Senate Supports Cherry Proposal

Administration Wins Resounding Victory On Teachers Pay State Employees Pay Issue With Vote Of 31-19; Measure In Conference Committee

Raleigh, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The administration of Governor Cherry won a resounding victory in the Senate today, by defeating 31 to 19, a proposal to raise the pay of the teachers and state employees from 25 to 30 per cent.

The increase measure, introduced by Rep. Barker of Durham, passed the House rapidly and was tacked in the Senate last night.

It appeared that a compromise might be reached.

The measure went to a conference committee.

The Senate whipped an effort by Senator Ward of Craven to instruct the conference committee to recommend a 30 per cent pay increase and instructed the committee to be without bias.

Named on the Senate conference committee were Senators Barber of Chatham, Lumpkin of Franklin and Brown of Watauga.

The postponement came last night following a wordy argument on the Senate floor after each house of the General Assembly had heard the governor's budget message calling for a record expenditure of $348,147,084.

The governor's appropriation bill would provide for expenditure during the next two years of $303,645,647, and the expenditures would be based on an anticipated collection of $288,218,500.

Permanent improvements appropriation of $44,501,437 would round out the figure sought by the governor.

The Senate gallery last night was jammed by state employees, and teachers who anticipated a warm fight over the house-amended bill for supplementary pay increases.

The show-down battle did not materialize, but the word skirmishing did offer some indication of what may occur today as the administration marshals its lines to block passage of the amended bill.

Sen. Wade Barber of Chatham, chairman of the powerful appropriations committee, last night hit

Two Wilmington Police Arrested

Wilmington, N. C., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Patrolman Roy Grissett, the second member of the Wilmington police force arrested within 24 hours, was held in jail today on $3,000 bail and charged with breaking into a local hardware store and taking an outdoor motor valued at $130.

Grissett, arrested yesterday following a tip from H. L. Gurley, another city policeman who was arrested the day before on charges of robberies at a local market, was formally charged with "breaking, entry and receiving."

An investigating plain clothes man said the hardware shop Grissett allegedly robbed "adjoined Gurley's beat."

Nine Men And Willie

The Case Of Willie Francis, "Colored Citizen Of Louisiana"; Decision By Supreme Court Was Important To Them, Too; Background Of Historic Case

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Jan. 14.—(AP)—To Willie Francis, jailhouse, New Iberia, La.

Dear Willie: I thought you'd like to know how it was when nine men you never saw, sitting in a marble palace, talked about your future.

You stutter badly and don't read very well but still this will tell you a little of what it was like here yesterday.

You may not understand it, but you were very important for a little while in a very important place, the U. S. Supreme Court.

It's all marble—not like any court you ever saw down there in the bayou country. It has great, red velvet curtains, a real palace.

And the nine men—everyone of them famous—sat in a row in black gowns behind a long walnut desk. They're the nine Justices of the Supreme Court. And for 45 minutes they talked of nothing but Willie Francis.

They already had talked a lot about you among themselves, behind closed doors. But yesterday they talked for the whole world to hear.

It started when Justice Reed suddenly mentioned "Willie Francis, colored citizen of Louisiana."

The other Justices listened very carefully. They were all deeply interested for a couple of reasons.

This was their decision they were announcing about a human life, yours. It was important to them.

And, besides, you were making history. Your case is what lawyers call historic. Nothing like it had been before. It was all in the record.

DEPUTIES SET STAGE TO BIG FOUR MEETING

Will Discuss Treaty Plans To Be Fixed At Moscow Conference

London, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The Big Four deputy foreign ministers settled down today to do the spadework on the German and Austrian peace treaties with British and American quarters hopeful that the blueprint for an independent Austria would be ready for discussion in Moscow in March.

Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin planned to welcome the diplomats of the United States, Russia and France at the opening session and then leave the deputies to the five-week task of hearing territorial reparations claims against the two defeated countries and trying to smooth out Big Four differences over the peace terms.

Britain, and the United States were reported to have drafted tentative treaties on Austria ready for study by the Russian and French deputies. Some informed quarters expressed belief the United States would waive reparations claims against Austria in hope of aiding that nation's tottering economy, but the biggest question centered around Russia's demands.

Territorial claims against Germany by at least six of her one-time victims posed an immediate major problem for the deputies. Faced with such diplomatic stumbling blocks as economic unification, Russian reparations demands and French insistence on the economic absorption of the Saar, the deputies were expected merely to survey peace proposals for Germany and report to the Big Four foreign ministers in Moscow March 10.

"There are difficult angles, but coming to terms on Austria should be possible in a fairly short time," a high American source said.

Gen. Mark Clark, U. S. Army commander in Austria, will speak for the United States in the meetings on Austria, while Robert Murphy, U. S. political representative in Germany, will act for America at the sessions on Germany.

UNIONS FROWN ON PAY SUITS

Two AFL Groups Oppose Portal Pay Claims As Bad Faith

By the Associated Press

Two AFL unions have frowned on the portal to portal pay suits which have flooded the country's federal courts asking claims of more than $4,200,000,000.

John P. Frey, president of the AFL Metal Trades Department, termed the suits as a breach of faith on the part of unions, while officials of the AFL Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butchers Workmen International Union announced that they would not file any portal pay suits. In a letter to the local unions the officials urged no such actions be filed, because "neither side could anticipate these issues when collective bargaining agreements were consummated in good faith."

Meanwhile, the suits received attention in Congress, with all bills relating to portal pay in the Senate being assigned to the Judiciary

Police Find Wealth In Poverty Stricken Flat

By NATHAN POLOWETZKY

New York, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The wizened old lady slowly climbed down the three flights to a neighbor's basement apartment, timidly knocked on the door and, when the neighbor appeared, asked for a cup of coffee.

Delia Edwards, 67, had been doing this for many a day, so it was to make conversation that the neighbor, Mrs. Mary Bennett, asked yesterday:

"How's your brother, Miss Delia?"

