SHORTAGES IN ITEMS SLOW HOUSING GOAL

Critical Building Materials Inadequate; Construction Problem Serious

Washington, May 13.—(AP)—The National Association of Home Builders today advised government housing officials the output of critical building materials is totally inadequate to meet the administration's goal of building 2,700,000 homes in two years.

"Unless the government takes vigorous action and solves the problem, veterans a year from now will still be waiting for the homes promised them," the association said in a statement to housing expediter Wilson Wyatt, Jr., at the opening of a four-day meeting of the organization's 139 directors.

Simultaneously, the builders' weekly news letter said the problem of building veterans homes is far more serious than anything experienced during the war.

"Some projects started more than a year ago are not completed through lack of hardwood flooring, heating system or other materials," the letter said.

"Workers with an eye on the rapidly disappearing pile of materials reduce their production accordingly. . . . Projects ranging from a few (dwelling) units to as many as 3,004 are presently being abandoned."

The association's statement to Wyatt asserted a scarcity of building materials threatens the success of President Truman's emergency program, despite government reports of improvement in supplies.

The group presented to Wyatt and OPA Administrator Paul Porter the findings of an industry survey, naming the materials and recommending remedial action—in most cases, higher prices.

The 15 totally inadequate items, said the survey, are asphalt shingles, insulation board, clay sewer pipe, soil pipe, gypsum board and lath, hardwood flooring, warm air furnaces, pipe and fittings, bath tubs, pine and fir doors, millwork and softwood lumber and plywood.

Battle To Halt Texas Epidemic

San Antonio, Tex., May 13.—(AP)—Drastic "precautionary" measures both here and at Corpus Christi, 175 miles to the south, were taken today by public officials in a battle to halt the spread of a strange, polio-like sickness that already has claimed four victims.

Fifteen cases already have been reported in this military personnel-swollen city and four persons have died. At Corpus Christi, four cases have been reported and one victim is in a critical condition.

In Nueces County of which Corpus Christi is a part, the city and county health boards closed all schools, churches, theaters, night clubs, parks, playgrounds and swimming pools for two weeks and prohibited public gatherings of more than five persons.

In San Antonio, an earlier city order closing schools in half the city was extended yesterday to include all schools, public and parochial, and university and college classes were ordered curtailed.

Both cities planned widespread use of DDT to kill disease-bearing insects.

Highways entering Nueces County were being patrolled and no person under 21 will be permitted to enter unless he is prepared to isolate himself at his home during the two-week period.

New York City's Department of Sanitation sweeps and cleans 4,000 miles of streets daily, and collects 3,400 truckloads of garbage, rubbish and ashes.

Exiled Spaniards To Give Report

Government-In-Exile Charges Franco Regime With Threatening World Peace; Assert Atomic Research Being Carried On With Aid Of German Scientists

New York, May 13.—(AP)—The Spanish government-in-exile said flatly today that the Franco regime is threatening world peace by now working on atomic energy with the aid of German scientists.

This statement is contained in one of the documents which Dr. Jose Giral, premier of the government in exile, brought from Paris yesterday for presentation to the United Nations sub-committee investigating the Spanish question.

Although the 350-page report still had not been presented to the United Nations this afternoon, it was learned from a reliable source that it contained a statement that atomic research was being carried out in two Spanish cities—Granada and Murcia.

The report, which Giral said was to be submitted within the next 24 hours, also said that:

1. Generalissimo Franco was maintaining a huge military force, a large part of which was based on the French frontier.

2. The Franco regime was not only sheltering many notorious Nazis, but actually was employing many former Gestapo agents in its secret police. The report listed:

STILL HOPING FOR SOLUTION

Independence For India Conference Fails; No Reasons Given

Simla, India, May 13.—(AP)—The British cabinet mission, admitting failure of an eight-day conference with Moslem and Hindu leaders on independence for India, made it plain today that it still had hopes of solving the Indian problem.

The conference ended in complete breakdown yesterday, thus dealing a severe blow to the hopes of those who had expected a quick transition from British control to Indian self-government.

Two communiques issued after the breakdown—one jointly by the cabinet mission, the Moslem League and the Congress Party; the other by the cabinet mission alone—gave no reason for collapse of the negotiations.

It seemed apparent, however, that the conference had foundered on demands of the Moslem League for an independent Moslem state (Pakistan). These demands have been bitterly opposed by the Congress Party, which favors an Indian unified at least insofar as foreign affairs, defense and communications are concerned.

RESIGNATIONS EXPECTED IN STATE DEPT.

Widening Split Between Diplomats To Affect U. S. Foreign Policy

By JOHN W. HIGHTOWER Washington, May 13.—(AP)—A widening split within the State Department may vitally affect American foreign policy on almost every major outstanding issue.

This is one of the main problems which will confront Secretary of State Byrnes upon his return from Paris.

One resignation already has resulted, and speculation is rife among departmental insiders that others either will follow or there will be important reassignments later this year.

First to go was Col. Alfred McCormack, who quit as organizer of a Central American intelligence unit because he contended his plans were wrecked by opposition within the Department.

Speculation about possible future resignations revolves chiefly around Undersecretary of State Dean Acheson, Assistant Secretary Will Clayton and McCormack's former colleague and successor in the intelligence job—William Langer.

The struggle appears to be an outgrowth of the traditional fight between the foreign service officers—career men who are the backbone of the American diplomatic system—and comparative newcomers to the field of diplomacy.

The fight has been intensified in part by Byrnes' problem at Paris of trying to work out with the Russians, British and French satisfactory peace settlements for Europe. On the central problem of how to deal with Foreign Minister Molotov and the Russians, Byrnes received two strikingly different recommendations.

His regular political-diplomatic advisers under Assistant Secretary James Dunn recommend that he stand firm on every Russian demand considered to represent an expansion of Russian powers into Western Europe. These advisers wanted the conference fought out on such issues as Trieste and Tripoli—tactically recognizing that Eastern Europe is Russian and Western Europe is not.

