Conference Draws
Nearer ConclusionDeceased Members Memorialized; Prospective Members Accepted On Trial And Others Take In Full Connection; Sanford Host City In Next Meet

By WYATT BROWN

The third day of the North Carolina Methodist Annual Conference being held in Greenville this week was completed yesterday. Deceased members of the Conference were memorialized, the history of Jarvis Memorial was read, prospective members were accepted on trial, another group was taken into full connection, several ministers were retired, and Steele Street Methodist Church in Sanford was selected to entertain the conference next year. Dr. Harold A. Bosley, Dean of Duke University Divinity School, preached in the course of the afternoon session and addressed the class received into full connection. At the evening session Dr. Harry Holmes, secretary of the World Alliance through the Churches, Jackson Heights, New York, addressed the conference as part of the anniversary of the Conference Board of Lay Activities.

L. W. Topping, First Presbyterian Church, Dr. H. G. Hanes, Eighth Street Christian Church, J. A. Nelson, Immanuel Baptist Church, C. D. Patterson, Meadowbrook Presbyterian Church, Dr. R. K. Haraway, Memorial Baptist Church, a retired minister living in Durham, who was formerly the editor of the North Carolina Christian Advocate following many years as a pastor. Dr. Plyler was the first preacher to deliver a sermon in Jarvis Memorial on March 6, 1897. He gave many intimate glimpses as recorded in the journals of former pastors and his own recollections. Most particularly he related the person of Governor Thomas to the life of the church and others. Dean Harold Bosley made his final appearance on the program yesterday afternoon when he delivered a sermon entitled "Reconciliation." He said reconciliation was an idea, a faith, and a strategy when it was motivated by a vital Christian faith.

Dr. Harry Holmes' address made the point that present day people must earn for themselves their heritage from Christian forebears. "Can we give back into the stream of life our Christian heritage," he queried. "We have got to clear up some of these channels to the real fundamentals," he declared.

W. Jasper Smith of Bethel who is conference lay leader introduced the speaker. Sam B. Underwood, Jr., district lay leader of New Bern, district of which Greenville is a part, read the Scripture for the service.

There was a class of eight young men received into full connection—apostles to the Methodist ministry who had satisfactorily qualified after a two year trial period and certain specified studies. Dr. Harold A. Bosley addressed the class briefly just prior to the putting of the questions by Bishop W. W. Feele. "You are doing a work not ours and according to a will not ours. We have the task of remaking the world part of a working fellowship of devoted workers," Dr. Bosley told the class. He told them the requirements upon them would be great. Pastors must be ready, well trained and keep well trained. He urged them, the young men, to test each effort to the universality of its appeal.

Those admitted into full connection were: T. J. Barrett, D. P. Bowers, J. M. Gline, J. P. Edwards.

About Absent Voters

Around Forty-eight Million People Of Voting Age Did Not Vote In Tuesday's Election; A Lesson Directed To Them; How a Tiny Minority Can Control Government

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Nov. 6—(AP)—There's a lesson in Tuesday's election if you're one of the 48,000,000 people of voting age who didn't vote.

It's simply this: By not voting, you can let a tiny minority of voters, organized into a third party, actually pick your government for you.

Roughly, about 46,000,000 people voted Tuesday. There are 94,000,000 of voting age. So 48,000,000 didn't vote.

President Truman won around 23,000,000 votes, or almost 2,000,000 more than the 21,000,000 Governor Dewey got.

But Henry Wallace and his Progressive party were in the race, too. He got only about 1,000,000. But—

If he had received only about 100,000 more votes in a few places he would have offset Mr. Truman's 2,000,000 lead over Dewey and thrown the election to the Republicans.

No one knows, of course, what would have been the vote of those 48,000,000 people who didn't vote.

High Winds And
Tornadoes Pave
Path With RuinsFive Southern States Report Deaths And Damage In Wake Of Storms

By The Associated Press

Pin-sized tornadoes and destructive Southern states Friday leaving eight persons dead, 67 injured and homes, farm buildings and crops flattened.

The rural area around Benton, Miss., got the worst of the tornado terror. The Red Cross reported six persons killed—six-year-old Georgia white and five Negroes—and 30 injured there.

The child's parents and seven brothers and sisters received injuries when their home on a plantation was shattered by the twister.

Other tornadoes or high winds struck at Ripley, Miss.; near Vicksburg, Miss.; at Cedarburg, Ga., near Ellabritton, Ky.; near Pulaski, Tenn.; near Atlanta, La., and in Louisiana's rural Catahoula Parish, 38 miles northwest of Vicksburg, Miss.

The Daily Corinthian of Corinth, Miss., reported Mrs. M. E. Young, 89, died in a Ripley hospital of injuries received in a tornado. Thirteen others received hospital treatment and six houses here demolished.

In Catahoula Parish, Sheriff Fred W. Perkins said Mrs. J. C. Evans about 30 of her barns, was killed. Fifteen others were injured and about 25 houses were destroyed or damaged.

Near Alexandria, two Negroes were injured and a few farm structures smashed or damaged. Mr. and Mrs. Noah Cofer were injured in the Kentucky blow, and heavy winds and driving rains caused considerable damage.

Police Lt. A. J. Barrett said glass panes in the windows of several buildings were shattered and the power system damaged.

No casualties were reported from the Vicksburg, Miss., or Pulaski, Tenn., storms, but rural homes and barns were damaged.

Planters in the Benton, Miss., area estimated property damage would reach $100,000.

Churches Behind
Beer-Wine Vote

Concord, N. C., Nov. 6—(AP)—Petitions for election on banning sale of beer and wine in Cabarrus county will be circulated at a mass meeting at the courthouse here tomorrow afternoon.

The petitions are being sponsored by several county churches, led by the Rev. H. A. Privette of Southside Baptist Church. He is chairman of the Ministers' committee on the proposal.

ELDERLY COLORED MAN
DIED SUDDENLY FRIDAY

Jesse Johnson, 80-year-old colored man, who lived in the Burns section of the city, died yesterday. He was walking along Fourth Street and when between the Coast Line Railroad track and Pitt Street he collapsed. Passersby helped him along and took him to Dr. Joseph Smith's Clinic, Third and Washington Streets, but he died about the time he arrived. Pitt County Coroner Griffin H. Rouse said he died of natural causes and there will be no inquest.

Barkley Asserts
Honest Business
Need Not WorryTwo-Edged Forecast By Vice President Elect; Promises Some Price Lids

Washington, Nov. 6—(AP)—Business faced this two-edged forecast today by Alben W. Barkley: The 81st Congress will put some legal clamps on prices, but "honest business" need have no fears.

The vice president elect, who will head the new Senate, lifted the lid slightly on the Administration's legislative plans shortly after attending President Truman's first cabinet meeting since their election triumph.

The Kentucky senator made these other news conference predictions: 1. There will be speedy revision of the Taft-Hartley Act to bring it more in line with the New Deal's Wagner labor law.

2. Rent controls due to expire March 4 will be extended.

3. Sufficient appropriations will be provided to "carry on the work" of the European Recovery Program.

4. "Any need China has for further assistance" will get proper consideration.

Barkley wouldn't speculate on the possibility that the President will ask funds to help rebuild the armies of European nations outside the Russian orbit.

Nor would he guess whether Mr. Truman will ask again for an excess profits tax on business.

When a newspaper asked if Barkley couldn't give some assurances that business will not face future "reforms," the vice president elect replied:

"I don't know what reforms they are afraid of."

