RAIL WALKOUT BRINGS CHAOS TO INDUSTRY

Nation's Economy Dependent On Transport Service; Everyone Affected

By the Associated Press The full impact of the crippling railroad strike tumbled the nation's economy topsy-turvy today as President Truman acted to restore service and end the "terrible havoc" resulting from the strike.

The President said that the effects of the strike were widespread, creating shortages in fuel and raw materials and threatened to bring chaos to food distribution. He asserted that the nation's welfare must come first and that if service is not resumed immediately thousands will starve.

Service on the nation's 227,335 miles of tracks was slowed to a trickle as the Office of Defense Transportation struggled to mobilize all non-rail transport facilities. The walkout by the 250,000 engineers and trainmen late Thursday also made idle an unestimated number of the 1,200,000 members of the 18 other rail brotherhoods.

The American Association of Railroads termed the strike nearly 100 percent effective. The 18 unions and the carriers accepted President Truman's compromise proposal of 18 1-2 cents hourly wage increase, which the engineers and trainmen rejected.

Some carriers operated trains in desperate efforts to maintain mail and passenger service, but the AAA estimated that less than 100 of the 17,500 passenger trains moved yesterday. Of a day's 24,000 freight trains, the association estimated about 240—or one percent—operated. The trains were manned by supervisory employees, not bound by union rules.

The strike brought further shut-downs to industrial plants and continuation of the walkout threatened virtual closing of steel mills and coal mines and hundreds of factories. Widespread unemployment was threatened. More than a million workers were idle because of labor disputes, thousands because of the rail strike.

The nation's automobile industry faced virtually complete suspension of car assemblies early next week. Halting of all car and truck production would idle about 750,000 workers. Railroad terminals throughout (Continued on Page Six)

Food Supplies Reach Town At Last Minute

Seattle, May 25—(AP)—A food caravan from the isolated mountain hamlet of Lester, whose 500 residents were down to a single day's supply of food, came down out of the mountains today after a trip across Seattle's Cedar River watershed.

Lester, high in the ranges west of here, depends upon the Northern Pacific railway for its supplies. The only road—a mere wagon track—crosses Seattle's watershed, and locked gates bar all travel.

Sen. Bankhead Taken Ill; Now In Hospital

Washington, May 25—(AP)—Senator John H. Bankhead of Alabama lay unconscious at Naval Hospital today hours after he collapsed during a committee hearing on Capitol Hill.

Dr. George Calver, capitol physician, said heat exhaustion might have felled the 73-year-old lawmaker, but that diagnosis would await a complete examination. The senator's office workers said they understood he had a "light stroke on one side."

Bankhead, who was elected to the Senate in 1930, was attending a finance committee session on a pending price control extension bill when he collapsed last night.

The NATION TODAY

By James Marlow

By JAMES MARLOW Washington, May 25—(AP)—It would be a milestone in American history if President Truman, in his talk to Congress late today, asked for a law banning strikes.

Angered by the railroad strike strike crisis, the president in his talk to the nation last night said: "I cannot believe that any right of any worker needs such a strike for its protection."

Carolínians Hopeful Of Break In Strike

Skeletonized Schedules Fail To Supply Needed Transport; Heavy Losses Face Farmers, Grocers And Textile Mills

By ASSOCIATED PRESS Carolínians looked hopefully today for a break in the rail strike following President Truman's appeal in a broadcast to the strikers and his warning that the army will enter the scene if the strike continued past 4 p. m. today.

Meantime, the strike's second day brought suspension of practically all rail and passenger and freight movements, except for skeletonized schedules which some lines attempted to maintain through use of supervisory personnel.

Growers of perishable vegetable crops in the two states faced the prospect of heavy losses as freight shipments stopped, and grocery stocks in some cities were fast beginning depleted.

SUBSIDY USE IS DISCUSSED

Housing Agency Seeks Best Use Of $400 Million Building Aid

Washington, May 25—(AP)—The national housing agency disclosed today that it is huddling with representatives of six building supply industries on how best to use $400,000,000 in federal subsidies for accelerating the flow of construction materials.

Housing Expediter Wilson Wyatt said the subsidy funds, provided under the emergency new homes act which became law last week, will be applied to these general purposes:

- 1. To cover extra costs involved in expanding a building supply plant's production beyond the output ordinarily considered most favorable to the operator.
2. To help defray costs of reopening building supply plants closed during the war.
3. To enlist the production of some high-cost building materials plants which were subsidized during the war but have since shut down.

The consultants already at work here represent the producers of brick, roofing, pig iron, distron soil pipe, peck logs for plywood, and gypsum paper liner. Officials of several agencies have been conferring with them.

NHA is giving no hint as to which individual plants may be granted subsidy payments, however, lest knowledge of forthcoming help encourage some producers to take it easy.

Wyatt predicted that the selective use of premium payments would (Continued on Page Six)

Food Shortages Besset Japanese

Tokyo, May 25—(AP)—Haltstones, hidden rice, politics and wary farmers were today's ingredients in the problem closest to Japanese hearts and stomachs—food.

The haltstones, reported to be as great as half an inch in diameter, battered an estimated 10 percent of the Kanto area's wheat into the ground.

The governor of Kanagawa prefecture was asked to urge the national government to check reports that 30,000 bales of polished rice had been abandoned in Chichibu Island near Ito Jima. That quantity would alleviate the food shortage in the populous Tokyo-Yokohama area.

The newspaper Nippon Keizai said farmers opposed a proposal that the government assume control of all farm produce. It reported some farmers believed such a plan would lead to increased hoarding and that many would plant only enough for their own needs.

Meanwhile, Premier Yoshida's new cabinet met to discuss the food problem. Meager reports indicated that the mechanics of rationing were taken up. The discussion will be resumed at the next cabinet meeting (presumably Monday).