Byrnes' non-professional advisers under Acheson and Clayton—notably experts on European economy—argued this was likely to create instead of resolve international conflicts. They drew an elaborate memorandum recommending that Byrnes try first to unify Europe by seeking Anglo-Russian agreement to some means of tackling such European-wide economic problems as transportation. After that, they said, should come the work on political issues.

Possible Civil War Is Averted

Tehran, May 12.—(Delayed)—(AP)—Civil war in Iran may have been averted by unfavorable flying weather which blocked the departure of the Azerbaijan "Premier" from Tehran yesterday and thus paved the way for a resumption of negotiations, central government officials said today.

The "Premier," Jafar Pishevari went to the Tehran airport yesterday morning, but was unable to leave because of adverse weather reports.

Pishevari later called Premier Ahmed Qavam of the central Iranian government and agreed to reopen negotiations on the return of the self-proclaimed independent province of Azerbaijan to the central government's jurisdiction, according to a translator in Qavam's office.

The official radio station in Tabriz, Azerbaijan capital, asserted earlier that negotiations had broken down because of "reactionary elements" in Tehran, and said the Azerbaijan people were "ready to fight."

Likewise, an official who had accompanied the Pishevari to the airport said that a breakdown of negotiations might mean "armed conflict."

Some 30,000 Pennsylvania Miners Still Hold Out; Congressional Leaders Continue Seeking Legislative Barriers To Prevent Future Labor Disputes

By HAROLD W. WARD Washington, May 13.—(AP)—President Truman reviewed the soft coal situation with congressional leaders today as the operators interrupted negotiations with John L. Lewis to confer privately on the miners' demand for $3,000,000 in back holiday pay.

House Democratic Leader McCormack (Mass.) told reporters after the weekly legislative conference at the White House that the coal situation had been canvassed in a "very general way."

"Everybody hopes," he added, "that the negotiators will get down to an agreement."

No progress was reported by either side after a brief session between the United Mine Workers and operators. Most of the striking miners went back to work today under a two-week truce.

Edward F. McGrady, special government conciliator, told reporters that a night session may be held tonight in an effort to speed work on a new contract.

The coal producers' committee devoted a noon recess to an attempt to try to agree among themselves on what to do about Lewis' holiday pay demand, which has deadlocked the negotiations since they resumed at government request April 29.

This was the over-all picture: 1. Restrictions on freight, express and parcel post shipments came off at midnight, hours before the first full cross descended into the mines to end the 43-day shutdown.

2. Other conservation measures—including tight controls over all coal to be produced during the truce—remained in effect.

3. The government prodded miners and operators alike to reach a swift agreement on a new contract, but both sides said privately there was little hope of meeting the Wednesday deadline fixed by President Truman.

4. Congress showed no inclination to back down from its determination to seek a legislative barrier to future crises growing out of labor disputes. The Senate turned its full attention to writing a strike control bill.

The attitude of some 30,000 Pennsylvania miners introduced a jarring note into Lewis' back-to-work appeal. They voted to abide by their traditional "no contract, no work" policy.

The United Mine Workers chief asked his men to return to their jobs for the next 14 days as a contribution "to our nation's economy."

Coal mined during that period, he said, can be diverted to essential facilities and the nation's health (Continued on Page Six).

Americans May Resort To Rationing Of Bread

Supporters Of Plan Gaining Powerful Support; Little Optimism Expected In Hoover Report Of Tour To President

Washington, May 13.—(AP)—The wheat pinch began to hurt at home today with one big flour mill closed as President Truman called in Herbert Hoover for the first of a series of talks that may answer this question:

Will a resort to wartime food rationing—with bread added to the list for the first time in American history—be necessary to solve the world famine crisis?

Those in favor of such a step gained powerful new support with word that stabilization Director Chester Bowles plans to urge it upon Mr. Truman unless the present dark outlook brightens quickly. Bowles' suggestion, if it is made, will call for action by August, according to a highly placed official who asked not to be named.

While Hoover remained silent on returning from his seven-week, 35,000-mile globe girdling food study yesterday, no one expected his report to Mr. Truman today to cast any optimism on the global picture. The former president made the survey at the chief executive's request. He is honorary chairman of the Famine Emergency Committee.

On the domestic scene, meanwhile, the closing of Pillsbury's "A" mill at Minneapolis stood out as a grim reminder that the shortage of wheat can well make deep inroads into American eating habits.

Dachau, Germany, May 13.—(AP)—A general military court today sentenced 58 operators of the notorious Mauthausen extermination camp to hang. Three others were given life terms.

The WORLD TODAY

An Analysis Of The News

By DEWITT MACKENZIE Our bruised and battered world has come close to another calamity in the collapse of the round-table conference which has been searching in Simla—India's summer capital—for a method of making Indian independence effective, but disaster has been at least postponed by the dogged determination of the British and Indian representatives not to abandon the quest this time.

The previous conference in 1942, when the British mission under Sir Stafford Cripps went out to India, ended in stark tragedy. Failure of the parley was followed by widespread disorders and bloodshed.

However, the present British delegation says that the breakdown in Simla does not in any way bring an end to the mission, and Jawaharlal Nehru, president-elect of the great All-India Congress comments succinctly that "the negotiations go on forever, but this particular conference is ended." Nehru's statement is particularly encouraging because next to Mahatma Gandhi he is the greatest political figure in India.

The conferees now have departed to think things over and see what further moves can be made. We are left to guess the cause of the Simla Breakdown, but it may be assumed that it came as the result of the demand of the Moslem League, headed by the brilliant Mohammed Ali Jinnah, for a wholly independent Moslem state ("Pakistan"). The Moslems want this because they fear the Hindus, who outnumber them three to one. On the other hand, the All-India Congress, which is comprised largely of Hindus, has been equally insistent on the establishment of a federal government built along the lines of the United States. The British have supported the federal idea.

There has been a long chain of failures to reach agreement. In the past the Indians have charged that England had no real desire to grant independence and that she was pur-

Christian Science Service "ADAM AND FALLING MAN" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches and Societies on Sunday May 12.