Still sipping the hot coffee, and pulling her old sweater tighter around her to fight off the cold, the woman muttered:

"I think Charlie's dead. Hasn't moved since Saturday."

Mrs. Bennett immediately called a priest who climbed the dank staircase into the squalor of the Edwards' apartment. There he saw the withered body of Charles Edwards, 77, covered with an old-fashioned nightgown, leaning on the floor beside his unmade bed, his head buried in his hands in an attitude of prayer.

In another study bedroom, piled with yellowed newspapers and remains of unfinished meals, lay Miss Anna Edwards, 67, pleading for food.

The priest called police. The police physician studied the ancient figure kneeling as if in supplication. He took out his card and wrote:

"Dead on arrival. Natural causes."

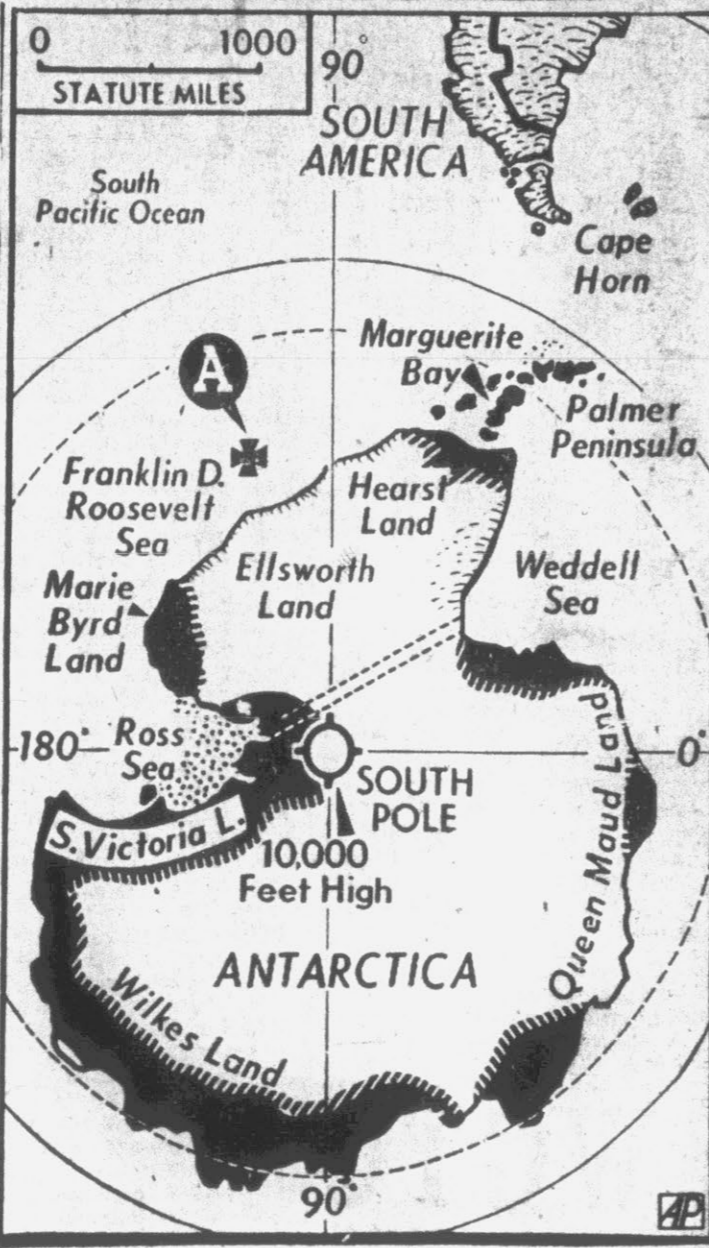

The women were taken to Kings County Hospital, where doctors diagnosed Anna Edwards' ailment as malnutrition.

The neighbors talked. They said the Edwards' had lived in such poverty as long as they could remember. And they recalled that the only extravagance the Edwards' ever indulged in was Delia's custom of occasionally slipping out to buy an ice cream cone after her brother had gone to bed.

Soon the detectives came. In detective fashion they dusted off the documents and papers that littered the Brooklyn cold-water flat. Then they stopped short—

For underneath all the rubbish were bankbooks listing $67,000 in deposits and mortgages and bonds valued at $100,000.

Record Appropriation Bills Before Assembly

Would Provide Total Spending Of $348,147,084; Action Follows Gov. Cherry's Budget Message; Main Points Fiscal Program

Raleigh, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The big appropriation bills introduced into the 1947 General Assembly last night by Sen. Barber of Chatham and Rep. Allen of Wake, would provide for expenditure during the next two years of $303,649,647.

Expenditures would be based on the anticipated collection of $289,218,500 with the difference coming from surplus funds already collected. A permanent improvements appropriation of $44,501,437 would bring the total spending to $348,147,084.

Governor Cherry's budget message and the report of the advisory Budget Commission, which precede introduction of the appropriations bill, recommended enactment of the following fiscal program:

1. A 20 per cent salary increase for teachers and state employees.

2. Greatly increased operating appropriations.

3. Provision for continuing the greatest highway program in the state's history.

4. Disposal of a general fund surplus of $54,501,437 expected on June 30 by adding $10,000,000 to the State's $20,000,000 reserve fund and placing $44,501,437 in a special permanent building fund.

5. Increasing the reserve fund $1 for each dollar appropriated for objects or purposes not contained in

Second Trip To Altar A Success

Benton Harbor, Mich., Jan. 14.—(AP)—The John W. Bukes set up housekeeping in Three Oaks, Mich., today after making it to the altar on the second trip.

The original bridal procession ended Friday when Bukes, 30-year-old machinist, poked the bride-to-be, Cherry Brauder, 23, in the mouth during an argument over whether to postpone the wedding.

He pleaded guilty to assault and battery in municipal court and paid a $10 fine.

A reconciliation followed and Buke and Cherry started out again. This time they made the First Congregational Church without incident and were married by the Rev. Howard A. Blanning.

Bilbo's Operation Is Set For This Week

New Orleans, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Senator Theo G. Bilbo was being prepared today for an operation later this week to remove a piece of decayed bone from a jaw from which a cancerous growth was removed last August.

