Business Survey Indicates Gloomy Signs In Offing

Government Economists Say Usually Reliable Index Risking Reputation

Washington, April 1—(AP)—A survey of business spending plans today posted some fairly gloomy signs for the last half of 1949. However, government economists said that this index—which has forecast economic busts in the past—is risking its reputation for accuracy.

The collective bet of American businessmen on the future was posted in their plans for spending on new factories and equipment. Clearly, they figure that things are going to be sliding down through the final months of the year.

The survey, by two government agencies, pointed to business' decision to curtail outlays in last-half 1949 by 14 per cent under last year. The theory is that prospects for profits would be poorer.

First-half 1949 factory and equipment buying, however, will run five per cent above the same period of 1948's record high—at least partly because of a lot of plant construction that couldn't be halted on short notice.

While businessmen's expectations have correctly given advance signals on economic storms in the past, government economists said they'll bear discounting this time for such reasons as these:

1. Government spending—state and local, as well as federal—will increase sharply. It will more than offset the indicated $900,000,000 drop in business spending for 1949 as a whole.

2. Businessmen probably will spend more on plant expansion in last-half-1949 than they admitted in the survey. Past experience shows they're conservative and cagey on future spending, prone to underestimate.

The "business bet" on the future, however, not only serves to indicate what's coming, it also has a part in inclining the future to fit its forecast. This is how:

The billions spent by private business on expansion represents money that would otherwise be idle; it goes for materials and even more importantly for labor that wouldn't otherwise be "marketed."

Also, it works with a strong "multiplier effect": the dollar it introduces into circulation when it pays a worker gets re-spent fast—again and again—jumping the national income.

The survey, made by the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Commerce Department, was taken in mid-February—after a break in commodity prices.

Crash Fatal For Three Officers

Fort Bragg, April 1—(AP)—An Air Force C-54 transport plane crashed near Pope field here yesterday killing three officers.

The Fort Bragg public information office said the plane crashed and burned as it attempted an emergency landing in a field near the Pope base officers club.

Victims, all based at Pope field, were identified as First Lt. Allen A. Hall, Jr., pilot, Eldorado, Ark.; Second Lt. Kenneth W. Thompson, co-pilot, Milwaukee, Wis.; and Second Lt. J. M. Petrie of Cheverly, Md.

Asks Observance Of Army Day

Raleigh, N.C., April 1—(AP)—Governor Scott today urged North Carolinians to join in observing Army Day on April 6.

Throughout our history, the Army has stood as a mighty shield for the defense of our country and a deterrent to aggressors who would violate the peace," the governor said.

Churchill's Address

The Things Churchill Called For In A Speech At Fulton, Missouri, Three Years Ago Have Come To Pass; His Realistic Attitude; "Favorable Processes"

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, April 1—(AP)—Winston Churchill, who only three years ago thought Russia didn't want war, has changed his tune.

In a speech at Fulton, Mo., in 1946 he said: "I do not believe Soviet Russia desires war."

Last night in a speech in Boston he said: "It is certain that Europe would have been Communized and London under bombardment some time ago but for the deterrent of the atomic bomb in the hands of the United States."

Three years ago he said war with Russia is not "inevitable." Last night he said war with Russia is not "inevitable."

Steadfastness Will Win Out Says Churchill Of Cold War

Boston, April 1—(AP)—Doughty old Winston Churchill thrust out his bulldog jaw, and told the world that:

"Europe would have been Communized—like Czechoslovakia—and London under bombardment some time ago but for the deterrent of the atomic bomb in the hands of the United States."

But, he said, "war is not inevitable."

Speaking of the "war of nerves" he advised the Massachusetts Institution of Technology mid-century convention last night.

"If we persevere steadfastly together, and allow no appeasement of tyranny and wrong-doing in any form, it may not be our nerve or the structure of our civilization which will break—something else will break, and peace may yet be preserved."

Churchill rolled out in sonorous tones a blunt accusation that "thirteen men in the Kremlin x x x aiming at the rule of the world" had "self-preservation" as the root of their "sinister and malignant policy."

Congressional Leaders Approve Churchill View

Agree That World Peace Hangs On Keeping A-Bomb Secret; Some Critics; Taft Views China Collapse As Big Error

Washington, April 1—(AP)—Congressional leaders agreed today with Winston Churchill that world peace now hangs on continued possession of the atomic bomb secret by this country.

Churchill's speech in Boston last night, praising the Marshall Plan, the North Atlantic pact and unity among free peoples, produced the expected reaction in Congress.

In general, the lawmakers who support such foreign policy moves expressed their approval. But there also were critics—led by Senator Langer (R-ND), who carried on a bitter attack on the wartime British prime minister on the Senate floor yesterday.

Chairman McMahon (D-Conn.), sponsor of the joint congressional atomic committee, said of the Boston speech:

"Mr. Churchill correctly judges the part the atomic bomb plays in presently keeping the peace. However we shall not remain the exclusive possessor in the future and

Lawmakers Pass 'April Fool' Bill

Raleigh, April 1—(AP)—"Twas strictly 'April Fool,'" as the house today passed a bill to allow an ABC liquor election in Davidson county.

Davidson is the bailwick of Rep. L. A. Martin, a former director of the Allied Church League who has devoted much of his time in the legislature to fighting for a statewide liquor referendum and against measures to permit racing and gambling in several counties.

Rep. Burt Harrison of Craven introduced the bill which was passed and sent to the Senate by a special messenger.

Rep. C. Wayland Sprull of Bertie told the house he had received a flood of telegrams from Davidson citizens asking him to support ABC legislation for the county.

Martin himself joined in the fun: "I'm glad it's April 1," he said. "If it were not for that, I would be trembling in my boots."

Martin said he thought the bill should be amended to allow an election in Davidson on horse racing.

That was "April Fool," too.

Churchill's Address

The Things Churchill Called For In A Speech At Fulton, Missouri, Three Years Ago Have Come To Pass; His Realistic Attitude; "Favorable Processes"

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, April 1—(AP)—Winston Churchill, who only three years ago thought Russia didn't want war, has changed his tune.

In a speech at Fulton, Mo., in 1946 he said: "I do not believe Soviet Russia desires war."

Last night in a speech in Boston he said: "It is certain that Europe would have been Communized and London under bombardment some time ago but for the deterrent of the atomic bomb in the hands of the United States."

Three years ago he said war with Russia is not "inevitable." Last night he said war with Russia is not "inevitable."

Why does he say that now if, in the same speech, he says Russia would have attacked already if it were not for our atomic bomb? You have to peel the delicate skin off Churchill's oratory to find the answer. There are two main but grisly reasons:

1. If the western powers are militarily strong Russia will be discouraged from attacking.

Repeating the phrase, "these thirteen men in the Kremlin," Churchill said their "missions are in every country as a fifth column, awaiting the day when they hope to be the absolute master of their fellow-countrymen and pay off old scores."

"x x x The largest army in the world," Churchill said, "is in the hands of a government pursuing imperialist expansion, as no Czar or Kaiser had ever done."

Churchill said that the western world was "now confronted with something quite as wicked, but in some ways more formidable than Hitler."

The 74-year-old former Prime Minister of Britain said that the question, "Is time on our side?" was "not a question that can be answered within strict limits."

"We have certainly not an unlimited period of time before a settlement should be achieved," he added.

"The utmost vigilance should be practiced, but I do not think myself that violent or precipitate action should be taken now."

Churchill repeatedly asserted that "we have no hostility to the Russian people," adding:

"We seek nothing from Russia but good will and fair play."

He hailed the Marshall plan, the "new unity in western Europe, and the Atlantic pact as demonstrating a tremendous change in our outlook and policy toward the future of the world."

"Three years ago," Churchill said, "I spoke at Fulton, Missouri, under the auspices of President Truman. Many people here and in my own country were startled and even shocked by what I said."

"But events have vindicated and fulfilled in much detail the warnings which I deemed it my duty to give at that time."

(At Fulton, in March, 1946, Churchill lamented the lowering of an "iron curtain" across Europe, assailed Soviet Russian expansion, and called for the Fraternal Association of the British Commonwealth of nations and the United States.)

Mr. Churchill, unlike so many others, realizes it.

Senator Hickenlooper (R-Iowa), former chairman of the joint atomic group, agreed with Churchill that "atomic bombs have been the major deterrent to Russian aggression up to this point."

"That does not mean we can keep them exclusive indefinitely," Hickenlooper said. "The North Atlantic pact is a major step toward unity of free nations which will be another deterrent against aggression."

Chairman Tydings (D-Md.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee said the "atomic bomb is the keystone in our defense, of course, but we need other military arms to prevent World War III."

Tydings also agreed with Churchill that this nation's atomic monopoly "is undoubtedly a temporary advantage."

Senator Taft (R-Ohio), chairman of the GOP Policy Committee, commented: "I agree with Churchill that the worst disaster since our victory is the collapse of China," and added that this was the "direct outcome of Administration's policies."

Repeating the phrase, "these thirteen men in the Kremlin," Churchill said their "missions are in every country as a fifth column, awaiting the day when they hope to be the absolute master of their fellow-countrymen and pay off old scores."

"x x x The largest army in the world," Churchill said, "is in the hands of a government pursuing imperialist expansion, as no Czar or Kaiser had ever done."

Russia Attacks Atlantic Pact As Offensive Step

Moscow, April 1—(AP)—Russia today assailed the North Atlantic pact as an offensive instrument designed to daunt nations which refuse to accept Anglo-American world domination.

An acid Soviet memorandum to the seven nations which originally sponsored the pact charged it violates international agreements and undermines "the very foundations" of the United Nations.

Flatly the note described the pact as being "directed against the Soviet Union" and as being "openly aggressive" in character.

It has "nothing in common either with the tasks of self-defense of the parties to the treaty or with the real recognition of the aims and principles of the United Nations organization," the memorandum charged.

The pact, the note asserted, violates existing treaties between Britain and Russia, France and Russia and the Potsdam and Yalta agreements.

Russia, the memorandum proclaimed, "does not intend to attack anyone."

Transmission of the memorandum was announced by the official Soviet news agency Tass. It went to the United States, Britain, France, Belgium, Canada, the Netherlands and Luxembourg, the original sponsors. Soviet ambassadors in the seven countries handed the memorandum to each government.

The text was published on inside pages of Moscow's morning newspapers without editorial comment, a normal method of announcement.

It appeared as statements from the seven countries named and other western nations were gathering in Washington for Monday's scheduled signing of the treaty.

