Birley of Simpson, at 4 p. m., August 24, 1946, in the Immanuel Baptist Church in Greenville. The Rev. A. Hartwell Campbell officiated using the double ring ceremony. A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Ray Tyson, organist.

Moore-Gardner Reunion

The annual reunion of the Moore-Gardner family was held on August 25 at Timothy Church in Pitt county.

Arthur B. Corey of Greenville, president of the reunion, called the meeting to order. Owing to bad weather our group was smaller than usual this year. But the ready wit and humor of our capable president made the occasion bright and well worth our time to attend. The program opened with group singing of old familiar hymns followed by a brief devotional. During the business session Mr. Harry Smith of Vanceboro was elected president for the coming year; Mrs. E. E. Moore of Ayden was elected vice president; and Mrs. Charles Davis of Eureka was re-elected secretary and treasurer.

Mr. Corey introduced the speaker as a native Pitt county boy, one who has attained signal honors in everything he has ever attempted, one who has made friends wherever he has been and who is liked by all who know him. After having been a successful lawyer in Greenville and various other achievements, he is now secretary to Senator Hoey, our own Jack Spain.

Mr. Spain held his audience spell bound as he spoke to us about "The Family, Yesterday, Today, and Tomorrow." He said we should give credit to the family of yesterday for the home, the church, and the school. It is to this family that we owe our freedom of worship and freedom of speech.

But the family of today is called upon to protect and support the freedom from fear and freedom from want. Our country was built on the system where-by every man can carry on individually. Our people grow restive under control and restrictions. We wish to be free.

The future is bright for the family of tomorrow. But we must guard against inflation and deflation. Government expenses must be reduced. This is a time for profound thinking. We should strive to show the world how to maintain the superiority of man. Each family must decide whether it desires wealth, happiness or education. Each member in the family should make use of his talents whether it be one talent or ten talents for this is the foundation of the American home life. We should strive to protect the American homes and help bring about a lasting peace. Our best contribution, according to Mr. Spain, is to keep faith in the American home.

After the benediction the family and friends of the reunion met around a table spread under the pines on the church grounds and enjoyed a bountiful picnic dinner.

He also stated that employers—subject to the law—can save themselves time and trouble by making certain that the name, account number, and wage earnings of each employee are shown on this quarterly tax report.
Mr. Barney explained that old-age and survivors insurance bene-

PITT SCHOOLS OPEN AUG. 28

School Attendance Law Now in Effect; Need Teachers

By CHESTER WALSH
Pitt County schools will open next Wednesday, August 28. Practically all teaching positions have been filled, and at the last minute it was necessary to employ many teachers with sub-standard certificate ratings. Places remaining to be filled are English-history eighth grade and public school music at Chapel and English-French and sixth grade at Arbuth.
The principals' conference was held last Saturday to formulate administrative policies for the various school curricula, lunch room operation, transportation, textbook distribution, reports, etc.
Transportation equipment will be short this year on account of strikes at High Point where most of the state school bus bodies are built. Up to date, no new replacement units have been received for Pitt County schools. It has become necessary to put back into operation a number of 1935-36 model units. These will run until replacements are available.
The new compulsory school attendance law, in effect this year for the first time, requires all children between the ages of seven and 16 to attend school and to be in regular attendance unless excused by the principal. All parents who have children between the ages of seven and 16 are charged with the responsibility of enrolling these children in school, and it is the parents' duty to see that their children attend school regularly. This law is made in the interest of the school child, and it is hoped that all school patrons in Pitt County will cooperate to the fullest possible extent. Supt. Don H. Conley said today.

Chapter 27

You didn't have to bore through the husk to see that Wang was a fervent disciple of himself. "I'm doing this for you, Jigger," Wang beamed, and for the patient, who is certainly in a sorry state. But once this is over, win or lose, I want him out of here and I want you to forget my phone number."

There was strength and temper in Wang despite the unhealthy exterior. The spirit was steel, too shrewd for the scabbard Jigger's hold over him was now without real document, a fact obscured in the cobwebs of sixteen years, nebulous hearsay. In a climactic showdown Wang could be the victor—if he only could be sure. But like A'hearn and Little Joy, the conservatism of habit, the fear of the tiniest fracture in the finely honed topoi of his circumstance, made him superstitious about risk.

