Says N. C. Must 'Face Facts' On Budget Deficit

Frank Taylor Warns Revenue Prospects Already Below Planned Spending

Goldsboro, June 15 —(AP)— If North Carolina state revenue for general fund purposes should decline next year to the level of 1945-46 collection, the state may have a deficit of $49,000,000.

Frank Taylor of Goldsboro made that statement before the Goldsboro Rotary Club Tuesday night. Taylor was chairman of the House Appropriations Committee in the last general assembly. He served on the Advisory Budget Commission the past two years and is a member of the new budget study group by virtue of his chairmanship.

Taylor urged that the state face the facts. "I pray that never again will our state have the spectacle of teachers and other state workers being paid in script or not paid," he said in expressing the opinion that the recent general assembly should have declined to provide for spending more money than it provided from revenue sources.

Even if revenue should meet estimates by the Budget Bureau, North Carolina faces an apparent deficit of $6,000,000 next year.

This deficit would amount to approximately $20,000,000 in the general fund if some $14,000,000 had not been appropriated from previous surpluses or other sources, he said.

Taylor suggested four possibilities toward balancing the budget:

- 1. An upturn in general business conditions.
2. For the governor, acting under his authority as director of the budget, to order a reduction in the budget and in salaries paid state workers.
3. A special session of the legislature to consider the threat to the state's credit.
4. Wait for the next regular general assembly to work out the problem.

The state must find new sources of revenue or increase taxes if the demands of the people for expanding services are to be met, he declared.

Operators Fear One-Man Rule By Coal 'Czar'

Washington, June 15 —(AP)— The Senate Banking Committee voted unanimously today to investigate a proposal to set up a coordinator or chief negotiator for a large segment of the northern coal producing industry.

Senator Maybank (D-NC), the committee chairman, said the inquiry will get under way Monday. It will be conducted by a small business subcommittee.

In agreeing to conduct an investigation, the full committee approved a resolution offered by Senator Robertson (D-Va.).

Robertson told reporters some coal operators are "fearful" that the plan to set up a "czar," as Robertson put it, would lead to "the same type of monopolistic control now exercised, and apparently by the authority of law, over the miners."

A Wide - Open Assault

Communist Bloc Quarrel Becomes Too Serious To Be Kept Under Cover; Russia Said Ready To Take Direct Action Against Yugoslavia; Economic Attack

By DeWITT MacKENZIE

For a change we apparently are about to witness a wide-open fight in the eastern European Communist bloc to settle a family quarrel which finally has become too serious to be kept under cover.

Russia is reliably reported about to take heavy direct action against politically rebellious Yugoslavia, headed by tough and independent Marshal Tito. Moscow and its other satellite states are said to be prepared to launch a great offensive against Yugoslavia to inflict "economic strangulation" on that Premier Balkan state.

This drastic program is said to have been laid down at a meeting of the Cominform, or General staff for world revolution) which has been meeting in Poland, July 1 is the date said to have been fixed for the opening of the grand offensive.

The trouble, between Moscow and Yugoslavia is that this Balkan state is fiercely nationalistic and Tito is emphasizing this spirit. That of course contravenes the Communist code, which maintains that Sovereignty rests in Moscow. Belgrade has refused to surrender her Sovereignty. Yugoslavia was expelled from the Cominform a year ago, after her government was accused of a policy hateful to Russia and of other deviations from Marxist-Leninist theory. Tito himself was roundly castigated.

Tough Luck, Pard

Cowboy Dennie Blair, a sturdy four-year-old, sits sadly on his front step in Omaha, Neb., as he relates "how the varmint got away." Dennie, decked out in full cowboy regalia, was sheriff of his town when he was five. He is now a "secret" cache of cap pistol ammunition. Then, said Dennie, the tempter snatched his boots right off his feet and ran. Dennie's cap pistol marksmanship notwithstanding, "I tried to chase him in my bare feet," Dennie sobbed to his mother, "but I had to quit because I'm not allowed to cross the street." Scott Appoints College Trustees

Four New Six-Year Term Members On ECTC Board

Raleigh, N.C., June 15 —(AP)— Governor Kerr Scott yesterday appointed four new members to the Board of Trustees of East Carolina Teachers College for six-year terms, expiring June 30, 1955.

Appointed by Scott were Jane Hall of Greenville, reporter for the Raleigh News and Observer, succeeding Warren R. Williams of Sanford, R. J. White of Conway, an attorney, succeeding T. T. Hamilton of Wilmington, Charles F. Carroll of High Point, city superintendent of school, succeeding Thomas J. Hackney of Wilson, Janet Palmer of Hookerton, ECTC graduate, succeeding Mrs. J. C. Holland of Raleigh.

Two members of the State Banking Commission were appointed yesterday by Governor Scott, James R. Mckenzie of Laurinburg and Read R. Pickler of Albemarle received the position.

The appointments increased the commission's membership from seven to nine. This was authorized by the 1949 Legislature.

Quit Prison Job 'Due To Threats'

Raleigh, N.C., June 15 —(AP)— A former employe at Central prison asserted today he quit his job there because he had received reports "my life had been threatened" by prisoners.

Troy J. Dean, former superintendent of the prison print shop, said he quit his job following a strike of the 21 prisoners in the shop on June 6 because "no precautions whatsoever were taken" to protect him.

Protection Said Major Factor In AEC Expenses

Agency Argues Local And National Security Costs Boosted Spending

Washington, June 15 —(AP)— The atomic energy commission argued today that (1) local protection against a "deadly material" and (2) national security needs have dictated the skyrocketing cost of one of its installations.

Defending itself against charges of "waste and extravagance" leveled by Senator Hickenlooper, the agency said in a statement that a plutonium refiner at its Hanford, Mass., plant is indeed expensive but "of urgent importance to National defense."

The commission confirmed that the cost of the project, originally estimated at $6,255,000 probably will hit $25,000,000 by the time it is completed. It is being constructed by the General Electric Co.

The commission's formal statement was issued last night on the eve of a public hearing by the Senate-house atomic energy committee on Hickenlooper's charges. His position has been that the atomic energy commission failed to keep in touch with rising cost estimates. But the statement gave this version:

"Because of the urgency of the project, construction was begun as soon as the design was started. Drawings were put into construction immediately upon their individual completion.

"This involved much doing over and undoing which is typical of this emergency method of operation and was fully realized at the time."

Then, the atomic agency said, designs were changed in mid-construction for safety reasons.

"Plutonium is a deadly material. The General Electric Company and the commission have modified the design of this plant to assure safety not only of the workers engaged in processing the material in the plant but also of people and animals even at considerable distances from the plant."

Officials Delay Bus Line Action

City Hopeful It Won't Be Called On To Try Bus Business

Members of the Greenville utilities commission and board of aldermen last night discussed in a lengthy session the possibility of the utilities taking over the city bus line if it is not purchased by a private concern tomorrow, but no action on the matter was taken by the group.

Mayor J. H. Boyd, and Aldermen J. Edmund Waldrop, W. S. Stafford and Heber B. Tripp met with the utilities commission at its regular meeting.

During the discussion, the legal opinion to the group expressed the opinion that under the present statutes, the city would not be able to take over the bus line as a utility without a vote of the people.

Summing up the meeting, Mayor-elect W. S. Stafford commented, "There was no action taken, and nothing done officially, and nothing officially can be done about the matter by the city until after the state tomorrow."

Alderman J. Edmund Waldrop chairman of the committee appointed to work with the bus company, said this morning, "The city is hoping that someone will buy the bus company tomorrow and relieve the city of the responsibility, because we don't want to get into the bus business."

Dr. K. B. Pace, chairman of the city utilities commission, said, "The commission can not act on the matter without instructions from the board of aldermen, and there is practically nothing they can do about it until there is a vote of the people."

