Historic Rulings Expected In New Term High Court

Test Cases Of Labor Law Issues And House Probers Now Awaiting Decisions

Washington, Oct. 4—(AP)—The Supreme Court today opens a new term expected to produce historic decisions on powers of the House Un-American Activities Committee and on important labor law issues.

A full-blown test case of the committee's authority to compel witnesses to testify as to possible Communist affiliations is expected to reach the nine justice during the nine-month term.

Various witnesses called before the House group have refused to answer the question, "Are you now or have you ever been a member of the Communist party?"

For a long time the witnesses cited only the first amendment to the constitution as justifying their refusals. They contended that questions concerning political activities are a threat to the rights of free assembly and association.

More recently some of those summoned in connection with the committee's espionage inquiry have cited the fifth amendment which permits a witness to decline to give testimony that might tend to incriminate or degrade him.

There have been contempt of Congress convictions involving the first amendment stand. And committee members have announced they will press similar charges against those who have stood on the fifth amendment.

Appeals by the first group already are on the way to the high court and additional convictions would be certain to provide another test.

On the tribunals docket now is an appeal by Gerhard Eisler, described by the committee as the "United States No. 1 Communist." Eisler was charged with contempt for refusing to be sworn before the committee. He was sentenced to a year in prison and was fined $1,000.

In petitioning the high court for a review of his case, Eisler said that before being sworn he sought vainly to make a statement explaining his legal objections to the committee's procedure. He said that if he had been permitted to make the statement, he would have been willing to testify.

Hog Prices Fall Still Further As Markets Loaded

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 4—(AP)—North Carolina hog markets today followed the nation's leading markets in another sharp drop.

John A. Winfield, State Department of Agriculture market newsman, said prices on North Carolina markets dropped from $1 to $2 per hundred pounds.

He attributed today's drop to heavy runs of hogs for sale received on the nation's 14 leading markets, pointing out that receipts on the markets today totaled about 86,000 head as conpared with 59,000 last Monday.

Last week prices on North Carolina markets dropped between $2.25 and $2.50 per hundred pounds.

Urging Military Help For China

Washington, Oct. 4—(AP)—A congressional committee, urging more American help for China, calls that mcountry's survival as a democracy vital to the safety of all democratic nations.

The House Foreign Affairs subcommittee described China as "the decisive area" in the world tug-of-war between Communist Russia and the Democratic west.

It said American aid should include outright military assistance.

Truman-Ickes Conference Today Is Major Suprise For Observers

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS

President Truman and Harold L. Ickes, who quit the cabinet explosively two and a half years ago, were booked for a mid-day get-together at the White House today.

With Gov. Thomas E. Dewey also home temporarily from the campaign trail, the Republicans send Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg to a microphont tonight.

The Michigan senator, as chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee is the chief GOP foreign policy spokesman on Capitol Hill.

Mr. Truman also planned a series of brush-up conferences on the ticklish international situation. But his meeting with Ickes held top interest with politicians in the Capitol.

About the only advance word was that the veteran New Deal cabinet officer had asked for the appointment and that the President had agreed. Ickes broke with Mr. Truman over the "Pauley incident" in February, 1946. He had testified against the nomination of Edwin W. Pauley to be Undersecretary of the Navy, and the President later said Ickes could have been wrong.

After his resignation had been accepted in a terse not devoid of the usual words of praise, Ickes said he wanted to hold no job under Mr. Truman's jurisdiction.

Dewey wound up his first trip of the campaign, an 8,800-mile coast to coast swing, last night when his 17-car special train returned to Albany. He will go back on the road in about a week with a major speech set for October 15 from St Paul.

That swing may take him into the border states and Kentucky and West Virginia, which Mr. Truman visited last week on the last laps of his 8,300-mile tour.

The President is due to leave Wednesday for a new speech-making grind through four eastern states, including New York.

In yesterday's political firing Gov. J. Strom Thurmond, the States Rights' candidate for president, told a Washington radio audience the issue of racial segregation should be left up to the states.

He said that to deal with the matter by federal law "will only delay the progress we (Southerners) are determined to continue to achieve."

In California's fertile Central Valley, Henry A. Wallace said at Bookersfield that Gov. Earl Warren the GOP vice presidential candidate, "is playing both sides" of the issue of big-acreage corporation farming.

Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentncky, the No. 2 man on the Democratic ticket, flew into Iowa for talks today at Mason City and Ottuma.

Safe Containing $45,000 Stolen

Thieves Took Safe From Bedroom While Family At Church

Dunn, N. C., Oct. 4—(AP)—Sheriff W. E. Salmon disclosed today that a Harnett county landowner's safe containing $45,000 in cash and securities was stolen Saturday night.

N. A. Matthews of Angier reported that thieves took the safe from his bedroom while he and his family were attending services at Neills Creek Baptist church.

Sheriff Salmon said he had few clues to work with and that he had called in agents of the State Bureau of Investigation.

Mrs. Matthews discovered the theft when she entered the room after returning from services.

Matthews reported that the safe contained about $16,000 in cash, $17,000 in government bonds and $12,000 in other securities. In addition, he he said, all his deeds and personal papers were in the safe.

The steel safe was about three feet high and weighed between 800 and 1,000 pounds. Across its face was lettered the name of J. A. Matthews, the owner's grandfather.

Officers said signs indicated the burglars entered the house through the back door rolled the safe from a middle bedroom to the back porch, and loaded it onto a truck or automobile.

To Take Federal Census Shortly City Greenville

By CHESTER WALSH

The Board of the Census, United States Department of Commerce, has notified Mayor Jack Boyd that it has assigned a supervisor to Greenville for a special census and that he will report here in about two weeks. Under the supervisor, the certified federal census to be taken here will have the same effect as the regular census, which is scheduled for 1950.

The special census will enable Greenville to participate in all of the advantages that will accrue from an increased population, including allocations of funds by the State Highway Commission, division of from beer and wine profits, intangible taxes, etc., which are divided strictly on the basis of population, Mayor Boyd said.

Incidentally, the expense of taking this special federal census now will prove to be a good investment, since an increase in the city's population will put the town in line to receive allotments from these funds this year, instead of in 1951, at which time regular census statistics are available, a city official said.

Real Display

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Oct. 4—(AP)—A fire prevention week demonstration was called off yesterday because of a fire.

Firemen, manning their brightly polished apparatus, were demonstrating methods of extinguishing various types of blazes in Bone Stadium when an alarm was sounded at a coal breaker and silt refining plant.

The firefighters abandoned their exhibition and went to the real blaze, working more than an hour before putting out minor fires started by sparks in a half dozen nearby homes and business places. The breaker and refining plant was destroyed.

The fire prevention week demonstration was not resumed.

Tobacco Prices Continue Climb

All Offerings Selling Higher Than Last Week's Record Sale

Tobacco prices on the Greenville market continued to rise today for the sixth straight day, and all offerings on sale this morning were selling higher prices grade for grade than last week's 28-year record-breaking sales.

Reports showed every warehouse in town had all the tobacco it could sell in its alloted time. Total poundage today probably will top Friday's sales when the Greenville market had its largest day of the season both in pounds of tobacco and money paid to farmers.

Sales Supervisor Bill Whedbee reported, "Prices have jumped even over last week, and every kind of tobacco is bringing a high price. The price on every grade has gone up and the buyers are practically fighting for the tobacco."

Many farmers in Greenville today were reported averaging between $72 and $75 per hundred for their entire offerings on today's sales, and row after row of the leaf was averaging over the $66 mark.

Several tobacco officials indicated their belief that over a million dollars will be paid to farmers of this area for today's sales.

Airliner And 21 Aboard Missing

Presumed 'Down At Sea' After Sending Distress Signal

Miami, Fla., Oct. 4—(AP)—A twin engined charter airliner with 21 persons aboard was "presumed down at sea" today after it sounded distress calls somewhere between Charleston, S. C., and Nassau, Bahamas.

The Civil Aeronautics Administration official listed the plane as owned by the New England Air Express Company of Teterboro, N. J., and said "an accident is presumed to have occurred."

The plane's gasoline supply was exhausted at 4:45 a. m. (EST) It was last heard from, calling the International distress signal "Mayday" at 1:44 a. m.

"We can only presume the plane is down somewhere between Charleston and the Bahamas," the CAA said. "Its gasoline is gone and we havn't heard from it for several hours."

The charter airliner, a DC-3, was en route from Teterboro to San Juan, Puerto Rico. It departed Teterboro at 7:30 p. m. yesterday.

The first distress signal was picked up by the CAA's listening post in the Everglades at 12:21 a. m. It was heard on a regular communications frequency. The coast guard, other CAA stations and federal communications commission were alerted in an effort to get a "fix" on the distressed aircraft.

The pilot was instructed to lock his sending key to cause a continuous signal in hope of making a "fix". The signal was heard in Puerto Rico, Jamaica and Miami but died before a cross-bearing could be obtained.

