Fineless Week To Be Observed At Public Library

"Overdues" are a problem at every library that cause the librarian and staff many a headache. In the midst of selecting books for the library, cataloging and making records of those acquired, aiding the public in selecting and finding books, the librarian must take time out to collect from the public the ones that the borrowers are reluctant to return.

The vast majority are returned on time or only a few days beyond the specified time, but some are not and become "overdues" in library language. Notices are mailed to these borrowers as a routine practice to serve as a reminder, but these do not always bring the lost and strayed back to the fold.

In spite of the headaches caused by the problem the librarian does not feel that keeping a book overdue is to be classed with the "seven deadly sins." She has at some time in life been on the other side of the circulation desk and has had your problems. On the other hand, the library operates for the benefit of all and books kept beyond the allotted time means that others are deprived of their use.

Our library year will end with June and we are anxious to have our records cleared of overdue and lost books. Let's make a real effort to find any charged to you, bring them back and have your record cleared. We know that it sometimes takes quite an effort to locate a missing book. Friends borrow them, children misplace them and at times only spring housecleaning will bring them to light.

The week of May 30-June 4 will be observed as "Fineless Week." During that week a special effort will be made to collect books and no fines will be charged on a book returned that week. Please cooperate and give others a chance to read the books you have liked.

Birth Announcement: Lt. and Mrs. F. K. Tomlinson, Jr., of Cherry Point, announce the birth of a son, Francis King Tomlinson, III, on May 26.

Mrs. Tomlinson is the former Miss Frances Willard of Greenville.

Greenville Has One Of The State's Best Rescue Vehicles

Emergency Truck Proved Its Value Again And Again

Well-Equipped Life-Saving Vehicle Already Has Bright Service Record

By CHESTER WALSH
The Greenville fire department's first aid and life saving truck proved its value as a community asset when the firemen used it to save the life of James Lee Brockett, three year-old Negro child, who had fallen into an uncovered well on the Alex Gray farm several days before Christmas, 1947.

The child's mother missed the youngster and found him in the shallow well. With aid from neighbors, and a rake, the submerged boy was pulled to the surface and then a neighbor, lying prone on the ground reached down and lifted him from the water.

A message was phoned to Dr. J. A. Battle, Negro physician. He promptly urged that the fire department's new life-saving truck be called. The firemen responded in a hurry. Using the life-saving equipment, they worked over the unconscious boy for an hour and a half. He showed signs of life during the tense period and finally rallied. Wrapped in a blanket, the boy was taken to Pitt General Hospital. He developed pneumonia, but recovered.

James Lee Brockett had been in the well many minutes when he was rescued.

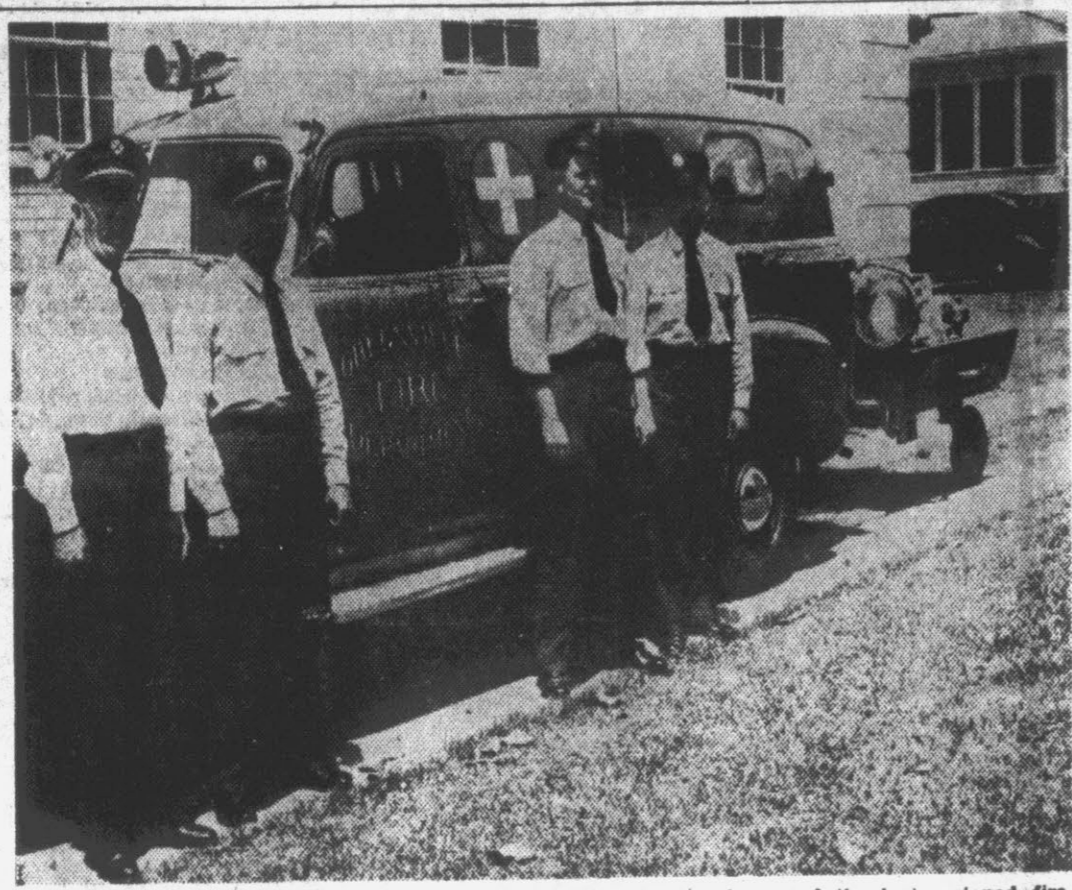

Two days later—Christmas Eve—Fire Chief George Gardner and other members of the department played Santa Claus to the child with toys and confections.

The firemen have performed numerous other heroic rescue deeds since then with life-saving equipment on the truck. All paid firemen have been trained by Ellis Fyall of Atlanta, Ga., a Red Cross specialist in first aid and life-saving.

Greenville's emergency rescue truck was the first to be installed in North Carolina. Funds for its purchase and life-saving equipment were provided by public subscription. The firemen work in cooperation with a physician. Other equipment includes a resuscitator, or pulmotor, which pumps air into a victim's lungs. It also is equipped with an oxygen mask (for heart attacks), an "iron lung" which is motor operated either by current from a motor vehicle battery or from 110-volt electricity from house wiring.

The truck has first aid kits, a supply of splints, blankets, rubber and regular sheets, an electric megaphone, spot and flood lights and is equipped with two-way radio.

In addition the Greenville fire department has a trailer, with gasoline motor for operating flood and spot lights and for acetylene cutting and welding and other life-saving equipment. The emergency truck is especially equipped for use in drownings, Chief Gardner said.