The Golden Text, was from I Corinthians 15:22: "As in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive."

Among the citations comprising the Lesson-Sermon were the following from the Bible: "And God said Let us make man in our image, after our likeness; . . . So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them; And God saw everything that he had made, and behold, it was very good." (Genesis 1:26 to 27, 31 to 32.)

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The standard of perfection was originally God and man. Has God taken down His own standard, and has man fallen? God is the creator of man, and the divine Principle of man remaining perfect, the divine idea or reflection, man, remains perfect. The relations of God and man, divine Principle and idea, are indestructible in Science; and Science knows no lapse from nor return to harmony, but holds the divine order or spiritual law, in which God and all that He creates are perfect and eternal, to have remained unchanged in its eternal history."

Miss Ruth Frank again displayed her golfing prowess last week, and was a repeat winner for the low score prize at the miniature golf course with a sizzling 55. She broke her last week's record by 5 strokes and established a new women's record for the course.

John Warner's hot putter set a new competitive record for the men with a par shattering 47, which topped off Seth Hooker's 48 by one stroke. A good many of the regular golfers from the Greenville Country Club tried the course last week and gave old man par a beating.

One of the outstanding shots for the week was Jack Kilgo's tee shot on No. 9, a particularly mean hole. His ball ricocheted from one boundary wall, jumped over another and rolled across the cup, leaving an easy putt for a deuce, which is closest anyone has come to making an ace on that hole.

The low score prize for the women this week will be a pair of nylons, and to the men a pound of butter. A free game is also awarded for aces on Nos. 9, 11 and 18.

Ditch Blasting Demonstrations

Sam Winchester, Pitt County Farm Agent, announced today that there will be two demonstrations of dynamite ditch blasting on May 15. The demonstrations will be conducted by the Coastal Plains Soil Conservation District, with W. C. Eeles in charge.

The first demonstration will be held on Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock on the farm of Don Langston, at Winterville. The site may be reached by turning off the Greenville-Winterville highway, at the May farm, driving across the railroad, then parallel to the railroad towards Winterville on a farm road for a few hundred yards.

On Wednesday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, the second demonstration will be given on the farm of L. B. Johnson at Farmville. Mr. Johnson's farm is on the old plank road just east of Marlboro.

Miss Sallie Cotten went to Tarboro Sunday morning.

Miss Ethel Skinner returned from Ayden this morning.

We cannot say how it will be later but so far the crop prospects for both cotton and tobacco are very discouraging.

The charge was delivered to Mr. Speight by Mr. Frank Leggett of Washington, N. C., who is president of the Roanoke district of Christian Churches.

As Mr. Speight's first duty, following his official ordination, he was asked to preside at the communion table. After communion he gave a short but impressive talk.

Rev. R. L. Topping of Roanoke Rapids, N. C., delivered the sermon on "Suffering," taking his text from II Peter 4:10-15.

A large delegation from E. C. T. C. were impressed greatly with the beautiful service.

The church was decorated very prettily by the Ladies Aid Society of the church.

At the close of the service Rev. Speight was invited to have lunch in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Harris of the Mt. Pleasant community.

Chapter 25

The Grand Master commenced the proceedings of the day.

We have summoned to our presence a Jewish woman, by name Rebecca, daughter of Isaac of York—a woman infamous for sorceries and for witcheries; whereby she hath maddened the blood, and besotted the brain, not of a churl but of a knight—not of a Knight Companion, but of a Preceptor of our order, first in honours as in place. Our brother, Brian de Bois-Guilbert is well known to ourselves, and to all, as a true and zealous champion of the cross. Knights, both in eastern and western lands, have named De Bois-Guilbert as one who may well be put in nomination as successor to this baton, when it shall please Heaven to release us from the toll of bearing it. If we were told that such a man, so honoured, and so honourable, had associated to himself a Jewish damsel, what should we say but that the noble knight was possessed by some evil demon, or influenced by some wicked spell. Stand forth, therefore, and bear witness, ye who have witnessed these unhappy doings, that we may judge of the sum and bearing thereof; and judge whether our justice may be satisfied with the punishment of this infidel woman, or if we must go on, with a bleeding heart, to the further proceeding against our brother.

A general murmur of assent ran through the room. "Were it not well, brethren," said the Grand Master, "that we examine something into the former life and conversation of this woman, specially that we may discover whether she be one likely to use magical charms and spells? Let those who have sought to witness of her life and conversation of this Jewish woman, stand forth, before us. There was a bustle in the lower part of the hall, and a poor peasant, a Saxon by birth, was dragged forward to the bar, terrified at the penal consequences which he might have incurred by the guilt of having been cured of the palsy by a Jewish damsel. Most unwilling was his testimony, and given with many tears; but he admitted that, two years since, he was suddenly afflicted with a sore disease; that he had been unable to stir from his bed until the remedies applied by Rebecca's directions, had in some degree restored him to the use of his limbs. "And may it please your gracious reverence," said the man, "I cannot think the damsel meant harm by me, though she hath the ill habit to be a Jewess."

"Peace, slave," said the Grand Master, "and begone!"

The two men-at-arms, with whom Albert Malvoisin had not failed to communicate upon the import of their testimony, were now called forward. "The first set forth that Rebecca was heard to mutter to herself in an unknown tongue; that the songs she sung by fits were of a strangely sweet sound, which made the ears of the hearer thrill, and his heart throb; that she spoke at times to herself, and seemed to look upward for a while, that her garments were of a strange and mystic form, unlike those of women of good repute; that she had signs impressed with cabalistical devices, and that strange characters were inscribed on her vest. The other had seen her work a sign upon a weavener's man brought wandering to the castle of Torquilstone. This fellow stated that he had seen Rebecca perch herself upon the parapet of the turret, and there take the form of a milk-white swan, under which appearance she flitted three times round the castle of Torquilstone; then again settle on the turret, and once more assume the female form.

