Call For Review Of

London, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Winston Churchill today denounced Russian policies in what he called the communist Balkan bloc and accused the Soviet Union of departing from many of the Big Three agreements reached at Yalta and elsewhere.

Both he and Prime Minister Attlee agreed that major powers had misused their veto authority in the United Nations Security Council. Attlee called for a review of its use so the council could fulfill its original intention.

Freely admitting deep differences with Russia, Attlee declared: "Nevertheless, we believe it is not only possible, but essential for us to work together in order to prevent the calamity of another war."

Churchill, following his successor in the highest office, said:

"The Polish government in no way represents the Polish nation. Conditions in Yugoslavia are sinister and melancholy. The whole country is being converted as far as possible into a communist area."

I hope all Greeks who wish for the survival of the country will help the new regime and government and that that government will be continually broadened to include all who prefer freedom to the ruin and destruction in a communist Balkan bloc."

The wartime leader criticized both the United States and the British labor government for their treatment of Palestine. He declared there was no definite British policy for the Holy Land.

He called on the United States to share some of the Palestine burdens, declaring:

"It is not fair that the United States should not share in the task and should reproach us for our obvious incapacity to cope with it."

Attlee opened the second day of the debate by discussing the veto. "His majesty's government is certainly of the opinion that there should be a review of the use of the veto with a view to restraining it to its original intent," Attlee told the House of Commons in the sec-

Doctor Tells Of Heart Massage

Detroit, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Immediate hand massage of the heart can "bring back to life" patients facing death under an anesthetic on the operating table, Dr. Hamilton Bailey of London, England, told the U. S. Chapter, International College of Surgeons, today.

Dr. Bailey said that, until 1941, he employed adrenaline injections and artificial respiration on patients whose hearts ceased to beat while undergoing operations. Cardiac massage was used only as a "last card."

Dr. Bailey said he developed a 90-second method of heart massage that has proven successful in each of the only three cases he has encountered in the last five years.

He allows the anesthetist 45 seconds to determine that the patient's heart has ceased to beat. Then "in a twinkling of an eye" Dr. Bailey plunges a needle into the heart wall.

If this sudden stimulus fails to produce an "obvious and immediate" heart reaction, Dr. Bailey performs a rapid incision, requiring only a few seconds, and begins squeezing the heart with his hand.

Forensic Salvos

Each Of The Big Three Have Outlined And Defended
Positions Taken During The Past Year And A Half;
Time At Hand When They Must Compromise

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.

After a year and a half devoted largely to maneuvering for position, in which the nations have made greater use of public speaking than of actual negotiation, the time has come which should determine whether they have actually developed a will for settlement of major problems.

Ernest Bevin's speech yesterday, which turned out to be more of a defense of the British Empire than a statement of British over-all policy such as had been expected, was the last of the Big Three forensic salvos begun by Secretary Byrnes at Stuttgart early in September.

Aside from taking the same position as Byrnes against continued one-way concessions to Russia, and in calling for either fulfillment or revision of the Potsdam agreements, Bevin spoke in the main of Britain's conduct in imperial matters. He was more gentle with the Russians than Byrnes, but rejected the idea that Britain's role is one of mediation. As the United Nations Assembly the Security Council, the Foreign Ministers, the Atomic Control Commission, the Social and Economic Council and all the other agencies come together in one place, the various attitudes, expressed or implied, seem to be:

Russia—to appeal directly to restive peoples everywhere, using the various meetings as sounding boards for spreading her ideology; to work for general peace simultaneously with and after seeing how far she can strengthen her own position but not before.

Britain—to escape the complete loss of spheres of influence which have meant almost as much to her as the actual components of her empire, yielding where she can but not to the point of exposing her vital interests; to work toward general peace (Continued on Page Four)

Criticism Of Loans Affects U.S. Stand

Financial Aid To Russia And Others Who
Brand Dollar Credits As "Enslavement"
To Be Dropped Says Byrnes

Washington, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Russia's request for a $1,000,000,000 American loan appears doomed today unless Soviet leaders cease their criticism of United States foreign economic policy.

Although Byrnes maintained that the United States does not intend to follow a general policy of refusing aid to the Slavic nations, officials acknowledged that the only criticism of American motives thus far has come from Russia and its neighbors.

These officials said too that since Russia has led the attack on American economic policy, it is only logical that this government's attitude will extend to the Kremlin's own bid for financial help.

The United States currently is awaiting Russia's reply to a third American note on the subject, sent some three months ago. Soviet refusal to agree in advance to limit any loan talks with an examination of economic conditions in eastern Europe has stalled actual Russo-American negotiations.

Not Wanted

Miami, Fla., Oct. 23.—(AP)—Eighteen Estonian refugees who sailed 6,000 miles from Sweden to Miami in a tiny fishing boat were told today by immigration authorities that they had 24 hours in which to decide where they were going, and if they failed to make a decision they would be taken by train to Ellis Island, New York, and sent by boat back to Sweden.

Capt. Felix Tandere, leader of the group, told the immigration official that he was now awaiting word from Canadian immigration authorities as to whether or not they would be permitted to accept an offer to live on a 39-acre farm near Toronto, and from Cuban authorities on a similar offer from a plantation owner.

Trans World Airlines today announced it is furloughing approximately 15,000 employees without pay as a result of the walkout of 1,400 TWA pilots three days ago.

Announcement that only a skeleton staff will be retained until the strike is settled was made by TWA President Jack Frye as a new wage dispute threatened American airlines.

Frye, renewing his plea that the government take over TWA and get it back into operation, said the line "is forced immediately to furlough without pay approximately 15,000 of its employees, working in 23 states and 15 different foreign countries."

