Qualified Nurses Are Sought By VA

Qualified nurses are being sought in North Carolina by the Veterans Administration, according to a statement today by James D. Walters, VA Contact Representative, who said that a critical need for nurses particularly exists at the Oteen VA hospital near Asheville.

A former army hospital at Swannanoa, Moore General, recently was acquired by the VA and is operating as an annex to the Oteen tuberculosis hospital. But, in addition to immediate needs for nurses VA anticipates a long-range program which will lead to more young women turning to the nursing profession. North Carolina alone has been selected as location for four new VA hospitals, in addition to the present facilities at Fayetteville and Oteen.

The minimum starting salary for VA nurses is $2,644.80 annually, said Walters; and interested nurses may obtain more information at any of the VA Contact offices located throughout the state.

Thanksgiving Supper... Accent on Glamour

If ever food was truly "glamorous," it was back in the good old days at Rector's. Sooner or later, every wandering gourmet from here and abroad found his way to our famous Broadway establishment. It was, indeed, a rendezvous for celebrities of every nationality, and often, to pay them honor, we named our very most special dishes after them. Chicken Tetraxini was named in honor of the famous Italian soprano, who was a frequent guest at Rector's. Today's recipe is an adaptation, using turkey.

Turkey Tetraxini—as made at Rector's

1/2 lb. spaghetti; 3 cups cooked shredded turkey; 6 tbsp. Wilson's Certified Margarine; 6 tbsp. flour; 3 cups top milk; 1 (8 oz.) can sliced mushrooms; 3 tbsp. grated Parmesan cheese

Break spaghetti into small pieces and cook in a large amount of boiling salted water (1 tap salt to 1 qt. water) until tender. Drain. Make a white sauce of the next 3 ingredients. Add shredded turkey to one half of the sauce and the cooked spaghetti and mushrooms to the remaining half. Add salt if necessary. Place spaghetti in a margarine-lined baking dish, making a hole in the center and banking it around sides of dish. Pour turkey mixture in the center, sprinkle grated cheese over top and bake in a moderate oven, 375° F., until lightly browned—about 10 minutes. Serves 6.

FOR AN "ELEGANT" SUPPER

If you're just having a family dinner on Thanksgiving Day, this Turkey Tetraxini should inspire you to use your left-over turkey in a supper dish that really calls for having a few friends in to enjoy it with you. It may be baked in a large casserole if more convenient.

An Extra Touch

What to serve with such a luscious main dish? I would suggest pickles, celery, radishes and fruit salad; if you feel the need of a dessert, cranberry sherbet would be appropriate. For a toothsome extra touch, you might also serve breadsticks. If these are not available at your store—

New Rotarians Speak At Meet

By WYATT BROWN

The participation of new members of the Greenville Rotary Club in their own induction was the unique program put on last night by Dr. Carl Adams, chairman of the Rotary Information Committee, after he had made brief remarks about the organizational set-up and the spread of Rotary internationally. Dennis H. Cooke, Robert L. Humber and Dr. B. McKay Johnson were the new members.

New Rotarian Humber was asked to present extemporaneously a brief statement on international understanding. He said that the first thing in international understanding was the quest for knowledge which breeds sympathy—knowledge of each other in a Rotary club inspires understanding and sympathy. He said that due to nations wishing to make peace on their own terms prevented the arrival at a workable basis for peace.

New Rotarian Cooke, president of ECTC, was asked to speak upon the service of the teaching profession. He said that each has a service to render. If one is reasonably successful, one will have been of service. School people, in Dr. Cooke's opinion, have made a greater service than any other group. For business men sell a commodity; whereas teachers impart ideas to others. If that is not service Dr. Cooke said he did not know what service is.

Dr. Johnson, dental surgeon, the other new Rotarian, was called on to present some factual knowledge of Rotary statistics. In conclusion Dr. Adams welcomed the new members and presented each with a copy of the Rotary Code of Ethics and a Rotary emblem pin.

