TRUMAN ASKS FOR ENACTMENT OF DEFENSE BILL

Calls For Active Collaboration With Other American Nations

Washington, May 6.—(AP)—President Truman asked Congress today for legislation authorizing a program of military collaboration with other American countries...

Under the legislation, he said, the army and navy, in conjunction with the State Department, would be permitted to continue in the future a general program of collaboration with the armed forces of our sister republics...

The President said it was incumbent upon the U. S. government to see that military developments in which we have a part are guided toward the maintenance of peace and security...

There is a reasonable and limited purpose for which arms and military equipment can rightfully be made available to the other American states...

This government will not, I am sure, in any way approve of, nor will it participate in, the indiscriminate or unrestricted distribution of armaments...

Russian Foreign Trade System Concerns U. S.

Soviet Union Arranging Secret Exclusive Trade Agreements; American Free-Trade Aims Endangered By Program

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER Washington, May 6.—(AP)—The United States is taking up with Russia the whole system of exclusive trading arrangements which the Soviet Union is putting into effect with its smaller neighbor nations.

Officials who disclosed this today said that so far no satisfactory replies have been received from Moscow. In fact, they added, Washington has been able to learn very little officially about what kind of agreements the Russians actually are making.

The whole undertaking is part of an American campaign to set up throughout the post-war world a relatively free private trade system. Also a part of this effort is the recent request of 15 foreign nations, including Russia and Britain, to wind up their official purchasing missions in this country as quickly as possible.

What State Department officials are reported really concerned about are the British and Russian trade systems. Problems with Britain already have been canvassed in connection with the $3,750,000,000 loan proposal now pending in the Senate.

Meanwhile, since the biggest initial problem is to find out just what is going on, the loan agreement announced with Poland last week may be productive.

The Poles agreed to furnish the American government with full information on their trade and economic relations, which are primarily with Russia. Here is the overall picture so far as it is known here:

1. The Russians have signed very short term barter agreements with Bulgaria, Romania, Hungary, Poland, Czechoslovakia and Finland. Such agreements are considered probably inevitable in Europe's present distressed economy, and they also are being used in western Europe.

Reunion Fails

Congress Set To Intervene In Coal War

Washington, May 6.—(AP)—The coal strike which President Truman described as a national disaster stretched into its sixth week today with official fears and congressional tempers both mounting.

As John L. Lewis prepared to resume his "silent treatment" of the bituminous operations, Congress made its first tentative move toward stepping into the dispute.

A House Judiciary subcommittee scheduled hearings on a bill to outlaw any form of special production payments to unions. Such a law, if passed, would strike down Lewis' No. 1 demand—for a health and welfare fund for his miners.

Lewis held his own counsel on this maneuver as well as Mr. Truman's weekend report warning that the full impact of the strike has only barely begun to be felt.

Even before that document was made public, the Senate heard several of its members demand government action to reopen the mines. Later, Senator Ellender (D-La.) told reporters he thought the report could well mean that the White House is preparing the public for the necessary steps of seizure.

Seizure, however, was not being mentioned seriously among Labor Department officials as a likely next step—for the big reason, they said private, that the government has no assurances that the 400,000 idle miners would return to their jobs even then.

What is expected first, instead, is some government suggestion of possible compromise proposals which might form the basis for real collective bargaining between Lewis and the operators.

It was learned from those who have been present that Lewis has not said a word in the last four days of contract negotiations. He has left all talking to his subordinates.

Nippon's War Lords Plead "Not Guilty"

Hideki Tojo And Twenty-Six Other War-Time Leaders Of Japan Assert Innocence To Charges Of Aggressive War

Tokyo, May 6.—(AP)—Hideki Tojo and 26 other war-time leaders of Japan today entered staccato pleas of innocent to charges that they unleashed a war of aggression and murder in the Pacific and were ordered to trial June 3 despite their counsel's protest that the interval is too short.

The Far East tribunal, before which the 27 appeared for their first formal hearing, however, will convene again next Monday to permit the defense to renew its emphatic challenge that the court has no jurisdiction in the pending cases.

Tojo's attorney, Ichiro Kiyose, lost no time today in attacking the tribunal. He charged that the court's president, Sir William Webb of Australia, has been so biased by his investigation of Japanese atrocities in New Guinea that he cannot judge fairly.

The motion was promptly denied after a ten-minute recess conference. Kiyose had said he intended to object to each of the justices but the ruling prevented him from pursuing the point.

The only defendant not entering a plea of innocent was Dr. Shumei Okawa, who was absent from the courtroom undergoing a sanity examination by Allied psychiatrists as a result of his slapping Tojo's bald head in the court last week and other prisoner's boy antics. Okawa, former director of the East Asia Economics Research Institute of Manchuria, is accused of instigating (Continued on Page Six)

FBI COLLECTS EVIDENCE FOR COURT ACTION

San Francisco, May 6.—(AP)—The FBI moved into Alcatraz today to collect evidence against three survivors of the half-dozen convicts whose desperate, vain break or freedom brought a bloody, 48-hour siege of their cell-block and left five men dead and 13 wounded. Not a single prisoner escaped.