Trains Crash In Heavy Fog

Many Injured As Elevated Express Rains
Stopped Train

Chicago, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Between 240 and 270 persons bound for work were injured today, about 10 seriously, when an elevated express train rammed the rear of another during heavy fog.

The crash occurred during the morning rush hour at the 47th street station on the southside. Both trains were derailed but were in no danger of falling to the street.

From 1,300 to 1,500 passengers were on the two trains. Police reported many of them crowded the station platform, delaying removal of the injured.

So jammed with milling, confused passengers was the platform and its stairway that firemen used hook and ladder equipment to climb the structure.

Ray Darling, a conductor of the forward train, said the train had left its previous stop four blocks away ten minutes late and that it had stopped to pick up passengers at the 47th street L station when the crash occurred.

Ambulances and fire equipment so congested the 47th street area that all street car and automobile traffic had to be re-routed. Every available South Side ambulance rushed victims to eight hospitals.

At least 100 other passengers received first aid treatment for minor cuts and bruises at the scene.

NEW DEADLINE IN ULTIMATUM BY UMW CHIEF

Lewis Sends Strike
Threat In Demand
For Early Talk With Krug

Washington, Oct. 23.—(AP)—John L. Lewis stepped up the tempo of his attack for fresh wage concessions from the federally operated soft coal industry today, whipping out a sharp new ultimatum to Secretary of Interior J. A. Krug.

In typically crisp sentences, Lewis told Krug to meet him in Washington on November 1—and no later—or face a walkout by Lewis' 400,000 soft coal miners 20 days earlier than the November 20 deadline set previously.

The 68-year-old boss of the AFL United Mine Workers Union thus underscored his demand that Krug reopen the whole question of wages, hours and other matters involved in the Lewis-Krug agreement which followed the government's seizure of the pits last May 22.

Meanwhile, labor experts looked for possible repercussions from this pre-winter controversy which could affect Pennsylvania's 75,000 hard coal miners. Almost the entire hard coal output goes into heating homes and buildings.

If Lewis is successful in his demand for renewing wage negotiations for soft coal miners, similar demands may be expected of the hard-coal producers—and Lewis can open his hard coal contract on 10 days' notice.

The hard-coal producers signed an agreement with Lewis last June almost paralleling the Krug-Lewis contract for the soft coal miners. Far from being soothed by two (Continued on Page Five)

Eleven Die In Flames As Farmhouse Burns

East Hampton, Conn., Oct. 23.—(AP)—A mother, her nine children and a grandchild were burned to death early this morning when fire destroyed an old farmhouse on Clark Hill Road here.

The mother was identified by State Police from the Colchester Barracks as Mrs. Edward Nelson. The names of the children were not immediately available.

The State Police said the fire started at about 2 a. m. and apparently was caused by the explosion of an oil burner.

Girl Scouts Share In Community Chest

(This is the first of a series of articles from the eight participating agencies.)

By MRS. W. P. MOORE
Girl Scout Commissioner

The Girl Scouts are more than a million girls and women in 7800 communities who have united in the largest girls' organization of its kind in the world. For almost thirty-five years Girl Scouting has been helping girls grow up to be better home makers and better citizens.

Girl Scouts range in age from seven to eighteen. Brownie Scouts, the seven to ten-year-olds, pledge themselves to "Help other girls at all times, especially those at home."

Like all Scouts they meet every week with a leader.

Your Girl Scout organization in Greenville offers girls a way of life that develops in them self-reliance, resourcefulness and initiative—qualities always necessary for good citizenship.

During the past year the Girl Scouts have rendered useful service to their community. They have assisted in March of Dimes, U. D. C. Flag Day and Poppy Day. They have given programs at the Pre-conditioning Center for the Blind. They have made and filled Friendship Bag for Scouts in other communities, sending boxes to Poland, B. I.

glum and the Philippines.

But Girl Scouting isn't all service. Camping and outdoor recreation, sewing, cooking, child care, training in health and safety practices, dramatics, arts and crafts are some of the many phases of the Girl Scout program.

As an agency of the Community Chest, the Greenville Girl Scouts take this opportunity to thank the citizens of Greenville for their loyal support.

Lewis Said Nazi Tool In Opposing Roosevelt

Fantastic Scheme Disclosed By Assistant Attorney General; Nazis Favored Candidates Running Against FDR

Swarthmore, Pa., Oct. 23.—(AP)—A fantastic Nazi-backed scheme to thwart the reelection of President Roosevelt in 1946 by having John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers (AFL) come out against him, was disclosed by O. John Rogge, special assistant to the U. S. Attorney General.

In an address delivered at Swarthmore College last night Rogge said "this scheme involved Hermann Goering, a Nazi agent by the name of Joachim Hertel, and William R. Davis, a promoter of the oil business."

In Washington, Lewis declined to comment on Rogge's remarks. Davis, described by Rogge as a peace emissary for Goering in September 1939, died Aug. 1, 1941, after a colorful career.

The Justice Department official added that other attempts were made by the Nazis to prevent Roosevelt's reelection in 1936 and 1944. One included the establishment of an "America committee" in the German foreign office by Joachim von Ribbentrop, Nazi foreign minister recently hanged for war crimes.

Rogge said "The Nazis always preferred the one who opposed President Roosevelt. They preferred in turn Landon, Willkie, and Dewey. They had a strong preference for Dewey. They did not particularly like Willkie, but they felt any President would be better for their purposes than President Roosevelt."

Rogge based his statements on information gathered from captured Nazi documents and interviews with high German officials during more than a month abroad. He quoted Goering and Hertel at length on the alleged Lewis-Davis tie-up in connection with the 1940 election. Hertel recalled three conferences he said Davis had with Goering between Sept. 30 and Oct. 4, 1939.

The justice official said "Goering remembered his meetings with Davis and 'recalled that they had discussed Mexican oil and using the influence of John L. Lewis to defeat President Roosevelt for reelection in 1940.'"