The reporters mentioned the plunge of stock prices in Wall Street. "Oh, Wall Street," Barkley said, "I thought you were asking me about business. I don't see what business has to worry about. Corporations made $21,000,000 after taxes last year—an all-time peak. Business is doing pretty well."

Seven Killed By
Fleeing GunmanArea Terrorized By Negro Who Shoots Self When Trapped

Chester, Pa., Nov. 6—(AP)—Seven persons were shot to death and four others wounded today by a man who then shot himself to death when trapped by police in a nearby house. Police Chief Andrew J. Desmond, Jr., reported.

Desmond said witnesses told him the man, a Negro, leaped from an automobile in the downtown Bethel Court section, and fatally wounded Elmer Pursley, a city detective who was on his way to work.

As bystanders rushed to the aid of the detective, Desmond said, the man opened fire, killing six more persons and wounding four others. The Negro, yet unidentified, then fled to the second floor of a nearby house where police converged on him opening fire with submachine guns, shotguns and tear gas shells.

Police reserves were rushed into the area and terrorized residents of the neighborhood scrambled to safety as officers poured shots into the building.

State Police reserves were called out before they arrived the man was found dead in the second floor room where he had barricaded himself.

Now Magnetism
Is Made Visible

New York, Nov. 6—(AP)—Magnetism is made visible for the first time by a new light announced today by New York University. Instead of the iron filings that every high school student uses to show the curved lines of magnetism, the new way shows them as blue rays of light.

The light is made by a tube that shoots out a lot of electrons. These are particles too small to be seen even with the greatest microscopes. The electrons line up just like the iron filings. They also emit the blue glow which traces the mysterious "lines of force." The new tube was invented by S. J. Tetenbaum.

King Dispenses
With Tradition

London, Nov. 6—(AP)—King George VI has decided to dispense with the presence of a cabinet minister at the birth of Princess Elizabeth's baby.

The king dismissed the custom of having a cabinet member in attendance as an "archaic" survival with "no legal requirement."

FATAL COLLISION

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 6—(AP)—Six persons, including two women, were killed and some 65 others were injured early today when a streetcar and a chartered bus collided on a western outskirt. Fifteen of the injured were reported in critical condition.

Hero's Welcome

Key West, Fla., Nov. 6—(AP)—Tomorrow will be "Harry S. Truman Day" in Key West, and citizens are set to give the President a roaring welcome.

Flags and banners and bunting are going up—and coconuts are coming down. Nobody wants a tricky breeze to bounce a coconut off an unsuspecting head, so all the palm trees around the "Little White House" at Boca Chica Naval Air Station are being stripped.

The Chamber of Commerce and city fathers have been busy with arrangements for a hero's welcome. The music is ready and cheering throngs were assured.

It will be the President's fifth visit to Key West, but this time it's different—he is a president in his own right, not the vice presidential successor to Franklin D. Roosevelt.

He will arrive by plane at the air station and motor through the city.

Predict Larger
Supply Of FoodMore Meat, Milk And Eggs Said On Way To Tables

Washington, Nov. 6—(AP)—More meat, milk and eggs are on the way to your table, the Agriculture department said today.

Because of this year's bountiful crops of feed grain, farmers are giving their livestock and poultry heavier rations. The result is greater volume of milk per cow, more eggs per hen and heavier meat animals.

The Department said dairymen are feeding their cattle 13 per cent more grain and other feed than last year and in return are getting record milk-per-cow production.

Likewise, hens are putting out about 9 per cent more per bird than a year ago.

The Department said field reports indicate that at least a half bushel of grain will be available for winter as last, and that the number of hogs and chickens are expected to increase in 1949.

The Department said weather continued favorable during September and most of October for maturing and drying corn, thus assuring a record quantity of good-quality grain for the 1948-49 feeding.

Five 'Men' Are Buried In Big Tobacco Warehouse

By CHESTER WALSH
Roy Gaskins buried five men in the Dixie Warehouse last night. He had a distinguished group of "mourners" in attendance on this occasion for "political" purposes who didn't click so well on Election day.

The burials were figurative, of course. They were symbolic of a lost cause. Five perfect mounds of sand, in the shape of graves, were spectral in the ominous silence of the nocturnal period. There were no weepings or wallings among the distinguished mourners—Congressman Bonner, always cheerful and optimistic, paid tribute to the Dixie county people for their loyalty to the party, and reminded that Pitt county went 90 per cent Democratic in the election to put Mr. Truman back in the White House. The congressman urged that all of our people get behind President Truman and help him to have a successful administration.

The dead ones—that is, the politically dead—Gene Dew, Charlie Day, Sam Harris, Governor Tom Dewey and Dow Lassiter—were alleged to have voted for Dewey or to have bet on his election.

Roy Gaskins, always active in politics and community projects, performed the last political rites for those who bet and lost with a degree of unbalancing ability that was hilarious and almost serious. The graves are still in the Dixie Warehouse.

Babson Discusses Labor, Wages

New York City, Nov. 6—One of our great national leaders today seems to be getting our production to rolling and maintaining it at a good level.

Production A World Problem Daily headlines in our own newspapers read, "Carpet Manufacturers Announce Price Increases to Offset Higher Costs of Materials," "International Harvester Ups Prices on Tractors, Farm Equipment," "Meat Rates Boosted," "New Ford Car Prices Advanced." And here's the result: "Bank Accounts Trimmed as Cost of Living Takes Bigger Chunk of Income." All because labor refuses to up production along with higher wages.

French cabinets have fallen by the dozen over the question of labor-management problems, and wages and price controls. The British Labor Government in its attempts to increase production along with wage increases has become the target of sharp criticism of its Trade Unions. The same currents and eddies are observable throughout the entire world. The Russian ideology is spreading so rapidly to other nations. This can be stopped only with lower prices through increased production.

The Easy Life The recent Trade Unions Congress at Margate, England, suggested that unionists were bitterly disappointed over the Labor Government's unfavorable reaction to another round of wage rises. They had been told for years of the board of workers' gained control. There is a similar pernicious philosophy current here in America. When will our labor learn that the way out of their dilemma is not by soaking the rich further? As wages and salaries are increased, production must likewise increase. Otherwise, prices will be upped so that we will kill the geese which are laying the golden eggs.

Expect New Deal
To Get Smoother
Ride In CongressTruman Program Is Given Better Chance With Democratic Majority

Washington, Nov. 6—(AP)—The Congress elected Tuesday is expected to give much smoother sledding to President Truman's New Deal program, battered and often ignored by the Republican 80th Congress.

That program is topped by such things as broader social security coverage, anti-discrimination bills, public housing, public health insurance and federal aid for education.

All these measures had been opposed in the past by many of the lawmakers who went down to defeat in this week's voting. Those holdovers who had been influential in blocking the President will be in a much weaker position now, for Democrats will be in control of the law-making machinery.

Ousted from the Senate by the electorate were such opponents of Mr. Truman's legislation as Ball (Minn.), Dworshak (Ida.), Revercomb (WVa.), Robertson (Wyo.) Buck (Del.), Brooks (Ill.) and Wilson (Iowa). Of the defeated Republicans only Cooper (Ky.), gave the President much support.

In the places of these senators when the 81st Congress convenes next January 3 will be Democrats Douglas (Ill.), Chapman (Ky.), Frear (Del.), Humphrey (Minn.) Gillette (Iowa), Neely (WVa.), Hunt (Wyo.) and Miller (Ida.). There is nothing in the record of those who have held public office previously to indicate that Mr. Truman can expect anything but cooperation from them in general.

