Movement To Alter Report On Franco Spain Gains In Security Council

New York, June 3—(AP)—Evidences increased today that efforts would be made in the United Nations Security Council to modify some of the conclusions of a sub-committee report recommending steps for an eventual worldwide diplomatic break with Franco Spain.

The spokesman for one delegation, who did not want to be identified, went so far as to predict that the sub-committee's report would not be approved without some modifications. He declined to say, however, what changes he expected.

The report, which was circulated Saturday after the sub-committee completed a month's investigation of Poland's charges that the Franco regime threatens world peace, will come before the council Thursday for action.

The main recommendation was that the Spanish case be preferred to the 51-nation General Assembly with a request that the assembly call for a universal break with Generalissimo Francisco Franco if he is still in power in September.

This proposal has the support of five members of the council—France, China, Australia, Poland and Brazil—and possibly others.

Both the United States and Britain have consistently opposed a break with Franco, while Russia has advocated action against Franco but has been against any action which might give more prestige to the assembly at the expense of the Security Council.

Although none of the Big Three has commented on publication of the sub-committee's report, all of them are expected to support the exception which Poland took to the committee's findings that the Security Council itself had no authority to direct a break with Franco because the Franco government was only a "potential threat" to peace.

Under terms of the charter, seven votes—including the unanimous support of the five permanent members of the council—are necessary for approval of questions of "substance" such as the committee's report.

Leaf Price Support Group Is Organized

Raleigh, June 3—(AP)—The Flue-Cured Tobacco Stabilization Corporation has been organized here, to furnish the machinery for putting into operation any federal program for support of tobacco prices.

Officers are: Carl T. Hicks, Winston-Salem, president; H. G. Blalock of Bankville, Va., D. P. Bruton of Adel, Ga., and R. S. Rogers of Dillon, S. C., vice president, and Mrs. Irby Walker, secretary-treasurer. J. M. Broughton of Raleigh is general counsel for the corporation.

Directors, in addition to the president and vice presidents, are Bill Hooks, Whiteville; T. W. Allen, Creedmoor; J. E. Winslow, Greenville; W. W. Eagles, Macesfield, and George Sockwell, Elton College. The corporation is organized as a non-profit organization, with $5,000,000 in common stock and $2,500,000 in preferred stock.

The NATION TODAY By James Marlow

Washington, June 3—(AP)—The language of the Case bill—which Congress passed in an effort to curb strikes—may be more far-reaching than those who voted for it intended.

Washington lawyer, expert in labor laws, frankly say they are puzzled particularly by that section of the bill which forbids unions to conduct secondary boycotts.

President Truman has not yet signed the bill into law. He may veto it. But if it becomes law those same lawyers say there is a possibility, because of the language, that federal courts in time might decide:

Picketing, itself, and refusal to cross a picket line are secondary boycotts and therefore illegal. This would be an extreme restriction on labor because picketing and refusal to cross a picket line are powerful weapons which unions have long used against employers.

Striking workers throw a picket line—striking workers march up and down around a struck plant to discourage other people from having anything to do with the plant. For example:

1. People who might like to go into the plant to take the jobs of the strikers are discouraged from doing so by the sight of the pickets.

Nazi Doctor Hanged For Deadly Experiments

Dr. Klaus Karl Schilling, 74, bearded German physician and scientist, convicted by war crimes court of using 1,200 Dachau concentration camp inmates to test his theories of malaria immunization, walks to the gallows (left) at Landsberg, Germany, in custody of an unidentified officer. Center: He stands on the gallows, waiting for the rope to be put around his neck. Right: The noose is adjusted, the black hood has been drawn over his head—and a few moments later he was swinging at the end of the rope. He and 27 other Nazis, convicted of war crimes, were hanged at Landsberg in two days. It was the largest mass execution ever conducted by the U. S. Army. (AP Wirephoto).

Monarchy vs. Republic Contested By Voting In Italian Plebiscite

Rome, June 3—(AP)—Both Republicans and Royalists predicted victory by comfortable margins today as Italy completed a plebiscite which will determine whether the nation is to be a monarchy or a republic.

The official verdict will not be announced until after June 7, but first unofficial returns on the referendum and the concurrent constituent assembly elections are expected soon after the polls close at noon today.

"We polled 60 to 65 per cent of the vote," said Randoio Paolardi, republican leader, concerning the referendum. However, he conceded that the House of Savoia's home stretch campaign of last week had cut down republican chances for a more sweeping victory.

A highly placed monarchist estimated that King Umberto would be upheld by at least 50 per cent of the voters "if the balloting was regular." He declared that several instances already had been reported of irregularity at the polls. While the clear-cut plebiscite issue between the monarchy and the republic overshadowed voting, for the assembly, observers regarded the latter as equally, if not more important, since the outcome would indicate the extent of Italy's political swing, either to the right or left.

King Umberto voted about 45 minutes before the polls closed. A small crowd of last minute voters cheered the king as he entered and left the polling place in the fashionable Parioli section. Umberto, bareheaded and wearing a double-breasted gray suit, was accompanied by Falcone Lucifero, minister of the royal household and his campaign manager. There was a minimum of police precautions.

Lucifero told newsmen he had "reason to believe" the king turned in blank ballots both on the referendum and the assembly election. The king, he said, was "above every passion and absolutely objective."

French Voters Turn From Leftist Trend

Communists And Socialists Losing Ground In Face Of Russia's Paris Debate And U. S. Loan To France

Paris, June 3—(AP)—French Communists received their second setback within a month today as returns from yesterday's election for a new constituent assembly showed that the middle-of-the-road popular Republican movement (MRP) had become the nation's strongest political party.

Socialists took an even sharper defeat than the Communists, as the political pendulum swung away from the left, continuing the trend noted in the May 5 referendum when a Communist-Socialist constitution was rejected.

SOVIET ARMY STILL GROWS

Six Million Men Under Arms; Plants Making New Weapons

Nuernberg, June 3—(AP)—Although Soviet Russia has released more than 10,000,000 men from military service in the last 10 months she still has approximately 6,000,000 under arms at the present time according to the best information available to allied military authorities.

One high allied military source estimated that the Red Army—which he described as the most powerful ground force in the world—now has a strength of about 4,500,000 men, while the air force navy and NKVD internal police total 1,500,000 more.

Russian factories, this authority said, now are producing the biggest tank in the world—the super-Stalin mounting a 131-millimeter gun. They also are producing jet-propelled planes and a Soviet version of the jeep.