In the course of the program Mrs. P. A. Toll played Iturbide's "The Dance of Spain" as a piano solo. Miss Sally Johnson sang as a vocal solo Melotte's "My Friend," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Toll. Guests last night were little Miss Nancy Adams, Charles White, Jr., and the Rev. H. Frederick Jones retired Baptist minister. Visiting Rotarians were Troy Ferguson of the Raleigh Club and T. B. Young Jr., of Florence, S. C. Bancroft Moseley called the Jaycees' sponsored Thanksgiving Day football game to the attention of the Rotarians. Judson Blount, president presided.

Few Students Stay Behind For Holidays

Only a handful of students will be left on the campus of East Carolina Teachers College after students leave for the Thanksgiving holidays, beginning at noon on Wednesday and extending through Monday morning, December 2. Of the 585 women students living in dormitories only two will remain at the college over the holidays. Members of the college football squad will be on hand for the Thanksgiving game here with the Pope field fliers, and a few men students will spend the holidays on the campus. The college dining room will remain open. Most students will travel by bus to their homes in eastern North Carolina. At least one plans to fly as far as New York for Thanksgiving turkey with the family.

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

LIFE GOES BEYOND THEORY
John Chrysostom, who lived about A. D. 400, was one of the greatest preachers the Christian Church has produced. He received the best education of his day, and under the supervision of his mother Anthusa he was from childhood conditioned to greatness.

One day when he was walking through the crowded streets of Antioch, a child kept following him pleading for bread. Chrysostom, who spent much of his time in the desert in meditation and prayer, was struck by the fact that the world round about him was hungry and that he was doing nothing to relieve its misery. He requested the Bishop of Antioch to allow him to preach the following Sunday. He was known as "The Golden Mouth" because of his superno eloquence. This day, remembering the hungry child, he made a plea for better social conditions, which touched the hearts of all who heard him.

Prayer rests at the very center of true Christian living. Furthermore, we are commanded to separate ourselves at times from the things of the world and to go apart for quiet communion. But Chrysostom realized that he spent too much time reflecting on the problems of human life and too little time in trying to solve them. While he prayed in the desert, men, women, and children were starving in the city. He was doing everything with his Christianity except living it day by day.

The Bible assures us that the eternal life of God is with men.

WASHINGTON LETTER

WHAT A SENATE PAGE BOY WOULD DO IF HE WERE PRESIDENT
By ROBERT L. GEIGER
(For Jane Eads)

Washington — The 15-year-old freckle-faced boy scratched the back of his neck with a pencil and said solemnly that what this country needs is to make some tough decisions, let the chips fall where they may.

The budding statesman is Walter Kaiser, Senate page boy. Walter gained some national attention recently when he made a rousing speech at an American Legion meeting, pinch-hitter for a senator who failed to appear. Legionnaires reported he cracked out an oratorical home run.

He talked of mice and great men, and how easy it is for their plans to go awry. Walter has many ideas about how to correct all that. He's the son of a Bellevue, O., grocer.

"You understand I'm just a page boy in the Senate, with no place really to sit but on the floor," Walter says.

"But a fellow gets a lot of ideas listening for 18 months to Congress. Especially such an historic Congress as the 78th, with war and peace to settle and over it all the Gen. of President Roosevelt."

"You ask me what I'd do if I were president. I don't believe in posing questions or pulling punches, so whoever the shoes fit they can put them on. After all, I don't intend to run for political office!"

First off, Walter says, he'd reduce the national debt if he were president.

"I'd take a definite, decisive step in eliminating sprawling government agencies, wanking down on payrolls and cutting the government budget," he says, thumping the desk in the two-fisted style of Senator Pepper (D-Fla.).

And another thing, he says, he'd keep his nose out of congressional business.

"You know who I'm talking about there," he grins, and then he's the persuasive, suave Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.).