House casualties included such Republicans as Knutson (Minn.), chairman of the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee; McDowell (Pa.), a leading figure on the House Un-American Activities Committee; Plessner (Mo.), chairman of the Small Business Committee; Harness (Ind.), Gearhart (Calif.), Chenoweth (Col.), Valli (Ill.), Busby (Ill.), Meade (Ky.), Reeves (Mo.), Buffett (Neb.), Bender (Ohio), Gross (Pa.), and several score others.

Chinese Report Gains As Americans Plan Evacuate

Peiping, Nov. 6—(AP)—The Chinese government reported today it had backed out of gains to the north west and south and enlarged its North China Peiping-Tientsin island, which is entirely surrounded by Communists.

The government report came as American authorities moved to evacuate 17,000 American dependents from Nanking, Shanghai, Tientsin and Peiping.

The biggest government gain was to the south. Government headquarters said three Communist brigades—possibly 30,000 men—were smashed in a drive on Shihchiang, Red headquarters 170 miles south of Peiping.

(There was no hint as to how close the government is to the railway city. The Communist radio, however, has been showing nervousness over this government move.)

Another 2,000 Communists were reported killed in the government's capture of Hingcheng, in the Manchurian corridor, where the Nationalists are trying to fight south to the Great Wall and join up with troops of the North China command.

Hingcheng is 65 miles north of the wall and 15 miles southwest of the port of Huliao, from where the government divisions are operating.

South of the Great Wall, Red troops were said to have been cleared from the vicinity of the Tangshan coal mines, which supply Tientsin and Peiping.

A military spokesman said government troops, fighting to reopen the railway between Peiping and Inner Mongolia, had recaptured the railroad city of Yangkiao, 150 miles west of Peiping.

Forecaster Truman Hopes
Budget Prediction Wrong
Has His Problems

New Bern, N. C., Nov. 6—(AP)—The pastor of the First Baptist Church here today sought, between countless phone calls and visitors, to prepare a sermon for tomorrow's congregation that will include President Truman.

Things have been hectic for the 40-year-old Rev. Thomas W. (Tom) Fryer, a "country boy" turned minister, and his wife since news leaked out yesterday that the President's party would attend services.

Although gratified and honored at the presence of Mr. Truman, the tall handsome minister has no pretentious plans. He indicated today that the service would be marked by simplicity.

"It will be a typical Baptist service," he said, "but I haven't yet decided what the subject or the text will be." He added that the service would be no different from any Sunday, except for a special prayer asking

God's guidance for those who will carry the nation's responsibilities during the next four years.

While the strapping minister has remained calm, he has been faced with many additional problems because of the Presidential visit. The major one will be how to accommodate an expected crowd many times greater than the seating capacity of the church.

The President and his party will be met at the door by the preacher. Then the service will proceed as usual. Secret service agents have arranged for Mr. Truman not to receive any greetings and not to greet anyone.

Although Gov. Cherry, Governor elect Kerr Scott and other high state officials will be present, they apparently will have no opportunity to greet the President. It has been emphasized that Mr. Truman will be present solely for the purpose of worship.

President And Budget
Chief Study August
Forecast Of Deficit;
No Remedy For High
Prices And Inflation
To Be Offered Until
New Congress Takes Over

Washington, Nov. 6—(AP)—President Truman takes another look today at one prediction he hopes will be wrong—his August forecast of a $1,500,000,000 budget deficit.

To help figure out how much it may cost you to keep the country peaceful and prosperous as he pledged, Mr. Truman called in Budget Director James Webb for an early morning conference.

Getting down to business immediately after yesterday's gala homecoming celebration, the President laid new stress on his campaign promises to do his best to keep the nation from going into the hole financially.

He ordered the budget records hunted out before leaving tomorrow on a two-week vacation in Key West, Fla.

Mr. Truman and his budget chief also will have on hand the latest prescription for treating high prices and inflation, offered by the President's Council of Economic Advisors.

No exact remedy will be proposed until after the new Democratic controlled Congress takes over January 3, but indications are it will contain about the same anti-inflation ingredients which the 80th Congress refused to order.

The economic report was understood to be accompanied by the size-up of the government's financial condition—it's in much better shape than when the August deficit forecast was made.

Mr. Truman's associates expect his new budget prediction for the year starting July 1 to be nearer the balance level. While none will prophesy flatly that income and outgo will be equal, they say expenses will be less than were figured on last summer's revenue bill which topped the previous income estimates.

As for Mr. Truman's campaign promises of greater federal aid for health, education and his life, his associates say these costs were figured into pre-election forecasts that a $45,000,000,000 budget would be proposed in January.

An expected drop in foreign aid costs plus a clampdown on defense expenses also are counted on to help put the budget on an even keel.

Over the course of his congressional and White House service, Mr. Truman has evolved a budget policy in marked contrast to those of his predecessor, a study of the record shows.

This difference in aims lay behind his record of two balanced budgets (and the biggest surplus in history) and an unbroken string of deficits under President Roosevelt.

Roosevelt deliberately unbalanced the budget in the mid-30s in order to put inflationary pressures under prices on the theory that higher prices would life business out of depression doldrums and relieve unemployment.

Mr. Truman, recognizing that postwar inflation needs opposite treatment, has battled hard for balanced budgets—as anti-inflation aids.

Dr. Henry G. Ruark Speaks On Peace At Meeting Here

Dr. Henry G. Ruark told Greenville church women yesterday morning that "Peace is My Responsibility" and that it is also God's, and that as we work for peace and pray for peace, that the ideal of one world in a spiritual sense is coming closer to realization.

Dr. Ruark is pastor of the University Methodist Church at Chapel Hill and is attending the sessions of the Methodist conference at the University of North Carolina. He is vice-chairman of the conference World Peace Commission. In 1947 he served as state chairman of the clothing drive for overseas relief. He was introduced as being a leader in the cause of peace for many years, and he stated that 21 years ago he spoke at East Carolina Teachers College on the subject of peace.

Mrs. Dink James, president of the Greenville Council of Church Women, presided at the meeting of the group at the Christian Church at 10 a. m. Dr. H. Glenn Haney, pastor of the church, led the opening prayer. The choir was composed of women from the cooperating churches. Mrs. Rudolph R. Willman, church organist, was accompanist.

Mrs. H. H. Settle, executive secretary of the Christian Church, offered the dedicatory prayer for the "Towels for Teen-Agers" that were brought to the church packed for displaced boys and girls of teenage overseas. The collection taken during the service will be used to defray expenses of mailing the towels and the balance for medical supplies and peace education by the United Council of Church Women.

Mrs. James appealed the following committee to pack the towels Monday morning: Mrs. H. M. Holbert, Mrs. Lee Moore, Mrs. Floyd Nobles and Mrs. Tyson were distributed and signed by the women who thereby dedicated themselves and pledged to join other women in a great crusade for peace, resolving "to pray more and work harder for my church and the church throughout the world; to give courageous, intelligent, prayerful support to the United Nations and to Christian movements for World Order; to seek to establish civil rights and brotherhood in my own community; to work for the extension of human rights and economic justice around the world; and to pray that women of all countries may join in this crusade."

Dr. Ruark used as his text the beatitude: "Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called the children of God."