Pointing to the exclusion of the Soviet Union from the treaty, the memorandum said that circumstance "can be explained only by the fact this treaty is directed against the U.S.S.R., as well as against the countries of the people's democracy (other Communist nations)."

Participants have made warlike preparations including the stockpiling of atom bombs, maintenance of a joint British-American military staff at Washington, and a west European union defense organization with headquarters in France, the memorandum said.

Russia charged that language in the treaty describing it as being formed within framework of the United Nations is a "cover up" of aggressive intent.

Employment For March Going Up

Washington, April 1—(AP)—The number of unemployed dropped $4,000 in March after rising during each of the four previous months, the Census Bureau reported today.

Simultaneously, the number of employed increased 479,000 in March. This checked a two-month decline in the number of people holding jobs.

These apparently favorable developments were explained by the Bureau in these words:

"A seasonal expansion in employment in agriculture and some other industries, apparently counterbalanced the effect of further layoffs in other sectors of the economy."

Shortly before the Bureau issued the report, Secretary of Commerce Sawyer gave the figures to President Truman and the cabinet at a White House meeting.

Sawyer told reporters later it looks to him as if the uptrend in unemployment has been "stopped." He said also it is encouraging that there had been no "further drop in employment, but an actual increase in employment."

The $4,000 decline in unemployment from February's postwar peak left the total number of people out of work and hunting jobs at 3,167,000—still 77,000 higher than at this time last year.

Agreement Revealed For Restoring Hospital Work

Washington, April 1—(AP)—Members of a House Appropriations subcommittee reported privately today they have agreed to restore the veterans hospital construction program to the size it was before President Truman trimmed it.

The subcommittee action is subject to approval or rejection of the full appropriations committee, but normally the full committee backs up its subcommittee.

The effect of the action as explained by members is to reject the President's request to cancel $237,000,000 in contract authorizations already approved by Congress. The actual money has never been appropriated and the contract authorization has not been used.

But the original hospital program approved by Congress anticipated that the entire amount eventually would be spent.

Committee members offered no explanation for the action although they said numerous members of Congress in whose districts hospitals were to have been built had complained vigorously.

They argued, too, that Congress was obligated to follow through the program it has authorized.

In his budget message to Congress last January, the President said he had reviewed the veterans administration hospital and domiciliary construction program and found that to continue with construction of the full 90 authorized hospitals "will result in serious overbuilding in terms of beds needed to meet foreseeable requirements."

Western Diplomats Unawed By Soviet Protest To Pact

She Gets Advice

Oklahoma City, April 1—(AP)—The right answer hasn't come—yet. "But all these wonderful letters give me hope," Mrs. Heart said today. "They make me feel better. But they still don't have the answer I need."

Mrs. Heart? She is a moderately wealthy widow—51 and unidentified—who has only a year to live.

And the letters? They are from a sensitive national answering her honest appeal—"How can I spend $10,000 to get the most enjoyment out of my one remaining year of life?"

There was a prompt response to Mrs. Heart's request. Letters, telegrams and telephone calls tumbled into the newspaper office from coast-to-coast in astonishing heaps. National radio networks made futile requests for interviews. The Oklahoman is pledged to keep her identity secret.

Few persons have offered to help Mrs. Heart spend the $10,000 she's rationed herself for the next twelve—and probably final—months. Most of their answers were as sincere as her plea.

She refuses to seek medical aid which might cure her heart condition.

"You wouldn't have any fun," she said, "and you'd probably die anyway."

Mrs. Heart says she never learned to enjoy the sizable estate she built—through her business—after her husband died.

Surprised Birds

Chicago, April 1—(AP)—Mrs. Ona Doyvin played a joke on her pair of pet pigeons, Papa and Mamma Buzie. It missed being an April Fool's Day joke by 24 hours.

Earlier this month Mrs. Doyvin slipped a chicken's egg in the nest which her pigeons had made in the basement of her South Side home. The pigeons kept the egg warm, Papa Buzie sitting on it by day and Mamma Buzie by night.

Yesterday Papa Buzie got a surprise when a little yellow chick broke from the shell. But after his first shock, he guarded the nest.

Senator Pleased With Conviction

Glen Taylor Fined And Given 180 Days In Birmingham Jail

Birmingham, Ala., April 1—(AP)—A circuit court jury pleased just about everybody directly concerned when it convicted Sen. Glen H. Taylor (D-Idaho) of disorderly conduct last night.

The jury fined Taylor $50 and sentenced him to 180 days in jail.

"That's fine," said Taylor. He added that the verdict gives him a chance to test the case in higher courts through appeal. His appeal was filed immediately.

City attorneys and Police Commissioner Eugene (Bull) Connor agreed with the senator that the verdict was fine.

Taylor, then a candidate for vice president on the ticket with Henry Wallace, was arrested by city police May 1. He had attempted to enter a door reserved for Negroes at a meeting of the Southern Negro Youth Congress.

His police court trial May 4 resulted in a fine of $50 and a sentence of 180 days. The jail sentence was suspended. The circuit court trial was an appeal from that conviction.

Taylor, on the stand and through his attorneys, contended the case arose from Birmingham laws requiring separation of white persons and Negroes.

Meet Tonight To Plan House For O'Neal's Widow

Mayor Jack Boyd, chairman of the O'Neal Foundation, organized here in February to raise funds to build a home for the wife and unborn child of Mrs. William Benjamin O'Neal, wife of the 29-year-old taxicab driver who was murdered at a rural point on February 5, announced today that the state had issued a charter for the foundation.

The Guaranty Bank and Trust Company is trustee.

Members of the foundation will meet in Mayor Boyd's office at the City Hall tonight at 8 o'clock to plan for starting work on the house for O'Neal's widow and mother. The Greenville White Shrine last night turned over to Mayor Boyd a check for $200 raised for the O'Neal Foundation at a recent fashion show. Enough money has been subscribed to build the home.

When this paving is completed work will be started on widening West Fifth street to 36 feet from Elizabeth street to the western city limits.

Then the contractor will widen Dickinson Avenue from the Coast Line railroad tracks to near the underpass to 40 feet.

SPECIAL ASSISTANT Raleigh, N.C., April 1—(AP)—C. M. Williams of Burlington today joined Governor Scott's office force as a special assistant to the governor.

Utilities Control Bill Is Voted Out

Raleigh, April 1—(AP)—The House Public Utilities Committee today killed a bill which would put the rural operations of municipally owned power plants under State Utilities Commission regulation.

The group gave a favorable report to a substitute measure designed to take care of a dispute between Washington and a D. Grimesland. Washington is building power distribution lines paralleling lines from Grimesland municipal plants into an area near Washington.

The substitute would require that a municipal plant must apply to the Utilities Commission for a certificate of convenience and necessity before extending service to an area already served by another municipal plant.

The original measure was supported by a group of Wilson county residents who have been protesting a rate increase which the Wilson municipal power plant has announced will become effective July 1.

The committee decided not to allow the Utilities Commission to regulate rural operations of the municipal plants despite a strong plea by Utilities Commission Chairman Stanley Winborne.

Winborne said he thought rates of the municipal plants should be regulated.

Couple Held On Narcotic Charge

Spartanburg, S. C., April 1—(AP)—A Bessemer City, N. C., couple were held today on narcotics charges.

They are John Edgar Skipper, 42, and his wife, Pansy, 41. Mrs. Skipper was arrested by federal narcotics agents yesterday about two miles south of Grover, N. C. Her husband was arrested about an hour later.

Mrs. Skipper had just delivered a large quantity of morphine sulphate in packages bearing counterfeit labels, the agents said.

Air Search For Missing Vessel

Elizabeth City, April 1—(AP)—Two planes from the Elizabeth City Coast Guard air station along with other craft are continuing the search in an effort to determine the fate of the missing vessel, Calcos Trader, which has not been heard from since March 20 as it made its way through the Gulf of Mexico toward Miami, Fla., where it was due to arrive on March 24. Lt. Curt Kelley, public relations officer at the local station, reported today.

Personal Radios To Make Debut

Washington, April 1—(AP)—"Personal radio" will come of age June 1.

The Federal Communications Commission said today that as of that date it is removing the new Citizens Radio Service from the experimental list. It will begin then to issue regular operating licenses, making this service a full-fledged member of the broadcasting family.

Churchillian Genius

One Quality Of Old Maestro's Talks Is That They Need No Elucidation; Makes His Points Unmistakably Clear; A Spiritual Thread Voven Into His Speech

By DeWITT MacKENZIE

Winston Churchill always can be depended on in his speech-making and writings to live up to his reputation of being one of the all-time masters of the English language.

The old maestro's address at the convention of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Boston last night provided liberal flashes of the Churchillian genius, both in phrase and in content. His task wasn't an easy one—the logical interpretation and correlation of the recent grim past and present, together with their relation to the future. It struck me as being an effort worthy of his record.

An outstanding quality of Churchill's address is that they don't need explanation, and this column has no intention of embarking on elucidation. Anyway, you have read his speech in your newspapers and heard him over the air.

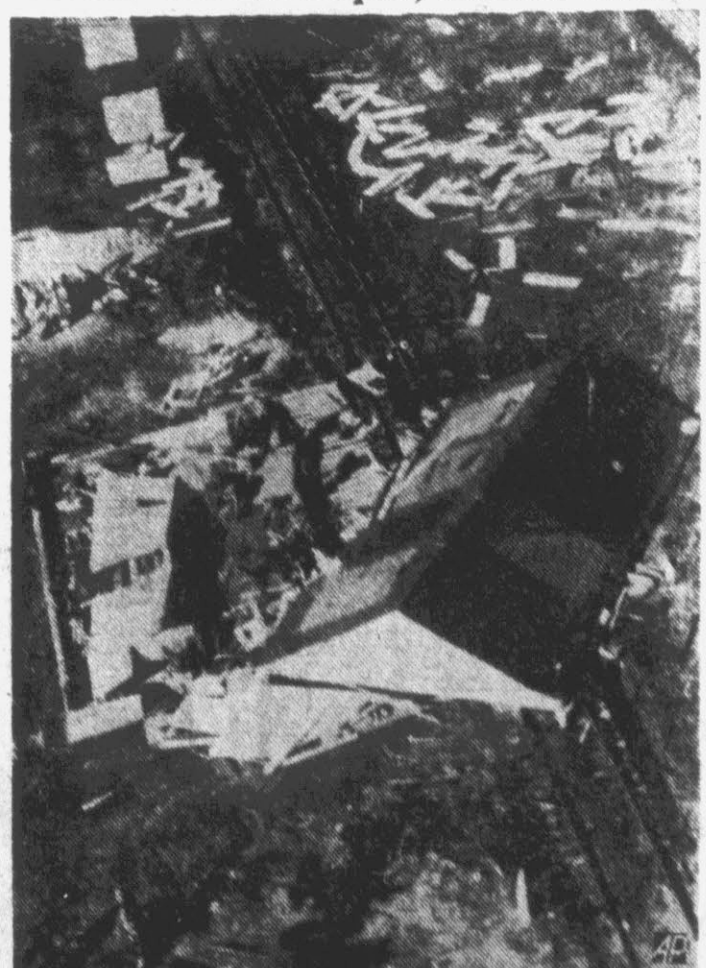

Undoubtedly you noted his declaration that "thirteen men in the Kremlin" are "aiming at the rule of the world." You heard him make the interesting observation:

"It is only the atomic bomb which has saved London from bombardment. You heard him describe the perils of the Red drive in Asia. And then the predictions: "War is not inevitable." "We need not abandon hope or patience."