The Mississippi solon came here Sunday. At that time it was expected the operation would be performed either Monday or today, but yesterday surgeons at Touro infirmary decided to delay the operation until the latter part of the week.

REPORT ON UN TO EMPHASIZE ATOM CONTROL

President Working On Message Designed To Clarify Issues

New York, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Authoritative sources said today President Truman would submit to Congress within two weeks a complete report on American operations in the United Nations, probably placing sharp emphasis on atomic energy control.

The President, these sources said may take the opportunity of spotlighting the atomic control question in a letter accompanying the report.

The report is now being drafted by the American U.N. delegation and is expected to be completed this week. It will cover all fields of work in the United Nations.

Meanwhile, the Security Council prepared to meet tomorrow to continue discussions on atomic energy control and world disarmament.

At that time, the basic argument between Russia and the United States over priority for atomic energy control or general disarmament may be resolved.

Authoritative sources said Great Britain would support the U. S. in insisting that atomic energy control be given priority if there is a showdown with Russia.

Russia is insisting that "all phases" of world disarmament be taken up immediately. Atomic energy would be included, but without any special priority which the Americans deem necessary.

Most Security Council delegations believed it unlikely that any action would be taken in tomorrow's session. The most they expected was "a lot of discussion."

It was pointed out that the U. S. is now in the midst of a series of administrative changes that involve both the atomic control and disarmament discussions.

These changes include Gen. George Marshall's appointment to succeed James Byrnes as Secretary of State and Warren R. Austin's assumption of the post held by Bernard M. Baruch on the Atomic Energy Commission.

But American sources said they did not expect any change in U.S. policy on atomic energy control

Dock Workers Join In London Walkouts

Soldiers Delivering Food To Stores Brings Protest; London Shops Almost Drained Of Supplies; Work To Break Deadlock

London, Jan. 14.—(AP)—A mass meeting of London dock workers voted today to join some 30,000 union laborers in a walkout protesting the use of troops to move food supplies held up by a nine-day strike of London truck drivers.

A decision, which may affect all of London's 24,000 organized dock workers, was reached at a 40-minute noon hour meeting attended by between 1,200 and 1,400 men who ignored appeals of union leaders to remain at work.

With food distribution throughout England threatened by the spreading walkouts, government officials, employers' representatives and union leaders hurriedly set up fast-moving machinery to negotiate a settlement.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower and Mrs. Eisenhower leave Miami by train and head for Washington after a month's stay in the Florida city, during which time he received treatment for beriberi. CRIM MEN END UNION STRIFE

Aroused Townspeople Ask CIO Organizers Leave Town

Bruce, Tenn., Jan. 14.—(AP)—A group of grim-faced, over-ill clad men who escorted their wives and daughters to work at a shirt factory here today decided at an open forum to "find the CIO union organizers and ask them to leave town."

The band of men, about 150 strong, began a march from the plant to the center of this West Tennessee town, three blocks distant, shortly after they had watched their women-folks enter the Henry N. Siegel Shirt Factory in peace.

"Let's not do anything rash, boys," counseled Guy Cole, former Benton County sheriff, "let's ask the CIO people to leave in a nice way, first."

A number of citizens spoke before the impromptu meeting of the intent men who obviously had been aroused by the reports of violence that marked the opening of the plant yesterday morning.

A drizzling rain pelted the roughly-clad men as they stood in the mud before the plant where 500 persons, mostly women, are employed.

A number of fist-fights between employees and non-workers yesterday resulted in Marshal Hill Taylor charging 20 persons with assault and battery. City Recorder Ralph Page said those charged would be given hearings in city court on Saturday.

Taylor said yesterday's disturbance "apparently was started by members of a CIO union attempting to keep other employees from entering the plant."

As the plant gates opened this morning the 500-odd employees filed through without incident as the escort group stood by with one spokesman saying:

"We came to see that our women folks set to work without any outside interference."

Charlotte Plans Hold Referendum

Charlotte, N. C., Jan. 14.—(AP)—The city of Charlotte will seek legislation to permit it to hold a liquor referendum.

City officials made this decision yesterday when Mecklenburg County commissioners turned down a proposal to make the vote county-wide.

In commenting on the action, Fred H. McIntyre, chairman of the city council's legislative committee, declared:

"We're the biggest bunch of hypocrites I've ever seen x x x the way we drink wet and vote dry. We're making the bootleggers rich and giving Port Mill (S.C.) and Rock Hill nearly a million dollars a year we should be spending on local improvements."

Attorney General Carries Ball In Asking Supreme Court To Uphold Contempt Fines Imposed On John L. Lewis And UMW; Terms Lewis' Action An Insult To United States

Washington, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Attorney General Tom C. Clark contended in the Supreme Court today that John L. Lewis' course in last fall's soft coal strike was an insult to the United States itself.

Asking the high tribunal to uphold the $2,510,000 in contempt fines imposed on Lewis and the United Mine Workers, Clark argued the government sought only to maintain governmental functions when it turned to the courts for an order against a coal strike.

When Lewis disregarded that order, he said, it was a contempt that was an insult to the country and that "compromises all law and invites mob rule."

"Surely," Clark said, "government has the authority and the power to defend itself against destruction from within—as it has the duty to defend the country from destruction from without."

"When that issue is involved no one is immunized—no person or group is beyond the reach of the arm of the law—and this is a country and government of laws."

Clark led off for the government in a case expected to set far-reaching precedents in interpretations of laws applying to organized labor. One is whether the Norris-La Guardia act, which has been on the statute books for many years, bars the government from seeking an injunction against a union.

The law outlaws injunction orders to do this, or not to do that, against unions in labor disputes with private employers.

Lewis' attorneys contend the law applies also to the government and that hence the miners' union chief, when he was within his legal rights, was within an order by U. S. District Judge T. Ahm Goldsborough against a strike. They said Goldsborough had no right to issue the order.