A wise president, Walter says, would balance his administration with both young men and old men: "The old men have wisdom. The young ones have fire and vision. You need 'em both."

advanced, and more people complete high school, it will be wise to let 18-year olds ballot, Walter says, but right now they are swayed too much by oratory instead of facts. He says 18-year-olds should continue to be drafted until the world is more sane.

"We ought to take boys right out of high school and put them in military training for a year," he says. "I advocate compulsory military training. It's foolish for America to again be asleep if an emergency should arise."

OK, Walter. Now what else? Again the gray-eyed youngster scratches his black hair with the stub of a pencil. Then his white even teeth gleam through his inflections grin.

"There's one more very important thing.

"If I were President I'd give the page boys of the Senate two parties every year."

Note To Poland . . .
one can see will continue to be as unproductive as halloxy down a rain barrel.

The toughest truth which the world faces at this moment is that there is nothing in common politically, economically or socially between Russian Communism and Western Democracy. All the quarrels which have been disrupting the allied conferences and the deliberations of the United Nations revolve about that truth. If it weren't for this one difference there could be harmony and there would be no speculation about whether a third world war must be fought.

But to get back to our muttens—Poland and the Balkans. All of Eastern Europe, the Balkans and Central Europe up to the western frontier of Poland has been looted down in Moscow's books as falling definitely and irrevocably within the Russian zone of influence. Greece still is outside the fold, but Communism is after it, and Austria also is a state which the Soviet Union feels belongs within her new political empire.

It would, of course, be wishful employer shut down his plant while the board is working. The union and the employer may dislike the board's decision but must accept it. The courts would back up the board. Labor people, whenever an idea like that has been offered, draw back and say:

"Is that so? You can set up compulsory arbitration but you can't compel men to work if they don't want to."

Maybe so. But if Congress tried to push through compulsory arbitration, it probably would try to set up penalties on unions which refused to accept the board's decision.

Yet Congress would have to be in a pretty stern mood to pass a compulsory arbitration law. It's about the strongest curb on unions that could be passed.

Since our society is continually growing more complex and so many activities affect the public welfare Congress might have severe difficulty drawing a line between an essential and non-essential industry.

while from other steel companies in the Pittsburgh area came announcements of cuts in production.

Spokesmen for a steel company said the industry generally is planning against curtailment of products required in the manufacture of automobiles, farm implements, refrigerators, washing machines and similar products. The automobile industry has not felt the first effects of the coal shutdown.

In Chicago, the Illinois Manufacturers Association said that in Illinois alone the first 10 days of the shutdown would bring a weekly wage loss of 5 to 10 million dollars. If the stoppage lasts 20 days, the association said, the loss would run to 25 millions a week and if it continues 30 days or more, the loss would pass 35 million dollars a week. This loss, the association explained, applies only to the projected loss of coal and does not picture the added losses caused by restrictions on electrical and gas power.

Cadets' Defeat Would Give Irish First Place

Pollsters Nudge Notre Dame Still Higher In Rating; Upset By Middies Would Unseat Black Knights For Leahy

By BOB GRUBB
New York, Nov. 26 (AP)—Army comes up to the Navy game in Philadelphia Saturday still chosen by voters in the Associated Press' weekly football poll as the nation's No. 1 team.

Thus the Black Knights of the Hudson offer Tom Hamilton's Middies one more psychological advantage in the all-important service classic. Added to the incentive of salvaging a game from a so-far disastrous season by blasting the Cadets, the Navy has the chance to topple Earl Black's men from first place in the nation's rankings. Should the Middies accomplish the seemingly impossible by scoring an upset at Franklin Field, they probably will unseat Army from the position it has held every week but one since this season's poll started. Only other holder of the top spot this year has been Ill-starred Texas down to No. 29.

The Irish of Notre Dame have been pushing the Cadets for the first place perch all season and almost got to the top in this week's balloting among sports writers. A Navy victory undoubtedly would send Notre Dame into No. 1 position in next week's final poll of the season.

