EGYPTIANS IN CONFERENCE WITH BRITISH

Offer Of Withdrawal Treated With Reserve; Dominions Express Alarm

Cairo, May 8.—(AP)—A British delegation and Egyptian Premier Ismail Sidky Pasha talked for more than an hour today behind closely guarded doors over the British offer to withdraw all armed forces from Egypt.

Egyptian politicians and newspapers treated the proposal with suspicion and reserve.

The conferees were understood to have talked about the date for completion of the British withdrawal. The Egyptians were reported insisting that the evacuation could be completed in two years and that Egyptian army effectiveness could be doubled in that period.

No announcement was made. A red light was displayed outside the conference room, warning that not even secretaries were permitted to disturb the discussions. The British proposals will be discussed tomorrow at the formal opening of negotiations to revise the 20-year Anglo-Egyptian treaty of alliance which affords Great Britain military privileges, particularly around the Suez Canal and the naval base of Alexandria.

London, May 8.—(AP)—An authoritative source said tonight that at least two British dominions looked with some misgivings on the British Labor Governments offer to withdraw his troops from Egypt.

Prime Minister Attlee apologized today to the House of Commons for giving the impression yesterday that British dominion representatives had agreed to withdrawal of British forces when actually they were not asked to commit themselves.

An authoritative dominions party, who cannot be quoted by name said representatives of the Union of South Africa were particularly concerned and that the Australian government would be very disturbed if the British decision left the British Commonwealth without a base for military operations in the Middle East in the event of war.

For both Australia and South Africa the Suez Canal is a vital link with the United Kingdom.

Big Four Admits Failure In Paris

Ministers Concede Hopeless Deadlock On Treaty Issues; Byrnes Proposes New 21-Nation Conference In June; Russia Opposes U. S. And Britain On All Major Points

Paris, May 8.—(AP)—Secretary of State James F. Byrnes was said by a British informant today to have proposed to the Foreign Ministers Conference that a 21-nation conference be held in Paris beginning June 15 to discuss European peace treaties.

It was conceded, the informant said, that the foreign ministers of Britain, Russia, France and the U. S. could not agree on the treaties at the present conference.

There was no immediate acceptance of Byrnes' proposal for the peace conference, but the other three ministers were said to have accepted another Byrnes suggestion that their deputies draw up a list of points on which they have agreed and another list on which

Gunfire In Coal Strike Disputes

Harlan, Ky., May 8—(AP)—The International Harvester Company's coal mine at nearby Benham shut down operations today and its superintendent announced he would ask Gov. Simeon Willis "for protection" against a recurrence of yesterday's gun battle in which one miner was shot to death and six other persons wounded.

The superintendent, R. E. Galbraith, said the mine would be closed "for a few days" through agreement between the management and the progressive mine workers union "until we get some protection" from the governor or Harlan County Sheriff J. S. Cawood.

Guns blazed in the neat, model mining town of Benham in a flare-up of the long-standing jurisdictional dispute at the Harvester Company's mine between the P-M-W, which has the contract, and the United Mine Workers Union. The U. M. W. had contracts with all other big mines in this area.

The shooting occurred in front of the Benham hospital as UMW members herded in automobiles toward the mine in what their leader described as another attempt to persuade the progressive miners to quit work and join in the UMW's nationwide soft coal strike.

ANNIVERSARY IN SPOTLIGHT

Capitals Of Europe Scene Of Varied V-E Day Ceremonies

Frankfurt, Germany, May 8.—Four thousand American troops paraded today with two machine guns and a few hundred rifles in this bomb-scarred city in observance of the first anniversary of V-E Day as shabbily-clad German civilians watched in stony silence.

The parade in the headquarters city of the U. S. occupation zone featured only two armored vehicles. Both light patrol cars. German onlookers exchanged amazed whispers. A few doffed their hats when the American flag passed.

Vienna, May 8.—(AP)—Church bells rang for 15 minutes throughout Austria today to mark the first anniversary of V-E Day, which has been declared a national holiday.

Allied troops paraded in the morning and Chancellor Leopold Figl later addressed a joint meeting of Parliament.

Paris, France, May 8.—(AP)—United States forces in Paris observed the first anniversary of President Truman's proclamation of V-E Day this morning in a brief ceremony at the Arc De Triomphe.

Maj. Gen. Robert M. Webster, of the Air Transport Command, placed a wreath on the tomb of France's Unknown Soldier. This was followed by a one-minute silence, after which a French bugler blew taps.

French observance of the day is scheduled for Sunday, to coincide with Joan of Arc Day.

London, May 8.—(AP)—The Moscow radio commentator "Analyzer" said today the Russian people were dissatisfied with certain things going on in the world on the anniversary of V-E Day.

In an English language broadcast commemorating the European victory of 1945, the commentator cited as unsatisfactory the handling of alleged war criminals, the Triest boundary dispute and the occupation of Germany.

"Analyzer," in the broadcast recorded here, asked why "active supporters of Hitler still hold responsible position in the western zone of occupation in Germany?"

Allies Policy Blamed By Gen. For Failure

Berlin, May 8—(AP)—Gen. Joseph T. McNarney said today that allied failure to achieve a common policy on the treatment of Germany as a political unit has permitted German political and trade union leaders to make political capital, paying off one occupying power against another.

The American military governor pointed out this situation in his monthly report on occupation affairs. McNarney also warned that the German food crisis threatens to upset carefully laid plans in all phases of the allied occupation.

ARABIAN KING GIVES VIEWS

Leader Of Arab World Calls Palestine Report A "Betrayal"

Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, May 8—(AP)—King Ibn Esud of Saudi Arabia, terming the British-American inquiry committee report on Palestine a "betrayal," declared today "I can not advise Arabs longer to keep quiet."

The six-foot, four-inch monarch, who is regarded as the foremost leader of the Arab world because of his position as protector of the cities of Mecca and Medina, told the Associated Press in an exclusive interview:

"We still hope the American and British governments won't put these recommendations into effect because then the betrayal will be complete.

"I have been doing my best to convince Arabs to work hand in hand with the Allies because I was certain that one day justice would be done," he continued. "But now we feel these recommendations are a betrayal."

The king said he "recognized that something must be done to help the Jews in Europe" but indicated he felt it was a problem in the solution of which the entire world would participate.

"The fact that the acceptance of 100,000 Jews into Palestine (one of the inquiry committee's recommendations) does not settle the refugee question makes Jewish conspiracies and hidden motives apparent," the king added.

He said terrorism had been "eliminated all over Europe and Jews can live peacefully there."

"Jews could help Allied occupation

PRES. SPEAKS ON MOUNTING TRAFFIC TOLL

Opens Highway Safety Conference; Enforcement Of Traffic Laws Asked

By ALEX H. SINGLETON

Washington, May 8—(AP)—President Truman said today the challenge of this country's mounting highway death toll "must and will be met."

"The nation cannot afford and will not tolerate this tragic waste of human resources," the chief executive said in an address prepared for the Highway Safety conference he called in alarm at accident figures approaching 1941's grim record.

Calling upon all levels of government—national, state and city—to act, Mr. Truman said "it is not intended that the federal government shall encroach upon the rights and responsibilities of the states.

"At the same time," he added, "we cannot expect the Congress and the federal government to stand idly by if the toll of disaster continues unchecked. The challeng must and will be met.

"I firmly hope and believe that every agency of government, backed by the aroused support of its citizens, will meet its responsibilities fully in the field."

Opening the three day meeting of governors, police officials, highway and safety experts, Mr. Truman asserted that "uniformity in rules of the road is essential to safe and pleasant highway travel.

"Its achievement, under present relationships, also is a joint responsibility of the several state and local governmental jurisdictions."

"For the most part," Mr. Truman emphasized, "street and highway accidents are produced by carelessness and neglect. Tney can be sharply curtailed through a concerted effort, mobilized by this conference and carried forward vigorously under your leadership in all parts of the country."

The President said that some of the federal establishments such as the Post Office Department are directly concerned with the problems

Terminal Pay

Washington, May 8—(AP)—Reversing a previous stand, the House Military committee today approved legislation giving enlisted service personnel the same terminal pay rights that officers now have.

The legislation would allow a maximum of 120 days pay to army and navy enlisted men at the time of their discharge, provided they have accrued but unused furlough time when they are mustered out.

It provides for the computation of furlough pay at the rate of two and one-half days from each month of service. If a man received actual time off, he would not receive the furlough pay.

The committee earlier had shelved the legislation after the budget bureau said it would cost several billion dollars and would pose "operational problems of the most difficult solution.

The committee bill makes the legislation retroactive to all enlisted personnel who have served since the draft law was enacted.

First V-E Anniversary Finds World Without War..And Without Peace

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, May 8—(AP)—The world observed the first anniversary of victory in Europe today without war anywhere—but also without peace.

In fact, the best estimate of diplomatic authorities here is it may be several years before real conditions of peace are restored among nations. The prospects even for this, they say, have been darkened by the evident failure of the Foreign Ministers conference in Paris to make progress on European peace settlements.

The situation in Europe is matched in Asia by the dispute between the Chinese Communists and the Central Government; and in the Middle East by the tensions over the war-born Palestine crisis revolving around proposals for the admittance of 100,000 Jewish refugees to the Holy Land.

Estimates of the condition in which the world finds itself on today's V-E anniversary leave little doubt that the allied powers have made considerable progress toward organizing machinery to preserve peace once they establish it. But it is the process of establishing the peace that presents the toughest going.

Almost the only major problem in Europe on which the United States, Britain, Russia and France seem able to find a common denominator of agreement at the moment is the one presented by the Franco government in Spain. They don't like Franco.

But in the major political disputes concerning Russia's rights in the Balkans, the future of Germany, British domination in the Mediterranean—on these there is no basic agreement. And officials here hold little hope of early settlements.

There is wide-spread belief among both American and foreign diplomats that the Paris Foreign Ministers conference actually may result in splitting Europe for a long time between the western allies and Russia, rather than in unifying it in peace.

