Fresh Meat Virtually Disappearing From Markets Of Big Areas

By ASSOCIATED PRESS
Fresh meat virtually disappeared from markets throughout the nation today and in some localities discouraged housewives had trouble buying even luncheon meats to bolster their vegetable menus.

Pork and poultry were the piece de resistance on many tables, and some poultry dealers warned that because of the rush their chicken supply would be gone in about two weeks. Packers reported they could obtain only a fraction of the animals they normally purchase for slaughter and most butchers were pessimistic over the possibility of an early improvement in the situation.

In St. Louis a few retail meat markets were closed. Others were selling mostly meat substitutes. Poultry brought 80 cents a pound and up, dressed; cheese was at a record high of 44-2 cents a pound for standard twins, and eggs sold at 44 to 46 cents a dozen wholesale, the highest price there since 1929. St. Louis' national stockyards which normally has light receipts on Saturday, had none at all that day for the first time in its history.

Hospitals in Pittsburgh were running out of meat, and doctors worried about the health of patients suffering from metabolic disorders such as diabetes, who would be seriously affected by lack of meat.

A few New England restaurants with large storage facilities still had a little meat on hand, but the housewives were getting by on the chicken and fish. In New York City, butcher shops' shelves were virtually bare, and 5,000 kosher butchers were closed for lack of supplies. In the Albany-Schenectady-Troy area poultry and cold cuts were available but getting scarce.

Other points reported similar conditions.

In Baltimore, a survey showed housewives paid one-third more for meat Saturday than a year ago, and today there was scarcely any to be had at any price. A Louisville grocery reported it had a little luncheon meat, but all others in the city reported no meat of any kind.

U. S. Troops Raid Polish 'DP' Camp

Frankfurt, Germany, Sept. 16—(AP)—American troops who raided a Polish displaced persons camp at Wetzlar have broken up a gang of looters, black marketeers and bootleggers whose leader alone is suspected of killing 43 Germans and three Americans, the U. S. constabulary announced today.

Sixty persons were arrested. The leader, identified only as a Pole named Ballon, was said to have sworn vengeance on Germans for the slaughter of his parents and three brothers by Nazis in Poland, with an announced goal of killing 10 Germans for every member of his family.

Ballon, constabulary officers said, bragged that he would escape and kill a lieutenant of the U. S. Military Police—whom he wounded in the hand with gunfire a week ago—and a captain in the U. S. military government. He tried to escape by leaping from a second-story window, but was recaptured.

Among the others arrested were two fugitives from jail and a suspect in a $50,000 April robbery in Frankfurt last April.

Four liquor stills were found in the camp, along with such other contraband as American cigarettes, pistols and ammunition, parts for a complete radio transmitter, army clothing, American currency and large quantities of allied marks.

Clashes Threaten Between Longshoremen And Seamen

BANKER GIVES GOOD ADVICE

J. H. Waldrop Praises Farmers For Policy Of Economy

A statement in an advertisement of the Guaranty Bank and Trust Company appearing in the Reflector today shows an increase in deposits since the tobacco market opened of $6,963,936.31.

This would indicate that farmers of this area are depositing the proceeds of tobacco sales generously. Tobacco may not always sell as good as it is now selling, the banker said, and the wise and thrifty farmer is going to prepare for the rainy day, when and if it comes.

J. H. Waldrop, vice-president and cashier, said in an interview with a reporter today.

Ford-Built Cars Get Higher Ceiling Price

Washington, Sept. 16—(AP)—OPA today granted immediate retail ceiling price increases averaging about six per cent for Ford, Mercury and Lincoln automobiles.

The increases were authorized under a revised "hardship" price formula which also is effective immediately.

The agency said the new formula "is available on application to all passenger car manufacturers who are currently in an overall loss position."

The higher prices on Ford-built cars will remain in effect "only until March 15, 1947, unless extended or modified."

New York Waterfront Tense As Ryan Tells AFL Longshoremen Not To Respect "Any Commy Picket Line"; Striking CIO Seamen March In Massed Picket Line

By the Associated Press
The twelfth day of the nationwide maritime strike found New York City's waterfront tense today with threats of clashes between thousands of picketing CIO seamen and AFL longshoremen under instructions not to "respect any Commy picket line."

CIO National Maritime Union leaders hauled out their most formidable weapon—the massed picket line with marchers so closely linked it is virtually impossible to squeeze through—as negotiations to end the walkout collapsed.

Police strength was bolstered throughout the sprawling docks area. CIO leaders said last night there might be trouble if the AFL longshoremen attempt to breach picket lines as they did Saturday to help unload the S. S. George Washington.

Fourteen liners with more than 6,000 passengers—half of them army or navy personnel—were due in New York port during the day.

Many longshoremen were on the job along the waterfront but they had not passed picket lines to return there. Some men, anxious to return to work after 11 days of idleness, reported for work early, before the CIO pickets were dispatched to CIO.

Joseph P. Ryan, president of AFL Longshoremen, was covering the waterfront in his black limousine, urging his men to go to work where stevedores was up and winches could be operated.

"We don't respect any Commy picket lines," he said. "If the AFL seamen will give us steam, we'll work."

There was no indication that AFL seamen, who had the support of CIO seamen in the early days of the strike, would return to work until members of the rival union, the AFL seamen, won their demands in a ruling by Economic Stabilizer John R. Steelman, but no provisions were made immediately for passing the increase along to CIO maritime workers.

NMU bosses, consequently, declared that more than 20,000 of their men in New York port alone (Continued on Page 5)

Kai-shek Armies Drive On Kalgan

Nanking, Sept. 16—(AP)—Government troops drove deepening wedges into the Chinese Communists' Yen-an-Kalgan line of communications today, seeking to isolate the two key Red cities—and peace hopes dropped to near zero.

Communist spokesman Wang Ping-Nan acknowledged that "we may lose this or that city or this or that area," but added that "we are not worried. The government may seize land, but cannot win the war against us as long as our troops are intact."

And the Reds will not discuss any political settlement, he reiterated, until Chiang Kai-shek pledges an unconditional cease-fire order. This Chiang has been unwilling to do.

