Principle Of 75 Per Cent Compensation For War Damage To Allied Property Virtually Set For Five European Peace Treaties; Byrnes Sounds Optimistic Note

By BELMAN MOREN Paris, Sept. 27.—(AP)—A principle of 75 per cent compensation for war damage to allied property was virtually established for all five European peace treaties today, erasing a troublesome controversy, but the nations remained free to present divergent views to the peace conference plenary session.

The U. S. and Russia joined in the Balkans-Finnish economic commission against Britain's demand for full compensation. But the Russian delegates, financial expert V. S. Guerachitchenko, expressed annoyance that a move for only 25 per cent payment, defeated by a 9-4 vote, had been termed an American proposal.

Russia sought only up to 33 per cent, he said, and therefore the lowest demand against former enemy states should be called a Russian proposal.

The commission adopted a text of the war damage compensation clause for the Romanian treaty but decided to leave out the figures. While the 75 per cent principle, already voted for the Italian treaty, was adopted for the others, it was agreed the members would be free to support minority reports in the plenary session—Britain for 100 per cent compensation; the U. S. and Russia for the lowest compensation.

Neither the U. S. nor Russia voted for the 75 per cent principle. The British and empire delegates, who would have blocked anything less than 75 per cent, voted for the 75 per cent, but the partial compensation proposals. Indications were that there was a willingness to compromise on the questions when it is raised in the foreign ministers council.

"For the first time," Secretary of State Byrnes told a news conference last night, "I see a possibility of winding up the peace conference."

The delegates have two deadlines to meet. By Oct. 5, all commissions are scheduled to present their reports on the drafts of peace treaties to the full 21-nation plenary session, which, in turn, is slated to finish its work by October 15. The conference has been in session since July 29.

After that the council of foreign ministers of the big four will take the conference's amendments and proposals and try to formulate the final treaties for Bulgaria, Finland, Hungary, Italy and Romania.

Poor Male Can't Win In Meat Market Push

Philadelphia, Sept. 27.—An unidentified man seeking to buy meat was routed empty-handed from a stall in the Reading Terminal Market today by a housewife who hit him over the head with a leg of lamb.

The incident, combined with a push of 2,000 persons at opening hour of three butcher stalls, led Market Supt. C. B. Marsh to call six city policemen and four Reading Company officers to maintain order.

The leg of lamb, placed on the counter by a butcher, was the only meat in sight of about 100 customers jammed into a narrow aisle of one booth.

Four Of Defendants Are Found Not Guilty In Anti-Trust Suit

Danville, Sept. 27.—(AP)—The New York Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company and 24 officers and subsidiary corporations today were fined a total of $175,000 following their conviction on charges of conspiracy to monopolize a substantial part of the nation's food business.

Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley in pronouncing sentence, vacated a portion of his conviction order of Saturday and found three other subsidiaries and one officer innocent of the charges, which were that the defendants restrained and monopolized trade in violation of anti-trust laws.

"I think in my anxiety to get this matter disposed of, I was in error concerning a finding of guilty as to these four defendants," he said.

The defendants acquitted were the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company of Delaware, Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company of Vermont, Inc., American Coffee Corporation of Jersey City, N. J., and Francis M. Kurtz, vice president of the American Coffee Corporation.

Judge Lindley ordered five of the defendant corporations to pay the costs of the long case. They included the New York Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company, the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. of America, the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. of New Jersey, the Atlantic Commission Company, produce buying subsidiary of A. & P., and Business Organization, Inc., a public relations firm.

No official estimate has been yet made of the costs, but observers believed they would reach a high figure. The case began about 17 months ago and consumed 12 days of actual trial, with about 12 days and eight government attorneys. There were more than 200 witnesses, about 30,000 pages of written record, and more than 5,000 exhibits.

No prison sentences were imposed on any of the defendants, although the maximum penalty would have provided for imprisonment.

Judge Lindley overruled a defense motion for a new trial and stayed the fines until further order, pending (Continued on Page Eight)

U. S. Information Service Closed

Belgrade, Sept. 27.—(AP)—The United States closed its information service, reading room and library here yesterday by request of the Yugoslav Foreign Ministry, which had charged they were sources of propaganda against Marshal Tito's government.

The agencies were discontinued by Ambassador Richard C. Patterson upon receipt of a third note of complaint from the Foreign Ministry. He protested that "no justifiable excuse" had been given for the request, which had resulted, he said, in "barbarian American thought from Yugoslavia."

In Washington, the State Department announced an American government employee whom it did not identify had been discharged for using the information service's multigraph machine without permission in reproducing articles critical of the Yugoslav government. The department said the person did not work in the information service.

fixed United States policy at Lake Success.

There is a widespread feeling at UN headquarters that many issues presented to the council have a pure propaganda objective, that in this case Russia was less interested or hopeful about a decision than in the council's qualities as a sounding board. So the U. S. fell back on its regular tactic of agreeing to every proposed investigation, but with the proviso that it should be all-inclusive and not merely directed at hand-picked incidents. The lightning became too bright and the Slav bloc backed off without a decision.

But another field was opened. Under the U. N. Charter, the Secretary General is authorized to call to the council's attention any matter which threatens peace. Since (Continued on Page Four)

Torrential Rains Raise Flood Waters In San Antonio Area; Communications Difficult; Death Toll Said Rising

San Antonio, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Torrential rains, piling up water faster than overburdened rivers and storm sewers could carry it off, brought San Antonio its worst flood today in a quarter of a century.

Six persons were known to be dead and some sources placed the death toll at nine or ten. Many others were marooned in trees or on rooftops, hoping desperately that a rescue fleet of motor boats would arrive from Austin before the continuing rains raised the water level sufficiently to wash them from their precarious havens.

Gov. Coke Stevenson offered the help of the state guard to prevent looting and pilfering. Highways leading into the city were closed, and the Missouri Pacific Railroad said train service has been "indefinitely delayed" by washouts at several points.

Communications were difficult, and lines were down in some sections. Joe Fletcher, assistant director of the Department of Public Safety, said in Austin that Highway Patrol Capt. N. R. Smith had notified him from San Antonio that "nine or ten" persons were dead, many more were stranded and missing, and that boats were badly needed.