"Sure, I'll forget your phone number," Jigger said in a polite manner.

Wang stared through him as if peering through some invisible window opening. Then he said, "I'm assuming you mean it." Wang froze into the sacred pose of a professional will work. Leeds now appears to be all right. "I think the scientific hypnosis an excellent subject. There was an evident desire to respond in three separate chairs we had. His memory faculty is noted. If I had a month or so, psychoanalysis would work wonders with him. However, I have reason to believe his memory will respond under hypnosis."

Jigger said, "Well, you're the doctor."

"There's a window looking into the laboratory from which you can see and not be seen. It's only a ten-foot partition and you can easily hear as well. Just don't make a sound."

Wang turned and ploshed on heavy carpets, past waxed mahogany of Eberhard period, down a long foyer and up one flight of stairs with Jigger bringing up the rear.

Leeds lay on the couch under hypnosis. Wang was a patient mosaic worker reassembling the dispersed man. The room was darkened and a round white light remained fixed on a slanting line with Leeds's vision. Leeds stared at it with eyes dazzled by a vision divine, while Wang leaned toward him with his own eyes popping phosphorescently.

Jigger looked through the glass and strained his ears to catch whatever salient truths might tumble from the dark chamber of Leeds's brain.

It was plain that Wang's diagnosis of Leeds had a touch of genius. Leeds was eliminating the lurid as fast as hypnosis permitted, remembering in a chanting voice, his face

Chapter 28

Jigger caught the express elevator in the 1501 Broadway building and burst through the door of the Independent Feature News Service.

There was Red up to his ears in a litter of footsaps, unshaven, tees, running neck and neck down the homestretch with his Muse.

Jigger beat his breast: "Red—you rat! Why aren't you serenading the widow Herz?"

Red dipped into his inside pocket and threw a letter at Jigger without a word.

Jigger read: Red: I've got an angel dying to write off some of his dress-goods profits on a losing Broadway play. Rush any play. Stapstick preferred. Jonathan Temperent Doole.

Jigger looked up with a scornful look that precluded the cutting words Judas Iscariot. Red regretted: "Sorry Jigger. It's the chance of a lifetime for me. Broadway's burning up. There's a pile of jack lying around idle and the petit-bourgeoisie's going around nuts asking astrologers for investment counsel. This dress-goods angel sounds like one and I'm his baby."

Jigger asked what about the case, why not finish one drama before you start another, Ibsen?

"It's not a drama, Jigger. I'm doing a comedy that brings the Mack Sennett pie slingers out of limbo and right back into the present."

Jigger spread his hand over Red's literary pile. He spoke, trying to work himself into a temper about it: "Red, you can't leg it after your Muse now. The whole situation revolves around the widow. I've got to corral as much of her correspondence as possible."

Red dipped into the same inside pocket and dropped three letters in front of Jigger. "Here. I compounded a felony and picked up your mail—or rather, the widow's mail—at your three-dollar-a-month mail service. If these three letters are not what you want, nothing will ever be—even if I pitch a tepee on East Eighty-fourth Street until the end of my days." Red tossed the bombshell lightly: "I haven't seen hide or hair of the widow since day before yesterday. She powdered, to coin an expression. Or in Oxonian—if you prefer it, boss—the widow skiddooed."

Jigger looked puzzled, then said a letter-knife under the flaps. Two of the letters were post-marked from a suburban New York town in Orange County. Jigger read them avidly. The contents were piffingly worded notes: gushing neighborliness, and were signed "Your Friend Emma." The third letter was a florist's grand opening announcement.

Jigger talked, wrinkling up his face: "Funny that an 'Emma' should write from Orange County twice in less than four days—and letters that have to do with such trivial stuff as a square-dance, canning beets and jellies, and the weather in general."

Red said it sure is suspicious and the trivial stuff probably means fifty other things if you could only decode it my friend, without looking up from his copy-reading.

Jigger held the letters alternately up to the light. The writing occupied one side, the backs were blank. His face wrinkled some more:

"Behind this whole shebang, Red, was a working arrangement to seek out America's trouble center. You know—labor struggles, minority dissensions, race eruptions, ration grousing, and stuff like that. The idea was to intensify the trouble through grapevine rumor, provocation, pamphleteering. You can see the results in jamborees like the Detroit riot, the high jinx in Harlem, a thousand and one incidents that stymie production from coast to coast." Red whistled, his face mock aghast. Jigger said seriously, "This line of psychological attack, Red, doesn't end with a military armistice. It goes on and on as a post-War ace in the hole no matter how bad the military defeat. That, my boy, is the essence of this cause you've turned traitor to."