Those are among the highlights of his speech, but there ran through it a strong spiritual thread which impressed me greatly, perhaps because I don't recall encountering such emphasis in previous Churchill speeches.

This is a sample: "Here I speak not only to those who enjoy the blessings and consolation of revealed religion but also to those who face the mysteries of human destiny alone. The flame of christian ethics is still our highest guide. To guard and cherish it is our first interest, both spiritually and materially. The fulfillment of spiritual duty in our daily life is vital to our survival. Only by bringing it into perfect application can we hope to solve for ourselves the problems of this world and not of this world alone."

A Lenten Prayer

The Stewardship of All Life
And the disciples, every man according to his ability, determined to send relief unto the brethren that dwell in Judea. Acts 11:29. Read Matthew 25:14-30.

The Christian community in all lands and times has set the example of generosity, ministering to the needs of saints and sinners and thus rebuking the natural possessiveness of man. The liberal fellowship is a channel for the liberal love of God. And the Christian shares with the fellowship in this most paradoxical of all gifts. For it is given to us to be giving persons and to learn a deeper blessedness than that which comes from receiving.

The only way we truly possess anything is by giving it away. Our goods and our talents are corrupted by hoarding but multiplied by dedication. On test, it really is more blessed to give than to receive. That life is richest which is most completely consecrated to stewardship.

Let Us Pray: All things come from thee, O Lord. May our gratitude be enlarged with sympathy toward those in any manner of need, and perfected in benevolence toward all. Use our talents and our lives for thine own glory, that the splendor of thy kingdom may come to the kingdoms of this world, and all thy people be crowned with the life abundant. In Jesus' name. Amen.

Jollyteer Meeting

The Jollyteers, a club composed of high school seniors who neither smoke nor drink alcoholic beverages, met at Respass' barbecue stand on the night of March 30. Following the meal and playmaking the club settled down to more serious business. The members elected the following seniors to lead: president, James Harvey Ward Jr.; vice-president, Robert Henry Fleming; secretary, Sprydon Siders; and treasurer, Walter Wilson.

After the election the president told the members of the praises given to the Jollyteers.

A motto was decided upon and was passed by all present. The words to it are: "We know what we want."

Members who have been taken in since the first meeting are R. W. Tyson, Rufus Stark, Donald Rose, Walter Wilson, Douglas Allen, Steve Moss and Charles Watson. These boys have been taken in as charter members.

It was brought up and passed that the club have a Ladies' Night towards the end of the school year.

President Ward offered to let the Jollyteers use his cottage at Morehead for a weekend of pleasure. The club unanimously accepted and set April 29 as the first weekend, weather permitting.

Ways to raise money for the treasury were discussed and a committee was appointed to look into the matter of giving a dance.

A resolution was passed stating that absent members had to pay into the treasury the difference between the meal and one dollar.

After this the meeting was adjourned.

Mrs. Barrett Hostess To Clio Book Club

Tuesday afternoon, March 29, Mrs. Agnes Barrett was hostess to the Clio Book Club at her home on Eighth Street. After a short business meeting, presided over by the president, Miss Agnes Fullilove, Mrs. Barrett introduced Miss Mary Green, guest speaker for the afternoon.

Miss Green spoke on Personalities in Journalism. From the varied types of jobs in journalism Miss Green confined her talk to the "Columnists." Due to the influence of the Associated Press, the United Press and the International News our newspapers have changed in character over the past few years. The radio, movie newsreels, and picture news magazines also have played a part in this change. Each of these have helped to make our papers non-personal. It has been left to the columnists to give the personal touch and to help mold public opinion. Miss Green stated that the columnists' job was varied; not only does he report the news, but he analyzes it and expresses an opinion.

From the large number of columnists Miss Green selected three who are among the most widely read and who differ from each other in style and personality. Walter Winchell is the most spectacular and widely read of them all. He uses a light and gossipy style and has succeeded in bringing small town journalism to a large town. Through his column and his program on the radio he is able to make or break a man. Drew Pearson, while not as widely read as some columnists, is the most influential of them all. He is the most feared and hated man in official Washington. He is no gossip, but deals strictly with national and international affairs. Although he has made errors in his column, time has shown that he has been right sixty percent of the time.

His work with the "Friendship Train" will be remembered for a long time. Westbrook Pegler has been given the undisputed title of the wielder of the most venomous pen. He hates many things with a passion and is puritanical in his views of justice. He believes American labor is a victim of the labor boss. He has won many awards for his work as a journalist and as a citizen.

After Miss Green's interesting and informative talk, Mrs. Barrett, assisted by Miss Nell Stallings, served a delicious salad course. The books were distributed and the club adjourned. Guests for the afternoon were Misses Mary Green and Nell Stallings.

The dance is an annual event at the college. Music will be provided by Bob Lee and his orchestra of East Carolina musicians.

Charles Woods of Milwaukee and Frances Daniels of Midway Park, presidents of the organizations, are in charge of plans for the dance. Working with them on various committees is a group of students including Ann Beddard, Snow Hill; Frederick Ourt, Wilmington; Gerald Small Scroggs, Danville, Va.; Marcell Frazelle, Richlands; Jessie Braxton, Greenville; Lorine and Lorise Lewis, Smithfield; and Lovestine Daugherty, Clinton.

Mrs. Taft Presents Program To Club

Mrs. Tyson Bilbro entertained the Inter Book Club at its regular meeting Tuesday afternoon at her home on Third street. Mrs. R. W. Bradsher, Wilson, N. C., was a guest for the afternoon.

Mrs. L. M. Buchanan, president, presided at a business session during which the club decided to make a contribution to the cancer drive.

The program was presented by Mrs. Joe Taft, who discussed Guy de Maupassant, French short story writer and novelist. A supreme observer and an exact transcriber, Maupassant wrote many stories in which he realistically portrayed peasants, servants, Boors, literary men, financiers, and frivolous women.

At the conclusion of the program Mrs. Bilbro served a delicious sweet course, decorated with Easter favors.

Students Of Greenville Schools Contribute To Arts Festival

Pupils in Greenville schools were chief contributors Thursday to the twelfth Community Arts Festival now in progress in the city.

A "Children's Hour with the Arts" presented at East Carolina Teachers College in the afternoon and two one-act plays given in the evening at the Greenville High School gave young people of the city an opportunity to participate in the festival and to receive recognition for their work in the arts. Winners of awards in the creative writing contest sponsored for the second year by the Greenville chapter of the American Association of University Women and also prize winners for art work in the elementary grades were announced during the day.

An evening concert by the Glee Club of Greensboro College in Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church brought events of the day to a close.

The "Children's Hour" was presented by pupils of the three elementary schools of the city, the West Greenville School, the Third Street School and the Training School on the college campus, and by an instrumental ensemble from the Greenville high school. An orchestra composed of 50 boys and girls played under the direction of John Arrant. Using the story of "Little Red Riding Hood" as narrative background, high school pupils demonstrated instruments of the band and the orchestra. A program of songs by the Greenville Elementary Schools Glee Club was given under the direction of Jeanne Hook, faculty member of East Carolina Teachers College and supervisor of music in the city elementary grades.

Mrs. R. B. Starling entertained the audience of adults and children with a series of chalk drawings executed on the stage.

A play written and staged by pupils of Grade 3-5 of the Training School, taught by Mrs. Elizabeth Savage, was presented during the afternoon. Entitled "Story Book Alley," it combined music, dancing, and dialog, largely the original work of the children taking part in it.

Mrs. Vance Perkins, president of the Greenville Woman's Club, announced at the close of the program a series of thirty awards to elementary school children for their original compositions in music, drawing and painting, and writing.

Winners of the A. A. U. W. awards were announced by Mrs. Charles W. Reynolds at the evening program at the Greenville High School. Successful contestants in the essay contest were Helen Stokes and Sude Mae Spain, junior high school students; and Frances Estelle Greene and Ray Sears, senior high school students. Martha Gilbert received the award for the best original short story.

Two one-act plays were presented in the evening. "Gray Bread," a serious short drama, was given by high school students under the direction of Mrs. Howard Mims. The cast included Joanna Bunch, Ann McCrary, Carolyn Clapp, and Peggy Barrow. Pupils of Mrs. J. E. Rose's School of Speech presented a sprightly comedy "Junior Prom." Taking part were Virginia Perkins, Peggy Barrow, Carolyn Clapp, Lytle Bachelor, John Farley, Billy Wood, Bobby Lee, and James Crawford.

Closing the day's events was a concert by the Glee Club of Greensboro College, directed by E. L. Williams. A group of more than 40 members now on tour in Bostera North Carolina, the glee club gave a program of secular and religious music.

During the business part of the meeting the club donated five dollars toward the cancer drive.

Mrs. H. H. Duncan gave a most interesting paper on "Women in the News." She ably presented the political activities of Mrs. Margaret Chase Smith, now a member of the U. S. Senate and of the business acumen of Miss Margaret Shaver, who is president and business manager of Lord and Taylor's in New York City.

Mrs. John D. Messick gave interesting news items and Mrs. Milton White reported on the pronunciation of special words.

The hostess served a delicious sweet course with coffee. She was assisted by Mrs. Browning and Mrs. White.

Wanted: A Bee That Can Take Wallop On Nose Or On Caboose

Washington, April 1.—(AP)—Did you ever see a bee with a tough bottom? Did you ever see a bee with an "Iron jaw" like Jack Dempsey's—up percut proof?