Babson Discusses Money Rates

Babson Discusses Money Rates Babson Park, Mass., May 24. Interest rates are today lower than ever before. Banks and insurance companies are hard hit when they have to invest their funds to get only 2 1-2 percent. When they cannot earn a good return on their investments, it means: (1) that their profits will shrink; and (2) that they will soon cost more to buy bank services and insurance of all kinds.

Despite the uncomfortable position in which these companies find themselves, as a result of falling money rates, most readers are unknowingly benefiting from hidden

CHURCH MEET MOST ACTIVE

Presbyterian Assembly In Montreat Has Full Schedule

Montreat, N. C., May 25—(AP)—The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States agreed today to the appointment of a director of radio activities and the increase of the radio committee from five to nine members.

The radio committee's request for a $50,000 budget was referred to the stewardship committee. The Presbyterians—along with Baptists and Methodists—get free radio time on 39 southern stations. The radio committee chairman is Dr. J. M. Alexander of Fayetteville.

It was announced that Dr. Warner L. Hall would be unable to preach tomorrow, as scheduled, because he was ill in Charlotte. He will be replaced by Dr. S. R. Ogilby of Atlanta.

Dr. S. M. Cavert, secretary of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, requested that the assembly be represented June 5 at an interview with President Truman, when he will be asked to withdraw Myron Taylor as his special representative at the Vatican.

The assembly offered a special prayer for the President. Fraternal telegrams were sent to the northern Presbyterian Church and the United Presbyterian Assembly.

Standing committees were to meet during the afternoon and a popular meeting in the interest of foreign missions was programmed for the night session.

The assembly yesterday received greetings from the northern Presbyterian Church, the Associate Reformed Presbyterian Church and the United Presbyterian Church.

The day's business sessions were occupied with reports of committees, showing increased contributions and activities, with need for expansion in all fields.

Dr. Ralph S. Cushman, Methodist bishop of St. Paul, Minn., addressed the ruling elders fellowship banquet last night and an evening service which followed.

He dealt with the national crusade to be conducted during 1946-47 by the 32 denominations connected with the national stewardship council.

Declaring that Christianity and Communism are the two philosophies calling for allegiance, he asserted that "many Christians are playing at Christianity," and that "Christ is calling for complete consecration."

Lawmakers Applaud Militant Stand By President; Quick Action Ahead

Washington, May 25—(AP)—A Congress plainly looking to President Truman for leadership in redressing "the nation's strike-bound economy" convened today to hear the chief executive's recommendations at a 4 p. m. (EST) joint session.

The president's militant broadcast last night matched the mood of many lawmakers.

Nothing but praise was heard as senators trooped away from cloak room radios, nodding agreement with Mr. Truman's announced intention to operate the railroads by using every means within my power.

Majority Leader Barkley called the speech "admirable and to the point." He predicted the president would make some definite and specific recommendations, and pledge himself to carry them into law.

Senator Lucas (D-Ill.) expressed the belief that Congress will back him to the limit.

Republican legislators, too, gathered behind the chief executive. Senator Wherry (R-Neb.) said he only wished Mr. Truman had made (Continued on Page Six)

Extraordinary Joint Session of Congress Awaits Presidential Message At Four O'Clock Deadline; Railroads Told To Recruit New Employees If Unions Hold Out

By ASSOCIATED PRESS WASHINGTON, May 25.—President Truman's appeal for railway strikers to get back to work tonight brought no widespread acceptance early today as the hours ticked off toward his sternly-set 4 P. M. deadline. Some trains were, however, reported restored.

Use of the army to run the trains and protect those men willing to work was the alternative Mr. Truman posed.

Also an extraordinary joint session of the Congress awaited him at the same 4 P. M. (EST) hour. His message to the lawmakers was to be broadcast over all networks.

The manager's office at Washington union station said shortly before 10 A. M., that he had been advised that several truckloads of troops were in the area of the railroad shops.

There had been no return of the strikers to work here at that time, he said.

However, several Eastern and Maine trains started running this morning. The line's public relations office said they were manned by engineers and trainmen who had been on strike.

Also, the Reading Railroad said six engineers and some yard crews came back to their jobs. Two trainmen were reported back on the Erie Railroad.

However, five New Jersey roads reported no slackening of the strike. There was no indication in New York that the men were heading for work.

"The men will not go back to work on this appeal," said L. A. Weiss, general chairman of the trainmen for the Southern Pacific in Texas and Louisiana.

Charles H. Buford, manager for the federally-seized roads, told the operators to recruit new workers as needed and to call on the army for such help as may be required. He was given this authority by President Truman's order seizing the roads last week.

This telegram went from Buford to the managements: "If the striking employes have not returned to work by 4 p. m., May 25, you will immediately institute an intensive recruiting campaign for needed employes, using your own hiring facilities or by advertisement timetables for weeks to come on the U. S. Employment service and the railroad retirement board for assistance in meeting your own needs; and have your designated representative call on the commanding general of the appropriate service command for any assistance needed in removing pickets from railroad property and furnishing necessary protection to the workers getting to the job."

In Chicago, leaders of the CIO United Farm Equipment and Metal Workers said they had telegraphed Mr. Truman that he had betrayed supporters of President Roosevelt by his strongly worded radio speech to the nation.

"We have permitted many of these organizations to grow powerful by governmental permission, if not sponsorship, and the question is going to have to be definitely determined as to whether the free government of the people is sovereign and can protect the American people or whether we are going to permit any labor or capitalist dictatorship to take charge of our nation and visit disaster upon the people at will."

Strongly Urges Assertion Of Sovereign Power Of Nation Over "Dictators In Field Of Economics"

Durham, May 25—(AP)—Senator Clyde R. Hoey of North Carolina declared himself today "in favor of the assertion of the sovereign power of this nation in unmistakable fashion, so that even a John L. Lewis can understand it."

"Dictators have arisen in the field of economics," he said in an address at Duke University, "and they have accumulated power over business, industry and the very life of the nation."