Dr. Marshall Speaks Before Book Club

Mrs. E. B. Aycock was hostess to the Thalian Book Club Tuesday afternoon, November 2. In a most lovely setting of flowers, a most delightful luncheon was enjoyed by the members and guests. Mrs. Evelyn Nash of Oklahoma City and Dr. Marshall of East Carolina Teachers College.

After a brief business discussion, in which the club voted to help sponsor a literary address in connection with the March of Dimes, Mrs. J. E. Waldrop, president of the club, introduced Dr. Marshall. Dr. Marshall gave a very informative talk on the accomplishments of the United Nations from its inception to the present time. He enlightened us as to its purpose, how it has made the many organizations within its structure work successfully and how it has proven from a political standpoint that it is not a failure by settling small international issues and in so doing establishing a framework for the maintenance of peace in the world. Dr. Marshall's paper will be discussed at the next meeting of the club.

After the program the books were distributed.

About Absent . . .

he lost the state to Dewey by about 55,000.

But in New York Wallace got 508,000 votes. If he hadn't been running, most of those votes probably would have gone to Mr. Truman.

If Mr. Truman had been able to get only 56,000 of those votes which went to Wallace he would have won New York state from Dewey.

That's a good example of how the small third party actually figured in the election in a large way.

But now take three other important states—California, Illinois and Ohio—which Mr. Truman carried, but not by a huge figure.

In Ohio President Truman, with 1,461,000 votes, beat Dewey only by an 18,000-vote margin.

Wallace got only 35,000 votes there. If he had been able to snag just 19,000 more from the Truman total, Dewey would have won Ohio.

Take California. There Mr. Truman, with 1,878,000 votes, won over Dewey by only 37,000 votes.

But Wallace got 178,000 there. If he could have picked up another 33,000 from the Truman total, Dewey would have taken California.

Take Illinois. Mr. Truman with 1,985,000 votes, beat Dewey by only 50,000.

Wallace wasn't on the ballot in Illinois. If he had been and been able to grab just 51,000 votes from Mr. Truman, Dewey would have taken Illinois.

If Mr. Truman had lost California, Illinois and Ohio he would have lost the election. Why?

Because altogether Mr. Truman got 304 electoral votes and Dewey 196. But those three states have a combined electoral vote of 78. Since a presidential winner needs at least 266 electoral votes, then—

Those 78 electoral votes taken from Mr. Truman's 304 would have left him with only 226.

And if those 78 votes were added to Dewey's final total of 196, he would have wound up with 274 electoral votes, or just one more than enough to win.

The family of the late Henry Vines wish to thank everyone for their kind expressions of sympathy during the illness and death of our father, Mr. Henry Vines, for cars loaned, flowers and every kind deed and act in our sorrow. May God bless you all.

Strength FOR THE DAY

TRIUMPH

Death is regarded by many people as a calamity. Very often it is. To have lived through a number of decades and to have come to the end without having developed any strength or character or any religious feeling is a calamity indeed. Some people leave this earthly scene conscious that they have added not to the sum total of the world's happiness but to the sum total of its misery. For such, death is indeed a calamity.

But death is a triumph for many people. Maude Ballington Booth died some time ago, and the message of faith which she left and which was read at her funeral service constitutes a triumph that even those of most distinguished station might covet. From her earliest youth Mrs. Booth had been a religious and social welfare worker. She died at the age of 82, having poured out the whole of her adult life for the good of other people, and particularly for those who had sunk so low on the social scale that an unfeeling world paid little attention to them. "During the last few years of my earthly life," she wrote, "death loomed for me all of its sadness and dread and shadow. I look forward to it as a shining portal into the new world of eternity." Then she added this word for her only son: "Let your tears shine with the rainbow brightness of joy that I would have you share with me. Keep the faith."

Here indeed is triumph.

Around Capitol Square

PROGRESSIVE—North Carolina has been called the best balanced state in the union, the most progressive state in the south; the state of the unhealthiest people, of lowest income, of poorest educational facilities; and has been the subject of numerous other descriptions, good and bad. On one side is heard commendation for state governmental services, and on another severe castigations for shortcomings in meeting essential obligations to the people. North Carolina may not be at the top, but it is a great state and is moving forward.

EYE-WITNESS—It has been the privilege of your reporter to travel more than six thousand miles back and forth across the state of North Carolina within the past three months. These trips included visitation of every state institution with the advisory budget commission during late October and attendance at each of the twelve congressional district meetings held by the Democratic party during the fall, and a dozen or so extra trips to various celebrations. The area covered reaches east to Elizabeth City and west to Cullowhee, north to Reidsville and south to Whiteville and Wilmington.

OPPORTUNITY—The budget tour afforded opportunity for detailed inspection of colleges, hospitals and training schools; the political trip afforded contact with representatives of each of the state's one hundred counties. The ride between stops presented the scenic grandeur of the mountains, the peaceful farms and the industrial cities, as well as view of neatly kept church and school grounds along the way. It is submitted that this opportunity of first hand view was a high privilege. It also imposes some obligation upon a reporter to pass along at least some of the knowledge gained. Many things encountered stirred no feeling of pride; taken all together it is impossible to conceive that one who has seen these things should not love his state and be constrained to serve it.

TANGIBLES—Much of the real wealth of North Carolina is intangible, but there is enough visual evidence of prosperity to gladden any heart. Conditions of farm homes and outbuildings in generally good; the buildings are painted and the fences are in repair. Electric wires strung along the highways and connecting majority of the farm homes is evidence that radios and labor saving devices are in constant use. Although tractor and other farm machinery is fast replacing horse and manpower on the farms, there are still a lot of horses and mules—but not in numbers has this reporter seen one that looked underfed or mistreated. Claims by all newspapers of increased circulation are supported by thousands of little round boxes besides farm houses for leading daily newspapers.

STATE-OWNED—These conditions of individual prosperity are duplicated in state-owned properties at institutions, and especially investment in public roads. There was necessarily a good deal of backtracking in the six thousand miles traveled, and it probably did not cover more than two thousand miles of public highways. That is a small segment of the 60-odd thousand miles in the state road system, and there are still many miles which have not been treated. At the same time, no one can drive from Elizabeth City to Cullowhee and not be conscious of the tremendous amount of work which has been done on roads since the war.

INSTITUTIONS—Almost every state institution—educational, recreational and hospital—has waiting lists of applicants, and there are cases which tear at heart strings because they cannot be admitted. What has been accomplished needs to be considered, too. Even a hurried visit to the institutions maintained by the state will impress any sensible person with the honest effort North Carolina has made and is making to meet the challenge of the unfortunates. So much remains to be done and any boast is out of order; but North Carolinians have no real cause for shame when the whole record is considered.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By JANE EADS

Washington — Nothing in the warm, vibrant colors of the portraits of local big-wigs and socialites exhibited by Brian Stonehouse gives the slightest hint of the stark horrors he has seen. In a little group of five charcoal drawings the grim story is told in all its shocking detail. Brian Stonehouse, former British army officer, spent the last four years of the war in German concentration camps. These drawings were sketched hastily at the ill-famed Dachau camp April 30, 1945, the day after the young man's liberation. The drawings were made at the crematorium, which was supposed to have been mined by the Germans and expected to blow up any minute. They show corpses stacked high atop each other, the emaciated living, and such. Stonehouse, who was assigned to work on statistics in the office of the camp, said he knew of 14,000 who died in the three months he was at Dachau.