If ever you find either kind of bee call J. L. Hambleton at the U. S. Department of Agriculture research center, Telephone tower 6430. (not no aprilfooling.)

Hambleton wants to start a new family of tough-jawed, thick-skulled, armor-bottomed bees to wrestle with the battling alfalfa blossom.

Most bees can't stand up to this blossom's punch. The blossom's stamen is attached to its side. It is under tension, like the spring in a mousetrap.

The stamen is the little gadget in the blossom that contains pollen. When the bee pokes in his nose to collect nectar or pollen he trips the stamen.

It lets go and whops him on the chin or between the eyes or on his pistol pocket, depending on whether he is facing "north" or "south" at the moment.

Hambleton, who has eye-witnessed some of these alfalfa-bee bouts, says the bee gets a "middin' good blood."

Pollen flies in all directions.

Bees learn quickly. They develop a violent dislike for alfalfa. They leave it alone. Therefore alfalfa blossoms aren't all fertilized because it is the fact that carries pollen from plant to plant.

Loss to farmers is heavy. In Utah alone alfalfa seed crop has fallen off from 26,000,000 pounds a year to about 4,000,000. It's worth about 60 cents a pound.

Last year was about 60,000,000 pounds worth $36,000,000.

much more except for that socking stamen.

So you can see that many millions of dollars are going to be lost until scientists figure out a way to make the bee and the alfalfa plant stop their feudin'.

Scientists can do more with "tail-or-making" bees than with almost any other creature. They reproduce quickly and traits can be set in families.

If the bee breeders could get just one family of bees started with an irresistible desire for alfalfa they could soon produce many hives of these bees.

Hambleton is attempting to breed such bees now, but it would help if he could find a bee with all the specifications for battling alfalfa blossoms already built into him.

Asks Merci Train Gifts Be Sent On Tour Of State

By GIL BILLINGS
Raleigh, April 1.—The colorful gifts from France to the citizens of North Carolina may tour the state. The extravagant collection is now on exhibit in the state museum in Raleigh.

Two bills introduced in the house by Harry Vander Linden would affect the articles. The first vests the title and provides for the safe-keeping for the education and enjoyment of all the people of the state.

Vander Linden proposes that the gifts be placed in custody of the State Department of Archives and History. The department would then be authorized to lend the gifts to organizations capable of caring for and properly displaying them.

The 40 & 8 boxcar in which the gifts arrived from France, would be exempted from the act since the World War I relic was given to the Grand Voiture, Societe 40 & 8 North Carolina.

A bill providing for the transfer of title to certain trucks and house trailers from the Department of Motor Vehicles to the Department of Archives and History would permit educational exhibits and displays.

It is believed that the gifts from France might be sent on a tour of the state through the use of these vehicles. Plans are being made, however, for agricultural, industrial and wildlife exhibits which would be mounted in the vehicles and made available to certain organizations.

The hundreds of war relics, historical papers, beautiful china, notes to the American people and other items in the Merci Train collection have been visited by thousands of people since they have been on exhibit in the museum.

Messick To Talk In Asheville Meet

President John D. Messick of East Carolina Teachers College will be principal speaker at a joint meeting of the divisions of Higher Education and of Superintendents to be held Thursday evening, April 7, during the North Carolina Education Association convention in Asheville. Dr. Messick's subject will be "Discretionary Powers of Public School Officials."

He will also lead a panel Friday morning, April 8, for the division of Higher Education. At this meeting the findings of the Bowling Green Conference and the effect they may have on the preparation of North Carolina school teachers will be discussed by a group of educators.

Others from the college who are scheduled to participate in the Asheville convention include Dr. Allan S. Hurlburt, chairman of the department of administration, who will speak Friday afternoon on "Recent Developments in Audio-Visual Aids Significant to the Coach and Teacher of Physical Education" at a departmental meeting of health, physical education, and recreation teachers and supervisors; and Mar Sheppard of Wilmington, college senior, who will take part in the program presented Friday afternoon by the state organization of the Future Teachers of America.

"Pinocchio" Coming Next Week

When is a puppet not a puppet? Audiences at Suzari Marionettes' "Pinocchio," which the Greenville Service League has scheduled to appear here next April 4 and 5, may answer "When he's a donkey." But before the show is over, they'll agree it's when he's a human boy. For all three of these transformations take place on the new large-sized puppet stage which Suzari Marionettes are bringing with them. The shows are for the benefit of the children's recreation fund.

But whether he's playing donkey, puppet, or real human boy, Pinocchio makes a merry job of it, with lots of lively dancing, and many a hilarious song. Supported by a good sized cast of wooden actors—and a human actor on stage as puppet-master, "Pinocchio" is certain to amuse both children and grown ups when he plays here on April 4 and 5.

Performances will be given at the Austin auditorium at 2 p.m. Monday for Greenville school children and pre-school children; at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday for Pitt County school children, and at 8:15 p.m. Monday and Tuesday nights for adults.

Will Never Sue Over Bond Issue

Raleigh, April 1.—(AP)—Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy of Ohio said yesterday his state will never sue North Carolina over a post civil war bond issue "as long as I'm attorney general."

The Ohio attorney general was here to confer with Attorney General Harry McMullan over 200 North Carolina bonds issued soon after the civil war.

North Carolina has repudiated the bonds, which would be worth about $1,000,000 if they could be cashed. They were issued to build railroads but McMullan has asserted not a mile of railroad ever was built.

The bonds have been offered the Ohio State Conservation division by the League of Ohio sportsmen. The sportsmen's group asked the Conservation division to accept the bonds with the understanding the state of Ohio would in turn sue North Carolina.

Duffy said his purpose in visiting McMullan was "to ascertain what defenses North Carolina had prepared in case of a suit." He added he would "make no move until I hear further" from the Ohio Conservation division.

The Ohio attorney general declared "it would be futile" for his state to sue North Carolina because the Tar Heel state "has several perfect defenses."

In his first interview since reaching the United States, Elia Fishin stated flatly that "the Chinese Communists are the complete masters of China."

"The Chinese Reds," the former czar army captain said, "have the military power to march wherever they please in China—even into South China where the Nationalists are still holding out."

The ruddy-faced White Russian spoke in halting English as he described the situation in China. "The Nationalist troops just throw down their guns," he said. "It is no use for the United States to send them more millions of dollars worth of guns and bullets when the Nationalists are too afraid to fight."

Blossoms Hurt

Washington, April 1.—(AP)—Pounding rain, hail and gusty winds last night destroyed an estimated one-third of the famous cherry blossoms which have been drawing more people to Washington than many presidential inaugurations.

However, clearing weather was predicted for the week-end and officials went ahead with plans for the annual cherry blossom festival.

Heavy air, rail and hotel bookings indicated that half a million persons would visit the capital over the week-end.

Strength FOR THE DAY
 THE REALMS OF GOLD

Many people, bored with life and unhappy, are missing a great source of pleasure close at hand. Looking enviously around, such persons desire perhaps to travel—but cannot afford it; to play tennis or golf—but have not the facilities; to lead adventurous lives—but lack opportunities; or to be distinguished leaders—but are unqualified. Yet those who like to read may enjoy all these things, in a sense, and many more, too.

No actual traveler in a single lifetime could possibly visit every place which authors have written, nor journey into the past and future, as well as into the imaginary worlds of books. Accounts of the great athletic events of history and literature bring to one's mind a variety of sports he could not witness in all the seasons of the year. Libraries are crammed with stories of thrilling adventures in every setting—the underworld, the high seas, the jungles, the battlefield. Histories and biographies relate the triumphs or tragedies of the great figures of every age.

Nor should reading be scorned as an idle pastime, for through it the reader may increase his knowledge of himself and of the world around him. The companionship of the greatest philosophers, religious leaders, teachers, and scientists is no further away than the nearest library. The wealth of the ages is there for all who will turn the pages.

Around Capitol Square

REVOLUTION—Governor Scott has frequently referred to the political revolution in North Carolina as something that happened early last summer. Most observers agree with his definition of a revolution (although a minority insists evolution is a more accurate word) but they disagree as to time. They think the revolution started several years ago and has not yet reached its peak, but will continue for some months to come. Last year's gubernatorial primary was an important, perhaps the decisive, battle in the long drawn out revolution.

INCIDENTS—Selection of Capus Wayne to be state chairman, Jonathan Daniels to be national committeeman, and Frank Graham to be U. S. Senator were significant phases of the Tar Heel political revolution. All of these incidents emphasized the North Carolina trend toward what is, for lack of a better name, called liberalism. It is equally obvious that reluctance of the general assembly, especially the senate, to go along with the Scott program proves the revolution has not been complete.

CHAIRMANSHIP—That gets to the next phase. Gossip around Capitol square has it that Capus Wayne will in the near future be named as United States ambassador to Chile. There will be no difficulty about senate confirmation. Senator Graham is expected to urge favorable action because he and Wayne are kindred spirits on most matters of importance. Senator Hoy will go along because it would remove the presently considered most logical opponent in the senate race next year. If the ambassadorial appointment comes through there will be vacancy in chairman-ship of the Democratic party in North Carolina. Astute politicians are already looking ahead to that contingency. Names have not yet been injected into discussion. Since the next chairman will be nominated by the Scott-Daniels-Graham triumvirate the qualifications are pretty well established. And since the new chairman will in all probability handle the elections of two United States senators and a full general assembly next year, the post becomes more than usually important.

ADJOURNMENT—The senate is driving hard for sine die adjournment by Saturday of next week, April 9. The representatives are just as eager to get home, but they see less prospect of decently completing the job in one more week. There are vital differences in attitude of the two branches of the general assembly. These differences might be reduced to simple formula. The senate has recognized leadership, which is anti-administration. The house has apparent majority support for the administration without recognized leadership.

with the governor on submission of a 200 million dollar bond issue without implications of increased taxes. The house also went along with an additional one cent a gallon extra gasoline tax without reference to bond issues. The senate junked both these bills and came forth with another locking the bond issue and the extra tax together. Opinion prevails that the ultimate action may call for a bond issue of less than 200 millions without additional tax.

SCHOOLS—The public school issue is another criterion. The senate is standing pat against spending the post war reserve for teacher salaries, and against unlimited bonds for school house construction. The house of representatives indicates willingness to spend the reserve for salaries and trust to luck on buildings and future support of schools at current levels. The senate is willing to call it quits; the house isn't.

AGREEMENT—The two positions are not utterly impossible of compromise, but experienced observers see little hope of getting them together in one week. Senators are inclined to follow their committee chairman; representatives insist upon doing a lot of talking as individuals and decline to recognize committee chairman recommendations for conservative attitude. Which leads to conclusion that agreement on adjournment by April 16 may be reached, but earlier quitting time is improbable.