The flood was the worst since Sept. 10, 1921. At that time a cloudburst deluged the headwaters of the San Antonio River sending a torrent of water into the city while most of the population was asleep, flooding buildings up to the second floor. (Continued on Page 5)

Southampton, Eng., Sept. 27.—(AP)—Officers of the British liner Queen Mary claimed a new record for the Trans-Atlantic crossing upon her arrival here today from Halifax, saying she had made it in three days, 15 hours and 48 minutes.

The engine, tender, baggage car and five passengers and dining car of the crack Transcon were derailed in a narrow cut beside a river, blocking both Union Pacific and Santa Fe tracks.

Three women were killed in the washroom of a day coach. Bodies of two men and a Negro porter were found near the washroom of another coach.

General Breaks Silence On AAF's "Little Pearl Harbor" At Manila

By RUSSELL BRINES Tokyo, Sept. 27.—(AP)—General MacArthur today broke his long silence regarding the loss of ground of most U. S. airplanes in the Manila area on the very first day of the war with the statement: "Our air forces x x x were hopelessly outnumbered and never had a chance of winning."

MacArthur was prodded into his long-awaited statement by charges made by Lt. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton, commander of the Philippine air force in 1941, in his book "The Brereton Diaries," recently published. Accounts received here said Brereton wrote that he had requested permission of Lt. Gen. Richard K. Sutherland, then chief of staff to assault Formosa. It was from Formosa that the Japanese bombers flew to attack the Philippines. Brereton said the permission was withheld so long that the available small force of B-17 bombers was destroyed on the ground at Clark Field, 90 miles north of Manila.

Decides Against Discussing Meat Problem With Decontrol Board; Will Stand By Truman; President Risks Party Discord In Backing OPA Meat Ceilings

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH Washington, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Postmaster General Robert E. Hannegan tossed orders from Democratic big wigs in the waste basket today and decided instead to go along with President Truman in the meat controversy.

The executive committee of the Democratic National Committee which Hannegan heads, had directed him to discuss the meat shortage with the Price Decontrol Board.

Mr. Truman's risky party discord with congressional elections near, took the stand that there is no need for decontrol actions—and that there should be no price boost either.

Following a cabinet meeting today at which the meat situation was a topic, Hannegan told reporters that after reading the president's statement yesterday he had decided against discussing the scarcity with the decontrol board and other government agencies.

As far as I am concerned, it's all over," Hannegan said.

He added that he had discussed the matter with the president and that he stands by the chief executive's statement "100 per cent."

Hannegan said he had discussed the matter with some members of the party executive committee and that they were in agreement with him that the matter should be dropped.

Secretary of War Patterson told newsmen after the White House cabinet session that the subject of meat had come up in a general way. He did not elaborate.

Today was the first cabinet session since early August.

Emphasizing that he regards the situation as a shortage and not a "famine," Mr. Truman brushed to one side demands of some Democratic leaders for a 60-day suspension on meat ceilings. That period would extend beyond the November elections.

In doing so, the president predicted there will be more and a better grade of meat available in the near future. He said he saw no need for a special session of Congress to deal with the situation.

Mr. Truman blamed the extraordinary large slaughter of cattle and hogs during the July-August lapse of ceilings for the current lack of (Continued on page eight)

Slaughter Says Government Took Bad Beating "Because Nobody Knew What Was Going On"; May Net Nothing From Sale Of Goods

By J. W. DAVIS Washington, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Chairman Slaughter (D-Mo.) of the House surplus property committee said today the government took a bad beating on sales "because nobody knew what was going on."

Slaughter talked with reporters after the special investigating group received evidence that one of the War Assets Administration's sales agents ran up expenses—which the government paid—amounting to 32,650 per cent of its sales.

This agent's contract has been cancelled, as have others. But, Slaughter contended, "these cases should have been caught months before." They involved electronic items, and the committee chief drew an acknowledgment from a WAA witness that the government may net nothing from its electronic goods sales.

Back on the witness list today was John Alheim, government accountant, who supplied the committee yesterday with statistics on sales expense as compared to sales.

Alheim told of instances in which he said sales lagged sharply when entrusted to manufacturer-agents for the WAA. His testimony prompted Rep. Rooney (D-N.Y.) to suggest at one point that perhaps some agents were hoarding government goods until their own products, later and more modern, can be marketed for themselves.

George H. Morisy, director of WAA's electronics division, agreed with Slaughter that he has serious doubts that the government will realize anything from the sale of electronic items after sale costs are taken into account.

Morisy said he thought it unwise, however, to dump all the items on the market now lest industry be upset. He proposed carrying on until next June at least.

Varying estimates have been given as to the original cost of all the electronic surplus—radio, radar, etc. They range from $1,800,000 to $3,000,000,000 and the armed services may yet declare (Continued on Page Eight)

Negotiations Fail As Pittsburgh's Electrical Tie-Up Continues

Pittsburgh, Sept. 27.—(AP)—The power supply in this industrial city "is nearer the danger point today is a strike of 3,200 employees of the Duquesne Light Co. entered its fourth day—with wage negotiations continuing but no new contract in sight.

Public tenseness relaxed somewhat as an early morning union order sent 2,800 streetcar motormen hurrying back to their jobs to man trolleys which had stood idle since 5 a. m. yesterday, crippling the city's transportation system and stranding thousands of workers.

The Pittsburgh Railway Co. announced it would continue to give the limited service it had been offering since the power strike started—50 per cent of normal "off-peak" operation, which meant that about 225 of the system's 1,200 cars would be running.

About 28,000 other workers remained idle as a result of power curtailments.

Electricity in Duquesne light lines overnight was reported at 31 per cent of normal, compared with 40 per cent yesterday and 45 per cent the day before.

Pickets marched in front of the company's power stations and substations, where supervisory workers and officials of the firm tried to keep enough current flowing to supply vital needs. Some power was being furnished by other companies and many concerns put private generating plants in operation.