The above photo shows the fire department's emergency rescue truck, one of the best equipped fire department vehicles in the state. It carries all modern facilities for rescue work and life-saving. It has an "iron lung," pulmotor, or resuscitator, oxygen tanks and tent and it really is a mobile hospital. Firemen who serve on the truck are all Red Cross trained in first aid and rescue work. Standing by the truck, near the fire department, are Fire Chief George Gardner, Capt. A. B. Sumrell, Harold Smith and L. E. Nethercutt.

Special services rendered by the Fire Department's emergency truck include the following:

In May, 1948, the firemen recovered the body of a white boy who was drowned in Tar River near Grimsland.

In September, 1948, the firemen removed R. E. (Buss) Parker, a city electrical worker from a pole near a tobacco factory after he had contacted a heavy-voltage transmission wire and administered first aid which probably saved Parker's life. The firemen used their extension ladder from a truck to remove the stricken man from a transformer platform on the pole. Parker was so seriously injured that he continues to take treatments at Duke Hospital, the fire chief said.

The Greenville emergency rescue truck answered a call from Dr. Cecil Garrenton of Bethel for the oxygen tent for use on an 83-year-old patient stricken with a heart attack and saved a life.

The truck answered a call to Wicliard's Beach last year and loaned its equipment for trying to recover two bodies from Pamlico river.

When Norman Smith received a fractured skull in a motor vehicle collision at Dickinson and Columbia avenues last year, the fire department's rescue truck gave him first aid and transported him to a hospital.

The firemen, with their life-saving equipment, carried an oxygen tent to Dr. Garrenton in Bethel to help save the life of a Robersonville patient suffering with asthma.

The rescue truck was called when Tom Eason, 19, of Farmville was fatally injured in a wreck between Farmville and Snow Hill last year. It rendered service which probably saved the life of J. P. Freeman, elderly Farmville man who was injured by a hit-and-run motorist on Tar River bridge last January. The firemen carried their "iron lung" to a hospital here last February and it helped to save a life.

In April of this year the truck proved its value when it assisted in caring for a patient who had taken poison.

The firemen loaned their floodlights to searchers for the body of Jesse Ray Hunter, Negro youth, in Contentnea Creek near Grifton recently. The body was recovered.

Last Saturday the Greenville rescue truck sent equipment to Tar river, near Pactolus when two men were drowned when their boat capsized. Clyde Murchison, Negro, and Cagney Williams, farmers, were the victims. A third occupant of the boat clung to the craft until it drifted to shallow water and he was rescued.

Fire Chief George Gardner attended a meeting at Greensboro last Sunday, at which fire departments from eight North Carolina towns and cities made plans for organizing emergency rescue units at all fire departments in the state.

The above photo shows Capt. A. B. Sumrell at the rear of the Fire Department's emergency rescue truck. The vehicle has thoroughly modern equipment for rescue work and administering first aid and it has complete ambulance facilities and equipment. Greenville firemen have used it on numerous occasions and they are credited with saving many lives. The truck is equipped with two-way radio, generating equipment for providing current for flood and spot lights.

Fast Progress Seen In Construction Of New Community Hospital In Pitt

February Saw Start Of Work And Builders Of 120-Bed Hospital Believe Project Already Ahead Of Schedule; Quick-Sand Slowed Work

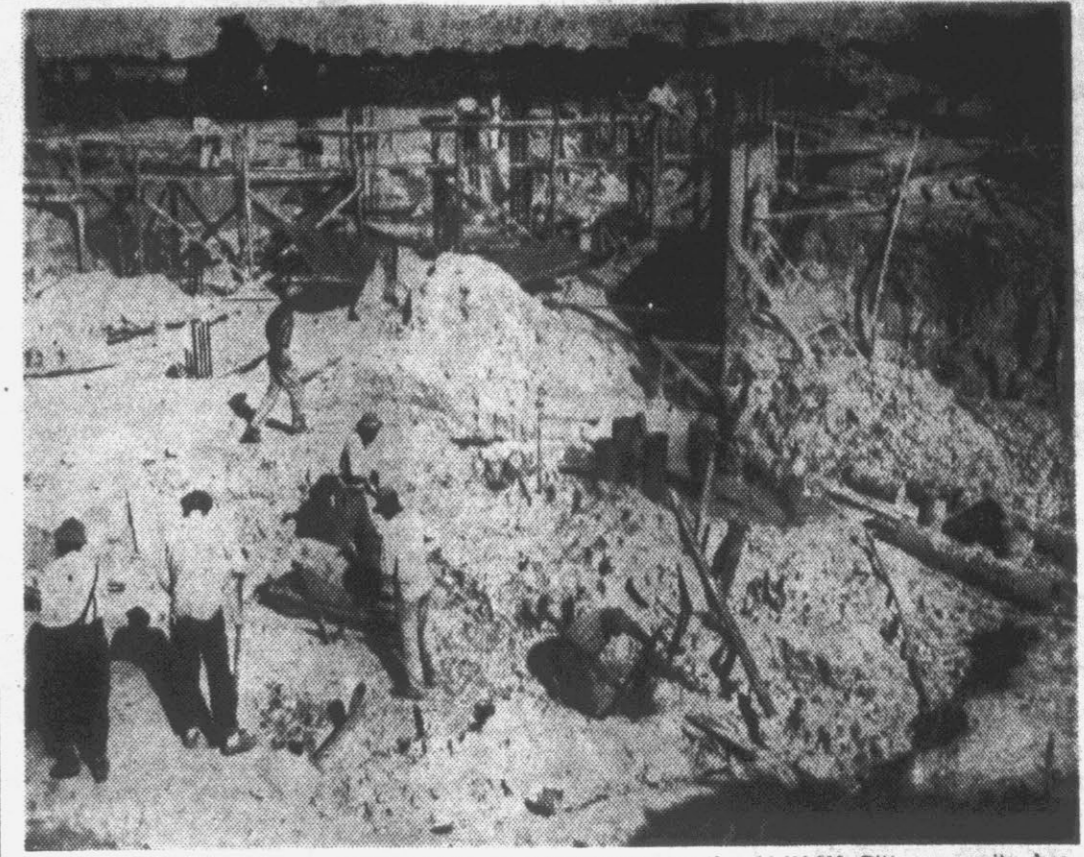

Interested spectators from practically every section of Pitt county have gathered almost daily for the past three months at the site of the new Pitt community hospital to watch construction progress on the project which will afford the county a $1,400,000 physical plant in which to care for its sick.

Since work actually began on the hospital in February when bulldozers removed the dirt in the excavation, progress on the large building has been rapid. Asked this week if work is ahead or behind schedule on the hospital, Assistant Superintendent W. L. Burkett stated, "If anything we are a little bit ahead of schedule. I don't expect it to take the 540 days allowed us to complete the building. We expect to start pouring the first concrete floor slabs in about three weeks."

Visitors at the hospital site are numerous, and according to Burkett, many are inquisitive and want to get into the excavation where the work actually is going on. "We appreciate visitors, but we don't appreciate them in the hole," he commented.