In Asia the restoration of real peace and the elimination of sources of conflict among the great powers depend on three factors:

(1) Somehow unifying China, (2) winning allied agreement on the long-range control of Japan, and (3- putting into effect plans for the full independence of Korea.

All these issues at present serve as constant sources of irritation among the big powers. The division extends even to the relief of millions suffering by food shortages due partly to crop failures and partly to economic upheavals caused by the war.

Russia thus far has refrained from participation in allied grain pools

Lewis, Backed By Union, Stands Firm On Demands

Federal Mediator Fails In Attempt To Work Out Agreements; Industrial Paralysis Grows; Congressional Support Gathers For Priority On Strike Control Legislation

By HAROLD W. WARD

Washington, May 8—(AP)—John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers refused to budge an inch today from their original contract demands, forcing even more stringent government controls over the nation's fast-dwindling soft coal supplies.

Industry was hit harder.

Ford Motor Co. suspended "virtually all operations" indefinitely because of the coal strike, impaired rail transportation and parts shortage. The shutdown hits 110,000 workers. Chrysler Corp. indicated it may follow suit. The Association of American Railroads reported about 51,000 railroad men had been laid off in its ranks, and another quarter million in industries it serves.

Against such a background, federal mediator Paul W. Fuller redoubled efforts to break the negotiations deadlock between Lewis and the mine operators, and the 38-day old stoppage is keeping 400,000 miners idle.

Fuller met with no success in his first efforts to work out an agreement on the question of $3,000,000 in holiday overtime which the miners insist is due them. However, he kept at it, for this issue is one of the obstacles blocking discussion of major provisions in a new contract for the miners.

On Capitol Hill Congressional tempers grew shorter, and support gathered behind demands that strike control legislation get No. 1 priority unless a prompt end to the coal shutdown is effected.

Amid the angry clamor, Senate Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky.) and Senators Ball (R-Minn.), and Taft (R-Ohio), spoke out against any head-long action while the lawmakers were worked up over the coal emergency.

All three indicated they doubted a legislative "rush job" would have much effect on the current crisis.

Civilian Production Administrator John D. Small meanwhile set up an office of emergency controls "to

COTTON GAINS OVER PRE-WAR FARMING ERA

Anderson Describes Economic Position Of Cotton Growers As Improved

Cleveland, Miss., May 8.—Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson today described the economic position of cotton growers as being greatly improved over that of the pre-war era, but cautioned that efforts to expand markets will be needed in the future.

"In the years ahead," he said "we shall need to expand our efforts directed at creating larger markets for cotton and we shall need to take advantage of the opportunities for increased efficiency in production and marketing.

"We shall need further progress toward better balanced farming and continued efforts in expansion of industrialization to provide more opportunities for increased efficiency in production and marketing.

We shall need further progress toward better balanced farming and continued efforts in expansion of industrialization to provide more opportunities for the people in the cotton belt."

In a speech prepared for delivery before the Delta Council, the secretary said the present favorable situation reflected:

1. A reduction of stocks of government-owned and controlled cotton.

2. A good demand for all farm products which provides cotton producers with an opportunity for better balanced farming.

3. A strong domestic demand for cotton products and increased exports of raw cotton.

4. An increased interest and prospects for expansion of research to develop new uses and broader markets for cotton.

U. S. Famine Relief Shipments Fall Off

Default In Food Shipments Nearing Million Ton Mark; Administration Plans New Formula For Obtaining More Grain

By OVID A. MARTIN

Washington, May 8—(AP)—With the nations default in famine relief shipments soaring toward the million-ton mark, the administration was reported today to have decided on a new price formula for getting more grain from livestock feed bins for human food.

Announcement of the new program was expected soon, possibly before nightfall, and officials at the Agriculture Department said it probably will involve an upward readjustment in the ceiling prices of grain and livestock feeds.

One of the major causes of the current shortage of wheat for food has been heavy use of this grain for livestock feed. Many farmers have reported that they could make more money feeding grain to livestock at present ceiling prices than by selling it as grain.

Agriculture Department officials asking that they not be named, predicted an increase of between 20 and 25 cents a bushel in the ceiling price of corn, 5 to 10 cents a bushel for wheat, and increases of "several cents" for oats, barley, and grain sorghums.

A decision to discourage "excessive" feeding of grain to livestock by raising prices was said to have been made after it became apparent that this country may not be able to meet its wheat export goal for the first six months of 1946.

Heretofore optimistic, Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson told a news conference late yesterday that it now looks as though the target may not be reached. This change of mind reflected Department reports that exports of wheat for the period Jan. 1 to May 8 fell 881,000 tons—or 33,038,000 bushels—behind the goal for the period.

The wheat export goal for the January-June period is 6,000,000 tons, or 425,00,000 bushels.

The lag in American exports will be reflected, Anderson said, by a

The NATION TODAY

By James Marlow

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, May 8.—(AP)—The original Greek marathon runner took two days to carry a message from Athens to Sparta, 26 miles away.

That may not seem speedy now, but the man had to swim rivers and climb mountains. Besides, it happened in 490 B. C.

But—until recently it took an ordinary messsge from four hours to two days to go from one State Department building to another in Washington.

The department has offices in 37 buildings, and it has 180 messengers.

Messages—telegrams, cablegrams letters, inter-office memoranda, documents—are the lifeblood of the department.

They flood in every day—some 11,000 items of correspondence.

Some have to be decoded and put into readable English. Some have to be mimeographed or copied as many as 60 times.

This is done to give them the widest and fastest possible distribution among the people who have to see them.

They come from embassies and consulates abroad and from State Department people, officials of other departments, and citizens.

(In the past, as now, an urgent message could be delivered with fair speed by sending a messenger on a special delivery errand.'

But it was the delivery of ordinary messages that bogged down and took as much as two days, sometimes more.

This situation has been corrected now.

Now the average time is 30 minutes to 2 1-2 hours to deliver an ordinary message from one State Department building office to an office in another building.

Speeding up the messenger service was just one of the modernizing jobs Secretary Byrnes had to tackle when he took office a year ago.

The task of bringing the messenger service up to date fell upon Donald S. Russell, Byrnes' former law

The WORLD TODAY

An Analysis Of The News

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Britain's proposal to withdraw her military establishment from Egypt, after occupying that vitally strategic base on the imperial life-line since 1882, is sensational and daring, but we shouldn't make the mistake of assuming that it's a harum-scarum scheme which has been cooked up over-night by the new Socialist government, since it most certainly has been under consideration in one form or another for the past quarter centry, and probably longer.

Former Prime Minister Churchill in a heated attack in Commons on the project characterized it as one of the most momentous he had heard in the House. He added ominously that "after sixty years of diplomacy and administration, things built up with great labor are cast away with great shame and folly."

Socialist Prime Minister Attlee's reply to his conservative opponent was that the plan was the best method "to calm rising Egyptian nationalism." Attlee said the decision was agreed to by the chiefs of staff and dominion prime ministers, but today he withdrew this statement with apology, saying methods of approach to the new treaty were discussed but the dominions weren't asked to express agreement. From Cairo we learn that the British offer is contingent on revision of the present Anglo-Egyptian alliance so that the defense of the Suez Canal would be entrusted to Egypt.

Well, now, just what is behind this empire-rocking proposal? The British military occupation of Egypt began 64 years ago, but we needn't go back further than the beginning of the first World War when Egypt in theory was still a province of Turkey. As soon as the Turks entered the war on the German side, England deposed the Egyptian Khedive and established a protectorate under Sultan Husseim Kamil.

That protectorate lasted until 1922 and it not only bred strong anti-British feeling but stimulated nationalism. I was in Egypt in 1916 and had a long audience with Hussein Kamil who made quite clear

The program for the afternoon was given by Mr. Reynolds May. His subject was "The Part the FBI Played in World War II." Mr. May told something of the history of the FBI. It was in 1924 that J. Edgar Hoover became the head of the organization and under his guidance it proved to be of invaluable help in the last war. He gave something of the set up before and during the war. He told specifically of three cases that were uncovered by the FBI resulting in the arrest of many spies. The club was indebted to Mr. May for his informative and interesting talk. As he was a member of the FBI during World War II, he was in a position to give true facts and interesting sidelights.

Following the program a short business session was held. Mrs. J. L. Fleming reported that two books had been bought for the Bowen shelf at Sheppard Memorial library. The club voted to join with the other clubs in having Book Club day next year. The meeting adjourned to meet in October.—Reported.

Big Ship To Supply Power In Shortage

Washington, May 8—(AP)—One of the navy's big ships will be sent to the Norfolk-Portsmouth, Va., area to supply electric power during the present shortage, Ray J. Dunn, managing director of the Portsmouth Chamber of Commerce said today.

Dunn told a reporter he and Senator Byrd and Rep. Daughton, Virginia Democrats, were told by Secretary of the Navy Forrestal that a capital ship will be sent to the twin ports.

Dunn said the ship could be anchored near the cities and its electrical facilities hooked up with the distribution system of the Virginia Electric and Power Co. He said such a ship could generate sufficient power with its oil burning engines to supply the complete needs of the cities.

Reign Of Terror In Carpathian Foothills

Bratislava, Czechoslovakia, May 8—(AP)—Outlawed bands have brought such a reign of terror to the Carpathian foothills in the borderlands of Poland, Slovakia and the Ukraine that a state of emergency akin to martial law has been proclaimed, Czechoslovak authorities say they believe the men are led by four or five fugitive German generals.

Advices from Poland said that on the San River four villages near Sanok were reported burned, forcing 5,000 peasants to flock to Sanok for shelter.

The Polish reports also said that 800 men armed with automatic weapons, grenades and dynamite blew up the Bukowsko courthoouse, and chased the town's 3,000 residents into the hills and burned the town to its foundations.

Winterville Plans Clean-Up Campaign

The Winterville Town Commissioners has set aside the week of May 20-25 as "clean up week" in the enterprising Pitt county town.