A negotiating conference late yesterday failed to produce tangible results and representatives of the company and of the Independent association of employees of the Duquesne Light Co. broke off without arranging a new meeting (Continued on Page Eight)

Whole Question Of International Bomb Control To Be Studied

Lake Success, N. Y., Sept. 27.—(AP)—Encouraged by a last-minute Russian decision which makes possible a unanimous vote on a subcommittee report, the United Nations atomic energy commission today prepared to reopen the whole broad question of international control of the atom bomb.

The first actual step in setting machinery going will be taken next Wednesday when the No. 2 (political) committee receives the much discussed report which won blanket approval yesterday in the commission's scientific committee. This move was expected to lead to early sessions of the commission itself.

The 12-nation commission, still standing apart on the U. S. and Russian plans, has been in recess since July, when it asked the scientists to draft a report on the technical aspects of the question. For the last three weeks the committee has been making time while the Soviet representative awaited Moscow's approval of the report. (Continued on page eight)

Forming Of The United Nations Educational, Scientific And Cultural Organization May Be Major Step In Exchange Of Ideas Between Nations

By JAMES MARLOW Washington, Sept. 27.—(AP)—This piece won't quicken your pulse unless you happen to be deeply interested in education and the exchange of ideas and information among nations.

The problem is long-standing. The solution, if there ever is one, is long-range. And it will be slow coming. But at least a start is being made, first of its kind in the world.

Here's the story: There is an international organization called UNESCO, short for United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization. Congress voted for us to take part in it.

This government will send representatives, not yet chosen, to UNESCO's conference in Paris in November. UNESCO's purpose is this: To create better understanding among peoples of different nations by international cooperation of things like education, exchange of scientific developments, and spreading of ideas and information.

At San Francisco, when the United Nations was being organized in 1945, some people thought that the long run UNESCO might turn out to be the most valuable thing done there.

Maybe so. If all the countries which are members of UNESCO sincerely work together, they'll do good. Even if they don't, UNESCO still may be able to do a little good. Spreading ideas, education, and information is a huge task and it's a vast area of the earth still ridden with ignorance. And information is not permitted to flow freely in all countries.

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR. (For DeWitt MacKenzie) Trygve Lie's recent assertions regarding his investigative authority as Secretary General of the United Nations have opened up a new field of interesting possibilities.

They may forecast a day when the Security Council will have before it not only the charges and counter-charges of disputing nations, but also a set of independent facts, gathered by regular U. N. agents, upon which to base its decisions.

Defense Rests In Trial Of Ex-WAC

Frankfurt, Germany, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Former WAC Capt. Kathleen Nash Durant rested her defense today in her trial on military charges of complicity in the theft of $1,500,000 worth of Hesse family jewels from the Kronberg Castle.

Mrs. Durant declined to be questioned on the theft charge and took the stand only briefly to testify on a companion count of being absent without leave from her army post. Her defense was completed in a day and a half, and her attorneys asked a recess until Monday to prepare final arguments.

A defense witness testified that the Hesse jewels were not the only valuables to disappear from the castle after it became a U. S. Army officer's club.

Linda Renfrew Chosen As "Miss Pitt County"

Last night at the armory, the Veterans of Foreign Wars held its Coronation Ball to select "Miss Pitt County" for the six-county Tobacco Festival to be held in Washington, N. C. October 21.

Harb Gupton's orchestra furnished the music, and was well received by everyone of the close to five hundred present.

At ten-thirty, Edw. W. Hearne master of ceremonies, began the floor show. Margaret James, accompanied at the piano by Chris Smith sang "So Help Me." "When we hear Margaret sing, we know the major networks are overlooking another song stylist with a million dollars worth of personality," said the M. C. "and when it comes to a piano Chris Smith knows more about one than Steinway."

Next Joanne Bloom and Alfred Smith brought the house down with their clever song and dance number "I'm A Big Girl Now." Mimi Tripp, Red Oak's candidate sponsored by the Home Demonstration Club sang "My Buddy" to an enthusiastic audience.

Just before the end of the floor show the program went on the air through the courtesy of Radio Station WGTC, and Margaret James sang her encore.

THE DAILY REFLECTOR September 27, 1906

The Chamber of Commerce of Greenville is again a reality. There was such an organization here some years ago, but it was allowed to die a natural death from doing nothing. A good number of business men met in the mayor's office Thursday night and the organization was revived.

Olen E. Warren, proprietor of the Riverside Nurseries and grower of Warren's celebrated James Grapes, will be an exhibitor here next year at the Jamestown Exposition. The exhibit next year will occupy 1,000 square feet in which space specimens of the various fruits will be planted and shown in the several stages of growth.

Miss Harrington Honored at Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Stewart Etnagan and Mr. and Mrs. Travis Flanagan entertained at dinner September 22, honoring Miss Jean Harrington, bride-elect, and Mr. John Miller, Jr. The house was decorated throughout with floral arrangements of white dahlias and fern. The bride's table, covered with a cloth of linen cut-work and rose point lace, was centered with an arrangement of lovely green and white flowers.

Miss Harrington was complimented with a silver vegetable dish. There were approximately twenty-six guests.

Dr. O. F. Herring of Wake Forest will be the guest minister at the 11 o'clock service at Immanuel Baptist Church on Sunday morning. Dr. Herring is teaching in the department of Bible at Wake Forest College.

On Monday night, September 16th, Rev. Clifton Rice of Kinston started a revival at Rose Hill church, and our little church was completely full every night. Mr. Rice brought some of his friends, Mr. Gordon and his daughter Violet, along with him to sing for us and all of us enjoyed their singing very much. Our revival ended September 22 and we hope to have Mr. Rice and his friends back with us again sometime.

Rose Hill now has two choirs, a junior and senior choir. We still are hoping to see more and more come to our choir practice on every Friday night. The little folks in our junior choir are doing very well with the help of Mrs. Three Buck, who is doing a wonderful job of teaching us. Chapter 6 rattled in her hand.

"Oh, no," he muttered. "Oh, no, you don't." He sprang at her, caught her arm as she darted into the hall and dragged her back into the center of the room. She stumbled, caught herself and looked at her wrist in the merciless vise of his hand. She took a moment to catch her breath, then asked, lightly enough, "Is this where I scream?"

"Did you scream before?" he countered. "Did he scream? Or did the first wallop knock him out?"