The highest priority in Russia at the moment, however, he declared is being given not to armament production but to atomic development. Allied emissaries in Moscow do not doubt, this source said, that Russian scientists know the essentials of atom bomb manufacture but they doubt that Soviet plants will be making a finished product before 1948 or later.

Stettinius

Washington, June 3—(AP)—President Truman today accepted the resignation of Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., as the government's representative to the United Nations.

Mr. Truman said he did so only because of Stettinius' "earnest insistence" on it at a conference today at the White House.

The White House made public a letter the President addressed to the former secretary of state wishing him "good fortune" in whatever he determines to do.

FOUR WRECKS AT WEEKEND

Mrs. Howard J. McGinnis Injured In Collision Sunday Night

By CHESTER WALSH Mrs. Howard J. McGinnis was seriously injured Sunday evening about 7:30 when cars driven by her husband and Assa Van Moore, Jr., of Winterville collided at Third and Jarvis streets. Mrs. McGinnis, riding on the rear seat, was catapulted from the car to the pavement when a door flew open. She was taken to Pitt General Hospital in an unconscious condition. Christine Johnston, a granddaughter, riding on the front seat, and Dr. McGinnis were considerably shaken up. Moore, the driver of the other car, was not hurt. Both drivers were booked at police headquarters on charges of reckless driving.

Mrs. McGinnis, who suffered a head injury, showed signs of improvement at the hospital. It was stated.

Dr. McGinnis' car was damaged to the extent of $500. Moore's car about $35, police said. About an hour after this collision police were called to 14th and Charles street to investigate another wreck. A car driven by W. A. Fornes of New Bern collided with a big potato truck driven by Daniel B. Oliver of Januvia, N. C. Police said the truck sustained $280 damage. (Continued on Page Two)

Judge Delays Ewing Trial Indefinitely

Fayetteville, June 3—(AP)—Judge Clawson L. Williams today postponed the trial of Wall C. Ewing, Fayetteville business man and politician charged with the first degree murder of his wife. The trial was scheduled to start tomorrow.

The next term of court here is in August, and if Ewing is tried before then a special term of court must be called by the governor. It was not announced whether a special term would be sought.

The trial was postponed because of the illness of Solicitor Ertle Carlyle, who has been advised by his physician to take a six-week rest.

TODAY IN CONGRESS A Review Of Your Government In Action

Washington, June 3—(AP)—Atomic energy control, the draft and the OPA came crowding back into the legislative picture today.

After more than a week of almost complete preoccupation with labor matters, Congress turned its attention—for the moment at least—to other business on its own crowded calendars.

The Senate took up a bill to extend selective service until next May 15 and make ten-agers again subject to induction.

When that measure is out of the way, the chamber will begin debating a bill to keep OPA alive after June 30. The Senate Banking Committee is putting the finishing touches to an extension measure.

The House already has passed both bills, but each came out in a form highly distasteful to the administration.

The atomic energy bill—setting up controls for domestic handling of the new power source—landed in the House after the Senate unexpectedly gave it right of way over the draft and OPA and sped it to passage Saturday afternoon.

The House Military Committee wrote its own control bill—months ago under War Department guidance, but the measure never has reached the House floor. No immediate decision is likely in the House, however, because of nature

Nation's Soft Coal Miners In The Pits

Paralyzed Steel Industry Immediately Up Production Rate; Mine Supervisors Seeking Government Contract

By ASSOCIATED PRESS The nation's 400 bituminous miners returned to the soft coal pits today 64 days after they laid down their picks and shovels.

The paralyzed steel industry immediately upped its production rate in the Pittsburgh area to 35 per cent of capacity for this week, although the magazine steel estimated it would take six to seven weeks for resumption of normal output.

U. S. Steel Corp., hardest hit of the steel firms, ordered a gradual recall of its 41,000 workers idled by the soft coal walkout, but a company spokesman said it would take several weeks to get all employees back on their jobs.

Some bituminous diggers went back to the pits Friday and Saturday. AFL-United Mine Workers leaders toured the coal fields over the weekend explaining terms of the new contract that includes a "welfare fund" and an 18-1/2 cent hourly wage boost. Few mines today were slated to remain closed.

The soft coal strike began April 1 and continued unbroken save for a 12-day "truce" ordered by UMW Chief John L. Lewis. A third of the miners disregarded the truce and refused to dig.

Even as the soft coal miners returned to the pits, some 75,000 of the Pennsylvania anthracite diggers continued idle in a "no contract, no work" dispute. The shut-out began last Friday at midnight when the old agreement expired.

In the fact of the bituminous settlement another strike threat was posed—unionization of mine ore-men.

John McAlpine, president of the IMW-affiliated District 50, Supervisory Employees Union, announced he would seek a government contract covering approximately 75,000 soft coal mine supervisors.

No miner will enter the pits until inspections have been made and listings approved by the supervisory workers.

George J. Titler, UMW district president at Beckley, W. Va., asserted National Labor Relations Board permission will be sought this week to hold bargaining elections among foremen in 13 West Virginia mines. He said similar elections will be asked at 25 other mines.

The bituminous agreement provides that Secretary of Interior Krug, boss of the government seized pits, shall be guided by NLRB decisions in determining membership of the bosses' union.

JAPANESE WAR TRIALS OPEN

Prosecution Begins Opening Statement Condemning Prisoners

Tokyo, June 3—(AP)—The international trials of Japan's accused war-makers opened today with the tribunal, blocking their last-minute efforts to escape prosecution—but the 26 prisoners were allowed 10 more days in which to prepare their defense.

The court, meeting in a glare of floodlights in the grim war ministry building where many of the defendants are accused of plotting Japan's disastrous plunge into aggressive war, will be reconvened at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow (7:30 p. m. today, EST) to hear the prosecution's opening statement.

Chief Prosecutor Joseph B. Keenan will deliver a 15,000 word condemnation of ex-premier Hideki Tojo and the other Japanese leaders accused of starting the Pacific war. The presentation probably will last at least five hours.

Keenan, who has been in Japan six months, will take advantage of the 10-day recess by requesting permission to make a hurried trip to the U. S. to take care of personal affairs. His absence, meanwhile, would begin the presentation of evidence. He has not informed General MacArthur of his desire but the Allied commander was expected to approve Keenan's trip.

The court dismissed quickly and bluntly the defense motion to dismiss charges against the defendants. Chief Justice Sir William Webb brushed aside a prosecution reply with the comment, "We do not care to hear from you, Mr. Chief Prosecutor," and immediately announced the rejection of the motion.