Rogge declared "this is the substance of what he (Goering) had to say on these subjects: 'Davis talked to me about John L. Lewis and that one ought to reach an agreement with him. He was the one who was (Continued on Page Six)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—(AP)—OFA virtually ended wartime price controls over food and beverages today.

The agency removed price lids from all foods and beverages except sugar, syrups and rice, effective at one-minute past midnight tonight.

At the same time price ceilings were lifted from all sales of food and beverages by restaurants and other sellers.

Principal items freed by the sweeping action include flour, bread and bakery products; canned fish; candy; bananas; oranges; canned tomatoes and tomato products; canned pineapple and pineapple juice, breakfast cereals, macaroni and spaghetti.

Small made this qualified prediction in an address prepared for the Cotton Textile Institute, to which he appealed for cooperation in obtaining full production of all needed goods—not just those assuring high profits.

As a reward for such cooperation, he held out the prospect of an end to government controls over the industry (Continued on Page Five)

Merchants Make Christmas Plans

By CHESTER WALSH
There are only 53 more shopping days until Christmas and the Merchants Association is already making plans to decorate Evans street a block each way on Third and Fourth streets; Fifth street from the High School to Five Points and Dickinson Avenue from Five Points to the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad tracks. At a meeting of the Merchants Association directors Monday night, President Charles E. Blair stressed the importance of having decorations this Christmas in line with other Eastern Carolina cities.

John W. Glover, chairman of the Christmas Street Decorations Committee, made a detailed report of plans and funds already contributed by stores and other business places. He suggested that a Santa Claus parade for the children be arranged.

President Blair announced the names of 14 new members who have affiliated with the association this year.

Executive Secretary Mrs. Cora B. Powell reported on the recent meeting of the Associated Credit Bureaus of North Carolina, which she attended in Asheville.

U. S. ASSERTS VIEWS HIDDEN

Accuses Russia Of Suppressing Protest
On Balkan Vote

Washington, Oct. 23.—(AP)—The United States accused Russia today of forcing the suppression of an American protest concerning elections in the Balkans.

The action—coinciding with the opening of the United Nations general assembly in New York—was disclosed by Lincoln White, State Department press attaché. He made public information received from Maynard B. Barnes, American political representative in Sofia, Bulgaria.

Barnes reported that Soviet Col. Gen. Biryusov Sergi, Russian representative on the tri-power Bulgarian control commission, had issued oral instructions to suppress the American protests which were made public here two days ago.

He said that Sergi issued those instructions without consultation with the British and American representative on the control commission.

On orders from the Bulgarian ministry on foreign affairs, he declared, the Bulgarian ministry of information then instructed the Bulgarian press not to publish the correspondence on the point.

The correspondence dealt with American allegations that safeguards for political freedom are lacking in connection with Bulgarian elections set for Oct. 27.

The five-part exchange was among Secretary of State Byrnes, Bulgarian Prime Minister Kimon Georgiev, and the American and Soviet representatives on the Bulgarian control commission. It had been made available to the Bulgarian press by the American mission in Sofia.

Self or its friends—has made the smaller nations dissatisfied.

If the veto power is to be removed from the Security Council, the start must be made in the General Assembly. Here's the story.

When U. N. was formed at San Francisco in 1945 it was divided into two main bodies: the security council and the assembly.

In the assembly there's no veto. All 51 member nations have one vote. It's like a big debating society. It deals in things like human welfare, food, education, labor or other international problems. majority votes make decisions.

The security council, on the other hand, has the job of trying to prevent the outbreak of war. If two nations get into a quarrel, which may lead to trouble, the security council is supposed to settle it very peacefully.

Quiet Throngs Watch Procession Of Dele- gates Formally Wel- comed To City; Tru- man To Speak At Opening Session Emphasizing "Pa- tient But Firm" For- eign Policy

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
New York, Oct. 23.—(AP)—The United Nations Assembly was formally welcomed to New York today in a subdued demonstration along Manhattan streets and at city hall prior to President Truman's opening session speech later in the afternoon.

Russian Foreign Minister Molotov was ranking diplomat in the 96-car procession which carried delegations from the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel downtown to city hall.

Secretary of State Byrnes remained at his hotel and President Truman was due from Washington by plane only about 20 minutes before the scheduled first session opening at 4 p. m. (EST).

Former Senator Warren R. Austin, chief American delegate to the United Nations, told the city hall crowd, which police estimated at 25,000, that "we will not permit small differences to interfere with the pledge to promote peace and abolish war."

He said the United States was willing to furnish money, men and whatever else might be needed for its part in the peace cause.

Deputy Mayor Thomas Corcoran extended the formal welcome to the delegates as "ambassadors of peace and freedom."

A few scraps of paper fluttered from skyscrapers as the motored wheeled slowly along Broadway, but there were no showers of torn pages and tickers in the traditional manner of the big city's welcome to heroes. The scene today was restrained and Assembly President Paul H. H. Smith said perhaps people were justified in not being "wholly enthusiastic" about United Nations at this time.

Window Displays About Accidents

Delegates At UN General Assembly Will Take Up Veto Issue, Says Analyst, With Little Effect; Power Will Remain Despite Handicaps It Presents

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Oct. 23.—(AP)—The diplomats, without showing their teeth too much, will soon bite into one of the important questions of our time: the veto.

You can be pretty sure nothing much will come of it. There will be talk, diplomatic talk, most of it polite, maybe some a little peevish.

When the words die away, the veto will stay.

All this will happen at the meeting of the United Nations general assembly which opens today in New York. The veto question is to be discussed there.

The veto—the power of one big nation to block the desires of all other nations, big and small, by simply voting "no"—occurs only in the security council, not in the assembly.