The 120-bed hospital is being constructed by the McCoy-Heiger construction company of Greenville, South Carolina, and is the largest hospital financed by local, state and federal funds under construction in North Carolina at the present time. B. F. Phillips is superintendent of the local project for the construction company, W. L. Burkett, assistant superintendent, and D. F. Jordan is engineer for the project.

Concrete Piles
After the excavation of the vast area upon which the hospital will rest, the first task was the construction of approximately 325 concrete piles which range in depth from 35 feet to 50 feet below the ground surface. The piles were constructed by the Raymond Concrete Pile company and contain approximately by 13,000 linear feet of concrete. It took the company five weeks to complete construction of the piles which are 10 inches in diameter and increase one inch in diameter in every eight feet in height.

The piles will hold the entire weight of the building, and none of the weight of the structure will be on the natural ground, Burkett said.

Quick Sand
The greatest problem the builders have run into in the construction of the hospital, according to the assistant superintendent, is quick sand which has slowed operations on certain portions of the building. The quick sand, Burkett said, has caused quite a bit of annoyance and some delay. The sinking dirt, he said, was hit 12 to 15 feet below the ground surface in constructing the foundations for the chimney and the elevator shaft, and it is expected to be encountered in laying the foundation for the lamp pit.

The fact that the quick sand has been encountered, Burkett emphasized, does not mean it will have any ill effects on the building, because the entire structure will have its weight on the piles which are firmly seated in the rock far below the ground surface. "The quick sand will have no effect on the building because the building is supported on piles. No part of the building will be supported on regular ground," Burkett explained.

Foundation Walls
About one-third of the foundation walls, which range from three feet to 13 1/2 feet above the piles have been poured. Approximately 115 cubic yards of concrete already have been poured to form the foundation walls under the main entrance and other parts of the building. In all, Burkett estimated, 4,500 cubic yards of concrete will be used in the construction of the hospital, and all the concrete will be reinforced with steel. When the building is completed, the concrete in it will weigh something over 11 million pounds.

Really Two Buildings
The large hospital actually will be two separate buildings set one and one-half inches apart and tied together with a small copper strip known as a "fin." The idea behind the type of construction is to insure that if one portion of the building settles—which is not likely, Burkett repeated—the other part will not be affected. Small steel plates will be placed on the concrete floors of the hospital to join together the two buildings.

High School Forensic League Chapter Puts Emphasis On Speech Activities

By ROY HARDEE
Speech activities and debates no longer take the back seat in Greenville high school—not since the organization of the Greenville chapter of the National Forensic League, under the direction of R. B. Starling.

The Greenville high school chapter of the National Forensic League, which is now one of the district and national leaders, was granted a charter on May 25, 1948. At that time the club membership numbered five, and it now has grown to an all time high of 100 members and degrees.

Not only is Greenville one of the largest clubs in the nation, but it can boast of two outstanding student leaders who rank as national leaders for their work in the N.F.L.

Rodney Fulcher was selected as one of the ten outstanding freshmen in the nation. He made this list by virtue of his work in debating and original oratory while in his first year in Greenville high school. "The Rostrom," official magazine of the clubs, published a feature story about Fulcher in an early issue this year. In his debating and speaking, Fulcher has piled up a total of 300 points in his two years as a member of the club. In the last ten rounds of debating in which he has taken part, he has lost only one round, and that was in the state finals, when the Greenville affirmative debaters lost to the state winners from Roxboro high school.

Frederick Brooks, who is well known in the eastern part of the state as a debater and orator, is now listed as one of the top student leaders in the nation, as he has received credit for over 600 points in N.F.L. competition.

This year the Greenville club has sponsored two new N.F.L. clubs in two other towns. Charters have been granted to Kinston and Winterville, which now have active clubs.

For the past three years a radio program has been given over station WGTC each week, sponsored by the local N.F.L. chapter. These radio programs bring the happenings of the high school both in sports and from the classroom into the living room of every family in town.

This year a student congress was held in the City Hall in Greenville, which gave the students a chance to put into practice their knowledge of law making, prior to the district congress which was held in Asheville in January.

A speech tournament brought representatives from 30 schools to Greenville to take part in the annual affair.

In addition to these local contests, a delegation of debaters and orators went to Johnson City Tennessee to attend the four-state District tournament.

2nd row—Peggy Joyce Barrow, Peggy Williams, Peggy Bowen, Anne Dunn, Dot Whitley, Teresa Saieed, Augusta Overton, Carolyn Whitehurst.
3rd row—Dot Wilson, Barbara Clement, Frances Bendall, Betty Sue Harris, Fred Sutton, Ralph Smiley, Alice Foley Jones.
4th row—Anne McQuary, Sue Lassiter, Katherine Clark, Suggie Sugg.
5th row—R. B. Starling, Rufus Stark, Ray Sears, Mitchell Saieed and Carl Worsley.

have debated in the school and have taken on schools from the county.

There is no plan for speech work in the Greenville high school except through the N.F.L.

The purpose of the Forensic Club is to stimulate interest in public speech work in the school. A student may gain credit toward membership by giving prepared speeches, debating, and other phases of public speaking. A student gets one point per appearance as a speaker and must have a total of 30 points before becoming eligible for membership in the club. As the student advances in club standing, he receives higher degrees and a seal to be placed on his membership card showing his position in the club. At 50 points a degree of merit is given at 100 points, a degree of excellence, and the highest award possible for a student is the degree of distinction. At the present time six members of the local chapter hold this degree of distinction. They are Rodney Fulcher, Betty Ann Young, Frederick Brooks, Roy Hardee, Louise Batson, and Sam Northrop.

The club holds two regular club meetings each month, and at the meetings plans are made for the coming events which the club is sponsoring.

The officers for the year are president, Frederick Brooks; vice president, Betty Ann Young and Roy Hardee; treasurer, R. W. Tyson, and recording secretary, Louise Batson, point secretary, Rodney Fulcher.

The sponsor for the local club is R. B. Starling, history teacher at Greenville high school. Before Mr. Starling took a part in the formation of the N.F.L., the high school did not have a speech program in any form or shape. Under his guidance the club has grown to be one of the largest in the nation. In the coming years speech work will play even a larger part in the everyday life of the student, as long as the National Forensic League and R. B. Starling stay in Greenville high school.

The officers for the year are president, Frederick Brooks; vice president, Betty Ann Young and Roy Hardee; treasurer, R. W. Tyson, and recording secretary, Louise Batson, point secretary, Rodney Fulcher.

Strength FOR THE DAY

THE INVISIBLE WINGS

In his book, "The Gathering Storm," Winston Churchill tells how after the elections of 1935, Prime Minister Baldwin unceremoniously dropped him out of the government. In this way the Prime Minister repaid certain pacifists for their support, and great was the mockery of the press over Churchill's reversal. "But now," writes Churchill, "one can see how lucky I was. Over me beat the invisible wings."