The three may yet die—in San Quentin's green-painted gas chamber. "There is a good chance that evidence will be sufficient to indict the surviving participants for murder," asserted a U. S. Attorney Daniel C. Deasy.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation is taking statements from other prisoners as well as from guards. Deasy reported, and "the matter will be presented to the Federal Grand Jury here."

The three surviving participants, aid Warden James A. Johnston, were Sam Shockey, 36, serving a life term for kidnaping and robbery in Oklahoma; Miran Edgar Thompson, 29, serving 99 years for kidnaping and life for killing a Texas oilman; and Clarence Carnes, 19, Oklahoman, desperate serving 99 years for kidnaping and murder.

Guards broke into the last dark utility corridor of the embattled prison wing Saturday to find the bodies of three others.

Bernard Coy, 46, spry little Louisville, Ky., bank robber who started his uprising by clambering up to a third-tier guards' gallery and forcing his way into it to slug and disarm guard Bert Burch, was defiant to the last. Death caught him with arms extended as though still gripping the rifle he had seized from the guard.

Also dead in the narrow, pipe-filled passageway were Joseph Paul Crezler, 35, Los Angeles bank robber who had assumed command and carried on the fight furiously, despite his quick conclusion that the break had failed and "we're as far from San Francisco as ever!"

Marvin P. Hubbard, 36, Tennessee kidnaper, who had lived until Saturday morning—outlasting Coy and Crezler by one night.

The rifle and pistol which Coy had wrested from Burch were found beside the convicts.

There was no further resistance; the battle of The Rock was ended. Dead were two guards—one, Harold P. Stiles, shot in a valiant effort (Continued on Page Six)

Ceiling Price In Effect On Bricks

Raleigh, May 6.—Dollar and cents ceiling prices have been set for all sales of brick in North Carolina in an effort to aid home builders to determine quickly the cost of their brick and at the same time encourage brick makers to deliver the brick to the construction site.

The ceiling price for brick in North Carolina was set at 20 per thousand for sales at the brick plants and from carload rail sales and a ceiling price of $25.75 per thousand for brick delivered to the construction site, Johnson said.

Johnson explained that the price of common brick delivered to the construction site has been adjusted from $21 to $25.75 per thousand in order to encourage brick sellers to make delivery to the projects. The new prices for North Carolina are now in effect in all of the state's 100 counties.

Train Schedules Cut By Seaboard Air Line

Raleigh, May 6.—(AP)—Sharply curtailed passenger train service was scheduled to be put into effect tomorrow by the Seaboard Air Line Railway as a result of the coal miners' strike.

The new reductions, announced here yesterday by Charles G. Ward, assistant general passenger agent, are in addition to curtailments announced Saturday.

The Robert E. Lee, trains nos. 3 and 6, will be discontinued entirely south of Hamlet after today on the southbound trip and after tomorrow on the northbound run. The train will continue to operate as usual between Hamlet and New York.

Other changes announced by Ward include elimination of the Palmland, after tonight, on the Jacksonville-Miami section, elimination of passenger service between Tampa and West Lake Wells, Fla.; and consolidation between New York and Hamlet of the Sun Queen, New York to Florida train, and the Cotton States Special, running from New York to Atlanta and Birmingham. Trains nos. 21 and 22 will run every other day between Hamlet and Rutherfordton.

TODAY IN CONGRESS

A Review Of Your Government In Action

Washington, May 6.—(AP)—Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo.) criticized the proposed $3,750,000,000 British loan today as the beginning of a lending program that may bring the end of a great and good experiment in democracy.

Johnson claimed the Senate floor to oppose the measure as administration leaders waited impatiently for a break in debate they hope will bring a showdown vote this week.

Asserting that Britain has no more dependable ally than the U. S., Johnson said he is convinced that the present proposal is only the first of $1 billion dollars in loans this country will be called on to make. That, he said, would threaten the solvency of the United States.

The titanic program of lavish lending which this loan launches is in my opinion the beginning of the end of a great and good experiment in real democracy," he declared.

FRENCH VOTE DOWN LEFTIST CONSTITUTION

Left Wing Bloc Given Sharpest Rejection Since Liberation Of France

Paris, May 6.—(AP)—French voters today gave the sharpest setback to the left wing bloc since the liberation of France, rejected a Communist-Socialist supported constitution in yesterday's referendum, complete official returns showed today.

Totals announced by the Ministry of the Interior indicated that the constitution was defeated by more than 1,180,000 votes. These figures, complete for the 93 departments of France, including all three in North Africa, gave:

Against the constitution—10,632,430.

For the constitution—9,450,570.

Approximately 80 percent of the registered voters participated.

Defeat of the proposal means that France will elect a new constituent assembly June 2. This assembly will name a new provisional government and draft another proposed constitution for the fourth republic.

The Leftist-supported constitution would have established an all-powerful unicameral legislature, empowered to appoint executive and judicial branches of the government.

The proposal was opposed bitterly by the conservative Popular Republican Movement (MRP) and other Right-Wing parties, on the grounds that it would give a virtual dictatorship to whatever faction won control of the legislature.

Opponents of the measure also maintained that it failed to provide "checks and balances" necessary for a democracy, and pointed out that the president of France would be merely a figurehead.

The MRP and Gen. Charles DeGaulle, former president, had advocated a two-chamber legislature, and strong executive and judicial branches of government. DeGaulle, now in retirement, did not have an elector's registration card and did not vote in the referendum.