This overwhelming power of the veto by a big nation—which thus can prevent U. N. action against

Attlee told the House:

"If we are to achieve a peaceful world, states of diverse character must be prepared to tolerate each other and work together."

He said the veto was not designed for constant use whenever a particular power was not in full agreement with others. He complained also of the use of the security council as a propaganda instrument.

The prime minister said that "we are deeply separated from Russia on the value we place on the liberty of the individual, freedom of speech and our conception of democracy."

Referring to Spain and demands for British intervention in Spanish affairs, he commented:

"I suppose I have as much dislike of the Franco regime as anyone in the house. All the evidence at my disposal point to the conclusion that the threat of external interference has strengthened Gen. Franco—a very deplorable result."

joined him. "So far I've managed to keep my reputation stainless, but—" "Guess what," Martin interrupted. "I'm accepting Ennis' pressing invitation to go back to the Record providing I can be city editor and have you for an assistant." "Don't do it," Doran warned. "Smart as I am, it's all I can do to unravel the snarl my assistants make for me. Think how helpless you'd be to cope with a saboteur of my diabolical ingenuity." "Dominick loomed over them, solemnly respectful. "Hello, Marty, my friend. This time you not forget me, eh?" "No, Nick, nor the favor you did for me. Meet Bill Doran, a good guy but not too bright." They ordered beer, and when Dominick had served it, he withdrew to answer the phone. "What time were you really here, Marty?" "About half an hour after I found the body." Doran shook his head gravely. "I was afraid of that. I was pretty sure you were headed for home when I left you. You know, Marty, if they're keeping after Nick they'll be checking on who else was here and asking them questions, too." "I suppose so. But no one paid any attention to us." "You can't tell. A good-looking girl usually draws attention. By the way, how in the devil did you happen to pick up Barbara Ennis? I thought she was poison to you." "I didn't pick her up, Bill. She was in my place when I got there." "Good Lord." "She was in the living room. The place was already torn up and the front door jimmied. Searle was lying on the bed in the next room pretty much the way he was found this morning. She didn't know he was there."

"Are you sure she didn't?" "As sure as I can be. Searle phoned her to meet him at my place and she'd just got there and found the door open. He'd told her I had those letters and would try to make trouble with them."

"No wonder Ennis was as nervous as a pup at a cat show," Doran said wonderingly. "One word from you would put him and his daughter in a mess they couldn't get out of in a lifetime."

"I'm not saying the word," Martin said. "Neither are you; the only other person who knows somebody else was in that apartment ahead of Barbara and me and if the homicide boys don't beat me to it I'm going to find out or bust a gusset trying."

"If I didn't know you better," Doran said, "I'd suspect the worst. You talk like a man in love."

"I am," Doran whistled softly. Dominick came out of the phone booth and bore down on them, panting. "For you, Marty. A man."

It was Dexter and he was worried. He asked, "Did you hide anything up here in the rooms, Marty? Those letters you had, for instance?" "No, Why?" "Someone must have thought so. I just came in to find the place ransacked—carpets ripped up, beds torn to pieces, baseboards sprung and all the rest. As thorough a job as I ever saw; but I can't find out that anything's missing."

"Morrissey," Martin guessed. "He was around this evening threatening to turn on the heat if I didn't give him his letter. I put him out."

Dexter groaned. "It gets worse as it goes along. Besides getting in bad with the hotel I've got to worry about being in bad with Morrie. What do you think I should do?"

"Call someone at homicide. Always cooperate with the police, especially about things they're bound to find out anyway. Incidentally, thanks for helping me out of the calaboose."

"Why not come up and bring Doran?" "We'll grab a cab right away," Martin promised. As Martin paid off the cab driver in front of the Margrave, the caddy said, "You're Martin King, aren't you?"

Martin nodded. "I figured somethin' like that," said the caddy, "from your pitcher in the papers. Look, Mister, a hacker sees plenty, but if he's smart he keeps his mouth shut. Molder is out of my line, but I could tell you a little thing if nobody was to know where it came from."

"You can depend on me." "Well," said the caddy, "last night around midnight I'm cruisin' around the village. I know your place from the paper, see, and I'm right in front of it when a big blonde flags me down. Maybe she come out of your shack and maybe not, but I pick her up and take her home."

Martin asked, "What's unusual about that?" "I know this blonde. I've drove her other times—from the Gold Mine Club."

Martin was all attention now. "A fat blonde," he said. "Fifty if she's a day. She wore a blue gown."

"I don't remember the rags, but she's fat and fifty." "And drunk?" "Einko. She balls like a baby all the way and falls flat on her face when she's gettin' out. I helps her to her apartment on the second floor. The name on the door is Messmer."

County Teachers Hear Educators

The Pitt County Teachers' Unit of the North Carolina Education Association, meeting in the Austin auditorium at aEst Carolina Teachers College Tuesday night, heard talks by a number of well known educators of the state.

Appearing on the program were Dr. Amos Abrams, editor of North Carolina Education; Ethel J Perkins, secretary of the State Education Association; Don H. Conley, superintendent of Pitt County schools, and Dr. Dennis H. Cooke, president of East Carolina Teachers College. Dr. Cooke discussed with teachers of the county what they should expect East Carolina Teachers College to offer them in field service and other aids in their work.

L. L. Murray, principal of the Belvoir School and president of the Pitt County Teachers Association, presided at the meeting. Music was furnished by the department of music of the college, with Dr. Karl V. Gilbert in charge.

Striking Seamen

(Continued From Page One) 30 per cent wage increase. Capt. Oliver said the negotiating committee included representatives of locals in New York, Boston, Norfolk, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Savannah, Charleston, Jacksonville, Mobile, New Orleans and Galveston. CIO Marine Engineers, meanwhile, continue voting today and tonight on ratification of an agreement reached by their leaders and the ship operators yesterday for ending the eastern and Gulf phase of their strike.