Third place went to unbeaten Cornell. UCLA took fourth; Illinois held on to fifth place and Georgia Tech dropped to sixth position. Georgia Tech dropped to seventh while Tennessee slipped a notch to eighth and Louisiana State held ninth. Arkansas replaced Southern California's Trojans in the tenth position.

The second ten: 11—North Carolina; 12—Yale; 13—Rice; 14—Pennsylvania; 15—Delaware; 16—Southern California; 17—between Boston College and Oklahoma; 19—Mississippi State; 20—Texas.

Blue Hens Play In "Cigar Bowl"

Tampa, Fla., Nov. 26 (AP)—The University of Delaware will be Rollins College's foe in a past season football game in the Cigar Bowl here Jan. 1.

The Cigar Bowl committee announced last night that the Delaware team, undefeated in 30 straight contests, had accepted a bid to play here in preference to two other invitations.

At Newark, Del., Coach Bill Murray, former Duke University player, said the Blue Hens also were invited to play in the Glass Bowl at Toledo, O., and the Tobacco Bowl at Lexington, Ky., but had turned down both because of their early December playing dates.

The contest is sponsored by the Marine.

Rematch In Title Bout On Tonight

Philadelphia, Nov. 26 (AP)—The long-awaited rematch of Champion Bob Montgomery and his upset conqueror, Wes Moutzon, will be staged at Convention Hall tonight with the New York-Pennsylvania version of the lightweight title hanging in the balance.

Both fighters completed their training programs in tip-top shape and each is out for a knockout in their "prime" fight. Oddsmakers have installed the 20-year-old Moutzon as an 8 to 5 favorite.

"I never felt better," Montgomery declared today. "He may have the speed but I'll let him set the pace and he'll slow down."

Moutzon retorted that "I'll knock him out again because I know I have the stuff to do it."

SUNDAY BASEBALL

Lumberton, Nov. 26 (AP)—Five Lumberton churches and the Rotary Club have condemned Sunday baseball. Lumberton has been seeking a franchise in the Class D Tobacco State League. The schedule may be arranged to avoid Sabbath games for the team.

DUROCHER HAS TALENT PLANS

Dodger's Lineup To See Wild Trading Splurge Says Leo

Brooklyn, Nov. 26 (AP)—All the hullabaloo about Leo Durocher being the highest paid manager in baseball won't mean a thing in Brooklyn if the Dodgers don't win the pennant next season. Nobody knows that better than Leo.

"That's why, before the ink had dried on the new "bigger and better" contract he signed yesterday Durocher was talking of changes in his ball club, nodding wisely when President Branch Rickey predicted a wild trading splurge at the Los Angeles meetings.

Rickey knows what he is talking about because he's been dealing in baseball talent ever since he left the farm to enter Ohio Wesleyan.

"I have had more phone calls telegrams and letters from club owners asking about players than I ever have received in any previous year," Rickey declared. "They don't all want to get some of our men. Some want to unload talents. For that reason I think the Los Angeles meetings will be the most productive in trades."

With Pete Reiser on the doubtful list because of last season's injuries and help needed at third base, Durocher is prepared to do plenty of shuffling.

WELL-MATCHED CONTEST SEEN

Thanksgiving Day Game Here To Be Stiff Fight

When the ECTC Pirates lock horns with the Pope Field Flyers of Fort Bragg at 2:15 at Guy Smith Stadium on Thanksgiving day, they will meet a team with a record only slightly better than their own. The two teams, according to previous wins and losses, are well matched, and Thursday's contest should be full of thrills for the fans.

Coach Jim Johnson of ECTC is confident that the Pirates are going to put up a stiff fight and give the Air Corps squad trouble. "We have a fine chance to win," he says, "and we are going to be in there trying."

ECTC has three wins in the credit column, having defeated PJC, Erskine and ACC. The Pirates tied ACC early in the season, and have lost to WCTC, Elon, and Lenoir-Rhyne. The Pope Field squad has won 5 games, tied 1, and lost 1.