Goldsborough ruled the disregard for his order was contempt and levied the fines. To speed a final ruling, the case was taken directly from his court to the Supreme Court.

Demos Lining Up For Test Ballot

Washington, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Senate Democrats aimed a new political hammer today at the War Investigating Committee, hoping to flatten the Republican majority in the first true test vote of the new Congress.

Democratic leaders lined up what some prospective members described as a "young guard" policy committee, its chief business to take Republican legislation apart. This group will also defend in general, the lawmaking program recommended by President Truman.

Without awaiting formal appointment, some senators who expect to be on the new committee already are throwing punches at the Republican proposal to continue the life of the war investigating group through 1947.

Artists Please Large Audience
Frances Yeend, young American soprano, and Walter Cassel, baritone of the Metropolitan Opera Association, sang last night before an appreciative audience of approximately 1200 people in the Wright auditorium of East Carolina Teachers College. They were accompanied by the talented young pianist, Stanley Carter. The joint recital was the first number to be offered by the Entertainment Committee of the college during the school year.

Both because of her beauty and her lovely voice, Miss Yeend made a favorable impression on those who heard her. Appearing for the second time in Greenville, Mr. Cassel was received enthusiastically, especially in a group of songs requiring dramatic talent as well as a fine voice and including Frank La Forge's spectacular "Voodoo Spirit" and Arthur Somersell's tender and melodious "Kingdom by the Sea."

Rounds of applause followed the closing numbers, duets from Romberg's light operas "Songs of Love," and "Blossom Time," and brought the artists back to the stage for a series of encores and curtain calls.

Following the performance, a reception in the Classroom building was given by the college social committee in honor of Miss Yeend, Mr. Cassel, and Mr. Carter. Among those in the receiving line were Dr. and Mrs. Dennis H. Cooke, Miss Hennie Ruth Whitford, Miss Marguerite Austin, Dr. and Mrs. Elmer R. Browning, and Dr. and Mrs. Karl V. Gilvert.

Rawl Has Record In Kiwanis Work

By CHESTER WALSH
Lieut.-Governor Ed E. Rawl of the Greenville Club was the first of the nine lieutenant-governors of the Carolinas Kiwanis District to visit and confer with all of the clubs in his division. Division 7 includes Kiwanis clubs at Greenville, Farmville, Kinston, Wilton, Stantonsville, Goldsboro, Jacksonville, Wilmington and Swainsboro. Rawl has already filed reports with Kiwanis headquarters at Darlington, S. C.

This announcement was officially made over Radio Station WIS at Columbia, S. C., and in Kiwanis bulletins.

A message today from Carolinas Kiwanis District headquarters to Lieut.-Governor Rawl said in part: "You are the first of the lieutenant-governors to complete the first round of visitations, and I congratulate you. I know that you are doing and will continue to do a very fine job."

Rawl became a member of the Greenville Kiwanis Club in 1923 shortly after it was organized. For a time he was out of the club. He "wandered back to the fold" in 1943, put his shoulder to the wheel and has had a prominent and active part in making the Greenville club the leading club in the Carolinas district. During his term as president last year the club enjoyed remarkable growth. He was active in organizing clubs at Kinston and Farmville, and is credited by his fellow-Kiwanians with being a developer of good-will and community service.

LIKES NO. 13

Chicago, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Al G. Kumski says he dotes on the number 13.

Yesterday, Jan. 13, Kumski, an independent candidate for alderman—the 13th ward—appeared at the election commissioner's office. He was accompanied by a committee of 13 persons who filed his petition of candidacy with more than 5,000 signatures.

Finals in the election are April 1. During World War I northern Ireland manufactured almost 100 million yards of airplane linen, much of which was shipped to the United States.

Chapter 3
Bert had dined Eileen's number seven times before she answered, at last. His mother had said, his second day out of the army: "Of course, invite her to dinner, dear. Paul and Eddy want to meet her, too."

But Eileen was telling him regretfully that she had already eaten downtown, before coming home. "If it's all right, though, I'll be over later."

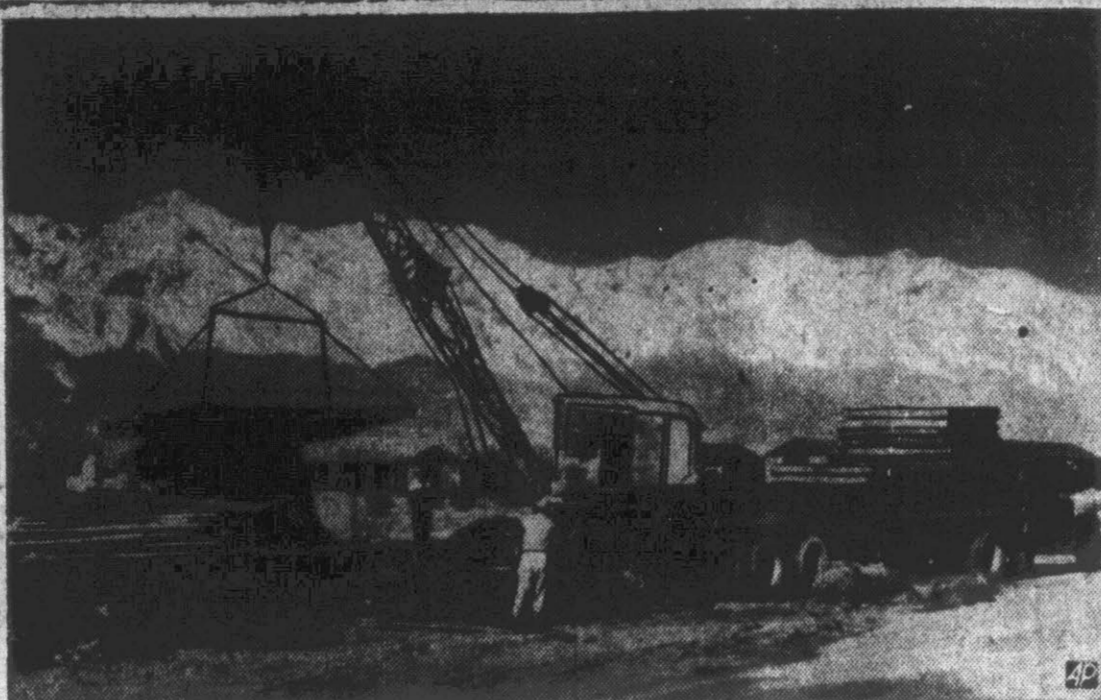

"Can I come and get you, Eileen?" No use to try to hide his eagerness. He'd been waiting a whole day to hear her voice.