"We have permitted many of these organizations to grow powerful by governmental permission, if not sponsorship, and the question is going to have to be definitely determined as to whether the free government of the people is sovereign and can protect the American people or whether we are going to permit any labor or capitalist dictatorship to take charge of our nation and visit disaster upon the people at will."

The WORLD TODAY

An Analysis Of The News

Speaking of strikes: As a correspondent attached to the London Bureau of the Associated Press I had a ring-side seat at the world's first general strike—a fearsome affair with an extraordinary ending.

That was in May of 1926. The commercial and financial affairs of our old globe had sunk low and British industry was hard hit, especially the vital coal mines and railways. The coal miners, who really were in great distress, struck on May 1 when a government subsidy to mine owners expired.

Well, while negotiations with the unions were proceeding, some printers at the London Daily Mail refused to set an editorial entitled: "For King and Country." That precipitated a general strike—railroads and all. Of this unprecedented upheaval, the Encyclopaedia Britannica expressed the view:

Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin appealed to the British public to stand by him.

"You placed me in power 18 months ago by the largest majority accorded any party for many years," he said. "Can you not trust me to ensure a square deal, to secure even justice between man and man?"

There was an amazing response. Thousands of people, both men and women, from all classes of society, jumped in to keep the essential services going. Noble lords ran subway trains, or turned their hands to any other jobs that had to be done, while their ladies contributed according to their talents. So did the wise-cracking cockney and his wife.

London's playgrounds—big Hyde Park—was turned into a mighty milk distributing center to keep the babies of the world's biggest city from dying, and this was run by volunteers.

Federal Employees To Receive Pay Increase

Washington, May 24.—(AP)—President Truman today signed legislation increasing the pay of about 1,000,000 federal employees by 14 per cent or $250 a year, whichever is greater.

Boosting federal pay rolls an estimated $321,000,000 at the present level of employment, the bill requires that three-fourths of this amount must be offset through a reduction in personnel. It aims at cutting the number of federal workers from 2,400,000 to 1,600,000.

The new law sets a maximum salary of $10,000 yearly. Persons in the lower pay brackets are permitted a maximum increase of 25 per cent, with the average leveled off at 14 per cent.

Burglar Takes Money From Sightless Girl

Chicago, May 24.—(AP)—At Margie Hatton's 14th birthday party a week ago a fund of $85 contributed by the congregation at Buena Memorial Church was presented to her. Members had heard that Margie, whose eyes were removed in early childhood, needed new glass eyes to replace the old ones she had been using and which had been hurting her recently.

Her mother, Mrs. Janie Centers, a widow with seven children, immediately ordered new plastic eyes for her daughter. While awaiting delivery she kept the $85 in her purse. On Wednesday she left the purse in her apartment as she stepped into the hall to get her mail. The children were in school. When she returned, the purse and money were gone.

Mrs. Centers said: "If the thief only knew what that money was to be used for, I'm sure it would be returned."

Anthracite Coal Strike Looming

New York, May 25.—(AP)—The A. M. U. Mine Workers today served notice on the nation's anthracite operators that it would terminate its contract at midnight, May 30.

The miners traditionally have held to a "no contract, no work" principle.

The U. M. W., which represents 75,000 hard coal miners in Pennsylvania, has been negotiating with the mine owners for the past two weeks.

Notice of the contract termination was given at a meeting this morning in a formal statement signed by Thomas Kennedy, secretary-treasurer of the U. M. W., and other union officials. The statement said the action had been taken in the direction of the union's regular committee, which met earlier in the day.

New King Mounts Arabian Throne

Amman, May 25.—(AP)—Abdullah Ibn Al Hussein formally accepted the kingship over British-protected Trans-Jordan today and immediately urged Arabs to unite behind him for a federation of Arab states.

The bearded, 64-year-old Abdullah mounted the throne and took over the nation of 300,000 persons in an Arabic ceremony which lasted just 14 minutes. He was not crowned. Kings are not crowned in the Arab world.

Merchants Refuse To Favor The Strikers

Perry, Fla., May 25.—(AP)—Merchants here refused to sell food, gasoline or other commodities to railroad employees unless they could prove they were not on strike, President Joe H. Scales of the Taylor County Chamber of Commerce said.

It was unanimously agreed among merchants here to discourage sales to striking railway employees.

"These merchants feel that those strikers who are contributing to the already-serious food shortage are not themselves entitled to portions of the small remaining supply," Scales said.

QUICK THINKING
St. Louis, May 25.—(AP)—When twelve thousand baby chicks and five colonies of bees were stranded by the railroad strike, fear that they might perish brought quick action from W. L. McMaster, in charge of undeliverable parcel post in the post office.

An auction was hastily arranged and some 500 bargain seekers paid a total of $625 for the chicks. The bees were auctioned off in a similar manner.

SIGHTSEEING
Detroit Lakes, Minn., May 25.—(AP)—The Detroit Lakes fire department got a call to a fire at a nearby resort.

But before they ended their run—several hours later—the firemen had covered 75 miles without locating the blaze.

"Well," commented fire chief Frank Palm, "it was a nice day, so we didn't mind the ride."

SUMMER CAMP OPENS JUNE 9

Camp Leach, on Pamlico River, Prepared For Summer Session

On June 9th Camp Leach, one of the oldest camps in Eastern North Carolina, will open for the summer session of 1946. This camp was originated in the early twenties by several civic groups in Washington, N. C., as a vacation spot for boys and girls of the community. In 1930 it was purchased by the Episcopal Diocese of East Carolina as a Camp Center for Young People. The Episcopal Church has operated it continuously for the last sixteen summers. It is now ready again this year to offer a ten-week camping program for the boys and girls and adults of East Carolina.