Trial Thursday For Fourteen In Gambling Charge

Raleigh, Oct. 4—(AP)—Fourteen men arrested by authorities here in a drive against gambling are scheduled for trial in city court Thursday.

Last of those arrested was Ed Parker, 41, who told Detective Capt. Bob Goodwin he is a Goldsboro lawyer. Parker was freed under $1,500 bond on a charge of operating a lottery.

Goodwin said his department has evidence that Parker has operated a football lottery in Raleigh and other communities of the state.

The 13 other men were arrested when police, the Wake County sheriff and State Bureau of Investigation agents raided an alleged gambling establishment Friday.

Dewey Described Most Confident Following Tour

Does Not Plan To Alter Measured Pace Of His Presidential Campaign

Albany, N.Y., Oct. 4—(AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey—awaiting a detailed report on the international situation—was described today as so confident of victory he will not alter the measured pace of his presidential campaign.

Back at the New York capitol after a 60-speech western campaign tour, the GOP presidential nominee expects to meet tomorrow with John Foster Dulles, his foreign affairs adviser.

Flying from the Paris meeting of the United Nations, Dulles will give Dewey an intimate view of developments in the Berlin blockade crisis.

Senator Arthur Vandenberg (R-Mich.) will touch on other aspects of Republican foreign policy in a radio broadcast tonight (8 to 8:30 p.m. EST, CBS). While Dewey had no advance look at Vandenberg's text, the two men have gone to great lengths to make their views coincide.

The Republican presidential nominee would not comment on his 14-day western trip.

But an aide said Dewey regards his prospects so highly four weeks before the election that he has no intention of altering his present campaign course to trade punches with President Truman or any other Democrat.

Dewey has been discussing the issues on what his assistants call "a high plane." Democrats have contended that the GOP nominee talks only in generalities, never gets down to brass tacks.

Taking this criticism in stride, the Dewey camp said it will continue its same course in forthcoming campaign tours. The next of which may begin next Monday with a formal speech in Pittsburgh.

After that the New York governor is expected to swing through the southwest, taking in Oklahoma and Missouri, and wind up with an important speech in St. Paul Oct. 15.

Howard will talk at Winston-Salem Thursday, it has been announced by the Rev. W. T. Brown of Maxton, Negro Methodist minister and Progressive candidate for the U.S. Senate.

Club To Promote A Tag Day For Hospital Wing

The Greenville Junior Women's Club will promote a "Dr. T. M. Watson Memorial TAG DAY" on Saturday, Oct. 9th, to raise funds for this memorial to Pitt County's late beloved and popular pediatrician. The memorial is in the form of physical and medicinal aids in the children's wing of Pitt Memorial General Hospital that are not considered entirely necessary as general hospital equipment and not provided by the hospital itself.

It is the hope that this annual "TAG DAY" will give a greater number of persons interested in this field of work an opportunity to contribute to this fund and thereby make it possible for this memorial to grow in its scope of activities.

The local Junior Women's Club won second place over other Junior and Senior Federated Women's Clubs in the state for their work through the year 1947-48 on youth conservation.

Russia Claims UN Council Cannot Go Into Berlin Case

Austin's Reply

Paris, Oct. 4—(AP)—Warren R. Austin of the United States challenged Russia today to say if she is ready to agree to effective international control of atomic energy.

He opened, in the political committee of the United Nations Assembly, the western powers' drive to answer Russia's latest switch in tactics in the atomic energy debate.

Austin said he hoped the time for throwing old tomato cans and dead cats is over. He added he hoped the delegates could get own to real work.

His answer to violent attacks by Russia's Anrei Vishinsky and Dmitri Z. Manuilsky of the Soviet Ukraine was that he would try to do nothing to make the committee's job harder.

Coal Walkout In France Starting

Could Cripple Country; 'Unlimited Duration' Claimed

Douai, France, Oct. 4— (AP) — A strike of some 335,000 French coal miners that could paralyze the nation's industry if prolonged began quietly today.

At two mines near here groups of pickets from the Communist-dominated General Confederation of Labor (CGT) gathered at mine entrances. Neither police nor soldiers were in evidence.

The walkout threatened to cripple coal fields in the north of France and in the Pas De Calais area.

The strike was called for an "unlimited duration" by the Communist-led federation of mines. The non-Communist workers force, claiming 120,000 members, said it would join the strike 'effectively but not actively."4 The non-Communist French Confederation of Christian workers agreed to strike for only 48 hours.

The National Federation claims 320,000 members and the Christian Workers 30,000. The various claims of union membership are overlapping and confusing. Many mines carry more than one union card.

The miners' demands have not been clearly defined. In general the Communists are protesting the high cost of living, the unfavorable relation between wages and prices and a government decision to cut down the number of employes in the nationalized mining industry by eight per cent.

Russia Proposes Ministers Again Discuss Germany

Insist Case Not Within Jurisdiction Of Security Council; Blame West

By EDDY GILMORE

Moscow, Oct. 4—(AP)—Russia proposed today that the four-power council of Foreign Ministers meet to consider the Berlin crisis and the whole German situation.

The Soviet proposal was included in a note to the United States, Britain and France made public by Tass, official Soviet news agency.

The note was a reply to the western power notes of Sept. 26 breaking off four-power negotiations on the Berlin crisis and announcing the question would be taken to the United Nations Security Council.

Shortly before the start of Security Council debate on the Berlin crisis, scheduled for 3 p. m. (9 a. m. EST today, the Russians insisted the case was not within the jurisdiction of the Security Council.

They contended it was a matter to be settled by the four occupation powers and denied western power statements that the Berlin blockade is a threat to international peace and Securtiy.

The note declared: "The United States government's declaration that a situation has arisen which allegedly threatens international peace and security does not correspond with the real state of affairs and constitutes noth. g more than a means of pressure and an attempt to use the United Nations for the achievement of its aggressive aims."

The Russians proposed that the directive to the four military commanders in Germany, drawn up after a long series of four-power talks in the Kremlin, should be used as a ba for settling the Berlin situation.

The note detailed the Soviet version of the agreement reached in the Kremlin talks with Soviet Premier Stalin and Foreign Minister Molotov and included what it said was the text of the directive.

It blamed the three western powers for failure to reach an agreement to end the Soviet blockade of Berlin.

The note asserted the western powers "are striving in fact to govern in a sense of money and finance also the Soviet occupation zone of Germany in order to deprive the U. S. S. R. of its legal rights also in this part of Germany and in the end to evict the Soviet Union from there."

The Soviets claimed the American notes and statements on the four-power negotiations had seriously distorted the content of the Moscow talks, the statements made by Stalin, and of vital portions of the negotiations, and also had omitted essential information.

N.C. Industrial Earnings Climb

Vishinsky Starts Fight To Keep Issue Out Of Council's Hands By Saying Charter Requires Written Peace Treaty Before Discussing Anything On Germany

Paris, Oct. 4—(AP)—Russia told the United Nations Security Council today it has no right to consider western charges that the Soviet blockade of Berlin is a menace to world peace.

Soviet Deputy Foreimn Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky led off his fight to keep the Berlin issue out of the Council's hands. He declared the western demand for U. N. consideration of the dispute was "devoid of any ground, as it does not fall within the scope of the Security Council."

The issue, he said, should be sent to the big four council of Foreign Ministers, as a formal note from Moscow proposed earlier today.

Vishinsky declared the U. N. charter forbids the council to discuss anything concerning Germany until the four occupying powers have written a peace treaty for the beaten country.

Taking the argument to the Foreign Ministers' Council, he said, offers the only legal way to settle the problems of Germany, including Berlin which has been under a Soviet land blockade since last June 23.

He said the Berlin problem is closely linked to the whole German problem. He charged that the currency reform in western Germany last June was an 'act of aggression" against Russian occupation authorities and had forced the Russians to take "defensive measures."

United States, British and French Foreign Ministers met today to discuss Russia's call for resumption of big four talks on Berlin and Germany. They met while the United Nations Security Council was opening debate on the Berlin crisis.

U. S. Secretary of State Marshall Britain's Ernest Bevin and their top advisers on Ger affairs met with French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman in Schuman's office, French spokesman reported.

They had before them fully translated texts of a Russian note, received in the early hours of this morning which replied to their notice to the Kremlin last week that they considered direct east-west negotiations for a Berlin settlement a failure.

Russia's call for a four power meeting was interpreted here as an apparent forecast of a demand for a delay in consideration of the Berlin crisis by the Council.

Moscow dispatches said a Russian note to the three western nations was delivered to the three western Embassies in Moscow shortly after midnight. The note called for the foreign Ministers' meeting, argued that the Security council has no jurisdiction in the Berlin dispute, and blamed the west for causing the Berlin crisis.

It said the Foreign Ministers should discuss the entire German situation as well as the Berlin case.

The Russian move took the United Nations by surprise. Well informed quarters said it apparently meant the Soviets would demand postponement of the Security Council action on the western complaint until the Foreign Ministers have another try at agreement.