The Grand Master, now in a solemn tone, demanded of Rebecca what she had to say against the sentence of condemnation which he was about to pronounce. "To invoke your pity," said the lovely Jewess, with a voice somewhat tremulous with emotion, "would I am aware, be as useless as I should hold it mean. Nor will I ever vindicate myself at the expense of my oppressor. I will not therefore return to himself the charge brought against me—but to himself—yes, Brian de Bois-Guilbert, to thyself I appeal whether these accusations are not false? As monstrous and calumnious as they are deadly?"

There was a pause; all eyes turned to Brian de Bois-Guilbert. He was silent.

"Speak," she said, "if thou art a man, if thou art a Christian, speak! In fact, Bois-Guilbert seemed agitated by contending passions which almost convulsed his features, and it was with a constrained voice that at last he replied, looking to Rebecca,—"The scroll!—the scroll!"

"Ay," said Beaumanoir, "this is indeed testimony! The victim of her witcheries can only name the fatal scroll, the spell inscribed on which is, doubtless, the cause of his silence."

But Rebecca put another interpretation on the words uttered as it were from Bois-Guilbert, and glancing her eye upon the slip of parchment which she continued to hold in her hand, she read written there-upon in the Arabian character, Demand a Champion!

"There is yet one chance of life left to me," said Rebecca. I deny this charge; I maintain my innocence, and I declare the falsehood of this accusation. I challenge the privilege of trial by combat, and will appear by my champion. Where so many are ready to peril their lives for honour, there will be found one to fight for justice. But it is enough, that I challenge the trial by combat—there lies my gaze."

Chapter 26

Even Beaumanoir was affected by Rebecca's mien and appearance.

"Give me her glove," said Beaumanoir. "This is indeed," he continued, as he looked at the flimsy texture and slender fingers, "a slight and frail gage for a purpose so deadly! Seest thou, Rebecca, as this thin and light glove of thine is to one of our heavy steel gauntlets, so is thy cause to that of the Temple, for it is our order which thou hast defied."

"Cast my innocence into the scale," answered Rebecca, "and the glove of silk shall outweigh the glove of iron."

"Then thou dost persist in thy refusal to confess thy guilt, and in that bold challenge which thou hast made?"

"I do persist, noble sir," answered Rebecca.

"So be it then, in the name of Heaven," said the Grand Master; "and may God show the right!"

"Amen," replied the Preceptors around him, and the word was deeply echoed by the whole assembly.

"To whom, reverend brethren, is it your opinion that we should deliver the gage of battle, naming him, at the same time, to be our champion on the field?"

"To Brian de Bois-Guilbert, whom it chiefly concerns," said the Preceptor of Goodalricke, "and who, moreover, best knows how the truth stands in this matter."

"Thou sayest right, brother," said the Grand Master; "Albert Malvoisin, give this gage of battle to Brian de Bois-Guilbert. It is our charge to thee, brother," he continued, addressing himself to Bois-Guilbert, "that thou do thy battle manfully, nothing doubting that the good cause shall triumph. And do thou, Rebecca, attend, that we assign thee the third day from the present to find a champion."

"That is but brief space," answered Rebecca, "for a stranger who is also of another faith to find one who will do battle, wagering life and honour for her cause, against a knight who is called an approved soldier."

"We may not extend it," answered the Grand Master; "the field must be fought in our own presence, and divers weighty causes call us on the fourth day from hence."

"God's will be done!" said Rebecca; "I put my trust in Him to whom an instant is as effectual to save as a whole age." She then modestly reminded the Grand Master, that she ought to be permitted some opportunity of free communication with her friends, for the purpose of making her condition known to them, and procuring, if possible, some champion to fight in her behalf.

"It is just and lawful," said the Grand Master; "choose what messenger thou shalt trust, and he shall have free communication with thee in thy prison-chamber."

"Is there," said Rebecca, "any one here, who, either for love of a good cause, or for ample hire, will do the errand of a distressed being?"

All were silent. Higg, the son of Sleaf, at length replied, "I am but a maimed man, but that I can at all stir or move was owing to her charitable assistance. I will do thine errand," he added, addressing Rebecca, "as well as a crippled object can, and happy were my limbs fleet enough to repair the mischief done by my tongue. Alas! when I boasted of thy charity, I little thought I was leading thee into danger!"

"God," said Rebecca, "is the disposer of all. Seek out Isaac of York—here is that will pay for horse and man—let him have this scroll. I know not if it be of Heaven the spirit which inspires me, but most truly do I judge that I am not to die this death, and that a champion will be raised up for me. Farewell! Life and death are in thy haste."

The peasant took the scroll, which contained only a few lines in Hebrew. Many of the crowd would have dissuaded him from touching a document so suspicious; but Higg was resolute in the service of his benefactress. She had saved his body, he said, and he was confident she did not mean to peril his soul.

But as it happened, he had no occasion to go so far, for within a quarter of a mile from the gate of the preceptory he met with two Jews; and one of them was his ancient employer, Isaac of York. The other was the Rabbi Ben Samuel; and both had approached as near

To the preceptory as they dared, on hearing that the Grand Master had summoned a chapter for the trial of a sorceress.

Isaac had, but glanced at the scroll which Higg offered, when, uttering a deep groan, he fell from his mule like a dying man, and lay for a minute insensible.

"Yet," said the rabbi, "take courage, for this grief avails nothing. Gird up thy loins, and seek out Wilfred, the son of Cedric. It may be he will help thee with counsel of wish strength; for the youth hath favour in the eyes of Richard, called of the Nazarenes Coeur-de-Lion, and the tidings that he hath returned are constant in the land. It may be that he may obtain his letter, and his signet, commanding these men of blood, who take their name from the Temple, to the dishonour thereof that they proceed not in their purposed wickedness."

"I will seek him out," said Isaac, "for he is a good youth, and hath compassion for the exile of Jacob. But he cannot bear his armour, and whither Christian shall do battle for the oppressed of Zion?"