Her eyes lifted. Surprise and alarm showed in them as they surveyed his face. She made a feeble effort to free her arm. "You'd better make it plainer if you want an answer."

"All right, I'll make it plainer." He drew her, not gently, to the bedroom doorway and opened the curtain again. "Your father won't have to buy him off now. He couldn't say a word against your reputation if his soul depended on it."

"Oh!" Her free hand came up, the fingers straight and rigid; it paused for a quivering instant while she stared in horror at Richard Searle's corpse, then moved to blot out the sight. "Let me go. What could you gain by hurting me?" she asked.

"Hurt you?" He was bewildered until the truth burst upon him with stunning suddenness. He demanded, "Are you trying to accuse me of killing him?"

"I didn't say so. I didn't say anything."

"You didn't kill him? Honestly?"

She hesitated as if she suspected a trick in the question before she shook her head as one in a daze. It was fantastic, yet he couldn't help believing her.

"It was exactly the way I told you," she said. "I hadn't even begun to suspect anything was wrong when you came in."

"That leaves me in a bad spot. I can't for the life of me think who could have done it, but the cops won't have any trouble making up their minds. At least a hundred people know I hated Searle's guts. Pretty nearly that many saw me knock him down an hour ago. Everybody will take it for granted that I killed him." He looked at her. "I didn't, you know."

"I can't think who could have." He scowled. "He must have been killed within the last half or three-quarters of an hour. The time margin isn't wide enough to give me a clear bill."

"I can tell them he was dead when you came in. That wouldn't prove you hadn't been here earlier, of course, but maybe it would help."

"Don't stick your neck out. The rawest recruit on the District Attorney's staff could build a lovely case against you if he had the details. You and Searle were sweethearts once, and all the world has it on high authority that a woman crossed in love is worse than the devil himself."

She had grown paler. "Then you're not the only one who is in a bad spot."

"Murder has a nasty way of trying to fasten itself on almost anyone who happens to be around. But you're luckier than I am, because this isn't your apartment. You can go home and not tell anyone you were here."

"What if they found out anyway? My running away and keeping still would only put me in a worse light."

"That's a chance you'll have to take."

She said with sudden spirit, "I don't see why I have to take it. And if I do, why don't you take it with me? Go away from here, too, I mean, and stay where people will see you, and come back in several hours, and pretend you've just discovered the body."

He considered her words. "You've got something there. If we took the chance together we could alibi each other, besides arranging to have a lot of witnesses see us in a lot of places. But I would not ask you to do it on my account."

"If we're going," she said, "we'd better stop arguing and get out of here before it's too late."

He stood up. "Wait a minute."

He went into the bedroom. There were things he had not noticed in his previous hasty glances. One of them was an automobile tire iron, eighteen inches long, flat and heavy.

He did not touch the metal. If there were fingerprints on it, they would not be his; and he was fairly sure they would not be Barbara's.

But he did touch the folded scrap of paper in one of the dead hands. Reluctantly he opened the fingers, feeling them nearly as warm as his own. Then he jumped and choked back another surge of nausea as the hand and arm swung down and brushed his leg, eerily like the living arm of a restless sleeper.

Now that the grotesque attitude of prayer was destroyed, the corpse seemed less gruesome.

The bit of paper was not going to be of much help to anyone. Martin decided, for it bore only a scrawled notation of his own address. He put it in his jacket pocket.

There was nothing else to be done here, and much to be done elsewhere.

"Can we go now?" she asked.

"As soon as we understand each other," he wiped moisture from his forehead. "It's twelve-thirty. You've been away from the Gold Mine Club just over half an hour. Right?"

She nodded.

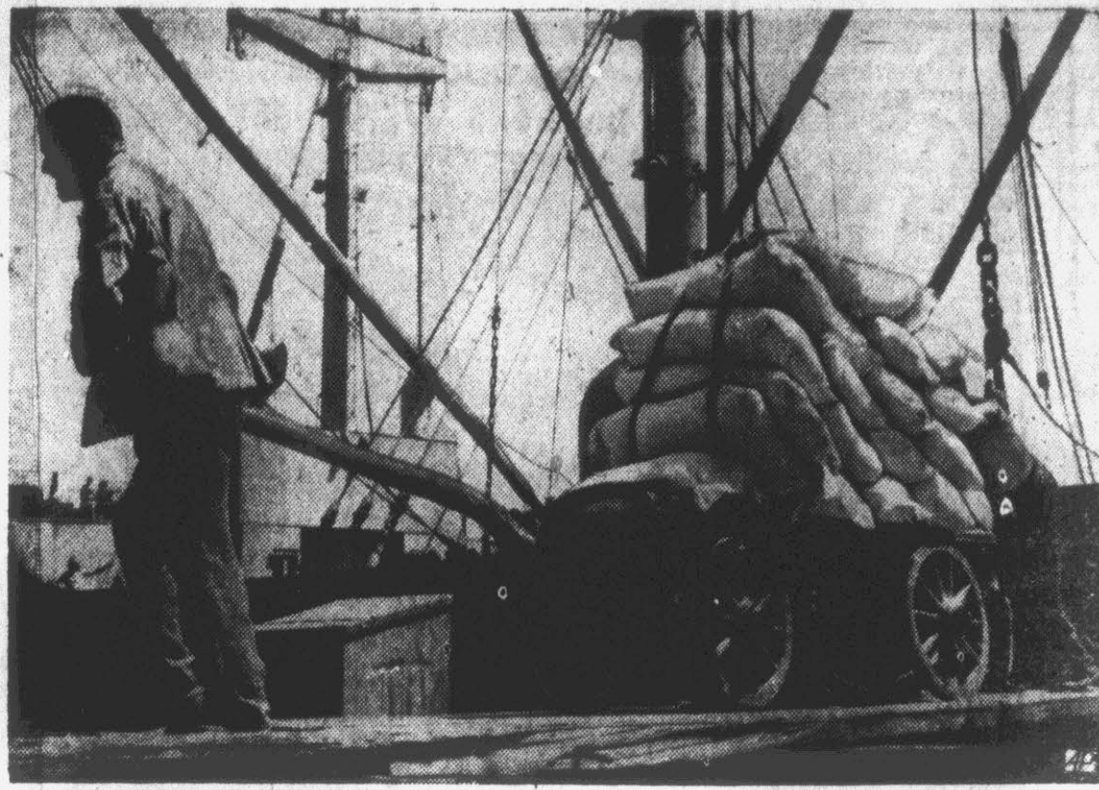

"People saw us talking together there," he said. "We were making a date. All right?"