Pro-government field dispatches said the Communists already were removing supplies from Kalgan, the base dominating the gateway to Chahar province to the north. Yen-an, Communist "capital" roughly 425 miles to the southwest, was not directly menaced although non-Communist troops reportedly were in the Linfen area—100 miles southeast of Yen-an—as they drove toward Yangku, Shansi province capital.

Reaction In England

British officialsdom heaved a mighty sigh of relief on learning that Secretary of Commerce Wallace's foreign affairs pronouncement—which was widely interpreted in England as "anti-British" and "dangerously pro-Russian"—didn't represent a change in American foreign policy.

Downing Street was "very pleased," to use the phrase of a foreign office spokesman, at President Truman's statement that he didn't endorse Wallace's speech but rather the right to make it. The spokesman might have added with equal truth that the average Briton—or the average European, for that matter—would be vastly astonished that a cabinet minister should have such freedom of unilateral action.

In Britain—and in most, if not all, European countries—a statement by one member of cabinet is binding on the whole cabinet, from the prime minister down. For this reason no member of cabinet ever makes a statement which might even remotely affect government policy without having discussed it with the premier and his colleagues.

If approval is given, then the entire cabinet stands back of it. If the prime minister disapproves then the statement cannot be made—or if by any chance it were made then the minister who had violated the code would be forced to resign and his statement would forthwith be disavowed by the government.

At any rate, no premier would say that in relation to a matter of government policy. Apart from this restriction the cabinet minister can say what he "jolly well" pleases.

In Britain this cabinet tradition is followed so closely that a cabinet minister won't give an interview "on the record" regarding government affairs unless the matter is submitted to the cabinet for approval. (Continued on Page Four)

Newsman Protest German's Charge

Shanghai, Sept. 16—(AP)—Foreign correspondents in China today asked the American State Department to intervene in a criminal libel brought against one of their number by a German war criminal suspect.

If such actions are to be permitted in Chinese courts, they argued, "Every correspondent covering an American war crimes trial" would be endangered.

Wolfgang Schenke, defendant in a war crimes trial before an American military tribunal, brought the criminal libel action against Walter Rundle of the United Press Association, who had quoted American officers' statements on the Schenke Sept. 23.

Correspondents radioed their plea to Secretary of State Byrnes, asking representations to the Chinese government against prosecution of the case, and representations against China's "restrictive publication laws, which recognize as privileged only the Chinese government's official releases and court proceedings."

TRUMAN URGES UN RESEARCH IN RESOURCES

Proposal Would Include Study Of Atomic Energy And Conservation

Lake Success, N. Y., Sept. 16—(AP)—President Truman today called on the United Nations to summon a world scientific conference on conservation to study global resources, including "the possible peaceful uses of atomic energy within the next few decades."

The presidential request, submitted to the economic and social council through delegate John G. Winant, asked the council to convene a United Nations scientific conference on resources conservation and utilization in the last six months of 1947 somewhere in the United States.

Declaring that conservation should become a major basis of peace, the president said:

"We have taken a heavy toll of many natural resources; the rebuilding of the nations and the industrialization of unmet needs, a large depletion of them. Waste, destruction and uneconomic use of resources anywhere demand mankind's common estate."

"The real or exaggerated fear of resource shortages and declining standards of living has in the past involved nations in warfare. Everyone is interested in preventing a recurrence of that fear and of those consequences."

The United States proposed that a preparatory committee be set up to organize the conference and set a date for the conference and its membership on the drafting group.

The Security Council was scheduled to resume debate at 2:30 p. m. (EDT) on the Soviet Ukraine's charges that British supported Greeks were disrupting peace in the Balkans by provoking border incidents with Albania.

The council, beginning its this week of debate on the Ukraine's case, was confronted with an appeal filed last week by Attorney General Tom C. Clark, asking the U. N. to stop what he called Greek provocations and spreading conflict.

Divorce Rate Has New High

Divorces Number Nearly One-Third Of 1945 Marriages

Washington, Sept. 16—(AP)—The nation's courts ground out nearly one-third as many divorces as there were marriages in 1945, setting a divorce record 25.3 percent over that of 1944, the previous peak year.

In reporting the divorce-marriage ratio the Federal Security Agency said more than 32,000 marriages ended in divorce courts last year while 1,213,331 couples formed new families. The marriage rate was 37 percent below the peak year of 1942.

Wary of using its study to predict future trends, the FSA reported that both marriage and divorce rates rise with prosperity and fall (Continued on Page Four)

More Casualties In Bombay Riots

Bombay, Sept. 16—(AP)—One person was killed and eight injured today in renewed communal rioting in Bombay, bringing the casualty total for the past two weeks up to 258 dead and 790 injured.

In scattered disorders in Bombay and elsewhere ten were killed and 44 injured over the week-end.

An outbreak of stabbings and explosions in Ahmedabad resulted in three killed and eight injured. Authorities imposed a 24-hour curfew in disturbed areas to stem further violence.

In Bombay seven persons were killed and 35 injured in shooting and stabbing incidents Saturday, yesterday the outbreaks had begun to taper off, however, and only one stabbing was reported.

Meanwhile M. A. Jinnah, president of the Muslim league, arrived in New Delhi to confer with Viceroy Lord Wavel on bringing the League into the interim government. He will meet the Viceroy this afternoon.

Natives Of Pacific Isles Protest Return Of "Jap-Dodger" To Guam

Guam, Sept. 16—(AP)—A group of 100 Guamanians, led by a Catholic priest, demonstrated with noise and placards today against Navy Lt. George Ray Tweed, the man who eluded the Japanese during their 31-month wartime occupation of Guam.

They expressed resentment at Tweed's assertion in his recent book that a Guam priest, a Father Duenas, had disclosed a confidential secret as to where Tweed was hiding. Word eventually reached the Japanese, and Tweed escaped capture by a narrow margin, he wrote.

As the presentation ceremony opened a crowd of 100 Guamanians marched into the plaza muttering angrily and bearing signs of protest.

Among the inscriptions were "We resent Tweed's appearance on this island, 'Our necks for a Chevrolet,'" and "Be square, be decent, be off."