Fire Chief George Cox today requested householders and business places to clean up their premises, remove fire hazards from attics and yards and other places; put trash in receptacles and thus facilitate collection by the trucks.

"We are going to give our town a thorough going-over and clean it up," Mr. Cox said today.

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
May 8, 1906

A very delightful launch party was given Tuesday evening complimentary to Miss Bertha Waldrop of Hendersonville, who is visiting in the city.

On board the "Alteiro," the party left the dock at 9 o'clock for a ten mile run down the river, and no merrier crowd ever gathered aboard this good ship, moonlight, music and May time with incidental attractions, make such a trip on Tar river especially for some who, interested in navigation and other matters, remained steadfastly at their post on the "lookout." A graphophone added a great deal to the pleasure of the evening.

Chapter 23

"What is thy business with our brother Brian de Bois Guilbert?" demanded Beaumanoir.

Isaac gasped with terror and uncertainty. To tell his tale might be interpreted into scandalising the order; yet, unless he told it, what hope could he have of achieving his daughter's deliverance? Beaumanoir saw his mortal apprehension, and condescended to give him some assurance.

"Fear nothing," he said, "for thy wretched person, Jew, so thou dealest uprightly in this matter."

"I am bearer of a letter," stammered out the Jew, "so please your reverend valour, to that good knight from Prior Aymer of the Abbey of Jorvaulx."

"Said I not these were evil times, Conrade," said the Master. "A Cistertian Prior sends a letter to a soldier of the Temple, and can find no more fitting messenger than an unbelieving Jew. Give me the letter."

He then perused the letter, in haste, with an expression of surprise and horror; read it over again more slowly; then holding it out to Conrade with one hand, and slightly striking it with the other, exclaimed —"Here is goodly stuff for one Christian man to write to another, and both members of religious professions!"

Mont-Fitchet took the letter from his superior, and was about to peruse it. "Read it aloud, Conrade," said the Grand Master, "and do thou" (to Isaac) "attend to the purport of it, for we will question thee concerning it."

Conrade read the letter, which was in these words: "Aymer, by divine grace, Prior of the Cisterian house of Saint Mary's of Jorvaulx, to Sir Brian de Bois-Guilbert, wisheth health, with the bounties of King Bacchus and of my Lady Venus. Touching our present condition, dear Brother, we are a captive in the hands of certain lawless and godless men, who have not feared to detain our person, and put us to ransom; whereby we have also learned that thou has escaped with that fair Jewish sorceress, whose black eyes have bewitched thee. We are heartily rejoiced of thy safety; neverthless, we pray thee to be on thy guard in the matter of this second Witch of Endor; for we are privately assured that your Great Master comes from Normandy to diminish your mirth, and amend your misdoings. Wherefore we pray you heartily to beware, and to be found watching even at the Holy Text hath it, Invenientur vigilantes. And the wealthy Jew her father, Isaac of York, having prayed of me letters in his behalf, I gave him these earnestly advising, and in a sort entreating, that you do hold the damsel to ransom, seeing he will pay you from his bags as much as may find fifty damsels upon safer terms, whereof I trust to have my part when we make merry together, as true brothers, not forgetting the wine-cup.

"Till which merry meeting, we wish you farewell. Given from this den of thieves, about the hour of matins,

"Aymer Pr. S. M. Jorvolciencis."

"What sayest thou to this, Conrade?" said the Grand Master. "Den of thieves! and a fit residence is a den of thieves for such a prior. And what meaneth he, I trow, by this second Witch of Endor?" said he to his confidant, something apart.

Conrade was better acquainted (perhaps by practice) with the jargon of gallantry, than was his superior; and he expounded the passage which embarrassed the Grand Master to be a sort of language used by worldly men towards those whom they loved par amours.

"There is more in it than thou dost guess, Conrade; thy simplicity is no match for this deep abyss of wickedness. This Rebecca of York was a pupil of that Miriam of whom thou has heard. Thou shalt hear the Jew own it even now." Then turning to Isaac, he said aloud, "Thy daughter, then, is prisoner with Brian de Bois-Guilbert "

"Ay, reverend valorous sir," stammered poor Isaac, "and whatever ransom a poor man may pay for her deliverance"—

"Peace!" said the Grand Master. "This thy daughter hath, practised the art of healing, hath she not?"

"Ay, gracious sir," answered the Jew, with more confidence.

"Thy daughter worketh the cures I doubt not," thus he went on to address the Jew, "by words and sigils, and periapts, and other cabalistical mysteries."

"Nay, reverend and brave knight," answered Isaac, "but in chief measureby a balsam of marvellous virtue."

"Where had she that secret?" said Beaumanoir.

"It was delivered to her," answered Isaac, reluctantly, "by Miriam, a sage matron of our tribe."

"Ah, false Jew!" said the Grand Master; "was it not from that same witch Miriam, the abomination of whose enchantments have been heard of throughout every Christian land?" exclaimed the Grand Master, crossing himself. "Her body was burnt at a stake, and her ashes were scattered to the four winds; and so be it with me and mine order, if I do not as much to her pupil, and more also. I will teach her to throw spell and incantation over the soldiers of the blessed Temple. There, Damian, spurn this Jew from the gate—shoot him dead if he oppose or turn again. With his daughter we will deal as the Christian law and our own high office warrant."

Poor Isaac who had hitherto feared for Rebecca's honour, was now to tremble for her life. Meanwhile, the Grand Master ordered to his presence the Preceptor of Templestowe.

Chapter 24

When Albert Malvoisin, Preceptor of Templestowe appeared before the Grand Master, he was regarded with unwonted sternness.

"There is in this mansion, dedicated to the purpose of the holy Order of the Temple," said the Grand Master, in a severe tone, "a Jewish woman, brought hither by a brother of religion, by your connivance, Sir Preceptor."

Albert Malvoisin was overwhelmed with confusion; for he read in the looks of Beaumanoir ruin to Bois-Guilbert and to himself, unless he should be able to avert the impending storm.

"How comes it, thou hast suffered a brother to bring a paramour, and that paramour a Jewish sorceress, into this holy place?"

"A Jewish sorceress!" echoed Albert Malvoisin; "good angels guard us!"

"Ay, brother, a Jewish sorceress!" said the Grand master, sternly. "I have said it."

"Your wisdom, reverend father," answered the Preceptor, "hath rolled away the darkness from my understanding. Much did I wonder that so good a knight as Brian de Bois-Guilbert seemed so fondly bestotted on the charms of this female, whom I received into this house merely to place a bar betwixt their growing intimacy, which else might have been cemented at the expense of the fall of our valiant and religious brother. But since your reverend wisdom hath discovered this Jewish queen to be sorceress, perchance it may account fully for his enamoured folly."

"It was deep pit," said Conrade Mont-Fitchet, "to lose to the order one of its best lances, when the holy community most requires the aid of its sons. But concerning this foul witch, who hath flung her enchantments over a brother of the Holy Temple, assuredly she shall die the death."

"But the laws of England," said the Preceptor, who, though delighted that the Grand Master's resentment, thus fortunately averted from himself and Bois-Guilbert, had taken another direction, began now to fear he was carrying it too far.

"The laws of England," interrupted Beaumanoir, "permit and enjoin each judge to execute justice within his own jurisdiction. And shall that power be denied to the Grand Master of the Temple within a preceptory of his order? No!—we will judge and condemn. Prepare the Castle-hall for the trial of the sorceress."

Albert Malvoisin bowed and retired—not to give directions for preparing the hall, but to seek out Brian de Bois-Guilbert, and communicate to him how matters were likely to terminate.

"Lucas Beaumanoir!" said Bois-Guilbert, reproachfully. "Are these your precautions, Malvoisin? Hast thou suffered the dotard to learn that Rebecca is in the Preceptory?"

"How could I help it?" said the Preceptor. "I neglected nothing that could keep secret your mystery; but it is betrayed, and whether by the devil or no, the devil only can tell. But I have turned the matter as I could; you are safe if you renounce Rebecca. You are pitied—the victim of magical delusion. She is a sorceress, and must suffer as such."

"She shall not, by Heaven!" said Bois-Guilbert.

"By Heaven, she must and will!" said Malvoisin. "Neither you nor any one else can save her. Lucas Beaumanoir hath settled that the death of a Jewess will be a sin-offering sufficient to atone for all the amorous indulgences of the Knights Templars; and thou knowest he hath both the power and will to execute so reasonable and pious a purpose."

"Will future ages believe that such stupid bigotry ever existed!" said Bois-Guilbert, striding up and down the apartment.

"What they may believe, I know not," said Malvoisin, calmly; "but I know well that in this our day clergy and laymen, take ninety-nine to the hundred, will cry amen to the Grand Master's sentence."

"Thou speakest the truth, Malvoisin," said Brian de Bois-Guilbert, after a moment's reflection. "I will give the hoary bigot no advantage over me! and for Rebecca, she hath not merited at my hand that I should expose rank and honour for her sake. I will cast her off—yes, I will leave her to her fate."

"Good! I must order the hall for his judgment-seat."

"What!" said Bois-Guilbert, "so soon?"

"Ay," replied the Preceptor, "trial moves rapidly on when the judge has determined the sentence beforehand."

The Preceptor had hardly given the necessary orders when he was joined by Conrade Mont-Fitchet. Albert, I will be upright with thee —wizard or not, it were better that this miserable damsel die than that Brian de Bois-Guilbert should be lost to the order."

"But the proofs are so weak!"

"They must be strengthened, Albert," replied Mont-Fitchet. "Dost thou understand me?"

"There is," replied Malvoisin, "among those who came hither with Bois-Guilbert, two fellows whom I well know; servants they were to my brother Philip de Malvoisin. It may be they know something of the witcheries of this woman."

"Away, seek them out instantly—and hark thee, if a byzant or two will sharpen their memory, let them not be wanting."

The ponderous castle-bell had tolled the point of noon, when Rebecca heard a trampling of feet upon the private stair which led to her place of confinement. The door of the chamber was unlocked, and Conrade and the Preceptor Malvoisin entered, attended by four warders clothed in black, and bearing halberds.