"Be of good courage, and do thou set forward to find out this Wilfred of Ivanhoe. I will hie me to the city of York, where any warriors and strong men are assembled, and doubt not I will find among them some one who will do battle for thy daughter; for gold is their god, and for riches will they pawn their lives as well as their lands. Thou wilt fulfill, my brother, such promise as I may make unto them in thy name."

"Assuredly, brother," said Isaac, "and Heaven be praised that raised me up a comforter in my misery."

"Farewell," said the physician, "and may it be to thee as thy heart desireth."

Clark Does Good Turn At Kiwanis

By CHESTER WALSH

Kiwanian Marshall F. Clark relieved Minstrel Director Eli Bloom and others of much anxiety at the Kiwanis Club's meeting Friday night when he volunteered to drive to Haverhill, Mass., to bring back the costumes for the minstrel to be presented at the college May 21-22.

The theatrical firm from whom the costumes were rented notified the club that the rail embargo on non-essential merchandise would prevent shipping the costumes. The manager of the Greenville Funeral Home will drive to the Massachusetts city for the costumes next Wednesday. Clark received generous applause for his "good neighbor" act.

Vice-President Bloom presided in the absence of President Ed E. Raw. The program period was used for minstrel rehearsal.

The Kiwanians presented a purse to Mrs. Ray Tyson for loyal service to Kiwanis.

Bruce Sage won the attendance prize. Ray McKenzie had a birthday and donated a nickel for each year of his age. Tige Gardner reported on the recent "inter-club" meeting at Goldsboro.

Director Bill Taft will be host to the officers and directors of the club at his home on West Fifth street next Monday at 7 o'clock.

The recess in the draft was taken so that a thorough going effort might be made to recruit the new peacetime army by voluntary enlistments. Should this fail, it will be necessary to resort to selective service again.

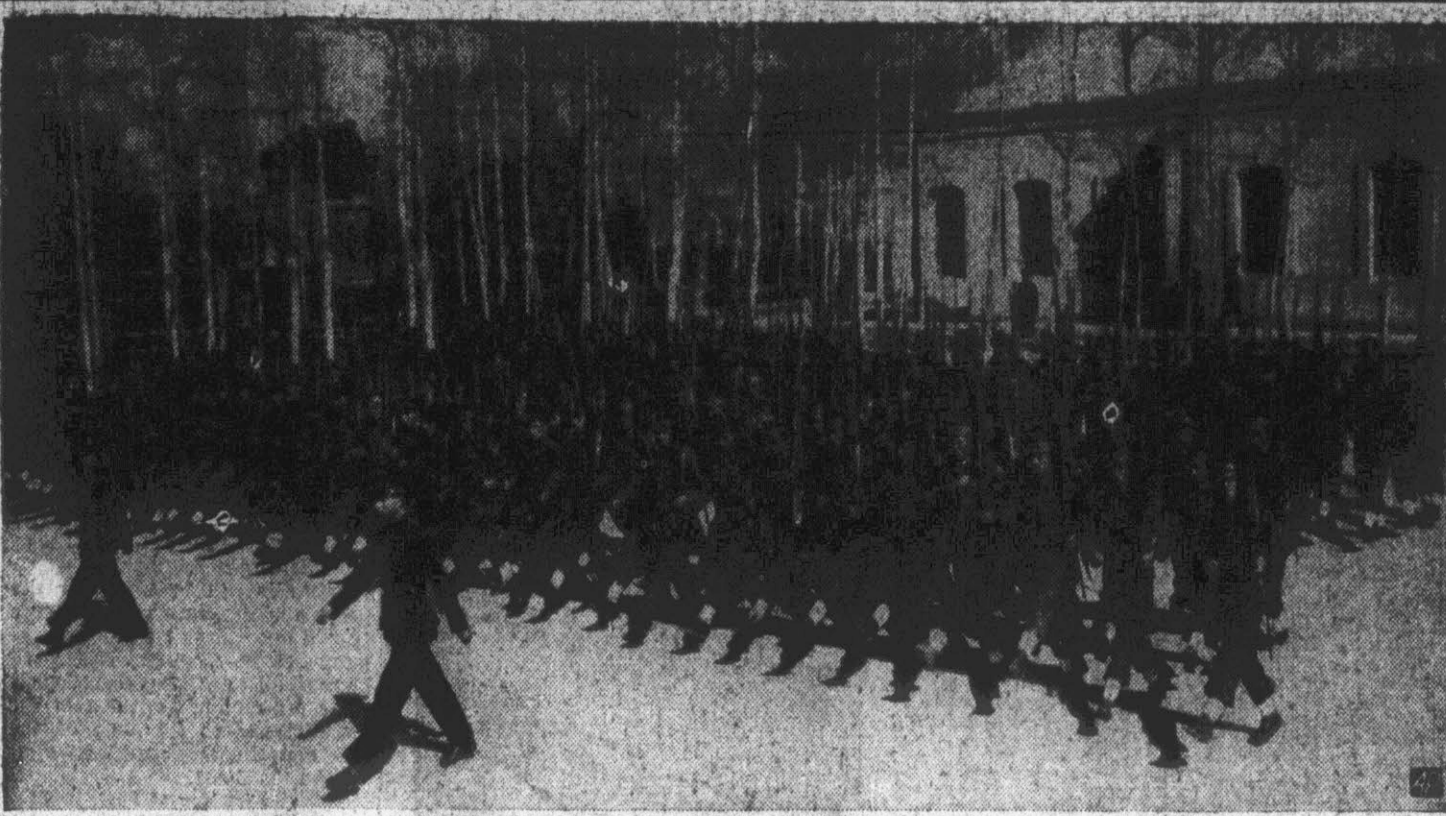

There is no good reason why it should not be successful.

Some 600,000 youths will graduate from high school in May and June. Many thousands of these could not hope to enter college next fall, even if the money was forthcoming. American colleges, universities and specialized schools will be taxed by the million or more returning veterans who will want to continue their education.

By enlisting when they graduate, the boys soon to complete their high school courses will assure themselves a higher education, all at government expense, when the institutions of higher learning can accommodate them, and in the meantime have an unrivaled opportunity to earn, learn and travel during their service.