Officials of the Greenville Transit company, which operates the bus line within the city, recently announced that the buses have been operated at a loss for a period of time, and that the company would be sold for mortgages tomorrow. After the announcement was made by the company, a committee was appointed by the aldermen to work with the bus company, and the local Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association made a poll of the business places in Greenville to determine how many of the city's businessmen thought continued bus service in the city is necessary and desirable.

First Test For Poll Tax Repeal

Washington, June 15 —(AP)— Poll tax repeal legislation today faces the first of many stiff hurdles awaiting it in the 81st Congress.

Chairman Norton (D-NJ) called a meeting of the house administration committee to "vote up or down" a bill which would ban the poll tax as a requirement for voting in elections for federal officers. He predicted in advance that the committee would approve the bill "if enough members are present."

Business Experts Assail U.S. Trend

More than 140 business men and women of eight eastern North Carolina towns met in Greenville last night for a national affairs conference sponsored by the Greenville Chamber of Commerce and the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Principal speakers on the program were John Whittlesey of Washington, D.C., Chamber of Commerce of the United States, William J. Bird of Washington, D.C., national affairs advisor of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, and Edgar H. Cherry of Atlanta, assistant manager of the Southeastern Division of the national Chamber of Commerce.

The speakers pointed out that for almost two decades legislation passed by Congress has been favorable to labor, and unless the businessmen band together to fight legislation harmful to business, the trend toward left-wing legislation will continue.

Speaker John Whittlesey, however, commenting on the 81st Congress, asserted, "Labor so far in the 81st Congress has failed to get the kind of labor law they want." Whittlesey attributed the Administration's failure to get labor legislation through Congress to the fact that President Truman did not get Congress to work harmoniously on relatively uncontroversial issues before taking up the explosive civil rights and Taft-Hartley repeal.

Whittlesey said the labor acts of 1933 and 1940 caused labor to grow tremendously, but as labor grew in power it did not correspondingly grow in responsibility. It finally took the great strike year of 1946 to convince the public that there was a need for more fair and equitable legislation.

"You can count the accomplishments of the 81st Congress on one hand," Whittlesey told the businessmen and women, "and at the end of the session you can count them on the same hand. Labor legislation is indicative of the decline and fall of the 81st Congress" and of Truman's program of legislation. William J. Bird, national affairs advisor to the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, strongly urged the businessmen and women to take a more active part in determining the national affairs of the country, and told the group, "It is the discouraging truth that unless the businessman comes promptly forward with a specific and challenging program of action, the bureaucratic government planners and stragglers of freedom shall so harness business that freedom of enterprise shall perish from this nation."

Senate Probes In Head-On Clash

Dispute Between Groups Gives Hope To 23 Germans

Washington, June 15 —(AP)— An unusual dispute between two Senate investigating groups today promised new hope for 23 Germans sentenced to die for war crimes, including six involved in the Malmédy massacre.

During the day, Secretary of Army Gray is to get a formal request from the Senate's special investigating subcommittee to delay all executions ordered by U. S. war crime courts until the Army's inspector general has completed a new overall review.

The six Malmédy cases already have been held up by the Army Chairman Hoey (D-NC) disclosed late yesterday that the new request was agreed on at a closed-door session of the investigating group, which is part of the Senate Expenditures Committee.

The action came as a Senate Armed Services subcommittee, headed by Senator Baldwin (R-CO), was planning a special trip to Europe to round out its lengthy inquiry of Army conduct in the trial of Germans charged with taking part in the wartime massacre of American prisoners near Malmédy, Belgium.

Usually congressional committees are very cautious about moving into each other's fields. The apparent head-on clash in this case follows an earlier dispute between Baldwin and Senator McCarthy (R-Wis.).

McCarthy, a member of the Expenditures group, recently walked out of the Armed Services inquiry with a blast that it was a "white-wash" of Army methods.

Baldwin vigorously denied this and publicly reprimanded McCarthy for getting angry after McCarthy's proposal to use a lie-detector on Army interrogators was turned down. The investigators had denied accusations that they had used brutal methods in obtaining evidence for the Malmédy trials.

Homemade Beer Supply Gone, Prisoners Strike

Raleigh, June 15 —(AP)— They lost their homemade beer—and 40 prisoners went on a brief sit-down strike at Central Prison today.

They lazed about on their jobs in the sheet metal shop but took up their tools when Warden Joe Crawford promised to investigate their case.

The prisoners, Prison Director J. B. Moore said, complained because the man with the beer, Lifer William A. Cook of Cabarrus County was placed in solitary. A two-time lifer, J. H. Massey of Robeson County, also had been placed in solitary for cursing a guard.

The lifers were given the additional punishment yesterday. Their pals in the sheet metal shop started

Oppose Costs Of New Housing Bill

GOP And Dixie Demo Economy Advocates Gird For Scrap

Washington, June 15 —(AP)— A coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats, shouting for economy, lined up today against the big housing bill President Truman promised in his campaign.

The long deadlock on the measure was broken yesterday. The House Rules Committee, which killed similar legislation last year, voted 8 to 4 to clear it for immediate House action. The House decision was set for next week.

Republican Leader Martin, of Massachusetts, called a mass meeting of all House GOP members for late this afternoon, to plan a line of action. The House GOP Policy Committee already has taken a stand against the bill.

"The time is unfortunate," Martin told newsmen, "for any new legislation calling for huge government spending. It might mean new taxes and shove the nation into a depression."

"Only a very few people would be benefited and many would be put in peril, because of the threat to our financial stability. The decline in business in the last few weeks makes it more imperative than ever that we watch our spending."

A Southern Democrat, Rep. Cox of Georgia, declared "we are doing that which Russia so much desires. We are bankrupting the country." The bill calls for a vast program of slum clearance, low-rent public housing and farm housing aids. Estimates of the cost run from $40,000,000 to $19,000,000,000 over a 40-year period.

Secret Research Plant Explosion Kills Visitor

Richmond, Va., June 15 —(AP)— An air line failure apparently was the cause of the terrific explosion here yesterday at the closely guarded research plant of Experiment, Inc.

Dr. James M. Mullen II, head of the firm, said today.

A young chemical engineer, J. W. Saul, 26, died in the blast and fire in a 20 by 20 cinderblock building in which combustion studies on new type fuels for the armed service were being carried out.

Dr. John B. Fenn, vice-president who had just stepped out of the building, was injured by flying debris. He was not believed seriously hurt.

Saul, a recent engineering graduate, had come to Richmond from ed grumbling and all 40 were returned to their cells.

Today they weren't too enthused about leaving their cells but finally did. When they got to the shop inside the prison walls, they wouldn't work, Moore said.

An emergency call went out for highway patrolmen. About a score quickly responded but were not used to force the men to return to their jobs.

Moore said that Cook made the homemade beer from potato peelings, meal and sugar which he had appropriated. Only last week, a bucket of the "mash" was found on the heating pipes near the ceiling of a toilet.

Today's demonstration lasted about 30 minutes.

The head of the firm did not amplify explanation that a faulty air line was responsible for the explosion nor did he say what explosives were involved.

The firm, founded in 1945 by Mullen, did considerable research for the army and navy which a spokesman said was "highly classified." Some of its work was with the ram jet engine, the so-called "flying stovepipe" designed to reach ultimate speeds of 1,500 to 3,000 miles an hour.

Federal Budget Deficit Climbing Above Estimate

Prospects Now Of Over Billion-Dollar Deficit Looks For Fiscal Year

Washington, June 15 —(AP)— A budget deficit more than double the $600,000,000 forecast by President Truman now appears in the making for fiscal 1949 when it ends June 30.

Some officials said the seasonal spurt in income tax collections from quarterly payments falling due today will have to be impressive to hold the deficit as low as $1,200,000,000 or even $1,500,000,000.