An authoritative British source in Paris said that as far as Britain is concerned, the Russian note on Berlin "does not change the situation one bit."

The three western powers have said in the past they are not willing to discuss the German situation as a whole until the Russians lift their blockade of Berlin.

TRAVEL LIMITED

Washington, Oct. 4—(AP)—Russia has issued new travel restrictions which in effect confines foreign diplomats to the Moscow city limits, the State Department said today.

West Europe Alliance

Newly Formed Military Command Regarded As Further Aid To Peace; Its Success Is Based On Hope Of U. S. Aid; Union Still Weak, But Fact Of Alliance Vital

By DeWITT MacKENZIE

The newly formed military command of the western European union — Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxemourg—needn't in any way be taken as a challenge to war but rather as a further aid to peace.

Had there been well implemented coordination of defenses in '39 World War II might not have developed. Of if the war had to come, it might have been possible to hogtie Hitler sooner and thus lessen the slaughter and devastation.

The success of the command is premised on the expectation of these European nations that they will have the moral and material support of the United States. As a matter of fact, the alliance is in line with advice from the U. S. government, and American officials have been predicting that Washington will give the closest possible cooperation.

The American attitude towards the alliance isn't a new development. It was forecast as long ago as last June 11 when the United States Senate overwhelmingly approved a far-reaching foreign policy resolution by Senator Vandenberg of Michigan. This served notice on the world that the treaty-making chamber favored American participation in regional defense organization set up to carry out the peace aims of the United Nations.

However, no American military support could be given the western European union until Congress had authorized it, and U.S. officials have said it would be months before America could enter any formal military alliance. Meantime the union is going ahead with all the steam it can develop.

Now of course we shouldn't jump to the conclusion that great military striking power is created by the mere act of alliance. The spirit is willing (which is half the battle) but the flesh still is mighty weak as the result of the manhandling in the late war. General J. Lawton Collins, U.S. Deputy Army Chief of Staff, said last week that western Europe's military potential "is near an all time low." However, the general added:

"Don't misunderstand me. The manpower potential and the industrial potential of these nations is still great. And with world wide

Big Debate To Begin

Another In The Series On Berlin Crisis Now Before United Nations; Roots Of The Trouble; Original Set-up Invited Friction; How It All Came To Head

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Oct. 4—(AP)—The big debate on the Berlin crisis begins today in the United Nations.

That debate will have its roots in the main events leading up to the crisis. They are outlined here.

These are two kinds of events—economic and political—which are at the heart of the struggle for the future of all Germany. That struggle is between Russia and its wartime allies; the United States, Britain and France.

Just remember that in 1945 the four nations divided Germany into four zones, each occupying one, and they divided Berlin into four sectors, each occupying one. The four were supposed to work together to restore Germany economically—by getting trade, business and jobs going again—and in time to restore it politically—by letting the Germans set up their own government.

But Berlin was a danger spot from the beginning. The four powers had their troops in Berlin, each in its own sector. And each was responsible for supplying its own troops and the Germans living in its sector.

But Berlin was in the Russian zone. Any supplies the western powers sent in had to move—if they moved by land or water—through the Russian zone. Russia could stop them any time it wished. Instead of working together economically, the zones were working separately, with trade barriers between them.

The United States and Britain decided this couldn't go on, if Germany was to be restored to anything like normal. So they agreed to treat their tow zones as one, economically.

Russia refused at first but now is taking part. This was a big clash between Russia and the western powers but not as big as the political explosion that happened last spring. This was it:

Russia and the western powers couldn't agree on the kind of government they'd let Germany have. So early this year the western powers went ahead with their own ideas and started to create a new German government.

It hasn't been set up yet, but the western powers and the Germans living in their zones are working on it. When it starts, it will be independent of the Germans in the

Annual District Meet Woman's Club

The annual meeting of the Fifteenth District of the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs was held in Greenville on October 1, 1948, with the Greenville Woman's Club as hostess. Mrs. J. A. Gupton of Charlotte, president of the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs, spoke on the subject "Mobilizing for Peace." Mrs. Gupton emphasized that "Peace at any price" was not the federation's objective, but rather a peace which guarantees the freedom and dignity of every human being. Mrs. Gupton went on to state that women had many opportunities for world service through the home, church and community. Mrs. Edwin P. Brown of Murfreesboro, second vice president of the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs, stressed citizenship in her address. She urged that women everywhere exercise their right to vote, and to demand good government instead of "politics." Mrs. Brown also urged that women begin their efforts at home, that they insist on good local government, good county and state government and good national government. She urged that all voters make an effort to know their candidates and to vote according to the merit of candidates and not necessarily their party affiliations. Mrs. Brown brought to the attention of the audience the fact that four amendments to the North Carolina Constitution will be submitted to the voters this fall. She urged that citizens study the amendments carefully in advance and vote according to their convictions after careful study. Mrs. Brown emphasized to the audience the importance of raising moral standards in home and community. Serious moral issues raised by the liquor traffic, movies, radio and comic magazines, should be studied and dealt with by informed and active women's groups in every community.

Mrs. W. J. Moye of Farmville, state chairman of citizenship also urged that women register, vote and learn to know their candidates in local, state and national elections. Mrs. C. W. Beasley of Coleraine gave a report on the headquarters endowment fund.

The program and business meeting was held in the Memorial Baptist Church. Mrs. Wilbur C. Ormond of Ayden, president of the Fifteenth District, presided. The invocation was given by Rev. Richard E. Hardaway. Mrs. Vance Perkins, president of the Greenville Woman's Club, brought greetings from the hostess club and Mrs. R. H. Goodman of Williamston responded. Greetings from the North Carolina Federation of Home Demonstration Clubs were brought by Mrs. H. M. Johnson, 3rd vice president. Mrs. Johnson stressed the need of improving conditions among rural people of the state, and mentioned that what is done in the home and community affects the entire nation. Mrs. Johnson emphasized the need for every citizen to meet the increasing responsibilities resulting from the position of the United States in world affairs.

Minutes of the last meeting were read by Mrs. Robert Booth of Ayden, secretary of the Fifteenth District. Reports were heard from approximately 21 clubs in the district. Special music was provided by Mrs. Moye Dail who sang "America the Beautiful" accompanied by Mrs. R. R. Willmann and by Miss Gladys Reichard who sang "I Talked to God Last Night," accompanied by Miss Elizabeth Drake.

At one o'clock, the meeting adjourned and luncheon was served at the Woman's Club. Mrs. B. G. Campbell of Plymouth, chairman of the Courtesy committee, expressed appreciation to the Greenville Woman's Club, the Junior Woman's Club and Mrs. Vance Perkins for their graciousness and hospitality. Mrs. B. B. Joyner of Lewiston-Woodville extended an invitation to the delegates for the 1949 district meeting. The invitation was accepted.

Following the luncheon, a short memorial ceremony was held at the grave of Sally Southall Cotten. Mrs. J. H. B. Moore placed a basket of flowers at the head of the grave after which the Clubwoman's Hymn was sung. After the memorial ceremony Mrs. Moore invited delegates and local club members to visit the one man art show at the Greenville Art Gallery featuring the works of Mr. W. Frith Winslow, of Plymouth.

Approximately 200 delegates and local club members attended the program meeting.

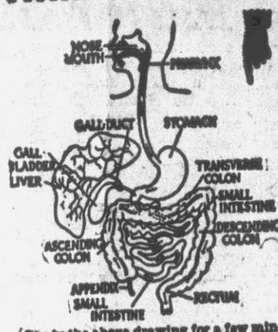
TAKE A LOOK AT YOUR INSIDES



Study the above drawing for a few minutes. Notice particularly how the bile flows from the liver into and out of the gall-bladder and thence into the small intestine where it mixes with the partly digested food just below the stomach. Bile is a necessary adjunct to proper digestion. Its absence from the intestines inevitably causes putrefaction and fermentation.

NATURE'S DANGER SIGNALS

When your stomach, liver, and gall bladder have been upset by improper eating or drinking, or when they are not working well because retained and putrefying food matter in your intestines is poisoning your entire body, you, sooner or later, begin to feel some of the following symptoms:

Your breath may become unpleasant (halitosis), your tongue coated, a bad taste in your mouth, your coffee (and tobacco) lose their natural flavor, your food does not agree with you; you may have heartburn, gas and dizzy spells, you may be troubled with belching; at night the gas in your bowels may press upon your bladder making you get up frequently, thus breaking into your sleep.

In the morning you are tired instead of refreshed. Gradually your health is impaired.

Your complexion may become sallow or bilious; dark rings may appear under your eyes, you may feel lazy, dull and irritable or blue and melancholic. You may have frequent colds (catarrh) or dull head-ache; your bowels stop their free, full and natural action; you have constipation, gas, putrefaction and self-poisoning ("intestinal toxaemia" or "acute gastritis" as many doctors call it).

HOW TO GET RELIEF

You can relieve this condition, usually overnight, by taking Calotabs at bedtime and drinking water freely next day.