"It's all right with me."

"You kept our date five or ten minutes after leaving Morrishsey's. I'll take you now to the place where you met me, and arrange to have the time-angle check when someone starts asking questions."

"I'm ready."

He left the lights burning and covered his hand with his handkerchief when he pulled the door shut.

Chapter 7
Dominick Rossetti's Neapolitan Cafe faced on Carmine Street and had a side entrance as well, which one reached through a long, narrow passageway from Bedford Street. Martin and Barbara walked the five blocks from his apartment to the passageway rather than involve a taxi driver in their movements. They had the security of shadows all the way, and passed no more than three or four casual wanderers of the night.

Slipping unobtrusively into a booth at the back, they drew only an inquiring glance from the bored bartender, and none at all from a man studying a racing form and a young couple perched on wooden stools, listening appathetically to the muted radio.

Dominick put down an Italian-language newspaper and left his private table to welcome Martin, a fat hand outstretched expansively, a fat smile elevating a fat black mustache.

"Hello, Marty. Two, three weeks now I don't see you. One time you my best customer. Why you give me the go-by, eh?"

"Blame it on sobriety, Nick," Martin said. "Two rum coolers will help take the edge off that. And bring something for yourself, because Miss Smith and I have a special favor to ask you."

"Anything I can do for hyou, Marty," Dominick assured him, "or for so pretty a lady like Miss Smith, it will make me very happy. You see, I don't forget what you do for me."

Barbara looked questioningly at Martin as Dominick went to the bar. "Why Smith? I thought we were here for our mutual benefit."

"There's always a possibility that things will work out more simply. Whoever did that to Searle may have left clues I missed, or he may come forward voluntarily rather than endure the fear of the hunted. A slim hope; but if it turns out that way you needn't go through the nastiness of a police investigation at all."

"That's thoughtful of you. I suppose you're sure of Nick?"

"Two years ago I did him a service that made him my slave for life," Martin related solemnly. "His daughter Anita—a lovely thing, supposedly the living image of her dead mother—was being married, and Nick hired the biggest hall he could find for a celebration that people still talk about. I was instrumental in getting the police commissioner, three magistrates, a State Supreme Court justice and a Tammany district leader to attend. What's more, I did a feature story with photographs for the Sunday Record." He added inconsequentially, "Anita has five bambinos now, tins and trip-lets."

"No matter what is this favor, Marty, I say yes before I know. No matter how big or little, if I can do it I say yes."

"That's swell of you, Nick. It's a small thing, but it means a lot to me. How many people have been here in the last thirty or forty minutes?"

"Two, three, maybe six. Nobody special."

"If anybody should ask you, will you say that I came here with Miss Smith at a few minutes before 12?"

"Before 12," Dominick repeated. "I am sure before 12. Who will want to know?"

"Probably the police."

Dominick lowered his left eyelid, puffed out his lips around the cigar and nodded understandingly.

"It's a little trouble of my own," Martin emphasized. "Miss Smith knows nothing about it. I didn't do anything wrong, but some people may think I did."

"Sure," Nick said. "Sure, Marty, you didn't do it. How could you, when you come here ten minutes before twelve with your girl friend, Miss Smith? We drink to her, eh?"

Martin lifted his glass. "To my girl friend."

Before they told Dominick good-night, Martin telephoned Lee Dexter at the latter's room in the Martgrave Hotel. Dexter's voice sounded tired.
"Do you feel well enough to do something for me in the morning?" Martin asked.
"Anything short of physical labor," Dexter answered, a bit wryly. "I'm conserving my energy to show off on my hundredth birthday."
"This won't make you sweat a drop. I want you to send someone around to knock on my door as early as possible—a messenger or anybody on any pretext that occurs to you. And I don't want you to tell anybody that I asked you."
"Go to bed, Marty, and sleep the sleep of the innocent. My emissary will wake you betimes with a message suggesting you try for a job on the Chicago Dispatch, where a lot of poor souls wind up after they've been booted out of New York."
Martin hung up, satisfied. Whoever knocked on his unattached door in the morning would almost certainly note the disorder within the living room, and either discover Searle's body or cause it to be discovered. And Dexter could be depended upon to say nothing about this call, even after he learned its cause.

HUMANITY'S PRACTICAL HANDBOOK

The Bible is the most widely printed book in the world, but it is not the most widely read. Many people regard it simply as a collection of pious sentiments, useful in their way of interest to pious people but of very little interest to hardened, practical men and women of the world.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Washington—Press agents spend a lot of thought, time and money trying to impress the press, and there's nothing sadder than when their efforts misfire.

The lady pilot steers a tugboat between Cuba and Florida. It usually carries bananas. The day she steamed into Washington it carried 10,000 cigars which the press agents said were to be presented to Senator Warren Austin of Vermont.

Warner Bros. invited newsmen to come to a sumptuous luncheon at the Statler for the unveiling of their new movie "Night and Day."

It isn't only press agents, however, who find their best-laid plans gang aft agley. Reporters assigned to cover the Labor Department bought a bottle of bonded bourbon as a going away present for popular Albert Abrahamson, assistant to Secretary Schwelienbach.

UNESCO . . .

UNESCO's November meeting in Paris, what will they propose? When it approved our joining UNESCO, Congress also authorized the creation in this country of a body to advise the government on what we should try to do in UNESCO.

This commission has just finished a 4-day meeting here which was the meeting here. That meeting was the first of its kind ever held in this country, since the commission is the first organization of its kind ever created here.

It will have other meetings, but at this one it made recommendations on what it thought our delegates to UNESCO should seek. The recommendations went to the State Department which sponsors the commission.

Here are some things the commission said before it adjourned last night: 1. It thinks an international conference should be called next year to lay down standards for revising school textbooks to rid them of prejudices and misunderstandings.