More often than we realize the invisible wings beat over us. We go have guardian angels, else the whole testimony of the Word of God is invalid. There is a destiny which shapes our ends, though how they come we may not know. There is a purpose in the universe. Men scurry around like ants performing tasks which seem to them important, but which are no more important to high heaven than are the activities of the ants to us. God broods over all. He has his place for every man and woman, every boy and girl. Sometimes it is a place of greatness; always it is a place of significance. The picture of the world's life is marred and incomplete everytime an individual departs from God's will and goes his own way. God has arranged a pattern of perfection in which we have a part.

We are foolish if we put any confidence in luck. Over us beat the invisible wings; let us never forget that.

FIGURES—One of the most confusing factors in voter consideration of the pending school and road bond issues is apparent conflict in purportedly "official" figures offered by proponents and opponents. This confusion exists to some degree in the school building phase, but especially with respect to school bus mileage. Major L. P. McLendon made a radio speech in behalf of the bonds Wednesday, and one paragraph in the News & Observer account of the speech reads: "Today, the state's 5,500 school buses each operate an average of 37 miles per day, McLendon said, with an average of 25.9 miles of this stretch on unpaved roads."

CONFLICT—That would indicate total bus mileage, as distinguished from road mileage, of 203,500 miles a day with 162,250 miles of it (or exactly 79%) on unpaved roads. A few months ago Charles Ross compiled figures which were written into the bond act as basis for distribution of the money to counties, which are in conflict with those offered by McLendon. Ross found that school buses use 41,814.79 miles of public roads, of which 27,481.25 miles are unpaved. That is 65.5% of the total mileage, instead of 70%. Furthermore, Ross showed that only 7,719.83 miles of road used by two or more buses are unpaved. That is 18.5% of the road mileage used by school buses.

DUPLICATION—To get 203,500 bus miles out of 41,815 road miles means an average of nearly five one-way bus trips for each mile of road. To get 162,250 bus miles on 27,481 unpaved road miles would require about six one-way bus trips a day; but the Ross figures have 20,000 miles used by only one bus which means two one-way or one round-trip a day. Both the Ross figures, accepted by the general assembly, and the McLendon figures, published by bond advocates, may be wrong. Both cannot be right. Hence the confusion. Much the same situation is found in conflicting claims about amount of money available for road work during the next four years. The two figures most frequently used of $250,000,000 and $290,000,000 may both be wrong, both can't be right.

RUMORS—Besides these official sponsored conflicting statistics, the air is full of rumors. When Capitol square newsmen attempt to run down the rumors they usually find that routine activities have been exaggerated and given unusual significance because of the pending bond election. One of the high way patrolmen in the state was summoned to Fayetteville for a meeting and were told to vote YES on June 4 and to send in to headquarters immediately a report that they had so voted. That was a tough one. One patrol officer said he understood a meeting of Troop 2 was held at Fayetteville as routine procedure in getting as many patrolmen together once in awhile as could be spared from the highways for purpose of discussing policy and planning work. He thought the bond issues might have been mentioned, but wasn't sure.

FACTS—Then Capt. C. A. Speed, head of Troop 2 which has headquarters at Fayetteville, was reached by phone. He said he knew nothing of any meeting at Fayetteville this week, that he had not called a Troop conference since he took over the captaincy several weeks ago. He was at Lumberton on the day the Fayetteville meeting was alleged to have been held. Purpose of the Lumberton conference was to try to do something about the heavy traffic accident and fatality rate in that district. Capt. Speed said if the bond issue was mentioned he didn't hear it. He added that so far as he knew no patrol meeting had been held anywhere in the state about the bonds.

ACTIVE—Meantime state officials generally is very active in behalf of the bond issues. Governor Scott is the major domo ramrodding personality. He has been joined by practically all the appointive state officers and most of the elective. Word has filtered down that a vote for the bond issues won't hurt any state employees, but rumors of threats and pressure from the top cannot be confirmed by investigation.

Boyle's Column

By HAL BOYLE

New York (AP)—Now would you like to be 34 years old and realize you weren't making as much money as you did at 67?

Wendell Holmes is in this position. He is one of the better-known voices from the void that come out of your radio box.

And his career is a good example of the hardships in radio acting, a field in which many feel themselves called—but few hear themselves chosen. For to many golden voices radio offers a pewter reward.

"There are about 5,000 radio actors here," said Holmes. "A week last year they averaged $18 a week salary. Only about 300 manage to earn a truckdriver's living."

Holmes, an ex-Child Chautauqua star, is now among the top 15 radio actors whose incomes reach several hundred dollars a week. But it took him 15 years to get there. And many were hungry years.

"When I started in 1934 I got $20 a week for working on 30 shows," he said wryly.

Since then Holmes has been the voice of Winston Churchill on a number of radio programs and a number of time films. He is currently in three daytime soap opera serials. He also plays Dr. Watson on the NBS Sherlock Holmes program and also enacts the title role in another NBS production, Scattergood Baines.

"So far I haven't been introduced on the air as Scattergood's good," he said with a mild shudder. But it's a tongue-slip someone's bound to make eventually.

Holmes was named after poet Oliver Wendell Holmes by his school-teacher parents. At the age of 6 he won an oratorical contest in Middleport, O., and a Chautauqua scout signed him up.

"For the next four years I got $500 a week or more," he recalled. "That about equal to me, as I've never been able to equal it since."

Somebody Told Me...

By I. J. (JACK) EDWARDS, JR.

Last week this column carried a three-day series on alcoholism and the organization which has done most to cure the disease, Alcoholics Anonymous.

After the second installment I received an anonymous telephone call from a person who told me that bringing the problem of alcoholism to the public eye is a good idea. But the real purpose of the call was to let me know that there is a Post Office box number in New Bern for those desiring help from AA to use for contacting the organization. The caller volunteered to call me later and give me the number.

Yesterday at lunch time my phone rang, and it was the same voice. It said, "The box number in New Bern is 112. Those desiring help should write just to the box and not address their letters to Alcoholics Anonymous."

"May I ask if you are a member?" I questioned.

The answer was evasive, "I'm an interested party."

Those of you who are particularly interested in this problem probably noticed a news item in the Reflector last week which stated that AA will have an open meeting in the old USO building in Morehead City Sunday night, June 5. Three important speakers who are members of AA will tell of their experiences in combating the disease. The public is invited.

In writing a column of this type it's sometimes difficult to decide how much space to spend on a certain topic. My greatest coverage so far has been on alcoholism, and no doubt many of you who have no particular interest in the problem have found the items dull. But the logic behind the decision to run the series is this: If one chronic drinker has become aware of the opportunity to get help, and consequently gets well, every inch of the space has been worthwhile.

"The Reader's Digest" has the largest circulation of any magazine in the world ("Life" is second, "Ladies Home Journal" third), but even so it's possible that some of you missed this anecdote, which is worth a repeat any day.

"My father was sitting on the porch of our little village store when two strangers drove up. 'Hey there, one of them called out, 'how long has this town been dead?'

"Father looked at them over the rims of his spectacles. 'Well, not long, I guess. You're the first buzzards I've seen.'"