Tweed, of San Diego, Calif., strode toward the marchers and snatched a sign reading "What about Tweed's desertion in the face of the enemy?" and tore it into shreds, stamping it under foot.

The Guamanian demonstrators, led by a Catholic priest, boomed loudly when Tweed approached the microphone to speak, but presently marched out of the park in a body leaving only a few Guamanians to hear the American.

Tweed presented a 1946 Chevrolet to Antonio Artero, the man who showed him a hiding place in the hill's back-country of Guam and brought him food once weekly for 31 months. Tweed said he was sincerely grateful to the many Guamanians who aided him, and regretted he could not give each one a new car.

Catholic Father Oscar Calvo, explaining the demonstration he led said Tweed in his book "Robinson Crusoe USA" had accused Father Duenas, another Guam priest, of "betraying the secret of the confessional."

Father Calvo said the Japanese tortured and eventually killed Father Duenas.

One sign carried by a demonstrator said "Remember Father Duenas" and another read "338,000 Catholics resent your accusations."

Tweed related in his book that one of his benefactors confessed to Father Duenas where Tweed was hiding and the priest told many (Continued on Page Four)

Searchers Have Little Hope For Lost Sailors

Rescue Planes Fly Over Vast Areas In Vain Search For Sixteen Crew Members Of Storm-Wrecked Norwegian Ship

Elizabeth City, N. C., Sept. 16—(AP)—Flying a lattice-work pattern at dawn this morning and were reported an area of 36,400 square miles along the Gulf stream east and north of Cape Hatteras, U. S. Coast Guard search and rescue aircraft, continued an apparently fruitless search today for 16 missing members of the 46-man crew of the Norwegian ship Marit which left in half 90 miles due east of Hatteras. No trace of a missing life raft from the tanker had been reported from the most far-flung operation ever undertaken by the Coast Guard, officials of the base here said.

Meanwhile the American tanker Amico, which picked up 18 survivors at noon yesterday and gave the first alarm of the sinking of the Norwegian vessel, was proceeding to Morehead City, N. C., where the rescued men will be set ashore and the tanker Gulfhawk, which took aboard six others early Sunday night after they were discovered by a searching Catalina from the base here, was proceeding to Bayonne, N. J. Both vessels reported that the men aboard were in good physical condition.

Five aircraft from the Coast Guard base here were in the air at dawn this morning and were joined later in the day, after briefing under the direction of Commander Edmund E. Fahy, commandant of the base, by three navy aircraft from the Norfolk naval air station, and by two E-17's and three Catalinas from the army air forces, which came here from Greenville, S. C., and Selfridge Field, Michigan. Together 119 aircraft crewmen were on watch above the search area with weather reported as clear and visibility good. A total of 13 planes were engaged in the search.

Army aircraft refueled here and took off immediately and Commander Fahy said at noon that all aircraft would continue the search until daylight when the searchers would return here to prepare for the continuation of the vast man-hunt tomorrow, with the field of operations probably extending northward.

First notification shore that the tropical storm which whirled northward over the weekend had claimed major prey came in a radio dispatch from the tanker Pan Amco. It disclosed she had picked up 18 survivors in a lifeboat from (Continued on Page 5)

Bevin Makes Reply To Arab Criticism

Asserts Federalization Of Holy Land Is "Workable"; Arab Rejection Of Plan Opens Door To Jewish Participation

London, Sept. 16—(AP)—Foreign Secretary Bevin told the Palestine Conference today that the British-American experts' plan for federalization of the Holy Land into four provinces with limited autonomy was workable and could lead to a final solution.

In a 90-minute statement the foreign secretary detailed Britain's reply to criticism of federalization which Arabs had leveled last week at a conference of spokesmen reported.

The text of Bevin's speech was not made public, but conference sources emphasized he made no new proposals.

Three members of the Jewish agency executive flew to Paris today for a meeting of the committee Jewish sources said the discussions might result in Jewish participation in the London conference.

Their departure followed what one source described as informal contact between British and Jewish leaders over the weekend. No details of that contact were immediately available, but members of the agency executive are believed to have seen either foreign Secretary George Hall or Colonial Secretary Bevin privately.

Soon after they left, delegates representing the seven states of the Arab League resumed their talks with British representatives at Latnaes, Lancaster House.

Conference sources said the unanimous Arab League rejection of four-way partition, as urged by the British-American committee, had prepared the way for Jewish entry (Continued on Page Five)

Crash Of Bomber Fatal For Five

Brevard, N. C., Sept. 16—(AP)—A remote mountain cave today yielded the fate of an army B-25 bomber that crashed Friday killing its five occupants, including Major General Paul B. Wurtsmith, temporary commander of the eighth air force.

An army ground rescue party reached the scene of the crash yesterday after picking its way at the rate of a mile an hour over two miles of rugged mountains. The plane had sliced off tops of trees for 100 yards before crashing into the side of Cold Mountain in a densely wooded cove about 200 feet below the summit.

William Huber, district ranger for the Pisgah National Forest, in which Cold Mountain is located, said the plane had burned after crashing.

Wreckage of the plane, which had been unreported since Friday at 11 a. m., was discovered early Sunday. En route from Selfridge Field, Detroit, to McDill Field, Tampa, Fla., it had aboard, in addition to Wurtsmith, Lt. Col. F. L. Trickey, Tampa; Lt. Col. P. R. Oberkrom, Tampa; M-Sgt. Hosey W. Merritt, Geneva, Ala.; and S-Sgt. Hoyt W. Crump, Tampa.

Five-Cent Air Mail

Air Mail Postage Will Be Two Cents An Ounce More Than Ordinary Letter Rates In October; New Rate Will Apply To U. S. Territories And Canada

By JAMES MARLOW

By BRACK CURRY
The Post Office Department on December 23, 1941, set up a rate of six cents a half-ounce for air mail to or from the armed forces. This mail otherwise would have been subject to much higher foreign air mail rates.

(Substituting for James Marlow)

Washington, Sept. 16—(AP)—The air mail postage rate will be just two cents an ounce more than the ordinary letter rate, beginning October 1.

For five cents an ounce you can air mail a letter to any point in the U. S. to any U. S. territory and to members of the armed forces regardless of where they are stationed.