"All right, if you want to, Bert." Something in the way she said it made his heart thump loudly. He could feel her there, across the wire, a lovely, stirring presence. In his mind he saw the sweet curve of her smile.

"Half an hour too soon?"
"No, I'll be waiting, Bert."

She was wearing a becoming beige silk crepe when Bert arrived, and after stiff white nurses' uniforms, it seemed to him, like gossamer. Perfect for her eyes and lovely golden hair, cascading to her shoulders. Perfect, too, against the soft green and rust and gold furnishings of the attractive room. "Lovely!" He stood still, feasting his eyes on both. Then the mellow, beautifully furnished room suddenly sounded an alarm.

"Eileen—this apartment? You aren't married, are you?"
"Why, no!" She smiled, surprised. "These are things—from our old home."

A VET GETS A HOME—A crane lifts a floor section from a barracks being dismantled at the former Japanese relocation center, Manzanar, Calif., for sale to a veteran for $333.13. He got enough seasoned pine, redwood and other material to build a home.

Bert blew his breath out sharply in infinite relief. "And don't belong to anybody? I mean, engaged—or anything?"

She looked up at him and shook her head. "No, not engaged or anything. Why did you want to know, Bert?"

His crazy heart was racing again, competing in the silence with the loud racing of Eileen's clock. Their eyes held like magnets. "Because I'd like you to do a lot of thinking about someday belonging to me."

She looked down then, but her eyes were glowing. "I wouldn't have to think about that, Bert."

"Eileen, you mean—you know it, too?"

She nodded. "Yes, I know."

He took her in his arms, like something precious he had long wanted and had found at last. Their lips met in timeless accord. "I always thought it would be like this, when the right girl came along."

He kissed her hands, her lovely shimmering hair. Then he confessed a little awkwardly. "I haven't kissed too many girls, Eileen."

She smiled into his eyes. "I've been waiting, too, Bert."

His lips on hers were hard and hungry then. They belonged! They were both a little shaken, when at last he let her go.

"We'd better get over to the house, darling. My brothers are waiting to meet you." He held her coat and opened her door, then bent and kissed her lightly before he pressed the light switch. "They're awfully good looking, both of them. Maybe it's a good thing I got my claim stacked first."

On a sudden impulse, Bert took Eileen directly to their quarters in the garage, for he felt at home there more than in the big house, with all the boarders. It was a homey place. Three wide couches, with low tables between, made a U-shaped seat around one end of the large room. Cushioned armchairs, a table holding lamps and books, an upright piano rounded out its masculine comfort. Green and orange curtains complemented a tan Indian rug upon a painted floor. Paul's drums were in the corner, Bert's sax in its leather case. Bert seated Eileen in a low chair facing the door and went into the house to get his brothers.

"What's the big idea," grinned Eddy, "taking her out there?"

"Thought she'd like to meet the aborigines in their native habitat," Bert wisecracked. "Come on, don't keep the lady waiting."

Eileen stood up, smiling, as the three trooped in.

"Eileen, meet my brother Paul, the handsome member of the family—and Eddy, the brilliant one. Paul—Eddy—Miss Farwell."

"Pleased to meet you, Miss Farwell." They said it stiffly together and shook hands, seeming oddly at a disadvantage, until Eddy said, urbanely. "Mother says you sing, and since Bert's brought you to the rumpus room, maybe we should have a little concert."

"Oh, the orchestra first!" Of them all, Eileen seemed, strangely, most at ease. "I've looked forward to hearing you, a long time."

Mrs. McLane stood in the doorway, with a tray of fruit and cookies. She beamed on Eileen. "Boys," she said, with a twinkle, "this is your interior decorator."

"What?" "You mean you did all this?" "For us!" Their chorus of amazement made Eileen blush.

"It was all your mother's idea. I only helped a little."

"She only upholstered the chairs and made the curtains—and the lampshades and—"

"She really did the hard work," Eileen interrupted. "Clearing, the place out, painting the walls and floor and everything."

The boys looked at each other silently. And for Bert, the loving labor of these two who meant so much to him, gave the cozy place a very special shine. They played their careful best for them, some very super swing, and when they then insisted on a song, Eileen chose from Eddy's carefully stacked music, a ballad that had been popular when they'd gone away. She sang it sweetly, feelingly. Her eyes sought Bert's when she had finished.

Eddy said, more as a fact than question. "You're professional, aren't you?"

Eileen's face lit up, as though moonlight suddenly shone on it. "I wish I were! But I'm a secretary, chained to a desk and typewriter."

"You could sing in a church . . . or clubs and weddings and things."

Paul laid his hand on Eileen's shoulder. "A hot career he's picking around with me, and I'll have you singing nightclub numbers in no time at all." He grinned at them triumphantly. "And maybe professionally, at that!"

Drone Bomber To Fly Back To Eglin Field

Washington, Jan. 14—(AP)—An Army B-17 drone plane and its accompanying mother ship were scheduled to attempt a return to their Eglin Field, Fla., base today.

Weather conditions forced them to break a projected non-stop round trip yesterday between Florida and the capital.

Senate Group To Talk Air Wrecks

Washington, Jan. 14—(AP)—The Senate Commerce Committee called in the Civil Aeronautics Board today to discuss "the whole air picture" in the light of recent crashes which some Congress members say have shaken public faith in commercial flying.

Senator Brewster (R-Me.), committee member, told reporters, "We have got to see if we can find out what the difficulty is."