Foreign Ministers Set Aside Italian-Yugoslav Border Issue; Neither Russians nor Americans Budge on Italian Treaty Terms; Romanian Treaty Said First On Agenda

Paris, May 6.—(AP)—Deadlocked on the Italian-Yugoslav border issue, the foreign ministers council instructed its deputies today to start examination of the Balkan treaties beginning with Romania, an American informant said.

The four ministers of Russia, Britain, France and the United States reviewed their position on the Italian treaty and found the question of Trieste and the Italian-Yugoslav frontier was the key difficulty. Thereupon U. S. Secretary of State Byrnes proposed that the deputies be instructed to start work on Balkan treaties.

Neither the Americans nor the Russians would budge from their stands on the Italian treaty at the meeting today.

The U. S. secretary told his colleagues, the informant said, that he was willing to accept either the proposed British or French frontier lines between Italy and Yugoslavia but that acceptance of the Russian proposal would violate the London conference decision to base the new frontier on technic grounds.

Byrnes' proposal of Saturday to hold a plebiscite in the disputed region between the proposed American and Russian lines was not raised at today's meeting.

With the switch to Balkan problems, the possibility was seen that the United States might offer concessions in the Balkans to break the deadlock on Italy.

Coincidentally, reports reaching Paris indicated that whatever decisions were reached by the ministers might result in violent reactions from the countries affected. These reports included accounts of open defiance in Italy, strikes and strife in Austria and veiled threats from Yugoslavia.

After failing to reach an agreement Saturday on the Italian-Yugoslav frontier, the ministers of Russia, the United States, Britain and France rested yesterday before tackling an American proposal for (Continued on Page Six)

Veteran Thwarts Robbery Attempt

Camden, N. J., May 6.—A veteran Vevie and Okinawa braved sawed-off shotguns in the hands of five marked robbers early today and thwarted a $4,000 holdup.

When the robbers entered Ole's Rauch near Berlin, N. J., wearing red, brown, white and black masks, Ole Larson, the proprietor, dashed into a rear office with a bag containing $4,000.

Two of the thugs started after Larson, when they were controlled by the veteran, identified by policeman as Edward Dwyer. Dwyer refused to move, despite the menacing shotguns, saying:

"Go on, get out of here, you haven't got the guts to shoot."

They tried to brush Dwyer aside with the muzzles of their guns but he stood his ground. Finally, unheeding, the gunman fled, one of them grabbing a $20 bill from a table.

The road house is about a mile from another tavern which was robbed of $195 in a similar holdup on April 11.

Dwyer served 18 months in the Pacific. He is married and the father of a six-year-old daughter Peggy.

The NATION TODAY

By James Marlow

Washington, May 6.—(AP)—John L. Lewis' coal miners have been striking 36 days.

Yet Lewis still hasn't said, in dollars and cents, what he wants. This is a new way of bargaining. Having set out to try something new, Lewis continues to try it.

The White House says the strike has become a "national disaster."

In other strikes, labor leaders have said precisely what they wanted even when, for bargaining purposes, they deliberately set their figures too high.

The WORLD TODAY

An Analysis Of The News

By DEWITT MACKENZIE If we had to compose a lament to express the woes of the current international conferences—Security Council of the United Nations and Big Four Foreign Ministers' parley alike—the refrain most certainly would keep repeating "zones of influence" with the persistence of a phonograph record that has the needle stuck in one groove.

Virtually all the vexatious problems of the moment are related to the realignment of the zones of influence of the great powers. There are the Russo-Iranian and Spanish questions before the Security Council, the Palestine imbroglio, the trouble-breeding Italian peace treaty which involves the vastly important Mediterranean area, and numerous equally grave issues in the Orient.

Every one of these crises involves Russia. However, that isn't strange for the mighty union, impelled by its very-born prestige, has been moving with the inevitability of a tidal wave towards new boundaries of influence. A very considerable expansion was generally expected by the world at large, and the other allies conceded it without much question in many instances at the outset.

However, passing time has brought no slackening in Moscow's drive. And because of this the western allies are gravely concerned over the limits of the Soviet Union's intentions. What goal has it really set for itself? Does it, for instance, contemplate the complete domination of the eastern hemisphere, both Europe and Asia? Those are questions which must be answered. And of course, Russia has made it clear she thinks the Anglo-American allies are trying to stymie her legitimate ambitions. That point has to be cleared up too.

The differences in viewpoint between Russia on the one hand and the western allies on the other have become so pronounced that small (Continued on Page Four)

And He can do no wrong.

Therefore woman can play a great part in the establishment of a better understanding and a permanent peace. First, she can teach the primary child to understand why children in other lands live as they do and observe the customs which seem so strange to us.

Second, as children become older mothers can take time to discuss everyday international problems and help them see the reasons underlying the nations' actions.

To Organize Local Aviation Chapter

A meeting will be held in the courtroom of the City Hall here Thursday night, May 9, to organize a local chapter of the National Aeronautical Association under auspices of the Greenville Junior Chamber of Commerce.