The present domestic rate is eight cents an ounce; the rate to and from members of the armed forces is six cents a half-ounce.

The new five-cent rate also will apply to letters mailed in the U. S. or any of its possessions to Canada. Under a reciprocal agreement this country and Canada give one another the benefits of their domestic air mail rates.

For the first time in history, says the Postoffice Department, a uniform rate will apply to all air mail moving between U. S. territory and the United States.

That is because the law reducing the rate specifies that all air mail destined to any U. S. territory will be treated as domestic mail.

This will involve reductions from current rates up to 90 cents an ounce. For example, the present air mail rate between the U. S. and the Canal Zone is 10 cents an ounce; to Guam, 35 cents an ounce and to Hawaii, 15 cents.

Existing air mail postage between Puerto Rico and Guam is 4 cents a half-ounce and between Guam and the Canal Zone is 4 cents a half-ounce.

UFW Locals Quit CIO Connections

Chicago, Sept. 16—(AP)—Joseph M. Jacobs, general counsel for the AFL-Upholders International Union, today said the AFL group has agreed to absorb about 5,000 members of the rival CIO-United Furniture Workers Union.

Agents of 20 CIO locals conferred during the weekend with Sal B. Hoffman, president of the AFL organization, after quitting the CIO the attorney reported. The disaffiliation, Jacobs said, followed the resignation of Morris Muster, president of the United Furniture workers, who charged that the union was controlled by Communists.

The AFL union has requested National Labor Relations Board action in all cases where there has been any doubt as to sentiment.

KRIS KRINGLE NOW ON HIS WAY THIS CITY

Greenville Should Be Decorated For Christmas - Only 83 More Shopping Days

By CHESTER WALSH. The city of Greenville, during this, one of its most prosperous years, bountiful crops selling at high prices, and tobacco selling at an all-time high, should be decorated for Christmas Week in a manner commensurate with the wealth and dignity of the town, was an expression voiced today by leaders here. Even if there isn't a Santa Claus in some places in the world at this time of chaos, the businessmen should maintain the Santa Claus spirit in Greenville and do something about it now. It will take a lot of money to decorate the streets, but they should be decorated equally as attractive as the nearby cities of Wilson, Rocky Mount, Kinston, Farmville and Ayden will be decorated to emphasize the Christmas and New Year's spirit.

Mrs. Harold Lee Watson of Wadesboro, who before her marriage in August at the Stokes Methodist Church, was Miss Carolyn Joan Stokes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Fleming Stokes of Stokes.

The Merchants Association, Chamber of Commerce and the Greenville Utilities are cooperating in making plans for the Christmas decorations. They are asking businessmen and others to contribute generously to the decoration fund now, so that plans may be made accordingly. If you or your firm have not mailed in your check please do so at once to Mrs. Cora B. Powell, secretary of the Greenville Merchants Association.

Carroll Carpenter of Hickory, who contracts for Christmas decorations will meet with the committee at the City Hall Wednesday night at 8 o'clock. John W. Glover is chairman of the committee.

Tentative plans provide for decorating the streets so attractively that they will be a drawing card to bring shoppers of Eastern Carolina here to do their Christmas shopping. Christmas merchandise is already beginning to appear on the shelves in stores. Live-wire and progressive merchants are going to do some unusual decorating of their stores for Christmas. Householders are expected to decorate their homes.

Incidentally, Thursday, November 28, is Thanksgiving Day, and Christmas Day is December 25. Did you know that there are only 83 more shopping days until Christmas?

Mrs. Virginia Blount, State president-elect of Roanoke Rapids, has notified the club that she is accepting a position in Raleigh as Health Nutritionist and that her assistant, Miss Joyce Hines, will take her place.

The club is planning a very special occasion for the next regular dinner meeting to be held September 26, 1946 at 7 o'clock at the Rotary building. Mrs. J. B. Spilman requested members to invite guests to hear J. S. Harden, secretary to Governor to R. Gregg Cherry, who will speak.

Refreshments consisting of punch and cookies were served by Mrs. Luella Stancil.

Women in the Church

As president of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of India, Mrs. Satyavati S. Chitambar, of Lucknow, widow of Bishop J. R. Chitambar of the Methodist Church, has called upon all the people of India to conserve food because of the threatening famine condition and especially to cease the use of grain for alcoholic beverages during the emergency period. "We appeal to the public in general and to the patriots to take a strong stand against the awful waste of foodstuffs," she says. "If they are addicted to the use of intoxicants or anything any way connected with it, they should show their patriotism at this hour of need and test by giving it up entirely, so that the tons of grain now being used for it may be saved to feed the nation and tide us over the present serious situation."

Mrs. James L. Kraft, wife of Chicago's well-known cheese manufacturer, was recently teaching a class of 150 women in the North Shore Baptist Church of that city. The lesson concerned the story of the woman who knointed the head and feet of Jesus with a box of ointment the most precious possession she had. After the lesson was over, Mrs. Kraft decided that she should give "the most beautiful material possession I have" to the Lord. Her only valuable piece of jewelry was a diamond bracelet worth $10,000, and this she gave to the World Mission Crusade committee of the Woman's American Baptist Foreign Missionary Society for its missionary work overseas.

The women of Poland are today taking an active lead in rebuilding the physical ruins left by the war, in keeping alive the standards and tastes of "good living," and in the rehabilitation of the Christian Churches of all denominations, according to Miss Margaret Forsyth, of the National Board of the Young Women's Christian Association, who recently returned from a visit to that war-torn land. "I was amazed to see the large part of the rebuilding that is being done by women," said Miss Forsyth. "They work alongside men in shovelling rubble into trucks. They work with their husbands in offices. They participate in church and other group activities. They are completely unafraid; they are among the sturdiest women in the world."

Pepper Endorses New Deal Policy

Miami, Fla., Sept. 14—(AP)—More policies and doctrines of the late Franklin D. Roosevelt instead of less were urged here today by Sen. Claude Pepper (D-Fla.). Addressing the 42nd annual convention of the National Association of Postmasters, Pepper called the late president the "greatest Democrat of our time" and urged his audience to "keep fresh the memory and aspirations of Franklin D. Roosevelt."