Red said you're sure a snail-feller, to have figured all that out, especially since it was as plain as daylight from the day we pecked in-count of I'm a sinus sufferer with a New York nose and my doctor has waved the net there as the only remedy he knows. Now, will you go solve your case and write me a letter outlining the denouement?"

Jigger swooped down on the magnanimous opus, pushed the desk, typewriter, and all right into Red's breadbasket. Red fell over, the chair pattering under him. Jigger stormed out of the office, showered the girl with the manuscript pages, and rushed off to see A'hearn.

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

REACHING UP FOR SUNSHINE

A scene of surpassing beauty stretches before us as we walk through the Canadian woods. In a great open space, surrounded by trees of majestic stature, field junipers are growing in abundance. There are two clumps close together, and one of these is several feet higher than the other. This tall juniper is in the shade most of the day. It has not spread out lazily in the sun as has the other juniper. Because of its shaded position, it is constantly reaching up seeking more sunshine. It does not have the spread of the juniper which lies in the sun, but it has height.

We are all conscious of the way people turn to a higher power when they become involved in sorrow and trouble. They begin reaching up for help, just as the shaded juniper does. Sometimes for years people's lives are lived in the sunshine of happiness, and when this is so they have a breadth of life and interest which resembles the juniper that spreads out over a large area. But lives that are troubled and harassed push up into the ethereal domain seeking what only a higher and divine power can give them. Their lives may not have the spread and beauty of those who live in continual sunshine, but their lives do have height and spiritual aspiration.

God does not send trouble on his children, but He permits shadow to fall across them that they may be led to look up and reach up for their help.

WASHINGTON LETTER

MAN WITH LOCKED BAG

By JANE EADS
Washington—The man who always carries the locked briefcase with him to dine, dance and to bed, and does not even know the briefcase's contents, is probably a diplomatic courier.

His job of taking Uncle Sam's secret mail between the State Department and our embassies and legations abroad is a most hazardous one.

Although he doesn't go so far as to lock the pouch to his wrist as did the briefcase-toting expert of the Manhattan atomic bomb project, he still has to make sure he doesn't leave it behind in a taxi, hotel room, or hangar. He must at least keep a mental lock on the case—guard it with his life.

Diplomatic couriers travel as many as 200,000 miles a year, mostly by air. One courier rode scores of miles on a burro, and another bumped along on the back of a camel to carry the mail through.

A few old-timers have traveled 500,000 miles by air and delivered mail to many cities in 30 countries on four continents and innumerable islands.

Most of the State Department mail is in code. Code systems must undergo constant change. Consequently, the instructions and material to operate the code must be conveyed by "safe hand," as courier-carrying is called, to every U. S. installation abroad where the code will be used.

In addition to the code material, maps, charts and the signed originals of important documents must be carried by courier.

The chief reason for having a courier system, the State Department says, is to insure that when material is sent from A to B it will reach point B unchanged.

Also, in many countries the courier service is the only way in which official mail can be got in or out without costly delay, caused sometimes by poor mail service, by bureaucracy carried to extremes, or by more sinister practices.

The reason the courier has no knowledge of the contents of his sealed diplomatic pouch, even though he has the most rigid security check and is of impeccable character, is that the old rule still holds that, in handling top secret stuff, "the fewer who know what it is, the fewer chances there will be of leaks."

Even At High Speeds—

Only the most important communications are carried by safe-hand. The majority—85 to 90 per cent of the U. S. official mail—goes by other routes—the International Mail Service, Army or Navy.

Couriers are not armed, since it would be a mug's game for an agent of another country to waylay a diplomatic courier. In that case the mail of the waylayer's country would cease to get diplomatic immunity, and the entire chain would be broken.

In certain parts of Europe, Africa and Asia during the war, it was deemed necessary that couriers travel in pairs. In traveling through bandit territory, particularly in the East, couriers are permitted to carry firearms. Despite the numerous perils involved, few serious mishaps have occurred, and, says one official, most couriers eventually resign their jobs because they find them boring.