AAF SMASHES PAST RECORDS Twenty World Records Bagged In Last 6 Weeks By Army Planes

Dayton, O., June 3—(AP)—Army Air Forces planes smashed 12 world records between May 17 and May 19, bringing to 20 its bag in the last six weeks. Gen. Carl Spaatz, AAF commanding general, disclosed today.

The B-29, prima donna of the bombers, cracked eight world marks in one day, May 17. Lt. Edward Grabowski of New York City piloted his B-29 over a 2,000 kilometer course between Wright Field, O., and St. Louis, Mo., with a maximum handicap load of 50,000 kilograms. That set six records. Capt. John D. Bartlett of Bozeman, Mont., flew the same course in his B-29 for two more records.

One of the AAF speed lines, the Lockheed P-80 jet-propelled Shooting Star shattered three other records, while a Sikorsky helicopter broke duration performance record at Wright Field.

Second Lt. William L. Vavricka of Del Rio, Tex., and Lt. Kenneth R. Bloom of Bend, Ore., flew a Sikorsky R-5 helicopter continuously for 9 hours, 33 minutes and 27 seconds. Previous record was 1 hour.

After its first thumping approval of the potent legislation more than a week ago, the House watched the Senate rip out the strikers' draft section and otherwise tone down the bill.

An informal hearing on the subject was set for late today by a group of 16 House members opposed to the measure.

Kalinin Dies

London, June 3—(AP)—Michael I. Kalinin, former president of the Soviet Union, died today (at 3 a. m. Eastern Standard Time), after a severe illness, the Moscow radio announced.

Kalinin was 70 years old. He was succeeded in his post as chairman of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet, a position equivalent to president of the Soviet Union, on March 19 by Nikolai M. Shvernik, former president of the All-Union Soviet Trade Council. Kalinin remained a member of the Presidium, however.

Another bill the House got on the rebound from the Senate after once passing it is the billion dollar agriculture department appropriation for the coming fiscal year.

In addition to hiking some of the money allotments, the senators had tacked on a ban against using any of the funds to pay salaries of workers belonging to any organization which asserts the right to strike against the government.

The ride is an outgrowth of a newly organized union of federal employees. Senator Russell (D-Ga.) and Ball (R-Minn.) say they plan a similar provision in all future appropriations bills.

TRADER SEEKS REVERSAL OF GRAIN RULING

Broker Unsuccessful In Bringing Suit To Halt Trading By Chicago Board

Chicago, June 3—(AP)—Grain futures trading on the Chicago Board of Trade was held up for a half hour today while a broker unsuccessfully sought an injunction against regulations which reversed previous rulings governing ceilings on old grain contracts.

Robert Buckley of Charles W. Buckley Company, Chicago commission house, obtained a temporary restraining order blocking trading before the world's largest grain exchange opened for business. Federal Judge Elwyn R. Shaw, however, refused to issue an injunction, ruling that Buckley could seek relief through a damage suit rather than by tying up grain operations.

The suit was based on board action following an increase in ceiling prices of grain by the government.

On May 11 all ceilings were raised. The board of trade directors decided that trading in futures then outstanding would be permitted for liquidation purposes only, and that the old ceilings would prevail on these contracts.

Late Friday, May 31, at a special meeting directors decided to raise the ceilings on these old contracts and to permit trading for purposes other than liquidation.

Buckley, suing as an individual member of the exchange, alleged this action would cause him and (Continued on Page 5)

Approaching Strike Takes International Tinge As CIO Leaders Appeal to Workers In Other Lands To Help; AFL Denounces Strike As "Political"

Washington, June 3—(AP)—AFL maritime unions appeared to be splitting today on supporting the strike of CIO seamen and dock workers scheduled June 15.

The CIO-dominated committee for maritime unity said today it has received a pledge from Captain Harry Martin, president of the AFL Masters, Mates and Pilots Union, that his members will respect CIO picket lines.

On the other hand, Joseph Ryan, president of the AFL International Longshoremen's Association, denounced the threatened strike Saturday as "political."

Meantime Americas maritime crisis was taking on a broader international aspect today.

CIO maritime leaders loom still another critical blast at President Truman, appealed simultaneously to workers in other lands for help in their shipping strike scheduled June 15.

In this atmosphere, wage and hour negotiations moved slowly along at the Labor Department. CIO unions and ship operators prepared to meet again today (11 a. m. EST).

In the absence of any official report of progress, the one encouraging thing in the situation appeared to be this:

The talks are continuing. Collective bargaining has not broken down.

Meanwhile, something new in labor disputes occurred last night when Harry Bridges and Joseph Curran, kingspins of the CIO's maritime unions, sent a telegram to the World Federation of Trade Unions (WFTU) at Paris.

In that message they renewed their criticism of Mr. Truman's assertion that he will operate the merchant ships with the armed forces if necessary. They said the president had "seriously jeopardized" the possibilities for a peaceful settlement.

And they asked the WFTU in the event of a strike to declare any merchant vessels manned by the U. S. government to be "scab ships." They also asked for any other help the WFTU could give.

The CIO is affiliated with the WFTU, the AFL isn't. Also affiliated are millions of union members in Russia, Britain, France and other countries. The WFTU executive council has a meeting scheduled in Moscow on June 16-18.

Vandenberg Favors Bi-Partisan Policy

Detroit, June 3—(AP)—Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R-Mich.) was on record today with a declaration that the recent Paris conference of foreign ministers "was a complete success in developing, at least, a positive, constructive peace-seeking, bi-partisan foreign policy for the United States."

Michigan's senior Senator said the conference "was not a success in gaining major agreements" on international issues but "was a partial success in gaining agreement on many lesser matters."

The WORLD TODAY An Analysis Of The News

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

The government of Bombay has declared a state of emergency in its central mill district as the result of further bloody clashes between caste Hindus and the lowly "Untouchables"—or outcasts—whose very presence is supposed to defile their betters.

These fresh disturbances would seem to have their inception in the bitter among many Untouchables that the British government's new proposals for Indian independence don't make adequate provision for this depressed class. Former British Prime Minister Churchill, as leader of the Conservative party, has received a protest from an Indian group, declaring that the government's program is a "shameful betrayal of the Untouchables' cause, and has replied that his party will do its utmost to protect them. He adds:

"We shall take our stand on the broad principles set forth in the American declaration of independence, that all men are born free and equal and entitled to life, liberty and pursuit of happiness."