N. Y. president of the United Council of Church Women, and voted "the American Mother of 1945," has written this prayer of the mothers of the world: "Today the mothers of the world thank Thee, God, that the war is over. Establish Thou, O God, a new justice so that flame and sword may never again ravage the earth. Have compassion upon the hungry, the sick, the homeless. Bind up the wounds of stricken humanity, let the shattered cities be rebuilt, let laughter return and joy, give us the fortitude that will be needed to complete Thy work, O Thou Father of us all, unite our hearts in reverence and in faith in one another, and help us to bring peace."

"From mothers to mothers"—mothers in America to mothers in Europe—is the slogan of the American Mothers Committee of the Golden Rule Foundation which is asking a million American mothers to send a package and a friendly letter to the distressed mothers who are victims of the war. The package may be sent through the regular Jewish, Catholic, and Protestant service depots (each church has address of nearest depot); each carton labeled "To a Mother," and in each enclosed a brief letter of cheer. The articles should include articles of all kinds usable in a home. The mothers heading the movement are Mrs. David de Sola Pool, Mrs. James F. Looman, Mrs. Joseph E. Goodbar, and Mrs. Harold V. Milligan.

Chapter 22
 Mounted upon a mule, the gift of the outlaw, with two tall yeomen to act as his guard and guides, the Jew had set out for the Preceptory of Templestowe, for the purpose of negotiating his daughter's redemption. But his strength failed him totally ere he had reached within four miles of the Temple-Court; and he was rendered altogether incapable of proceeding farther than a small market-town, where dwelt a Jewish Rabbi of his tribe, eminent in the medical profession, and to whom Isaac was well known.

On the morrow, when Isaac proposed to rise and pursue his journey, Nathan remonstrated against his purpose, both as his host and as his physician. It might cost him, he said, his life. But Isaac replied that more than life and death depended upon his going that morning to Templestowe.

"To Templestowe!" said his host with surprise. "Wottest thou that Lucas de Beaumanoir, the chief of their order, and whom they term Grand Master, is now himself at Templestowe?"

"He is well known unto me," said Isaac; "the Gentiles deliver this Lucas Beaumanoir as a man zealous to slaying for every point of the Nazarene law; and our brethren have termed him a fierce destroyer of Saracens, and a cruel tyrant to the Children of the Promise. Nevertheless, I must present myself at Templestowe, though he hath made his face like unto a fiery furnace seven times heated."

He then explained to Nathan the pressing cause of his journey. "Thou seest," said Isaac, "how it stands with me, and that I may not tarry. Peradventure, the presence of this Lucas Beaumanoir, being the chief man over them, may turn Brian de Bois-Guilbert from the ill which he doth meditate, and that he may deliver to me my beloved daughter Rebecca."

Isaac accordingly bade his friend farewell, and about an hour's riding brought him before the Preceptory of Templestowe.

Meantime Lucas Beaumanoir walked in a small garden belonging to the Preceptory, and held sad and confidential communications with a brother of his order, who had come to his company from Palestine.

The Grand Master was a man advanced in age. His thin and severe features retained the soldier's fierceness of expression; an ascetic bigot, they were no less marked by the emaciation of abstinence, and the spiritual pride of the self-satisfied devotee. His white mantle was shaped with severe regularity, according to the rule of Saint Bernard himself, and bearing on the left shoulder the octangular cross peculiar to the order, formed of red cloth.

"Conrade," said the Grand Master, "dear companion of my battles and my toils, to thy faithful bosom alone can I confide my sorrows. Not one object in England hath met mine eyes which it could rest upon with pleasure, save the tombs of our brethren, beneath the massive roof of our Temple Church in yonder proud capital.

"It is but true," answered Conrade Mont-Fitchet; "it is but too true; and the irregularities of our brethren in England are even more gross than those in France."

"Because they are more wealthy," answered the Grand Master. "Bear with me, brother, although I should something vaunt myself. I look upon no brethren whom I can bring my soul to embrace under holy name. What say our statutes, how do our brethren observe them? They should wear no vain or worldly helmet, no gold upon stirrup or bridle-bit; yet who now go pranked out so proudly and so gaily as the poor soldiers of the Temple? They are forbidden by our statutes to take one bird by means of another, to shoot beasts with bow or arblast, to halloo to a hunting-horn, or to spur the horse after game. But now, at hunting and hawking, and each idle sport of wood and river, who so prompt as the Templars in all these fond vanities? They are forbidden to read, save what their Superior permitted, or listen to what is read, save such holy things as may be recited aloud during the hours of reflection; but lo! their ears are at the command of idle minstrels, and their eyes study empty romances. They were commanded to extirpate magic and heresy. Lo! they are charged with studying the accursed cabalistical secrets of the Jews, and the magic of the Paynim Saracens. Simplicity of diet was prescribed to them, roots, pottage, gruels, eating flesh but thrice a-week, because the accustomed feeding on flesh is a dishonourable corruption of the body; and behold their tables groan under delicate fare! Their drink was to be water, and now, to drink like a Templar is the boast of each jolly boon companion! There is a stain in the fabric of the Temple, deep and foul."

At this moment a squire, clothed in a threadbare vestment (for the aspirants after this holy order wore during their novitiate the cast-off garments of the knights), entered the garden, and bowing profoundly before the Grand Master, stood silent, awaiting his permission ere he presumed to tell his errand.