Tall, slender, with haunting eyes in his good-looking face, Stonehouse quietly told me his story. Born Aug. 29, 1918, at Torquay, Devonshire, England, he was taken to France in his infancy by his father, a captain in the Royal Engineers. The family returned to England when he was 13. He was called to service July 15, 1939. After serving in the militia and the Royal Field Artillery, he was transferred to the War Office. In June 1942 he got his big assignment. He parachuted into unoccupied France with a radio transmitter and receiver concealed in his artist's paint box. He was able to conceal his activities for four months before his arrest by the Gestapo outside Lyon. For one year he was kept in solitary confinement. At the end of that time he was shipped to Saarbrücken, Germany, then to Nauen, which was in the beautiful Danube Valley near Linz and which was an "extermination" camp. Stonehouse says he will never forget the extraordinary and appalling beauty of Linz and the surrounding valley. Also he will never forget the appalling sight of the prison camp's granite walls, granite towers and huge gates, over all of which he "scented the smell of death."

He was not permitted, nor was he able to sneak time for his art work during his days in the concentration prison and camps, but most of the things he saw he sees still—vivid as yesterday in his mind. Someday he will put the whole story down in pictures.

Diamonds, rubies, sapphires and emeralds are bracketed as the "artificiality" of precious stones.

Diamonds of one carat or less are more valuable than rubies or emeralds of the same size.

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW!

The Dancing Heart

BY EMILY NOBLE

Chapter 9

Rosalie left the neighborhood without so much as telling anyone where she was going. If her going off to be married had been abrupt this was far more so. All anyone knew this time was that she went off in a taxi with Wayne Kahler, and him looking wobbly after being "beat up" by Joe Monahan — and didn't come back.

There was no wake at the empty flat, and Cora McGehee was buried "from an undertaking parlor," as Mrs. Harrigan said with shame and frustration in her voice. True, there was a church service, but the body was almost meekly away to be buried in the local opinion. Rosalie fairly slipped into the church and out, and what made matters worse, Wayne Kahler was at her side all the time.

Those who went were mostly the curious, and they saw Joe Monahan standing alone almost out of sight at the back. They saw Rosalie and Wayne pass him both ways without glancing at him. And the next day when they tried to call on the girl with condolences she was not only not there, but the flat was for rent and an auctioneer was taking away the few sticks of furniture which he had obviously bought for next to nothing.

Rosalie sat with her back to a window against which the rain streamed in a steady fashion. Wayne was sure he had never seen anyone quite so beautiful as she was silhouetted against the gray light. He drew a long deep breath and made a slow gesture.

"Do you realize how beautiful you are when you are very serious? You have a madonna look against that rain-plashed window."

She shook her head. "Madonna is a very serious word with me."

"I am being very serious. I am asking you to marry me."

"You know you don't really want to marry me, Wayne. You want to help me—and that isn't the same at all. You feel I must need help because I have always been dependent on someone."

"I think every woman should be dependent on someone."

She laughed very softly. "I was sure of it. And I only want to be independent, Wayne. I want to make my own way. I have to now. Mother's pension died with her. I have my own way to make."

"You came out to California to marry me. You weren't thinking of anyone but me then—not even Joe Monahan."

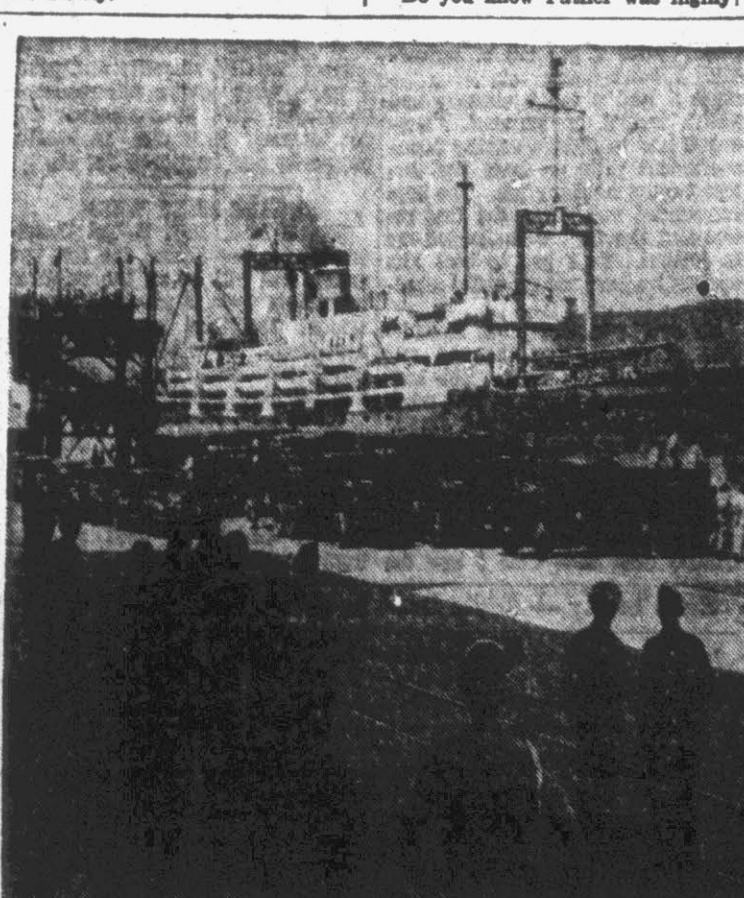

He added Joe's name with precision as if he had been leading up to it. She faced him steadily as if she were prepared, too.

"As a matter of fact I was thinking of him then far more than I am now. I hadn't found him out then."

He reached out so he could touch her hand without trying to hold it. "Are you still furious at him because he punched me? I'm not. Perhaps I deserved it. I have to bear in mind that you were probably very fond of him—once. Long ago, of course."

She sat very straight, her hands in her lap. "Will it do any good to tell you everyone thought I was engaged to him until I announced I was going West to marry you? When I came back I tried to tell the truth but he wouldn't let me. Wayne crossed his legs. "It is only to be suspected that he would be against me. I'm the outsider."

"We are both outsiders now," she said slowly.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

AP Newsfeatures
Popularity of the rambling ranch house with all rooms on one floor continues to grow. This plan 725 by Walter T. Quicks, architect, of 617 Forest St., Ann Arbor, Mich., is for a house 60 feet wide, excluding garage, which can be built for either one or two cars. The dwelling covers an area of 912 square feet and has a content of 17,600 cubic feet. It can be built with or without basement. A dual use bathroom features the sleeping area. Open plan between living room and dining room creates spaciousness on the garden side of the house, where a terrace for outdoor living opens from the dining room. The architect suggests an exterior of wood siding or white chander blocks with a roof of asphalt shingles.

College Offers Number Extension Courses Now

East Carolina Teachers College is offering this fall a number of extension courses for public school teachers in the eastern section of the state, according to Dr. Howard J. McGinnis, director of the Bureau of Field Services at the college.

Four courses are now in progress in centers off the campus, including Elizabeth City, Bellhaven, Smithfield and Washington. One course, scheduled for the afternoon and attended by teachers from several towns near Greenville, is being given on the campus.

Dr. Allen S. Hurlburt, director of the department of administration, is in charge of visual aids courses in Elizabeth City and Bellhaven and in Washington. Dr. Hurlburt is also giving a course in the department of education in Smithfield. Last year Dr. Hurlburt was appointed to head the new communications center at the college, which deals with audio-visual aids in teaching. For the past several months he has collected equipment and made arrangements for its use both on and off the campus.