And I thank you.

best shopping results are discussed from all angles in the booklet, published by the National Education Study of the Consumer Association of Secondary-School Principals. Contending that most folks in the past have had to improve their shopping efficiency through the "school of hard knocks," the booklet attempts to reduce those knocks by analyzing some 15 "operations" involved in shopping.

These units, says Thomas H. Briggs, director of the Consumer Education Study, are "intended to help young people become more intelligent, more effective, and more conscientious consumers in the economic system in which they live." They deal with such topics as pre-shopping planning, inspecting goods and labels, making use of advertising and using price as a measure of value. Suggestions concerning choosing the time and place for buying, securing adjustments when necessary, and paying the bill, are also presented in the booklet.

"Undoubtedly," Dr. Briggs says, "more had buying results from insufficient forethought and from muddled thinking than from any other cause. And great amounts of shopping time and energy are wasted for the same reason. Nothing is quite so essential to good shopping as knowing precisely what you want."

By and large, shoppers with a strong urge to get a lot for their money do most of their business with "cash on the barrel head." However, it points out that this does not prove that shoppers necessarily should buy for cash.

This is the theory put forth in "Effective Shopping," a new booklet prepared for use in the nation's high schools as a practical guide to everyday habits of shopping.

THE SILENT FIELD

Since the noise of battle died away there is hardly a sound to break the silence.

The men who come here to lay wreaths on the graves never speak. Only the birds seem oblivious to the spell; and their song is a hymn of peace.

But sometimes, when your heart is full, you'd swear you heard voices, the voices of men you fought with . . . and left behind.

There's no use breaking the stillness of this silent field to answer those voices.

The way to answer them is to make this the kind of world they wanted it to be. And to bring this about, we must strengthen Christianity as the chief requirement of a successful democratic way of life. For this reason, we must all support our churches and take an active part in their development and growth.

The world "they" prayed for, lived for, died for, can be won. Sunday is another D-Day.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . .
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Greenies Shutout Jays, 5-0, Behind Three-Hit Effort By Art Mascarella

Locals Held 1-0 Lead Going Into Seventh When Gillespie Sets Off Uprising With Circuit Clout

By BERT MOYE
Manager Pappy Williams' Greenville Greenies shut out the Roanoke Rapids Jays here last night 5 to 0 for their fourth consecutive win over the Jays this season and the second straight whitewashing job.

The Greenies scored a run in the first frame when Pitcher Duke Maas passed the first four Greenville men to face him—Strausser, Tepedino, Gillespie and Chute.

In the seventh frame the Greenies exploded for four runs on four walks, a homer, a double and an outfield fly. Mascarella and Tepedino walked and then Pete Gillespie slammed a ball over the scoreboard in the left field to clear the bases. Charlie Chute walked. Pappy Williams doubled. Mauney was given an intentional pass to first, leading to a long ball to right on the out.

Art Mascarella held the Jays to three and struck out seven men in gaining his second win of the season. He has suffered five defeats this season.

Duke Maas, on the mound for the Jays, received his third setback of the year and his second to the Greenies this season. Although he pitched three-hit ball for the seven frames he worked, he issued a total of 13 walks, and saved himself from a lot more runs by striking out seven men. However, the three hits which he did allow included a three-run homer by Pete Gillespie and Mascarella, all by extra bases.

During the contest the Greenies had a total of 10 men stranded on the bases, while the Jays had five left on. No Jay was successful in base stealing but one was caught in the attempt. Steve Denier stole the only base for the Greenies while Paul Strausser was caught stealing in the second inning.

The Greenies journey over to Roanoke Rapids to play a return game with the Jays in Simmons Park there tonight and tomorrow they play a double-header against the New Bern Bears with the first game starting at 1:30 p.m.

Olympia Brings His Campaign To Jersey Stakes

Camden, N. J., May 28—(AP)—Olympia brings his campaign for the three-year old turf championship to Garden State Park today with his staying powers the big question in the $50,000 added Jersey stakes.

Although Fred W. Hooper's son of Heliopolis has seven 1949 stakes to his credit, he has yet to show he can carry his vaunted speed over a mile and one-quarter—the distance of the Jersey.

Olympia tried it in the Kentucky Derby as the favorite but wound up sixth after burning the track for a mile. And then last Saturday in his first start since the Derby, the Hooper colt ran off with the withers mile at Belmont Park.

University Has Quit Big-Time Sports Events

Lebanon, Tenn., May 28.—(AP)—Cumberland University, one of the South's pioneers in football, has abandoned intercollegiate athletics.

The board of trustees and the athletic committee voted yesterday to step out of college competition and devote the time and money to intramural sports.

The university has been a member of the Volunteer State Athletic Conference since the league was formed three years ago.

In recent years Cumberland has been far more noted for its law school graduates than its football teams, but the little university at one time was a leader among the small southern colleges.

Varney Signed

Catcher Sid Varney of Carolina, who batted .358 in the big four this season, and was named to the all-Southern Conference team, will join the Greenville Greenies next Friday, according to an announcement yesterday from Business Manager John Adams.

Varney is scheduled to catch for the Greenies Sunday in a double-header against New Bern but will not report for regular duty until next Friday.

He was one of Carolina's leading hitters throughout the season and placed fourth in Big Four hitting Varney shared the home run crown in the Big Four with three others. He hit for the circuit twice. He also shared the lead in doubles.

Toss-Up Seen In Atlanta Program

Atlanta, May 28.—(AP)—Georgia Tech's Grane Field will be the scene of the South's first inter-conference track and field meet tonight.

The 15-event program will embrace competitors from Southeastern Conference colleges and nine from Southern conference.

On the basis of recent performances most observers consider the meet a toss up. Especially keen competition is expected in the sprints, mile and two-mile runs, shot put, javelin, high and broad jumps.

Among the top events will be the mile and two-mile races. Representing the SEC will be Auburn's Whitney Overton, an Olympic man, whose best time has been 4:24.3 for the mile and 9:27.8 for two miles.

Overton will face Julian Mackenzie of North Carolina, who ran the mile in 4:17.1 and Sam Magill, also of North Carolina, whose time of 9:27.8 set a new Southern conference record last week.

Overton's two-mile time at Birmingham last week was 9:58.1. Sprinter Bill Alexion of Maryland, who ran the 100-yard dash in 9.9 seconds last week will have to be at his peak to compete favorably with Tulane's Paul Benz, who was clocked for the same event last Saturday at 10.2 despite a strong wind.

Couldn't Cross Own Home Plate Against Indians

Cleveland, May 28.—(AP)—The Chicago White Sox could not cross their own home plate in Cleveland Stadium last night as the Cleveland Indians won a night game 4-0.

The plate was sent to Indian President Bill Veech by Frank Lane, general manager of the Sox, after the Tribe was shut out in a double-header in Chicago two weeks ago.

Last night, in pre-game ceremonies, groundskeepers installed the "gift" home plate. The Sox could only top their bats on it as Al Benton set them down with six scattered singles.

Durham's Track Team Is Favored

Chapel Hill, N. C., May 28.—(AP)—Defending champion Durham high was favored to retain its state high school track title in the annual meet here today.