The beneficial effects of Calotabs lie in the fact that they are (1) laxative, (2) antiseptic to the intestines, (3) diuretic to the kidneys, (4) effective in relieving symptoms of biliousness and acute gastritis due to constipation or faulty digestion.

Calotabs are pleasant to take (sugar coated), prompt and effective. Try them and see. Follow label directions. At your druggists'.

"EASTERN CAROLINA'S SHOPPING CENTER"

Communications Center At College Starts Work

The Communications Center at East Carolina Teachers College, recently set up under the direction of Dr. Allan S. Hurlburt of the faculty has begun its work this fall and plans are now in programs for the acquiring of additional equipment and for an expansion of service to teachers and students at East Carolina and in public schools in this area.

Three rooms in the Education Building on the campus are being used for the center. One of these is a projection room seating fifty people, which is used for showings of films and slides and is available to all deportments of instruction.

Included in equipment available at present are a sound projector, an opaque projector, and a slide and slide film projector; a tape sound recorder; and a movie camera. Materials are available for making instructional films of various types. A film library and a catalog file are also being built up. Plans are now being made for the establishment of a radio studio on the campus.

The Communications committee headed by Dr. Hurlburt is a policy-recommending group to consider all requests for departmental purchases of communications equipment and to make recommendations to the dean of the college. It also arranges the rental and purchase of films and other visual material used in instruction and schedules the showing of films and slides at the center.

The center will aid public schools in this section of the state, whenever it is possible to do so, by providing some materials and by giving instruction in the use and furnishing information as to the availibility of communications equipment.

Unable To Prove Leaks Profitable

Washington, Oct. 4—(AP)—Four House Republicans said last night they have "not been able to prove" that any of the grain speculators under fire last winter made use of "inside" information.

A second finding—that government buying programs played a major role in rising food prices—brought a hot retort from three House Democrats. They called it "an indirect attack upon the great program of world recovery which the United States has been following since the war."

The seven lawmakers make up the special House committee created to look into charges that administration officials and other commodity speculators had profited from information leaks.

Their majority and minority reports were printed in a single document.

The Republicans, led by Chairman August H. Andresen (Minn.), said the nearly 1,200,000,000 bushels of grain shipped overseas during the two years ended last June 30 "was the controlling factor which caused scarcity and higher prices for grains and feed for livestock."

This in turn, the majority report went on, led to smaller supplies of beef, pork, poultry and dairy products.

Falkland Man Is New President Of Association

David L. Morrill of Falkland was elected president of the North Carolina Association of the Deaf Saturday as the association members concluded the business session of their 17th biennial convention at the Sir Walter Hotel, in Raleigh.

Morrill succeeds George H. Bailey of Cary as president. Other new officers elected were: Edward Farnell of Jacksonville, first vice- president; Emily Sexton of Raleigh, second vice-president; C. W. Knotts of Hickory, treasurer; and Beecher Butler of Havelock, financial secretary. Lyon Dickson of Brevard was re-elected secretary.

Approximately 150 persons attended the convention. Highlights of Saturday's session included an address by Governor-nominee W. Kerr Scott, an address by Association President Bailey, and a banquet held Saturday night in the hotel's Virginia Dare ballroom.

The convention opened Saturday morning at 8:15 o'clock with an invocation by the Rev. N. N. Fleming pastor of the Hawfield Presbyterian Church. An address of welcome was made by City Manager Roy S. Braden and Doris Alexander brought greetings from the local committee. Response was made by Charles E. Jones, and Ben E. Hoffmeyer, principal of the N. C. School for the Deaf, discussed the school's activities and plans for the future.

Union Dismisses Former Officers

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 4—(AP)—Harold Christoffel was stripped last night of membership in Local 248 UAW-CIO.

The local membership voted to expel Christoffel and eight other former officers who led it through an unsuccessful strike against the Allis Chalmers Mfg. Co. two years ago.

The nine were among 13 former officers of the local who were charged with mishandling union funds. The local's trial committee recommended dismissal and the membership concurred at last night's meeting.

At the same time, the local authorized its executive board to withdraw a $5,000 cash bond which was put up for Christoffel when he was tried for perjury at Washington last March. The board is expected to act on the matter tonight.

Christoffel was convicted of perjury in connection with statements before a congressional committee in which he denied Communist associations. He now is free on bond pending an appeal of conviction.

Women In The Church

By MARY FOWLER

The newly-named principal of Vellore Christian Medical College, Vellore, South India, is now on a three-months visit to medical centers and hospitals in the United States and Canada. She is Dr. Hilda M. Lazarus, one of the most noted medical authorities in India. Her new post is perhaps the key medical position in India for in this college there will be trained practically all the young men and young women of the Christian faith who study medicine or nursing in their native land for some years to come. The college and its associated hospital are supported by a group of 40 Protestant mission boards of North America and of Europe. Dr. Lazarus points out that India, with a population three times that of the United States, has less than one-third as many doctors, still less nurses, and 3,250,000 children die each year from preventable causes. One of her important tasks will be to change India's thought pattern that considers nursing a menial occupation.

The American Mission to Lepers (156 Fifth Ave., New York City), which serves all Protestant churches in this field of medical relief, has produced a motion picture of the life of Miss Mary Reed, of Lowell, Ohio, a Methodist missionary to India who devoted her life to the care of thousands of lepers at Chandag Heights, India, after she herself was discovered to have become a victim of the disease. When she died in 1943, at the age of 89, her birthday was being observed annually by thousands of Christian groups. Chandag Heights is still in service with more than 100 patients.

Mrs. Gerald L. Downie, wife of the medical missionary at Nanping, Fukien Province, China, and Miss Chang En-teh, a public health nurse, have recently established a station for the hospital's Mobile Health unit in the town of Tahhwang, 26 miles away. There had never been a Christian service in the town until these workers arrived and gathered some children into a class. Now a 16-year-old Chinese girl has school for three hours per day. Says Mrs. Downie, "We were shocked to find that there were only two persons among the 35 at our opening worship service who had toothbrushes, and these were used by all members of the family; in fact toothbrushes can't be bought in Tah-hwang. And not one had had a bath the previous week."

Nationalization Of Steel Meets Foes In Britain

London—(AP)—Opponents of socialization are organizing a defense fund to campaign against government plans to nationalize Britain's iron and steel industry. Alfred Edwards, member of Parliament, is organizing the campaign. He was expelled from the Labor Party last spring after he publicly criticized iron and steel nationalization, one of the projects the government hopes to accomplish before the 1950 general election.

The defense fund plans to conduct its campaign through public meetings, publications and a film on steel showing how the industry has reached a high rate of production under private enterprise.

AN ARRESTING LESSON FOR US ALL

It is amazing that a book as intellectually profound as "A Study of History" by Toynbee should have had such an enormous sale. It is lengthy, difficult to read, and requires on the part of the reader either an educational background or a natural relish for intellectual pursuits. It would seem to be a book for a special class, but tens of thousands of people are reading it. It is commended to anyone who is willing to pay the price—not the price of the book but the price which tough reading charges the brain.

The message of the book is that societies go to pieces not politically or economically, but spiritually. As one reads the book he keeps thinking all the time of modern America. It can really be said to be a terrifying book. When one is finished reading it, he is no longer afraid of the atomic bomb—he has learned that his own spiritual indifference and that of his fellows is threatening him and the whole world with such devastating ruin that the dangers of the atomic bomb can be dismissed as inconsequential.

If you want to read what has been called the outstanding book of the century, and are willing to give a month's reading time to the project, get this one and read it.

Around Capitol Square

By LYNN NISBET

ATTRACTION—There must be some strong appeal in any situation that would break Senator Clyde R. Hoey loose from a conference of his beloved Methodist church. The Democratic rally at Morganton had that appeal. The senior senator had indicated he might not be able to reach Morganton because of conflict with the Western N.C. Methodist conference at High Point. As the hour approached he couldn't resist the pull, and he showed up on time at the Burke county court house. The same attraction brought an elderly woman from Avery county, who said she had lived with a Republican husband for 40 years without losing the political faith inherited from her Confederate soldier father.

LOST—Senator Hoey is very much at home around political meetings, but on several occasions when some of the other leaders sought a word with him at the various district rallies they thought he was temporarily lost. He was soon found—every time talking to one of the best looking women around the place.

YOUNGSTERS — Two of the "Young Democrats" accorded special recognition at the ninth district rally were Messrs. Shaver and Roseman. Distinction was not made, but they were presented as 84 and 92 years of age. One had a long white beard; neither wore glasses or hearing devices. The youthful 85-year-old congressman, "Farmer Bob" Doughton, occasionally cupped a hand around his ear—only to partially block out the confusing noises from the corridor just back of the speakers stand.

PRAYER—Kerr Scott had every session of the state board of agriculture over which he presided during eleven years as commissioner opened with prayer. The first two big Democratic meetings held under sponsorship of the state executive committee last week were also opened with prayer. Dr. T. C. Johnson, a pious politically Baptist minister, started off the meetings at Asheville and Morganton. He also attended the district rally at Salisbury, but the ninth and tenth district meets were held without benefit of clergy.