Actually the government's proposals do include provision for a bill of rights in the projected constitution to protect the Untouchables. However, I know from personal investigation in India that these unhappy folk want to be established in communities of their own so that they may escape a life that is worse than death and achieve the status of human beings.

The world has known few tragedies so terrible as that of India's 60,000,000 Untouchables who for centuries have been condemned by the Hindu caste system to live as pariahs. That system with its innumerable ramifications permeates the whole structure of Indian society.

God made the Untouchables like other men but caste challenges the Almighty and places this depressed class without the pale of human rights. They live outside the villages of caste Hindus and perform the most menial tasks for their masters. Yet I've visited some of these pitiful folk and have found them kindly folk who strive mightily to overcome their awful handicap and make as good homes as they can.

In order to get the full significance of this, you must know that there are in India 700,000 villages, unbelievable though that figure may seem. These villages are divided into two sections. There is the part inhabited by the caste class, and outside that is the settlement of Untouchables representing about a tenth of the population.

The Untouchables have no economic independence. They have no land and are dependent on the re-

EPPE'S HIGH IS HONORED

Negro School Given Loan Fund To Assist Students

Last night at the closing exercises of the C. M. Eppe's Negro High School there was presented to the high school a loan fund of $1,500 to be used in the future by graduates of the C. M. Eppe's High School for the purpose of attending college. This loan fund, which will continue to grow, was raised largely through the efforts of Mr. Ralph Garrett and was presented to the school by Mr. S. B. Underwood, Jr. for Mr. Garrett and donors. The gift was graciously accepted by Mr. Joseph M. Taft, Vice-Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Greenville City Schools.

The speeches of presentation and acceptance both paid fine tributes to the life of the late C. M. Eppe who was principal of the Negro Schools in Greenville from 1902 until his death in 1943. It was shown in those talks how that Prof. Eppe believed in constructive, cooperative work between the races and how that neither race could progress separately, but that they had to go forward together; that education is essential; that 65 per cent of the Negroes on chain-gangs in North Carolina never completed the fourth grade, and that the Negroes in North Carolina who have taken advantage of their educational opportunities offered by the State rarely ever have any trouble in the courts.

The exercises were presided over by Prof. W. H. Davenport, supervising principal. Music for the exercises was provided by the C. M. Eppe's High School band under the direction of Mr. H. A. McDougale who has been helping the band during the year, and the magnificent glee club under the able direction of Mrs. W. H. Davenport. There were no graduating exercises this year because the school is changing from an 11-year to a 12-year program.

Mayor J. H. Boyd spoke briefly commending the fine work of the school, the faculty and children as well as the parents, and pledged himself to continue to support the education program of the city and do all in his power to see that there was continued growth and expansion of the school program. Supt. J. H. Rose told of the great work of Prof. Eppe and that under the direction of Prof. Davenport and his teachers the same ideals of constructive citizenship and education preached by Prof. Eppe were being carried on in the schools. He also said the C. M. Eppe School would be completed and new equipment provided along with the new athletic field just as soon as materials can be purchased.

School Pays Tribute To Retiring Teacher

An impressive feature of the Greenville High School commencement exercises at the college Thursday night was the presentation by the Board of Trustees of a silver tray to Mrs. Nellie Brogden Herring, who retired at the end of the session under the state teachers' retirement plan after a lifetime of faithful service. The student body rose in a body as a tribute to Mrs. Herring when Supt. June H. Rose presented her the gift.

Women's Club Close Three-Day Meeting

Greensboro, N. C., June 1—(AP)—The North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs concluded its three day annual convention here yesterday, after adopting resolutions on a number of public matters. The federation went on record as opposing universal military training. It favored the North Carolina hospital and medical care program. Officers installed at the final session included: Mrs. Ed M. Anderson, West Jefferson, first vice president; Mrs. T. Frederick Henry, Salisbury, treasurer; Mrs. R. R. Cusick, Raleigh, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Edward M. Land, Statesville, member of the board of trustees. Mrs. Karl Bishopric, Spray, continues in office another year as president.

The department estimated May butter production will be 30 per cent below the same month last year, and 50 per cent under May 1941. One cause advanced for the output drop was the more profitable market now existing for cream. Department officials were hopeful, however, that the higher price ceilings announced Wednesday for the dairy industry will encourage greater butter production. The new ceilings authorize an advance in butter prices of about 11 cents a pound.

ARE YOU A "HANDY-ANDY"?
SOME POLES are regular "Handy-Andys". They fix plumbing and wiring. They diagnose and treat their own ills, and even write their own wills. Some of them get away with it too—but in the vast majority they are just a pain to the ambulance surgeon and to the emergency squads of the gas and electric companies. Experience has proven time and again that it is cheaper and better in the end to have experts tackle the job at hand. That holds true of insurance too—the services of an expert in analyzing your insurance needs may save you thousands of dollars—might even save you from a financial loss which you or your business could not otherwise survive. Chapter 13

The long, well proportioned drawing room, the center and the crown of the beauty of Random Polly, was all of light and warmth and happy, glowing people. Light from two magnificent crystal chandeliers set off the old mahogany, the mellow rugs and the ancient square piano which was always tuned and ready for the touch of this generation's jazz and live. As Whitney greeted his friends, crowding around Paul to welcome him home again, she was aware of the deep inner happiness this old familiar room always brought back to her.

She walked over to a large painting hanging opposite the fireplace. The painted wide-set brown eyes of Caleb Hamilton, founder of the house of Hamilton, were so curiously like her own.

"I'm going to be married in this time some day, Grampy," she whispered softly under her breath. "And bless you for the lovely house you built for all of us. I am happy tonight."

For a long moment her affectionate eyes searched the hard, rugged face above her. It was the face of a dominant, choleric man, very sure of himself and secure in his determination to make life give him what he wanted.

"You knew what you wanted and you got it, didn't you, Grampy?" Ideas were darting in and out of Whitney's mind like swallows at sunset swooping under the eaves of the stables. Serious, happy thoughts all sharply mixed up with flashing new anxieties and unexpected grown-up responsibilities. Suddenly Whitney became aware of a voice speaking low and urgently just behind her. She turned and found the Count smiling down on her.

"It is strange now much you resemble him—this ancestor of yours. Only he does not look as if he ever had a good time and you—you must always be happy."

"Oh, don't worry about Grampy—he didn't miss a thing. He always planned his life the way he wanted it. There's a saying in the family that is credited to him—I've heard it since I was three—"If you know what you want, you've half-way gotten it." He couldn't stand people who fumbled around, didn't know what they wanted and then blamed everyone else for the mess they made of their lives."