Dr. Hazel Taylor, director of the Testing Bureau at East Carolina, is offering on the campus a course in guidance in the public schools. At Washington Dr. Harold C. Jones of the department of science is conducting a series of classes in the teaching of science in the public schools.

Plans for the opening of extension classes in other centers during the winter and the spring quarters are now in progress under the direction of Dr. McGinnis.

Army 'Short Cut'

Washington, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Army reserve officers who want active duty may get quicker action on their applications now.

The Army announced today requests should be sent to the Adjutant General at Washington instead of to local reserve instructors. This, said the Army, will short-cut the usual "channel."

Under the new procedure, applicants should hear within a matter of days whether they will be recalled to active duty. Orders should be on their way within a week after notification telegram has been dispatched.

Push Air Search On Pacific Coast

Seattle, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Three planes with 38 persons aboard were still missing along the North Pacific seaboard today despite one of the most extensive search efforts ever been in the area.

More than 40 planes, aided by ships, were pressing the search from the Washington and British Columbia coast to the Aleutians.

The missing planes include a non-scheduled Pacific Alaska Air Express airliner missing in the Sitka-Ketchikan area of Alaska with 17 aboard and two navy craft.

The navy planes are a navy PBV Privateer from the Kodiak naval base with 12 men on board, missing in the Aleutians, and a long range U. S. navy Neptune bomber with nine men, which vanished off Vancouver island.

The airliner and bomber disappeared Thursday. The Privateer has been unreported since Wednesday.

"I'm not sure you're saying it soon enough."

He got up and bent over her. "Don't quibble, Rosalie." He kissed her gently. "You know I love you."

She pushed him away gently. "I only know I promised your father I wouldn't marry you."

He drew her to her feet and put his arms about her. "You can't hold yourself to a promise like that. I shouldn't have gone away and left you with him even for an hour."

"Why did you go, Wayne?" She looked straight into his eyes. "You knew he was going to try to buy me off. You know he believes his money can buy him anything he wants."

His lips were quick. "I knew he couldn't buy you."

She pushed him away firmly. "You also know that he did. It was the first thing he must have told you."

He caught her quickly again. "All that is past and out there. We're here now. We don't need his money. I can earn what we need and we can live well, too. He needn't think he can go on holding me down forever. Now give me a good kiss and tell me you love me."

"I don't love you, Wayne. I sold you for five thousand dollars. I needed that much for a fresh start. Now I—I have it."

He took her hand, but merely kissed it lightly without taking his eyes off hers.

"You think I'm weak and dependent on my father, don't you?"

"Yes."

"You're frank, aren't you, darling?"

"I have to be. Frank to you and myself."

"Do you know Father was highly impressed with you?"

Of course he was. He expected he would have to pay me more than he did. He didn't understand me."

"Rosalie, darling, I don't understand you."

She laughed and pushed him. "I don't understand myself."

Wright Plane Is On Its Way Home

London, Nov. 6.—(AP)—The Wright Brothers' Kitty Hawk, first power-driven airplane to fly, was off for home today aboard the liner Mauretania.

The plane with which the American airmen made the historic flight of Dec. 17, 1903, at Kitty Hawk, N. C., will be back in the United States in time for display on the 40th anniversary of the event. It will be preserved in the Smithsonian Institution, Washington.

Orville Wright sent the plane to England in 1928 because of a dispute with the Smithsonian over credit for designing the first flyable craft. When he died Jan. 30 he left instructions the plane should be returned to America.

Taking its place in London's Science Museum is an exact replica of the Kitty Hawk except for the dummy engine, made by students of the De Havilland Technical School. Museum officials said this already is attracting crowds.

Ruritan Club Is Organized By Belvoir Group

On Thursday night, November 4, a group of men that are interested in the growth and progress of the Belvoir community met at the school lunchroom and enjoyed a barbecue dinner and organized a Ruritan Club, with the assistance of the Pictorial Club and Mr. Elgin White, district governor of District E.

After much discussion the following officers and directors were elected: president, J. T. Dupree; vice-president, W. R. Tyson; secretary, F. H. Hodges; treasurer, MacAlvin Turner; sergeant-at-arms, Robert Stained; chaplain, Ben Harris; and reporter, Norman Coward; and J. C. Parker, H. B. Randolph, and Carl Scott as directors.

The president made several remarks concerning the club and asked complete cooperation in getting the people of the community more "community conscious" and to work unselfishly for community betterment.

Students Will Be At Fall Retreat

Iola Carrowan of Pinetown and William H. Durham, Jr., of Rocky Mount, students at East Carolina Teachers College, will attend the Fall Retreat of the Methodist Student Movement held November 13-14 at Sunny Acres, Lewisville, near Winston-Salem. They will represent there the Methodist student organization at the college here.

Students from colleges and universities throughout North Carolina will be present at the Retreat and will spend the week in discussion and in drawing up plans for the work of the Methodist Movement during 1948-1949.

Unbeaten Grid Ranks May Be Thinned In Today's Contests

New York, Nov. 6.—(AP)—The thin line of college football's unbeaten teams undergoes severe strain in the East and South today as a pair of whipped combats from the prairie country claim a large chunk of the spotlight.

Missouri and Oklahoma come to grips at Norman, Okla., in a tossup game that is calculated to decide the big seven conference championship and perhaps send the victor into one of the major bowls.

They lost its opener—Missouri to Ohio State and Oklahoma to Santa Clara—but since has been all-conquering. Both are rated superior to Kansas, also unbeaten in the circuit.

Of the nine unbeaten-united Techs, Pennsylvania and Georgia Tech face the most rugged obstacles on today's program.

Penn engages once-tied Penn State in a battle of neighboring powerhouses expected to attract 30,000 at Philadelphia. Georgia Tech vies with a rebounding Tennessee team at Atlanta.

The rest of the perfect brigade—Notre Dame, Michigan, Army, Clemson, North Carolina, California and Nevada—run up against weekend rivals due to give them little more than a stiff workout.

The South Bend Irish, the nation's top-ranked machine, plays Indiana at Bloomington. Michigan's Wolverines, No. 2 in the standings, is host to a much-punched Navy outfit that takes them on as big as they come.

Army being compared with the great wartime West Point teams, entertains Stanford at Yankee Stadium in the day's intersectional rivalry. The Cadets are a solid 20-point favorite.

The Dixie giants—North Carolina and Clemson—exercise in their own Southern Conference, the Tar Heels playing William and Mary and Clemson encountering Furman.

California, with its eyes on the Rose Bowl, tries to strengthen its bid by taking U.C.L.A., a distinct underdog. Nevada's airborne wizards are favored Sunday over Santa Clara, the last big obstacle to an all-winning campaign.

Oregon, California's only opposition on the coast, plays Washington and stands a good chance of being sidetracked. The Webfoots' only loss has been to Michigan but they are no better than an even bet in this one.

Other important conference battles dot the scene. Baylor, leader of the Southwest Conference, races with no defeat, meets Texas in one of its remaining major tests. The other is Southern Methodist, the heavy title choice, which plays Texas A&M.

Northwestern, beaten only by Michigan and a favorite for the eastern half of the Rose Bowl plummets. The Wolverines are ineligible to claim squares off against Wisconsin at Madison.

Johnny Bulla Is Pacing Field In Honolulu Open

Honolulu, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Paced by Johnny Bulla's sub-par round of 66 yesterday, the players today swung into the second half of the $10,000 Honolulu Open tourney.