"The situation is destroying popular confidence. There won't be anybody flying if this keeps on."

"We are getting afraid to fly and that's a bad thing," Brewster said.

He predicted a government air safety board separate from the CAB may be proposed, and another committee member, Senator Capehart (R-Ind.), declared that such a move "may be a necessity."

Rift Over Labor Program In GOP

Washington, Jan. 14—(AP)—Republican Senator Morse of Oregon, splitting with his party on proposed labor policy, urged Congress today to give top priority to "perfecting" the Wagner Act.

Morse, a member of the Senate Labor Committee and a former member of the National Labor Relations Board, told reporters:

"If we are going to have sound labor legislation, we should turn our first attention to perfecting the Wagner Act," the act that set up the NLRB.

In a radio address last night, Morse assailed the GOP course on fiscal as well as labor matters. He said:

"If the Republicans continue their anti-labor policy and their fiscal policies which will lead to fiscal isolation, they will lose both Congress and the White House in 1948—and they will give us the worst era of labor unrest in our country."

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

A CHRISTIAN STATESMAN
When Dr. C. T. Wang came to America several years ago as the ambassador of his country to America, he made this public statement shortly after his arrival:

"I come to you not only as the ambassador of my country, but as a Christian. Sometimes I think I am the poorest of all Christians, yet I am trying to be a Christian who works at it. I have a pew in my church at home and I sit in it regularly. I take time out to talk over my political moves and statecraft with Jesus Christ. I think that needs to be done in China and America and in diplomatic circles the world around. I have been playing the royal game of statecraft now for a good many years as a foreign minister and prime minister and minister of the interior, that not one of which is so important as to be a good minister of Jesus Christ. I have never known a time in world affairs when it was so poignantly necessary for all of us to follow the teachings of Jesus, who came as God's Ambassador to man."

A generation ago we sang derisively about "the heathen Chinese." Today, many of China's saints and leaders put those of other nations to shame.

WASHINGTON LETTER

ADULTS PROVIDE TEEN-AGER IDEAS U. S. BUREAU SAYS
By JANE EADS

Washington — Lively as teenagers are, the U. S. Children's Bureau manages to keep in step with them.

In keeping tab on what makes them tick, the Children's Bureau through the years has endeavored to "help parents to give their children affectionate guidance into adulthood."

Now in view of "increased knowledge" of teen-age children, the Bureau has brought out a revised edition of its widely-followed pamphlet "Guiding the Adolescent."

The Bureau contends, however, that the principles underlying the guidance of adolescent children have remained the same since the first bulletin was written for the Bureau in 1933 by Dr. Douglas A. Thon, director of the Habit Clinic for Child Guidance, of Boston.

Since then some three-quarters of a million copies have been used by parents, the Bureau says.

One of the chief complaints made today concern the adolescent's use of leisure time. Many adults charge that, in general, their children want to go "tearing around," preferring the entertainment offered by commercial places of amusement to anything they might provide for themselves.

Apparently not too concerned, the Children's Bureau explains in the pamphlet that, after all, the adolescents of today are "merely accepting life as they find it" when they make use of commercial amusements.