The game, which is being sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce of the city for the benefit of the college athletic fund, is expected to be widely attended, for no other Thanksgiving contest will be staged at the same time in this section of the state.

Here's How You May Help, Whether You Eat 500 Pounds or 2000 Pounds of Food In a Year

You can't feel cheerful, be happy or sleep well, if your stomach is always upset. As age advances the "acid" stomach needs more help. NOW SHE SHOPS "CASH AND CARRY"

Without Painful Backache
Many doctors relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 quarts of urine each day.
When disorder of kidney function permits excess matter to remain in your blood, it causes aching backache, rheumatic pains, a loss of pep and energy, getting up stiff, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, and other distressing symptoms of acute or chronic kidney trouble. It is a disease of the bladder.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Don's. It's used successfully by millions for over 10 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 million of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Don's!

1665? No...1943!

It was Naples, when the Americans were coming in, Naples, wracked by contagious Typhus—penetrating as a dust storm, relentless as an avalanche, and deadly as any plague in history. Known in epidemic form in every war, and in every country on earth, this lice-borne disease attacked a crowded, crissing Europe.
Just as the pestilence was getting under way, Naples fell and American medical personnel stepped in. And in the chaotic days which followed, though Italians were dying on all sides, NOT A SINGLE AMERICAN SOLDIER DIED OF TYPHUS!

The same incredibly successful preventive program was applied to civilians. Thousands were inoculated, dusted with an efficacious new powder, instructed in techniques of isolation and clean living habits.
The epidemic ended as quickly as it had begun. And as the news got around, hope dawned on Europe. Huddled millions took courage from reports and turned their bloodshot eyes heavenward, praying that this great force delivering so many from disease would soon arrive.
It arrived. The willing hands of Army Medical personnel extended to every one—no matter what his flag, creed, or color. They reached into damp bomb shelters, prison camps, and vast masses of displaced persons.

The skill of American medical science, combined with the foresight and brilliant organization of the sprawling Army Medical network, has not only saved countless lives in the past. It is saving lives now. It will save lives again and again in the years to come. Its laboratories, hospitals, and traveling commissions are making almost every corner of the earth safe for the Army man. And—incidentally—safe for millions of civilians as well.

This epic drive for improvement is in progress throughout the new Regular Army. For young men looking for a career humming with research in fields of world-wide importance, a healthy career made safe by free medical and dental care at the hands of an alert corps of experts—there's nothing to compare with an Army job.
It is important for every American to know that the proportion of deaths from disease in World War II was just 1/20th of that in World War I, due for the most part to the efficiency of the hard-working U. S. Army Medical Department.

Dig Another Grave

By DON CAMERON

Chapter 31

"Morrissey attached an exaggerated importance to his misworded note when he learned of the murder, realizing it might direct suspicion at him. While he may not have worried about the electric chair, he knew that the mere mention of his name in connection with murder would start the reformers howling and hurt his business. He tried to get the letter by bribing and threatening me; he searched Dexter's rooms or had them searched; and when he thought I was trying to connect him with Clarabelle's murder, too, he imported those Philadelphia hoodlums to deal with me."

Dexter, more perturbed than Martin had ever seen him, appealed to Cloud again. "Marty must have been thinking up this one for quite a while, did you believe him?"

"He hasn't got a thing to me," Cloud replied. "But I'm impressed. He's reached the fast part now though, King, why would Dexter kill his ex-wife if he loved her?"

"It is hard to explain," Martin said. "You have to visualize both sides of Dexter clearly in order to understand it. You see, he killed her because he loved her."

"At first he hoped she'd say nothing about seeing him in West Fourth Street, because he was going to support her. No doubt he arranged to get more money from Morrissey to do that, perhaps in return for telling Morrissey that Barbara was guilty and suggesting that the secret could be used to make an ally of Ennis. I think both Morrissey and Ennis believed Barbara was guilty. Didn't you, Morrie?"