Following three-year enlistment, the soldier gets an educational bonus of 48 months, more than five ordinary college years.

The Greenville Sea Scout ship met on Tuesday night in the hut behind the Memorial Baptist Church. The meeting was held in a very informal manner. A talk by Mr. Brown Mayo, District Scout Executive, highlighted the program. Mr. Mayo gave a short and informative talk on the basic principles of the Sea Scouting program. Mr. Mayo also urged the boys to start their Sea Scout program as soon as possible so as to insure a continuous interest in Senior Scouting in Greenville.

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

THE JUNK YARD

Automobile salesmen tell us that prospective customers are usually more interested in the color of the car and the sound of the horn than they are in the capacity of the engine or in its work. More people examine the upholstery than ever lift the hood and look at the engine.

This illustrates a rather widespread disposition to be satisfied with appearance and comfort. Often we are much more liable to choose our friends because they are cheerful and good-natured than because of any real worth they have. In national affairs, we applaud our leaders when they support some measure that will contribute to our immediate satisfaction, and we are liable to criticize them bitterly if they commit the nation to a policy which will require us to sacrifice a bit for the benefit of the whole race. All this becomes serious when we realize that half the world is starving and that the principles which the men of the armed forces courageously defended are now in jeopardy.

We want automobiles that look well and ride comfortably, and we pay little attention to the real mechanical value of the car. That is the reason why there are such extensive junk yards along every highway. And it is also the reason why, after a brief trial, we have to run so many of our ideas and judgments into the junk yard and leave them there.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By JACK STERNET

(Second of Two Articles)

Washington—It's a paradox, but if some recommendations of the LaFollette-Monroe committee for streamlining Congress are ever to become law, it will be as result of a fight between pressure groups.

Some lobbies have the greatest need for the greatest number of heart. One of these, for example, is the League of Women Voters, who profess to nothing more than getting out the vote and presenting a clear picture of most major issues.

There are a number of these better-government lobbies which will fight tooth and nail for the suggested reforms.

These and some other lobbies, like the National Association of Manufacturers, the American Legion and other veterans groups, the big labor union consolidations, and the major farm groups, operate completely in the open. They state their cases clearly before Congressional committees or in the speeches of their officials, and let the chips fall where they may.

There are hundreds, and I do mean hundreds, of others that prance around in the Congressional park, convincing those who contribute to their upkeep and some members of Congress that they wield tremendous power.

One proposal of the LaFollette-Monroe committee is that a law be passed to force these pressure groups to register and set forth their sources of income and expenditures.

Some of the strictly legitimate lobbies don't like this idea either. Even if they don't have a thing to hide, they don't like prying into private matters. It's a new custom to which old Americans are unaccustomed.

For those lobbies that do have something to hide, such a law would mean sudden death, just as the foreign asset registration law became an instrument against spies and propagandists even before we got into World War II.

Consequently, many of the pressure groups are afraid of what will happen if the wave of Congressional reform sets under way.

Many having established their unbeliefs, contacts and influences into various committees, don't want these disturbed. Thus these lobby representatives are all for leaving Congressional confusion as it is. It's a fertile field now, they argue, why plow it under.

For the most part, lobbies are the pressure of minorities. If they had to register and make an affidavit to actual numerical membership, their claims might be reduced to the ridiculous.

The Nation

This action is the contribution of the United Mine Workers of America to our nation's economy which is being imperiled by the stupidity and selfish greed of the coal operators and associated financial interests and by demagogues who have tried to lash the public mind into a state of hysteria rather than grant justice and fair treatment to the men who mine the nation's coal.

With that statement Lewis sought to make it appear that the mine operators, not Lewis, were responsible for the coal shortage.

3. Did Lewis call the truce because he felt he had to yield? This wasn't the first time that Lewis led a mine strike reach the crisis stage and then, when the going got tough, sent the miners back to work.

He did it in December, 1919. During a strike then, President Wilson told the union to send its men back to work. The President warned that federal troops would be used if work were not resumed.

At the same time Lewis, then acting president of the miners, and other leaders faced contempt of court proceedings for violating an injunction.

Lewis told the miners to go back to work.

During a strike in May, 1943 President Roosevelt told the government to take over the mines and use troops if necessary.

The situation was so serious that on the night of May 20, Mr. Roosevelt was to go on the radio to ask the miners to return to work.

He was going to appeal to them over Lewis' head. Lewis, 22 minutes before the President spoke, told the miners to go back to their jobs.

Now Lewis has called the truce just as Congress is getting set, because of its anger over the strike to act on legislation to curb union activities.

(Whether his truce will cause Congress to cool off is still to be seen.)

using a policy of "divide and rule" by keeping the Hindus and Moslems at loggerheads. Whatever may have been the degree of truth in this charge, there certainly has been no indication in the present insistence that the British government isn't both willing and anxious to see a provisional government established forthwith. Independence for India has been one of the most important planks in the platform of the new Socialist government under Prime Minister Attlee.

Americans May

will shut down Saturday night. Since May 1 all flour mills in the country have been limited to a maximum of 21 days' wheat supplies. Many had less than that amount, and the government's action in offering a 30-cent bonus on sales to the government shut off any chance for the millers to augment their dwindling stocks.

Hence others appear certain to follow the Pillsbury lead. How long flour stocks will hold out until bakers and housewives begin to feel the squeeze remains problematical.

This factor undoubtedly figured in the reported decision of Bowles to recommend bread rationing along with a return to coupons for meat, butter and cheese.

Mr. Truman has said repeatedly he will not hesitate to order wartime rationing restored if such action becomes essential. Thus far, however, he has taken the position that machinery could not be started up again in time to help in the current crisis, which officials first estimated would last only until this summer's crops are harvested.

More recently, however, increasing emphasis has been attached to the possibility of shortages continuing into and through next year.

This may produce a clash between Russia and the western powers, since approval of the resolution would have the effect of delaying admission of Albania, whose membership is sponsored by Yugoslavia and favored by Russia.