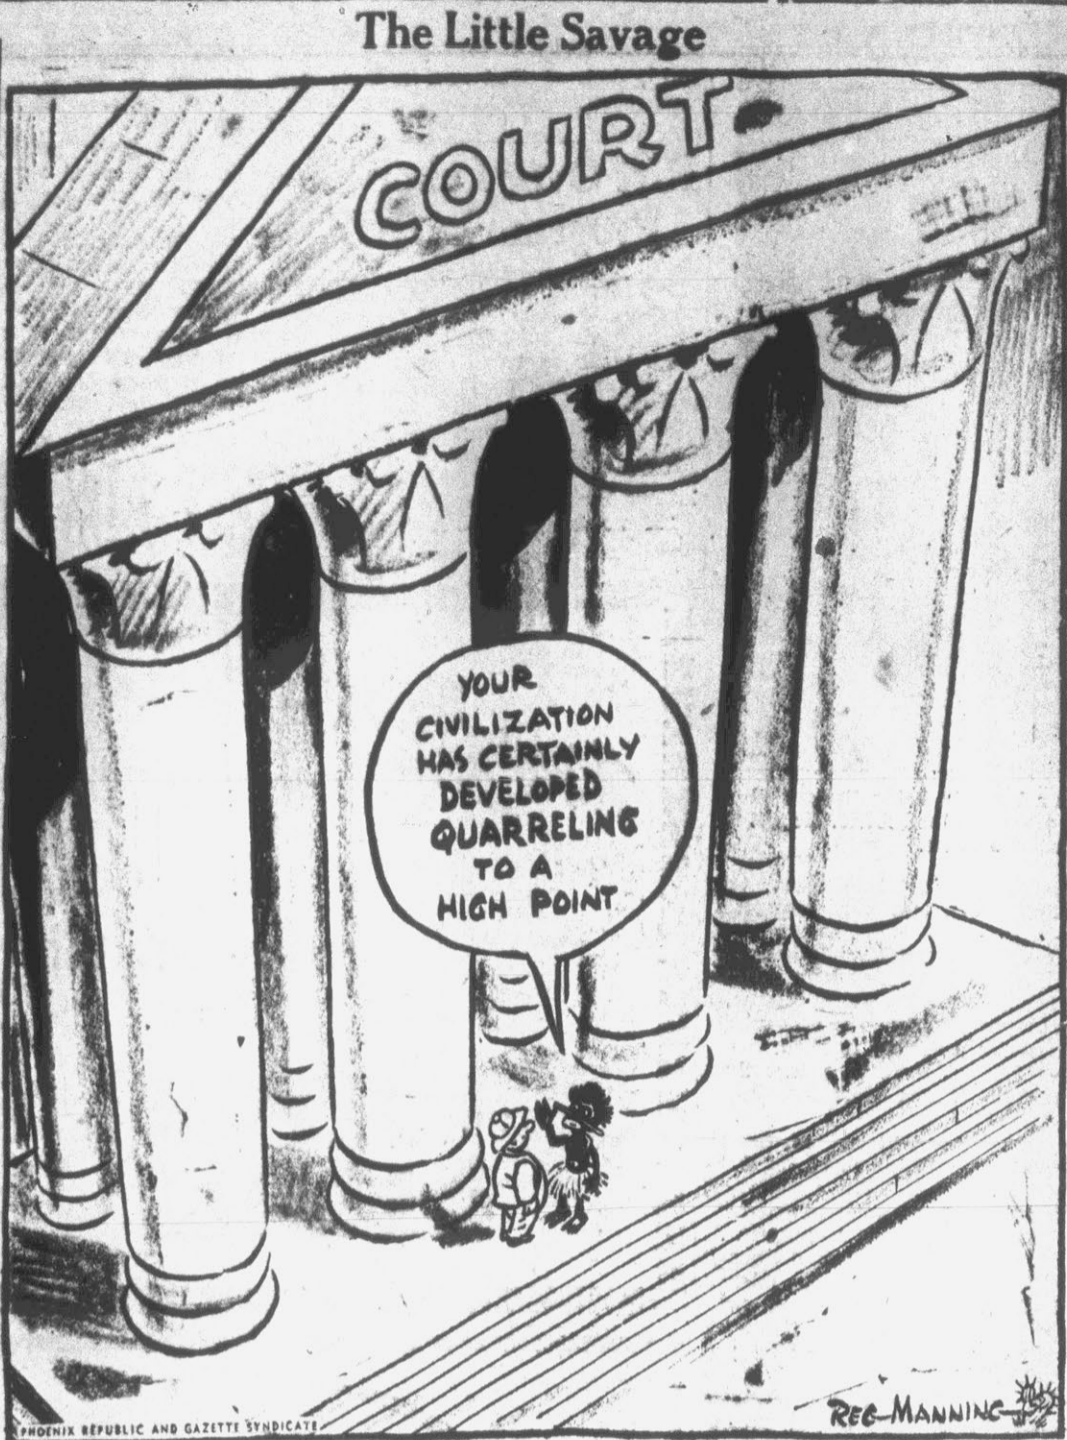

They are not responsible for the opening of the movies, the invention and purchase of the first automobiles, the dine-and-dance restaurants, the roadhouses.

If we as parents object to what they do in their spare time, then "why don't we train them to find enjoyment in activities which we consider more worth while?" asks the Bureau.

"Why don't we clean up our communities and promote the development of adequate and wholesome public recreational facilities?" After all, a lot of parents do not use their leisure time to much better advantage, it is pointed out.

Relatively few people have had much leisure until fairly recently. People were in the habit of working so hard and so long they did not know what to do when they were not working.

During the war years, most of us were under constant pressure, and leisure time seemed virtually forgotten. Now once again, the Bureau says, many adults find themselves at a loss to make use of their spare time, with or without money. An important fact for parents to concede is that as their children grow older they will want to spend more and more time doing things with youngsters their own age. They should have enough "privacy from an interested family" not to seek all their social contacts away from home.

The 83-page pamphlet dwells at length and realistically with other subjects such as physical growth and development, attitudes toward sex, mental development, social conduct, the importance of friends and boy and girl relations.

Nine Men . . .

Willie Francis, 18-year-old Negro, sits in jail in New Iberia. Three years ago, when he was 15, he shot a white man to death and robbed him of $4 and his watch.

Willie confessed, and went to jail. He was found guilty as charged and sentenced to die in the electric chair. Not much fuss. No one outside the bayou country even heard of you, Willie, till that day you sat in the electric chair and it wouldn't work.

The executioner called out "Good-bye, Willie," and pulled the switch. The chair didn't work. You said you felt a "little tickled."

So you were taken back to your cell and your lawyers finally asked the Supreme Court not to let it happen again.

The said it would be cruel to make you go back to the electric chair a second time.

They said the State of Louisiana was supposed to execute you last May but didn't and had no right at a second try.

Four of the nine justices said it would be cruel and you shouldn't have to sit in the electric chair again.

But five of the nine said it wasn't cruel. They said it was an accident, with no one to blame for it, that the chair didn't work.

So back you go to the chair again. But you almost made it; five to four. Pretty close. But five was one too many.

Justice Frankfurter spoke up. He was one of the five. He used to teach law in college. With far too many folk blazing away haphazardly with pump-guns in its vicinity.

Back in March of 1945 just such defensive solidarity was provided for in the Act of Chapultepec adopted by the Pan-American conference in Mexico City. That was in part a war-time measure, but it also contemplated the setting up of a permanent inter-American general staff to draw up plans for hemispheric defense, effective use of methods to prevent the growth of subversive activities, and complete outlawing of totalitarian agents.

The Act of Chapultepec helped bridge the remaining days of the war, but many of the ideals which were to be projected into the peace still remain to be implemented. Our "indispensable Pan-American solidarity" certainly does need "refreshing." There are some mighty weak spots in it.

A vital point to remember is that prevention of the growth of subversive activities is quite as essential to hemispheric security as is joint military defense. Why? Well, because the establishment of even one anti-democratic, totalitarian government, with its roots in some subversive Europeanism, would provide a base not only for political activities but for possible military action.

Of these two dangers, the greater is the political threat. The subversive element, once in control of a country, would be able to bore in all directions. Once a totalitarian bloc had been established in the Americas, the ideals of the Act of Chapultepec would be fat in the fire. Then only a major war could restore democracy.

I bet you never dreamed in all your life that some day you'd be very "disturbing" to a Supreme Court justice.

But in the end he agreed with the other four justices, that sending you back to the chair isn't cruel. Right here at the end there's something you might want to know.

One of the witnesses said—it's in the record—that when you didn't die last time the electrocutioner said the next time he'd kill you if he had to do it with an iron bar.

He said that the teachers have been needing pay increases since 1870, and added that they deserve their emergency supplements now.