Close behind the Phoenix star's 66-hole total of 136 was Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago with a total of 138. Tied for third place were Ed Oliver of Seattle and Cary Middlecott of Memphis at 140.

Bulla yesterday burned up the course with a five under par 66. Strung out behind the leaders were E. J. "Dutch" Harrison of Little Rock, Ark., the defending champion, who was tied with Ed Purser of Royal Oak, Mich., and James Uihakau, Honolulu pro, with scores of 141 for the 36 holes.

Uihakau, who led the first day's play with a 67, withdrew from the tourney yesterday because of illness.

Bright Future If Savold Can Win

By the Associated Press
Lee Savold, training for his Dec. 6 London scrap with Bruce Woodcock, leaves Nov. 16 with Manager Bill Daly.

If Savold stops Woodcock, a recent winner over Leo Oma, he will be in a good spot for a big pay day against Joe Louis, summer. Savold was mentioned by Joe as a possible future opponent, depending on the result of the Dec. 10 battle between Ezzard Charles and Joe Baksi. Many think Savold eventually will get the Louis shot.

Ayden Loses To Wallace By 13-0

Wallace, Nov. 6.—The Wallace High School football team ground out two long touchdown marches to triumph over Ayden, 13-0, here last night.

Bill James raced around end for 16 yards and the first Wallace touchdown in the second period on the end of a 60-yard drive. In the third quarter, Earl Casey plunged five yards to score to climax an 80-yard Wallace march. Casey kicked the extra point.

Ayden, sparked by Fullback Tommy Bullock, penetrated to the Wallace three-yard line in the first period but lost the ball on a fumble.

Graziano Bout Delayed By Nose

Oakland, Calif., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Rocky Graziano's bout here with Freddie Apostoli has been postponed from Nov. 17 to Dec. 1 because the New Yorker's nose, injured in training, hasn't healed properly.

Promoter Jimmy Murray said the postponement had been approved by the State Boxing Commission.

Villanova's 150-pound football squad played three tie games in 1947—more than any other team in the Eastern Intercollegiate League.

THE 32-YEAR-OLD EX-BARTENDER HAS HAD HIS UPS AND DOWNS DURING HIS FIVE YEAR CAREER OF SPORTS WRITING

Things are looking up for Lee Savold. The ex-Bartender, now 32 years old, has had more than one boxer's share of ups and downs but right now he is stily dreaming of a title bout with Champion Joe Louis. Savold's current comeback is the offshoot of his sensational knockout victory over Gino Buono, the rugged Italian importation. Lee was a last-minute substitute for Joe Baksi, and he belted Buono out in 54 seconds of the first round to create a new record for a Madison Square Garden main event bout. It clipped four seconds from the mark established by Gus Lesnevich when he stopped Mello Bettina on May 23, 1947.

Savold hopes to enhance his chances of a title bout by showing to advantage in his meeting with Bruce Woodcock in London early in December. That could be a short cut to a meeting with Louis, especially if the heavyweight elimination bout between Ezzard Charles and Joe Baksi should fall to the imagination of the ring fans. Savold has been boxing on and off for 15 years. He has had some good fights, some poor ones and some that were simply awful. Since the odor of Bruce Woodcock's triumph over Lee Oma last September may still linger over England, it behooves Savold to give one of his better performances.

Saddler Slated To Make Money

New York, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Sandy Saddler, the newly-crowned featherweight champion, has a busy work schedule that will keep him in spending money up to the Christmas holidays. All will be non-title bouts.

Manager Charley Johnston has one definite match for Sandy, all signed and sealed. That is with Terry Young, the roughhouse lightweight from New York Dec. 17 at Madison Square Garden. Young was beaten by Freddie Fruden of Canada in a big upset last week. However, Terry holds a decision over Beau Jack.

Johnston is holding Nov. 15 open for Philadelphia. He expects a definite confirmation today. No opponent has been named. Another scrap is on the making at New Haven.

A Boston promoter is talking about Jackie Weber, sensational Pawtucket, R.I. lightweight as an early December foe for the lean Harlem Negro who knocked out Willie Pep to win the 126-pound crown Oct. 28.

Citation To Run On West Coast In Special Event

San Francisco, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Citation, greatest thoroughbred today in the opinion of many, is coming to the West Coast to run in the $50,000 Tanforan Handicap Dec. 11. Tanforan President Eugene Mori said Trainer Jimmy Jones had informed him by telephone that the triple crown champion would be shipped by train with other Calumet Farm horses next week and that Jockey Eddie Arcaro, his regular rider, would be along later.

Mori said he thought Citation would ship to Florida from here and would not run in the Santa Anita meet.

Shannon II, the Australian who won the $75,000 Golden Gate Fields Handicap in world record equaling time of 1:59 4-5 for the mile and a quarter, was regarded as Citation's biggest threat in the Tanforan Handicap.

Exclusive Club

Miami.—(AP)—Both members of the ultra-exclusive "We-Beat-Citation" club will be at Hialeah this season. One is Mrs. Stanley Sagner's Saggy, which beat the wonder horse in the 1946 Chesapeake Trial. The other is Bewitch, winner over her famed stablemate in the 1947 Washington Futurity.

Tired Old Horse Ready To Retire On Last Victory

New York, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Resort, a tired old veteran with creaking bones and an injured leg, was ready for retirement today, having racked up his 18th blue ribbon in the National Horse show at the age of 18.

The aged chestnut gelding, once the ace of the Mexican army jumping team, made his first appearance of the 60th annual classic at Madison Square Garden last night. It may be his last, but as usual it was a winning one.

For the 18th time in his long career, Resort stood proudly in the center of the show ring as the band played the Mexican national anthem. He had carried Col. Humberto Mariles of the Mexican army to victory in the international military jumping competition for the West Point Trophy, a new event this year.

Resort, who has won numerous prizes on both sides of the Atlantic, hurt his right hind leg while being transported to New York from the recent Pennsylvania show at Harrisburg, Pa.

But the sentimental Mexican colonel wanted to give the old-timer a chance to win another blue ribbon in the Garden, enough to make one for each of his 18 years. Mariles has a younger and more talented jumper in Arde, who carried him to victory in the Prix Des Nations at the 1946 Olympics.

The military event last night was a speed test with each jumping fault adding one second to the contestant's elapsed time. Mariles first toured the course faultlessly on Arde in 34.1 seconds, good for the temporary lead.

A Journey . . .

Then the postmaster helped me to the information I sought.

Later in West Berlin, where my father died, I made a surprising discovery. His church had been renamed the "MacKenzie Memorial Methodist Church." I tried the front door and, finding it unlocked, went in. There looking down on me from high on the wall behind the pulpit was a life-size head-and-shoulder portrait of my dad.

Speaking of Cal Coolidge, I stopped in Ludlow to get a look at my old prep school, Black River Academy, which Coolidge also attended many years before I arrived on the scene. In my day the great hero of B.R.A. boys was an unknown student of bygone days who had spirited a donkey up the ladders leading to the academy belfry—a difficult and dangerous feat. It was long afterward that I learned that silent Cal was the star of this historic event.

