Disinherited Knight had the worst; the gigantic arm of Front-de-Boeuf on the one flank, and the ponderous strength of Athelstane on the other, bearing down and dispersing those immediately exposed to them. Finding themselves freed from their immediate antagonists, both these knights at the same instant, turning their horses, spurred against the Disinherited Knight.

"Beware! beware! Sir Disinherited!" was shouted so universally, that the knight became aware of his danger; and, striking a full blow at the Templar, he reined back his steed in the same moment, so as to escape the charge of Athelstane and Front-de-Boeuf. The masterly horsemanship of the Disinherited Knight, and the activity of the noble animal which he mounted, enabled him for a few minutes to keep at sword's point his three antagonists, but although the lists rang with the applauses of his dexterity, it was evident that he must at last be overpowered.

There was among the ranks of the Disinherited Knight a champion in black armour. This knight had hitherto evinced very little interest in the event of the fight, beating off with seeming ease those combatants who attacked him, but neither pursuing his advantages, nor himself assailing any one.

At once this knight seemed to throw aside his apathy, when he discovered the leader of his party so hard bested; for, setting spurs to his horse, he came to his assistance like a thunderbolt, exclaiming in a voice like a trumpet-call, "Desdichado, to the rescue!" With a blow that shattered his sword, he sent Front-de-Boeuf rolling on the ground, then wrenching Athelstane's battleaxe from his hand he stretched him senseless with a buffet on the crest. Having achieved this double feat, the knight seemed to resume the sluggishness of his character, leaving his leader to cope with Brian de Bois-Guilbert. The Templar's horse gave way under the shock of the Disinherited Knight's charge and Brian de Bois-Guilbert rolled on the field. His antagonist sprung from horseback, and commanded him to yield himself but Prince John, moved by the Templar's dangerous situation, saved him the mortification of confessing himself vanquished, by casting down his warner, and putting an end to the conflict.

PARISIAN GAINSBOROUGH—MARRY ROUFF of Paris designed this multi-colored, flowered percale, called the Gainsborough because it is styled after that famous painter's works.

It being now the duty of Prince John to name the knight who had done best, he determined that the honour of the day remained with the black knight. To the surprise of all present, however, the knight thus preferred was nowhere to be found. He had left the lists immediately when the conflict ceased. Prince John had now no further excuse for resisting the claim of the Disinherited Knight, whom therefore, he named the champion of the day.

While the trumpets sounded, while the heralds strained their voices in proclaiming honour to the brave and glory to the victor, the marshals conducted the Disinherited Knight across the lists to the foot of that throne of honour which was occupied by the Lady Rowena. He tottered as they guided him. Then despite his protestations, the marshals removed his helmet, revealing the handsome features of a young man with countenance pale as death.

Coffee originally was sold by pharmacists for medicinal use only.

KIWANIS HAD EASTER SPIRIT

Dr. Haney Led Solemn Service; Inspiring Songs

By CHESTER WALSH

The Kiwanians manifested the spirit of Easter at the club's weekly supper meeting last night. It was Holy Night for the 75 men who represent every phase of the community life, from office employee to bank president. Kiwanis paid tribute to itself last night, President Ed Rawl said after the meeting. Dr. H. G. Haney, always eloquent, always convincing, paid lofty tribute to the memory of the events which we observe from that solemn day of nearly 2000 years ago, when the Savior was crucified to the day of the Resurrection—Easter Sunday. A cathedral-like air prevailed in the Kiwanis group under the leadership of a great Christian crusader. Dr. Haney's words will never be forgotten. He supplemented his eloquent reminder of this glorious occasion with a message of song by Sally Margaret Johnston, talented soloist from ECTC, with Martha Strawn, fellow-student, accompanying her at the piano.

There was never more reverent worship than when Margaret Johnston sang "This Midnight On Olive's Brow," "Into the Woods My Master Went," and "It Was For Me." There was no applause at the conclusion of the songs, with Dr. Haney standing reverently and in benedictive attitude, the spirit of service a week, religious, subdued gradually to the great religious leader and other ministers in the club. The spirit of Kiwanis is great. Arthur Tripp had charge of the program. Dr. Haney directed it. The meeting was another one of those Kiwanis get-togethers when the spirit of the men who serve the community was expressed.

Half an hour of fellowship while they were eating, announcements, a message from President Rawl, and then the recognition of a Greenville citizen and a Kiwanian who has been signally honored by the members of the North Carolina Grand Lodge of Masons. When W. J. (Dick) Bundy was called upon to stand and receive signal recognition, every member of the Kiwanis Club arose to pay him tribute. The past president of the Greenville Club is now Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Masons in North Carolina. The president announced the dates of the Kiwanis minstrel show, May 20-21, under direction of Eli Bloom. Mrs. Ray Tyson was accompanist for the singing of Kiwanis songs led by Eli Bloom.

After the meeting Bloom directed half an hour of rehearsal for the minstrel. J. Hicks Corey, chairman of the ticket committee, distributed tickets to the members to sell. Last year the show sold out before the performance started.

Germans Ignore Adolf's Birthday

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

Berlin, April 20—(AP)—All morning I accosted German residents of this battered capital, asking them what today stood for, and invariably I got a vacant stare.