He was supported in his contention by Senator McLaughlin of Iredell. "The teachers need the raise now, and it should be passed so that they can receive the pay increases in their January checks." The monthly state payroll is completed on January 20.

Lewis then called off the strike until the Supreme Court could act. His miners are under orders to remain at work until March 31.

Clark said the government does seek this:

- 1. To uphold its right and authority to operate the coal mines which it seized last May "for war purposes and under a temporary wartime statute.
2. To vindicate the power of the Federal courts to prevent irreparable injury to the people of the nation.
3. To prohibit interference with the sovereign functions of the United States.

Replying to the argument from union men that the government should not have turned to the courts, Clark asserted that is where every American should go for a determination of his right.

As for the size of the fine, which Lewis contends is excessive, Clark said it was based on the injury resulting from the union's action as well as on its ability to pay.

More than 2000 soldiers—angrily termed "blacklegs (strike-breakers) in uniform" by the strikers—and 800 service vehicles meanwhile began their second day of lugging meat and other food to retailers serving 10,000,000 inhabitants of the greater London area.

With the soldiers taking over delivery duties, food in limited quantities began re-appearing in London shops that had been almost drained of supplies during the work stoppage.

As they worked, Labor Minister George Isaacs and the official leadership of the huge Transport and General Workers Union—against whose orders some 14,000 truck drivers walked out Jan. 6—began a series of emergency meetings to hammer out some plan for breaking the deadlock.

The main idea was to bypass the statutory Road Haulage Wages Board, admittedly hamstrung by legal technicalities, by setting up a so-called "joint industrial council" for direct negotiations between strikers and representatives of hundreds of small employers.

"The intention is to set up a voluntary machine that can meet on the basis of free negotiations, come to a decision quickly and react immediately to any difficulties," the British Press Association's labor correspondent wrote.

PHANTOMS HIT ROAD TONIGHT

Play In Roanoke Rapids For Third Conference Contest

Fresh from an easy 46-24 conference victory over Tarboro last Friday night, an enthusiastic Green Phantom basketball team travels to Roanoke Rapids tonight where they will attempt to annex their second league win in three starts. The Phantom Jayvee team will play the Roanoke Rapids Junior club in the preliminary trial.

Little is known of the strength of this year's Roanoke Club, but according to their school paper, they will field a strong team this year. Last year Greenville's state Class B finalist club had little trouble in downing the Yellow Jackets twice. However, this season, with a reputedly stronger Jacket team and a weaker Greenie team, the game will most likely be close.

Despite the Greenies loss to Kinston in the first conference game of the season, they are still in the running for the league title. However, to annex the crown this year, they most likely will have to win the rest of their games and a feat such as that will call for beating the strong Washington club twice and Kinston once. It will take excellent playing on the Greenies part to do this, but the boys think it can be done. Starters for tonight will most likely be Billy White and Jimmy Cox at guards, Henry Turner and Cletus Jackson at forwards, and Glynn Perkins at center.

NYU Favored In Tonight's Game

By the Associated Press
The University of North Carolina takes the underdog role tonight in its engagement in Madison Square Garden against the high-flying Violets of New York University.

The Violets have lost only one game while the White Phantoms have lost three, all to Northern competitors. Other games tonight for North Carolina quintets are Hanes Hosiery at High Point, East Carolina at Campbell, Catawba at Lenoir-Rhyne and Guilford at Davidson. Only one game was played last night. Appalachian took the measure of the powerful Asheville Bombers for the second time this year, 62 to 41, at Boone.

House Office Is Short In Audit

Washington, Jan. 14—(AP)—Speaker Martin told newsmen today a preliminary audit of the House sergeant-at-arms office by the general accounting office "indicates a shortage of $121,000 in the accounts."

Martin said a progress report on the audit, still being made, was given to him by Lindsay Warren, comptroller general who was requested by Martin last week to make the study.

The sergeant at arms acts as a banking and financial clearing office for members of the House.

Kenneth Romney of Montana, who had been sergeant at arms since 1931 and who succeeded on Jan. 3 by William Russell of Pennsylvania, told reporters he had no comment to make on Martin's statement.

Joe Tinker Will Lose Left Leg

Orlando, Fla., Jan. 14—(AP)—Joe Tinker lay on a hospital bed today awaiting amputation of his left leg and, to all appearances, being late on a throw to first base would have caused him more concern. His major worry appeared to be that he might miss some of his baseball activities during the coming season.

Tinker said he expected "to see some baseball" this summer but probably would not do as much scouting for the Boston Braves as he has in recent seasons.

The former Chicago Cub shortstop, who helped make baseball history after the turn of the century as the starting cog in the famed Tinker-to-Evers-to-chance infield combination, will have his leg severed above the knee Thursday to halt a gangrenous condition.

The infection, complicated by poor blood circulation, grew from a small sore on his left foot. Removal of a toe several weeks ago failed to halt the spread.

Yesterday's suits asked for claims of $41,964,510, boosting the grand unofficial total to $4,203,682,510. In Buffalo, N. Y., Attorney David Diamond filed a portal pay suit seeking four billion dollars on behalf of Bell Aircraft Corporation's Marietta, Ga., plant, but later he said the suit was in error—for $3,996,000,000.

"It should have been four million not four billion," Diamond said.

Confesses

By CHESTER WALSH
Laurie D. Taylor, Jr., the "one-man crime wave," as Police Jim Tanner described him during a series of burglaries in downtown Greenville between New Year's day and several nights ago, called for Chief Tanner last night and confessed to robbing eight homes in Greenville and looting an army lieutenant's car parked on Student street New Year's Night.

Chief Tanner had told a newspaper reporter after Taylor was arrested that the police did not need a confession. He said they had recovered loot from Taylor's room which had been identified by seven different persons whose homes had been burglarized.

Taylor will be given a preliminary hearing before Judge Jimmy Roberts in Police Court Friday morning. If probable cause is found he will be sent up to Superior Court for trial.

The penalty for first degree burglary—robbing a place in which there is a sleeping person—is death by asphyxiation in the death chamber at State Prison.