Camp Leach is located on the Pamlico River, fifteen miles east of Washington. There are over twenty buildings located on the property, with accommodations for as many as one hundred campers. The equipment is modern and adequate, with water sports, athletics, motion pictures, and nightly entertainment providing plenty of recreation for every camper. Each camper also devotes a portion of every day to religious instruction under competent clergy and lay readers of the Church.

Camp opens this year on June 9th with the Adult Conference. It will last for five days and will be under the capable leadership of the Rev. E. F. Moseley Rector of St. Mary's Church, Kinston. The faculty will include Father Kroll, a Holy Cross Father just back from many years of service with the Holy Cross Mission located in the interior of Liberia. Miss Charlotte Tompkins, a professional worker in Religious Education, will give several courses on the methods used for Visual Education.

On June 14th the Young People's Service League begins a three day convention. The first camp begins on June 17th. It is for the Senior age, boys and girls 15-18 years, and will again be directed by the Rev. Wm. B. Daniel of St. Paul's Church, Beaufort. He will have as assistants on the faculty the Rev. Harold W. Gilmer of St. Paul's, Edenton, the Rev. James Pomeyhouse of St. John's Church, Fayetteville, and the Rev. Harvey W. Glazier of the Church of the Good Shepherd, Wilmington.

The Seniors leave camp on June 30th and the Juniors, boys and girls 12-14, arrive on July 1st. The Rev. John W. Hardy, Rector of the Church of the Advent in Williamsport and just back from a three year tour in the U. S. Army, will direct this camp. On his faculty will be the Rev. Roscoe Hauser of St. Paul's Church, Greenville and the Rev. Arthur J. Mackie of St. James Church, Belhaven.

The last five weeks of camp, beginning July 22nd, are devoted to the Midlets, boys and girls 9-11, a Young People's Conference for five days and a Laymen's weekend. The Rev. Richard Sturgis of St. Stephen's Church, Goldsboro, will direct the first two weeks of Midlet Camp. His assistants will be announced at a later date as will the program for the last three weeks of camp.

The Rev. John H. Bonner, Jr., Rector of Trinity Church, Lumberton, is the Business Manager of Camp Leach. He moves down to camp with the regular staff on June 5th and the camp will be ready for action on the opening day.

Already over one hundred boys and girls have registered to attend camp this summer. Those planning to attend from Greenville are:

Ruby Edwards, John Roland Farley, Alice F. Jones, Carolyn Clapp, Edward Dayton Farley, Mary A. Stark, Helen T. Flanagan, Patricia Flanagan, Mary A. Smoot, Tom Smoot III, Helen Stokes, and Jo A. Timberlake.

Chapter 2

"Everything will be different when you're not here."

Whitney Hamilton spoke softly as she and Paul Scott walked slowly through the gardens of Random Folly the night he came to say goodby before he left for his navy training at Quantico Point. Bright Virginia moonlight softly touched the big rambling pre-Revolutionary house with serene and unforgettable beauty. Generations of Hamiltons had been born and lived out their days on this estate called Random Folly.

"Random Folly will be the same when I come home. It never changes," Paul said in a low voice as they walked through the old gardens hedged with box more than two hundred years old. Whitney heard the little catch in his voice. "I'm going to remember you, darling, just the way you are tonight—in this garden in the moonlight with Random Folly back of you protecting and guarding you until I come back again."

Quick tears sprang into Whitney's eyes. Paul, who was always so matter-of-fact, who prided himself on his practical reactions to everything really feeling the soft spell of the summer night and her nearness: A tide of happiness poured over her. If only she could hold this moment—make it last forever—

"Paul," she slipped her arm through his and her sweet husky voice trembled in spite of her effort to control it. "We could be married here tomorrow. In the morning, Uncle John would do it. You don't leave until two o'clock."

He bent down and kissed her. "No, honey. That can't be. I'm not going to let you in for anything like that. This is a tough war and it may be a long one. I'm not going to make it harder for you by adding new responsibilities you can't not code while I'm away. I'm looking after you better than that."

"Then don't treat me like a child. I'm old enough to take it. I'm grown up but nobody seems to realize it. You sound just like Polly and Spuds, too. You'd think he was my grandfather instead of my brother-in-law."

"Well, maybe we're right at that. Marriage is serious business and at seventeen you should be having fun."

"Fun!" Whitney flared back at him. "When the boys I know are away fighting and I'm lonesome and the older girls are all busy and I have to go back to school and there will only be kids to dance with—"

Paul's laugh rang out in the quiet garden. His lean tanned face was boyish in the moonlight, but his blue eyes were grave as he said an instant later:

"There are going to be a lot of men in and out of Washington while I'm gone and they won't all be kids either—and I leave behind me a girl with red-gold hair, big brown eyes and the loveliest complexion in the Tidewater. Not to mention the fact that she rides and dances and plays tennis superbly. It's screwy—all right—"

His voice trailed off uncertainly. "I count on you, Whitney. I have ever since you were four and I took you home from your first party. The loveliness of the world are always safe in the hands of the Hamiltons and the Scotts—knowing that gives a man something to fight for. Now let's go down to the stables—I haven't told Grey Goose yet that I'm going away."

The days that followed were busy ones for Whitney. In the deepening gloom of a war that transcended everything else in life, Whitney and her sister, Polly Wilson, took up their share of war work in Washington and opened a small apartment in the capital in order that their exacting routines might be faithfully carried out.

As a Washington debutante, joint neices with her sister Polly to the luxurious estate, Random Folly Whitney found the days not long enough for all she wanted to do after she left school. Time passed quickly. Then it was 1945. Paul was somewhere in the South Pacific and sometimes the weeks would lengthen into months before she would hear from him.

One Fall day in 1945 Polly asked her sister to meet her in Washington's exclusive Club 84 for luncheon. Polly had telephoned from the country. She said it was urgent enough for Whitney to break a luncheon date to meet her. For some weeks past, Whitney had managed to by-pass any family discussions with her very keen older sister. Now she knew a family "conference" could no longer be avoided.