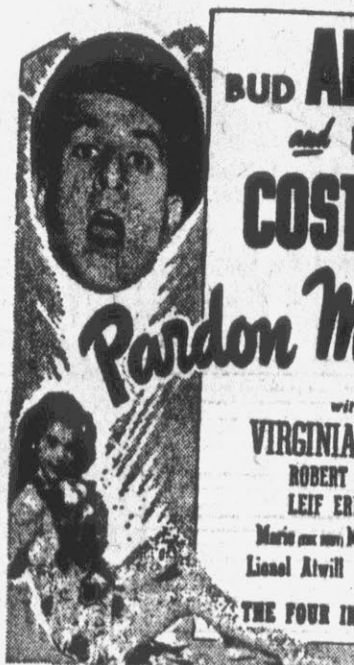

Then there was another town where I was principal of the "high school" after I got out of university. I won't blame this place because it had a tough element and wasn't typical of Vermont. Anyway, I had to fight a sulking farmer-student with my bare fists before I could hold my job. The boys surrounded me during the first recess and the farmer challenged me to combat. So I had to beat him up, but he gave me an awful mauling.

My successor, who made the mistake of announcing that he was boss, lasted three weeks. The boys threw eggs and apples at him when his back was turned, and finally broke up the school furniture and threw it out the windows.

Then I visited Brattleboro, where the great Rudyard Kipling lived in my day and was a friend of my family. The next time I saw the famous writer was at a wedding reception in London about 1930. It was in Brattleboro, too, that in the nineties I saw my first horseless carriage" which was steered with a tiller and headed the Barnum and Bailey circus parade. Those also were the days when lecturers toured rural districts, exhibiting that amazing contraption, the "talking machine"—ten cents admission.

And so ran my journey, with a lot more of the same kind of thing for my family lived in many parts of the state. It was a successful and pleasant revival of the old days, but what impressed me most—and I have encountered the same thing in many other states—was the wholesomeness and high purpose of the people.

It makes a fellow proud of his national birthright.

Babson . . .

There is something fundamentally wrong with our moral fibre when demands for one pay hike after another follow with thought only of shorter hours, longer vacations, less production, and more pay. That kind of thinking did not make America great. It was not responsible for Britain's world leadership during the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. Perhaps this desire for something for nothing has been a potent factor in Britain's slipping into a lesser role in World affairs.

Need For Increased Production

When I was a kid the good old-fashioned incentive system was based on more pay for more or better work. In return for a better than normal daily output, a worker was given extra financial inducement. It was this greater output that brought about more goods at lower prices which found bigger markets. The employees in turn could afford to buy houses and furniture for cash because he had shared in the profits of greater productivity. Everyone gained. Our standard of living became the best in the world.

I realize the incentive system has been abused by some managements with hide-and-seek incentive hocus-pocus. But most employers today know that it is as silly for them to attempt to run profitably by sweating labor as it is for labor to expect higher wages without reference to output. Labor and management have both erred. They both have their rights. Labor's search for a living wage and management's quest for justifiable profits will not be ended, however, by either the stoppage and the slide-rule, nor by artificial restrictions and formulae legislation.

Improvement Of Character

The solution lies in developing certain intangible traits of character. And when I speak of character, I'm not thinking of Sunday school goody-goody-ies either. I'm thinking of an attitude of fairness which makes it possible to see the other fellow's problems. I mean courage, loyalty, sincerity and pride in one's work, giving full measure. Character can't be measured; but put to work it results in health, prosperity and happiness for all.

PLAYS NEXT WEEK

Chapel Hill, Nov. 6.—Tel Haselwood, who has missed the last two games and will be on the sidelines again this week, is expected to play against Maryland at Washington next week. He is now almost completely recovered from an accidentally inflicted pistol wound.

When the National Football League campaign got under way, three teams—the Boston Yanks, Philadelphia Eagles and Pittsburgh Steelers—had never won a game from the Chicago Bears.

Police Wonder If Phantom Killings Solved By Death

Pinehurst, N. C., Nov. 6.—Toney Penna, a pleasant, little guy who registers his but actually lives in Florida, was today after winning the 46th North and South open championship.

It seems that the last big tournament victory Toney won before he triumphed here yesterday was the Atlanta open last year. He picked up $2,500 prize money and then learned that a hurricane had taken the roof off his Delray Beach, Fla., home. It cost him $3,500 for a new roof.

And since his totally unexpected victory in the North and South yesterday was worth only $1,500 Toney couldn't afford any more storms.

Penna, a 40-year-old tournament "regular" who doesn't win very often, sprung a real surprise. He came through with a pair of two under par rounds of 70 to win the traditionally important Pinehurst tourney with a 285 total.

Toney was one of the last players to finish. Up to that time the small gallery had been wondering whether Chick Harbert could finish strongly enough to beat out Sammy Snead and Julius Boros. Harbert was playing in the same threesome with Penna.

Snead, the White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., slugger, and Boros, a husky but little known amateur from Bridgeport, Conn., already were in with 287 totals.

Nobody had figured much on Penna, although his 72-73-145 for the first half of the 72 hole tournament had left him only four strokes out of the lead. Toney, representative of a Cincinnati sporting goods house, was known merely as a "good will" man—a pleasant raconteur and a good golfer who generally was among the leaders. He finished tenth here a year ago.

Toney was steady yesterday where the others wobbled and as a result he gained his most important tournament victory.

NYAC Brothers

New York.—(AP)—Three sets of brothers will be members of this season's New York Athletic Club basketball squad. The family combinations are Bob and Jim Gale, formerly of Cornell, Bill and Bob Pickett of West Virginia, John Belby of Franklin and Marshall and his brother Bob, who did his hoop throwing at Toledo University.

Phalanx Entered In Daingerfield

New York, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Phalanx, C. V. Whitney's disappointing four-year-old colt, heads the 12-horse field in the featured $25,000 added Daingerfield Handicap on the Empire City at Jamaica program today.

The colt, 1947-three-year-old champion, has not won a race since coming home first in the Jockey Club Gold Cup at Belmont Park on Oct. 4, 1947.

An automatic bottle-making machine was invented in 1903.

The "Phantom" slaying, all occurring at night within a six-week period, cast a pall of fear over the Texarkana community for weeks.

PLAYS IN ORCHESTRA

Urbana Champaign, Ill., Nov. 6.—Robert Lloyd Oppelt 306 Lewis St., Greenville, N. C., is a member of the Viola section of the University orchestra at the University of Illinois school of music this fall. He is enrolled at the University as a senior in the college of music.

ACTOR IN HOSPITAL

Hollywood, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Brian Donlevy is in a hospital here under treatment for a respiratory infection and high fever. The actor was hospitalized yesterday.

For two years police of two states have been unable to solve five slayings at the state-line city. All slayings were attributed to a "Phantom."

Tennison was found dead in his room here last night. He left a note admitting three of the mysterious deaths. No motive was given. Sheriff Bruce Crider said the note, found in a strongbox, read in part:

"Why did I take my own life? You may be asking that question. Well, when you committed two double murders you would do. Yes, I did kill Betty Jo Booker and Paul Martin in the city park that night, and kill Mr. Stark and tried to get Mrs. Stark. You wouldn't have guessed it, I did it when mother was either out or asleep, and no one saw me do it. For the guns, a disassembled them and discarded them in different places."

Mrs. Ella Lea McCoe, the student's landlady, found the body. A poem was on the dresser. It contained a riddle which it said, if solved, would give the combination to a strongbox. Officers broke the box open and found Tennison's "confession" note.

Police said other messages—including one suggesting a newspaper headline about his death—also were found in the room.

Coroner Edmond Watson confirmed Sheriff Crider's finding that the youth took poison.