"I look forward to more Roosevelt doctrines instead of less," he said. "I proudly admit I'm a New Dealer if the term means somebody who follows Franklin D. Roosevelt in trying to give all the people a decent living wage."

Pepper said he favors a national insurance fund, retirement for any man or woman who has served as postmaster for 30 years regardless of age, broadening of social security benefits and more money for the aged.

THE COST OF MEDICAL CARE

★ That the cost of medical care has risen, no one can deny. But the rise has not been out of proportion to the general advance in the cost of living. At the same time the quality of medical service has been immeasurably improved. Consider that today your physician has invested from eight to ten years and about ten thousand dollars in his education alone. He has no chance to earn until he is twenty-six or twenty-seven years old. He must have an office in a good neighborhood, good equipment, a car, good clothes. Pharmacy, too, has stepped up its standards. Almost every state now requires four years of college and a year or two of practice before registration. All this adds up to better medical service for you.

Chapter 16

Lillie was a very busy woman in those days. Prohibition had passed, and the Washington House that had become Pud's Place became in turn "Lillie's" with reservations made days and weeks in advance. Out on the Bensalem Pike where Sweet William had run into an accident one night, was a series of filling stations, and along the Pike rolled the trucking fleet of the O'Dell transportation Company. Back on the Dublin Pike, where on that same night long ago, Lillie and Pud, Sweet William and Mr. Bradford had rolled a car from the highway, was a dairy farm, and next to it the farm from which "Lillie's" got its beef and vegetables. Lillie was a very busy woman, who, when she had time, live out at the farm, and when she didn't, stayed in a room at the cafe.

But there wasn't a night that she didn't walk through the old Washington House, and one night in 1939 she stopped very suddenly and stared. There was a party of twenty at a table in one end of the room, a rather drunken party, and the one who seemed to have outdone all the others was a very lusty Posey whose name was Rodney Bradford.

Slowly Lillie regained the use of her legs and moved on about her rounds, stopping here for a word, for a quick pat on someone's shoulder. She worked her way back to the office and closed the door and went to the mirror that hung over a table at the far end of the room that had once been her parlor. She was forty-nine, as slim as any of the young gazelles who came to the cafe. Her hair had not darkened with the years but rather was fading to a silver-washed gold. In an evening dress, she was a figure that never failed to attract attention. She sat down at her desk and thought for a long time. Then she called her head waiter. After that she began to telephone.

Rodney Bradford never knew just how he happened to get in with the party of "Happy" Turner, whom every one knew controlled the politics of the state, nor how he happened to be constantly at the side of a woman whom they called "Lillie," but he knew it was a whopper of a party. It had started at "Lillie's" that night and it had gone across several states in fast motor cars. It had reached New York and it hadn't missed any spots there. Some of them he had been before; the rest he had just heard about. It had been a party without a peer, and he had wakened with the granddaddy of all headaches in a strange room with the woman whom they called Lillie standing looking down at him.

She watched him rub his hand across his stubble chin. "How long have I been asleep?" he asked.

"The best part of a day," Lillie answered, and smiled grimly to herself as he came wide awake, and sat up in the bed, clutching the sheet to him. "My God! Where am I? You're—we're—"

Lillie laughed aloud, "Relax. I'm old enough to be your mother, and you're not married to me nor to anybody else. You're wise, I see, to one of the dangers of being a Bradford and not knowing where you are or what you're doing."

He grinned a little shamefacedly. "That I'm afraid is not very gallant on my part. You're very beautiful and if I remember correctly, charming."

"All right," Lillie said, "and still old enough to be your mother and with money enough of my own not to be interested in the Bradford's."

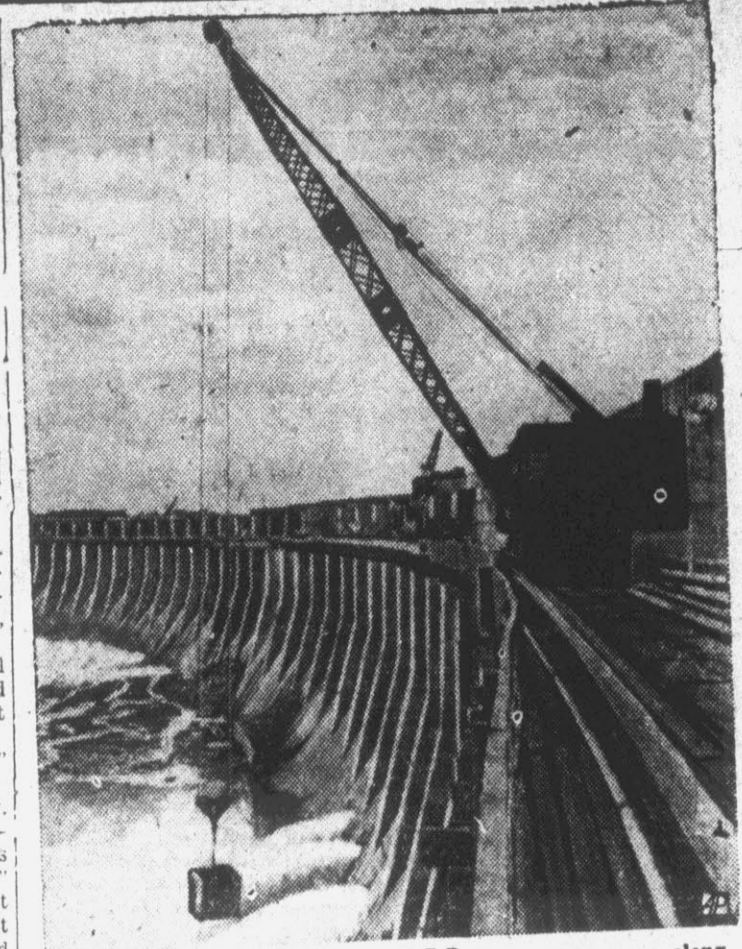

"You're Lillie O'Dell, aren't you?" Rodney burst out.