Whitney glanced around uneasily as the club members sauntered in for their leisurely luncheons. Whatever else might be happening in a world at war, luncheon at Club 84 was never hurried. If you didn't have the time, you just didn't go there at noon. Evidently Polly had the time today—she must have seen the society page in last night's paper. Whitney looked down at the morning paper folded back to the social gossip column. The item she had marked had been copied from the Evening Tribune.

"It is rumored that Mrs. Horace Wilson will soon announce the engagement of her popular debutante sister, Whitney Hamilton, to a well-known attaché of one of the embassies here."

"Hello, my pet. Sorry to keep you waiting," Polly exclaimed a minute later as she hurried over to the table. She glanced at the paper lying in front of Whitney as Rudolph seated her. "Of course you knew I'd seen that, too," she continued abruptly. "Surprise is hardly the word to describe my emotions. No one ever tells me anything. All I know is what I read in the papers!"

Whitney smiled at her sister across the table. After all, Polly would understand how casual it all was. She slanted the dark blue cap of her Voluntary Services uniform at a slightly defiant angle over her right eye before she spoke. At that moment she was sure her new Sam Brown belt and faultlessly tailored white shirt with its formal four-hand tie, made her look years older.

Then she started to explain, as a girl accustomed to make important decisions for herself would naturally explain, her sudden and warm enthusiasm for the Count Barberini.

Chapter 3

The telephone beside her bed must have been ringing for some time before Whitney was awake. In a sleepy haze she picked up the receiver and heard the tired deep voice of the long distance operator telling her San Francisco was calling. Then she woke up with a start. She heard Paul's voice.

"Hello, darling. I'm back. Home tomorrow."

Breathless, excited plans followed. Whitney was not to meet him at the airport. All the family would be there as soon as he could break away he'd come directly to her apartment.

Whitney dropped the receiver back on its cradle, flung a maribou bed jacket around her shoulders and drew her long legs up under the satin down comforter. She had to think! Bent like a jack knife this had always been her favorite posture when anything bothered her. It was the best way to think anything through.

Hands clasped around her knees, Whitney stared levelly at the reflection she saw in the tall triple mirror across the room on her dressing table. Red-gold hair waved below white shoulders and wide set brown eyes stared back at her critically and dispassionately. She saw a young face, still flushed with sleep which showed no trace of the fact that the dance the night before had not stopped until three that morning.

The appraisal continued steadily for a few more moments. Then Whitney slowly shook her head and, drawing a deep breath, murmured half aloud:

"Back of that slightly bewildered expression there better be a brain hard at work, my girl, because you are in a jam and you have to think fast!"

The plain fact of the matter was that Whitney's interest in Gregory Barberini had reached the stage where she was seeing him every day and wanting to so much that she knew she was falling in love with him—and the man she was engaged to had just returned from the South Pacific!

If only she had more time, every-

GREAT SHOW BY KIWANIS

Annual Minstrel At College Was A Brilliant Affair

By CHESTER WALSH

The second performance of the Kiwanis minstrel was presented at the college last night before a capacity audience. The show was an outstanding success and reflected great credit upon El Bloom, the producer, and all who participated in staging it. The proceeds will go to the local Kiwanis Club's Underprivileged Child Committee. It was the best minstrel the club has yet presented. The cast was as good as professionals. Mrs. Ray Tyson was musical director.

The jokes should be streamlined. El Bloom was interocular. Endmen were Judge Jimmy Roberts, Bill Lee, Aubrey Tilley Dr. J. M. Barrett, Dall Laughinghouse, Tige Gardner, Albert Lum and James Ray Pittman. Specialty numbers, each one a feature, were presented by Ed Parkinson, James Ray Pittman, the Kiwanis Quartet, Bill Lee, Tilley, Gardner and Pittman; the Rhythm Three, Sara Kilpatrick, Eleanor Clark and Joanne Bloom; the Kiwanis chorus, a trio, Elizabeth Bridges, Mary Andrews Whitchard and Hennie Ruth Whitchard; Aubrey Tilley, and a song and dance by Joanne Bloom and Alfred Smith.

Tige Gardner opened the second act singing "Bad Bill," supported by the chorus; El Bloom and dancing girls in "Darktown Strutters Ball"; Jeannie Abeyounis Piggott singing; Judge Roberts, buck and wing; Kiwanis Junior Quartet, Rufus Stark, Carl Denton, Sam Northrop and Howard Proctor, directed by Miss Ona Shindler; Keyvin Conway singing, and Dooley Bizzell thing would be all right. Nothing had been said or done that could not be undone—but a new factor entered into her considerations now. Whitney had at last found a man who recognized the fact that she was no longer a child but a woman equipped to make her own decisions.

Polly and her husband, Spuds, always thought of her as a girl, working hard perhaps and always playing hard, but a child nevertheless, hardly out of the bobby-sox class. "Well, maybe not quite as bad as that," Whitney thought grudgingly. "But little sister just the same, and I'm allowed just enough leeway to have a good time but not enough to get into trouble. Even Paul just now, on the telephone, hasn't seen me for three years and he starts telling me just what to do! Gregory makes decisions after he has talked things over with me."

The telephone brought Whitney back with a start to the day ahead of her. It was Polly wanting to tell her Paul was back.

"It's marvelous, Whitney, simply marvelous," she exulted over the telephone. "It must be the good lives we lead! Here we are giving our annual hunt breakfast this week-end and Commander Scott arrives just in time. The conquering hero returns! My dear, I have it all planned!"

"You would!"

"Polly was too excited to catch any sarcasm in Whitney's quiet comment.

"After the hunt, I can announce your engagement to Paul—I guess that will be a climax for a homecoming sailor!"

Sudden resentment surged up as Whitney recognized all the familiar signs of Polly's complacent management of her affairs for her. "Polly, listen, you can't make plans like that for me." Her voice in her own ears sounded strained but very dignified and stern. "Paul can't be rushed off his feet this way; neither can I. We have to see each other and make our own plans. Then we will let you know what we intend doing."