Morrissey nodded. "Unluckily," Martin continued. "Dexter discovered that it would take more than money to keep Clarabelle quiet. She had a natural talent for talking too much and drinking made it worse, and Searle's murder monopolized her mind. Dexter knew I was going to see her yesterday and was afraid of what I might find out. He waited for me to leave and then went in and learned that she had talked about that blackmail scheme, which Dexter must have explained to her—and other things that would interest the police and possibly put him in jeopardy."

"Dexter would think not only of himself, but of her, too—of what would become of her if he went to prison. Broke, friendless, a dipsomaniac, she would end in dirt and rags and depravity. Whether she died in a public or in an asylum, it would be a thousand times worse than if she died here—worse for her and worse for him, in prison and helpless to do anything about it."

"He talked her into writing that note, probably pretending it was his own confession for her to use in case of need. Later he showed good judgment in repudiating the suicide stage-acting he had so hastily prepared. I'd just told him there was some question about it being suicide, and he knew that his opinion wouldn't change your mind. Cloud, if you accepted it as authentic, and if you had seen through it, he wouldn't be in the position of seeming to aid and abet a fraud. And it wasn't likely that anyone could prove he hadn't been in the main reading room of the library among hundreds of others of whom no one took any special notice."

There was naked pain and grief in Dexter's eyes and a dawning conviction in other eyes all around the table. But Dexter made an effort.

"A pretty story, but I can't see a shred of proof in it. And God knows I'm not going to confess to a fairy tale, not even to oblige a man who used to be my friend."

Cloud said, "You spoke of proof, King."

"I haven't forgotten. It fits in here, and it comes under the heading of criminals' stupid mistakes. In effect, Dexter confessed to the murder of Searle when he mentioned finding the body next morning with the hands clasped as if he'd been praying. Something clicked in my brain then, Cloud, but it didn't come clear till you spoke of the District Attorney praying for action."

"I'll be damned," Cloud muttered.

"I missed it."

Dexter looked from one to the other. "What's wrong with it? I saw the body and as I remember it, even now, that's how the hands were."

Martin said plyingly, "I know, Lee. That's how I remember it, too. First impressions are hard to forget; they seem to be stamped into the brain by emotional force. When I found Searle, just after he'd died, his hands were clasped and there was a slip of paper in one of them. I took the paper and accidentally moved the hands. The police photos will show that next morning, when you'd like us to believe you first saw the body, the hands weren't clasped; the left one had swung down beside the bed—a detail you wouldn't be apt to notice, but which I'll never forget, because when it happened it scared me half to death."

Color suffused Dexter's cheeks; he rose impetuously. Cloud stood up also, and Detective Haggerty, behind Dexter, overturned a chair in scrambling to his feet.

"Of all the cheap dramatics—" Dexter began. He coughed and sat down again suddenly, his hands clutching at his chest, his face turning a greenish hue.

"Whiskey!" Cloud shouted. "Hurry, somebody!"

Hemingway sprinted for the bar and brought back a bottle and a glass. With Doran steadying him, Dexter gulped half a glassful. He coughed again and rested his elbows on the table and put his face in his hands.

After a moment he mumbled, "What's the use? Nobody can win with a ticker like mine. You're right, Marty. I killed them both—and the rottenest thing I did was to accuse Barbara. Ten to one I won't live through the trial, let alone burn or serve time. All you'll have to do is dig another grave."

Friendship—Three Thousand Miles Apart

Ever play chess? It's a great game! One of the strongest friendships I know of started with a game of chess—between Dad Hoskins, in our town, and a man named Dalton Barnes, in England.

They've never seen each other, never met. But for the past eight years they've been playing chess by mail together—Dad puzzling over Dalton's latest letter, while he sends a chart of his next move to England.

Dad always thinks best with a mellow glass of beer beside his chessboard. And the Englishman writes him that he does the same—"You know, it's almost as if we shared a glass of beer together, too!" says Dad contentedly.