INVITATION—As Capus Waynick, state chairman, and his coterie of top flight Democratic candidates were leaving the Yadkin Hotel dining room after breakfast Friday morning they met John A. Wilkinson, Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate, coming in. A cordial invitation to attend the Democratic rally was extended to the Republican candidate, who declined but said he would be "present in spirit." (Not, however, for purpose of aiding and abetting.) Wilkinson had spoken at a big Republican meeting in Salisbury the night before and was enroute then to Concord for another engagement.

HOPEFUL—Republicans have established ninth district headquarters in Salisbury and are working hard to take the district away from the venerable Bob Doughton, who has won over Republicans in every election since 1910. They have a popular candidate in the person of Clyde Greene, Boone merchant and former president of the state merchants' association. Doughton's general election majority over Greene in 1946 was 6,422, the vote being 36,007 to 29,585. A much larger vote is expected this year, probably as high as 95,000. Record for the district was 93,000 in 1936, with Doughton getting 60,223 and his Republican opponent Watt Gragg getting 32,659.

BUDGETEERS — The advisory budget commission has another tour of inspection scheduled. For two or three days, beginning Sunday, October 10, the group—or a major part of it—will be aboard the state's flagship "The Hatteras," inspecting port facilities along the coast. Col. George W. Gillette, director of the State ports authority, arranged the schedule. Sponsors of the plan to develop shipping in and out of North Carolina ports have felt all along that one reason for lack of development has been lack of information about the possibilities of Carolina ports, especially at Wilmington, Southport and Morehead City.

MORE PRAYER—The Good Book says that the "fervent effectual prayer of a righteous man availeth much." A cute little story coming out of the western tour of the Democrats has to do with one man's doubt about this business of "availeth." This man, a relatively high ranking appointive official, guessed so badly wrong on the gubernatorial primary that he really stuck out his neck for Johnson. He was telling a group of friends the other day about what a fine crop he has on his farm this year and how good prices his stuff is bringing. Naturally under the circumstances, he gives full credit for these high prices to the Democratic administration. He also would not be averse to remaining on the state payroll.

ASSIST—As the party was breaking up one of the friends suggested that when he said his prayers he would add a petition that farm crops continue good and prices high. The farmer-official replied: "Now when you do that kind of praying I want you to have Kerr Scott kneeling beside you. I'm going to need some help there; and after all, I already know how to grow cotton."

Boyle's Column

Carver, Mass. —(AP)— Cranberries built a railroad here.

The line is only 5½ miles long, but it carried 125,000 passengers last year.

"It's the last surviving two-foot gauge steam passenger railroad on the continent," said the owner, Ellis D. Atwood, 59, who is the nation's largest individual cranberry grower.

Atwood bought the old-fashioned small engines and cars for his privately operated "Edaville Railroad" from a defunct line in Maine several years ago. It has become one of the chief tourist attractions in this section of Massachusetts.

But Yankees think even a hobby should pay its own way, so Atwood's busy little railroad has a function beyond keeping him and the tourists amused. It hauls from bog to boxing factory the 10,000 to 12,000 barrels of cranberries he grows ecah year.

The railroad winds around the 1,800 marshy acres that yield the small red berries which built a fortune for the Atwoods in the last three generations.

The economic possibilities of the cranberry were overlooked for two centuries by the descendants of the Pilgrims who landed in 1620 at Plymouth, only a few miles from here. But in the last 100 years it has become Massachusetts' most valuable export crop.

Today the state grows 63 percent of the world's supply of cranberries and more than 50 percent are produced within a fourteen-mile radius of this small village.

The cranberry used to be as wild as the Indian. Now it is tame—and profitable. It fetched $31.40 a barrel in 1946, $19 a barrel last year. This year the opening price was $15 but even at that figure it pays good dividends to thrifty farmers here.

'Ten acres of berries can earn a family a good living," said Atwood

Cranberries are grown on land useless for any other crop. They demand four things — peat bogs, sand, plenty of water and a cold climate. They are raised commercially here, in New Jersey and in Wisconsin, Washington and Oregon

But although they are grown on waste soil they are a fairly expensive crop to cultivate.

"It takes $3,000 today to put an acre of cranberry bog in producing condition," said Atwood. He uses a helicopter to dust and spray his bogs against insects, but the crop still has to be gathered by hand.

The bogs are flooded in the winter to protect the plants from being dried out by bitter winds. Once every two or three years they must be covered with sand.

The picking season now is under way, and the bogs are a colorful old-world sight.

Most of the pickers are immigrants from the Cape Verde islands off Africa. They go into the fields carrying large two-handed scoops, kneel and sweep the containers through the tangled plants. Gathering the berries in this way is hard, arduous labor—but it pays well.

"The pickers get 40 cents a bushel and can easily average 40 bushels a day," said a foreman on Atwood's plantation. "A fast picker in a good bog can bring in 100 bushels a day."

After the hand-picking is done the bogs are flooded. A power boat then cruises about agitating the water, and the loose berries come to the surface. They are gathered in long handled wire nets.

You can tell a good cranberry by its bounce more than by its color. And that is how they are sorted. They are dropped into a series of wooden-flanged containers. Those that bounce over the sides land on a conveyor belt that starts them on the way to the nation's fruit and vegetable stands.

Those that don't bounce don't go to market. They never get to team up with the Thanksgiving turkey.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By JANE EADS

Washington—Since the early war years the Bureau of Human Nutrition and Home Economics of the Department of Agriculture has attempted to help people plan, buy and prepare the foods they ought to eat to keep healthy. Food plans, weekly diets for various ages, sex and activity groups, and ways to prepare available foods are suggested in scores of pamphlets distributed by the bureau through the Department of Agriculture's extension service ,the nation's leading nutrition groups and other organizations.

Currently popular and helpful publicanion is the Bureau's "Money Saving Main Dishes," containing 150 tested recipes designed to help American families fight high costs by thrifty buying and wise use of economical foods. The bureau believes that these menus, which feature less costly cuts of meat and foods in plentiful supply, "will extend the purchasing power o fthe dollar and at the same time assure well-balanced nutritious diets.'

Then there are a group of pamphlets, "Food for Two," "Food for the Family With Young Children," "Food for Families With School Children."

In the first of these the Bureau takes a two-member family, "Helen and Hank Young," showing how they plan their food. Costs of the weekly food plans in this publication are based on March 1945 prices and amount to about $10 to $12. As of December 1947 the Bureau estimates the plan would cost $16 to $17 and today more of course.

In each booklet a typical family is described. There's "Richard Wright, husband and father, clerk in an engineering office . . . Margaret his wife, homemaker and mother of . . . Suzy, aged 2 years, and 5-year-old Jimmy, two jolly lively youngsters." Then there are the Moores with their four children, all of whom are of school age.

At present, the Bureau, in cooperation with various state experimental stations, is summerizing the results of a house-to-house canvass conducted over the past few months in 70 American cities to see what people eat. The basic purpose of the survey is to see what can be done to improve American diets and expand consumption for agricultural commodities.

Starts One-Man Radio Drive On 'Give-Aways'

LOW-CUT — Eleanor Parker, screen actress, wears a satin dinner gown, low-cut and draped off the shoulders.

New York, Oct. 4—(AP)—Fred Allen has started a one-man radio campaign against the "give-away" programs that have won millions of listeners.

The dour radio comedian has agreed "in self defense" to bond his listeners up to $5,000 against the loss of any prize they might win by listening to some other program.

Allen says "give-away-programs" are ruining incentive for individual talent in radio.

To start the public laughing, Allen announced the award of these mythical prizes on his NBC program:

A genuine television set; and a saloon and bartender to go with it; 4,000 yards of dental floss, practically new; the gangplank of the liner Queen Mary, 800 pounds of putty for every member of the family; two floors of the Empire State Building; and 12 miles of railroad track and a roundhouse completely furnished.

Allen, who said there are so many programs "giving away things" that many people have stopped tuning in comedians, announced that the National Surety Corporation will guarantee his promise to reimburse his listeners.

After he had lampooned "give-away" programs by a take-off of a quiz-master telephoning to lucky listeners, Allen told a newsman that "these give-way programs are not entertainment—just cheap lottery."

"I'm out to do something about them," he declared.

In the junior and senior high schools and the Eppes high school, an essay contest is being conducted and prizes will be given by the Chamber of Commerce for the three best essays on fire prevention written in each of the schools.

Peruvian Troops Smash Revolt In Port Of Callao

Lima, Peru, Oct. 4—(AP)—Government troops held full control over the port of Callao today after smashing a bloody revolt by sailors and civilians.

The insurgents, who seized and used the full firepower of warships and heavily armed naval installations at Callao, Lima's port, launched the revolt early yesterday.

By late last night, government infantrymen, supported by tanks and fighter planes, had rooted the rebels out of their fortified strongholds and apparently had captured them all.