Boyle's Column

New York, April 1—(AP)—The vaudeville act ended, and the face of a war veteran flashed on the television screen in a small side-street bar.

The voice was as before. But it was the first time they had seen his face as he talked. The cruel television lights wiped out any wrinkles in the plump face, and Winston Churchill showed his 74 years.

"He looks old and tired," said a man at the bar.

"(Even in this darkening hour I have faith...)" said Churchill.

And as the old hero blew a triple bugle call—a hope for peace, a warning against Russian aims, a stand-ready for action—they talked of him, these men at the bar.

They spoke of him, probably, as men were speaking across the sea in the pubs in England. They spoke with affection, old loyalty and fresh doubt. For they had hoped he would bring up an easy formula. And all he offered was the mixture as before—courage and iron morality.

"Life is a test and this world a place of trials," said this blunt-spoken English statesman since Shakespearean times.

"He is the one guy in the world who is trying to get me back in a khaki suit," complained a curly-haired veteran of the Pacific war, younger than his mustache. "I love him for what he did in wartime. But the world has passed him by."

"War is not inevitable," said the white face on the screen.

"Yes," said a veteran of the North African campaign. "He stands for an age that is dying. He's a medicine man—the last orator. But at least he looks different from Joe DiMaggio on television. That's something. If television had more entertainers like him the movies would die quicker."

(From the screen came the sound of applause. Churchill had scored.)

"What'd he say?" mumbled a drunk. "What're they clapping for? I missed it."

"Ask my wife," said the man next to him. "She's a Communist."

"Oh, I'm a Communist, am I?" the wife shrieked. "I am not! What is freedom? The important thing is tolerance, and Churchill isn't preaching tolerance in this speech."

"We seek nothing from Russia but goodwill and fair play," said Churchill, and there was more applause from the screen.

The husband and wife didn't hear him. They had forgotten the war, Russia, and world peace things. Married people argue about themselves.

"Of all these unities the one most precious to me," said Churchill, "is the fraternal association between the British Commonwealth of Nations and the United States."

"He's begging," broke in a second-generation Irishman. "Who sold the Irish down the river in 1916? If he was wrong then, is he right now? Does he mean it—or is he just talking?"

"United we stand secure," Churchill ended. "Let us then move forward together in discharge of our duty, fearing God and nothing else. More applause."

The young Irishman behind the bar, a combat veteran of Pearl Harbor and the Pacific island jungles, moved toward the television set.

"I shouldn't have turned this program on," he said. "Where there's smoke there's fire—and there's smoke at this bar. But I'm a Churchill fan, and I wanted to hear him."

He nodded toward the young man with the moustache at the end of the bar.

"I believe in this hands across the sea stuff," said the barkeep. "And I'd rather wear a khaki suit again than a red suit. Russia breeds on guys afraid to fight for what they believe."

He twisted the dials to a new program. It was a roller skating derby. And everybody went on drinking. And some may have been thinking.

WASHINGTON LETTER.. by Jane Eads

Washington — Whenever Uncle Sam gets set to build a big federal office building, a post office, an airport or furniture for a courtroom, he first calls on O. V. Reeser to create a model out of cardboard.

An architect and model technician for the Federal Works Agency (FWA), Mr. Reeser first started architectural modeling when he was a student at the University of Pennsylvania. He was associated with architects in Philadelphia who made models of houses which they planned for wealthy clients, including the Vanderbilts, Stotesburys and others.

A skilled model technician with whom he studied gave him a formula for making substances for his models that resemble stone, brick, metal and other construction materials. This formula Mr. Reeser keeps to himself.

"Just let them wonder how I got these realistic effects in my models," he tells folks who plague him for the know-how.

One of the biggest projects he has undertaken was building a model of the General Accounting Office building here. The job was recently let out for construction.

In 1947 he was "loaned" to the White House to make a model of the alterations to the East and West Executive wings, the "Truman Balcony" and contours of the entire area within the limits of the White House grounds under the guidance of the architect of the White House, Lorenzo S. Winslow.

Mr. Reeser started his government service about 16 years ago. He made models for post office and other projects that were constructed by the old Public Works Administration. Between 1939 and 1942, when the FWA was building government low-cost houses, he made numerous single, duplex and unit housing models. More recently he has made models of federal courtroom furniture such as the judge's bench, jury box and jurors' rooms, which have been adopted by FWA as standard equipment.

In addition to his modeling, Mr. Reeser figures out the color schemes for Public Health hospitals, courthouses, post offices, office buildings, airports and other FWA constructed buildings.

Currently, he is working out the color scheme for the National Institute of Health's Medical Center at nearby Bethesda, Md. His schedule goes to the contractors along with color chips so there will be no mistaking as to the proper color to be used.

County Medical Society Pays Tribute To Fountain Physician

Dr. E. Bruce Beasley of Fountain has been named by the Pitt County Medical Society as the outstanding practitioner in Pitt County and his name has been submitted to the North Carolina Society which in turn will nominate a state entrant for national honors.

The American Medical Society has requested that each county in the 48 states name its most outstanding practitioner and from the group the nation's most outstanding practitioner is to be chosen.

The committee from the Pitt County Medical Society, in naming Dr. Beasley, submitted the following biographical data:

"E. Bruce Beasley was born at Colerain, Bertie County, North Carolina, Nov. 11, 1888. He attended high school at Mars Hill College and Oak Ridge Institute, finishing at the latter institution in 1906. He then entered the University of North Carolina where he spent one year in the academic department. Always as a boy he had planned the study of medicine, so in the fall of 1907 he matriculated as a medical student at the University of North Carolina, completing his first two years there, then entering the University of Pennsylvania from which he was graduated as an M.D. in 1911.

Following graduation he interned at Queen's Hospital, Honolulu, Hawaii, being resident physician a part of the time. In April 1913 he returned to the States and located in the small village of Fountain, Pitt County, N.C., where he has served this rural community as a general practitioner for 36 years.

"Coming to Fountain—a village in the Eastern N.C. tobacco country—because of no improved roads, some sandy in summer and others muddy in winter, he often faced the inconvenience of "getting stuck," resorting to deflated tires in summer and the putting on of heavy chains in winter. At all times the young physician was willing to endure any hardships to serve the sick, frequently answering emergency calls on mule and cart as roads and weather defied any other transportation.

"During the period known as "the depression years" he never failed his patients. One woman expressed her appreciation when she said to him, "The poor people of this community should erect a monument to you when you die, for you always come when called." I am sure Dr. Beasley feels that such a tribute as that repaid him for his unselfish devotion to duty.

"The town and surrounding community have steadily shown progress and growth. Dr. Beasley has always been a leader in any improvement and has watched with pride the coming of good roads and modern facilities of every kind which have added to the betterment of the community physically, educationally, culturally and spiritually.

"While the town and community were improving, Dr. Beasley has ever kept pace in the newer trends of his profession and has always been ready to use these methods in his practice. He has been an active member in the County and State Medical Societies and a few years ago was awarded a Certificate as an Honorary Fellow in the N. C. State Society which denotes an unbroken membership for a period of 30 years.

"He has brought into the world over 4,000 babies, enough to populate a good sized town. Vacations have been few and far between as he has always considered the need of his patients before his own welfare. He has only taken two vacations that lasted as long as a week during his practice in Fountain and has been on call 24 hours a day when at home. His wife states that in their 35 years together she has never known him to refuse a call if at all possible to answer it.

"He carries his 60 years well, being still active and doing a larger practice than at any time during his 36 years. Some one has said that he has proven that it is a far nobler pursuit in life to minister than to be ministered unto."

New Impetus For Plans To Dedicate DAR Home

By EVA HORTON ROUSE

Farmville, April 1—With recent gifts of additional furnishings and substantial donations received by the Major Benjamin May chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, in connection with the proposed dedication of its chapter house on Friday, April 29, a new enthusiasm and impetus have been given to plans now fully underway to make the event a real homecoming affair and the day one of historical significance to this community and to North Carolina.

Mrs. T. C. Turnage, regent of the chapter, has announced that invitations have already been accepted by Mrs. Roscoe O'Byrne, president general of the National Society Daughters of the American Revolution; Mrs. Julius Y. Talmadge, honorary president general; Miss Virginia Horne, the newly elected state regent; Miss Gertrude Carraway, retiring state regent; Mrs. Edwin C. Gregory, honorary state regent and past vice president general, present national vice chairman of resolutions committee and state regent at the time of the organization of the local chapter, and other distinguished guests including national and state officers. Invitations are now in process of being sent to chapters throughout the State.

The theme of the dedication program will be "This Land of Ours—Its Soil, Its Homes, Its Churches, Its Schools and Its People," and a notable national figure, able to scan the international horizon, has been extended an invitation to attend as special guest and speaker.

Committees connected with the event: invitations; brochure; music; dance; picnic dinner; open house; publicity; and ways and means are meeting weekly. They report progress in relation to interest and cooperation on the part of individuals approached, for while this is to be primarily a State affair, the responsibility of upholding the traditional spirit of cordial hospitality of the true Southern variety will rest necessarily on the Farmville community.

Since 1926, when the ideal of a cultural and social center of discriminating taste and grace had its inception, it has been the desire of the chapter membership to make the chapter house a shrine and sanctuary as well as a living memorial to the progressive citizenship of the Eastern section of this grand Old State.

High Speed Requirements Are Changing Old Airplane Designs

ODD SHAPED WINGS are being tried by jet engineers.

By JAMES J. STREIBIG

(AP) Aviation Reporter
Washington—The Wright brothers made their airplane of wood, wire and cloth for an engine of about 12 horsepower.

Today's jet aircraft are becoming thick metal shells as forces running into tens of thousands of horsepower shove them near bullet speed. The opposing trends of slenderizing shapes for speed and thickening skins for strength have made the designer's job a tough one.

Wings must be thinner than ever for very high speed, but they must be several times as strong as those on conventional planes. This means that the wing no longer is the storage bin for fuel, nor has it room for landing gear.

Fuselages now must be designed to hold fuel—a lot more fuel because the jet is a thirsty giant—and a lot of items Wilbur and Orville Wright didn't need. These include boosters for the flight controls to help the pilot move them, automatic engine starting and regulating equipment, refrigerators, pressurizers and electronic gear to help him navigate, find a target, fire guns and keep his plane running.