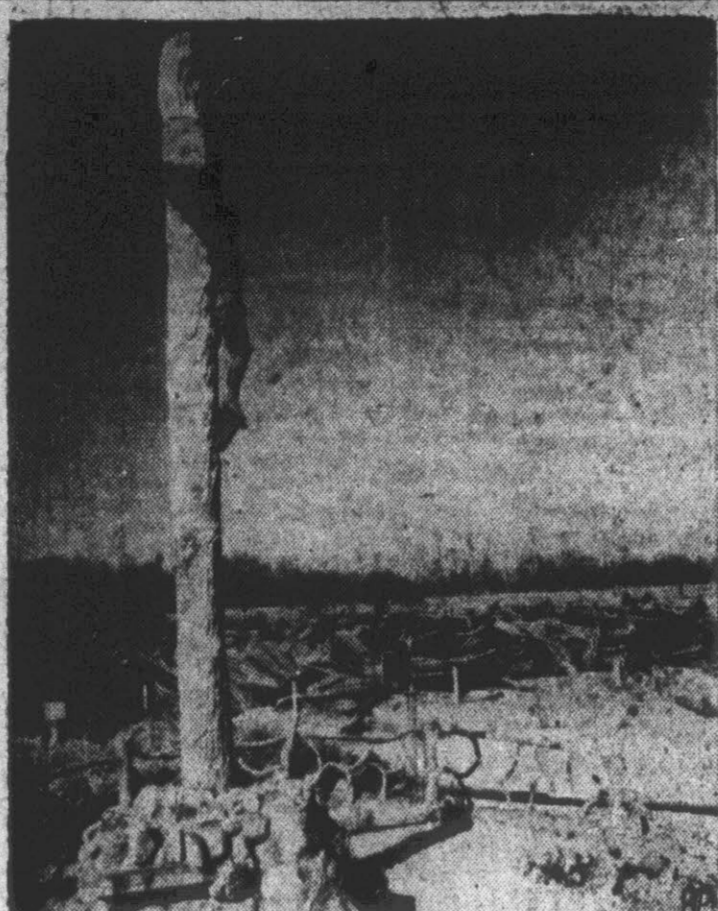

"Speak, Damian, we permit thee. What is thine errand?"

"A Jew stands without the gate, noble and reverend father," said the squire, who prays to speak with brother Brian de Bois-Guilbert.

"Thou wert right to give me knowledge of it," said the Grand Master, "lead the Jew to our presence."

The squire departed with a profound reverence, and in a few minutes returned marshalling in Isaac of York.

Ceremonies To Honor Confederate Dead

Confederate Memorial Day will be observed in Greenville on Wednesday, May 10, on the Court House Square at noon. The United Daughters of the Confederacy will gather at the high school auditorium at 11:30 bringing with them the roses to be carried by the high school students. The student body of the high school, led by the high school band, will march to the Court House Square where the exercises will be held.

There will be selections by the band under the direction of Mr. McDougle, and the high school Glee Club under the direction of Miss Ona Shindler will sing. The numbers to be sung will include "Lest We Forget," "Tentive Tonight," and "Dixie." The base of the monument will be covered with flowers by members of the student body. Rev. R. W. Bradshaw will give the invocation and the benediction. This program is sponsored each year by the George B. Sineclary Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

Strength FOR THE DAY
 BY EARL L. DOUGLAS

WE GET WHAT WE GIVE
 Philippe Pinel, a Frenchman who died in the year 1828, was the man most responsible for bringing about humane treatment of the insane. For centuries before Pinel arrived on the scene, insane people were treated as criminals, manacled, chained to posts, and very often cruelly beaten and abused.

Much that Pinel said about insanity would not stand the test of modern scientific knowledge, but he did lay down the dictum that unreasonableness is not to be beaten out of people and that a man cannot be reformed to sanity by being treated as a ferocious animal. Pinel was opposed by most of the leaders of his day. "He is mad himself," they declared, "else he would not wish to unchain these violent creatures." Pinel's reply was that some people had actually been driven to insanity by the treatment they received and that those who were insane were made worse. True to his prediction, many who had suffered from violence experienced pronounced improvement of mind when they received the treatment of human beings.

People generally try to live up to the estimate we put upon them. If we look upon them as animals and treat them as such, they generally respond by displaying ferocious traits. If, on the other hand, we respect their dignity as men and women, they behave as such and often astound us with the moral grandeur of their characters.

WE, The People
 One of the most shocking, and at the same time depressing features that have accompanied our elections, is the vast number of eligible voters who fail to live up to their responsibilities.

Let us give an illustration that should open the eyes of the "professional non-voter": During the 1944 Presidential election, only FORTY-ONE PERCENT of the eligible voters in North Carolina lent their voice to the electing of a man who would control the power and destiny of the most powerful nation on the face of the earth.

Approximately one-third of the votes cast in this state were for Thomas Dewey, a Republican . . . which leads to the inevitable conclusion that less than 28 per cent of the eligible voters in this state overwhelmingly controlled the destinies of the remaining 72.7 per cent of the North Carolinians who had an equal voice in the management of their own government. We would not, and we could not, do anything but pay the highest homage to the man who led our country through trying years to the threshold of victory; our statistics are used as an illustration of the negligence which has taken hold of our people. With such an attitude prevailing, it would be a simple matter for unscrupulous demagogues to lead an active minority group into state leadership. It has happened to entire nations in the past. It has always led to disaster.