There was no official indication of the number of casualties or of how many persons took part in the revolt. All accounts indicated, however, that the number of dead and wounded was large.

Believe Suicide In Orphan Death

Asheville, N.C., Oct. 4—(AP)—Nine-year-old Carroll Ray Ball sadly watched his playmates at Mountain Orphanage go off to Sunday school yesterday.

He stayed behind, restricted to the institution because of a minor contagious skin infection.

When the children returned, they found Carroll's tiny body hanging from an apple tree.

Dr. P. R. Terry, Buncombe County coroner, said it was an apparent case of suicide.

Colored People Organize Clinic This Community

By J. H. DONALDSON)

An organized group of civic minded Negoes of Pitt County have launched a drive to take over the Battle-Kelly Clinic. But in order to achieve this goal $5,000 must be raised. This drive was started on September 20, and will close on October 20, 1948. A number of workers were sent out with pledge cards soliciting pledges for any amount you wish to give. If the worker happens to miss you, do not feel slighted, just dial 4068 and give your name and address, we will see that you are contacted at once. If you do not wish to pledge but want to contribute you may do so at the Paradise Cafe on Albemarle avenue Greenville and you will be given a receipt for the amount you give.

Already the name of the clinic has been changed to Pitt County Colored Community Clinic. Already a full time registered nurse has been employed. The need for this institution is urgent. Hospital facilities in Pitt County for our group is limited and because of this many Negroes get sick, suffer and die. We feel that the Negroes of Pitt County are willing to share in this movement for their own health's sake.

We feel that we, in Pitt County can maintain a community clinic which may ultimately become a first class hospital as well as is being done by our group in other cities in North Carolina.

Every citizen in Pitt County is asked to contribute to this worthy cause.

Mid-West Hatches Another Batch Strong Grid Elevens

But They Threaten To Eliminate Each Other Before One Can Make Bid For National Honors; Wonder Teams Matched Again

New York, Oct. 4—(AP)—The middle west, long an incubator for stout college football machines, has hatched another bunch of toughies . . . but they threaten to rub each other out before one can make a bid for national honors.

They're loaded in the midlands this year, with teams like Notre Dame, Michigan, Northwestern Minnesota and Ohio State all acting up in early games. But strength appears evenly distributed.

This week Northwestern, the big nine's newest wonder team after that 21-0 shellacking of Purdue, plays unbeaten Minnesota. Purdue, which earlier tossed a scare into Notre Dame, takes on Michigan.

Notre Dame and Michigan shared the unofficial national championship last year on the basis of two Associated Press polls.

Elsewhere around the country these teams stepped to the fore as the young season swung boisterously into October:

East—Army, Pennsylvania, Penn State.

South—North Carolina and Georgia Tech.

Southwest — Southern Methodist University and Arkansas.

Far west—Nevada and California.

Last Saturday's major surprise was Northwestern's triumph over Purdue. The seasoned Boilermakers the week before had held Notre Dame to a 28-27 squeak and had been labeled as the Western Conference "team to beat."

Purdue Coach Stu Holcomb said his athletes experienced a "letdown" against the Wildcats and intimated they'd bound back this week.

Ohio State and Michigan, meanwhile, added to Western Conference prestige by continuing the Indian sign over Pacific Coast rivals. Ohio State humbled Southern California, 20-0, and Michigan toppled Oregon, a West Coast favorite, 14-0. Notre Dame breezed to a 40-0 triumph over Pittsburgh. Minnesota showed a lot of power in toppling Nebraska, 39-13.

In the east Army continued to ride high although its second game opposition wasn't too rugged. The Cadets ran over Lafayette, 54-7.

Pennsylvania and Penn State, two of the 1947 unbeatens, made successful debuts. Penn trounced Dartmouth, 26-13. Penn State, the east's defending titlist, lashed Bucknell, 35-0.

In three upsets, Cornell stunned Navy, 13-7; Harvard defeated Columbia, 33-24, and Brown tripped Princeton on Joe Condon's last minute field goal, 23-20.

North Carolina, with Charlie (Choo Choo) Justice at the throttle, kept its championship hopes alive by whipping Georgia, 21-14. The Southeastern Conference favorite, Georgia Tech, edged past Tulane, the club that earlier stopped Alabama, 13-7.

By BOO BOO BUTLER

Here's the way they stand in the North Eastern Conference:

	Won	Lost	Tied
Kinston	3	0	0
Edenton	1	0	1
Washington	2	0	0
New Bern	1	1	0
Greenville	1	2	0
Elizabeth City	0	1	1
Roanoke Rapids	0	1	0
Tarboro	0	3	0

It may be a little early, but from where I stand, the North Eastern Conference champs will be determined on November 12th in Kinston when the Kinston Red Devils entertain the Pam Packs from Washington, North Carolina. The Red Devils have drawn victories over Roanoke Rapids, Tarboro, and Elizabeth City, all lower bracket clubs at this time. The Pam Packs have topped Tarboro and New Bern. They had a hard time with New Bern Friday night, as they edged out the Beaus 19 to 13. In less than 4 minutes to play, Rudolph Dixon went off tackle 18 yards to break the 13-13 tie. So, I'm picking Kinston to win the title.

Coach Johnson was over at Wilson Saturday to see the football game between A. C. and Newport News. Since the Pirates play both clubs, Johnson was very busy trying to make out the plays of each team.

The Homecoming for AC was dealt a hard blow as the Apprentices from Newport News upset the Bluedogs 13 to 6. At the half, AC led 6 to 0, but not for long. Newport took the kickoff and raced 90 yards for a touchdown. The extra point was scored and Newport led 7 to 6. Their other tally came on a pass good for 27 yards.

Question from Ayden, N. C.

Do you think Wake Forest will upset N. C. this week?

Ans. No! The Deacons are good for one upset a year and it came Saturday against William and Mary. Last year they upset the Tar Heels 19 to 7. It was one of the major upsets of the year. This year paced by "Justice" the University of North Carolina will be cut for revenge. Carolina by at least 12 points.

Last year's record: Wake Forest, won 6, lost 4, tied 0.

North Carolina won 8, lost 2, tied 0.

Some Fireworks When Duke Plays Navy On Oct. 9

Durham, N. C., Oct. 4—(AP)—A rivalry that's produced plenty of heart-rattling moments in its short life will be renewed here Saturday when Navy battles Duke in one of the Middies' infrequent Southern invasions.

It's strictly a meeting of clubs that haven't been able to get for this season, but some 30,000 fans are expected to watch this 10th game between the schools over a 21-year period.

They've got everything to gain and nothing to lose, for each club is going after its first victory in its third start this season. Duke tied N. C. State 0-0 and Tennessee 7-7 in its two games. Navy dropped a 20-7 decision to California in its opener and then fell before Cornell 13-7 in an upset.

But the fans here Saturday still will be looking for the same sort of fireworks which have been set off in past games of the series, in which Navy has won six, lost two and tied one.

Take that tie game, for instance. That was reeled off at Baltimore last year before 35,000 fans who saw the middies roar from behind twice to pull into a 14-14 deadlock. Navy scored its second touchdown with just eight seconds to go.

Another standout in the series—for Navy supporters—is the third game, in 1929. After Navy had taken 32-6 victories the two previous years it looked as though Duke might be headed for its first win over Navy. At halftime, the Blue Devils led by 13-12—but the middies exploded in second half to gain a 45-13 triumph.

The next year Duke got that first victory 18-0. The leader in that clash, incidentally, lives near Annapolis now. He's galloping Bill Murray, who coaches at Delaware.

The teams didn't meet again until 1943. Navy came out on top in that one 14-13—handing Duke its only loss of the season. The Blue Devils missed a tie late in the game when a placekick for the extra point failed.

Navy won again in 1944, 7-0, and 1945, 21-0, in a game played at Durham.

In 1946, the Blue Devils came through with their second victory, 21-6—after getting off to a por start for the season, two losses.

Hogan, Haas And Palmer Play Off Three-Way Tie

Portland, Ore., Oct. 4—(AP)—Portland's open Gold tournament went into extra holes today at triple title holder Ben Hogan hooked up in a single round playoff with tall Fred Haas Jr., of New Orleans and Johnny Palmer of Badin, N. C.

The trio hit the wire dead even yesterday in a sensational wind-up to the $19,000 72-hole links race. Palmer toured the Portland Country Club course, a par 35-37—72 test, with scores of 69-66-68-67 for a total of 270.

Hogan, owner of the U. S. and Western open crowns in addition to the P. G. A. title, tacked up scores of 67-71-65-67. Haas' similar eighteen under par performance for the distance was accomplished in this fashion: 67-67-71-65.

Landed Big Catfish But Cost Him A Net

Raymond Duffy, Greenville Negro, landed an 18½ pound catfish with a hook and line Saturday while fishing in the river near the railroad bridge.

Raymond's reed pole and line held the big fish, but he lost his landing net while trying to land the fish.

The track has been fast for 30 runnings of Hialeah's two big states—the Widener and Flamingo.