The fact is that equipment and fuel have almost squeezed the crew out of jet warplanes. Bombers twice as big as the B-17 flying fortress have but two crewmen—instead of 10 or 12.

The jet plane needs its thin, smooth wing for high speeds. But it also must take off and land at speeds not too far above those of propeller planes. Various life-increasing devices which can be stored while cruising are available. These include an extendable leading edge of the wing, the wing slot, the wing slat and the wing flap.

Even those devices are not enough to span the gap between very high jet plane speeds and the demands of safety for low speeds near the runway. Engineers are trying odd shaped wings.

Soon you may see a wing shaped like a triangle and another one which is wider at the tips than at the fuselage. And the day is not too far off when wings which can change their shape in flight will be tried.

There are nice things to be said about jets in addition to their speed. Jet engines are relatively light. They give a constant power instead of the intermittent push of the piston and so are nearly free of vibration.

They are simple in overall design and require fewer dials and gauges than piston engines. The lack of propellers means a saving of thousands of pounds of weight in a big bomber and removes much complicated control mechanism.

The lack of vibration and lower engine weight means a saving in structural weight. This helps offset the strength needed to meet turbulence. They have a relatively small frontal area, which reduces drag at high speeds.

The jet plane has shown man how to go faster than ever before. It has raised the problem, however, of slowing down.

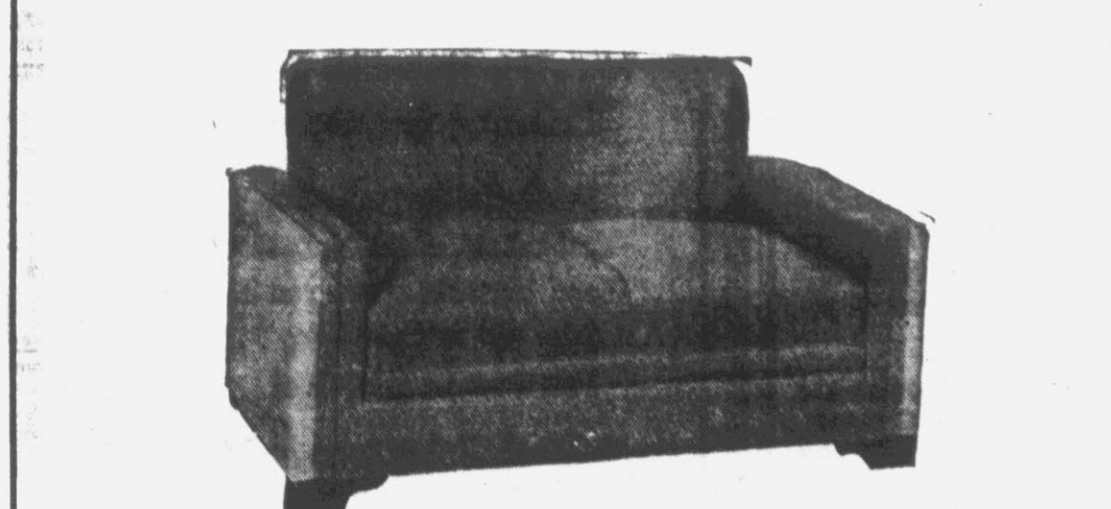

Wheel brakes that meet the needs of propeller planes are not the full answer for very fast craft with small wheels and narrow tires. Besides, propellers can be reversed and the thrust used to stop the plane in the same way that it was pushed forward.

One way of stopping the jet plane is being tried on the Boeing B-47 Stratojet bomber. It releases a large parachute from its tail as the wheels touch down. Better means are being sought.

In general, these revolve about the idea of a special jet or rocket engine in reverse position so that it can push backward. Such a device could be used to help pull out of high speed dives or to slow down for sharp turns in combat maneuvers.

Pirates Crush Guilford By 9-3 With Help Of 5 Walks

Five Men In Row Got Free Ticket To First In Initial Frame; Kelly's Single In Second Sparks Four-Run Rally; Play Greenies Today

The East Carolina Teachers College Pirates scored six runs in the first two innings here yesterday to crush the Guilford College Quakers nine to three and break even on a two game North State Conference series.

Five straight walks by Guilford's Rudy Craven gave the Bucs two runs in the first period. A big four-run rally in the second, sparked by first baseman Haywood Kelley's two-run single put the game in the cooler for the Pirates and sent Craven to the showers for Guilford.

In that high scoring second inning Ab Williams led off with a walk. Tom Benton was hit by a pitched ball and Ben Hester was walked, loading the sacks. A long fly to center was taken by Maulsby to put Jack Wallace out but Williams scored on the pay. Fenner Boyd singled, scoring Benton and Kelley's single drove in Hester and Boyd.

The Pirate pitching chores were divided between Ab Williams and Hal Whitehurst. Williams retired in the fifth inning after holding the visitors to two runs, seven scattered hits, one walk and striking out one. Whitehurst care in to finish for the locals, pitching three hit baseball for the remainder of the contest.

On the hill for the visitors was Rudy Craven who went out in the second on the heels of seven walks, and two hits. Simmons took over for the Quakers then and hand-cuffed the Pirates with three hits for the next six periods.

Haywood Kelley was leading hitter of the day. The Pirate first sacker turned in three for three including a two run single and a double to drive in four runs. Fenner Boyd got the only two other hits for the Pirates. Albert Davis led the Quakers' hitting attack with three singles in four appearances.

This afternoon at two-thirty the Pirates play the Greenville Greenies of the Coastal Plains League and the Quakers travel to Wilson for a non-conference engagement with the Atlantic Christian Bulldogs.

Sport Slants by Pap

Hope springs eternal in the heart of a golfer, be he dub or be he champion!

Take Cary Middlecoff, the Memphis dentist who has been the sensation of the winner golf tour, for example. Cary appears to have every shot from tee to green. He has demonstrated that he can rise to great heights under pressure, and seems to be headed for greater things. Since the first of the year Middlecoff has been the hottest golfer since Byron Nelson and Ben Hogan. And thereby hangs a tale that is a familiar theme with all golfers. Middlecoff has found "something" that apparently has improved his game.

On the eve of the Miami International Four-Ball tournament, Cary adopted a minor change in his stance. He opened up his stance slightly. In other words, he placed his left foot slightly behind the line of his right when he addressed the ball. Previously he had used a close stance with the left foot slightly in advance of the right. Without changing his swing in the slightest, Cary found new freedom of action with the new stance. With his new enthusiasm, and his string of recent successes, Middlecoff will be a hot favorite to take the Masters at Augusta. Last year, he shot a 284 and finished in second place behind Claude Harmon.

Newest Fishing Trick Is Plug That Appears To Glow While In Water

New York, April 1—(AP)—Newest trick to hit the tackle shops this spring is a plug that appears to glow in the water.

A pair of University of California chemists developed the lacquer, which tests have proven alluring to fish along the West Coast.

The paint has the quality of keeping its color intensity when submerged in water because of the ultraviolet rays in the sunshine. The rays have been traced down 4,000 feet but they are not numerous. Enough of them, however, pierce through 300 feet of water to make the paint effective at that depth.

The ultraviolet rays are everywhere there is natural light. Sunshine isn't necessary. They are in evidence before sun up or after sun set and even on a cloudy day.

Fishing flies, tied with floss with the same fire-like colors, were introduced last fall and some sensational catches were reported.

It took the chemists almost a year to transfer the glowing qualities from the fabric to the lacquer.

What makes the fabric colors glow still is a trade secret after having been a government secret throughout much of the war. The fabric was developed when the government demanded that signal flags on airplane carrier always have the same color intensity in natural light. Later on the cloth was used for shoulder patches for troops in the Aleutians.

He Wanted Hits And Gets Them

Haines City, Fla., April 1—(AP)—Connie Mack thinks his Philadelphia Athletics would have "a great chance" for the pennant this year if only the hitting were a little better.

"If our fellows could only hit a little more it would mean all the difference," the 85-year-old manager sighed yesterday before his club went against Newark.

The A's responded by drubbing Newark 20 to 5, in their greatest show of power of the spring training season.

White Sox Get Hits Off Lemon

Tucson, Ariz., April 1—(AP)—The Chicago White Sox expected to get their first glimpse of Pitcher Satchel Paige today while concluding their three-day Tucson stand against the Cleveland Indians. Bill Wright and Howie Judson were to share the Sox pitching chores.

Cold weather and a gale stopped the Sox and Indians yesterday, but not until the Sox had grabbed a 10 to 2, 5-inning decision. The Sox punctured Bob Lemon, 20-game winner last season, with eight runs in the third inning. Matt Surkont held the Tribe to two hits.

pitch: Williams. Winning pitcher: Craven. Losing pitcher: Craven. Umpires: Gurley and Nobles. Time: 2:30.

Evidence Points To Big Year For Giants' Hartung

Phoenix, Ariz., April 1—(AP)—It probably sounds like an April Fool's joke, but honestly, this may be the year for big Clint Hartung.

Clint is the Texas wonder who was converted by the New York Giants from outfielder to pitcher for his own safety.

One of the most ballyhooed ball-players to come out of the Army Hartung never has found his place in the major leagues. He was supposed to be phenomenal hitter so the Giants tried him in the outfield. They gave that up when catching flies proved to be an unsolvable mystery to him.

As a pitcher he had a tremendous fast ball. Nothing else.

Now, the Giants claim, Clint has developed a curve. A year ago nobody thought he'd ever learn. A month ago they were sure of it.

But Hartung worked seven innings against Pittsburgh the other day and he threw some balls that didn't stay on a straight line.

"If you don't think he was throwing a curve," said Catcher Walker Cooper, "you forgot what you saw last year. He threw a couple of beauties."

Clint, himself, thinks he has it.

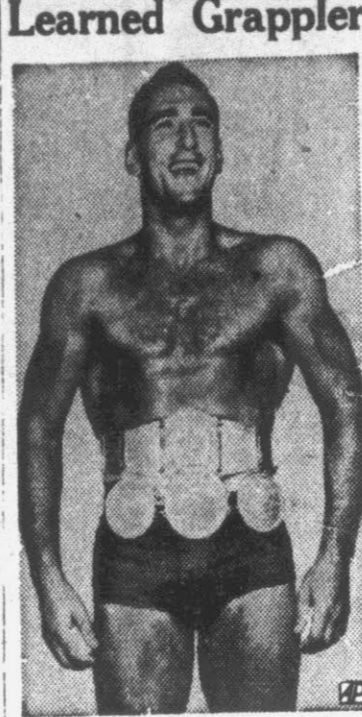

"Last year," he says, "too many people were trying to teach me. I'd hear one thing one minute and an entirely different thing two minutes later. I didn't know where I was going. This year (Leo) Durocher put (Frank) Shellback with me and nobody else. He changed by position on the mound. He shortened my stride and he showed me how to hold the ball. I'm doing fine."