2. It wants UNESCO to make real use of the press, radio and motion pictures to promote understanding among peoples and nations.

3. It wants the United Nations to set up a world wide radio network capable of bringing educational and cultural programs to a countries.

4. It wants UNESCO to work for the removal of blocks to free flow of information. (This is quite a job, too.)

5. It wants a world wide lending library for countries whose libraries were knocked off by war or which never had good libraries.

When she got back home she discovered thieves had broken into her house. They, too, were looking for scarce articles, Mrs. Junge said. They stole her supply of sugar, raisins, coffee—and a 15-pound roast which she had left cooking in the oven.

WILSON WYATT WINS DISPUTE

Differences between Small and Wyatt stemmed from the housing expediter's repeated cuts in non-housing construction despite Small's protests that such projects already were started for materials.

Finally Small proposed that Wyatt take over enforcing the limitations. At a recent news conference the CPA chief said his agency planned to give NHA some of its funds and field force to do the job. Wyatt balked and appealed to Steelman.

Steelman, in a brief statement last night, said "the only agency that is competent" to exercise the priority and allocation powers over materials is the CPA.

He added that the government is committed to a "number of important programs among which veterans housing is the largest and most difficult."

Steelman's Edict Gives CPA Unwanted Responsibility

Washington, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Housing Expediter Wilson Wyatt came out on top today in a dispute with John D. Small, the civilian production administrator, over which should bear the responsibility of control over non-housing construction.

Under an edict by Reconversion Director John R. Steelman, the CPA must:

1. Continue to exercise priority and allocation powers over materials for such construction, instead of shifting these powers to Wyatt's national housing agency.
2. Stay in business until November 31, instead of winding up then as Small hoped to do. CPA's legal life extends to March 31.

Texas Flood . . .

Forty-nine persons perished, 14 others were listed as missing, and property damage totaled $7,500,000.

After this disaster the city built an elaborate flood prevention system, including Alamosa's dam and the San Antonio river cutoff.

Property damage was estimated at millions of dollars and literally thousands of residents were made homeless by the flood waters. More than six inches of rain fell in 12 hours.

Cloudbursts and continuing rain have caused the tragedy. Elaborate flood control systems surrounding San Antonio have been of little help.

They were erected to divert waters before they flowed into the city. Waters responsible for today's disaster came from rains, which overtaxed sewers could not drain away.

Flood waters behind the Almosa dam reportedly reached a depth of 35 feet and traffic across the dam was halted by police orders.

Turned into a raging torrent, Alamosa Creek inundated much of the southwestern portion of the city. Woodlawn Lake, overflowing for the second time this month, marooned many residents in that area.

Early today police broadcast appeals for boats and outboard motors after army authorities had placed a number of amphibious vehicles and rafts into service in sections of the city.

In response to frantic calls for help from the San Jose area off Roosevelt Road, where more than 50 persons were reporting clinging to rooftops shortly before 7 a. m. Capt. C. L. Scott and a detail of city and military police were dispatched to the scene.

Here Is the Latest News about Chevrolet Deliveries

Everybody from factory to dealer is doing everything that can be done to speed deliveries to you

We have been informed by the Chevrolet Motor Division that the past month has witnessed only a slight improvement in the rate of production of new Chevrolet passenger cars. As a result, shipments of new cars to dealers for delivery are still far below the level we and the factory had hoped to attain by this time. In fact, through August, Chevrolet's output of cars in 1946 was only 22.6% of the number turned out during the corresponding period of 1941.

We know that Chevrolet is doing everything possible to step up its production totals—to ship more and more cars to us and to its thousands of other dealers throughout America . . . and we know, too, that we are assured of getting our full proportionate share of the current output and of future production gains.

Disappointing as the total figures have been—and despite the fact that Chevrolet was out of production entirely during the first three months of the year—it is nevertheless true that Chevrolet led all other manufacturers in production of passenger cars during June 1946, and has continued to maintain a lead in total production from that day to this.

We shall continue to make deliveries of new Chevrolets to our customers just as fast as we receive them; we regret delays as deeply as you do; we thank you for your friendly patience and understanding; and we promise you a new high motoring experience when you take delivery of your new Chevrolet, giving BIG-CAR QUALITY AT LOWEST COST!

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Sept. 27—(AP)—Tired-looking stocks generally dozed at slightly depressed levels in today's market, although scattered issues managed to keep on the rising side after the rally sessions.

Trends again veered toward the last and recessions were widespread at the close. Transfers of around 1,000,000 shares were the smallest since late August.

MEANDEERING MATTRESS

Laurel, Mont., Sept. 27—(AP)—After canvassing several towns, Mrs. Alice Hamlett finally found a suitable mattress in Miles City, bought it, and started home.

Wind blew the mattress off the truck bringing it to Laurel, and by the time the driver went back to look for it, the mattress had disappeared.

A few days later a Wyoming tourist delivered the mattress to Mrs. Hamlett, explaining that he found it on the highway and checked Miles City store to discover the purchase.

Zale And Graziano Meet In Middleweight Scrap

By SID FEDER

New York, Sept. 27—(AP)—An explosion goes off in Yankee Stadium at 10 p. m. (EDT) tonight and the fellow who walks out of it all in one piece—whether it's titleholder Tony Zale or challenger Rocky Graziano—wins up with the middleweight championship of the world.

That's how most folks figure this taffy-pull in which the 32-year-old ex-Indiana steel-puddler puts his crown on the line for the first time in his five years as champion against the young tough-guy challenge of 24-year-old Rocky the Rock and his rock-a-bye punch from the sidewalks of New York's lower East Side.

From all you hear along bash boulevard, it practically has to wind up with one or the other hearing the birdies sing some time along the 15-round derby route.

In spite of all you hear concerning the holler about that poor old man Zale being served up to the rock-a-bye punch just for target practice—that's how the local folks feel about this contest of skill and science where Rocky the Rock is concerned—this corner likes the Hoosier hammer to hang onto his crown, simply because of his experience and his body-punching ability.