Hammerin' Hank . . . by Pap

Hank Bauer is slated to play an important role in the future plans of the New York Yankees. The former Marine has been in organized baseball only since 1946 but he is rated one of the most promising players in the Yankee chain. Before he was brought up by the Yankees early in September, Hank was voted the most popular player on the KansasCity club.

Bauer started the 1948 season poorly but was pounding the ball at a .305 clip when called up. He had driven in an even 100 runs and hit 23 home runs. The 26 stolen bases credited to him indicated that Bauer had speed. He is a fine fielder, a hustler all the way and boasts a strong, accurate throwing arm. He has come a long way and fast in as much as he had little time for baseball while serving five years with the Marines on Guam, Okinawa, Guadalcanal and Japan.

"Hank is certain to make the grade in the big show," says Billy Meyer, the current manager of Pittsburgh who bossed Hank in Kansas City last season. "I'm only sorry I couldn't have taken him along to Pittsburgh with me." The experience Hank picks up in the big show this fall should give him a flying start in the spring. The Yankees are counting heavily on Bauer, and he isn't likely to fail them.

Record Crowd

Chicago, Oct. 4 (AP) A record pro football crowd for Chicago if 53,000 is expected to watch the season's first meeting between the Chicago Bears and their cross-town rivals, the Cardinals, in Comiskey park tonight.

Winner of the National football league headliner will be tabbed the favorite to win the Western division crown.

The Cardinals will be seeking their fourth consecutive triumph over the mighty Bears who lost twice last season to the National championship Southside club.

Citation Hailed Greatest Racer

New York, Oct. 4—(AP)— Move over, Man O'War, and make room for Citation, hailed today by veteran horsemen as the greatest race horse ever to trod the American turf.

They were wary about "climbing out on a limb" for Citation until the Calumet Farm three-year-old champion licked six other horses to a frazzle in the $100,000 Jockey Club Gold Cup at Belmont Saturday. That display of power was the "convincer."

"He's the greatest horse I've ever seen," said Max Hirsch, trainer of Robert J. Kleberg's King Ranch, who saddled several opponents of Man O'War 28 years ago.

Hirsch was one of several old-time horsemen who congratulated Jimmy Jones, the Calumet trainer, at Belmont Park after Citation merely romped under double wraps to defeat Phalanx by eight lengths in the two-mile classic.

"If we ever see another one like him, we'll be lucky." said Hirsch, voicing the sentiment of several others.

"Maybe somebody will want to throw bricks at me for saying it, but I've never seen a horse like this one. He has the right disposition, soundness, and looks like he can do anything. You'd have to get a machine to do any better.

"That race (Saturday) showed he could run as far and as fast as they have to, and what more can you do?

White Sox Lose Pilot Ted Lyons

Chicago, Oct. 4 —(AP)— Ted Lyons has quit the last-place Chicago White Sox.

His resignation as manager ends a 25-year active career with the club, one of the longest in major league history.

Charles Comiskey, 22-year-old heir of hte baseball dynasty, last night announced the appointment of Jack Onslow as Lyon's successor. The 59-year-old Onslow moves up from the Sox Memphis farm club after guiding the Chicks to second place in the Southern Association this season.

Young Comiskey, only grandson of Charles A. Comiskey, one of the national sport's pioneers, said Lyons had refused a position in the White Sox farm system.

"Ted doesn't want a desk job," said Charles, who used to sit on Lyons' lap in the dugout as a kid. "He wants to stay active in the game and will start shopping for a new spot."

Lyons, who came to the Sox fresh from Baylor campus in 1923 and became one of the league's top pitchers, had only one comment.

"I did the best I could with what we had."

The "Old Baylor Bear," winner of 27 games in 1927 and 22 in 1930, replaced Jimmy Dykes as White Sox manager in 1946. The club finished fifth in the American League that year, dropped to sixth in 1947, and failed to get out of the cellar this season.

Still Wondering

Boston, Oct. 4 — (AP) — The National League champion Boston Braves, all but forgotten in the red-hot American circuit's pennant race, returned home today—still wondering what team they will play in the World Series opening Wednesday.

The Tribe was scheduled to be guests of honor at a Chamber of Commerce dinner, but instead will attend the Red Sox-Cleveland Indians playoff game to decide the American League's pennant winner.

Williams Tops

Chicago, Oct. 4—(AP)—Ted Williams enters today's dramatic Boston-Cleveland pennant playoff as the American League's 1948 batting champion.

Through yesterday's games, the Red Sox belter had posted a .370 mark, highest made by an A.L. batting king since 1941. In that year, Williams won the first of his four hit crowns with a phenomenal .406. He slammed .356 in 1942 and won with .343 last year.

Today's playoff will count in player statistics for the season, so Williams will have a chance to add another point or so on his average.

Midget Football Gear Is Ordered

At its meeting last week, the Greenville Junior Chamber of Commerce voted to donate $200 to the Midget football team for the purchase of needed equipment.

Coach Bill Kittrell, who has tutored the 110 pounders for the last two years, expressed his thanks to the Jaycees for their donation and said uniforms and other equipment has already been ordered.

The Midgets have been working out for about three weeks and are scheduled to swing into conference action next week, probably against Kinston. The exact date of the game has not been set.

Kittrell was greeted this season with a turnout of some 60 boys under 14 years old, compared with approximately 30 boys who reported for practice at the first of last session.

"We have lost practically all of our key players of last year's squad either because they gained too much weight or because they reached the Midget age limit," commented Coach Bill, but many of the boys are showing up well in practice and will probably round into good ball players."

Under the midget football rules, a boy must not weigh over 110 pounds in full uniform or be over 14-years old.

Pro Footballers To Feature Pair Of Top Contests

New York, Oct. 4—(AP)—Professional football, rocking along in the wake of baseball's hottest pennant race, comes up with a pair of first class attractions of its own this week.

Chicago's unbeaten National League rivals—the Bears and the champion Cardinals—meet tonight in Comiskey Park.

Tomorrow night in Baltimore the All-America Conference pits the champion Cleveland Browns against the Baltimore Colts.

The conference played only one game yesterday with Buffalo handing the Brooklyn Dodgers their fifth straight loss, 31-21.

Only one of Texas' 1948 football opponents tops the Longhorns in season series—LSU.

All-American Candidate Justice Leads Scoring

Richmond, Va., Oct. 4—(AP)—Charlie (Choo-Choo) Justice, University of North Carolina tailback, streaked out in front today in the Southern Conference football scoring race.

The Tar Heel candidate for all-American honors had a total of 30 points, 18 of which he collected Saturday afternoon when he led North Carolina to a 21-14 victory over Georgia.

Tied for second place behind Justice were Buddy Cheek, Davidson end, and Bill Gregus, Wake Forest halfback, each with 18 points.

Bob Cox, North Carolina's place kicking end, had 13 points, good enough for fourth place.

Wake Forest's Deacons pulled the major upset of the past weekend by gathering a 21-12 victory over William and Mary's defending conference champion Indians.

The Wake Forest triumph moved the Deacons into undisputed possession of first place in the conference standing. They'll risk that position next Saturday afternoon when the Deacs tackle the powerful Tar Heels at Wake Forest.

Four other conference games are on the slate this week. A Friday night tilt sends the University of Richmond to Furman. William and Mary and Virginia Military Institute at Norfolk, Va., and Virginia Tech faces Maryland at Washington in daylight events Saturday. Davidson travels to North Carolina State Saturday night.

Virginia Military Institute also turned in a surprise over the weekend by scoring a 26-6 rout over George Washington. Clemson's Tigers whipped North Carolina State, 6-0. Other results included Maryland's 21-0 win over Delaware, Washington and Lee's 13-0 decision over Ohio, Duke's deadlock with Tennessee; South Carolina's 7-0 triumph over Furman; Virginia's 28-0 conquest of Virginia Tech, and Presbyterian's 7-0 upset of the Citadel.

Touchdown Story

UNIVERSITY, Miss. — (AP) — Through 15 seasons of Southeastern Conference grid combat, the University of Mississippi leads in furnishing scoring leaders with Ray Hapes (74 points), 1935; Parker Hall (72), 1938; Merle Hapes (72), 1940, and Charley Conerly (54), last year's top hand, setting the pace.

Chapter 11

They sat contentedly in the Sky Room of the El Cortez Hotel and waited for their drinks. Walter James half-turned and put his head close to the glass. Below him the lights of the city stretched in converging broken lines to the harbor where they merged with a puzzle of ship lamps and signal beams. A faint fog was drifting in, obliterating the outlines of destroyers and merchant ships and fishing boats, but the silhouettes of most of the hotels and banks were clearly upthrust against the night. He turned back to the girl.

"Nice view," he commented.

"You'll get used to it," she said.

He smiled. "You really think I'll be here that long?"

"Is there anything you can tell me?" She asked the question like an eager little girl. She leaned across the table toward him.