Shellback, a Giant coach, said he'd taught Hartung all he knew. "You can't pound it in. I did what I thought should be done, then I went to him only once in Los Angeles and asked, 'Are there any questions, Clint?' He answered 'No, just watch to see how I go.'"

Pirate Net Team Meets Richmond

The East Carolina Teachers College tennis team will engage the University of Richmond netters here Saturday afternoon at 2:30 in the second of a five game season card scheduled by the locals.

The Buccaneer netters who bowed to a mighty Michigan State team nine to nothing here Monday will be seeking their first win.

Coach Jim Johnson's boys settled down to hard practice this week after being hampered by bad weather and having to wait for the courts to be conditioned.

Keith Hudson will probably hold the number one spot for the locals in the Saturday afternoon match. John Heath will probably be in the number two spot; Bob Williams third, Art Holland fourth, Bill Hales fifth and Tody Thompson or Paul Hansell sixth.

It was reported last night that Ben Harrison and Charlie Bill Moya will both probably play for the locals, possibly in the number two doubles.

Robinson Gives Fans Big Show

Houston, Tex., April 1—(AP)—Jackie Robinson, the Brooklyn Dodgers' biggest box office attraction on the spring tour, is giving the fans their money's worth.

The agile Negro second baseman has never looked better since he broke into organized baseball three seasons ago. His batting average is tops on the club and he has been improving it almost daily. In yesterday's 8-1 victory over San Antonio he collected a double and two singles in five trips to the plate, knocked in two runs, scored once and stole a base.

Senators Take Weird Victory

Orlando, Fla., April 1—(AP)—The game-wary Washington Senators take a rest today after a weird 10-9 victory over the Cincinnati Reds yesterday in which bases on balls proved mightier than the home run.

The Reds got four homers, but the 10 walks given Senators resulted in enough runs to win the game, played at Tampa. The Senators' early lead was melting fast under the impact of the Reds' circuit clouting, but Manager Joe Kuhel was forced to grin at the advice shouted from a press box fan: "Freeze the ball."

Badminton Play Starts Tonight

Chapel Hill, N.C., April 1—(AP)—The southern badminton tournament opens here tonight. Championships will emerge Sunday.

Defending Champion Martha Bass of Chattanooga, Tenn., is seeded first in ladies singles. A former champion, Julia Pickens of Charlotte is No. 2.

Last year's men's champion, John Ager of Atlanta, is not defending.

Pimlico 'Death' Bill Is Scratched

Annapolis, Md., April 1—(AP)—A scheme to scuttle old Pimlico turned out as an also ran today after the governor of Maryland unexpectedly pulled the reins a little before the finish line.

Gov. William Preston Lane, Jr. changed his mind yesterday and withdrew his support of legislation to ditch the 78-year-old Pimlico Oval and move its racing program to Laurel.

That killed the controversial bill. And the more sentimental followers of the breed could sigh and smile at the knowledge that old hilltop would be operating as usual this year, next year and probably many to come.

By the time the night was over both the Maryland house and senate had voted overwhelmingly to scratch the consolidation plan, which had been put forth by the State Racing Commission in conjunction with the Maryland Jockey Club, operators of both Pimlico and Laurel.

The governor's change of heart, which he attributed mainly to the "strong objection" of Baltimore racing fans to the scheme, brought an end to one of the hottest under-cover struggles the Maryland legislature has ever seen.

Lobbyists on both sides of the issue included some of the state's top political leaders. Operators of Bowie track in southern Maryland spearheaded the opposition, arguing that the merger would concentrate too much racing in southern Maryland and too much power in the Maryland Jockey Club.

Crowned Champs Of Intramural Basketball Loop

The Service Men's Home basketballers were crowned champions of the East Carolina Teachers College intramural basketball league by virtue of a 38 to 31 victory over the Elizabeth City entry in the finals of the tournament held in Wright gymnasium this week.

Trailing throughout most of the game, the winners rallied in the closing minutes to take the lead with William Exum and Winfred "Wimpy" Johnson leading the way. Exum and Johnson scored 14 and eight points respectively for the winners.

B. B. Ricks scored high for the losers with 12 points to his credit.

Ike Williams, Kid Gavilan To Meet In 'Rubber' Bout

New York, April 1—(AP)—Trained to perfection and raring to go, lightweight champion Ike Williams and Kid Gavilan, the slick fighting machine from Cuba, will clash tonight in a ten-round non-title "rubber" bout in Madison Square Garden.

The two fights were so close that Williams and Gavilan were only two rounds apart in the officials tally for the 20 rounds. Williams received a total of 28 rounds, Gavilan 26 and six were marked even.

Tonight's fight is much more important. The winner will be in line for a possible outdoor title bout with welterweight champion Ray Robinson.

Dean-panned Ike is a 5 to 8 favorite. It's a heavy betting affair with plenty of money showing for both boxers.

The officials, who will be announced when the battlers climb into the ring at 10 p.m. (EST), will share the spotlight with the two contestants.

A sellout crowd of 18,000 is expected to contribute to a $80,000 gate for the boxing finale of the Garden's winter season.

Williams, his right shoulder fully cured of the injury which forced a postponement of match, figures to come in at 138 pounds. Gavilan has been aiming to hit 146. The Cuban flash outwitted the Trenton, N.J. Negro champ, 14 1/2 to 13 1/2 the first time they met in Feb. 1948, and 14 1/2 to 14 1/2 last Jan. 28.

Hard-punching Ike won the first bout by unanimous decision, with votes of 5-4-1 and 6-4. Gavilan evened the count on a split decision, 5-4-1, 5-4-1, 4-4-2. Referee Ruby Goldstein, who handled both bouts, voted for the draw the second time.

Louisville, Ky. — (AP) — Maine Chance Farm, winner of the 1947 Derby with Jet Pilot, has nominated four horses for the May 7 running. They are Mr. Busher, Irish Wit, Superb Command and The Poet. The Poet is a son of Fensive, 1944 Derby winner, while Mr. Busher was sired by War Admiral, 1937 winner.

Expect Decision Today On Two Banned Players

New York, April 1—(AP)—A federal judge was expected to rule today on a court order which would restore Max Lanier and Fred Martin to the good graces of organized baseball.

The two former St. Louis Cardinal pitchers were banned from baseball for five years in 1946 for jumping to the Mexican League.

They sought a temporary injunction lifting the ban and sued baseball for $2,500,000 damages. The suit is pending.

Judge Edward A. Conger has studied briefs in the injunction proceedings for a week.

Today's decision if handed down, probably will be appealed. John L. Flynn, attorney for the players, said he would go immediately to the Circuit Court of Appeals if the ruling was not favorable to Martin and Lanier. He said he understood Mark Hughes, attorney for baseball, planned a similar course.

Hogan On Train, Heading Home

El Paso, Tex., April 1—(AP)—Plucky little Ben Hogan was on a train today heading for home.

He'll be back on the links again some day, he says.

The national golf pace setter until an automobile accident last Feb. 2 laid him low, Hogan walked the length of a Pullman car last night when he boarded the train here.

He posed for photographers and beamed at the prospects of returning to the new Hogan residence in Fort Worth. He is due to arrive late this afternoon.

Chapter 13
"What about Fenton?" asked Raff.
"How did he get along with Bray?"
"All right, I guess," answered Ellen. "They really didn't have very much in common. Fenton is sort of a religious fanatic and he used to get pretty shocked at Bray's swearing. But there was no bad feeling there. Fenton is such a mouse he couldn't harbor an intense feeling such as hate. And as for actually killing anything—well, my heavens, he thinks it's horrifying even to kill earthworms for laboratory work."

"How did Fenton get along with Hubbard?"
"He pretty much kept out of Hubbard's way, although Dr. Hubbard used to go in Fenton's office quite often to have a cigarette. He did it just to annoy Fenton, I'm sure. He knew Fenton had religious scruples against smoking, so every time he wanted a cigarette, into Fenton's office he would go. Not that I really minded, to be truthful. Dr. Hubbard used to smoke some special brand of Egyptian cigarettes—I can't remember the name—but the smoke was terrible. It smelled like burning rugs and the odor would linger for hours."

"But Dr. Hubbard developed an allergy to them and had to give up smoking entirely."
Raff was staring at her intently as she spoke. When she finished he said, "Let's go upstairs. I have to call the hospital and then I want to take a quick look at Hubbard's office."

They walked into the building as the noon gong sounded. Upstairs, the corridor and offices were already quiet after the lunch-hour exodus.

Ellen excused herself and went down the hall to the room next door to Bray's office. When she returned, Raff had already made his telephone call.

"I've got to get right back to the hospital now," he said, "but the autopsy report is ready. Bray received a hypo of potassium cyanide in the dorsal lumbar region around midnight last night. And another finding," he added slowly, "was that the hypo in the left arm was inserted after death."

For a moment Ellen didn't say a word. Then she quickly turned her back on Raff and stared out the window for a long minute. When she turned around again she was rubbing her eyes hard. When she spoke, the words came out in a rush.

"So it's true! It's an awful hateful thing. But why? He was one of the nicest people in this world.
Why would somebody murder him?
He wouldn't have hurt anybody.
Why did they have to kill him?"

Raff started to say something and then changed his mind. Instead he said gently, "I'm afraid the police will have to be notified."
Ellen's shoulders sagged. "They'll turn up that old story—the very thing Dr. Bray tried so hard to prevent. And now he's dead and he can't do anything about it,"
she said dully.

"Don't feel that you're letting him down. It's the only thing that we can do."
"But listen," she looked up at him eagerly. "Supposing we could find out who did it, by ourselves, and turned him over to the police, then they wouldn't have to come here and ask a lot of questions and all that."

"I'm afraid this is too big a job.
It requires more effort and more time than either of us can give.
As it is, I should be back at the hospital right now."

"Couldn't you wait a few days before you called the police?" she begged. "Meanwhile, perhaps I can turn something up. Don't you honestly think that his wife and child deserve some kind of break?"

He didn't say anything for a while. He was thinking that he did not see anything to Bray's family.
He was thinking that if he had gone over to see Bray last night as Bray had wanted, maybe Bray would not be dead now. But then—he shook his head slowly.