With the government heading that deep into the red this year—after two consecutive years of surplus—there was some speculation today whether the President might take the occasion to renew his January request for a $4,000,000,000 tax increase.

The budget outlook has turned worse since Mr. Truman asked the tax increase to (1) overcome a deficit he estimated at $873,000,000 for the new fiscal year beginning July 1 (congressional staff estimators say this will be tripled in actual practice) and (2) to permit a substantial reduction in the $251,600,000 federal debt.

For expiring fiscal 1949, expenditures have been holding close to the pace of President Truman's January estimate of $40,180,000,000 which counted on an 18 per cent increase over fiscal 1948.

Revenue receipts, however, have been running almost 10 per cent below last year instead of the 6.2 per cent below that Mr. Truman anticipated in his estimate of a $39,580,000,000 total intake this year.

For that reason, the interim deficit—which means excess of spending over income to date—stood above $2,000,000,000 with less than three weeks left in the fiscal year.

Discuss Power Line Extension

REA Experts At Utilities Meet; Talk On Future Plans

Two representatives of the Rural Electrical Authority were present at the regular monthly meeting of the Greenville Utilities Commission last night to explain and answer questions concerning the proposed extension of rural power lines in this community.

D. D. Barber Jr., engineer of the North Carolina Rural Electrical Authority, explained at the meeting the technical problems of the project. Earl B. Patterson, field representative of the REA from Washington, D.C. related the federal requirements necessary to acquire a loan from the government.

A preliminary survey of the area serviced by the Greenville utilities plant is now being conducted and the reports from the survey must be accepted by the federal authorities of the REA before the project can be approved.

The commission here now has a balance of $212,000 of an original $300,000 loan granted to it in 1939 by the REA, and if the proposed project is approved, the commission plans to use as much of this remaining loan as necessary to extend rural lines in the area now being serviced by the Greenville utility plant, stated Larry Brown, office manager of the Greenville Utilities Commission.

According to Brown, the project will not be an extension of lines into far reaching communities but will be short tie-in power lines that will connect with the regular lines already in use in the area.

"Since the war," he said, "there has been a growing number of people in rural communities wanting electricity and this project will give it to them. We feel that it is our duty to give these people the privilege of using the assets we have."

Brown also stated that the bonds voted for this project are contrary to most municipal bonds in that they are strictly revenue bonds and that no tax can be levied to acquire money for payment of the bonds when they are come due.

"The commission is hoping to begin actual construction of the new lines as soon as the project is approved by the federal authorities and the local utilities commission," he said.

Stand In Rain To Get Free X-Rays

Large groups of people continued to stand in line waiting their turn to have a free chest x-ray, at one of the five x-ray units located in Pitt county.

At five-points many stood in line despite the rain, waiting their turn to be x-rayed.

To date a total of 8,845 citizens have been x-rayed. Yesterday 1255 x-rays were made by the five units in the county, and the unit located at Five points led the other four with over 504 people receiving x-rays.

The goal set for Pitt county is 30,000 x-rays for the five week period that the five mobile units will be in the county. The drive will close on July 8.

Denies Story Of Hoover Quitting

Clark Says Report Of Split With FBI Head Ridiculous

Washington, June 15 —(AP)— Attorney General Clark today described as "ridiculous" a report that J. Edgar Hoover had resigned as FBI chief.

Clark made this comment to a reporter on a copyright story published in the Washington Times-Herald. The newspaper said Hoover had resigned in a hot row with Clark after protesting against the attorney general's decision to let secret FBI reports be used in Judith Coplon's espionage trial here.

Asked about the story in the Times-Herald, Clark declared, "I am amazed that a reputable newspaper would go to such lengths as to conjure up a story like that." (Officials qualified to speak for the Times-Herald were not immediately available.)

A few minutes earlier, Press Secretary Charles G. Ross was asked by White House reporters if he had any comment on the report.

"It certainly is news to the White House," he said, "and I use the word news in the very broadest sense."

Asked if the White House had entered into the J. Edgar Hoover "controversy," Ross replied it had not.

Prior to Clark's and Ross' comment there had been no public word on the resignation report. Hoover himself was unavailable. The FBI had met all inquiries with a crisp "No comment."

Military Pay 'Extras'

It's The 'Extras' That Officers Of Armed Services Get In Addition To Regular Pay That Bothers Some Legislators; The Whole Story Not Told So Simply

By CLARKE BEACH

Washington—All those "extras" that the officers of the armed services get in addition to their regular pay are bothering some members of Congress.

A few legislators made a great issue of them during debate in the House of Representatives when the military pay raise bill was sent back to committee.

The truth is that the "extras" are very substantial and a flat statement of officers' relatively low basic pay does not tell the whole story. On the other hand, the value of the "extras" can be easily over-rated.

Give a Marine major's commission to a husky figment of your imagination. Make him 38, with 10 years in the service. Station him in Washington, where he supports a wife and two children.

"My base pay is $3,795 a year—$316.25 a month," he willingly replies when you ask him, since government pay is no secret. "I get $5,811 a year, when you include my allowances for quarters and subsistence. That's $105 a month for rent and $63 a month to buy food for the family."

"What about your extras?"

"The big item there is medical care. I get that and all my dental work free. The family gets medical care from the service, but no dental work. The regulations say dependents get both medical and dental care if available, but I've never

Atom Scientist Refuses To Tell If Friends 'Red'

Frank Oppenheimer Said Open To Contempt Charges But Action Unlikely

Washington, June 15 —(AP)— Atomic Scientist Frank Oppenheimer, an admitted former Communist, apparently is not going to be pinned down to telling House investigators whether some of the people he knew were Reds, too.

Chairman Wood (D-Ga.) of the House Un-American Activities Committee said that Oppenheimer and his wife "unquestionably" can be cited for contempt for refusing to tell. But the committee obviously was planning no action along that line—action that could lead to fines and jail terms.

The Oppenheimers testified yesterday that they were card-carrying, dues-paying Communists from 1937 to about the beginning of 1941.

That was before Oppenheimer went to work on the atomic bomb project, where he said he stayed from late 1941 until 1947. Oppenheimer said in a statement that during and after his Communist affiliation he was a loyal American, had nothing to do with espionage, and knew of nobody else who had.

But time and again, he and his wife declined to say whether various acquaintances were Communists. Oppenheimer said he didn't "break off any friendships" when he left the party, that the people he had known through his lifetime were decent people who never did or said anything hurtful to this country.

So, he said, he intended to try to protect them against having their loyalty questioned "when I know nothing against them."

Rep. Velde (R-Ill.) suggested the witnesses be warned about penalties for refusing to answer questions.

"But as for contempt action: Wood told reporters, "I don't know that it would help."

Oppenheimer said he and his wife joined the Communists while seeking an answer to problems of unemployment and want in the world's wealthiest nation. He said they quit when they found the party wasn't "the vehicle through which to accomplish the progressive changes we were interested in."

Air War Starts On Grasshopper Plague Today

Sheridan, Wyo., June 14 —(AP)— The big air war to head off a new grasshopper plague started today on the ranges of Wyoming and Montana.

From five bases, poison-laden planes were taking off on the first flights of a month-long aerial "bombing" campaign. The goal is to wipe out the grasshoppers in their favorite nesting grounds.

"We are just beginning to give them hell," said tall, sunburned Leo Iverson of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Legislative Study Bodies Are Named, But Are They Balanced

By LYNN NISBET
Raleigh, June 15—Governor Scott has named two of the several study commissions authorized by the 1949 general assembly for the purpose of reporting to the next legislature on matters of continuing concern to the state. Question has been raised as to whether these commissions are "stacked" for a purpose or "balanced" to get facts.