"Daughter of an accursed race!" said the Preceptor, "arise and follow us."

As Rebecca entered the great hall in which the Grand Master had established his court, a scrap of paper was thrust into her hand.

Wildlife Service Plans Activities

Washington, May 8—(AP)—The Fish and Wildlife Service has a five-year plan for spending $12,600,000 accumulated during the war years from the federal tax on sporting arms and ammunition.

The service would like to start off in 1947 to restore the country's wildlife, somewhat neglected during wartime, by spending $3,000,000 from this fund in the treasury.

The $3,000,000 item will come up for consideration in the House today or tomorrow during debate on the Interior Department appropriation bill.

Members of the subcommittee handling the bill, which includes the Fish and Wildlife Service, told a reporter that the $12,600,000 fund probably will be tapped for $2,000,000 this year.

The service was given $1,000,000 from the reserve to spend during the current fiscal year which ends June 30.

Dr. Ira N. Gabrielson told the subcommittee before he resigned recently as Wildlife director that, in effect, the future of wildlife depends to a great degree on expenditures made under the five-year plan.

Kagawa, the Christian leader of Japan, offered up the following prayer for his country a few years ago:

"Oh, Japan! Eternal love keeps calling. Petulant Japan! Isolated Japan! Abandon your sulky mood and kneel before the God of infinite love. In your effort to rid yourself of sin and to sanctify your soul, you, too, must go by the way of the Cross. Oh, Japan! Thou claimed of Christ! Only He can bring you to your resurrection hour. The world may stand aloof and all men forsake you, but Christ will never desert you. No! No! Christ, the patient pursuing Christ, will never abandon this land that I love."

Substitute the word "America" for "Japan" and see how the prayer reads

"Oh, America! Eternal love keeps calling. Petulant America! Isolated America! Abandon your sulky mood and kneel before the God of infinite love. In your effort to rid yourself of sin and to sanctify your soul, you too, must go by the way of the Cross. Oh, America! Thou claimed of Christ! Only He can bring you to your resurrection hour! WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By JACK STINNETT

(First of Two Articles)

Washington—Something is going to be done about the streamlining of Congress—something at least to the extent of introducing legislation.

Will that be as far as it goes?

Probably the first measure to reach the hopper since report of the LaFollette-Monroney joint committee on reorganization of Congress will be that upping Congressional salaries and providing for $8,000-a-year or so administratvie assistants for each member.

The chances of this coming to a vote before the November elections are slim. The House members and those Senators up for re-election want no more of that "Bundles for Congress" stuff. They are afraid of it in spite of the fact that almost everybody whose word counts for anything has agreed that members of Congress need higher salaries and administrative assistants to take the load of detail off their shoulders.

With a few exceptions on specific points, it's agreed by an overwhelming majority of experts on government and the members themselves that Congress needs overhauling.

Then who will block these Congressional reforms? Who's opposed to them?

1. Scores and scores of members of Congress themselves. In many instances they will give lip service to the whole program, but do everything in their power to block any tidal wave of reform.

Aside from those who want to go home to their voters and say they never, never voted themselves a salary increase, most would be ready and willing to get more money and more help in getting their complex jobs done. That is, they would if it weren't for fear of the voters this November or the weapons they will place in the hands of the men and women who are going to campaign against them.

2. Committee members and committee chairmen in both chambers. The LaFollette-Monroney report suggests cutting the 33 Senate standing committees to 16; the 48 in the House to 18.

That means that 47 committee chairmen would lose their jobs, the prestige that goes with them and, in almost every instance, the privilege of hiring and paying committee "employes." Often, these committee employes work so little that they are nothing more than errand boys for the men who appoint them, but the jobs are juicy patronage posts.

There is some sincere opposition to consolidation of committees. Twenty-odd years ago, several House committees were consolidated into the House committee on appropriations. Opponents of committee reform argue that under the New Deal, the appropriations committee, dominated by the administration, went completely off the deep end in approving expenditures. They claim that several committees, occupied with appropriations in various fields, never could have been persuaded to give approva. to what they feel was wholesale wasteful spending.

"Dangerous Big-Army Talk"

DISCUSSING PROBLEMS OF INTEREST TO THIS COMMUNITY. IN ALL CASES NAMES MUST ACCOMPANY ANY COMMUNICATION

Next Friday, May 10th, is our day of memories, set apart in loving appreciation of the thousands who made the supreme sacrifice.

To have our High School students wend their way to the silent city of the dead is to catch fresh inspiration to carry on, to feel a sense of gratitude to God that we dwell in a land and among a people where patriotic fires burn as strongly as of yore, and in being a part in this wonderful out-pouring of the love of a people true to her traditions.

Such a flood tide of memories sweep over us as we recall our first Memorial Day of more than eighty years ago. Trained to weave flowers into fairest garlands, how proudly we stepped into line in forming the procession as the band played "Dixie" and all unmindful of the long distance to be traversed before reaching the Silent City of the Dead.

Eighty years have passed, changes have come and gone, but, true to her traditions, the womanhood of our Southland stands sentinel on the watch tower of patriotic duty, and the long lines wending their way, laden with the fairest flowers of spring, increase with the years. These years see no diminution of the patriotic out-pouring of the love of the South for the sons who went forth to war.

A wave of patriotism has swept the South until every city, town, and village has erected its marble shaft in token of loving remembrance of the boys who wore the gray!

or even making available to co-operating nations the information as to what food supplies she might have available if she did participate.

Along with the famine problem and the immediate and long range political issues go the economic issues yet to be settled. These involve America's announced policy of seeking freer world trade. Britain's economic future and the great question of how private capitalism, British socialism and Russian communism can trade and work together.

American officials say that not until some of the economic and political problems are solved—and particularly not until confidence is established among the great powers in their respective good intentions—can the United Nations machinery be expected to cope effectively with problems of world peace and security.

And to this they add that not until the U. N. machinery begins to prove itself in this respect can it be counted upon confidently to accomplish the biggest task of all—prevention of an atomic war.

partner, whom he made assistant secretary in charge of running the department on the inside.

Russell brought in a number of experienced men to work out the details. Mostly, they were former army officers who had run big army message centers, such as in General Eisenhower's headquarters in England.

Why did it take an ordinary message so long to get to its destination? It had been like that for years. It was like that during the war. It was the way things were done. Here's an example of how it was done:

The department's 180 messengers were assigned to various offices and divisions, sometimes two or more to one place.

The main message center for all 37 buildings was in the main State Department building.

Suppose Jones, in an office in building AAA, wanted to send an ordinary message to Smith in an office in building BBB.

Jones would drop it in his basket for his messenger to pick up. If the messenger were on some other errand, it might be several hours before he'd pick up Jones message for Smith.

Having picked it up, he'd take it to the message center in his building. There a truck, which made the rounds of the 37 buildings, in time would pick up Jones message

The truck wouldnt deliver it to building BBB. It took that message, and all other messages it had picked up, back to the main message center in the main building.

There the messages were sorted out and another truck picked them up and delivered them. In this way Jones' message finally got to building BBB. It was placed in the message center there.

In due time Smith's messenger would visit the center and carry the message up to Smith.

Now messengers circulate around their buildings every half hour picking up messages and delivering them to their message centers. From there they are sent directly to their destination.

Arriving at the message center there, they are picked up and delivered to the specified office by messengers making the rounds every 30 minutes.

the terrible bitterness which had grown up in his country against England. It was during this period that the British government canvassed the position to see what solution might be possible for a permanent settlement of a dangerous situation.

The conclusion was that the problem would have to be handled in one of three ways. First, the protectorate might be carried on without bringing Egypt into the empire. Second, Egypt might be incorporated in the empire and accorded some self - government. Third, Egypt might be accorded independence with the requirement that she make an alliance with Britain which would meet the latter's requirements for imperial security.

The third alternative was adopted in general form in 1922. The protectorate was abolished but Britain reserved certain important privileges among which was the maintenance of armed forces in Egypt. There was a revision of this treaty in 1936, but still giving Britain the right to continue military occupation. And now the British government proposes a new alliance which would place the responsibility for defense of England's interests on Egyptian arms. It is important to note that experts say it will take five years for the British to implement such an alliance, and that gives lee-way to see how the thing works.

The Conservatives, headed by Churchill, charge the Socialists in about so many words with destroying the empire. Herbert Morrison, Socialist floor leader in Commons, replies that the alternative to British withdrawal from Egypt is "almost certain disturbance, riot and possibly even revolution." That is a true bill, and he might have added that the neighboring fiery Arabian states are showing signs of making Egypt's troubles their own.

Coal Stocks

Washington, May 8—(AP)—The Civilian Production Administration reported today that emergency soft coal stocks available for government distribution are less than the country normally would consume in 12 hours.

CPA Administrator John D. Small, in a statement of policy on fuel conservation, asserted that the U. S. faces a "crippling coal shortage" which threatens "a complete breakdown in the flow of illuminating gas, electricity and water to a large number of the nation's homes." Small said that because of the critical shortage coal is being released from emergency stockpiles "only where absolutely necessary to protect minimum needs of public health and safety."

Noting that public utility and railroad services already have been reduced, Small said "further drastic reductions will be necessary soon."

He urged that all soft coal users "conserve with the utmost care whatever coal they may still have on hand."

Loretta Brozek May Face Federal Charge

Charlott, May 8—(AP)—Loretta Frances Brozek, who is named in a state warrant as the kidnapper of Terry Taylor here last February 26, today faced the possibility of a federal indictment.

D. E. Henderson of Charlotte, U. S. district attorney, said last night that a federal grand jury meeting next Monday in Asheville would be asked to return an indictment, charging kidnapping. He said that the move is "precautionary," and is intended to prevent release of the Brozek girl by state authorities.

Miss Brozek is now held in Washington, D. C., where she is resisting extradition to North Carolina. An extradition order was signed April 9 by District Chief Justice Bolitha J. Laws of Washington, but the judgment was appealed to the Circuit Court of Appeals, and is scheduled to be heard in June.