We of North Carolina are vitally interested in the forthcoming district and county elections, for they are the manifestations of the governmental system which are closest to us. Thousands of servicemen and service-women have returned after an observation of statecraft in the other members of the Union and in the nations abroad. The conditions they have seen elsewhere have increased their desire for the greatest advancement of their own community. Theirs can be a powerful voice in the guidance of the government.

If you have not yet registered, do so at once. There is still time. The Registrars' offices will close at sundown Saturday May 11.

Our slogan for the day: "Vote as you please, but vote!"

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK
 BY JACK STINNETT

(First of Two Articles)
 Washington—The problem of how to discipline political party bolters—mugwumps—is almost as old as political parties themselves.

When Democratic Secretary of Commerce Henry A. Wallace, at the Washington Jackson Day dinner, urged "Democrats who have been harmful to our cause" to return to the fold and "honor our side of the fence with their mugs as well as their wumps," he was borrowing a pun originated ten years ago by a Republican.

It was just short of ten years ago by a month that Rep. Albert J. Engel, Independent Michigan Republican, brought down the House of Representatives, by referring to an opponent as "one of those boys who always has his mug on one side of the political fence and his wump on the other."

Congressman Engel's use of the word went a little beyond the classical definition. As he explains today, he was applying it particularly to those politicians who, regardless of their convictions, change to whatever side of the political party fence suits their financial or patronage interests.

Secretary Wallace was clearly using it in reference to those Democrats who consistently block the administration's legislative program by teaming up with the not-much-in-minority Republicans. He didn't say so but his reference applied mostly to the conservative Southern Democrats, many of whom were conspicuous by their absence from the over-flowing $100-a-plate fundraising Jackson Day banquet.

Yet it was to Republican party bolters that the word "mugwumps" was first applied, so far as any written record goes. The word has had a strange mutation. It comes from the Algonquin Indian language and never was used there to signify anything but a chieftain.

However, in 1884, the New York Sun came out with a blistering editorial branding those Republicans who refused to back James G. Blaine for the presidency as "political mugwumps."

A few days later, the New York Post was reporting that the Republican Independents were being referred to all over the country as "Pharisees, hypocrites, dudes and mugwumps."

A few moments after Secretary Wallace made his pun, he hastened to add that he himself had been a mugwump (he was by family tradition and early leanings a Republican) until he had knocked at the door of liberal opportunities offered by the Democratic party. (Tomorrow: A Cure for Mugwumps?)

 powers are taking advantage of the divergence. We see this well illustrated in the Palestine crisis. The Arab League, comprising several Arabian states which are neighbors of Palestine, are reported to be planning to send a delegation to Moscow to ask that Russia support the Arabs in Palestine against the Anglo-American inquiry committee report which calls for the immediate immigration of 100,000 more Jews into the Holy Land.

Whether the Arabs actually appeal to Moscow is beside the point. The important thing is that they have been inspired to consider such action because of the division among the Big Three.

"Zones of influence" are one of the trouble-makers which we shall get rid of when we finally achieve our utopian world. They've whelped a lot of wars through the centuries.

Still, we haven't reached Utopia yet, and zones of influence will remain necessary evils until in years to come we reach that happy day when the United Nations peace organization is functioning smoothly.

If we concede that the great powers are entitled to great zones of influence for purely defensive purposes, we must at the same time challenge any effort to expand beyond the limits which are absolutely necessary for defense. That is to say, zones of influence which are anything more than protective represent aggression which is a challenge to peace.

The question of whether any power is trying to exceed its "legitimate rights" is one which must be answered before we can get accord among the Big Three.

The Nation . . .

 ive moment to start talking turkey. The longer the nation suffers under this strike, the more bitter the public reaction.

Then it's a question of how much public reaction Lewis can stand and how long his miners can afford to remain idle.

Several months ago the House passed a bill, called the Case Bill, which was the most severe measure to curb labor ever passed by the House. Labor screamed.

The bill went to the Senate. The Senators thought it too tough. They softened it up and finally bottled it. Senate leaders haven't let it come to a vote.

Now some Senators, as a result of the coal strike, are developing an angry mood.

If the strike continues, the Senate may act and, together with the House, turn out a law tougher than might ever otherwise have come from Congress.

That would not do Lewis' position in the eyes of labor any good. But if Lewis wins a big victory, then:

1. His technique in this strike—being vague and playing hard-to-get and even making wage demands appear secondary to some other demands—may set the pattern for other labor leaders when their present contracts end.

2. Lewis will have a stronger position than ever in American labor. Some people seem to think victory would clinch for him presidency of the AFL, if he wants it.

But there is no indication that AFL leaders right now have any desire to put Lewis in the place of William Green.

 Europe. American officials are fairly confident that western Europe will drop them as quickly as possible, but they have no idea as to Russian intentions.

2. Probably more significant in official opinion here are long-range commercial agreements made by Russia with Romania and Hungary. They are believed to show the basic pattern of Russia's postwar trade program.

Contrasting sharply with announced American free-trade aims the agreements provide for creation of companies jointly owned by Russia and the other country. Soviet members of the firm exercise control, and the companies have exclusive rights and privileges over those resources which are supposed to be developed.