On the seven-man commission to study distribution of state highway revenue between rural and urban needs the governor named two mayors, two farmers, one general medical practitioner, one lawyer and one real estate man. On the face of the record that looks like a balanced group.

The mayors are Ralph Kibler of Morganton and Victor Shaw of Charlotte. The farmers are James A. Speight of Lewiston RFD and L. B. Wilson of Dunn, who operates farms in Sampson County. The real estate man is J. A. Doggett, Guilford County commissioner. Traditionally county commissioners oppose efforts of cities to get larger share of public road money. The physician is Dr. J. W. Rose of Goldsboro. The lawyer is Julian Alsbrook of Roanoke Rapids, one of the most ardent supporters of the Scott rural road program in the late general assembly.

On the five-man commission to study feasibility of the state operating its own cement plant the governor named: E. R. Hanford of Burlington, introducer of the bill and a brick and tile manufacturer; John Gibson and the manufacturer; Prof. H. W. Krieger, head of the ceramics department at State College; C. L. Bell of Hyde and R. D. B. Harding of Yadkin, both lawyers and both members of the 1949 general assembly and supporters of the Hanford bill authorizing the study.

Official news release from the governor's office lists Bell as a farmer, which will probably surprise the Hyde County lawyer, former clerk of court and legislative champion of shell fish, as much as it will most other folks. There is not a real farmer on the study group dealing with state operation of a cement plant.

There are two farmers and a county commissioner on the group assigned to study allocation of highway funds to towns and cities, along with a lawyer and a doctor known to be champions of the rural road program.

Three members of the legislature who voted for the cement plant bill are on the group, while only one legislator—who championed the rural road bonds—was named to the generally regarded more important study of proper distribution of highway funds between country roads and city streets.

Without discounting or disparaging honest purpose of the two commissions, several experienced observers have said they can write the reports in advance of the "study."

Half Beer Sales For 200 Places

Raleigh, N. C., June 15—(AP) The state ABC board's malt division has halted beer sales in more than 200 establishments since May 1.

Malt division officials said yesterday the close-down was ordered because they failed to meet the requirements of the law.

Some of the violations were listed as not well lighted, selling beer after the 11 p. m. deadline, and failure to meet health and sanitary regulations.

The division must pass on more than 7,000 beer applications before the June 30 deadline for reissuing permits.

Every place applying for a permit is being investigated by the new division's 25 inspectors. If sales places are not approved by June 30, they must suspend beer sales until they are checked and passed.

Hits Failures Of Public Housing

Blowing Rock, N. C., June 15—(AP)—Horace Russell, general counsel of the United States Savings and Loan League, Chicago, talked of home financing here today. He spoke before the concluding session of the North Carolina Building and Loan League's convention.

"The Federal Savings and Loan System has set a pattern throughout the United States for a thrift and ownership program as intended," he said. "It has gone from nothing to more than $7,000,000,000 in 15 years, and is currently growing faster than any other thrift program."

"It is significant," Russell continued, "that private enterprise since 1933 has built and financed more than 6,500,000 private homes, housing about 25,000,000 people, and the average payments on this financing for principal and interest is $30-odd dollars per month. In contrast, with all its propaganda, public housing since 1933 has built and financed less than 300,000 housing units, housing only a little over 800,000 people. The tenants in this public housing are paying an average of about $30 a month, and the taxpayers are paying about an average of an additional $30 per month. The prospect is that private enterprise will produce nearly one million houses in 1949 and approximately another million in 1950."

TEEN TALK
Dear Judy

So you're going on vacation... lucky girl!

If you want to have fun, meet people and make friends, you should learn to be charming, gracious and a good conversationalist.

No, you don't have to bore everybody with stories about your pet nephew or your prowess as an acrobat. But you should be able to answer a few questions directed at you. Nobody enjoys being around a "mummy" all the time, even if they do not enjoy listening to a chatterbox.

You can build up that summer-time romance, if that's what you want, by bragging on the guy. But no matter what anybody says to the contrary you'll have to know a few of the answers.

You might, for instance, say "that's one of the biggest fish I've ever seen caught" when he catches a blowfish or be enthusiastic when he shows you the gold football on his watch key. But please show a glimmer of recognition when he mentions Joe DiMaggio or Joe Louis.

5 doctors prove this plan breaks the laxative habit

If you take laxatives regularly—here's how you can stop!
Because 5 New York doctors now have proved you may break the laxative habit. And establish your natural powers of regularity. Eighty-three per cent of the cases tested did it. So can you.
Stop taking whatever you now take. Instead: Every night for one week take 2 Carter's Pills. Second week—one each night. Third week—one every other night. Then—nothing! Every day: drink eight glasses of water; eat a definite time for regularity.
Five New York doctors proved this plan can break the laxative habit.
How can a laxative break the laxative habit? Because Carter's Pills "unblock" the lower digestive tract and from then on let it make use of its own natural powers.
Further—Carter's Pills contain no habit-forming drugs.
Break the laxative habit... with Carter's Pills... and be regular naturally.
When worry, overeating, overwork make you irregular temporarily—take Carter's Pills temporarily. And never get the laxative habit.
Get Carter's Pills at any drugstore for 35¢ today. You'll be grateful the rest of your life.

or Gorgeous George. He won't expect you to know Joe's batting average or Louis' fight weight or who gives Gorgeous his permanents before a wrestling match... but look intelligent about it all.

If you want to be a companion, don't frown when he mentions he'd like you to go along on a fishing trip. If you are a good sport about it he'll even bait your hook. And if he invites you to walk around the golf course while he plays golf, go ahead—it's good exercise anyway.

Of course there are exceptions and there always will be men who are "loners"... they just enjoy being alone. So if he doesn't want you along on his sports junkets, don't be too persistent. After all if he isn't companionable when you are on vacation, give him the air.

There are some men who believe that woman's sole interests should be knitting, crocheting, embroidering, reading (cook books), and darn-ning (socks). (It isn't a bad idea to have some props like knitting needles around as bait, however.)

One clever girl cured her date who lived in "Boys World" of his habit of leaving her alone. Here's what she did...

Smart Suzie took lessons in every game that her beau was interested in. Then every time Eager Eddie would call her to say he was going swimming or fishing or golfing, she'd say "so am I."

Pretty soon Eddie was very intrigued by the unsuspected abilities of his girl friend and took her along on some of his sports outings. Of course Suzie was smart—she never made the mistake of catching more fish than he did, of beating him at anything (so he took her with him again and again and again).
If you are going to a strange vacation spot, you'll have to learn to get along with all types of people. The latest rhumba or calypso music, Canasta (the new Argentine card game) are good to know. You should also have a nodding acquaintance with some long-hair music, just in case.
But remember if you haven't any other weapons, you always can be feminine... look pretty and sweet, know your right foot from your left so you can get around the dance floor and... be mysterious. Girls define the "mystery woman" technique as "looking smart, saying little, and occasionally interjecting a particularly clever phrase or remark just when everybody has decided you are a dumbbell."
But perhaps you enjoy being in-sular—so maybe you'll have a happy vacation with a minimum of companionship.

Strength FOR THE DAY

KEEP ON GROWING
 As one studies the life of George Washington, he is impressed by the fact that Washington was a man who continued to grow to the last day of his life. He was not a genius, and except for his rugged qualities of mind, which multitudes of people in this and every other country possess, he was not a person of unusual endowments. But from boyhood to old age he continued to grow. He was like Henry Wadsworth Longfellow who, when he was past seventy, said that he tried to grow a little new wood every year.