I told them it was the 57th anniversary of the birth of Adolf Hitler. Most Berliners dismissed the information with a shrug. "We ceased observing the day a year ago," a chauffeur said. "The battle of Berlin was then in full swing and only four days later the Russians marched in. I didn't see a single flag displayed a year ago in honor of the birthday. Everybody was too much occupied with the Russian advance to think about it."

In Hitler's heyday, April 20 was a holiday. All Nazis wore their uniforms. Copious libations were drunk to the fuhrer's health. Delegation after delegation, from the Reich cabinet down, poured into the chancellery to offer congratulations and costly gifts. There were great military parades.

Today nobody seemed any longer interested whether a certain unmarked mound in the chancellery garden contained the burned body of the fuhrer.

USSR Is Ready For Celebration

Moscow, April 20—(AP)—Russia prepared today for an eastern celebration which churchmen said they anticipated would be the greatest since the revolution, with church bells ringing out the Easter tidings for the first time in two decades.

Russian churches will begin their ceremonies shortly before midnight tonight and carry on to the dawn. Hundreds of thousands are expected to pack every church in the capital and reports indicate the same thing will take place throughout the Soviet Union.

This, the first peace-time Easter, was expected to see many Red army officers and soldiers and Russian youths participating in the religious ceremonies.

Priests predicted that Moscow's church goes would number in the neighborhood of a million persons by noon Sunday. They observed that Easter church throngs had grown larger throughout the war, with last year's the largest since the revolution.

Some churchmen said they felt this Easter of 1946 would resemble an ancient Russian Easter celebration.

Although there are not many bells still hanging in Moscow's churches, there are enough to fill the night air with sound, if not with the loud clamor of old. The church and state now are busy on a program of restoring bells at state cost.

Lichfield Guard Is Found Guilty

London, April 20—(AP)—A U. S. Army courtmartial today convicted Staff Sgt. James M. Jones of Muskogee, Okla., on three specifications charging simple assault of American Army prisoners at the Lichfield detention camp and sentenced him to six months at hard labor.

In addition to the six-month term, Jones was ordered to forfeit $18 a month of his army pay during the period of his confinement.

The verdict acquitted Jones, who was a guard at Lichfield, on five charges of simple assault and assault with intent to do bodily harm.

The finding of the six-man court was announced after two and a half hours' deliberation by its president, Maj. Anthony Horn of Logansport, Ind.

Jones had told the court that prisoners marked with bruises from beatings by the guards were concealed whenever Army inspectors visited the camp.

Concluding testimony in the second trial involving cruelty charges at Lichfield, Jones—a 22-year-old soldier from Muskogee, Okla.—acknowledged that he hit prisoners with his fists and with clubs and said such practices by the guards "happened every day" on orders from superior officers.

It is estimated that one in every 250 persons is afflicted with some form of epilepsy.

"The burden will be heavy upon the United States and we cannot do more. Europe and other countries must look to the other sources for the balance."

Secretary Anderson said the government's six-point program for increasing famine relief supplies was born "of dire necessity."

"The measures," he emphasized, "are not a substitute for voluntary conservative efforts."

"We must do still more," Anderson disclosed that the government program has been adopted after consultations with the governments of Canada and Great Britain.

During the consultations, he said, it was indicated those countries will cooperate with the United States toward the "two common objectives of increasing total relief shipments of grain and giving priority to areas abroad most urgently in need of special aid."

Marshall's headquarters said a request had been made through Communist channels for permission for the seven Americans to leave Changchun. The group was comprised of two Army men and five news correspondents, including one woman.

(The Chungking dispatch did not make clear whether Marshall's action meant he had word of the safety of the Americans.)

The government of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek had no details of the occupation of Changchun. There had been no radio contact with the Manchurian capital since 6 p. m. Thursday.

The American and British embassies meantime in Tehran, were concerned with reports that Iran had established censorship on outgoing news dispatches, a factor that some quarters felt might seriously interfere with dispassionate reports from independent observers. The Iranian director of propaganda, Prince Mozaffar Pirouz, denied yesterday that "any censorship whatsoever had been placed on news dispatches from Iran, but said two dispatches of the Times of London correspondent in Tehran contained fantastic stories and rumors and were suppressed."

The debate on Spain took a conciliatory turn at the end of two long sessions of debate when the Australian delegate proposed that the council delegate a five-man sub-committee to investigate and report back May 17 with the fullest possible documentation.

Approval of the Hodgeson proposal would sidetrack Poland's demand for a collective rupture of diplomatic relations with Spain immediately, but it might have the effect of bringing the council to its closest approach to unanimity on any subject thus far.

ket, it was stated, and the increase has accelerated since V-J day on all types of property—homes, building lots and raw land.

Medium-priced homes have gone up 57 per cent, raw land has risen 60.1 per cent, and prepared building lots have gone up 61.8 per cent on the national average, the report said. It added that "inflation has occurred not only in a few, overcrowded big cities, but in large and small cities alike."

Since the war's end alone, the report said, the average rise has been 17.7 per cent on low-priced homes, 14.8 per cent on medium-priced homes, 23 per cent on unimproved land, and 23.3 per cent on building lots. The three Pacific coast states had the highest rise since 1940 in three of the four categories—87.4 per cent on medium priced homes, 98.5 per cent on raw land and 96.3 per cent on low priced homes. The west coast rise on building lots was 84.3 per cent, far above the national average but second to the east south central states which led with 92.6 per cent.