While officials of the union, the Marine Engineers Beneficial Association, said they expected "almost unanimous" approval of the pact by the union's 18,000 members, the Houston, Tex., local late yesterday voted to strike "all water-borne commerce" by 12:01 a. m. tomorrow.

Trains Crash

(Continued From Page One) enue police said that the motorman of the second train, who was seriously injured, was "undoubtedly" blinded by the dense fog which lay over most of the Chicago area this morning.

Forrest Franks, conductor on the second train, and Louis J. Nesvig, motorman on the forward train, both reported that the rush hour crowding of passengers prevented more from being injured. Nesvig said the cars were so packed that few people fell.

A strike of Chicago Motor Coach Company bus drivers has diverted many bus riders to elevated travel.

Report Cashier Has Signed Admission

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 23.—(AP)—State Banking Commissioner Gurney P. Hood said last night he had a signed statement from Claude Harrill, cashier of the Maxton State Bank, in which Harrill admitted responsibility for a shortage of $24,000.

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

SOUND AND LIGHT

Someone has remarked that although sound travels about 1,100 feet a second, and light 187,000 miles a second, people nevertheless put more reliance on sound than on light. In other words, they have more confidence in talk than they have in wisdom.

One need only look at certain pivotal points in human history to see that issues have very seldom turned on reason. Someone arises with a few catch phrases and an eloquent tongue and people are more willing to follow such a leader than they are to follow the person who shows them how to pick their way through inconsistency and error. The exciting periods of world history have not been those when men, after due consideration of events, decided upon a course of action, but when, after being stirred by propaganda, eloquence, and mob spirit, they have plunged into some irrevocable action.

Down through history, however, runs the narrow road of reason, along which a few brave spirits in every generation walk. There are some people in the world who love light more than they love sound and fury and who are willing to follow light in spite of every temptation to surrender to their feelings. Light travels further and faster than sound, and this physical fact is more significant than may appear on the surface.

WASHINGTON LETTER

QUARTERMASTER WATCHES HIS BUDGET LIKE ANY HOUSEWIFE
By JANE EADS

Washington—The Army's Quartermaster Corps plans the menus and buys the food for about 2,500,000 military personnel at home and abroad, but the Surgeon General's office says how many calories they must get.

The requirement for men in the armed forces in this country runs between 3,600 and 3,800 calories a day. It is a little higher for overseas, where much of the food is processed. The Army calculates caloric requirement on energy expenditure. The average civilian requirement runs about 3,100 calories.

The Quartermaster General's office plans master menus for breakfast, luncheon and dinner which meet the requirements as closely as possible. A lot of different factors enter into the planning, such as seasonal products, market conditions and whether foods are plentiful or scarce.

For instance, the Army didn't buy a pound of meat until the middle of July this year because of high prices. Officials explain that the Army has a budget too, same as housekeepers.

Perishable foods are purchased by twelve market centers scattered about the country, with a main field headquarters in Chicago. Each center serves the camps in its area.

The master menu is generally followed, but each camp has a post menu board which adjusts its menu to availability of foods in its area and the tastes of the men in that particular camp. Soldiers from the South like hominy grits, for instance, and soldiers from the north usually like spinach better than collards.

Non-perishables are purchased through a depot system, with three main offices situated at New York, Chicago and Stockton, Calif.

The Quartermaster General's office buys for all the services, Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard.

In June this year, a normal month, the Army shipped 19,605,000 pounds of meat abroad. The bulk of this was beef. Due to the meat famine in July, however, only 15,011,000 pounds were shipped.

Canned goods are all procured along about now, the season for canning.

Butter is all bought in the high production months of May and June. The Army contracted for 23,884,000 pounds this year, but has not yet been able to fill all the requirements due to the shortage.

Bread for men in the armed forces is all made in the field in mobile bakeries.

Diplomats . . .

If some nation insists on going on the warpath, U. N. is supposed to throw the combined armed forces of U. N. against that offender to literally crush it, if necessary.

But only 11 nations are represented in the security council. Six of them, small nations, are elected by the general assembly for short terms.

Five of the council's 11 members are permanent members. They're not elected. They were there from the start. They'll stay there as the Big Five: United States, Britain, France, China.

When the council votes on important matters—like one nation abusing another—a majority vote makes decisions provided—and this is the important point—all five of the Big Five vote "yes."

Even though the other 10 nations on the council vote "yes," if one of the Big Five votes "no"—that's the veto—then nothing can be done about the problem upon which the council is voting.

Since the council has been voting—that's almost a year now—Russia has used its veto six times. Now there's dispute as to whether the U. S. used the veto once. The point is not clear. It's technical.

In spite of all that has been said—and plenty has—against the veto, the big powers still want it. Each of the big powers, when it can use a veto, can protect itself against the other big powers.

There's been no indication that this government or Russia or England or France is willing to surrender its veto power.

In order to eliminate the veto from the council, this would have to happen:

Two-thirds of the assembly would have to approve a special conference to decide about ending the veto. Two-thirds of that special conference then would have to approve ending it.

Two-thirds of the 51 N. nations—including the Big Five—would then have to approve it by action of their legislatures or congresses or parliaments or central governments.

If one of the big five nations refused to approve, then the veto would stay. No one thinks the U. S. Senate, which would have to do the approving for this country, is in any mood to kill our veto in the council.

Forensic Salvos . . .

but not to be caught out on a limb if it doesn't work.

The United States—to carry on a crusade for democracy and economic development on a world-wide basis, cooperating with Russia and Britain where possible but in opposition to them where necessary; to avoid war, but also to establish bulwarks from which to fight the spread of Communism.