Around Capitol Square

SPEEDY—Governor Scott worked fast when he got around to naming a commissioner of insurance to succeed William P. Hodges. Since Hodges resigned some two weeks ago reporters had been needing the governor for action and newspaper stories had featured names of Godfrey Chesire of Raleigh and Waldo Cheek of Asheville as leading contenders. As late as nine o'clock Monday night the governor told Cheek he had nothing to announce, but invited the Asheville man to breakfast next morning. After making appearance at an Eastern Star function the governor went back to his office, summoned Secretary of State Thad Eure and asked him to prepare a commission and have it at breakfast. The commission named Cheek as commissioner of insurance, Eure administered the oath just before going to the breakfast table at the mansion, and by ten o'clock Commissioner Cheek was conferring with ex-Commissioner Hodges about office routine.

Somebody Told Me...

By I. J. (JACK) EDWARDS, JR.

It seems that here lately there have been an excess of articles in magazines about marriage, divorce and all the aspects of marital life in between. Since everyone else is discussing the subject, allow me to put in my two cents.

In every household there is a member of the family who insists on throwing every useless article away, plus some useful ones. Every extra bag, piece of string, or box immediately goes out of the back door. And when the articles are needed the throw-away has to make a special trip, and perhaps bear a special expense, to get them. But this type of person lives in a neat house.

The keep-it-all is the exact opposite. Every article is stacked away for use in the future, until all the drawers in the house are running over. Many of the keep-it-alls have a special junk room, which is impassable. The ultra-keep-it-all would faint dead away at the sight of some of the junk rooms.

If an ultra-keep-it-all person happens to fall in love with a keep-it-all, and the two decided to get married, I doubt very seriously if this condition would slow down the couple one bit—and it shouldn't. In the first place, I doubt if one would realize how the other is until several months after the marriage.

Not only do these two types unite in marriage, but there are other combinations of the junky and anti-junky. When two junkies get together you might say that the unfortunate has happened. When two anti-junks are married it's almost as bad.

Did that last statement surprise you? Do you think the ideal situation would be for two ultra-keep-it-all people to get married? Just let me tell you why such a combination is bad.

This type of person is competitive about his neatness, and consequently tries to out-do his mate. The chores of everyday life soon become a contest to see who can make the least mess. Such a contest involves too much work, and an excess of work in a household brings about irritable dispositions, and so on and so on.

The ultra-keep-it-all couple becomes increasingly hipped on keeping things in order and therefore messy folk have a devastating effect on them. Eventually they begin to feel like they just can't bear a mess, and sometimes they even throw not-too-subtle hints to their friends to "get the joint cleaned up," or get out of my life.

By now you might think I'm pretty distressed about this problem, but I do have a solution. The ideal situation, if one may exist, is for a keep-it-all to marry an anti-junky. At a glance it seems that such a union would invite an endless war, but the reverse is true. Each half of the couple gives in some to the other, and eventually an understanding is reached.

This "understanding" does not mean that the two conflicting personalities do not continue to clash. But in every household there must be an outlet for excess steam, and paper bags, old newspapers, and cardboard boxes are good items to use for arguments. It's really healthy to have one issue for conflict, when the issue is really harmless and serves the "excess steam" purpose.

The other day I met a lady who reads this column, and she was surprised to see that I'm 25 instead of 55. After all of this philosophizing today there should be no doubt about age, unless someone concludes that I'm 16. And I thank you.

A TIMELY WARNING

It was a solemn warning that businessmen from this section heard last night from representatives of the United States Chamber of Commerce. Pointing out that the past 15 years have seen great strides in this country toward stateism, the speakers laid part of the blame to the apathy of businessmen who have failed to unite and give their support to those Congressmen and Senators who are striving against great odds to preserve true democracy and free enterprise. The picture as painted by the speakers was not a pretty one but it is hoped that it will serve to arouse our citizens to the true situation.

So long as the great majority of our people sit idly by and let organized pressure groups dictate the policies of our government, we may expect policies favorable to those groups. It is a well known fact that a paternal government is a dangerous government, for if the government is expected to take on functions that should rightly belong to the state and individual communities, then naturally the government will have to increase its controls. Each added function, together with its added bureau, leads closer and closer to complete control and finally government by directive. That is the path that we are traveling in this country at this time and unless action is taken now to halt the trend the day is not far distant when it will be too late to regain our lost freedoms.

The large number of representative businessmen present at last night's meeting came away apparently enthusiastic about doing something about the situation. It is to be hoped that this enthusiasm will continue until it is transmitted into action.

PROPERTY — Numerous public officials in federal, state and local fields have assumed a property right in the office to which they have been elected or appointed. One of the opinions by Attorney General Harry McMillan included in the current digest from his office covers this point. The attorney general says: "Under our law and supreme court decisions, no person has any property rights in a public office, and the general assembly has authority to cut short the term of any elective public office, with the exception of constitutional officers."

DIFFERENCE — The difference between constitutional and statutory offices goes much further than the exception noted by the attorney general in answer to one question. Legal authorities have held there can be no such thing as an "acting" constitutional officer. The state has had several times "acting" chairman of the highway commission, commissioner of revenue, and similar appointive posts. Before the heads of agriculture, insurance and labor departments were made constitutional officers they could be replaced with "acting" commissioners, although the positions were elective. After the amendment putting them on the council of state the "acting" qualification was removed. The officer was either it or not it.

Boyle's Column

By HAL BOYLE
 Shannon, Ireland, June 15—(AP)—Oh it was high up in the air we were, 8,000 feet above the great Irish sea.

Inside the cabin of the American Overseas Airlines flagship America, were some 30 correspondents returning from a tour of the European battlefields and outside was a thick cloud making a mystery of the land below and the sky above.

We had run into the clouds after taking off from London. Some of the passengers dozed in their seats, quietly digesting one of Merle England's postwar austerity meals and wondering if God ever made anything more courageous than the English.

But some of us were looking out impatiently waiting for the clouds to clear. We were semi-professional fishermen in the crowd.

A jeering sophisticate raised up and wanted to know: "If Ireland must be heaven, boys, why aren't there any Angels out there playing harps in the clouds?" And to that there was only one answer. The Irish are so sure of heaven they play their harps on earth.

Just then a starboard engine gave a tug at a cloud and swallowed it whole and through the mist there gleamed a river beneath us. And faraway, sure it was a fair river—as if the Lord had taken the milky way and poured it star by star between the green banks and all the stars had melted and run together in a silver flood.

Looking down at the map of Ireland they saw it through the hearts of forebears who had left this beautiful land for something better but carried the memory of it wherever they settled.

There was one among us, Cornelius Ryan, who had been born here and was seeing his homeland again for the first time in eight years. "There is Ireland's tallest mountain—Ohrivven," he said.

"It looks more like a New Jersey swamp with the mumps," mumbled a sleepy cynic whose father certainly hadn't come from Ireland.

"Now over there, the Irish central plain," said Ryan. "See how few roads there are and notice how small the farms are."

Around each farm is a stone wall. They were built in the days when the Irish used to say "we may not have any ammunition to fight the British, but we have plenty of rocks to throw at them."

I looked at the pinched green farms and I realized why my mother and all her sisters had come to America leaving their only brother to inherit and till the small family farm.

Ireland had exported its bacon to Europe. Crowded beyond the power of its land to support, it had exported its sons and daughters to the United States.

They had followed a westward sun that sank in hopelessness on them here but rose like a morning star on the wide fresh land of America—a land where every Irishman could join a police force and walk a beat bigger than the farm he had left behind.

Our plane landed at Shannon airport and we picked up a souvenir of Irish earth at the edge of the runway. We had only an hour before our plane left and we spent it learning about Ireland.

It seems there are two rival dairies here. One is run by a fellow named Bushmill. The other is operated by a guy named John Jamison. They both bottle beautiful brown milk.

What else can you learn in an hour about Ireland, mavourneen? It was too dark to look for shamrocks.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By JANE KADS
 Washington—Trouble-shooter and brain trust for America's multi-billion-dollar cleaning and dying industry is the National Institute of Cleaning and Dying in nearby Silver Springs, Md.