She could hear Polly gasp at the other end of the wire.

"But you're engaged—and this is a perfect setup for your announcement. Everyone in the county will be out for the hunt breakfast and quite a number of your friends will be down from Washington. What's wrong with a welcome home for Paul that he will never forget?"

"Just this, Polly. Paul and I haven't seen each other for more than three years. In that time I may have changed. Paul may look at things differently. You can't take all of this for granted. Personally I don't want to be married right away and I hate long engagements. So as far as I'm concerned I'm not ready for any of it."

"But, Whitney," Polly's voice, suddenly serious, showed that she sensed something was wrong. "I thought you planned to marry as soon as Paul returned. You've told me that a number of times."

"Perhaps I have changed my mind about when I want to get married," Whitney replied quietly. "I want to take time to think this over, at any rate."

"I see."

A long silence ensued. It was a silence that was just beginning to make Whitney a little nervous when Polly said abruptly, "How many people have you invited down for breakfast, Whitney? Our house guests are all coming, but I'd like to know how many to expect for the breakfast at the club."

"About ten."

"All right. When are you coming down?"

"Paul and I are driving down together. I don't know when his plane gets in."

"Fine," Polly's voice brightened, came back again with something of her former enthusiasm. "Maybe—oh, never mind. And that friend of yours—the Count—he's bringing his own mount and we are having a terrible time finding a place to put him."

"Who—the horse or the Count?"

"Both, if you want to know. I wish you hadn't asked him."

The singing of "You Got to See Mamms Every Night," by diminutive Police Chief Jim Tanner and Mildred Adams, was the hit of the show.

The scenery was designed and executed by Eva May Davenport; dancers costumes by Mrs. W. H. Smith; lighting and sound effects, Charlotte Robertson; spotlighting by Tommy Deiner; N. C. Brooks was chairman of the program committee; J. Hicks Corey, tickets; and Jimmy Smith printed the souvenir programs.

The minstrel had the best orchestra yet to play for the annual show. Mrs. Christine Smith was at the piano, Leighton Clark, drums; Bill Evans, trombone; Spence Hatley, trumpet.

Farmville Kiwanis Club Takes To Air

Monday night, the Farmville Kiwanis Club held one of their most interesting meetings of the year; when, with the entire membership present, they took an active part in the program which was broadcast over radio station WGTC from 7:30 to 8:30 o'clock.

1946 marks the 26th anniversary of radio, and the program was most appropriate. Frank Allen, program chairman and master of ceremonies, asked Pres. Charlie Hotchkiss to give the salute to radio and station WGTC.

Charlie stated that J. C. Maxwell was the first scientist in radio in 1873, followed by Marconi in 1893; then in August of 1920, station WWJ of Detroit made the first broadcast. Television was perfected in 1836 and radar in 1943. Interesting highlights included the announcement that there are 34 million radios in our homes today, and that almost 1,000 broadcasting stations employ over 25,000 people; with the possibility that there will be 100 television stations by the end of 1947.

A radio quiz was held, with a prize of $1.00 to those who answered their questions correctly. Twelve members became a dollar richer for their efforts.

Zeb Whitehurst will be in charge of next week's program.

Florida Attorney Proposes Action

Tallahassee, Fla., May 24—(AP)—Florida's attorney general is asking legal departments of southern states not to "sit by and see organized labor take over domination of southern politics."

The attorney general, Tom Watson, outspoken foe of the closed shop, suggested that legal departments of southern states "set up some counter-influence."

He made the proposal in a letter asking Attorney General Guy Williams of Arkansas to call a meeting of southern members of the National Association "to see what we can do about it."

Williams is president of the southern region of the National Association.

Meanwhile Watson announced that an Arkansas veterans' association to combat labor's closed shop would be chartered in Florida "to back up the right-to-work policy."

Florida and Arkansas both have constitutional anti-closed shop amendments.

Watson said James Karam, president of the Arkansas Veterans' Industrial Association, had agreed to charter the association in Florida and "aid in the fight for the open shop."

National Wildlife Restoration Week was first proclaimed by President Roosevelt in 1938.

Emperor Asks People To Help Each Other

Tokyo, May 24—(AP)—Emperor Hirohito, in an unprecedented broadcast, today urged his 73,000,000 people to help each other through the nation's food crisis—but made it plain that he expects prompt action by Premier Shigeru Yoshida's new government.

Two hours later, Yoshida echoed his emperor's words that Japan must adopt a "self help" policy. Yoshida added, in an 18-minute press conference, that he had picked the best man available for the food job, Hiro Wada, as minister of agriculture.

Wada prepared to present to the new cabinet tomorrow a plan—details unannounced—to ease the situation. Previously, Wada told the Japanese press he thought the people should have more control over presently inadequate rationing machinery.

Eastern N. C. Credit Conference Closes

Jno. R. Carroll, president of the Greenville Production Credit Association, and G. L. Mewborn, vice president, F. L. Little, Jr., secretary-treasurer, B. M. Richardson, assistant secretary-treasurer, directors, J. P. Davenport, Mack G. Smith and D. P. Hardison have returned from a group conference of directors of production credit associations of Eastern North Carolina held at Wrightsville Beach.

According to Mr. Carroll, the conference was held for the purpose of discussing ways and means of improving services to farmer-members of these cooperative financing institutions, and to consider problems relating to postwar agriculture.

"The group gave much thought and effort to strengthening member relations, and formulated plans for promoting complete farmer ownership of the association," he said.

According to Mr. Carroll, the following production credit associations were represented at the conference: Henderson, Lenoir, Rocky Mount, Weldon, Ahoskie, Elizabeth City, Greenville, Washington, Kinston and New Bern.

The Greenville Production Credit Association was one of two associations represented with 100 per cent attendance.