Historical Moment . . .

up to date—of the powerful Moslem League, representing about 80,000,000 Moslems in British India alone, to participate in the provisional government. The Moslems—headed by Mahomed Ali Jinnah—have refused to join any government unless they have equal representation in the cabinet with the Hindus who outnumber them some three to one in population. This the Hindus have refused to concede.

The differences between the Moslem League and the All-India Congress, which is made up largely of Hindus, had been holding up the formation of a government for many weeks. Finally, the viceroy, Field Marshal Lord Wavell, took the bull by the horns last Saturday and appointed as representative a government, as possible under a Hindu head—the famous Nehru.

However, Wavell immediately appealed again to the Moslems to join and said the government could be "re-formed tomorrow" if they would come in. He promised the Moslems they could have live cao-net positions as against six to be held by the Hindus, with three other places assigned to representatives of the minorities.

Observers, while recognizing the grave difficulties of the situation, see a possibility that Jinnah will agree to Moslem participation in the interests of peace. The awful Moslem-Hindu riots in Calcutta recently, resulting in more than 2,000 deaths, have shocked and sobered India, although sanger of further disorder isn't past.

National Parks.
The Interior Department reports that travel in the national parks is surpassing 1941, the previous record year for visitors.

The department says that through July 31, 1946, more than 14,471,000 people visited the national parks. In the same period of 1941 only 12,500,000 went there.

Auto Travel.
This is what the American Automobile Association figures:
Of the 25,000,000 cars able to roll 20,000,000 will be taken on some kind of vacation trip, each car carrying an average of three people or a total of 60,000,000 people will spend an average of $100, or a total of $6,000,000,000 on vacations.

In the six months ended June 30 1946, the number of American cars going into Mexico was 21,084, the highest for any similar period in history.

The previous peak was 1941 when 15,168 crossed into Mexico in the first six months.

In the six months ended June 30 1946, about 457,500 cars crossed the border into Canada for a stay of more than 24 hours, an increase of 124 per cent over the same period in 1945, a war year.

Comparative figures for a peacetime year were not available here.

MANY CASES WERE TRIED

Judge Nimmoock Making Good Progress In Superior Court

By CHESTER WALSH

The better portion of today was taken up in Superior Court with the taking of testimony in the case of A. J. Grey of Norfolk, Va., who is charged with undue familiarity at the armory last September with the eight-year-old daughter of Mrs. Sude Davis, who lives in the Edwards building, next to the courthouse. The trial was started yesterday afternoon.

At yesterday's session Judge Q. T. Nimmoock of Fayetteville sentenced John (Skin John) Jones, colored, to serve from four to five years in State Prison after he pleaded guilty to robbing the safe at J. E. Kittrell's office of a sum of money.

Alton Brown, who pleaded guilty of driving a car while drunk, was given 60 days in jail, judgment suspended on payment of $50 and costs. His license is to be revoked for a year.

Roosevelt Clark, colored, convicted of larceny in two cases, was given five years in State Prison.

Odel Pippin and Lee Anderson, both colored, pleaded guilty of larceny. Judge Nimmoock will pronounce sentence later.

Nathaniel Davis, blind colored storekeeper, was convicted of assaulting with a pistol his stepdaughter, with intent to kill. He will be sentenced later. It was testified that the shooting occurred at a party at a rural home when Davis' second wife's daughter rebuffed his attentions.

The case against Eugene Harris, charging worthless check, upon appeal, was remanded to County Court.

Linwood Williams, convicted of larceny, was given from 18 to 24 months on the roads.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Aug. 27—(AP)—The stock market today suffered one of its sharpest slumps of the year with leading industrials and rails dropping 1 to more than 8 points, a number of 1946 lows.

Yesterday's late selling was extended moderately at the opening in fairly active dealings. Volume then tapered. A flood of offerings hit the list after midday and, for a quarter of an hour, the ticker tape was as much as three minutes behind floor transactions. The pace again slowed and, near the close, extreme losses were among the largest of the past four months.

Rotary Welcomes 7 New Members

By WALTER BROWN

Induction of seven new members into the Greenville Rotary Club by Johnnie Overton in an inspiring address took place last night at the weekly dinner meeting. Overton articulated the ideas which carry into personal idiom which made the four objects of Rotary come to life in an inspiring way.