"Right," Lillie answered crisply. "And we've been a place or two together. We've hit all the high spots from here to New York end back." Lillie stopped long enough to light a cigarette, but when Rodney went to speak, she shook her head and said quickly, "Now I've got this to say to you. You've seen them all. Now stay away from them. You have an obligation. You have a name and you have wealth. According to the Constitution of this country, all men are created equal, so when some get more than their share of the money, there must be a reason for it. As I see it, it's a trust. Without the Bradford Mills and the Bradford interests, half of this city would starve. God knows it has done badly enough with the Bradford interests. But I will say this for your grandfathers. He had done the best he knew how. But he's an old man, and this is a changing world. It's going to need young men with money and with faith and with principles. You don't get those things in bars. Remember that."

"Well, thanks," Rodney said sarcastically. He was still clutching the sheet to him like a protective armor. "But why do you give a damn about the Bradford's or me?"

"I just told you," Lillie's tone matched his. "Without the Bradford's, this city is done. As for you, Lillie was at the door before she finished. 'I knew your mother.' She closed the door firmly on Rodney's sharp cry of 'Wait! Wait a minute, please.' She didn't hear him say, 'That's what she said the other time she brought me here. I wonder if she knows I'm intercollegiate boxing champion.'"

That summer Lillie heard Rodney Bradford had gone into the mills as an ordinary laborer in the Open Heart, and she settled back at her desk and tapped her pencil against her teeth and smiled a rather satisfied smile. Others might talk about Rodney Bradford learning his grandfather's business from the bottom up and give him credit for being a real Bradford. But to Lillie, he was simply being Violet's son. She had wanted the best for Violet, and Violet had gotten it.

Chapter 17

Lillie O'Dell was alone at the farm on the day that the radios blared the news of Pearl Harbor. She had let the Sunday paper slide slowly to the floor and had stood up. "Look, God," she said. "I've done the best for him that I could. Don't let him be like his father." She stood aghast at her speech and the thought that prompted it. Then she gave her head a defiant toss. "He's Violet's child," she said to herself, "and all I've ever asked for was the best for Violet."

But she didn't relax actually until she heard that Rodney Bradford had enlisted. Then she heard nothing and knew only those things that she read in the papers. He had a furlough; he went overseas; he was returned to O. C. S. Then August Bradford sent for her.

She was frightened at what it could mean. "Is this—that is, has he heard?" She stuttered badly and the secretary on the phone, noting her uncertainty, said, "I don't know what it is about, Mrs. O'Dell."

When her world that was Violet had collapsed years ago, Lillie had been able to walk to August Bradford's office. This day she couldn't walk and she didn't trust herself to drive. "I'm getting old," she standing out like headlines — "a school teacher—father's the postman—two younger brothers—I'm slated to go overseas again any day — Peg-Ann won't come to see you until I can bring her—"

Lillie said coldly, "I don't know why you sent for me. There's nothing we can do about it now."

As she spoke, it seemed as though August Bradford's huge frame shrunk into itself. "No, I don't know why I did either. I guess there's nothing we can do. Only I had hoped. He was doing a good job in the mills. His mother was so kind and gentle that Laurie—" His voice came out full again. "Soft. That was it. Soft."

Lillie walked back to the cafe, and her body and her thoughts were as weary as they had been on that first day when she had walked back from August Bradford's office—the day when Violet had so unalterably twisted the threads of their lives. She had wanted the best for Violet. That night with the help of Happy Turner, she was on a crack flyer, going south.

She took enough time after she got off the train to have her upswept hair washed and combed back, unwaved, into a bun at the back of her neck, and to buy a substantial plain blue felt hat to replace the one that was merely two roses and a band of straw. As she tried it on, she said to the saleswoman, "Do I look like an aunt—or maybe a mother."

The saleswoman said unsmilingly, "It's a very nice hat, madam."

"Oh, skip it," Lillie answered, and fished from her pocketbook the horn-rimmed glasses she now had to wear for reading. She looked at herself carefully in the mirror and decided that with the hair, the hat and the glasses, no one seeing Lillie O'Dell at some future date would connect her with Mrs. Henry Posey. For that she had decided was how she intended to introduce herself to Rodney's wife. "Mrs. Henry Posey, a distant relative of your husband," Rodney might wonder, but in a short time he would receive his mother's legacy, and would learn he had had an uncle named Henry Posey and would wonder no more.

Lillie knew exactly how she was going to handle the situation. She knew, that is, until the girl of the photograph opened the door, and then Lillie had said numbly, without volition, "Violet." The girl said, "I beg your pardon?" and Lillie had forced a smile to her numb lips and said in a croaking voice, "I'm Mrs. Henry Posey, a distant relative of your husband. I was in the city for a short period and thought I would look him up."

"How nice," the girl said. She stood aside, "Won't you come in. I'm afraid you are going to be disappointed though. Rodney—" her face saddened for a moment and her voice dropped. "Rodney has been alerted for several days. I doubt if he is even in the country."

Strength FOR THE DAY

By RAE L. DOUGLAS

SOME DAY, THE CABLE

In building one of the great bridges of the world, the engineers started by stringing a single thread of wire, three-sixteenths of an inch in diameter, over the towers. With this they hauled a larger wire into place, and with this larger wire another still larger. At last they were able to bring into place the great cables which were to support the bridge.

It would have been virtually impossible to have begun with the big cable. The thing had to be done gradually, with each strand of wire pulling into place a stronger and larger wire. Likewise, in learning any subject, we have to start by mastering the simplest facts involved in that subject. Some people never get their historical facts straight, for instance, because they begin by reading huge tomes instead of mastering outlines. In all progress we have to advance from the small to the great, from the simple to the complex, from the evident to the obscure.

It is hard for us to escape discouragement as we review what we have done and compare this with what we ought to have done. Particularly are we impatient with ourselves when we are brought face to face with the realization that in the development of character we have fallen far behind what we thought years ago was possible. But we must remember that few things in this world respond to change more slowly than does intransigent human character. Still, the years have seen progress—small strands of wire gradually growing into larger. Perhaps some day, the cable

WASHINGTON LETTER

TRAVEL BARS FALL
By JANE EADS

Washington—More and more Central American countries are relaxing regulations governing tourists from the United States. There is much less red tape.