Family Budget Costs Rise Fifty Per Cent

Washington, May 24—(AP)—Most of the things that make up the average family budget now cost more than 50 per cent more than they did the day war started in Europe, the Bureau of labor statistics said today.

"Food, clothing and house furnishings costs, which represent 57 per cent of the budget for wage earners and moderate income workers, in large cities, are now a little over 50 per cent higher than in August, 1939," the bureau declared, in a report reviewing the steady climb in retail costs.

The minut began as a rustic dance.

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

A GREAT PROMISE

"Thou shalt tread upon the lion and the adder; the young lion and the dragon shalt thou trample under feet."

The unwavering message of the Bible is that if we give religion a chance, it will enable us to win stupendous triumphs. The lion, the adder, the dragon—these represent the troubles and temptations we encounter in life. There are some misfortunes which are like lions, springing upon us with irresistible force. There are temptations which lie along the pathway of life like the adder, and sink their fangs into us unawares. The dragon is a purely imaginary creature. He is like many of the anxieties and troubles with which we daily torture ourselves.

Straight out of the Word of God comes the promise that the religious man is equal to anything. The promise—that a man will trample a lion under his feet seems fantastic, but many a person surmounts life's difficulties with triumphs which are seemingly as impossible as this. Also there is restoration for the life that has been poisoned by the sting of temptations which crept up like an adder slithering through the grass.

Probably the greatest victory a religious man ever achieves is the victory over life's imaginary troubles—over the dragons, its fears and worries.

Tread upon and trample—this is the promise a man of faith can cherish as he faces conflict with lion, adder, or dragon.

FARSIGHTEDNESS PAYS OFF

Several years ago, in the City of Lima, Ohio, it became necessary that the City officials dispense with the lighting of streets, due to financial difficulties, but it soon became apparent that the City could not function, as such, without street lights, so very soon a group of business people got together and no trouble was experienced in raising the necessary funds to turn the lights on again. After the trouble was cleared up and Lima was again lit up, the question was asked, "Where was Lima when the lights went out?" And the answer was "Off the map."

Most everyone has experienced certain difficulties in recent years in securing the things they needed and especially so in recent months, since we have entered the adjustment period. In fact, conditions have been a great deal less pleasant than we had hoped for and expected.

Executives of Electric and Water Plants throughout the nation have experienced plenty of headaches during these strenuous days, with all manner of strikes by Electric Manufacturers, Coal Mines, Railroads and various other employee groups existing and threatening. Many of the Utilities attempted to counteract this conditions by dim-outs, brown-outs or black-outs and other means of curtailment of the use of power. Some plants were temporarily shut down for lack of coal, operating only at intervals to maintain refrigeration, cooking and other essential services.

It is not often that the average person stops to consider the terrible consequences which would soon result without an abundant supply of Electric Energy for the thousand and one daily uses, without an adequate supply of pure water for human consumption to maintain sanitation and for fire protection.

The Citizens of Greenville and vicinity should feel very fortunate that none of the discomforts and uneasiness which naturally is not one of those things that just happen.

At a recent meeting of the Board of Commissioners of the Greenville Utilities Commission, Superintendent Martin Swartz was highly commended for this accomplishment and to him goes the praise for the foresight and planning to meet just such an emergency.

Going back a bit, the recommendation by Superintendent Swartz of Steam Generating Equipment designed for the use of pulverized fuel and/or oil, back in 1940 was the beginning, for without this type equipment fuel oil could not have been employed as a boiler fuel, and so him goes the credit for the foresight of future needs and for the unerring ability in sensing trouble and for securing and pre-ing into use equipment for burning crude oil instead of coal, for without which, we would have very likely been in Lima's position, "off the map" at least temporarily.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By JACK STINNETT

Washington.—We will be marking the first V-J anniversary within a few months. It will be a good many months before we get those important imports from the Pacific that mean so much to normal living.

The shortage of black pepper and some other spices, for example, which has helped keep housewives fretting for years now, probably will go on for a long time. Spices come from Indonesia. The war is over there, but its boiling wack is almost as bad as the storm itself.

How long the unsettled situation in the Orient will continue is a guess. Some shortages are certain to continue until late next year, others possibly two or three years more.

In India, for example, the experts say the people are due for the biggest famine of this century. We get jute from India—our staple flour and sugar sacking. It came through during the war. It doesn't come now and may not for a long time. The same is true of India tea.

We are getting some silk from Japan now. There are good stocks of rubber in Indo-China and Indonesia. Rubber industry experts earlier expected a few hundred thousand tons to move this year. Political unrest and the failure to repair harbors and transportations already have made those expectations an uncertainty.

This year and maybe for some months thereafter, we will have to continue getting tin from Bolivia and the Belgian Congo. Malaya, one of the world's greatest sources, probably may get out five to seven thousand tons for the United States this year. That's less than 15 per cent of the demand.

A pre-war supply of copra and coconut oils could end the world shortages of fats, oils and soaps. The Philippines will get out some this year, but it won't amount to much—on grocery shelves.

Black markets and inflation are other factors messing up our resumption of trade with the Orient. In some products, like rubber, the prices are established by agreement. The agreements aren't worth much if the products flow into the black markets. It's a case of you can get bacon for 42 cents a pound, if you can get it. And try to figure out foreign trade with nations like China, where the Chinese dollar is currently somewhere around 3,000 for one of Uncle Sam's cartwheels.

Some things like silk and rubber we will never need again in prepar quantities, thanks to synthetics, but for most of the other commodities, it will just be a question of patient waiting for a year or so.

The World Today

(Continued From Page One) led London streets. But there were few if any disorders. The quietness of this first general strike was almost uncanny.

After nine days of near-paralysis, the strike was called off. The government position had been maintained. The unions, which had saved up a large sum of money for such an emergency, went broke in paying relief to strikers. Baldwin refused to take action against them.