The new members were: Branch Armistead, Troy Dodson, Joe Hatcher, Wesley Harvey, Sherman Parks, Leon Roebuck and Sam Winchester. John Winstead of the Information Committee had charge of the program and presented Rotary certificates and emblems to the new members.

man, Wesley Harvey, Sherman Parks, Leon Roebuck and Sam Winchester. John Winstead of the Information Committee had charge of the program and presented Rotary certificates and emblems to the new members.

Overton presented Rotary as an opportunity for service since the ideal of Rotary and the program of Rotary is service, he explained. Each person who becomes a Rotarian adopts the ideal. The application of this ideal while living in one's own community was represented as the only way to be a Rotarian.

Visiting Rotarians last night were Dr. John H. Newborn of Farmville, J. A. Best of Goldsboro, Wilbur Orman of Ayden, and D. T. House of Bethel. Guests were L. E. Bell, Herbert Waldrop, Jr., and Dr. Dennis H. Cooke, president of East Carolina Teachers College.

Prior to the meeting J. B. Kittrell, chairman of the Rotary Committee, to cooperate with the committees of other civic clubs to work out a suitable program together with ways and means for a celebration for the veterans of World War II reported that such plans had been drawn up for November 11 set as the tentative date. The Rotarians unanimously endorsed the proposed program.

The celebration would consist of a parade for all the returned veterans, a speaker of national repute, preferably a military notable; a nationally known entertainer, preferably one who had done overseas entertainment for the soldiers during the war, with the college auditorium for the meeting place for hearing the speaker and entertainer. All of this to be financed by voluntary contributions plus county and city government donations.

J. Herbert Waldrop presided last night in the absence of the president and vice-president.

By JACK HAND

Murry Dickson, once an obscure bullpen worker but now one of the top pitchers in the league, is the most important single reason why the St. Louis Cardinals have wrested the National League lead from the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Overlooked in early season when manager Eddie Dyer still had Max Lanier and rookie Fred Martin to take their regular turns, Dickson turned back the troublesome Dodgers, including last night's 2-1 victory that restored the Red Birds to first place by a full game, in piling up an impressive 12-4 win record.