The other matter would be a report of the council's committee of experts on rules and procedure, which is ready to submit another group of rules for approval.

Members of the council continued to watch closely the situation in Iran, where press dispatches indicated a civil war was threatened. Any disturbance there might have an important effect on the Iranian case, which is scheduled to come up again May 20.

1. Franco was violating human rights by tortures, terrorism and cruelties in Spanish jails and concentration camps.

Giral said he would present the report directly to Trygve Lie, secretary-general of the United Nations, which meant that it probably would not be in the hands of the five-man sub-committee when it meets this afternoon.

Giral indicated he would not appear before the committee personally before he leaves Wednesday for Mexico, but that he might appear when he returns to New York in about 10 days.

"I will present a very extensive report to the United Nations," Giral said. "This report was prepared by the Spanish government-in-exile and consists of one main document and 20 other documents."

Spanish Republican circles said Giral probably would tell the sub-committee that failure of the Security Council to act against the Franco regime might result in another civil war in Spain.

One of Giral's associates, Gen. Jose Ascensio, former secretary of war in the Republican Government, indicated evidence would be submitted to show that Franco was engaged in atomic research.

Ascensio told reporters yesterday that the ordinance department of Franco's army is working with the Germans in the southern Spanish cities of Granada and Murcia "on atomic energy."

The subcommittee, which is expected to meet almost daily from now until May 31, when it must submit its report to the Security Council, also will get reports there from the United States and Mexico on the Spanish situation.

Greenville, a U. N. spokesman said the council probably would be called into session Thursday to take up two other matters.

One of these is a resolution circulated Friday night by U. S. Delegate Edward R. Steinfus, Jr., proposing that the council hold up action on requests for U. N. membership pending study of qualifications and procedure by a sub-committee.

Members of the council continued to watch closely the situation in Iran, where press dispatches indicated a civil war was threatened. Any disturbance there might have an important effect on the Iranian case, which is scheduled to come up again May 20.

GHS TRACKMEN GAIN HONORS

Earn Sixth Place in Competition With Biggest Schools in State
By DAVE CLARK
Coach Robert "Bet you a milkshake" Starling's Greenville High track squad grabbed sixth place scoring honors in the State Track meet held on Carolina's Fetzer Field Saturday to become the only Class B school even able to place in the fast company of North Carolina's finest high school cindersmen. Durham high's huge track squad easily won the meet with a total of 56 1-2 points as compared with Fayetteville's 26 1-2, Raleigh's 26, Charlotte's 14, Greensboro's 12, Greenville's 6, Reynolds of Winston-Salem's 6, High Point's 5 1-2, and Wilmington's 1 1-2. The other four teams in the meet were unable to place. Greenville's showing was excellent in view of their small squad. The fact that they were able to tie one of the largest high schools in the state and to beat two other Class A schools also gives the Greenies quite a lift. High scorer for Greenville was again big Jimmy Ward with 3 of their 6 points. Ward got his 3 points by taking second in the high jump. Walter Lee scored 2 with a third place in the broad jump, and Lewis Evans got 1 by placing fourth in a very fast 440 yard run. Ward was probably favored to win the high jump since he had been outjumped by a North Carolina boy this year, but Fayetteville pulled something more or less "out of the bag" in Nick Johnson who jumped 5 feet 9 inches, to beat Ward who leaped 5 feet 8 inches. Johnson also won the javelin throw and the pole vault to score 15 points for his team. Greenville's showing could have been much better had it not been for a streak of bad luck in the preliminaries on Saturday morning. These preliminaries were determining who would run in the high and low hurdles in the afternoon. In the first preliminary, the running of the 120 yard high hurdles, Jimmy Ward was leading the overhaul way down the field when one of his track shoes flew off, slowing him down and causing him not to place, thus keeping him out of the high hurdle running in the afternoon. Then in the next high hurdle preliminary, Xenophon Sideris was in second place when he tripped over the last hurdle to put himself out of the running. In the low hurdle preliminary, Ward was again about to place when he tripped over the last hurdle also. This run of bad luck cost Greenville a possible 10 to 16 points.

CHERRY GIVES SAFETY TALK

Governor Endorses Truman's Plea For Greater Care By Motorists

Pinehurst, May 13.—(AP)—Governor Cherry told the N. C. Automobile Dealers Association today that full cooperation should be given President Truman's highway safety program and that if states don't do a better job the federal government might have to step into the picture.

"He said that he hoped that we will get a permanent, long range program of periodic vehicle inspection in North Carolina."

"State regulations already insist upon minimum safety equipment for all forms of transportation. We might go further and require minimum operation conditions, with periodic inspection by state stations, coordinating with a continuing police road check."

"He reminded the leaders that the federal, state and city governments were planning the greatest highway and street development program in history."

"Your governor and your State Legislature, together with local government officials, have the responsibility of coordinating all of their functions in the interest of simpler laws, uniformity of rules on the road and improved enforcement and traffic control," Governor Cherry said. "We have all too little time to prepare for the important automotive future that is just ahead. We must study safety as we have never studied it before. We must enforce safety as it has never been enforced before, we must all practice safety as we have never practiced it before."

House Takes Up Bill To Extend Draft

Washington, May 13.—(AP)—The draft fight roared back to the House today with new demands for a halt to inductions — at least of teen-agers.

In an effort to meet the Wednesday midnight deadline for final action, the chamber set aside the major part of its session for a show-down struggle.