The benevolent bookmakers figure the East Side swatter is going to wind up on top, although they're not nearly so sure as they were a month or so ago when they made Graziano a 5 to 14 choice off his record of putting seven of eight straight opponents on ice. They've given Tony the double-p and now it's merely a case of taking 15 to 10 if you like Tony and laying 10 to 10 if you're a Graziano man which can't cause nearly as much pain.

Tony won the title back in 1941 by knocking off Al Hostak and George Abrams. Then he went into the navy during the war and came out around the first of this year to cave the roof in for six opponents in a row.

Rocky the Rock, meantime, was fighting a terrific war by winning 41 of 52 strats—in the ring—from 1942 through 1945.

College Football Rouses Interest

The football game between the ECTC Pirates and the Presbyterian Junior College from Maxton which will take place tonight at 8 o'clock at Guy Smith Stadium, bids fair to be a hard-fought contest. Enthusiastic interest both at the college and in town is being shown in this first game of the season for the local teachers.

Approximately 1,000 students and a large representation from the faculty will be on hand to encourage the Pirates. College cheer leaders have been at work for the last few days. Dr. Paul Murray, who is in charge of the preliminary ticket sale, reports that sports fans out of town are showing considerable interest in ECTC games for the season.

Saturday Prediction For Fans Who Don't Like To Get Out On A Limb

By HAROLD CLAASEN

New York, Sept. 27—(AP)—Illinois has been trying to defeat Notre Dame on the gridiron since 1899 and never has succeeded. This forecaster, making the second trip down the 1946 grid highway, predicts the Illinois won't make the grade again tomorrow.

In fact, Illinois has scored in only four games against the Irish and never more than twice in a contest. That won't be enough against the 1946 ramblers.

Army over Oklahoma: The Cadets are hunting for their 20th victory in a row and this will be one of their toughest contests. Oklahoma's reserves are superior to Army's but the Cadet first string rates the edge over the sooner starters. Even if Doc Blanchard is able to play, Army won't have it easy. Army.

St. Mary's over Washington: The "grudge" game of the season with Coach Jimmy Phelan returning with the Gaels to the campus from which he was sent away just a few years ago. St. Mary's.

Michigan over Indiana: Instead of hurting Indiana's chances, against Michigan, the Hoosiers' loss to Cincinnati last week may make them more troublesome. Michigan.

Alabama over Tulane: Mr. Gilmer and Mr. Cook still are playing for Alabama, aren't they? Alabama.

Wisconsin over California: California and its temperature will furnish more opposition than the Badgers got last week from Marquette but they'll be stronger, too. Wisconsin.

Oklahoma A & M over Arkansas: After tomorrow Arkansas will not want to see Penimore anymore. Texas over Colorado: Bobby Layne, the Texas great, is trying to

Midgets Defeat Kinston, 20 - 13

Coach Bill Green's midget warriors whipped Kinston's boys of the same size here last night 20 to 13 in as rousing a grid contest as has been played in Greenville this season.

The boys gave the fans their money's worth last night with spectacular passes, runs, and good line play. Eddie Farley and John Sideris, another of the Sideris football players, led the Greenies running and passing attack. Farley passed to Johnny Aman for the first score in the initial quarter. Sideris, running from fullback in keeping with his family's tradition, continually bulldozed his way through the line for good gains, and in the second quarter broke loose for 60 yards and a touchdown.

In the line, Leon Moore, Jake Higgs, Bobby Bradshaw, and Kent Lee stood out. Midget starters were Larry Flye and Kent Lee, ends; Leon Moore and Tommy Evans, tackles; Jake Higgs and Joe Rowland, guards; Bobby "Harmon" Bradshaw, center; and Johnny Aman, Julian Vainright, Glenn Scott, and Eddie Farley in the backfield.

crum a full season of activity into the first few games just in case the draft board decides he should wear a different uniform come November. Texas.

Tennessee over Georgia Tech: General Neyland has been out of the Army almost a year—and that's long enough to build another of those volunteer machines. Tennessee.

Wake Forest over Boston College: The Southerners have had two disastrous trips to Boston and it is not true that all things come in threes on the gridiron. Wake Forest.

Skippering over the chalk lines in a hurry: Friday night: Georgia over Clemson; Miami (Fla.) over William & Mary, Presbyterian over The Citadel.

Saturday: East—Navy over Villanova, Columbia over Rutgers, Pittsburgh over West Virginia, Syracuse over Boston University, Yale over Kings Point, Harvard over Connecticut, Coast Guard over Rensselaer, Cornell over Bucknell, Maryland over Bainbridge.

South: Cincinnati over Kentucky, Mississippi State over Chattanooga, Vanderbilt over Tennessee Poly Duke over North Carolina State, North Carolina over Virginia Tech, Virginia Military over Richmond, South Carolina over Newberry, Virginia over Hampden-Sydney, Mississippi over Florida. (Last week's record: 25 correct, one tie, three misses).

Junior Phantoms Trim Tars, 7-0

Greenville High's Baby Phantoms chalked up their first victory of their 1946 season when they edged out the Tarboro Juniors 7-0 last night at Guy Smith Stadium.

The lone score came midway in the second period when Billy Goodson swept around right end into pay dirt from the nine. A few plays before "Little" Bland had recovered a fumble on Tarboro's 24 and after a few vain tries at the line Goodson put John Farley with a pass which Farley carried to the nine. On the next play Goodson scored. Bland caught a pass in the end zone for the extra point.

Greenville's life showed up very well. They were outweighed almost ten pounds to the man but several times they broke through to throw Tarboro back for big losses. Briley Hill, and Cox were the defensive standouts.

The Phantoms' starting line was "Little" Bland and Rex Guthrie at ends, Walter Briley and "Rompy" Stark at tackles, Raby Edwards and Winton Hill at guards, and Paul Conway at the pivot. Walter Goor wingback, John Farley blocking back, "Speedy" Sideris fullback and Captain Jimmy Cy at tailback composed the starting backfield.

The Juniors' next game is against Kinston.

'War Of Nerves' As Dodgers Narrow Gap

New York, Sept. 27—(AP)—Baseball's "war of nerves"—the National League pennant race—still raged today, with the difference separating the front-running St. Louis Cardinals and the oncoming Brooklyn Dodgers once more half a game. The Dodgers narrowed the gap yesterday when they defeated Philadelphia, 8-2, while the Cardinals were idle. The Brooks, idle today still have two games to play as compared to three for the Red Birds. The Dodgers meet Boston twice in Brooklyn and the Cards clash with Chicago in St. Louis.