3. In Iran, Russia made a single deal covering development of northern oil resources, but this has yet to be ratified.

4. For Manchuria Russia proposed 50-50 ownership and development of industries with the Chinese government but China turned down the deal at once.

American officials contend they do not object to state trading agreements on Russia's part since that is the only way Russia can trade. But they do object to (1) all exclusive arrangements, (2) all deals which tend to promote trade between two nations instead of among several and (3) all agreements which might allow Russia to use economic tools for political ends in foreign relations.

 Anglo-American committee report.

King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia, in a telegram to the Arab high committee, promised to do all in his power in opposition to the inquiry report which recommended that 100,000 Jews be admitted to Palestine.

Higher committee spokesmen said telegrams also had been received from the presidents of Syria and Lebanon and Mustapha Nahas Pasha, head of Egypt's Waft Party. Emissaries from Iraq and Trans-Jordan were said to have brought promises of support.

The legal case being prepared for presentation to the International Court at the Hague was understood to contend that the inquiry report was a violation of Britain's mandate.

Auni Bey Abdul Hadi, described by Arabs as the leading legal associate is said to be preparing the case. His brief, it was said, will state that implementation of the report would be sufficient grounds for dissolution of the mandate under Article 22 of the dissolved League of Nations covenant, the associate said.

Some 800 Arab women, led by a Christian and a Moslem, paraded from the Mosque of Omar to the Jaffa Gate at noon today in a demonstration against the report, which recommended the admission of 100,000 Jews to Palestine.

An Arab office spokesman said the Arabs of Palestine would stage another general strike Friday, and "this time we are supported by the whole Arab world."

A bill to extend the draft act beyond its May 15 expiration date is awaiting Senate consideration. Behind that is a measure to give OPA a new lease on life after June 30. Barkley said the Senate must pass atomic control legislation before it quits.

Vandegrift Fears Marine Corps Facing Extinction

Washington, May 6—(AP)—Gen. Alexander A. Vandegrift came out fighting today to save his Marine Corps from the extinction he said is threatened for it in the pending Army-Navy merger bill.

The four-star Marine general contended that the Army "is determined to reduce the Marine Corps to a position of studied military ineffectiveness."

"And the merger bill in its present form makes this objective readily attainable," Vandegrift declared in testimony prepared for a closed session of the Senate Naval Committee. The text of his statement was made available by the Navy.

A member of President Truman's informal council of military elder statesmen, the Marine Corps commandant underlined the reminder that "the Marines are ready."

"If it came to a fight today," he added, "I do not know who could replace them."

"At a time when the responsible heads of other services are complaining of disintegration of fighting power accompanied by problems of low morale and deterioration of discipline," Vandegrift declared, "I can assure you that these conditions are not existent in the Marine Corps."

In sharper tones than either Secretary of the Navy Forrestal or Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz used in earlier appearances before the committee, Vandegrift contended that the War Department general staff has considered "the very existence of the Marine Corps as a continuing effort."

Whereas he said the Marines as early as 1921 "accurately forecast the exact pattern of the coming war against Japan" and developed the technique of amphibious warfare, Vandegrift declared that without a vigorous Marine Corps there is "every indication that our future capacity to conduct amphibious warfare would be seriously impaired."

Russia has until midnight to complete the withdrawal under the terms of her agreement with the Iranian government. Some of the delegates, however, have expressed the belief that Iran's report might be submitted before the deadline.

This report, unless questioned by a member of the council, was expected to open the way for council action to mark the case as closed.

Reports reaching both the State Department and the Iranian embassy in Washington yesterday indicated that all Russian forces had left Iran, with the possible exception of some in the border territories of Azerbaijan province.

State Fire Marshall Sherwood Brockwell of Raleigh will conduct the Eastern Carolina Fire School at the M. O. Minges fire tower in the western part of the city today and tomorrow. Open sessions will be held in the curb market building Tuesday morning beginning at 10 o'clock. Firemen from a score or more of eastern towns and cities from Durham to the coast are expected to attend. Fire Chief George Gardner said. Many fire chiefs and insurance officials are expected to be here.

The training school for firemen was started here in 1943, shortly after M. O. Minges, head of the local Pepsi-Cola Company donated $5,000 for the building. The fire tower is four-story brick structure, with every facility for giving firemen experience in fighting fires in tall buildings. Hereafter the fire school will be held annually.

Incidentally, Greenville has one of the best equipped and most efficiently manned fire departments in the state. There are larger departments in the state, but none better than Greenville's, Mayor Jack Boyd said.

As a result of adding new equipment, including a pumper with an extension ladder, increasing the number of alarm boxes, etc., local fire insurance rates were lowered. Jasper L. Jones is assistant chief of the department.

Congress Set . . .

(Continued From Page One) give-and-take discussions is Lewis' demand for some $3,000,000 in back pay for six hundred unworked holidays. Lewis insists that the old contract require payment for those holidays regardless of any change in national policy.

Although the union contends the assembling of the 210-man policy committee here tomorrow is routine and does not necessarily presage a "break" in the negotiations, the group may prove to be a handy one to have around this week.

Work On Balkan . . .