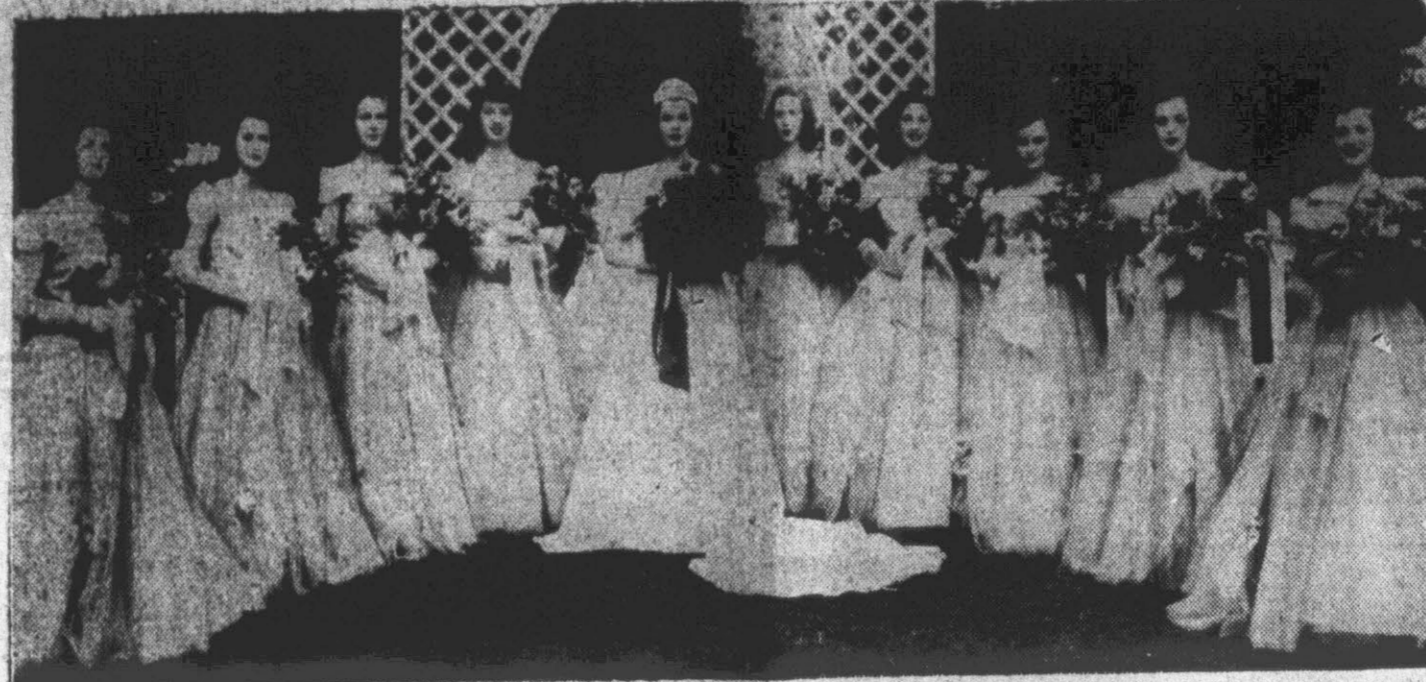

Just a month ago the House voted an extension until next February 15 but with long strings attached. The Senate ignored that action and instead passed a 45-day stop-gap extension.

That is the bill the House took up today.

TRUMAN SIGNS AIRPORT BILL

Long Range Airport Construction Program Gets Under Way

Washington, May 13.—(AP)—President Truman signed into law today legislation authorizing $500,000,000 in federal expenditures during the next seven years for an airport construction and development program.

The Civil Aeronautics Administration has announced that $356,250,000 has been earmarked for distribution by states but that no funds will be assigned for cities and communities until CAA engineers determined local needs. The law requires that states and municipalities match the federal money.

Rep. Randolph (D-WVa), one of those present when President Truman signed the measure, told reporters he estimated the seven-year program will mean 3,000 new airports and the improvement of 1,600 others.

The apportionment of funds, yet to be appropriated by Congress is on a formula basis, one half in proportion to population and one half in proportion to area of states.

Both states and cities are permitted to deal directly with the CAA in providing their share of funds.

Those who attended the signing ceremony at the White House included Secretary of Commerce Wallace and William A. M. Burden, assistant secretary; Senator McCarran (D-Nev); Reps. Andolph and Bulwinkle (D-NC); L. W. Pogue, chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board and Theodore P. Wright, administrator of the Civil Aeronautics.

The 25 per cent cut in railroad passenger transportation was continued in effect.

Humber Talks . . .

Mr. Humber used as his top for the "Mother's Day" address, "Mothers of Men."

Throughout the ages of civilization the great leaders of the world have received their inspiration from mothers, and this is true particularly in early Bible times, he said. His tribute to mothers was a masterpiece of eloquence, impressive in detail, and convincing in spirit. No speaker ever held closer attention of an audience than did Mr. Humber in his tribute to motherhood to one of the most representative audiences to assemble in Pitt County in many, many years.

The gifted Pitt countian concluded his message with a plea to the mothers of today to unite for peace on earth and the brotherhood of men, in order that the mothers of the next generation, and the generations to come, may have no fear that their sons will be sacrificed on the altar of war. The spirit of the tens of thousands of communities of this great land of ours is reflected in the national life, as each community thinks and acts, so does the nation. My friends, I say to you, that the fine spirit of the people of the Black Jack community as manifested in your annual "Mother's Day" exercises and other community activities will radiate and reflect its good influence far and wide, Mr. Humber said in conclusion.

J. Scott Dixon introduced the speaker.

The meeting will be remembered in labor history however, for the speech that didn't get broadcast—but which will be broadcast anyhow, applause and all, because the AFL made a recording. The radio station over which the broadcasting will be done, and the time, had not been definitely decided today.

Clean-Up Week Great Success

Thomas E. Wilson, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, sponsoring organization of the recent "clean-up week" project, today extended thanks to all cooperating organizations and individuals. Special appreciation was extended to Miss Kate Lewis and Miss Jean Lane of ECTC, and the children of the high and elementary schools for the posters. The Boy Scouts were praised for their good work. The Negro citizens did especially good work during the cleanup week, he said.

The president of the Junior Chamber commended City Street Supt. Clyde Mallison for the good work of his department. He urged householders and businessmen to continue to keep Greenville clean, put garbage and trash in separate containers and otherwise cooperate with city authorities in the good work. City Sanitarian H. A. Hendrix was much gratified over the success of the clean-up campaign.