One of the nation's original trade associations, the institute was set up in 1907. It now boasts a membership of some 7,500 plant owners in the United States and 27 foreign countries.

In its eight modern laboratories the institute helps members solve troublesome cleaning problems, investigates everything from shrinkage control to moth-proofing compounds, researches the effects of cleaning and dying on synthetic fabrics.

It also conducts a vocational training school where some 600 students a year are provided with the basic requirements for conducting dry cleaning businesses and carries on a consumer education service to keep the public informed on hazards involved in the cleaning and dying of certain articles.

The institute's work is usually taken as gospel by small claims courts and Better Business Bureaus to help its members on damage claims and kindred headaches.

If the cleaner has been at fault, the institute will be the first to say so. In tracking down faulty cleaning practices it helps to raise the standards of the industry as a whole.

Last year the institute set up its research and analysis departments in a new $800,000 building. It works closely with the textile industry and investigates new fibers, fabrics, finishes, dyes and garments for their ability to withstand dry cleaning. In many cases these investigations have resulted in the development of new techniques for dry cleaning and finishing unusual items sent in for dry cleaning.

In its first-rate cleaning plant, open for business to the public, the institute spruces up everything from FBI Chief Hoover's pants to Margaret Truman's party frocks. In addition, nearly all the embassies including the Egyptian, Mexican and Nicaraguan, and the Supreme Court send their draps in to be cleaned.

Other items sent to the institute include flags from the Army War College's historic collection, inaugural gowns of former first ladies in the Smithsonian Institution collection, decoration ribbons worn by diplomats and uniforms worn by the top brass of the nation's armed services.

American Loves Russia Above All

London, June 15—(AP)—The Moscow radio today quoted Paul Robeson as calling Russia the "country I love above all."

The American Negro singer, who is at present in Russia, was described as telling an interviewer: "I am truly happy that I am able to travel from time to time to the U.S.R.—the country I love above all."

The interview continued: "I always have been, I am now and will always be a loyal friend of the Soviet Union. I am taking away with me new ideas, new sentiments and strength newly acquired here. And all this will serve me as a new weapon in the struggle for the cause of peace."

Robeson told Tass he will "name aloud the real criminals against peace" when he serves as a defense witness at the New York trial of communist leaders.

Robeson left Moscow today. He said in Moscow he would return directly to the United States.

The Republic of Brazil is bounded by all except two of the South American republics as well as the three Guianas.

Ed Smith Recaptured By Greensboro Taxi Driver

Greensboro, June 15—(AP)—A Greensboro Negro taxicab driver, Thomas Richardson, was credited by police with the daring capture Monday night of the last of four armed convicts who escaped last week from a Pitt county road gang. It was only in municipal-county court that the true facts were brought out that Ed Smith—the man captured by Richardson as Smith held a gun on the cab driver—was an escaped convict. He had used the name of H. G. Medlin as an alias when booked on two charges of assault with deadly weapon and carrying a concealed weapon.

In court yesterday, Smith was sentenced to two years on the state roads in the two assault counts, and 12 months on the roads in the concealed weapon case. Smith was carried back to the county jail for delivery back to the road gang. He will have local sentences added to his original term.

Smith, a heavy-set man, listed locally as being 60 years old and in Raleigh as 49, gave officers a real tussle at the police station Monday night, after Richardson's daring move brought on the arrest.

At the station, Smith tried to grab a Negro officer's gun. White officers pitched in to help.

Officers stated that around 6:30 p.m. Monday, the man drew a pistol on Raymond, Negro cab driver of 1516 McConnell Road. Reid told police he drove Smith into town and then, when he saw his chance, fired the cab leaving Smith inside.

About 7:45 p.m. officers said Smith boarded a cab driven by Richardson. Richardson told officers that Smith pulled a gun on him.

Police quoted Richardson as saying that Smith ordered him to drive out to the Burlington Road. Instead, Richardson drove him to a taxicab stand in the 100 Block of North Clinton Street.

The driver said he reached back grabbed Smith's hand, and yelled for help from several cab drivers.

Several Negroes on the street ran to Richardson's aid and dragged Smith out. Then two Negro officers arrived and arrested Smith.

Patrolman Isn't His Former Self

Detroit, June 14—(AP)—At the advanced age of 32, Patrolman Stanley Kaminski isn't the ball player he used to be.

As the kids cheered, Kaminski left his scout car, picked up a ball and hurled it mightily back onto a playground.

Then his partner took him—fast—to a hospital. He'd thrown his shoulder out of joint.

Hunters To Vote On Lay Day Issue

Raleigh, N. C., June 15—(AP)—Tar Heel hunters will decide for themselves whether they will have lay days.

The Wildlife Resources commission voted yesterday to hold a mail referendum of 1948-49 hunting license holders on the matter. The referendum will be held upon receipt of petitions signed by 25 per cent of the hunters in any given county.

The commission also received recommendations on hunting and trapping regulations for 1949-50 which it is expected to adopt. The recommendations were drawn up following public hearings held by the district commissioner May 31 through June 10.

A few changes were made in the original list of tentative regulations discussed at the district meetings. Lay days would establish hunting on Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays, with hunting prohibited on other days of the week.

Signatures on the petitions must be accompanied by the serial number of the 1948-49 hunting license. Numbers accompanying these signatures will be checked against license stubs held in the files of the commission.

Petitions must be in by August 1. The referendums would be held between Aug. 1 and Oct. 1.

Book Woman For Leaving Infant

Columbia, S. C., June 15—(AP)—A 27-year-old white woman abandoned a 13-month-old white baby with a Negro woman here, city police reported today.

The Negro woman, Inez Book, told police she found the woman waiting at her home, asking if she could leave the baby girl for an hour. She never returned.

The Negro woman had noted the license tag on the woman's car, and from that police booked a woman listed as Alice Gregg of North Carolina.

Her home town was not listed or known to police here. No charges were placed against her, and the case has been turned over to the Domestic Relations court, whose records are not public.