"He would have approved of me, then."

Whitney looked up at him, a little startled at his unexpected remark.

"What makes you think that?"

"I know what I want—it's the dream of my heart, and it's you."

For a moment Whitney hesitated, then hastily she continued reminding about Grampy.

"You'd be surprised how stiff-necked my honorable ancestor was. There was laughter in Whitney's voice as she walked slowly with him through the long windows out onto the terrace. The moon was shining on the river and a narrow ribbon of silver edged the foot of the gardens. The clear cool air was very still.

"Baby—you gave me my chance today. I had not dared to hope before. You are coming to live in Washington—near me. I shall see you every day. We will work out everything together—that is all good. You shall see how much I love you."

A tiny chill crept along Whitney's back. It was almost like a curious shiver. If she hadn't been so contented and happy at that moment, Whitney would have felt it was more a vague premonition of trouble than the coolness of the fall night. But that was silly—after all the Count was right. Her decision to go into the Senator's office would give them much more time together than they had ever had. Wasn't that what she wanted? Paul would be out here, in and out of Washington very often—it was right; that both men should be near her. Her plan was working beautifully.

"I shall be very busy," she answered quickly. "But I know I'm going to love it. It's my first real job with pay and I've already decided what I'm going to do with the money I earn."

"That's my little cucumber," the Count chuckled as he took her arm and pressed it closer to his side. "I like a woman who knows her own mind. So few do. You are coming of age, little one—but always you must remember. It is more difficult to land an airplane than to take it off the ground."

Whitney laughed. "Meaning what exactly—Gregory?"

"Only this. So many things you will have to adjust when your time, all day long, is paid for by an employer. But I shall be there to take up the—what do you call it—the 'slack.' When you are tired, I shall cook spaghetti for you. There will be champagne for your low moments and music of my country—lovely opera on my special records while you rest at night. Is it not enchanting?"

"I see no difficulty in taking any of that. Anyway, the takeoff doesn't seem too hard—and the rest of it is on the knees of the gods." She stopped suddenly. From somewhere in the room behind them she heard her name called. The next instant Paul had stepped through the windows and out on the terrace.

"I thought I saw you coming out here," his voice was cold, abrupt. "Polly told me to tell you the game was starting."

Whitney came over to him and linked her arm in his as she kept her other hand resting lightly on Paul's arm.

"We were just coming in, Paul. Why can't we all sit together?"

"Oh, no. I'm not playing," the Count said quickly. They had returned to the drawing room. Paul was looking steadily at the man on the other side of his fiancée.

"You see," the Count explained hastily as Whitney started to protest, "I never play cards."

Paul's face was expressionless as he turned to Whitney.

"Well, the rest of us are so let's get at it. Senator Field is to be the banker. I think he has reserved a seat for you close to where he is going to officiate."

As the three walked to the baccarat table, Paul knew the Count had lied and the Count knew that he knew it.

Chapter 14

The game of baccarat as played at Random Polly was a simple game of chance played for as high stakes as the players wished. It had long been popular with the Hamiltons and their friends as a number of people could play it at one time and the rules were easy enough for any one to master at a sitting. Guests who had never played the game before were usually initiated into its rules the first round of play.

By the time Whitney, Paul and the Count had reached the improvised baccarat table, the players were already in their places. Senator Field sat in the middle of one long line of players at the center of the table. He was the banker. Spuds Wilson was the croupier sat opposite him. About 15 players ranged along each side of the table on either side of the two men.

Polly indicated two vacant spaces on opposite sides of the table and began to explain how any one could play by kneeling and betting behind any of the seated players.

"But, dear lady, think nothing of it," the Count interrupted her almost at once. "I never play cards as you know. I'll just sit behind Whitney and watch you all lose your money."

"Which I'll proceed to do with the greatest of ease," Polly exclaimed, wondering at the quick look which passed between Paul and her husband as the Count followed Whitney around the end of the table to her place beside the Senator. As she slipped into her chair, Polly heard Paul mutter to Spuds, "Did you get that? It was sure a fast one!"

"I got it all right! MacDonald is here tonight. Talk to him when the game is over. He came back on the Clipper with Barberini and he sent him to the cleaners as he did practically every other man on the planet."

Polly saw the grim look on Paul's face. "It's just as well he didn't play tonight. That would have been one for the record and he knows it."

Before Polly had time to wonder what on earth they were talking about, Senator Field began to explain the game as it had been worked out for Random Polly guests. Briefly his description touched the high lights of baccarat, a game long popular in the casinos of Europe.

"Chips representing different sums of money are purchased by the players," he explained. "And the bank is limited to a certain amount. The banker, as you know, can never be called upon by the players to pay more than is represented by the counters or chips actually in the hands of the croupier."

Whitney slipped into the vacant chair beside the Senator who stopped talking long enough to greet her. The Count drew a chair up directly behind her. In the pause, a shifting of places started on the opposite side of the table and when it was over Whitney found herself directly opposite Paul who sat beside Spuds. Polly sat two places below Spuds on his side of the long table.

"All through, Senator?" one of the boys called out from the end of the table. "I want to get started. This is my lucky night."

"Just a minute, son," the Senator returned quickly. "You've played the game so often you forget it's not an old story to some of our friends here this evening. But I'll make it snappy."

"You see," he continued genially, enjoying his role of emcee, "four packs of cards are used. 208 cards are all shuffled up together and placed in front of me, the banker, in a slanting pile. From this pile I draw, from time to time, the cards I use for the game. I deal the cards. The object is to get nine in the cards the player holds. For instance, if a player gets a three and a six he has a nine which is a 'natural.' This dealer declares his cards and if the dealer has not received equally good cards, he loses and the player wins. Players are always playing against the banker."

"Here, here!" Shouts from all parts of the table. "Wonderful explanation, Senator—but let's take the old trial and error method. Start playing and explain as we go along."

Paul loved baccarat. He had played the game in countries in all parts of the world and had taught its simple rules to shipmates who had spent many a tedious hour off duty, with sliced potatoes dyed red with beet, and his chips. "Money" being cigarettes or chocolate bars or whatever the men had handy.

"You know," Paul confided to Spuds as the game started. "I have a system."

"Oh, yeah!" Spud's voice showed only casual interest as he raked in the first chips and paid out others called for by the players. "I guess I have a system too if it comes to that—I know when to stop playing!"