"Our business," he said, "is not to triumph over those who have failed in a mistaken attempt. It is rather to rally them, together with the population as a whole, in an attempt to restore the nation."

The Nation

(Continued from Page One) have had an extraordinary effect. We're still, technically at war, although not in a fighting war. We are recovering from a fighting war and goods are scarce more than that, the government is trying to hold down wages and prices.

If things had been different—if management could have raised wages and prices without having to seek permission of the government—some of the strikes might not have occurred at all. But, they did.

So now Congress, if it passed restrictive legislation on unions, will be telescoping into a few months laws to curb unions which might not have been necessary for, say the next 30 years.

From the beginning labor has had to fight for most of its gains. It has had to fight for rights like these: To organize, to strike, shorter hours, to picket, higher wages, abolition of child labor and injunctives.

In this struggle labor took its cut—to grow strong by organizing hugely—from business. The American Federation of Labor was formed in 1886, when the big trusts dominated the country's economic picture.

There was plenty of fury against—and fear of—the big business monopolies back in those days and in 1890 Congress passed the Sherman anti-trust act to bust the monopolies.

Ironically, during the next 10 years some of the largest trusts were formed but the courts applied the act against unions, instead of against trusts.

The courts held that unions were restraining trade by strikes or other practices and therefore were violating the Sherman act which had been aimed at monopolies, not at unions.

But as Allen Nevins and Henry Steele Commager point out in their "A Short Story of the United States," Americans feared big business trusts, not unions, and really "wanted to clean it up," not bust it.

When Finley Peter Dunne wrote about the Americans' mixed feelings on trusts—"on one hand I wud stamp them under fut; on th' other hand, not so fast"—he might have been talking about some of today's expressed feelings on unions.

There isn't much talk about now smashing unions, but plenty about keeping them from wielding such power that they can paralyze the country.

Yet—there is a very important point to keep in mind, as President Truman pointed out last night when he warned against letting a "wave of ill will" toward unions result in bad "restrictive legislation" on unions.

If Congress should go too far in restricting unions, it could have effect of crippling them and setting their clock back for years. And that might easily change the entire course of American industrial history.

BABSON

many years ago that $4,000,000,000 would have paid the total cost of running our whole federal government! This means a real tax saving to us all.

Blessing to Home-Owner

When I was a boy back home in Gloucester, Massachusetts, no one ever expected to pay less than 6 per cent a year for mortgage money. Some paid 7 per cent or 8 per cent. Today, the savings banks are scrambling to lend money on homes at 4 per cent. When you realize that the average borrower will pay interest on his mortgage for twenty years, to total saving in living costs is, indeed, sizable. On a typical mortgage of $5,000 to a saving of only 2 per cent comes to $100 a year. Over a twenty-year period $2,000 is saved on a compound-interest basis. That is money which the home-owner can have available for other things.

Following World War I, the electric and gas companies were hauled, not only by soaring prices, but

The big utility companies should also be able to pay out more in wages to their workers.

Bullish on Heavy Industries
Prosperity in this country of ours is highly dependent on a healthy expansion of industry of all kinds, as well as on building, road and other construction. To build a new factory or plant to give employment requires vast amounts of capital—about $5,000 for every man employed. The cost of capital, to those men of vision and courage who embark on such ventures, is measured by the money rates they have to pay. Present low "cost of money" is a great stimulus to such job-providing enterprises. Low money rates encourage plant extensions and this means more jobs.

I have one word of warning about this low money rate situation. In a nutshell, the low cost of money makes it altogether too easy to borrow. Money is plentiful today and money lenders are anxious to put it to work. If you must borrow to buy or build a home, or to expand your business, or to obtain greater conveniences in your home by all means do so—but do not be lulled to improvident purchases. Pay off your loans as rapidly as you can! My half a century of experience has driven this home to me, time and again: if you don't get out of debt when business is good, you won't be able to do so when the turn comes. My father had this motto on his desk: "Debt is more men than germs do."

Trio Sentenced For Old Murder

Union, S. C., May 24-(AP)-Two men and a woman were sentenced to life imprisonment here today for the slaying of the woman's husband five years ago, a death that had been listed as a suicide until early this month.

Sam Johnson was convicted by a General Sessions court jury of murder in connection with the death of Victor Bishop, 53-year-old carpenter and farmer. Mrs. Bishop, 38, and Hobart Green were convicted of being accessories before and after the fact.

The jury, which deliberated 18 hours, recommended mercy which made a life sentence mandatory. Without the recommendation, the death sentence would have been prescribed by law.

Bishop was found dead in his home May 27, 1941, with a gunshot wound in his mouth and a stick nearby. It was assumed he had used the stick to fire the gun, and his death was recorded as suicide.

Mrs. Bishop and her co-defendants were arrested early this month after a renewed investigation into the death. At the trial, the state presented testimony that she and Johnson had been lovers for two years before her husband's death.

What proved to be the winning run for the Greenies came in the fifth inning when V. Blackwell singled and scored on Manager Virgil Payne's double.

Johnny Foell bested Andy Tomasic in the second game, 5-2, with Carlson's home run in the sixth proved to be the winning run.

Father Kidnaps Own Daughter

Wilson, N. C., May 25—(AP)—Wilbur E. Johnson was charged with kidnapping his own daughter from the home of her stepfather, D. A. Honeycutt, in Stantonburg, near here, in a warrant signed last night by the child's mother, Mrs. Gladys Honeycutt.

Justice of the Peace John N. Pearce, who issued the warrant, said Mrs. Honeycutt told him Johnson had taken the child, Gladys Caroleigh Johnson, eight, for a ride yesterday and had not returned.

Mrs. Honeycutt was quoted as saying Johnson, who makes his home in California and who has custody of one of their two children arrived in Stantonburg yesterday to visit his daughter.

Pearce quoted Mrs. Johnson as saying she thought Johnson might have gone to Norfolk or possibly was on his way back to California.