The Bulldogs fielded another well-balanced squad and looked like the class of the meet which drew 13 schools.

Gastonia Keeps Double-A Title

Wilmington, N. C., May 28.—(AP)—Gastonia High is still champion of North Carolina's class AA baseballers.

Outhit, 9-6, by Wilmington here last night, the Westerners bunched their bingles to advantage and took advantage of seven errors to win their fourth straight crown.

Lefty Bob Gardner's mound task was made easier by a three-run spree in the eighth that sewed up the game 7-1.

Swimming Pool To Open June 1

The Greenville swimming pool will open in the afternoons from 4 to 6 beginning June 1, Manager Bill Kittrell announced today.

The pool will be on the afternoon schedule from June 1 until the city schools are dismissed for the summer vacation, after which the pool will be open on an all-day schedule.

Brooklynites And Yankees Now Hottest Teams In Game

The Yankee southpaw blanked the second-place Philadelphia A's with six hits, 3-0. It was the seventh Yankee victory in their last eight starts all at the stadium.

Tommy Henrich eased Lopat's task with a two-run homer off Joe Coleman in the first inning. Yogi Berra added the other Yankee run with his fifth homer in the fourth. Between homers, Coleman struck out seven.

Cleveland started its season again with a mock "reopening day" and got off on the right side of the ledger with a 4-0 whitewash of the Chicago White Sox. Everybody went through the motions of re-starting the season because of the Tribe's sorry showing, losing 10 of their last 12 before last night.

Al Benton, purchased from Sacramento in April, did a better job than Bobby Feller did on the real opening day. Benton, 38-year-old Detroit castoff, threw a six-hitter. Detroit returned home from a poor eastern trip to break a six game losing streak with a 3-4 edge over St. Louis. Despite Virgil Trucks' eighth homer, Virgil Trucks squeaked home with his sixth victory. He struck out eight men, seven in the first four innings.

Rain washed out a scheduled night game between Washington and Boston.

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
The Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees are the hottest teams in baseball as the pennant racers swing past the quarter pole.

At the end of the first six weeks of the 24-week major league season, the Dodgers are tied with the defending Boston Braves for the National lead. The Yankees enjoy a solid 4½ game edge in the American.

It took the youthful Brooks a time to get rolling but they sizzled through the west on their first long road trip. Back home at Ebbets Field last night, they moved up even with the Braves by beating the Boston ace, Johnny Sain, 4-0.

Preacher Roe, a not-so-youthful Dodger, turned in his second straight shutout with the help of a four-run seventh inning against Sain who struck out nine.

The Brooks had a battle on their hands with Sain before nothing their eighth win in the last 10 games. It was 10 until the seventh when Gene Hermanski, who hits Sain like he owns him, blooped a single to start a rally. A sacrifice and Carl Furillo's single scored Hermanski. A walk and Al Dar's error loaded the bases before Spider Jorgensen came through with a three-run double.

Poor pitching—a familiar ailment—cost the New York Giants a chance to take over the lead. Clint Hartung failed to get past the third inning as the Phillies clubbed five Giant throwers for 14 hits and a 9-3 victory.

Al Brazie and Eddie Kazak double-teamed the Pittsburgh Pirates to clinch a 2-1 St. Louis decision. Brazie scattered nine Pirate hits and Kazak hit a homer off Murry Dickson with a man on base to account for all the Card scores.

Dickson, who beat the Cards the first time he faced his former mates April 27, suffered his sixth straight setback and seventh of the season. Johnny Schmitz made it a clean sweep for the southpaws in the National by pitching the Chicago Cubs to a 3-1 edge over Cincinnati. Emil Verban was the big wheel for the Bruins with a double and two singles.

Eddie Lopat, top pitcher in the American, continued to reverse his normal spring form with a fifth straight victory. Usually Ed doesn't start to win until hot weather time.

Don Juans, Orioles And Lovers Capture Contests

By ROY HARDEE
The Don Juans came from behind to overcome a 9-1 lead held by the Orioles to take a 13-9 decision in a game played yesterday in the Softball League at the Greenville high school.

Five Don Juan pitchers saw action before Capt. Sam Northrop pitched scoreless ball to hold the Orioles to two hits in four innings of play.

The Orioles took a commanding lead in the bottom of the first inning as they collected four runs. Conway walked, Jordan singled, and Perry walked to load the bases. Richard Joyner batted out a mighty triple to clear the sacks and then scored as a fielder errored.

In the top of the second inning Carawan swatted a double and scored by a double by Brewer.

Five consecutive bases on balls sent the score to 6-1 and loaded the bases, with none out. Eddie Farley singled to bring home two more tallies. A single by Moss brought Farley home from third.

A timely base hit by Kent Lee started the top of the third frame. Lee scored as James Harvey Ward rapped a pitch for a triple into center field. Horace Carawan batted out his second double of the day to bring Ward home.

In the top of the fourth, Ward knocked out his second straight triple to score Watson. Sheller and Tighman, who had singled to load the bases.

The Don Juans wrapped up the ball game in the fifth as they came from behind to push across 7 runs and make the score 13-9.

Ben Robinson collected his first hit of the game to start the rally. Sam Northrop then sent a long triple into the trees to score Robinson. A single, walk and a homerun by Kent Lee sent in four more tallies.

Ward got his third straight hit of the game with a double. Carawan and Northrop reached base on errors to score the last three runs of the game.

Winning pitcher, Northrop; losing pitcher, Jordan.

In the second game played yesterday, the Lovers went into the lead as they romped over the hapless Cardinals 16-4. The Lovers collected a total of 20 hits in their victory.

The Cards scored three runs in the bottom of the first frame to take an early lead. The first runs were made on errors. Quinn led the Cards at bat with two hits in three trips to the plate.

In the first of the third, the Lovers poured on the power as they rapped out five runs. Haynes got four hits in six trips to the plate for the winners to take the batting honors for the day.

In the top of the sixth Farley, Nobles and Ayers singled and scored on a triple hit by Haynes.

The Lovers hit freely they added three more runs in the top of the seventh on singles by Farley, Ayers, Moore and Dallas Clark. Lovers 16 0 0 0 3 4 3
Cards 4 0 0 1 0 0 0
Winning pitcher, Farley, losing pitcher, Crawford.

In the third game played in the intramural league yesterday the Orioles took the Giants, led by William McLawhorn 9-3.

The Orioles reached Pitcher McLawhorn for only six hits but errors accounted for most of the runs given up by the team. The Orioles scored one tally in the top of the second on an error, base hit and two bases on balls.

Billy Jordan led off the top of the fifth frame for the Giants with a single, followed by an error and a two-base hit by Joyner which brought in two runs. Joyner scored on two outfield flies. A double by Walter Goor sent Wooten home in the bottom of the fifth to give the Giants one run.

A home run by Walter Perry in the sixth put the Orioles ahead 7-1 as Wilson and Conway scored on the play.

In the seventh the Giants gained two more runs on an error, a walk, fielder's choice and a double by Conway.