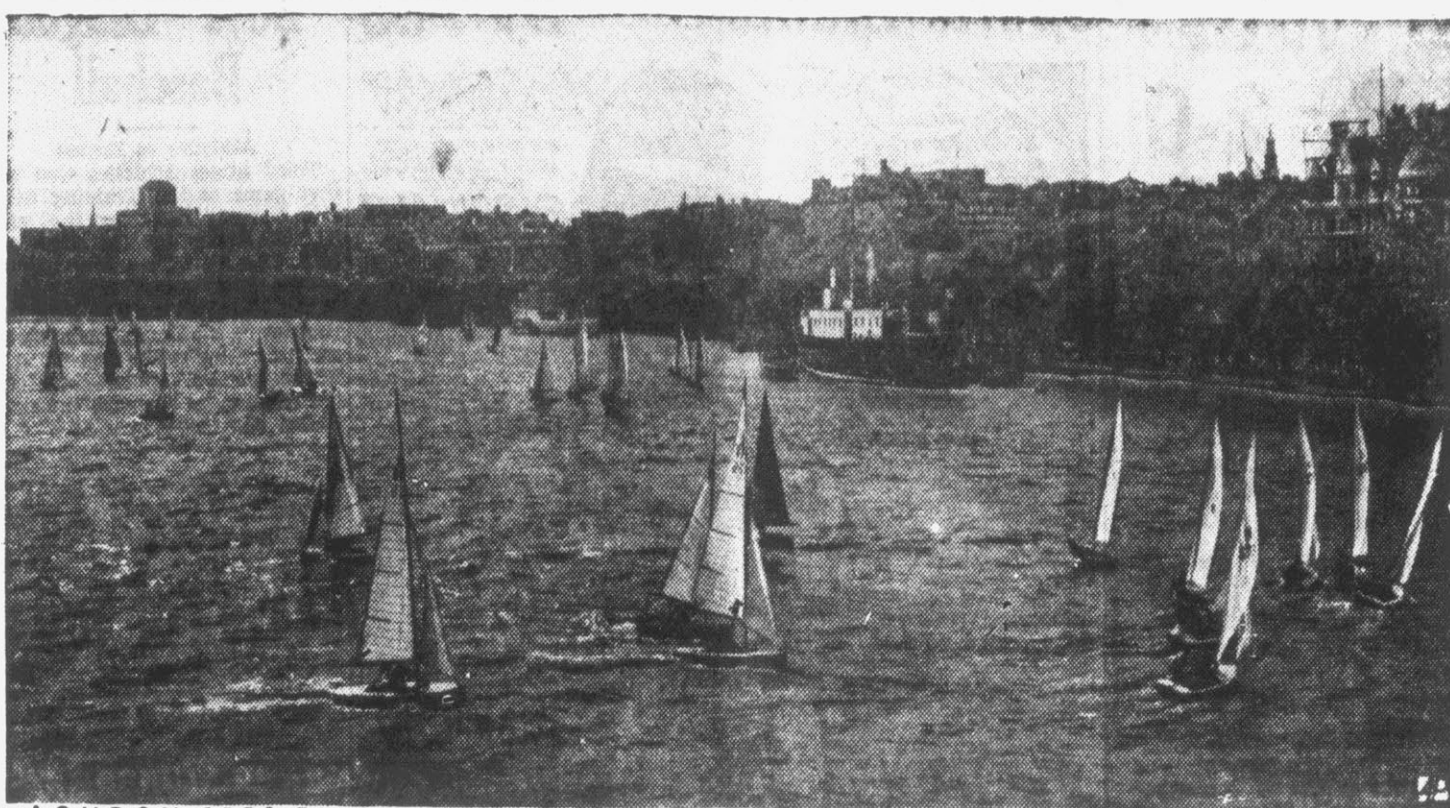

Burn Victims In Hospital Said To Be Improving

The condition of two Negro men who were injured yesterday in a grease pit fire at a local service station was reported to be very good, today according to Dr. Winstand.

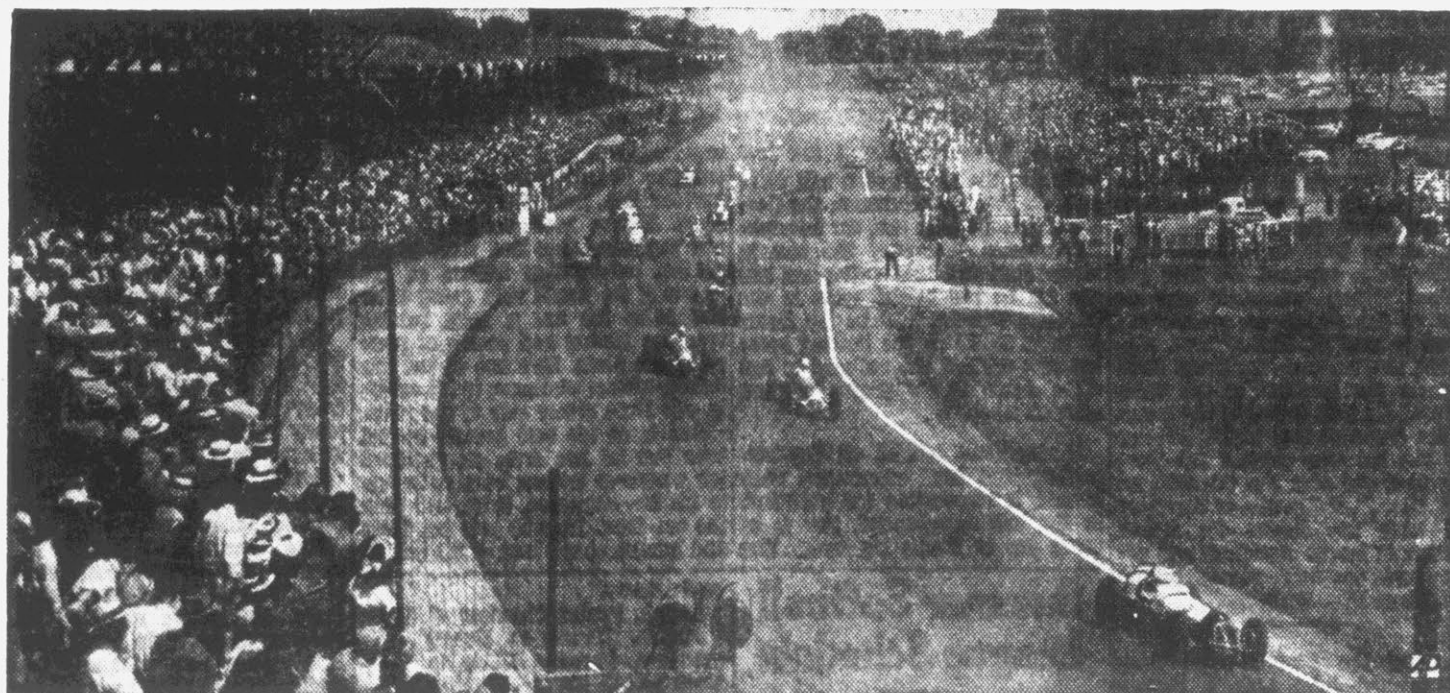

William Anderson received second degree burns on the arms, legs and face when he was trapped by the explosion in the pit. Bob Jones, who was helping on the outside of the pit was thrown from the top of the pit and suffered burns on the face and hands. Barring further complication the men will be released in a day or two, according to attending physicians.

The two were working in the grease pit at the Central Service station located at the corner of Fourth and Washington street when a blast set fire to the station.

No estimate of the damage to the station was available this morning.

Pactolus Ruritan Met On Monday

The Pactolus Ruritan Club at its monthly meeting Monday night accepted an education committee's recommendation to purchase three typewriters to lend to the Pactolus school to assist in inaugurating a course in the school.

The club also set Monday as clean-up day for the Pactolus school grounds, at which time the Ruritans will use tractors and other machinery for disking and leveling the ground about the school.

The Rev. O. C. Nickens, member of the Grimesland Ruritan club, spoke at the meeting on the topic "The Church and its Relation to the Community." Nickens said the church is of vital importance to the community because it is one of the things which makes up the community. To remove either the church school, home or civic organization from the community is to tear down the structure of the community, the speaker said. "Without the church there would be disorder, corruption and chaos," Rev. Nickens stated.

During the business session of the meeting, the club instructed the fellowship committee to send a "get well" card and letter to Elgin White, district governor of Ruritan, and instructed the highway, streets and building committee to investigate the amount Pactolus will get from money appropriated for municipalities by the state highway commission.

Guests of the club at the supper meeting were Ben Oakes of Grimesland and Tom Grimes of the Pasquotank club of Elizabeth City. President John Overton presided at the meeting.

Following the meeting, Ruritan George Cherry told O. H. Forrest, principal of the Pactolus school, that if the Pactolus Home Demonstration club and Parent Teachers Association would purchase one typewriter to be used by the school, he, Cherry would purchase two additional typewriters to loan to the school.

Huge Apartment Units Planned

Charlotte, N. C., June 15—(AP)—Charlotte has issued a permit to C. D. Spangler, local contractor, to build 806 apartment units for Negroes. It was the largest building permit in the city's history.