Robert L. Nash Goes On Trial For Murder

Raleigh, May 8—(AP)—Robert L. Nash, 42, movie projectionist, went on trial today charged with first degree murder in connection with the shooting of Mrs. Margie L. Parker, 22, on Fayetteville Street here last January 14.

Among the spectators in the courtroom during selection of the trial jury was Burdette D. Parker, husband of Mrs. Parker. He had been discharged from service only a short time before his wife was killed.

Nash surrendered to police a few minutes after the shooting. The State charges he killed Mrs. Parker while her husband and her brother waited in a parked car for her to get off work. The shooting occured only a few feet from the downtown office of Western Union, where Mrs. Parker worked.

Nash formerly worked in Raleigh, but more recently had been living in Durham and Henderson.

Chinese Red Army Confident Of Peace

Changchun, May 7—(Delayed)—(AP)—Chinese Communists, having seized 70 per cent of Manchuria, confidently forecast today "an end to civil conflict—either through negotiations or through complete victory over Chiang Kai-Shek's armies."

Gen. Peng Sheng, secretary general of the Communist Northeast (Manchuria) Bureau, said in an interview that Chiang's troops would be defeated if they continued to fight "because the government soldiers no longer are willing to fight."

Communist leaders called for an end to China's civil strife after their three Northeast armies, totalling more than 300,000 well-equipped and well-trained troops, had grabbed 70 per cent of fabulously wealthy Manchuria.

Impasse Develops Over Korea Plan

Seoul, May 8—(AP)—A deadlocked American-Soviet commission has adjourned after the Russians balked at a U. S. plan to abolish the line of demarcation splitting Korea into two isolated zones of occupation, it was announced officially tonight.

A special press release said the commission had adjourned Monday "sine die"—which means without setting a new date for assembling—but it was immediately clear whether negotiations had collapsed completely.

The impasse developed, the release said, when the "Soviet delegation made it clear it was not prepared to consult" with Korean political parties which had "actively opposed the Moscow decison" under which a five-year U. S.-Soviet trusteeship for Korea was projected.

It was reported without confirmation that the Russians were miffed at a reported recommendation by Herbert Hoover that food be imported from the Russian zone of northern Korea to the American occupation zone in the south.

Leon Culberson, a spare hand who never quite made the varsity, is Boston's fair-haired boy today because of his 14th inning home run with the bases loaded that stretched the Red Sox xto win streak to 12 straight.

Although Culberson has been with the Sox for three years and played in 97 games last season, Manager Joe Cronin has used him primarily for defense and switched to lustier swatters when he needed runs.

The 26-year-old Georgian has played all the outfield positions, filling in for Ted Williams in the late innings when superior fielding has been more essential than punch, and playing the other fields against southpaw pitching.

Even yesterday, his day of glory, he started the afternoon on the bench, coming into bat for third baseman Eddie Pellagrini in the third frame. He didn't hit as a pinch hitter but he remained in the game at the hot corner. Cronin never made a wiser move.

As the Red Sox rallied and finally tied the score at six runs each, Culberson still was hitless. But in the 14th after Rudy York walked, Dom DiMaggio singled and Hal Wagner drew an intentional pass, Culberson drilled Tex Shirley's first pitch into the left field screen for a 10-6 Red Sox edge over St. Louis.

Boston goes after a new team win record today in a game with Chicago. No Red Sox team ever has won more than 12 in succession.

The triumph for reliefer Clem Driesewerd over Shirley boosted the Red Sox first place margin to 3 1-2 games over the idle New York Yankees whose series finale with the White Sox was postponed because of threatening weather.

While the Sox were cementing their advantage, the St. Louis Cardinals were taking undisputed possession of first place in the national, trimming the Boston Braves, 6-4. Brooklyn, which started the day tied with the Red Birds, was kept idle by cold weather in Pittsburgh.

The Cards belted starter Johnny Sain off the hill with five runs in the first after Boston had touched rookie Fred Martin for two in their half of the frame. Martin lasted all the way, although touched for 10 hits, to earn his second straight decision with the help of four blows by Red Schoendienst.

Catcher Ray Mueller's consecutive game streak was snapped at 233 games when manager Bill McKechnie benched him for Ray Lamanno in Cincinnati's 2-1 edge over New York. Lonnie Frey's inside-the-park homer proved to be winning margin in Joe Beggs' third triumph. The Chicago-Philadelphia tilt was rained out.

In addition to Boston's win streak in the American, Detroit provided some excitement by downing Philadelphia, 7-2, on Dizzy Trout's nine-hit effort. Hank Greenberg's fourth homer helped the cause.

Washington eked out a 2-1 verdict over Cleveland in 10 innings after third baseman Sherry Robertson had robbed Mickey Haefner of a shutout in regulation time by his two-base error on an infield fly.

Haefner finally outpointed reliefer Mel Harder with the aid of Al Evans' double in the overtime session.

YESTERDAY'S STARS
By the Associated Press

Leon Culberson, Red Sox—hit grand slam homer in 14th inning to prolong Boston's win streak to 12 with 10-6 victory over St. Louis.

Dizzy Trout, Tigers—earned 100th major league win with 7-2 triumph over Athletics.

Al Evans, Senators—scored winning run in 10th inning against Cleveland, 2-1, after leading off with double.

Joe Beggs, Reds—scattered eight New York Giant hits to pick up third straight decision, 2-1.

Red Schoendienst, Cardinals—led St. Louis attack with four hits, including one double, as Cards trimmed Boston, 6-4, to take league lead.

Kinston 'Brownout' Affecting Baseball

Kinston, May 8 —(AP)— A city-wide brownout of non-essential lighting was authorized yesterday by Mayor Guy Elliott and City Council, after it was revealed that there is no immediate hope of increasing the coal supply at the municipal power plant. It now has less than a three-week supply.

The order includes the curtailment of use of power for sports events, and causes a change in starting times for local Coastal Plain League games from 7:45 p. m. to 4 p. m.

It virtually will eliminate the after-dark recreation program which has been in progress here since early spring.

Officials observed that the coal shortage is affecting the entire area, and probably will continue to do so for several weeks. One official said if the coal strike were settled today, that 30 days would be required to get deliveries again rolling to all critical areas.

ECTC's New Pitcher Tosses Hitless Game

East Carolina Teachers College turned back a Louisburg College nine, 16-0, as James Hudson, taking to the mound for the first time, pitched a no hit, no run game for the Pirates. Hudson struck out 9 men and allowed one base on balls as only one Louisburg player reached 2nd base. Heretofore, Hudson has filled the center field spot for ECTC and this was his first attempt at pitching.

Otis Powell with three doubles and Larry James with a double and a single led the hitting for East Carolina.

ECTC—Hudson, pitcher; Ausley, catcher.
Louisburg—Bell, Johnston, Etheridge, pitchers; Bryant, catcher.

Winterville Farmer Training Program

The Winterville Veterans Farmer Training Class, which was organized in April, is now getting well under way with its program. The membership of this class consists of young men in the Winterville, Belvoir, Chicod and Grimesland communities, who are veterans of World War II.

Requirements for entering the course are: veteran of at least 90 days experience in any branch of the armed services, and veteran must have a crop or be in training as a farm manager. To obtain subsistence from the Veterans Administration, the enrollee must work 36 hours per week on the farm, receive 200 hours per year of organized instruction in the classroom or at organized demonstrations, receive 100 hours per year of the farm instruction by an approved instructor.

Subsistence rates are $90 per month for a married veteran and $65 per month for a single veteran for the months that he does satisfactory training. The training period consists of one year plus his time served in the armed forces provided the total does not exceed 48 months. The maximum amount of training under this program that any veteran may receive is 48 months.

The lack of Agriculture teachers in strategic spots in Pitt County will prevent many veterans, who are qualified, from receiving this training. The program must be supervised by an accredited vocational agriculture teacher who may select qualified assistants if the teacher's load demands it.

The Winterville group has attended 100 per cent of all the meetings and a great deal of interest is being shown. Twenty-two men are enrolled at the present time and more are expected to enter as soon as they have been approved by the Veterans Administration. The group is supervised by J. H. Mobley, instructor of Agriculture at the Winterville High School. He is assisted at present by R. H. Forrest of Winterville.

"Christian Family" Is Topic Of Sermon

Text of the sermon given on the third evening of the Mission at St. Peter's Church last night, had as its subject "The Christian Family." Highlights of the sermon are as follows:

"Our civilization has always adhered to the family unity as the corner-stone. Upon the family has been built our states, our nation, our Christian society. In proportion to the strength of the family bond is our strength as a nation. But today the bond of family unity has become weakened. It has lost its strength because it has lost the sacredness of its character. As long as men saw the truth of God's purpose in creating the family, they saw likewise the sacramental character of the husband and wife relationship, the father and son relationship, the mother and daughter relationship.

"Today, this relationship has been destroyed: the sacred promise of fidelity, and love that once bound inseparably and forever, has lost its significance for individuals, for courts, for states.

"Only in the mind of God, where truth and law are unchangeable is their any regard for the Divine Command "What God hath joined together, let no man put asunder." A clear and uncompromising statement, devoid of conditions, qualifications, it rises up to confront those who simulate, perjure and excuse. For those who are concerned about juvenile delinquency, let them look first to the delinquency of parents, in regard to their marital vows and obligations."

Winterville Won County Contest

By CHESTER WALSH

J. H. Mobley, agriculture teacher at the Winterville High School, was enthusiastic today over the success of the recent parliamentary procedure contest for agriculture students. T. B. Elliott, supervisor of vocational agriculture in 27 Eastern Carolina counties, conducted the contest.

The Winterville team won in the Pitt County contest on February 21 over Ayden, Grifton, Bethel and Stokes teams. Members of the Winterville team were Ray Brickhouse, president; Billie House, vice-president; Thomas Castelloe, treasurer; Elton Cox, secretary, and Bobby Nobles, treasurer. Mr. Mobley acted as adviser.