It is now possible for citizens of the continental United States and Puerto Rico to visit the Dominican Republic without passports. Visitors to that country are provided on their arrival there with an identification card good for a 10-day stay. It can be renewed for an additional 10 days if desired.

Mexico issues a tourist card for six months. Similar cards are issued by El Salvador for seven days; Honduras, four days; Costa Rica, 30 days. Guatemala has just announced issuance of tourist cards but has not yet set a time limit.

Legislation providing for the issuance of tourist cards has been passed by Nicaragua and Venezuela but has not yet been put into effect. Venezuela is the first of the South American countries to ease up on traveling regulations governing tourists from other countries. Most of the other South American nations require not only a passport but a police certificate and a health certificate.

However, even in the Central American countries, relaxing of the laws is only directed toward tourists who are United States citizens. As far as European travelers are concerned, regulations are as complex as always.

In the case of Cuba, proof of citizenship in the United States is enough.

The Washington cathedral on Mount St. Alban was started in 1907. Up to the present funds have been insufficient to complete it.

With the war over, however, efforts to push completion of the cathedral, which is visited by thousands each year, are under way. The Washington National Cathedral Fund has been created to start the ball rolling.

Aside from its architectural beauty, the cathedral is fast gaining importance nationally.

A national roll of honor, expected to carry many thousands of veterans and their service records, has been inaugurated. This will be enshrined in a proposed war memorial chapel of the unfinished "patriots' transept," the southern arm of the ca-had the unusual experience of getting an interview over the phone from the late David Lloyd George, England's famous Premier during the first world war. When he had finished I asked if he would like me to submit the interview to see if the direct quotes were correct.

PROGRESS REPUBLIC AND GAZETTE SYNDICATES

"Oh, no," he replied. "You will handle it all right."

During my recent trip abroad I had a long conversation with Prime Minister De Valera in Dublin. He talked "turkey," but wouldn't be quoted. In London I had a private chat with Prime Minister Attlee and he also preferred not to be quoted but I was permitted to give my "personal impressions" of what his beliefs were. Premier Schermerhorn of Holland talked freely for quotation. So did Generalissimo Franco in Madrid.

However, as previously remarked a head of government is in a different position from an ordinary cabinet minister when it comes to discussing matters of state.

English Reaction . . .

proval. I have encountered that many times during my reporting abroad.

Prime ministers of course can speak for themselves if they want to, because as heads of government they are responsible for policies. However, I have had a premier say to me after he had given me a statement:

"I should like to discuss this with my colleagues before publication." So far as the ordinary member of the cabinet is concerned, if he does not agree with the policies of the prime minister—or at least if he doesn't back them up—then he must resign. If the policies of the prime minister and his cabinet advisers go wrong, then Parliament kicks them out of office forthwith and a new ministry is formed.

Speaking of interviews: I've had them with lots of heads of state during my more than 30 years in the AP foreign service, and they offer interesting variations. For instance—

Tweed, 43, was the only survivor of six Americans who escaped capture when the Japanese seized Guam. Rescued by a warship in July, 1944, he received the Legion of Merit medal.

Tweed said he felt the demonstration inspired by Father Calvo did not denote the sentiment of most Guamanians. Several natives came forward to shake Tweed's hand. The Guam Post of the American Legion presented him an honorary membership.

with depression, adding: "The marriage rate is the more sensitive of the two, since a marriage contract can be entered into more readily than it can be dissolved."

With the divorce rate nearly steady at 1.9 divorces per 1,000 population in 1937-39, it jumped to 3.6 in 1945. The ratio of divorces to marriage also climbed from 17.8 divorces per 100 marriage to the 1945 total of 31 divorces per 100 marriages.

The nation's marriage rate followed the prosperity-depression curve, with an unprecedented low of 7.9 per 1,000 in the depression year, 1932. Business improved and the rate climbed to 11.3 in 1937. It dropped one point with the brief recession of 1938 and started climbing again.

The wartime peak came in 1942 when 1,772,132 couples said their vows. There was a two-year decline then as eligible men went overseas.

would be marshalled for the greatest show of strength ever seen in a maritime labor dispute.
More than 5,000 were expected to go on the march today.
Conferences between officials of the National Maritime Union (N.M.U.) and east and Gulf coast ship operators were broken off last night when the operators said discussions would be "fruitless" while the N.M.U. coupled its demands with those of two west coast unions.
The operators also refused to continue the negotiations because of the N.M.U.'s action yesterday in withdrawing security watches from ships in Atlantic and Gulf ports, leaving them unguarded against "fire and other potential perils."
Joseph Curran, president of the N.M.U., walked out of last night's meeting and termed the employers' action a "lockout." He said the union would not resume negotiations until west coast shipowners agreed to meet with the Marine Cooks and Stewards Union (M.C.S.U.) and the Independent Marine Firemen's Union.

Russia.
It so, a showdown is in the making over the current tough policy of Secretary of State Byrnes.
No one in either the Wallace camp or at the State Department appears to consider that Mr. Truman's statement on Saturday resolved the basic policy differences between the two cabinet officers.
In that declaration, which he read to reporters himself, the chief executive made four main points:
1. His approval of Wallace's address at a news conference last Thursday actually was intended to cover only Wallace's right to make the speech, not what he said.
2. The belief that he had endorsed the speech was a natural misunderstanding due to the fact that he had not said what he intended to say.
3. There has been no change in American foreign policy.
4. There will be no significant changes in American foreign policy without consultation with Byrnes and congressional leaders.

U. S. Tennis Prospects Good Against Australia

New York, Sept. 16—(AP)—Above all else, the American victory over Sweden in the Interzone Davis Cup finals which were completed at Forest Hills yesterday proved that the United States has the best assortment of amateur tennis players in the world today—with the possible exception of Australia.

And the Americans will get their chance to erase that threat December 26-28 when the cream of Uncle Sam's current crop barges into Melbourne to challenge the Australians for the trophy that has been the symbol of international tennis supremacy since the turn of the century.

The U. S. team, which won its way to the challenge round Saturday, completed its victory over Sweden's European champions yesterday by taking the last of two singles matches to make the interzone series a grand slam.