"I'd like to spare Bray's family as much as you. But you don't seem to realize that a murder has been committed. This isn't just one of those little things like being blackballed in a sorority. There's a really dangerous person around here. I'm not so sure it would be wise to go snooping around."

She bit her lip. "Okay. Okay.
You're probably right. I guess I'm just a dope. All my life I've found that people are afraid to stick their necks out for things they believe are right. It's unwise. It wouldn't be expedient. I've got my own position to think of, of course. . . . at cetera. Goodness knows, I should be used to such arguments by now."

She turned to go out the door.
"Good-bye, Dr. Rafferty," she called to him. "You'd better get back to your hospital."

"Hey, wait a minute." He reached her in three long strides.
"Listen." He jerked her chin up with his hand so that she had to face him. "I just don't want to see you getting hurt, that's all."

"Thank you." She pushed his hand away. "Maybe I'm a funny person, but there are some things that are even more important to me than getting hurt."

He glanced at her. The muscles in his jaw were working rapidly.
"All right," he said. "I'll tell you what I'll do. This is Friday. I'll wait until Monday. And if we have no clue by then I'll have to call the police. Fair enough?"

"In the meantime," he said very emphatically, "I don't want you to do anything that will make the murderer suspicious of you — no questions—no snooping—no nothing. Understand?"

"That's fine," she said sarcastically. "How are we going to find out anything? By mental telepathy?"
"Never mind. I'll handle it. Right now I've got to get back to the hospital. But I'll pick you up for dinner tonight. We'll try to map out some plan then. How would six-thirty be?"

"Fine. You can pick me up at my apartment. It's the Normandie."
"Well. And keep out of trouble until then, see?"

"Right." He checked dimpled. "I'm leaving right now, mister."
"How about a lift?"
"You can drop me off at the Union Cafeteria. It's on the way."
"Incidentally," Raff said, "I noticed that the door to Hubbard's office was locked."

"It always is."
"Do you have a key?"
"No. Nobody but Dr. Hubbard had
one. Why?"
"That may complicate matters."
"Well, don't worry about it. I think I can get the key easily

Begin Trial For Ghastly Murder

Horsham, Eng., April 1—(AP)—Debonair John George Haigh went on trial here today, accused of the ghastly gun-and-acid murder of a rich widow. The prosecution said he had confessed.

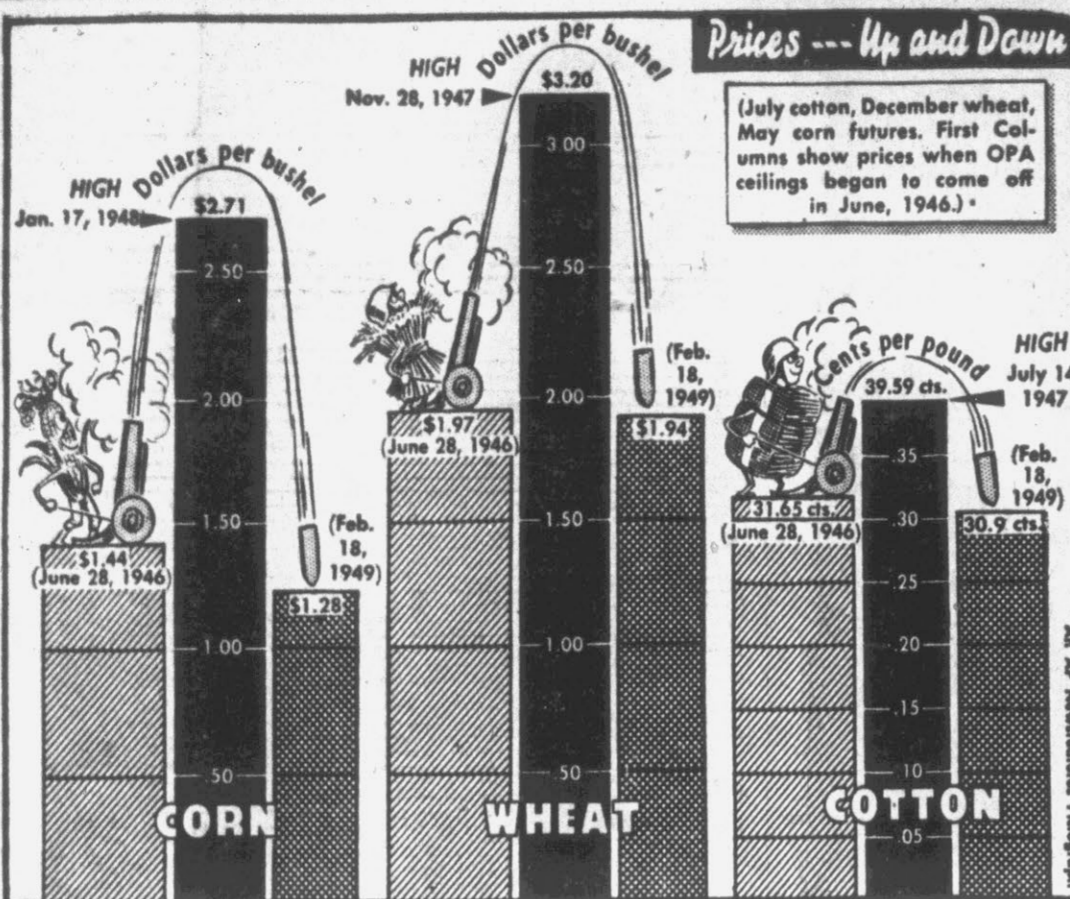

Opening the crown's case, Prosecutor E. G. Robey said the 39-year-old factory operator admitted he shot Mrs. Olive Durand-Deacon through the head last Feb. 18, then dissolved her body in acid.

The prosecutor said Haigh bragged to police that "Mrs. Durand-Deacon no longer exists. She has disappeared completely. x x x How can you prove murder if there is no body?"

"The accused was wrong," Robey added, describing bits of acid seared flesh found in a secluded factory yard.

Slick haired Haigh smiled as he was led into the tiny courtroom for start of the trial. The court in the three-century-old town hall was taxed to accommodate 70 spectators and 50 newsmen.

Scotland Yard detectives, investigating the case, found evidence in a moldy old London basement that five other persons had been slain and their bodies destroyed similarly by a killer who they believed slipped the blood of at least one victim. They did not file charges against anybody in connection with those cases.

Money-Lending Business For Gov't Opposed

Washington, April 1—(AP)—The Hoover commission today asked Congress to put the government out of the money-lending business and eliminate 30 federal agencies by merger or liquidation.

The group's report on "federal business enterprises" was so snarled by dissenting opinions that on one subject—public power—it could offer no recommendation which had majority support.

But a majority urged that the reconstruction finance corporation, the big source of federal credit in war and depression, be reorganized into a mere guarantor of private bank loans.

"Waste and favoritism" and "even corruption" are invited when the government makes direct loans to firms

Highway Patrol Organizer Dies Following Illness

Raleigh, N.C., April 1—(AP)—Major Charles D. Farmer, who organized North Carolina's Highway Patrol in 1929, died here today.

Farmer commanded the patrol for many years and was its chief communications officer at the time of his death.

He had been ill about two weeks. The death brought a statement from L. C. Rosser, State Motor Vehicles director under whom the patrol operates.

"In the death of Major Charles D. Farmer, the Department of Motor Vehicles and the state have lost a loyal and devoted officer," said Rosser.

Offers Refunds To Home Buyers

Greensboro, April 1—(AP)—Letters have been mailed to 65 purchasers of homes in the Kirkwood section newly developed residential area, by W. H. Weaver, contractor notifying them that they are to receive refunds ranging from approximately $65 to $80 because the homes were not weather stripped when he built them.

Weaver, it was reported, voluntarily agreed to make the refunds in a conference with officials of the Office of the Housing Expediter at a conference held here about two weeks ago.

Adjourn Criminal Term Court Today

It was indicated today that Judge R. Hunt Parker of Roanoke Rapids would adjourn the criminal term of Superior Court this afternoon. The docket has been considerably reduced.

The trial of Bennie and Lloyd Ray Daniels, Negro youths, for the alleged murder of William Benjamin O'Neal, taxicab driver, was continued until the next term of court. The court appointed Attorneys Arthur B. Corey and William W. Speight as counsel for the defendants.

Seeks Big Cut In Federal Spending

Washington, April 1—(AP)—Senator Taft (R-Ohio) offered his proposed $3,000,000,000 slash in federal spending today as the answer to President Truman's argument that a federal deficit would hurt more than a tax boost.

Taft, who heads the senate GOP Policy committee, commented: "If we can cut 10 per cent out of most of these appropriation bills that are coming along we can save $3,000,000,000 and have a comfortable surplus of more than $2,000,000,000 to apply on the debt."

Mr. Truman has predicted that the government will run $873,000,000 in the red in the year beginning next July 1, unless taxes are increased. His warning that such a deficit would do more damage than higher taxes came at his news conference yesterday.

But Taft contended this would be only a "book deficit." To put on new taxes in a time of falling prices would do more harm than good, the Ohioan added.

Senator Russell (D-Ga.) said he's so worried by the Mammoth national debt that, in addition to cutting down appropriations, he would be willing to vote for more taxes if he could be certain the money would go to retire the debt.

Senator Brewster (R-Me.) said he supports that Taft-George stand against slapping any new taxes on individuals and business.

"Apparently the President is the only person in the country who doesn't know that the boom is over and the problem now is how to keep from going bust," the Maine senator commented.

Meanwhile, Taft claimed in an article in Fortune magazine that if Mr. Truman's program were carried out in full it "would soon bring a federal tax burden of $60,000,000,000."

Churchill's ...

sia a menace. And he urged the western nations to form a United front against their big Communist neighbor.

That speech startled a lot of people. It came right after the war, at a time when there was still hope of getting along with Russia.

Slowly, as relations with Russia grew worse, the things Churchill called for three years ago have come to pass.

For in those three years this country, to solidify the west and keep allies, has set up the Marshall plan and now is entering the Atlantic pact.

The spirit of the whole west toward Russia in three years has grown as hard as Winston Churchill's feelings in 1946.

So with the things he urged three years ago already done, or being done there wasn't much left for him to say last night unless he called for war.

Instead, he said "we need not abandon hope or patience. Many favorable processes are on foot."

Under the impact of Communism, he said, all the free nations are being welded together as never before.

But he warned against "appeasement of Tyranny and wrong-doing in any form."

This is a hard attitude but a realistic one, for Churchill has never been a man of pleasant words in time of danger.