The small nations—to have their relations with the big nations judged without regard for military or economic strength, but on the basis of right.

This outline is of course subject to many qualifications. The U. S. is playing a far higher pressured game of international politics than it suggests. The imperialism which Britain is trying to preserve is vastly changed in spirit since the days of the old trading companies. A good argument can be made that Russia, regardless of what one may think of her methods, is sincerely striving toward the betterment of man's living conditions. Some small nations, already trapped, like some men on relief during the depression, don't seem to be striving too hard for individualism.

But that is, in a general way, the situation as the nations gather. Now we may find whether those who have been fishing in troubled waters consider them fished out and a period of calm more desirable; whether there is to be atomic control or an armaments race; or whether equal access to the world's goods can be established, or whether national pride and lists of possessions are to be preserved or expanded at the expense of casualty lists.

Dr. Meadows Treated In Prison Hospital

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 23—(AP)—After suffering a heart attack at Central Prison yesterday where he is serving a three-year sentence for embezzlement and false pretense, Dr. Leon R. Meadows, former president of East Carolina Teachers College, was being treated in the prison hospital today.

Warden Hugh Wilson said that Meadows' wife had been notified and planned to visit her husband today.

The Force that Supports the World's Biggest Bridge...

OIL-PLATES Your Engine!

In the great San Francisco-Oakland bridge, a tremendous tug-of-war goes on continuously between gravity and molecular attraction. Because the attractive force between the molecules in the cables balances gravity's down-pull the bridge stays up.

Through continuous experiment with the mighty forces of molecular attraction, Conoco scientists are able to produce new and better oils for America's motorists. For instance, by utilizing forces of molecular attraction, a special ingredient of Conoco Nth motor oil is bonded to working surfaces of your engine, so that cylinder walls are OIL-PLATED.

And because molecular attraction holds Conoco OIL-PLATING up where it belongs...prevents it from all draining down to the crankcase, even overnight... you get these benefits:

- added protection when your engine starts up
- added protection from corrosive action
- added protection from wear that leads to fouling sludge and carbon
- added smooth, silent miles

That's why to OIL-PLATE now...at Your Conoco Mileage Merchant's. Look for the red triangle. Continental Oil Company

Grain Market

Chicago, Oct. 23—(AP)—Removal of price controls from flour failed to stimulate buying in wheat today and the bread cereal tended to work lower. Feed grains were ahead at one time but declined later in the session. Wheat closed unchanged to 1/4 higher, January $2.04 1/2, corn was 1/4 lower to 1/2 higher, January $1.40 1/2, and oats were 1/4 lower to 1 cent higher, November 83 1/4-1/2.

New York Cotton

New York, Oct. 23—(AP)—Cotton futures opened 65 cents to $3.25 a bale higher than the previous close. Noon prices were $1 to $2.25 above the previous close. Dec. 34.26, March 33.90 and May 33.35. A last-minute rush to buy the May position brought advances up to $7 a bale in cotton futures before the close today. Other deliveries likewise were stimulated by late demand. Earlier the market had developed a higher pattern under extensive mill buying. Futures closed 5.85 to $7.30 above yesterday's close.

federal offers to talk things over—voiced by Krug and by Navy Capt. N. H. Collison, Federal Coal Mines Administrator—Lewis yesterday toughened the terms of his challenge to the government on the grounds of alleged "breach of contract."

Krug, off on an extended tour through the southwest, said Lewis could meet him at Tule Lake, Calif., if the UMW chief insisted on a conference November 1. Otherwise, Krug said his engagements, arranged weeks ago, would prevent him from returning to Washington until after November 6.

"The best possible way you can convince the American people and their government that textile controls are no longer needed is to produce and sell a maximum amount of the fabrics we need most."
It is the surest and quickest way to get rid of government controls.
Observing that some persons feared consumer demand would soon slacken, making production above pre-war levels unwise, Small said he disagreed.
"While customers may not knock your door down a year or two from now, they will still buy your goods," he remarked.
Small said that either "fear" or over-zealous profit taking could interfere with the present "golden opportunity of prosperity for years to come." He continued:
"There is a great deal of talk these days about a so-called 'inevitable' slump or recession which is supposed to hit this nation some time next year. Such talk it seems to me, is selling America short."

Elusive Convict Back In Prison

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 23—(AP)—Elusive Hosea Parker, 30-year-old Negro, was back in Central Prison today after making the first successful escape from Central Prison since 1937.
After escaping over the 36-foot prison walls early Saturday, Parker was recaptured by a prison guard, but he knocked the guard down and got away again, and he almost escaped a third time when officers at Smithfield, who arrested him for public drunkenness, failed to recognize him. Prison Warden Hugh Wilson said.
According to Wilson, after being arrested in Smithfield Saturday night, Parker was tried under the name of Edward Bullock Monday on the drunkenness charge and fined $10 and costs or 30 days in jail.

the procession—frequently in silence. Here and there polite applause crackled along the sidewalks as Assembly President Paul Henri Spaak, Molotov and others passed in their limousines.
With permanent peace as their goal and the split between America and Russia as their foremost worry, the delegates of 51 United Nations gathered today to hear President Truman open their first great assembly on American soil.
By plane, train and ship they have been arriving in this new "world capital" all week. Mr. Truman, with a 2,600-word speech in his brief case, was due in during the afternoon. Secretary of State Byrnes preceded him last night. But aides said Byrnes' only active part in today's round of opening ceremonies probably would be a brief, extemporaneous speech at a United Nations luncheon.
It was generally thought that Mr. Truman would take the opportunity to support and emphasize the patient but firm foreign policy toward Russia laid down by Byrnes in his report to the nation last Friday on the Paris peace conference.
Mr. Truman was due at LaGuardia Airport from Washington about 3:40 p. m.—only 20 minutes before the scheduled opening of its shiny new—but perhaps temporary home—on New York's 1939 world's fair grounds.
Foreign Minister Paul Henri Spaak, assembly president, was

Notre Dame Given New Strength By Pollsters

New York, Oct. 22—(AP)—Boosted back to first place among the nation's football teams a week ago by the country's sports writers, Col. and Black's Army team slipped farther out in front in the Associated Press weekly poll today.