In the seventh the Giants tried to get back into the ball game as they sent across two runs, but to no avail.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 28.—(AP)—Indianapolis motor speedway's race car standards were obsolete today.

Going into the final seven-hour session of qualification runs for the Memorial Day 500-mile race, the field had averaged nearly 127 miles an hour.

The speedway's minimum requirement for a "500" starter is 115 mph.

A trial run of 125 mph looked shaky today as a dozen cars set out to bump other entries from the 33-car starting lineup. Only six of the earlier qualifiers were under 126 but pilots were looking around for other cars.

The bumping process started yesterday. Six cars qualified, filling the lineup. Then George Fonder, midget racing star from Lansdale, Pa., took a 10-mile test in the late George Robson's 1946 winner at 127.289 mph. That eliminated Pat Flaherty, Los Angeles, who had qualified a Grancor V-8 special at 120.846 mph.

Fonder will be competing in the race for the first time. So will Johnny McDowell, Los Angeles, who qualified an Iddings special at 126.139, and Norman Houser, Indianapolis, who did 127.746 in a Troy oil special.

Other qualifiers yesterday were Bill Sheffler, Los Angeles, 128.521; Charles Van Acker, South Bend, 126.524; Sam Hanks, Los Angeles, 127.809; and Travis (Spider) Webb, Bell, Calif., 127.002.

Hank Greenberg Is Still Convinced Babe Ruth Hit Ball Hardest Of All

Cleveland, May 27.—(AP)—Hank Greenberg is a polite listener to Raves about the current crop of one ball hitters, but he still says: "No one could hit 'em like the Babe."

Greenberg, a current executive for the Cleveland Indians and the same guy who smashed 58 homers for Detroit in 1938 said he doubts if recent homers by the Tribe's Larry Doby in New York and Washington are the longest ever hit.

"Statements to that effect are easy to make but impossible to prove," said the Indians vice-President. "I don't pretend to know the longest distance a home run ever traveled, but I do know there never has anybody who hit them as far as Ruth did."

"Don't be too quick to believe that anyone is hitting the ball the way Ruth hit it. x x x I know. When I was playing first against him, I always was happy to move back on the grass. He'd kill you with a bouncer if you tried to stay anywhere near the base."

Chapter 3

Along the road which led from the Crown ranch to the town of Cougar swept a buckboard. On the seat, reins wrapped about her small hands, sat Connie King. Connie was nineteen and as pretty as a prairie rose. The fact that she was heir to the richest cattle ranch in the state had spoiled her no more than had the school for young ladies which she had attended; she still managed to retain the freshness and level-eyed honesty which was her Western heritage.

The road followed the middle of a broad valley in which grazed many thousands of Crown cattle. Along the fringes of the valley were the shadows of squatters, who, like jackals around the lair of the lion, had gathered to snatch what crumbs they could. Many a fat yearling bearing the Crown brand had fallen victim to their greedy loops and had moved by devious trails far back into the hills.

Just where they went no man would openly say; but Chuck Gale owned a ranch in the far reaches of the northern slopes where visitors were not welcomed, and even the tolerant and easy-going Jeb King could find a logical answer to the question. But mere conjecture is not sufficient to warrant an accusation of cattle theft, so Chuck and his hard bitten crew rode back and forth to Cougar, and Chuck himself Crown ranch house.

The buckboard swept around a bend, rising to the two outside wheels as it took the turn. Expertly the horseman turned his horse in her direction and put him to a loose. Connie was aware of a feeling of relief.

She noticed the rider and her first impression was that he deserved no more than one glance. He was not handsome, and his hair needed cutting. Just another squatter, when he was only fifty feet away. Connie looked at him again, and saw details which she had missed at first glance. To begin with, he was clean. His range clothing was well worn, but neat and spotless; his tanned face shone; his boots were scuffed but freshly polished. His face was somber to the point of dourness, but there was a quiet assurance about his bearing that impressed her despite his prejudice against squatters.

He rode up, halted the sorrel with a gentle rein, and quietly raised his hat. "Good morning, Miss King. Looks like you're having a little trouble."

Connie stood up, indicating the wheel with a wave of her hand.

"I looked for the nut but couldn't find it, and there isn't even a piece of balding wire handy."

He nodded gravely and turned the sorrel. He walked him to the point where the axle had first dug into the ground, pulled up for a moment to consider, then moved slowly on, bent in the saddle to scan the ground. Fifty feet farther on he reined in, leaned over and picked up the missing nut. He rode back and dismounted.

"Rolled into a little hollow," he explained. "That's why you couldn't see it from the road."

He raised the axle, and she noticed the bulge of his smooth muscles beneath the dark coat. She slipped the wheel on and he lowered the buckboard. With pliers taken from his saddlebags, he tightened the nut as best he could.

"That ought to hold until you get to Cougar. You can stop at the blacksmith shop and have it tightened with a wrench." He stepped back and raised his hat.

Connie smiled a thin smile. "Thank you," she said.

He returned her smile and Connie was guilty of an impolite stare. That smile changed his whole appearance; it was as though the sun had suddenly popped from behind a cloud. The somberness vanished; he appeared almost boyish.

Connie lingered. "You're a homesteader?" She just couldn't say squatter.

"Yes'm. Filed on a quarter-section at the foot of the hills." He made a little motion toward the slope behind him. "Trying to raise a few purebred cattle. I'm on my way to Cougar to meet the stage. My brother's coming on it. He's a lawyer." He said it proudly.

"Really?" said Connie, and unfastened the reins. "Going to settle in Cougar?"

"I sure hope so."

She nodded and smiled again. "Then perhaps I'll have the pleasure of meeting him some time. Thank you again, Mister?"

"Tyler, Jeff Tyler."

"I'm glad you happened along, Mr. Tyler. Goodbye."

She didn't look back, but she knew that Jeff Tyler was trailing her to be on hand if she shed the wheel again.

Nine-Day Vigil By Small Dog Is Puzzle To Town

Asheville, N.C., May 27—(AP)—The ceaseless, nine-day vigil of a small Boston bulldog on a French Broad River sandbar has investigators today at wit's end.

The dog has paced the 50-foot long sand spit, whining and barking every minute, and occasionally venturing into the water. Residents of the Crazy community first noticed her a week ago yesterday. She fled at the approach of people, but returned when they retreated. So constant has been her vigil that she has worn a tiny path through coarse grass edging the bar. Occasionally she leaps into the water, swims about, then swims ashore.

Sheriff Laurence Brown said there is no evidence of a dropped fishing pole, an overturned boat, or unclaimed clothes or shoes. And there's no report of missing persons.

The English language is spoken today by more than 270 million people, of whom more than half are Americans.

'Little Red Schoolhouses' In U. S. Still Number Over 75,000

Washington. (AP)—In many isolated communities but the existence of 75,000 one-teacher schools is not justified because of geographic conditions or any other reason.