Hank Greenberg, Detroit's hard-hitting first baseman, who yesterday collected his 43rd and 44th home runs, needs only one in each of the Tigers' last three games to break Rudy York's single month record of 18 established in August, 1937.

Hank already has stammed 16 home runs this month, although he has played in only 23 of the Tigers' 28 September games. Although he has reached the 40-mark in four-baggers four times in only one other year has the big first baseman topped this season's total. That was in 1938 when he came within two of tying Babe Ruth's record of 60.

Greenberg has driven in 38 runs to take over the American League leadership in that department with 125, as well as in home runs. Greenberg's pair of round trippers (the fourth time he has hit two in a game this season) helped the Tigers defeat the St. Louis Browns, 6-3.

The battling Brooklyn Dodgers cut the St. Louis Cardinals' National League lead to a mere half-game when they defeated the Philadelphia Phils 8-2 before a capacity crowd of 31,708 at Ebbets' Field.

The Cards, idle yesterday, have three games left to play compared to only two for the Brooks. The Dodgers' victory proved costly, however, since outfielder Pete Reiser suffered a broken bone in his left leg sliding back to first base in the first inning. He was taken to Peck Memorial Hospital for x-rays.

The Cubs came up with four runs in the last half of the eighth to defeat the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-2 and break a third place deadlock with the Braves. As Boston was held to a split by the New York Giants, Mort Cooper nabbed the first game for the Braves 8-0 with a neat three-hit performance, but the Giants won the second 5-4, a pinch hit home run by Sid Gordon in the last half of the ninth decided the issue.

With Mickey Haefner outpitching Jess Flores, the Washington Senators shut out the Philadelphia Athletics 2-0. Joe Grace's walk, Stan Spence's triple and Cecil Travis' accounted for both Washington

Nuernberg Trial Climax Nearing

Nuernberg, Germany, Sept. 27—(AP)—More than 200 correspondents from 10 countries are expected to file and broadcast more than a million words during the two days when war crime verdicts and sentences are handed down by the international military tribunal next week.

For the first time since the capitulation, all German radio stations and at least some of those in Austria will be hooked up to carry four daily broadcasts.

In addition the American Forces Network will broadcast to troops in the occupation zone and four American and one British system have scheduled bulletins and direct broadcasts from the court.

Three commercial concerns—Press Wireless, RCA and MacKay Radio—will be opened 24 hours daily, as will the American Army signal center and British Army signals.

Bernard M. Baruch, U. S. delegate to the commission, termed the unanimous decision a forward motion in our deliberations and added:

"Now let's get on with the main business of the commission—adopting a formula to prevent and punish the improper use of atomic energy. This will be a giant stride towards peace."

Asire from the fact that all nations had been able to agree, some delegations privately questioned exactly how far ahead the report can move the whole problem. The 22-page report, which will be made public next week, was admittedly non-controversial and these delegations held that the major issues of control and inspections still found the U. S. and Russia in marked disagreement.

Hannegan . . .

He also laid a share of the blame squarely at the door of Congress declaring in his news conference statement yesterday:
"If as I urged upon the Congress, the price control legislation had been re-enacted in the early spring, many of these difficulties would have been avoided."
This direct slap at the lawmakers, apparently applying to many Democrats as well as Republicans was not the only political overtone of Mr. Truman's declaration for sticking with ceilings.
Even while the president's news conference was in progress, Mayor Kelly of Chicago was calling for a two-month moratorium on meat price controls. Kelly is a member of Democratic Party's executive committee, which met here yesterday.

Earlier, House Majority Leader McCormack of Massachusetts had demanded that meat controls be lifted for 60 days.

On top of this, the party's executive committee directed Democratic Chairman Robert E. Hannegan to discuss with the price decontrol board and other proper authorities ways and means of increasing the meat supply available to the American people.

Mr. Truman was informed of this resolution by a reporter who said he regarded it as an instruction to seek the removal of ceilings.

When the president replied that he stood on his statement, the reporter asked whether Mr. Truman disagreed with Hannegan.

Waving the paper from which he had been reading, the president said the facts were in there and that if Hannegan disagreed with them then the two men did not agree.

Later Hannegan told newsmen

Maximum penalties would have been a year in prison on each count in addition to the $5,000 fines on each count.

Judge Lindley in pronouncing sentence said "it would serve no purpose to enter a sentence of imprisonment." He cited a portion of his decision which said:
"Violation is ordinarily an economic offense, the seriousness of which is not related to the moral turpitude of the offender."

Mayor David Lawrence summoned the conferees to his office in the city-county building where, after a session which lasted until after midnight, an agreement to resume contract negotiations, today was reached.

The union, asking a 20 per cent pay raise and other benefits, rejected a company offer which would have given them five per cent. The union's demand would boost average base rates from $1.18 to $1.41. The union also, for the second time, rejected a company proposal to submit the dispute to arbitration.

OPA Reverses Cafe Price Ceiling Rule

Washington, Sept. 27—(AP)—Reversing a previous policy, OPA announced today it will allow increases in restaurant ceiling prices on meals and individual items having meat as the base. The price agency announced that it will issue new ceilings for their meat dishes early next week. Until then restaurants will be required to observe their June 30 ceilings.

OPA's previous order to roll back the prices to the former June 30 levels brought a storm of protests throughout the nation. Many restaurants and hotels said they would be forced to shut down.

Lewis Doing Well After Operation

Washington, Sept. 27—(AP)—President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers underwent an emergency appendicitis operation today and afterward his physician reported he came through the operation all right. His son, Dr. John L. Lewis, Jr., telephoned this report to K. C. Adams, editor of the Mine Workers Journal. He described his father's condition as good. Dr. Lewis did not perform the operation, but witnessed it.

Washington, Sept. 27—(AP)—Government attempts to head off a new maritime strike threatened for next Monday gained momentum today with AFL union acceptance of invitations to attend negotiating sessions here.