Paul laughed. "I've heard that one before, too. All right, boys! Man your battle stations—here I come!" Whitney liked the game but seldom played it. She soon found, however, that the Count's suggestions were remarkably good. Following his first few ideas of the plays she should make, she was surprised to see a stack of chips beginning to pile up in front of her.

Paul's game was slower, not at all spectacular. He usually left his stake on the table when he won. Then he would take his counters from the croupier and add more from his stakes. In this way his second stake would be three times his first.

Suddenly Paul became aware of the Count on the other side of the table. He thought at first he was mistaken, then in a few minutes he was sure that every move he made was noted and followed by the man sitting behind Whitney's chair. The continued concentration of his bond black eyes finally began to annoy Paul, in spite of his determination to pay no attention to the man.

Paul began to win steadily. So did Whitney. And as the evening progressed, Paul knew it was the Count who was playing Whitney's game and playing directly against him.

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS MAYBE!

It has become the fashion today to say that the detonation of the first atomic bomb blasted an old era and ushered in a new one.

Perhaps—only perhaps. Destiny does not march through human affairs with a brass band out in front. As historians look back over the dramatic pageant of history it appears that the great turning points were never recognized by the people who happened to be living when the turn came.

Two thousand years ago men were very much excited by the new era which was supposed to have started with the reign of Augustus, but that the whole of human history took a new turn one night during the reign of Augustus when a baby was born to a peasant mother in a cow stable in Bethlehem. Few people paid any attention to St. Paul and his several associates the day they entered the Greek city of Philippi, but that was the beginning of the Christianization of Europe, and whether they like things Christian or abhor them, the Christianization of Europe was constituted an important factor in history.

Maybe the atomic bomb has ushered in a new age. It may very well be, however, that the birth in recent years of some child of thoroughly undistinguished lineage may be discovered later to have been the starting point of an era.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

(Second of Two Articles) Washington—This is a handbook on how to get rid of a congressman who has turned out to be a mistake, how to disinfect political conventions, and how to throw your weight around in politics generally.

This is the sum and substance of Lowell Mellett's book. If you have a representative, senator, governor or state or local official whom you consider bad, don't waste your vote on the best man. Vote for the man (or woman) who is most likely to beat him, Mellett says, explaining: "It is always worthwhile to defeat a bad man running for reelection, even if his successor is just as bad. . . . While the new man also might be a wrong one, he is your wrong one. If he is only wrong in his ideas, you may be able to influence him some, and so a little progress is made."

A chapter on "How To Be A Politician" opens the book. Here is the way "little you" can sway votes. Insist on registration of friends or acquaintances who never have voted before and you become a political power—a small one, perhaps, but a power your elective officers won't ever forget.

"Nothing is more important," says Mellett, "than this business of registering. The first practical fact of politics is that a big vote is a good vote. The reactionaries seldom desire a big vote. They are afraid of the voters, and whenever they think they can get away with it they make voting as inconvenient as they can."

As Lincoln Might Have Faced The Atomic Age

NOW WE ARE ENGAGED IN... TESTING WHETHER THIS NATION, OR ANY NATION... CAN LONG ENDURE.

IT IS FOR US THE LIVING... TO BE DEDICATED HERE TO THE GREAT TASK REMAINING BEFORE US — THAT... PEOPLE SHALL NOT PERISH FROM THE EARTH!

(WORDS FROM LINCOLN'S GETTYSBURG ADDRESS)

figures, which I'll bet you don't know. I didn't. After that are reams on how your congressman and mine has voted. If you don't think that's important, check it over.

The Nation . . .

(Continued from Page One) that time, would this be illegal? Union truck drivers, not connected with the strike, refuse to deliver their goods to the strike-bound ships because it would mean driving through the picket line.

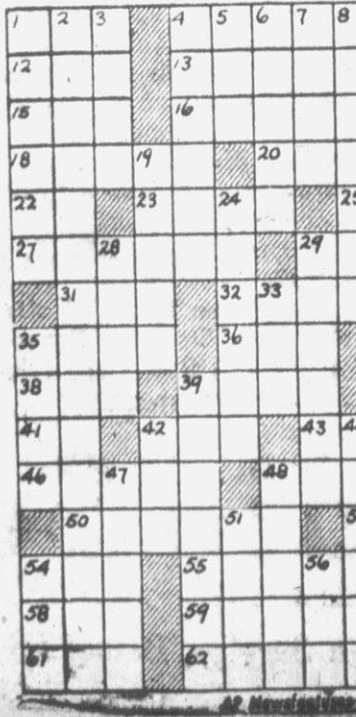

This much seems clear in the bill: Sympathetic strikes would be considered a secondary boycott and therefore, under terms of the bill would be forbidden.

The World Today . . .

(Continued From Page One) gular village for life. Because they are untouchable they can eke out an existence only by performing the lowest tasks. Under the code they are compelled to wear dirty clothing. They can't get water from the village well but must find it elsewhere. And so the horrid story of oppression runs.

obtained his doctorate. I had a long talk with Dr. Ambedkar in his fine home in Delhi in 1943, and he told me his solution for the Untouchable problem. It was this:

"All these scattered settlements of Untouchables should be removed and regrouped into villages of their own. There is a lot of free land in India which can be cultivated. The government should provide the money and in twenty years the change could be made. We want to escape from perpetual slavery to the Hindus.

Colonel H. J. (Doggie) Hatcher of Raleigh, commanding officer of the North Carolina Highway patrol, will be the speaker at the Kiwanis Club's supper meeting next Friday evening at 6:30.

POLICY RATES ARE REDUCED

Insurance Reduction Rates To Save Over Half Million Annually

Raleigh, N. C., June 1—(AP)—Reductions in insurance rates, effective today, are expected to save North Carolina policy holders more than $500,000 annually, according to State Insurance Commissioner William P. Hodges.

Reduction of 10 per cent of the final or authorized fire insurance rates is effective on 69 classes of risks under protection of the National Bureau of Fire Underwriters. Buildings of fire-resistive construction and those equipped with automatic sprinkler systems are excluded.

Classes of risks affected by the rate reduction include bank and office buildings, boarding houses, bottling works, churches, hospitals, hotels, creameries, mercantile establishments, tobacco manufacturing and rehandling plants, storage warehouses and sheds.

College Commencement Program Closes Today

DR. H. J. MCGINNIS HON. M. M. NEELY

A three-day commencement program at East Carolina Teachers College was concluded this morning in the Wright Auditorium with the conferring of degrees upon 125 graduates of December, 1945, and March and June, 1946.