In the district parliamentary procedure contest held at Scotland Neck on May 6, the Rich Square team won over six other teams entered. The Rich Square team will represent District 1 at Raleigh during the Future Farmers of America convention there on August 28-30. The winner there will represent North Carolina at the national convention in Kansas City, Mo., next fall. Winterville won second place in the district contest.

The contest provided excellent training for the students, Prof. Mobley said. The boys were taught how to preside over meetings and conduct them in a business-like manner. Each boy performed like a Philadelphia lawyer. They learned how to get on their feet at any meeting and properly express themselves, the Winterville agriculture teacher said.

Checking Rent Rate In Greenville Area

Raleigh, May 8—Pointing out that rent violations continue to be one of the most serious problems of North Carolina homemakers, the OPA announced today that its rent enforcement section at State headquarters and area rent offices in various part of the State collected $19,161.98 during the last six weeks on behalf of tenants and the United States Treasury. Of this amount, $9,875.78 was refunded to tenants because of overceiling charges.

John H. Paylor, Chief OPA Enforcement Attorney, declared that "rent overcharges month after month constitute an indefensible drain on the family pocketbook and OPA will continue to protect returned veterans and other tenants in acute housing areas."

Paylor said that rent surveys are now being made by the Bureau of Labor Satistics, and independent government fact finding agency, in Hickory, Statesville, and Greenville to determine the percentage of rent increases and whether rent control action should be taken by OPA.

FOR BACKSEAT DRIVERS

Salt Lake City, May 8—(AP)—Traffic Policeman J. H. Simonsen saw an automobile veer from one side of the street to the other before screeching to a halt a foot from a parked car.

"What's the trouble?" Simonsen asked as he approached.

"I don't know, but here it is," replied the driver as she handed him the steering wheel.

Simonsen suggested a mechanic.

CONTEMPT ENOUGH

Vancouver, Wash., May 8—(AP)—Attorney Booth McAbee began arguing with the judge.

"Ten dollars for contempt of court," said Justice of the Peace Paul Elwell.

"Ten dollars would not begin to express my contempt of this court," snapped McAbee.

"Fifty dollars," said the justice.

The attorney was silent.

"Operation Musk Ox" Ends Trek In Arctic

Edmonton, Alta, May 7—(AP)—"Operation Musk Ox," the Canadian government's experiment to test men and military machines under conditions of extreme cold, ended here last night after an 82-day, 3,100-mile trek through the frozen wastes of the north.

The last leg of the trip—107 miles from Grande Prairie, Alta., to Edmonton—was made by train because the 10 snowmobiles used by the 50 Canadian army men ran into trouble in the dust and gravel of the Alaska highway. Several U. S. observers accompanied the expedition.

By DOUGLAS GORHAM, Assistant Scoutmaster

Troop 131, Negro Boy Slouts, of Sycamore Hill Bantist Church, took high honors at the East Carolina Camporee held at Williamston last weekend, in a contest of scouting skills, with many rival troops from this council. After weeks of preparation and days of waiting, the Scouts left Greenville with the determination to make it a great camporee and give their rivals a contest to be long remembered.

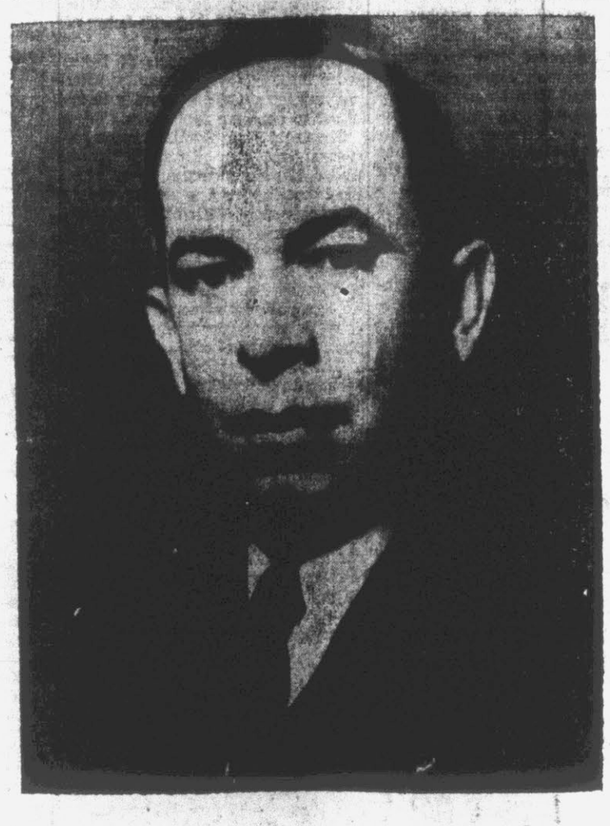
VOTE FOR HERBERT C. BONNER



(Radio Address Delivered by Judge Albion Dunn of Greenville, North Carolina, on Saturday, May 4, 1946, Over Station WRRF)

Ladies and Gentlemen of the Radio Audience of the First District:

I am delighted that I am afforded the opportunity to speak to the voters of this district. The time was, and not so long ago, that the Counties of the First District, lying across the sound, were referred to as the "Lost Colony." Good roads and magnificent bridges have revolutionized conditions, and today all of us are neighbors. Our interests have become one and the same. That which serves the one helps the other. Today I bring greetings of friendship from the people of the great County of Pitt, and while there is a minority who may not sanction what I shall say, it is my confirmed opinion that the great majority of the voters of my County are ready to join hands with you in a united effort to return to Congress Beaufort County's distinguished citizen and Democrat, who has never faltered in his efforts to promote and advance our common welfare—the Honorable Herbert C. Bonner of Washington.

"I do not claim to be a politician. I have no political axe to grind. I have never actively engaged in politics; hence I feel qualified today to speak to you as one citizen to another. As a citizen and voter of the First Congressional District I am seriously concerned, as you ought to be, that our political offices shall be filled by men truly representative of the people whom they will serve, by men fully informed as to the needs of the people and possessed of the ability and the experience to secure those needs by proper and appropriate legislation.

"With such a view in mind, after careful consideration of the qualifications of the two candidates now presenting themselves for nomination for Congress by the Democratic Primary, and without any animosity or ill will towards Mr. Humber, the virtual stranger who wants to be your Representative in Congress, I fully, freely and without qualification endorse Herbert Bonner to continue to represent the people of the First District in Congress and bespeak for him your active support and vote in the approaching Primary. I cannot subscribe to the fantastic idea of Mr. Humber to establish a world federation, which idea was born in the minds of a certain group, of which Mr. Humber was one, at Mondsee, Austria, at a so-called Institute of World Affairs, between July 1st and August 25th, 1933.

"If I were not fully persuaded that Herbert Bonner is a man of integrity, a man with sincere ambition to continue to represent the District as a whole in the future as he has so ably done in the past, and in a way that will redound to the benefit of all the people, this message would not be delivered.

"My friendship with Herbert Bonner is of long standing. I knew him before he became secretary to that other stalwart Democrat of Beaufort County, a man whom all democrats admire, a figure of national prominence, the Hon. Lindsay Warren. I know something of the pride, while holding that office, which he manifested in this District and of the genuine love and devotion he had for our people, and since Lindsay Warren retired from Congress and the mantle so worthily worn by him fell upon the shoulders of this young man, I have observed with admiration his constant effort and untiring energy to do something worthwhile and really constructive for his constituents and for this great Country—and when I see with my own eyes and know of the many helpful things he has accomplished, I do not hesitate to tell you that it behooves the Democracy of the First District to bestir itself in his behalf and not be blinded by the oratorical generalities of his opponent.

"What has Herbert Bonner done that deserves your continued support?

1. When the growers of peanuts were bemoaning their fate and starvation prices stared them in the face and they were desperate, it was Herbert Bonner who came to their rescue and by his untiring effort was instrumental in having a price fixed that enabled the farmer to see the light of day and market his products at a profit. I cannot conceive that the memory of these men is so short that they will not manifest their gratitude and appreciation by returning this friend and patriot to Congress.

2. Have the potato growers of the First District so soon forgotten what Herbert Bonner accomplished in their behalf? Can it be true that their memory fails to harken back to just a few years ago when the price they were receiving was not sufficient to pay the cost of digging? When they were confronted with financial disaster—did Herbert Bonner turn a deaf ear to their Macedonian cry to come and help them, or did he take off his coat and go to their rescue? History of this period will confirm my statement that it was Herbert Bonner who unceasingly voiced their cry of desperation until Congress heard of their true plight, and legislation was enacted through his untiring effort which made the Government a buyer of the potato crop. A support price was fixed—a new day dawned in the First District—the siuation was saved and there were tidings of great joy among those who had become hopeless and desperate. Do you farmers owe him any gratitude for that effort in your behalf? I cannot believe that in times of prosperity you will fail to remember the hand that fed you, and I am confident that you too will rally to his support and on the 25th of May will give him your vote of confidence and loyalty. To believe otherwise would destroy my faith in the integrity and wisdom of our people.

3. Has Herbert Bonner done anything for the tobacco farmer? The facts are undisputed. He was behind every movement that bettered the price of tobacco. He secured priority for the tobacco flues to enable the farmer to cure the product, without which the crop could not have been marketed. He secured priority for tobacco cloth, so that the grower could protect the tobacco beds, without which protection there would have been no crop. He secured priority for tobacco twine so necessary in preparation for the curing. Whenever the tobacco farmer expressed a need and that need was possible to secure, it has been Herbert Bonner who has secured it. Is it possible that such acts on the part of a faithful officer will so soon be forgotten? Is it probable that these farmers will want to replace experience with inexperience? The same true and faithful servant they have needed during the past six years they are going to need during the next two years, when there is so much to be done in behalf of agriculture and so few in power to do it. Can the farmer's interest possibly be better protected by a man who knows nothing about their needs, who is unfamiliar with the details of legislation, who is unknown to the members of Congress, or will their interests be best served by one who enjoys the respect and confidence of that membership, who knows by experience what those needs are, who is familiar with the details of legislation and who knows where and how to get those in authority to present the views of his constituents, and to secure the passage of laws beneficial to his District and his people? The question answers itself. The best servant is the trained servant. The safest servant is the tried and proven servant.