"The state with the largest number of one-teacher schools is not as might be expected, one of the more sparsely settled states but the relatively densely populated state of Illinois, which reports 6,778 one-teacher schools," the report says.

"Iowa, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska and Wisconsin have over 4,000 one-teacher schools each. In contrast, Utah reports only 28 such schools and Rhode Island 26."

Discussing recommendations by the National Commission on School District Reorganization, the report says the commission offers these rules:

1. Enrollment in kindergarten and grades one to six should not be fewer than 175 pupils with seven teachers.
2. Junior and senior high school enrollment should not be fewer than 300 pupils with 12 teachers.
3. Elementary pupils should not be required to travel more than 45 minutes and high school pupils not more than an hour each day between home and school.

The council says there is evidence a good education program cannot be offered in high schools of less than 100 pupils expect at excessive cost, if at all.

And yet there are 9,000 high schools with fewer than 100 pupils. Among these 9,000, there are 3,750 with fewer than 50 pupils.

The council says many states have a high percentage of districts too small to meet any reasonable standard of operating efficiency. What is worse, many have laws that actually encourage districts too small for economy or good education programs.

The report says it unquestionably is necessary to provide small schools

Charlotte Man Heads Merchants

At the annual banquet session of the North Carolina Merchants Association convention in Charlotte May 22-24, Congressman Harold D. Coolidge, chairman of the Agricultural Committee of the U. S. House of Representatives, stressed the importance of agriculture "as the basic foundation of our civilization" and asked merchants to help in working out a solution for the complex problems which agriculture faces. "If you let the prices of agricultural commodities decrease, along with them will go the prices of industrial commodities, and then you can expect unemployment and an economic tailspin," he said.

He spoke of the national debt of more than 280 billion dollars, a debt which must be paid, reminding that if citizens of the country lose faith in their government's currency and credit, there will come repudiation of both public and private obligations, and then, likely, some form of government "alien to the ancient institutions of this land." He declared this can never happen because the courage of the American people will not let it happen.

T. M. Driskill of Charlotte was elected president of the North Carolina Merchants Association to succeed J. M. Carroll of Asheville, with Jacob Winstead of Rocky Mount as vice-president; W. S. Wolfe of Mount Airy, second vice-president; and Willard L. Dowell, executive vice-president.

The Greenville Merchants Association was well represented, having 13 delegates. They were Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Blount, B. D. Johnston, C. Heber Forbes, Mrs. Clara Gower, Mrs. Lena Tyson, Mrs. F. G. Copeland, L. S. Garris, Mrs. Marie Cox, Curtis Perkins, Joseph Proctor, Walter Harrington and Mrs. Cora S. Powell.

Quints Celebrate 15th Anniversary

Oakland, Ont., May 26—(AP)—The Dionne quintuplets are 15 years old today—intelligent, unspooled little girls.

They plan a happy family celebration with their parents, Oliva and Elvira Dionne, and the other children of the family. Sunday they plan a party in honor of their father.

The girls, Annette, Emilie, Yvonne Cecile and Marie, still are disinterested in dates and fine clothing. None of them uses powder, rouge or other makeup.

"That will come soon enough," says sister Aimee Des Anges, head of their school. "We want them to stay little girls as long as they can."

They dress alike—usually in dark blue tunners with bright blouses—and are so amazingly similar in appearance that few can tell them apart, except for Marie. She wears glasses.

The girls go to school in the reconverted nursery built with money from movie, photo and magazine earnings, and royalties.

Although the school is on Dionne's property and they pay the bills, ten other neighborhood girls of similar age also attend it.

Army Offenders On Honor System

Fort Meade, Md., May 26—(AP)—Stone walls do not a prison make, and neither should fences, barbed wire, and armed guards for many young soldier offenders, the Second Army has decided.

The post has been trying out an honor system including work, training, and instruction instead of the old confinement.

It pronounced the experiment a success yesterday and said it was ready for adoption by other Army installations.

The plan went into effect with 68 soldiers formed into a rehabilitation training company, most of them first offenders.

Only their honor kept them from passing beyond a restricted area. Some are allowed to go to movies unguarded.

The idea was proposed by Maj. Gen. Edwin P. Parker, Jr., the provost marshal general. He observed that 41 per cent of Army prisoners are between 18 and 20 years, and 75 per cent of the offenses absence without leave.

Post Chaplain William S. Bolce, assisting in the rehabilitation program, termed it "intelligent in its application to the lives of the men and economical from the standpoint of the Army and the taxpayer."

much of the original Wagner Act. Taft told a reporter, however, that he thinks the Senate will come closer to accepting a substitute measure he has proposed which makes more than a score of changes in the present law but keeps most of its major provisions.

There was evidence that there may be enough Southern Democratic and Republican strength on this issue to overwhelm Administration forces. House action is uncertain.

Both houses of Congress—the House on March 7, the Senate yesterday—passed bills approving this.

There are a couple of very minor differences in the bills. Both houses are expected to iron them out quickly so the President can sign the whole thing into law.

contests, oral arithmetic quizzes, and other practical exhibitions and contests which the newspapers would feature. Furthermore, I would not limit this new attitude merely to the "practical" subjects which my business friends want. Let us also have contests in history, in science, in literature and the arts. Those who lead in these departments should also be featured.

What Jobs Are Now Available

During the past few years, the United States has been enjoying the greatest boom in its history. Everyone could get a job of some kind. But let me tell my readers that this rosy situation is beginning to come to an end. During the year ahead only those who are proficient in some line of work will get employment. Even common factory labor is gradually being eliminated by automobile machinery. Young people must be trained in something worthwhile to get decent jobs in 1951 and through the depression years to follow. In fact, today the Bureau of Labor Statistics, states that 50,000 Bachelors of Science will be graduated in 1951, when the replacement demand will be less than 10,000. The best opportunities will be for those who are studying nursing, dentistry, grade school teaching and machinery.

In closing, I do want to say a good word for the "4-H Clubs" of

Two Appointed To U.S. Savings, Loan League For Year

Dink James, President of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Greenville, and W. W. Lee, Secretary and Treasurer of the Home Building and Loan Association, received word today of their appointments to 1949 committees of the United States Savings and Loan League, the 87-year old nationwide trade organization of the savings association business. The appointments came from M. K. M. Murphy, Rutherford, New Jersey, President of the League.

Mr. James will serve on the Public Relations committee and Mr. Lee on the Personal Policies committee.

The committee on Public Relations studies new approaches possible in the development of public knowledge of the thrift and home ownership services of the associations. The Personnel committee's studies look toward the constant improvement of personnel in savings associations in terms of their ability to serve the public and in interpret the ideas of thrift and home ownership in an age which is beset with conflicting aims and economic theories.

our schools. These are doing excellent work and they are being generously featured by the newspapers. For this work the national, state and county agricultural agents largely deserve the credit. These clubs are systematically organized and supervised. Perhaps the solution of the businessman's problems is to have the U. S. Department of Commerce, or the Department of Education start Secretarial clubs, Arithmetic Clubs, and Spelling Clubs! The need is great—it must be met some way.