The Hon. M. M. Neely, member of Congress and former governor of West Virginia, was principal speaker of the occasion. Using as his topic "Wars to Wage and Worlds to Conquer," he addressed the graduates and urged them to use their training and talents in furthering good causes in a troubled world.

Dr. Howard J. McGinnis, acting president of the college, introduced Mr. Neely. In a brief talk, Dr. McGinnis pointed out that the college is entering a new era. "The time," he said, "is one of challenge and is ripe for progress."

At the exercises several students of the college were announced as recipients of awards. James Gianakos of Hendersonville received the Christenbury Memorial Award, which is granted annually to an outstanding athlete at the college.

By virtue of power vested in us by that judgment entered in the above entitled action at the May term, 1946, we shall offer for sale, at public auction, at the Court House door, in Greenville, to the highest bidder for cash, on Monday, June 24, 1946, at 12 o'clock, noon, the following:

First: All of the timber of every description, standing, growing and being, and which shall measure 10 inches in diameter and over, 18 inches above the ground on the day of sale or at the time of cutting, upon the following tracts of real estate, lying being and situate in Pactolus Township in the County of Pitt and State of North Carolina, to-wit:

THIMBLE THEATER - Starring Popeye

BLONDIE - By Chic Young Caught Short

Second Parcel: Beginning at the corner of the lands of J. G. Mason, Dec. 11, the run of Grindie Creek near a cypress stump at the forked log hole, and running thence with said Mason line to a pine in the Fox Pocosin, corner of Willoughby-Whitchard land; thence with the line of said land to H. E. Daniel's corner in said pocosin; thence with her line to the run of Grindie Creek; thence up the run of the creek to the beginning, containing 150 acres more or less, and being the same land described in deed from James Whitchard to A. J. Whitchard, recorded in Book A-6 at page 204 of Pitt County Registry, to which deed reference is had.

Third Parcel: Beginning at a stake opposite the road leading to W. A. Ross and running 70 yards an easterly course to a pine; thence running 2 south course 70 yards to a stake; thence a west course parallel with the first line to the road 70 yards to a pine; thence with the Williamson road to the beginning, containing 1 acre, more or less, leaving the parcel of land conveyed by E. C. Yellowly and John G. Mason and wife to School Committee District No. 36, white race, as appears of record in Book T-3 at page 477, Pitt County Registry, and same as conveyed to A. J. Whitchard by Pitt County Board of Education by deed recorded in Book O-17 at page 343.

Beginning at a point where the eastern line of the James Evans lands joins the western line of the A. J. Whitchard lands at the old Willoughby road on the north side of the highway leading to Stokes; thence a northerly direction with the dividing line between the A. J. Whitchard lands and the James Evans lands a distance of 350 yards; thence an easterly direction parallel with the road leading to Stokes a distance of 70 yards; thence a southerly direction parallel with the first line a distance of 350 yards to the main highway leading from the A. J. Whitchard home to Stokes; thence a westerly direction along the north side of said highway leading to Stokes 70 yards to the beginning, and being a part of the A. J. Whitchard lands.

The purchaser of said timber shall have 3 years from the date of the deed in which to cut and remove the same and shall have the full right of ingress and egress over the A. J. Whitchard lands for the purpose of cutting and removing said timber, but shall not have the right or authority to cross any of the title lands during the season for planting, growing and harvesting thereon.

Grain Market

Chicago, June 3—(AP)—Five-cent advances, the limit permitted in a single session, were scored by all contracts of wheat, corn, rye, and barley on the board of trade today. The gains represented bids only as there were no offerings on the upturn.

At the close new contract oats were 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 cents lower, August 83 1/2, while old contracts were 1/4 lower to 3/4 cents higher, July 86 1/2. Old contract wheat closed at $1.88 1/2, up five cents; old corn $1.26 1/2, up five; old rye, $1.53 1/2, up five, and old barley $1.31 1/2, up five. New contracts on wheat, corn, rye and barley were unchanged.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, June 3—(AP)—Steels and motors led a general decline in today's stock market although offerings were relatively light and assorted favorites able to contest the shift with fair success.

While the big railway and soft coal strikes were out of the way as a market handicap, widespread labor difficulties persisted as selling inspiration.

Transfers were in the neighborhood of 1,300,000 shares.

Socialists, 115. Republican Liberals, 59, compared with 61. Republican Rally (Radical-Socialist), 43, compared with 60. The complete popular vote for Continental France and Corsica had not been announced by the ministry early today. Early returns had shown the CRP leading, and the lead then see-sawed between the MRP and the Communists, with the MRP slightly ahead on the basis of the last tabulation made public. Even before the final tabulation, rumors were heard at the ministry that the MRP might invite Gen. Charles De Gaulle to return as head of the new provisional government. These reports were all without any confirmation, however.

Many observers said they expected MRP to offer its youthful leader, Foreign Minister Georges Bidault, as the new provisional president.

Since no party emerged with a clear-cut majority, France will be governed again by a coalition—and some sources believe the coalition will be more difficult than ever to form. The present coalition is composed of the Communists, Socialists and MRP.

Political observers said that the factors which had an influence on the campaign in France were:

1. The fact that the recent foreign ministers' conference here had ended in sharp disagreement between Russia and the West.
 2. The U. S. loan to France.
 3. An open break between the Communist and Socialist parties in the last month.
 4. A radio address by Pope Pius XII Saturday in which the pontiff said that the election, like the one held in Italy yesterday, offered a choice between the "Christian way of life" and the materialistic state.
- Among successful candidates to the new assembly were Maurice Thorez, secretary-general of the French Communist Party; Edouard Daladier, pre-war premier; former Premier Edouard Herriot, a Radical-Socialist leader; Pierre Mendès-France, financial expert; former Premier Paul Reynaud, and Michel Clemenceau, son of the World War leader.

House Holds ...

(Continued from Page One) tunity to read it, Ross reported. William K. Jackson, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, called at the White House meanwhile to urge the President to sign the bill. Barkley told reporters that he and other congressional leaders who visited the White House did not discuss with Mr. Truman the Senate's action in knocking out of the President's emergency labor legislation a provision for drafting strikers in government-seized facilities. That bill bounced back to the House—straight into a rump hearing called to air organized labor's opposition to it. Sixteen members critical of the measure—both limits original strike-draft form and as modified by the Senate—invited four top union chiefs to the unusual 4 p. m. (EST) session.