Walter James shrugged his slim shoulders. "There isn't much to tell. Clapp would rather not believe there's a good-sized dope ring breathing down his neck, but I'll give you odds that right now the vice squad is hauling in every known addict and breaking into every weed parlor north of the border. He's not ready to take my word for anything —of course, I haven't anything conclusive to show him—but he isn't taking any chances. Clapp's a smart cop."

"I like him," Kevin said warmly.

"Kevin," he said gently. She didn't look at him. "You'll have to tell somebody sooner or later. I hope I'll be the one you'll trust. You see, Clapp doesn't completely believe the reason you gave him for being at the Grand Theater."

Kevin turned toward him defiantly. "Oh, you're so darn smart!"

Her fingers touched his briefly. "I'm sorry," Kevin said. Her eyes had a glisten that reflected the bar lights. "Later. I'll tell you a little later. Not now, Walter."

"You look a little tired. If you want to go home—"

Kevin protested. "No." Really, I'm not tired—just a little worried, maybe. I'm really having a lot of—well, I guess with your friend and that Filipino dead I shouldn't call it fun —but I am enjoying myself. Your voice is very soft and reassuring, Walter. So are your eyes."

"That's good," he said smiling. "I'm trying to build an appearance of trustworthiness to hide my serpent's heart."

She smiled provocatively at him. "Well, you warned me—you told me we'd get along. If Bob could only see me now."

"Is he a jealous boy?"

"You hit the right term—jealous boy. He's twenty."

Walter James gave a flat laugh. "Which puts that neat gap of nineteen years between you and me again."

She said softly, "Walter, I can't help being born a little late. I'm trying not to show it."

Walter James sucked in his breath. "Time for another cigarette." He took the last one from a battered crumple of paper and cut into a fresh pack for her. After a long puff of smoke, he held up the unlighted end of his cigarette. "Generally, marijuana looks pretty much like tobacco—a little dirtier in color, maybe. But it's possible to refine it down and get something more powdery. Of course, you smoke either form. Just a little of the dust mixed with regular tobacco and it can't be told from an ordinary cigarette until you inhale."

Kevin smiled gently. "Yes, teacher. And what was our Filipino man doing with his?"

"Selling it to a friend. Or maybe not a friend. Maybe it was somebody he was crazy about, some woman he was trying to get somewhere with. Know who I'm talking about?"

The girl's wide mouth moved bitterly. "Shasta Lynn!"

"That's right—the odd woman."

"Odd? You said that last night, Walter."

"Maybe you didn't notice. But something about her act—something was wrong."

"You mean she might have been full of marijuana—right up there on the stage? I thought her dance was disgusting."

"That was why you went to a burlesque show, wasn't it? To see something disgusting — something you were missing at San Diego State College?" The girl looked stonily at her fresh stinger as the waiter lowered it to the table. "Anyway," Walter James continued, "that wasn't just what I had in mind. There was something else which I'm just sort of curious about."

"Walter."

"Yes?"

"Are you going to see Shasta Lynn yourself?"

Walter James gave her a slow smile. "Tomorrow."

Kevin fumbled in her purse, came up with a slip of paper. "Here's her address." She took a long drink.

"I guess you're ready to tell me now," prompted Walter James softly.

The girl looked at him with eyes that brimmed unhappiness. "Don't laugh at me, Walter."

Walter James put his hand over hers. "You know I couldn't," he said. Kevin bit the inside of her lip. "My father's having an affair with Shasta Lynn."

College Cancels Wallace Address

Fresno, Calif., Oct. 4—(AP)—Presidential Candidate Henry A. Wallace, campaigning through the San Joaquin valley, had one speech deleted from his itinerary today.

It was to have been a talk to Fresno State College students at an afternoon campus meeting, but college officials withdrew the invitation. Dean of Education Mitchell P. Briggs telegraphed the withdrawal notice to Wallace at Bakersfield, where the Progressive party candidate spoke yesterday.

Dean Briggs told reporters there had been protests accusing the college of political partisanship and it was feared there might be demonstrations.

His wire to Wallace said it would be impossible to keep townspeople out of the meeting, the college would have no control over them after they arrived and "a public college can not assume that responsibility."

The college president, Arnold E. Joyal, said "something we decided upon in good faith does not seem to be so good from a public relations standpoint."

The exposition, called the Southern Textile Industry's greatest show, opened at 10:30 a. m. The gates will close tonight at 9 p. m. Tomorrow and for the duration of the exposition, the hours will be 9:30 a. m. to 9 p. m.

Hold Initiative In Chinese War

Nanking, Oct. 4—(AP)—China's high command is anxiously seeking an answer to the Communists new double threat of power and intrigue.

President Chiang Kai-shek's emergency flight into the northeast was described by observers here as one step toward meeting developments which gave the Reds the complete initiative in China's civil war and threatened the National Government's control of all China north of the Yangtze River.

At Chinhsient, vital point on the Manchurian corridor, Red General Lin Pao was throwing overwhelming superior forces against the government garrison.

At Tsinan, Communist Gen. Chen Yi used intrigue and a well planned "trojan horse" attack to defeat government forces without wasting manpower or storming strong defenses.

Observers said there appears to be no National force north of the Yangtze as now deployed capable of meeting the armies of either Lin Pao or Chen Yi on an equal footing. They also fear further defections of government troops to the Communists. This fear is causing Defense Minister Ho Ying Chin's staff many sleepless nights.

Foreign observers said it was still too early to evaluate the general situation. When Chiang Kai-shek will be able to find an answer and halt the Reds is still uncertain.

cooperation there is a daily increase in their strength to defend themselves."

Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, chief of the British Imperial General Staff, is said to have been chosen to head the forces of the five-nation alliance. The selection of this world-renowned soldier has been received with mixed emotions in his own country.

The London Daily Express, published by Lord Beaverbrook, has characterized Montgomery's selection as "a grave blunder." The paper said "an American general a man of the calibre of Eisenhower," should have been chosen.

The Manchester Guardian, while paying high tribute to the field marshal as an army commander, suggests that he may not be popular in the United States, and says he is a land soldier rather than a commander of land, sea and air forces. On the other hand, Columnist A. J. Cummings of the London News Chronicle calls Montgomery Britain's most successful commander since Wellington, and says he has "no rival in the field for the difficult task now assigned to him."

France's General Charles De Gaulle commends Montgomery as a general but says the five-nation pact solves no defense problems because it is centered in London. Whether he is correct is assuming that it is centered in London remains to be seen. Selection of Montgomery as leader wouldn't necessarily mean that London was headquarters.

Well, you can't have alliances without some knotty problems arising. The important point is that there is an alliance, and that it will gain strength with economic recovery and should be a powerful barrier against aggression.

Big Debate . . .

Russian zone, unless the Russians want to take part.

The Russians got so mad about this they began limiting the amount of supplies the western powers could send into their sectors of Berlin.

Then in June the western powers reformed the money in their zone. This was done to try to bring down prices, wipe out black markets, and help business by creating confidence in the money circulated there.

Almost immediately the Russians cracked back by reforming the money not only in their zone but in all Berlin, including the sectors controlled by the western powers.

Then, almost at once, the western powers answered by extending their money reform from their zones of Germany to their sectors of Berlin. So two kinds of money were circulating in Berlin.

The Russians said this was too much of a mess. They cracked back hard: they refused to let the western powers send in any supplies by train, truck or boat to their sectors of Berlin.

The western powers started sending in supplies by plane. They've been doing that since early in the summer. It's tremendously expensive and may bog down when bad winter weather sets in.

Russia not only has refused to lift the land blockade, but is talking of blockading supplies by plane, too. So the west has appealed to the U. N.

Over the week end the Russians revealed that the real reason for the land blockade is not the money reform in Berlin but the new government the west is setting up in western Germany.

Judge McSwain Presiding Over Superior Court

By CHESTER WALSH

Judge Peyton McSwain of Shelby is presiding over a two-week criminal term of Superior Court here. It is a special term, requested by the Board of County Commissioners and Fifth Judicial District Solicitor W. J. (Dick) Bundy, to clear up an unusually heavy criminal docket.

The Superior Court sessions are being held in the courtroom at the City Hall. They were transferred to the municipal building on account of repair, improvement and remodelling work being done at the courthouse.

Hugh C. Winslow is foreman of the grand jury.

Judge McSwain is known to many here. He has long been a prominent member of the North Carolina Bar Association and active in the Cleveland County Bar Association. He has an interesting personality, has a familiarity with Superior Court proceedings which enables him to "get along nicely" with court officials, attorneys and others, court officials said.

Incidentally, the Cleveland county jurist, recently appointed a special judge by Governor Cherry, tried his first case in Raleigh, a civil term, in which two former North Carolina governors appeared as attorneys. They were J. C. B. Ehringhaus and J. Melville Broughton, and appeared on opposing sides, Judge McSwain said here today.

The criminal docket in Superior Court here includes charges of murder, assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill, robbery, burglary, embezzlement, breaking and entering, numerous other cases and 14 cases of driving while drunk.