From where I sit, you can talk about diplomacy and foreign policy, but it's often these little things—like a game of chess or a glass of beer—that can make for tolerance and understanding... between people of all nationalities... between neighbors here at home!

CHILD SOLVES TRIESTE ISSUE

Seven-Year Old Offers Byrnes Solution To Problem

New York, Nov. 26—(AP)—Seven-year old Michelle Etcheverry awaited a reply today from Secretary of State Byrnes to the letter she wrote offering a solution to the Trieste problem which she believed would "set everything all settled and peaceful."

On Nov. 16, the girl, whose father Pvt. Alfred S. Etcheverry was killed near Luxembourg last January wrote the following letter to Byrnes (her spelling has not kept pace with her interest in world affairs):

"Secretary of State Byrnes:

"Waldorf Astoria Hotel New York, N. Y.

"Dear Secretary Byrnes:

"I want to help you and Mr. Molotov settle the Trieste problem. The United Nations should chose up to slates of people who don't live in Trieste. The slates would be of people to run for government of Trieste. Then the Trieste people can vote for the slates they like best. This government would have full power and noody else would have a say.

Sincerely,
"Michelle Etcheverry

U. S. PROTESTS ROMANIA VOTE

Terrorism And Intimidation Charged By State Dept.

Washington, Nov. 26—(AP)—The United States complained today there had been "manipulations" and "intimidation through terrorism" in last week's Romanian election and declared that the Balkan country had failed to make good on promises of a free and unfettered vote.

A formal statement voicing this country's dissatisfaction with the Romanian balloting was issued by the State Department. It came on the heels of official expressions of concern over election arrangements in Poland.

The Romanian election resulted in a top heavy victory for parties in the bloc supporting the Communist-dominated government.

The State Department had objected four times in advance of last Tuesday's voting to alleged discrimination against opposition parties.

Poland has maneuvered herself with apparent deliberation onto a spot in which further American financial help may be denied her. She has broken a pledge to hold national elections this year, and she has gone about preparations for voting in a way this country describes as "disturbing." An official note to the Polish government, made public yesterday, expressed this nation's concern over whether the balloting, now set for Jan. 19, will be "free."

See-Saw Returns In French Vote

Paris, Nov. 26—(AP)—See-sawing unofficial returns, from Sunday's parliamentary elections put the Communist party out in front again today after the Popular Republican Movement (MRP) had seized the lead from the left wingers for a brief time late yesterday.

Publication of unofficial figures from Corsica issued by the French press agency was responsible for the latest change in the lead.

These returns, added to revised official figures of the interior ministry for mainland France, gave the Communists 24,788 and the MRP 24,751 representatives in the electoral colleges which will meet Dec. 8 to help choose Parliament's upper house, the Council of the Republic. The new tabulation made the total popular vote 5,176,398 for the Communists and 4,794,795 for the MRP.

King Dissolves Treaty-Makers

Cairo, Egypt, Nov. 25—(AP)—King Farouk dissolved today the Egyptian delegation negotiating a revision of the 1936 Anglo-Egyptian treaty on this third day of anti-British and anti-Government disorders.

Premier Ismail Sibky Pesha had brought back from London proposals for revising the treaty and debate was to have started in Paran international troop inventory. Informed quarters said the delegation took the position that the United States would insist on a rigid inspection system to guard against violation of atomic control and any general disarmament agreement, when and if action is taken on these two problems, but that it would be a mistake to introduce the highly controversial issue into the proposed troop census.

The American position on the British verification plan was left in some uncertainty yesterday when Sen. Tom Connally spoke before the 54-nation political committee of the General Assembly shortly after British Air Minister Phillip J. Noel-Baker had advanced the proposal.

Lewis . . .

Governor William M. Tucker declared that the "full weight" of the state would be thrown into the action if there is "any solid ground at all for the suit."

Whether or not union membership can be construed as "securities" is expected to be the main argument at the Monday hearing. Under the "Blue Sky" law, securities must be qualified prior to sale.