National Champion Jack Kramer trounced Lennart Bergelin, the Swedish titleholder, 6-2, 6-2, 8-6 and Frankie Parker tripped Torsted Johansson, 9-7, 6-2, 6-1. The opponents were reversed in the first day's singles battles, but the outcome was the same.

Actually, Sweden was eliminated Saturday when Billy Talbert and Gardnar Mulloy, the U. S. doubles champions, stopped Bergelin and Johansson, 3-6, 9-7, 3-6, 6-0, 8-6, although they were forced to the limit by the invaders, who are tougher together than they are apart.

The base with which the American singles stars conquered the survivors of the original European field numbering 15 nations must have been felt, with some misgiving, all the way to Australia, where such stars as John Bromwich, Adrian Quist, Dinny Pails and Geoff Brown await the invasion of the challengers.

And their apprehension surely wasn't lightened any by the fact that Tom Brown and Bob Falkenburg, a couple of youngsters who between them ousted Parker, Mulloy and Talbert in the recent National singles championships, were not even on the team that whitewashed the Swedes.

While there isn't a Tilden, a Vines or a Budge in the lot, neither has any of the other countries come up with a postwar Perry, Crawford or Cochet. And from the looks of the youngsters, the United States will be a power in international tennis for years to come.

"I think without a doubt that America can defeat Australia," said Curt Oestburg, non-playing captain of the Swedish team, after watching Kramer and Parker take his boys apart.

"Your American brand of tennis is far superior to any being played in the world today, and Jack Kramer is without peer."

N. C. FOOTBALL OFF TO START

High Point And Catawba Win First Of Season's Games

By the Associated Press
Six games are on the North Carolina college football schedule this next week, one of them on Friday night and the other five on Saturday.

High Point College and Catawba raised the curtain last Saturday night with the season's first two games and both clubs scored victories.

Big Glenn Painter, the Purple Panthers' bruising fullback, led High Point to a 19 to 0 victory over the Duke Jaycees, scoring two of this team's three touchdowns.

The third six-pointer was contributed by freshman end Bill Brewer who broke into the Duke backfield, stole the ball, and raced 55 yards to score.

Catawba's always powerful eleven scored an easy 29 to 7 victory over the Cherry Point Marines at Salisbury.

Lee Spears and Tony Georgiana headed the Indian offensive which ran up 13 points in the first seven minutes of the game. Spears tallied twice and Georgiana hit pay dirt once.

This week's games include Western Carolina Teachers at High Point Friday; Erskine at Davidson Newberry at Appalachian, Brevard at East Tennessee State; Catawba at V. M. I. and Atlantic Christian at Lenoir-Rhyne on Saturday.

For the first time in major league baseball, two teams—Brooklyn and St. Louis—may wind up the complete season in a dead heat for the flag.

With exactly two weeks of the campaign remaining, the Cardinals possess a game and a half lead over the Dodgers in one of the tightest pennant races the National League has ever known. However, both teams are all even in the last ledger. The Cards' advantage is all in the win column since they've played and won three more games than Brooklyn.

Unless rain interferes, the Dodgers should make up those three games by Friday at which time each contender will have played 146 games with eight to go. The Dodgers' 19-inning tie with the Cincinnati Reds is slated to be played off Friday.

The Cardinals gained a full game on the Brooks yesterday when they defeated the Giants twice 3-0 and 7-4 while the Dodgers were held to a split by the Cubs.

After dropping a thrilling 4-3, 10-inning decision to the Cubs, the Dodgers' behind Kirby Hines' over-the-pitching, bounced back to win the aftereffect of the double header 2-0. The game was halted after five innings by a combination of semi-darkness and a swarm of insects which infested Ebbets Field, packed to capacity by 32,264 cash customers.

Dave Ferriss, Boston's brilliant sophomore, won his 25th game at the American League champion Red Sox split with the Chicago White Sox. Ferriss allowed eight hits in winning the opener 4-1 but Chicago came back to blank the Red Sox 6-0, behind Johnny Rigney.

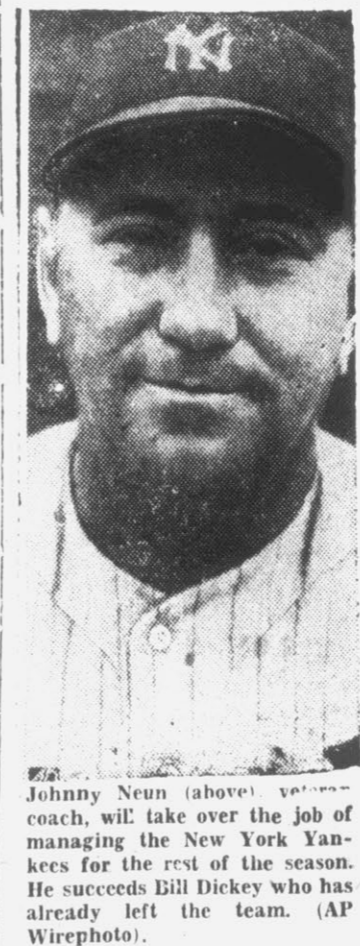

Ferriss thus tied the American League record of Wes Ferrell who won 46 games in his first two complete seasons for the Cleveland Indians.

Bill McCahan, making his first start in the major leagues, bested Bob Feller in a hurling duel as the Philadelphia Athletics split with the Indians. After Bob Lemon had Lemon had pitched the Tribe to an 8-1 victory McCahan limited the Indians to seven hits with a 2-0 win. The game was halted after seven innings because of darkness.

The St. Louis Browns won twice from the New York Yankees 1-0 and 2-1. Rookie Jack Sanford, making his major league debut, limited the Yanks to five hits in the first game.

Buddy Lewis and Cecil Travis collected nine hits between them and pitcher Early Wynn hit a grand slam home run to help Washington

QUICK WORK

Oklahoma City, Sept. 13—(AP)—Marine Recruiting Sergeant S. L. Baker became a "father" yesterday and promptly signed up his new son in the marines.

J. E. Goodwin, 18, wanted to enlist but he had no birth certificate, no parents and no guardian. Baker hustled Goodwin to County Judge C. J. Blinn who appointed him legal guardian for the youth.

The recruiting sergeant then gave his consent for the boy to enlist.