At the same time Notre Dame boosted its second place margin over Texas and Tennessee, North Carolina and North Carolina came skipping up the trail off their successes of last Saturday.

All together, 136 sports writers from every section of the country allotted in this third week of the Associated Press poll for the 1946 gridiron season. Texas drew 25 less votes for first place than it did a week ago, in spite of its 20-0 win over Arkansas last Saturday, and Notre Dame dropped 10 off its top-place selections.

Army picked up all of these 35 and more besides, when it crushed Columbia 48-14 and handed Lou Little's Lions their first setback of the campaign. They already had defeated Villanova, Oklahoma, Cornell and Michigan.

As a result of all this, Army piled up 112 first-place picks, and an additional one-quarter top-spot vote cast by an undecided ticket-splitter who couldn't make up his mind among the Cadets, the Irish, the Longhorns of Texas or the Quakers of Pennsylvania for the place at the head of the parade. With each voter balloting for 10 teams, Notre Dame finished with 21 1-4 first-place votes and Texas with 13 1-4.

The Volunteers of Tennessee, up-setters of Alabama, picked up six top selections along the way. The only other outfit to be named to lead a ticket was the coast conference favorites from the University of California at Los Angeles, who were selected on two ballots.

Based on a system of 10 points for a first place vote, 9 for a second place pick, 8 for third, and so forth, Army rolled up the tremendous total of 1,499 1-2 points, one of the largest in the history of the poll. Notre Dame held second with 1,331 1-2 and Texas third with 1,262 1-2.

Standings on the top ten teams (first place votes in parentheses):

1. Army (112 1-4) 1,499 1-2
2. Notre Dame (21 1-4) 1,331 1-2
3. Texas (13 1-4) 1,262 1-2
4. Tennessee (6) 898
5. U.C.L.A. (2) 800
6. Pennsylvania (1-4) 699 1-2
7. Georgia 548
8. Northwestern 418
9. Michigan 418
10. North Carolina 110

(x-Tied for 8th place).
The second ten: 11—Alabama, 75; 12, North Carolina State, 62; 13—Duke, 59; 14—Oklahoma, 55; 15—Georgia Tech, 53; 16—Rice, 43; 17—Iowa, 42; 18—William & Mary, 14; 19—Oregon, 12; 20—Harvard, 11.

Nine Initiated Into Delta Kappa Gamma

The Delta Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma, national honorary society for women teachers, initiated nine new members into the group at a meeting held in Greenville on Saturday afternoon, October 19, in the New Classroom Building at East Carolina Teachers College. Initiates were Laura Bell, Louise Galphin, and Mrs. H. W. Mims, of the Greenville city schools; Reba A. Proctor, supervisor in Pitt County schools; Lois Grigsby and Louise Williams of the faculty of East Carolina Teachers College; Mrs. Newman Lewis of Chicago; Oma Bliss Lewis of Grimsland; and Mrs. Carl Shelton of Washington.

Elizabeth S. Walker of Rocky Mount, member of the library staff at the college here, was installed as president; and Julia McNairy of Tarboro, as parliamentary.

A luncheon at the Proctor Hotel in the city preceded the initiation ceremony. Present for the occasion were 38 members of Delta Kappa Gamma from Tarboro, Farmville, Washington, and Greenville. Dr. Lucile Turner of East Carolina Teachers College, state president of the society, talked on events of the national convention of the organization held during the summer months in San Francisco. Ruth Modlin of Greenville gave a birthday toast to the Delta Chapter on its ninth anniversary.

Elizabeth Hyman, representing members of the chapter, presented to Mrs. Luther Herring of Greenville a silver tray in recognition of her services in the public schools. Mrs. Herring, formerly librarian at the Greenville High School, retired last June.

Child Safety Talk Heard By Rotarians

By WYATT BROWN.
The Rotarians had a program on child safety Monday night in viewing some pictures with synchronized comment on the subject of accidents and their causes and methods of prevention. This program was in cooperation with National Child Accident Prevention Week being sponsored by the Travelers Protective Association and sponsored locally by Post EE of the TPA. Martin Swartz provided the pictures and projected them. Further in cooperation with this accident prevention week is the Rotary sponsored window display at Belk-Tyler's store.

Rotary President Judson Blount presented each Rotarian with a pamphlet entitled, "In the Minds of Men," published by Rotary International. The publication gives the constitution of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization together with interpretive comments and questions.

Dr. R. T. Moore was a guest of the club. Visiting Rotarians were Troy Ferguson of Raleigh and Kaleb Bell of Washington. President Judson Blount presided. John Fleming was program chairman.

Manuel Ortiz Loses Decision To Chavez

Los Angeles, Oct. 23—(AP)—In a toe-to-toe slugfest match that left 10,000 spectators hoarse from cheering, world bantamweight champion Manuel Ortiz discovered last night that he's out of his class as a featherweight.

He dropped a unanimous 12-round decision to Carlos Chavez of Los Angeles, California featherweight titlist. The bantam king—an El Centro, Calif., rancher in his spare time—came in at 125, a pound less than Chavez. He had trouble all the way with his more rugged opponent's body blows, and was victim of a knockdown in the second round, although most ringers thought he only slipped.

Because of the help shortage Nelson said, he must "set the ads, the news, run the press, do job printing, wrap, mail and deliver the papers and sleep a little every other night."