"I feel that the great majority of the voters of this District, and especially the peanut farmers, the tobacco farmers and the potato farmers, see the situation as I do, and I am convinced that the people of this District are not yet ready to entrust its destiny into the hands of a man whose perspective is steeped in the vision of the Poet Tennyson, who dreamed of "a Parliament of man, the Federation of the World," who would create an International Super Government, to which the Sovereign Government of the United States would be subordinate.

"Do I misinterpret Mr. Humber's purpose when I read in the resolution which is his brain child, and which seemingly actuates his every thought, "that it is better for the world to be ruled by an International Sovereignty of Reason, Social Justice and Peace than by Diverse National Sovereignties organically incapable of preventing their own dissolution by conquest." I honestly believe that I express the views of the sovereign people of the First District when I declare we shall never agree to subordinate the Sovereign Power of the United States to a Super-Government composed of sixty-three or more nations, all of whom are already jealous of our great Country and more or less unfriendly to our interests. And nowhere in all America should any people be more opposed to such an idea than here where the first white child was born—here, the very cradle of our democratic institutions. Are we ready to forego the traditions of 350 years and yield our birthright to the Super-Power of a Super-State? I declare that we are not and that we will so declare ourselves on May 25th when we return to the Congress the man who for five years upheld the wishes and supported the aims of that great American, whose untimely death occurred on April 12, 1945, and who, now inspired by the soul of that great man, will continue to uphold the hands of our President in all that tends to promote the welfare of this Country.

"But I have not completed the catalog of the things that Herbert Bonner has done for the people of this District:

4. He has not confined his interest to the farmer, but he has had in mind the interests of the fisherman as well. He has sought to improve their lot, and by his efforts in their behalf, they have received a livable price for the food which they wrest from the waters of our District. They no longer face starvation. They are receiving an adequate return for their labor. The toils, dangers and hazards which they were want to risk in the past, and from which they eked a bare living, are now, by his sterling efforts in their behalf, requited, and they no longer occupy the lowly position which was once their station. Are these people so soon to forget these labors in their behalf? Are they going to be lured from their position of security and safety by the song of a Super-Government Siren? I have in you the same confidence that I have in the farmers, and again it is my honest belief that you will vote to return to Congress the servant who has so well and faithfully served your interest.

"Such accomplishments as those recited are bound to bring recognition from his colleagues, and so we naturally ask—How is Herbert Bonner regarded in Congress? The Committees to which he has been appointed bear testimony to his recognition and to the esteem in which he is held by his colleagues. These committees are:

Merchant Marine Committee, which during the war handled the vast War Shipping and Coast Guard activities.

Ranking member of the Committee on Accounts which has charge of the running expenses of the House.

Ranking member of the Committee on Roads, which committee deals with Federal Aid to highways among its many other functions.

Member of the Pension Committee which deals with Spanish-American War veterans.

Member of the Fish and Wildlife Committee.

Member of the Un-American Activities Committee.

Chairman of the Committee on the Election of President, Vice-President and Representatives in Congress.

"And on numerous occasions he has been appointed on Special Committees to perform special and particular duties for the Congress. Recently he was sent to Panama to investigate the needs and requirements of the Panama Canal, and earlier he was sent to the South Pacific to investigate conditions at the various Army Posts and report to Congress.

"As a member on the Committee on Merchant Marine, he sponsored an amendment to the bill providing for the sale of Merchant Marine vessels, which according to a Washington correspondent will save to the Government some 250 to 300 million dollars.

"Many more of the things Herbert Bonner has done could be recited, but time forbids. Sufficeth it to say, such a record is worthy of our confidence—such faithfulness in a public servant commands our esteem—such devotion to duty demands its reward—such devotion to duty demands our respect. Is it too much to ask that you accord Herbert Bonner such esteem, such respect, such confidence when you express your choice on May 25th? I am confident that you will.

"Something has been said about the war record of Mr. Humber—about his visits to the war-torn battle fields of Europe. All I can say about his war record is that it was short. In a recent issue of the Readers Digest, this statement appeared: "Mr. Humber fought with an Artillery Company in France and thus learned the devastation of war." This statement is incorrect and I am sure Mr. Humber would want it corrected. His true record is found in the office of the office of the Adjutant General of the U. S. War Department. I quote verbatim: "He attended the Student Army Training Corps at Plattsburg Barrasks, New York, from July 18 to September 15, 1918, on which date he was honorably discharged. His status while in attendance at this camp was that of a civilian in training for a commission. He accepted a Commission as 2nd Lt., Field Artillery, on September 16, 1918, and was honorably discharged December 14, 1918, at Camp Zachary Taylor, Kentucky, by reason of the demobiliation of the emergency forces."

"That record, as far as it goes, is all right and not for one minute would I belittle it. I simply want to keep the record straight. On the other hand, if it becomes necessary in this campaign to talk of records, I would remind you that Herbert Bonner was a member of the Armed Forces of the United States in the First World War, and for twelve months fought upon the blood-soaked battle fields of France, attaining by his conduct, his courage and his services the rank of Sergeant. The war records of these two men are not cited as a reflection upon either, but merely to keep the record straight.

"That Mr. Humber is brilliant, I admit. That he is an eloquent speaker, I do not deny. He is a true gentleman, and I would be the last one to cast any aspersions against him, but I know nothing of his politics. I do know that he has not resided in Pitt County since he became of age. He has spent the major portion of his years in a foreign country, where, according to an article in Readers Digest, he was connected with some oil interest, out of which he made a fortune. May I ask when did such a connection qualify a stranger to the people of the First District, to represent them in Congress? What, may I ask, has Mr. Humber done, since he arrived at his majority, for the Democratic Party? What are his aims, his purposes and his objects if elected to Congress? What benefit do you, the people of the First District, expect if he is put in office? Shall we ignore all that Herbert Bonner has done, his long service to the Democratic Party in this District, and return to Congress in his place a man about whom we know nothing except that he was born in Pitt County, spent most of his years in France, made a fortune out of oil, and now aspires to be Representative of the most democratic people on earth, a worthy ambition it is true, but an ambition that should be satisfied only when he has fought the battle of the Democratic Party of this District and proven his worth by his service to its interests.

"We know Herbert Bonner. We know his record. We know he has been faithful. We know that he has been loyal. We know that he has been devoted to his people. His legislative record cannot be ignored. His experience as a law-maker will continue to stand him in great stead. His ability will continue to be recognized. His voice will continue to be heard in the Councils of the Nation and his people will rejoice that they had the foresight to continue him as their representative, that he may continue to lend his every effort to the promotion of their welfare.

"And so I recommend to the voters of the First District that they send Herbert Bonner back to Congress, fully persuaded that one who has heretofore been so successful in all that he has undertaken for their benefit and welfare, will continue to truly and wisely represent their interests and faithfully perform the duties of that great office.

"As one of his friends, as one who knows that he came up through life the hard way, I make this appeal to the voters of the First District, to the end that each and every County in the District will join, as in one great and inseparable union, and re-elect as our Representative in Congress, a man who will serve our interests, a man who, at all times and upon all occasions, will uphold the traditions of a true democracy, who subscribes fully to the American Way of Life, whose acts, words and accomplishments will redound to the credit of us all, who, indeed, deserves your esteem, and throughout his career will continue to merit your confidence. In behalf of the First District, I salute Congressman Bonner—may he continue to represent us.

AN EXCELLENT RECORD

The First Congressional District will reflect honor upon itself by giving Congressman Herbert C. Bonner a towering majority in the primary to be held on May 25th. During the nearly six years Mr. Bonner has been a member of the House of Representatives, he has continually grown not only in stature but in the estimation and affection of the people of the District. In his first bid for renomination in 1942, he carried every county in the District by a commanding majority. Since then he has rendered notable and conspicuous service to the people—always mindful of their problems, always willing and co-operative in his efforts to serve all of them.

No man in Congress had a finer voting record on all of the war measures, and no one has rendered greater service to those who fought the battles and their families than the able and aggressive Congressman from the First District.

Mr. Bonner does not hold any college degrees, nor does he pose as a great orator. He came up the hard way as is well known throughout the district. He was denied the opportunity of a college education but he is a graduate of the "University of Hard Knocks." He knows the needs as well as the aspirations of the people of this District and he diligently applies himself to make them effective. Since his first entrance in Congress he has been regarded as a dependable leader in behalf of farms programs. No one has given greater service in behalf of the tobacco, peanut, cotton and potato farmer, and his knowledge of agricultural problems has won him the confidence and respect of farm leaders both in and without the Government.

A grateful District will again show their appreciation by another vote of confidence the last Saturday in May.

WOMEN SEEK REST ROOMS

Home Demonstration Clubs Of County Urge Shopping Lounge In Greenville

By CHESTER WALSH

The Pitt County Federation of Home Demonstration Clubs, representing 19 groups, in session at the county farm agent's offices yesterday, went on record as severely condemning Greenville's deplorable lack of rest room and toilet facilities for women and children and demanded that the "powers-that-be" do something about it before the tobacco market opens in August.

The home demonstration women are representative of the farm women of Pitt County. At yesterday's meeting it was stated that the lack of toilet and rest room facilities in Greenville causes farm women and others to stand in line around the very limited supply of rest rooms in stores and other places.

Opinions privately expressed during yesterday's meeting of the farm women were that the city administration and the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade should provide rest rooms and toilets for women and children if they appreciate the patronage the farm women and their families give to the local market.

Praise was given to the Business and Professional Women's Club for maintaining rest rooms for women and children on West Fourth Street. These rest rooms were maintained largely by the B. and P. Club, with a pittance of cash allotted by the county and city. These rooms were closed some months ago, and farm women and women shoppers from other communities have to stand in line to await their turn to use inadequate rest rooms at stores, it was stated in the meeting.