They also called upon all their colleagues to attend the gathering which Rep. De Lacy, D-Wash, said was destined to "stem all this hysteria."

The House passed the measure, 306 to 13, a week ago Saturday less than two hours after it was requested by Mr. Truman. The legislators shoved it through under virtually unprecedented procedure which bypassed committee consideration. The Senate passed the bill early last Saturday morning. It was cleared through the Interstate Committee in that chamber, but no hearings were held.

Invited to testify today are President William Green of the American Federation of Labor; L. P. Conroy, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations; Secretary-Treasurer A. E. Llyon of the Railway Labor Executives' Association, and President Harvey Brown of the International Association of Machinists.

As passed by the House, the bill would give the President broad powers to seize essential plants if work stoppages occur and to draft individuals necessary to run them. The Senate deleted the draft authority, but left in the power to take over industries.

Both bills require union and management leaders to take "affirmative" action to halt work stoppages in plants seized by the government.

Mr. Truman told Sen. Radcliffe (D-MD) Saturday that the Senate emasculated his bill. Key House members who have controlled previous labor legislation declared, however, that they doubted whether Congress would agree to anything stronger than the Senate version, unless new strikes develop.

Those sponsoring today's informal hearing include De Lacy Rep. Marcantonio (AL-NY) and 14 Democrats: Reps. Bailey, Neely and Kee of West Virginia; Celler, Powell and Klein of New York; Healy and Patterson of California; Kelley, Green and Moran of Pennsylvania; Biemiller of Wisconsin; Coffee and Savage of Washington.

Trader Seeks ...

tween $5,500,000 and $7,000,000 were involved in the advance in ceilings. Buckley summoned Federal Judge William H. Holly from his home to the U. S. Courthouse this morning two hours before the usual court opening hour of 10 a. m. (EST). The Board of Trade normally opens at 9:30 a. m.

The trader asked that the board be halted from trading temporarily because under the new regulations he would lose heavily while an injunction suit was in the normal process of passing through legal channels.

Judge Holly issued the temporary restraining order from his chambers and the case was assigned to Judge Shaw for hearing at 10 a. m. The order stilled the big bell in the LaSalle street pit room at the opening hour. When Judge Shaw's ruling was made known, the board set 11:30 a. m. for today's opening of trading.

Maritime ...

(Continued from Page One) the WFTU would—or could—influence the dock workers of Europe, for example, to refuse to load and unload American ships.

Bridges and Curran are co-chairman of the "Committee for Maritime Unity." This organization was formed three weeks ago by six CIO unions and one independent union. Four of the CIO unions and the independent group have voted a joint strike.

The most important unions in the group are Bridges' Longshoremen—strong on the west coast—and Curran's National Maritime Union, which includes seamen of Atlantic, Gulf, and Great Lakes ports.

Up to now, all the negotiations at the Labor Department have in-olved the National Maritime Union's demands on the Atlantic and Gulf ship operators. The union has demanded a 40-hour week for seamen—with overtime beyond 40 hours—and basic wage increases ranging from 22 cents an hour to 35¢. The seamen now work from 56 to 63 hours at sea and 44 hours in port.

"MAKE IT A MILLION!"

Since last September over three-quarters of a million men have joined the Regular Army as volunteers. Many of them are veterans of World War II, who know and like Army life. Others are younger men—alert and ambitious—who have recognized their responsibility to serve their country and to relieve from duty men who took up arms against our enemies.

Never before in American history has the Army had so much to offer in good pay, travel, education and adventure. And never before in peacetime has your country needed such a strong and modern Regular Army for world-wide protection of peace and security.

If you are qualified, mentally and physically, for Regular Army enlistment, you have everything to gain and nothing to lose by finding out all the advantages the Army has to offer you. Stop at your nearest U. S. Army Recruiting Station today!

an error by Carlson, gave Kinston two runs in the first. They added their other four runs in the fourth inning, on a triple, two walks, and three errors.

Greenville's only run came in the ninth, when Smith's double, coupled with a single by Payne, produced their single score for the evening.

Kinston plays Greenville again today in the Guy Smith Stadium at 7:45 p. m.

The St. Louis Cardinals, pre-season favorites on the National League, may wind up among the also-rans because of their inability to win at home.

Including yesterday's double loss to the New York Giants, which dropped them three and a half games behind pace-setting Brooklyn, the Redbirds have won only six of 15 games at Sportsman's Park—a percentage of 400, and fully 190 points below their over-all pace.

Never has a pennant winner lost a majority of its home games. The three-time Cardinal champions of 1942-44, for instance, won 172 home games against 80 defeats for a .41 percentage. In '44 they grabbed 60 of 77 home engagements for a phenomenal .779 average.

Failure of the Cards to win at home has the baseball sages puzzled, since the Redbirds have been little short of sensational on the road, where they've triumphed in 17 of 24 contests. In eastern parks, they've dropped only two games in nine and have whipped the league-leading Dodgers twice in two encounters.

In sharp contrast to the Cards, the Brooks have won 15 and lost only five at home.

A pair of former mates—Bobby Blattner and Welker Cooper—bent the Cardinals yesterday. Blattner scored the only run as the Giants won the opener 1-0, then homered in the 11th inning of the nightcap, to give the New Yorkers a 7-6 decision.

One run was all big Bill Voiselle needed as he became the first hurler to blank the Cards this year.

Getting superlative pitching from its so-called secondary hurlers—Les Webber, Art Herring and Hugh Casey—Brooklyn gained two full games on the Cards by defeating the Cincinnati Reds 2-1 and 1-0.

Webber, although he needed help from southpaw Vic Lombardi, out-hurled Ed Heusser in the 11-inning opener. A leadoff triple by Galan and a single by Ed Stevens accounted for the winning run.

In the only American League game—the others were rained out—the Detroit Tigers walloped Washington's Senators 10-2 as Hal Newhouser fanned 13. The brilliant Bengal southpaw doled out eight hits in becoming the first major league pitcher to win nine games.

The Chicago Cubs split with Boston's Braves to move into a third-place tie with the Reds. The Braves win, Mori Cooper notching his fifth win, won the opener 6-3 and the Cubs captured the nightcap 8-2 behind Claude Passeau, who registered his fourth victory.

Pittsburgh had to be satisfied with a split in its twin bill with the Philadelphia Phillies. The Pirates copped the opener 5-1 as Rip Sewell, returning to action for the first time since his collapse on May 5, held the Phils to four safeties.