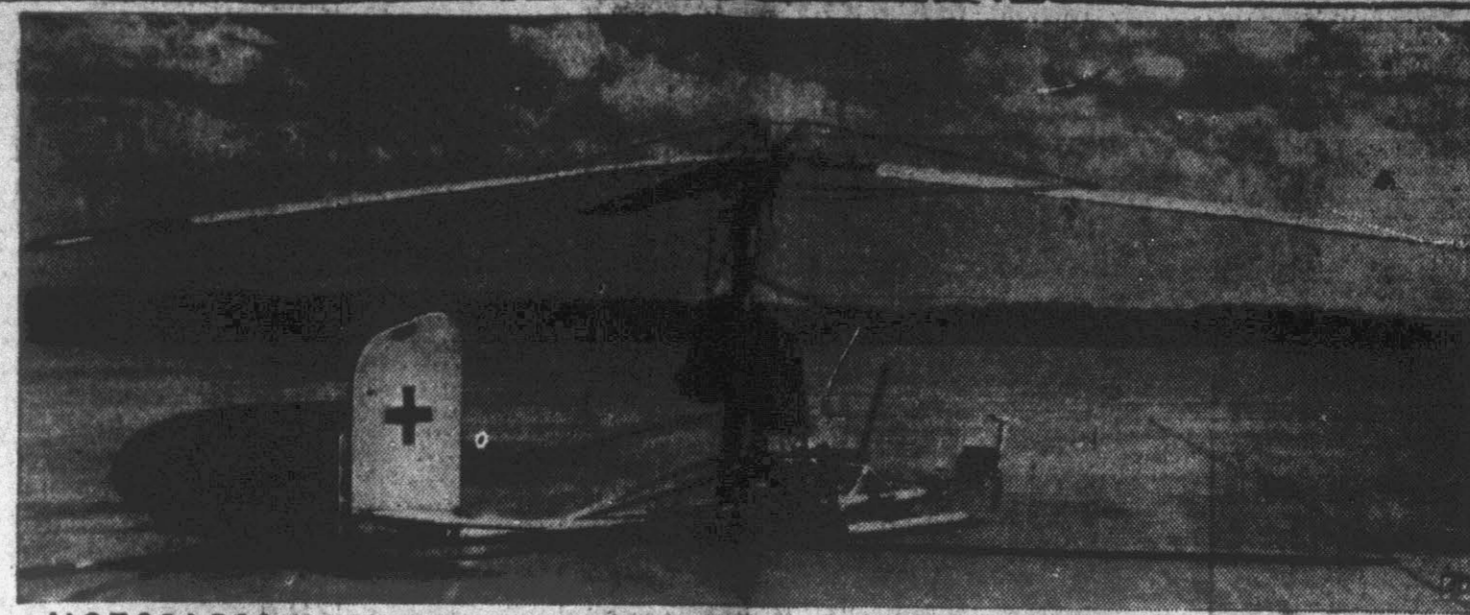

Dickson's success last night put heavy pressure on the Brooklyn club which has to win today's series finale or move on to Chicago trailing by two games. Each team has 38 games to play and the Dodgers will be playing 20 of them at Ebbets Field as compared to only 15 home dates for the Cardinals. Chicago's Cubs, a distant third but still an outside factor in the race, shut out New York, 1-0, to remain nine games off the pace. Hank Wyse earned the nod over rookie Monte Kennedy, allowing no Giant runners to reach second base. Pittsburgh put a crimp in Boston's third place ambitions with a 3-2 victory that left the Braves five lengths back of the Cardinals.

Dick Matney of the Phillies blanked Cincinnati, 5-0, on four hits. In the American League, Boston calmly continued to eliminate clubs mathematically from the pennant race, knocking out Cleveland with a 5-1 loss. Any combination of 15 Boston wins or New York defeats would assure the Sox of no worse than a tie.

Tex Hughson's five-hit performance probably was of more importance than the elimination of the Indians because it showed Manager Joe Cronin that Tex is regaining his mid-season form for the world series.

New York boosted its second place margin over Detroit to four games by walloping the Tigers, 10-6, on a seven-run eighth inning. Early Wynn notched his fifth victory in seven starts for Washington since he received his army discharge, trimming the St. Louis Browns, 5-2, with six hits. Dick Fowler turned in another fine pitching job for Philadelphia, shutting out Chicago, 3-0, with eight singles.

Greenies Lose Exciting Game To Wilson's Club

By DAVE CLARK

Big Eric Felton baffled Greenville's usually potent batting order on three singles here last night as Manager Irv Dickens' Wilson Tobs took an exciting 5-3 victory over the local club.

Johnny Foell started and finished on the hill for the Greenies, but he wasn't his usual effective self as Wilson solved his offerings for 11 safeties over the nine inning stretch. (Foell is suffering from a back injury, which no doubt causes his pitching to suffer.)

Wilson scored twice in the first frame on three singles and an infield out, and once again in the second when Felton singled Brooks home.

The Greenies made it 3-2 in the fifth when the two Blackwell boys and Manager Payne filled the sacks on a single and two walks and Milt Narron lifted a high pop fly to second base which second-sacker Alusik dropped allowing M. Blackwell to romp home. Verne Blackwell followed in his brother's footsteps a moment later when Wilson catcher Saerborne threw wild to second in an attempt to catch Payne who was stealing.

The 190s led the game in the seventh when clean-up man Ed Carnahan smacked one of Foell's tosses for a booming double to left center, scoring Wolfe and Esauer. The Greenies threw a scare into the 190s in the ninth when they loaded the sacks, and with two out Manager Payne hit one of Felton's pitches right on the nose, but into right fielder Eason's glove.

Greenville plays in New Bern tonight, and returns here for a game with the Bear tomorrow night.

American Airlines urged that it be allowed to serve Evansville and Paducah, as well as Louisville and Richmond, but this was challenged by Chicago and Southern, which claimed it already was giving adequate service.

Blue Grass Airlines, Inc., represented by G. C. Miam, insisted that as an established intrastate operator, it, and not Commonwealth Air Transport, Inc., should have been certified for a Kentucky network spreading into West Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee and Eastern Missouri.

Miam asserted that Commonwealth exists solely on paper, without anything but a hope, and argued that it failed to meet requirements laid down by the board.

Petersen and McCabe concluded: "If sale of surplus property to China is successfully concluded, it will not be a secret agreement."