(Continued From Page One) a plebiscite to settle the issue. It was learned authoritatively that U. S. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes and his top advisers had decided not to give an inch of ground on their stand on the proposed Italian peace treaty and their insistence that Italy be allowed to retain Trieste.

V. M. Molotov, Russian foreign minister, was reported to have offered Saturday to meet Italian interests "halfway" on colonial and reparations questions if Trieste were given to Yugoslavia.

This proposal, regarded in some quarters as the first possibility of a break in the deadlock, was rejected. But an American source said that the United States might be willing to trade with Russia on the Balkans in return for Russian concessions in Italy.

Some questions which the United States might be willing to use as bargaining points involved differences over recognition of Bulgaria and the granting of a portion of Transylvania to Romania, it was said.

FBI Collects . . .

(Continued from Page One) assault attempting to free hostages; the other, W. H. Miller, captured unarmed and killed when the blood-maddened felons turned their guns on their seven hostages. Miller had a key to the back door of the wing—but he threw it into an empty cell and died without revealing it.

Nippon's . . .

(Continued from Page One) the Mukden incident that set off Japanese aggression. Sadao Araki, former general and war minister, was the first to plead. He stood stiffly and in clipped Japanese began a lengthy statement; but Webb cut him off, confining him to a simple plea of innocent.

The defense failed to get into the record with his remarks, which were not translated, but what he said was:

"During the 70 years of my life, I have not committed any act as charged. On the contrary . . ."

One by one, the one-time generals, diplomats and politicians bit out the same sharp words, "Not guilty to all charges."

Tojo was the next to last called, but it was no different when he arose. The olive-skinned little man, in a uniform-like garb, just denied his guilt and sat down.

Bold Robbery At Carolina Grill

Considerable excitement was caused at the Carolina Grill on Dickinson Avenue Saturday afternoon when a customer in the Negro side of the restaurant punched the cash register, grabbed a roll of money and then ran, police said today.

Bill Smith, Negro employe, and Joe Saad, another employe chased the robber. Smith caught Linwood Williams, 23-year-old Negro, and he and Saad turned him over to Police Officers Mobley and Mills. The officers recovered about $100 from the fleeing Williams, they said, Williams will be tried in Police Court Friday.

GREENVILLE LADY SPIT UP ACID LIQUIDS FOR HOURS AFTER EATING

For hours after every meal, a Greenville lady used to spit up a strong, acidulous liquid mixed with pieces of half-digested food. She says it was awful. At times she would nearly strangle. She had stomach bloot, daily headaches and constant irregular bowel action. Today, this lady eats her meals and enjoys them. And she says the change is due to taking INNER-AID. Her food agrees with her. No gas, bloot or spitting up after eating. She is also free of headaches now, and bowels are regular, thanks to this Remarkable New Compound.

INNER-AID contains 12 Great Herbs; they cleanse bowels, clear gas from stomach, act on sluggish liver and kidneys. Miserable people soon feel different all over. So don't go on suffering! Get INNER-AID.

Monetary Group Elects New Head

Washington, May 6—(AP)—The International monetary fund today elected Camille Gutt of Belgium its managing director—the chief executive job—and hinted that Argentina has made an informal feeler toward membership in the world economic organization.

Monetary Group Elects New Head

Gutt, former Belgian minister of state, and finance minister, was elected unanimously in a surprisingly quick vote of the fund's 12-power executive directorate at a two-hour initial session here.

His selection reportedly was sponsored by Great Britain, but he was nominated by Harry D. White, United States director, who will serve as temporary chairman for about a week before the Belgian economist formally takes over.

White announced the action at a news conference immediately after the closed midday meeting in a small room of the Hotel Washington, where the bank has temporary quarters.

When questioned, White said that there had undoubtedly been an exploratory move by Argentina in the direction of membership in the 39-nation fund.

Southern CIO Union Backs Price Control

Thomasville, May 6—(AP)—The Southern Council of the CIO-United Furniture Workers of America today was on record favoring continuation of price controls and abolishment of the poll tax and was pledged to give its full support to the projected CIO membership drive in the south.

Pineville Is Scene Of Counterfeit Plant

Charlotte, May 6—(AP)—U. S. Secret Service offices here announced today the discovery of a plant for making counterfeit silver coins in Pineville and the arrest of two men on charges of operating it. The men were listed as Burley N. Weatherly of Pineville, and Owen Kirk of Monroe.

The announcement from the Secret Service office said suspicion fell upon the two men after a large blue sock discovered in their automobile was found to contain about 300 spurious 50-cent and one dollar coins. The sock was found in the car after the men had been arrested in Gaston county Saturday on charges of speeding and reckless driving the Secret Service office reported.

N. C. Retailers Ask End To Coal Strike

Charlotte, May 6—(AP)—The North Carolina Retail Coal Merchants Association today sent President Truman a telegram "urgently" and "respectfully" requesting executive action to end the coal strike, which was termed "this catastrophic impediment to the welfare of our people."

The text of the message, signed by President J. Arthur Eagle of Charlotte, was announced as follows:

"The retail coal dealers of North Carolina individually and collectively strenuously object to Lewis' demands for royalty on production of coal."

"We feel that it is the duty of our elected representatives to levy taxes, and not an individual, whether he represents labor or management."

"We urgently and respectfully request executive action to bring to an end this catastrophic impediment to the welfare of our people."