The home demonstration women intend to press their petition for conveniences in the business section of Greenville, Mrs. Oscar Hardee quoted them as saying at the meeting.

A feature of yesterday's home demonstration federation meeting was an address, "Today's Home Builds Tomorrow's World," by W. J. Smith of Bethel, a member of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners. Miss Verona Lee Joyner, county home demonstration agent, introduced the speaker. Mrs. W. R. Bullock, the president, presided. Miss E. Ruth Bizzell, assistant home demonstration agent, led the group singing. Nineteen home demonstration clubs compose the Pitt County Federation.

Big Four . . .

they have disagreed.

The list, it was conceded, would show that the United States and Great Britain had opposed Russia on every major point, with France sometimes siding with the British and the Americans and occasionally taking a position half way between that of the western allies and the Russians.

The foreign ministers will break up and go home after their next meeting at 5 p. m. (11 a. m. EDT) today, it was reported.

It appeared that the ministers would not reach the German problem, last on their agenda, at this meeting. At tomorrows meeting the deputies were to have ready the list of agreements and disagreements. British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin also asked that the reports of expert committees be ready at that time.

At this mornings meeting, the ministers again found themselves deadlocked on the Italian reparations question, the British informant said. The Russians, Americans and French all presented divergent views.

British Foreign Secretary Bevin submitted two proposals last week as a guard against German rearmament. One provided for the socialization of Ruhr industries by an international allied commission which would regulate output. The other would establish a special Ruhr Rhine state within a federalized Germany. The specialized regime in the Ruhr would socialize all industries there under control of an allied commission.

This allied commission would be composed of representatives of Great Britain, France, Belgium Holland and Luxembourg—and notably, neither the United States nor Russia.

Initial French reaction to both these proposals has been described as cool.

The Big Four yesterday, in two sessions, came up with three agreements, five discords and, for the first time since their meeting began in Paris, referred two issues to the proposed 21-nation peace conference.

These latter issues were the disputed Greek-Bulgarian frontier and Bulgarian reparations to Greece and Yugoslavia.

Agreements reached by the foreign ministers were:

1. Fascist organizations in Romania should be dissolved.
2. Transylvania should be taken from Hungary and restored to Romania.
3. The 1940 transfer of southern Dobruja from Romania to Bulgaria should be recognized.

They disagreed on:

1. Withdrawal of Russian troops from Bulgaria.
2. Hungarian reparations.
3. Establishment of an inter-allied war crimes commission in Romania.
4. Opening of the Danube to free international navigation.
5. Guarantees for freedom of trade in the Balkan nations.

In almost every disagreement, the U. S. and Britain were aligned in oppostion to Russia.

as operators of large numbers of motor vehicles.

"But," he added, "the main share of public responsibility rests with the state and local agencies of government. States and cities are responsible for enactment of laws governing the use of motor vehicles on public thoroughfares, and for the enforcement of those laws.

"It is squarely up to them to deal with that small group of traffic incorrigibles who cause so much trouble to so many. After all, the license to drive on the public highways is a privilege that can be denied if it is abused."

Proposals for unified state highway regulations were laid before the conference for study. Mr. Truman told the delegates that out of those technical studies and reports "you will form a uniform and balanced highway safety program."

Cotton Gains . . .

5. Developments in mechanization which offer promise of reducing the labor involved in growing cotton and increasing production efficiency.

Anderson said the cotton carry-over on August 1 of last year in this country was about 11 million bales. By August 1 of this year it will be down to between seven and seven and one-half million bales.

He said the carry-over ought to be brought down to between 4,500,000 and 5,600,000 bales.

In addition to the efforts being made to increase exports of American cotton, we need greater domestic production of textiles to meet the present high demand. Domestic cotton consumption has declined from a wartime peak of about 12 million bales to a consumption rate of about nine billion bales annually . . . . Delay in turning cotton into textiles might result in losing markets unnecessarily to synthetic fibers."

The secretary said he is strongly behind proposals to increase expenditures for research in developing new issues and markets for cotton avoid collapse of utilities services essential to public health and safety during the coal strike.

This office will take whatever steps possible to keep all power, gas and water companies in operation Small said. He named Edward Falck formerly director of war utilities for the War Production Board, to direct the task and the two communicated immediately with governors, local regulatory commissions and officials of states "most likely to be affected by the measures the CPA may take."

"We are going to do everything in our power to maintain public utilities in operation," said Small. "This is something that intimately affects the health, safety and well-being of our people in their homes."

Brownouts and dimouts of lights were imposed by community after community across the country in an effort to conserve fuel stores.

The Solid Fuels Administration reported that even gas and oil, now under heavier demand than ever are becoming hard to get because o transportation difficulties as railroads slashed services requiring coal-burning locomotives.

The Office of Defense Transportation imposed new restrictions on coal dealers, ruling that supplies must go only to those consumers with less than five days' stock.

The crippling effects of the strike seemed to be building up relentlessly to the big crisis which some government labor officials privately believe Lewis has been waiting for to strengthen the bargaining position of his miners in the negotiations with the operators.

Kinston, May 8.—(AP—A city-wide brownout of non-essential lighting has been authorized by Mayor Guy Elliott and the City Council after it learned that the municipal power plant now has less than a three-week supply of coal and that there is little hope of obtaining more fuel.

The order included a ban on the use of power for sports events and caused the local baseball club to begin its games at 4 p. m. daily instead of at 7:45 p. m.

"particularly acute" shortage of food in many famine areas during May especially China and India. Reporting on a meeting of the British-Canadian-American combined food board which met to canvass May cereal requirements, the Secretary said no way has been found to meet minimum requirements to hungry areas.

UNRRA countries will get only about 60 per cent of what UNRRA Director-General F. H. LaGuardia described as "minimum needs." LaGuardia, who attended the meeting said he could not complain because he realized supplies were not available and that he believed the board was making as equitable a distribution of the short stocks as possible.

The reported probable increase in the corn ceiling price would be designed particularly discourage farmers from feeding hogs to heavy weights and from feeding beef cattle to choice grades. Both types of feeding are expensive in terms of the quantity of grain used in relation to the meat produced.

authorities in this reconstruction work in Europe," he continued. "Difficulties would arise out of the decision to send 100,000 Jews to Palestine in such a short time."

The king spoke quietly, but with emphasis. He was seated at the end of the Mejlis, or council, room in the palace. He smiled wryly as he said it appeared the Arabs were being ranked by the Allies with the Germans and the Japanese.

Observers . . .

Uncertainty on the question ended when acting Secretary of State Dean Acheson announced last night that President Truman had authorized invitations for all countries having membership on the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission.

In addition to the United States these countries are Russia, Britain France, China, Canada, Australia Brazil, Egypt, Poland, The Netherlands and Mexico.

Aboard USS McKinley, May 8.—(AP)—This flagship set out today from San Francisco to fathom some of the mysteries of the atomic bomb and its influence on tomorrow's navy.

First port of call for the Mt. McKinley, amphibious command ship of the atom bomb test expedition was Pearl Harbor, where virtually all the 74 target ships were riding at anchor, awaiting inspection before they proceeded to the bomb's bull's-eye at Binkini.

Thirty-three ships, mainly transports, command ships, observer vessels and supply craft, awaited sailing dates in West Coast ports. At Pearl Harbor, Bikini or en route were 177 others.

The final, full dress rehearsal is scheduled for about June 25, when each of the 42,000 men involved will play his part—in the bomber, in instrument planes, in ships.

from Russia, as requested by a council resolution of April 4.

Then Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., of the United States presented a motion that the council defer further proceedings on the Iranian case and that Iran report by May 20 or sooner on the real situation in Iran.

Gromyko thus made good his threat voiced April 23 to refuse to discuss the Iranian case after the Security Council rejected his demand that the matter be dropped immediately from the agenda.

Every other delegate was in his chair when the session opened at 3:05 p. m., EDT, and the Iranian representative, Ambassador Hussein Ala, was in the chamber.

Chairman Hafez Afifi Pasha took no notice of the Russian's absence and immediately called up the Iranian case.

The chairman read a letter from Ala reporting four provinces were clear of Russian soldiers but that the Iran government had not been able to verify reports from other sources that the province of Azerbaijan was being cleared. The letter was dated May 6 and had been made public Monday night.

Afifi said the council had not received any information "from the other party concerned," meaning Russia.

Russia and Iran were requested in a council resolution of April 4, to report on the status of the Red Army evacuations by May 6.

Violence Seen In Labor Disputes

Washington, May 8 — (AP) — Marriner S. Eccles said today "violent" labor strife in key industries threatens the public safety and the government should have some means of controlling the disputes.

The Federal Reserve Board chairman, appearing before the Sennate Banking Committee to urge a year's extension of price control, testified:

"No group, no leaders, ever have the right to inflict such injury upon the general public. Dictators assumes such a right. It has no place in a democracy."

Describing full production as the country's chief need, Eccles said that already too much time has been lost because of "paralysis of vital industry—coal, steel, lumber, automobiles, among others."

He said that as necessary as he considered an extension of OPA, the public "should not be misled" into thinking that is enough to hold the line against inflation.

"Neither this nor other devices for dealing with inflationary effects can succeed unless we reach full production without further delay," he said. "Failure to produce is the chief source of the danger."

Court Martial Finds Carolinian "Guilty"

Sioux Falls, S. D., May 8. — A general court martial conviction on charges of embezzlement and wrong sale of government property was announced Tuesday against First Lt. Perry F. Sessoms, 21, of Rocky Mount, N. C., who served in the European theater as a B-24 pilot.

The court announced Sessoms was ordered imprisoned for three years and dismissed from the service with forfeiture of all pay and allowances. Several witnesses testified at the hearing concerning purchase of furniture and other equipment at the officers' club of the Sioux Falls army air base. Checks were made payable to Sessoms, witnesses said.

Manhattan's sewage system is about 560 miles long.