FAIR OFFER

Centralia, Ill., Oct. 22—(AP)—Mayor O. W. Wright offered today $1 for a ticket for an event which occurred nearly 100 years ago.

Carl Comstock of Peatonica, Ill., wrote the mayor that he had a ticket for the Illinois Agricultural Society Fair, which was held in Centralia on Sept. 13, 1858. "Make me an offer," Comstock wrote.

Wright said maybe the ticket would be the start of a municipal museum.

DUKE FIELDING STRONG TEAM AGAINST ARMY

No Let-Up In Crucial Games For N. C. Teams In Week Ahead

By the Associated Press
Duke University's Blue Devils will field some fancy stepping gridders against Army at New York Saturday, but there's still a big question down south whether their rebounding eleven even at best will be able to match yardage with the undefeated Cadets.

Successive wins over Navy and Richmond by decisive margins show the Blue Devils to be on the march after early season defeats by N. C. State, present Southern Conference pace setter, and the mighty Tennessee Volunteers—each by only one touchdown.

Capt. Charles E. (Bill) Milner, Duke's nationally recognized star guard of 1943, will be among the topnotch players to face the Cadets, along with George Clark, Howard Hartley, Buddy Mulligan, Leo Long and Buddy Luper, a real array of talented backs.

Milner comes from Waynesville, N. C., a town that supplied Duke with Fred Crawford, an all-America tackle of 1933.

Wake Forest, which dropped from the undefeated ranks at the hands of N. C. State last week, will encounter a progressively tougher foe in Tennessee at Knoxville, but may be this will be the game that "Red" Cochran and Nick Sacrinty really catch fire in their passes. Last season, the Volunteers barely squeezed by the Deacons, 7 to 6.

North Carolina's Tar Heels, undefeated but once tied, will be favored over the University of Florida Gators in the Chapel Hill homecoming Saturday in another inter-sectional contest. The Florida eleven's visit will be something of a homecoming for Coach Raymond "Bear" Wolf, who coached the Tar Heels from 1936 to 1942.

Clemson continued overtime work for its Thursday State Fair meeting with favored South Carolina at Columbia. A morning workout concluded its home preparations and the squad will arrive in Columbia this afternoon.

Furman reported a sellout in prospect for its game with Georgia at Greenville, S. C., this week. There was no letup elsewhere as Davidson prepped for Hampden-Sydney at Davidson, and George Washington for Rutgers at New Brunswick.

Saturday's intra-conference games send Richmond against Washington and Lee at Lexington, N. C. State to Virginia Tech at Blacksburg, and Virginia Military Institute against William and Mary at Williamsburg.

Jackie Robinson To Go Into Basketball

Los Angeles, Oct. 23—(AP)—Jackie Robinson, Negro baseball star who led the International League in batting last season, moves into professional basketball ranks this winter.

Robinson, onetime backfield star on the U. C. L. A. football team, has signed to play with the Los Angeles Red Devils, newly organized cage club affiliated with the national pro league. Owner-Coach Jack Duddy of Pasadena said Robinson has already started practicing with the Red Devils for a schedule of games which opens here Nov. 8.

PIRATES PLAY NAVY SCHOOL

ECTC Footballers Play In Newport News Friday Night

By CHARLES BRACKEN

East Carolina's Pirates will travel to Newport News, Va., Friday where they will engage the Naval Appointee School in a game to be played there Friday night. The Naval School should prove to be a tough assignment for the Pirates; but to date it is impossible to make any predictions about the forth-coming game. Coach Johnson has introduced the single wing system along with the highly touted "T" formation, and although it has been used more than a few times it has produced excellent results by upsetting the line play of the opposing teams.

The combined single wing and T formation proved its excellent offensiveness in last Saturday's game against Erskine when it was used in the first quarter of the game. Erskine's forward wall was thrown so far off balance by the unexpected shift that ball carriers were going through their line untouched until they reached the secondary. During the last half of the game the first string did not use the variation at all, and Erskine's line closed in to battle about evenly with the Pirates.

Also, the Pirates have not shown much variation of plays, though they do possess them. They have been especially weak in trying pass plays, although opposing teams have given them excellent opportunities. It is predicted that in the single wing is used along with the "T" formation, and the passing attack is brought to life, the Pirates will really roll.

as political decisions were concerned and was one of the few people who understood Germany's position.

"He presented himself as a very good friend of John L. Lewis. He said me that Lewis was very influential; that he was backed by the trade unions; and that he was very important for a positive attitude towards Germany. Davis told me that by the use of his influence on Lewis, he could influence the elections in such a manner so that the reelection of Roosevelt which, in his opinion, would mean war, would be prevented."

Harris May Be Yankee Mentor

New York, Oct. 23—(AP)—Stanley "Bucky" Harris, a suave baseball diplomat, is the new manager of the New York Yankees—that is if the latest rumor is true.

Harris, appointed executive assistant to Larry MacPhail, Yankee president, a month ago, was said by the Daily News to have been "sold" on the post at a secret meeting yesterday. The News reported the confab was attended by Bucky MacPhail, Will Harridge, president of the American League, and Charley Dressen, present Brooklyn coach, who the News said, had been named Harris' No. 1 aide.

The Movies Today

Pitt—"THREE LITTLE GIRLS IN BLUE" Technicolor Musical.

State—"WHY GIRLS LEAVE HOME" with Lola Lane.

MacPhail termed the story "pure cock and bull."
"I don't know who the Yankee manager is going to be," fumed Larry. "And if I did know now I wouldn't tell anybody."
Neither Harris, Harridge nor Dressen was available for comment. The News related that Harris, before the World Series, twice turned down the managerial post, but during the Series games at Boston, confided to a close friend that if the job were offered to him again, he would accept.