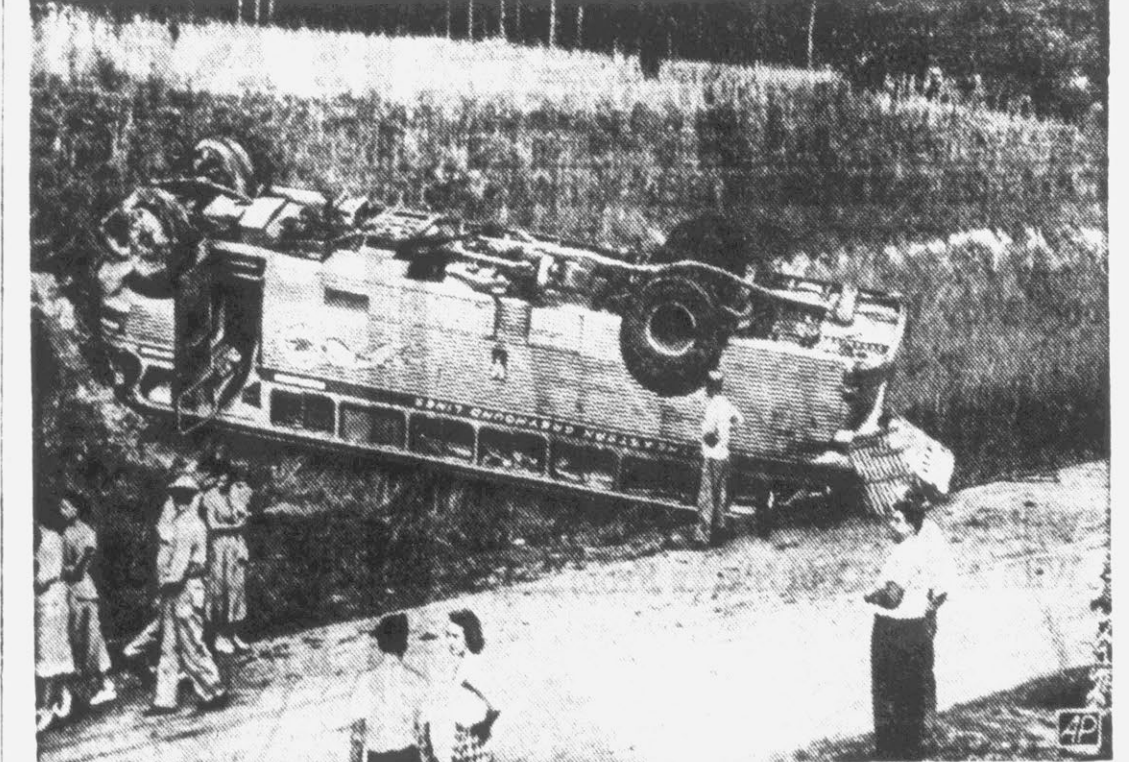

The PMA, meanwhile, was expected to issue a commitment today for a 234-unit apartment project for white persons. The building will be done by Selwyn Village, Inc. The Negro units are expected to cost $2,535,000 and the white $1,650,000.

There is nothing like a few hits to bolster the morale of a ball player. Take Red Schoendienst, the Cardinals' second base ace, for example. Red started thumping the ball in sensational style this spring and was one of the few bright spots in the Cardinal line-up. The happy frame of mind in which his batting spree left him enabled the redhead to reel off a string of 236 flied chances without a bobble.

Athletics vs Braves
Third Street Athletics won their first game at the Training School this morning defeating the league leading Braves by the score of 7 to 5. The A's took a four run lead in the first inning and managed to stay ahead all the way. Poor base-running by the Braves broke up several promising rallies just when the Braves seemed to be threatening the A's lead. In the fifth the Braves loaded the bases with no one out

Yanks vs Reds
The Yanks scored seven runs to sew up the game. The Reds had a bad day on defense, committing a total of eight errors. Puryear, Evans, Dunn and Wingate were the top hitters for the winners. Bob Howell and Gene Hudson led for the Reds.

Giants vs Cubs
In the first game played in the "ten year old" league the Cubs from Third Street won over the Giants from the Training School at the Cub Field by the score of 20 to 19. The game was a season affair that

Chapter 17

Jeff took the badge from Jeb King's hands and pinned it over the pocket of his shirt. It was Monday morning and they were in Jeb's office at the bank.

Jeb said, "You know your duties—preserve law and order in Douglas. You'll find some unfinished business like the murders of Sam Tolson and John Stover."

Jeff got up. "I guess I don't have to tell you that I'm obliged to you for the job."

"By the way, there's one chore that I didn't mention," Jeb went to the door, looked outside, then closed it and returned to his desk. "Every so often we have to ship gold. Some time next week we're due to ship and I might as well tell you something about it."

"You'll have charge of the movement. If anything happens between here and the express office at Briscoe, it's our loss; once you turn the shipment over to the express agent, it's up to Wells Fargo."

"I see. Between here and Briscoe I'm responsible."

"Not you alone—all of us. But there isn't much to be afraid of. We use a light freighter with a canvas cover. Two horses. The gold is in a speck box, and in the wagon with it are two armed guards, with another one of the seat with the driver. You range around on horseback, scoutin' before and behind, and examinin' anything that looks like it might hold an ambush. With that kind of setup it would take an army to get it away from you. I'll tell you more about it when we're ready to ship."

Jeff went to the general store and drew Hank Wolfanger to one side.

"Hank, have you any kind of poison in stock?"

"Poison?"

"Yes. Arsenic, for instance."

"Goeh, no."

Jeff went outside and stood there, thinking. A horseman swept into the street at the far end of town. It was Chuck Gale. He saw Jeff and rode to the edge of the crosswalk, and when he jerked his head Jeff went down the steps and crossed to him.

"Just heard about your Hereford's," said Gale. "Tough luck."

"It's going to be a tougher luck for the gent that poisoned them when I run him down."

"Know what kind of poison it was?"

"Arsenic."

"Try the drug store at Briscoe," Chuck nodded shortly and started away, then he reined about and rode back to where Jeff was standing. "Here's a hunch, Tyler. Don't go lookin' so far in the distance that you miss what's right under yore nose."

"Meaning what?"

"Think it over."

Jeff gazed after him, frowning. The fellow couldn't possibly mean—! Why, it was ridiculous, as absurd to believe that Glenn would poison his cattle as that he would help Slug escape or shoot Sam Tolson. Jeff dismissed the thing with an impatient gesture and started for the alley behind Glenn's place.

He walked down the alley to the place where John Stover had been shot. There were the prints of many boots where men had milled about the body, but if those of the murderer were among them he had no way of distinguishing them. He walked to the buildings and circled them with his gaze on the ground.

Chuck had replaced the broken shoe. He walked to the Town Hall and was about to ascend the steps when he heard a cheery hail and turned to see Connie in the ranch buckboard. He went to meet her and took the hand she extended.

"Congratulations, Mr. Marshall!"

He grinned and rubbed the badge with his sleeve.

She laughed. "I had to come to town for some groceries and was hoping I'd see you, Jeff. I think it's grand—your getting this job. I want to see you get ahead."

"I reckon I'll just plod along on my hundred-and-twenty a month. If I buy one cow every pay day I'll have a pretty good herd by the time I'm a hundred."

She looked away for a moment and he saw her lips tremble; then she looked directly into his eyes. "Jeff, have you ever—ever quarreled with Glenn?"

"Glenn? Good gosh, no. What-ever made you ask that?"

"I don't know. I just wondered."

"Well, I must run along. Come out to the Crown when you can; we'll all be anxious to know how you're making out. Bye!"

Test Shows How Anemia Is Cured

Buffalo, N. Y.—(AP)—A new test shows how and why certain drugs work against pernicious anemia in humans.

The test promises to aid in better treatment of the disease. It is reported by Dr. Oliver P. Jones, assistant dean of the University of Buffalo Medical School, and Adolph Smith of the department of anatomy.

Anemia is due to the body's failure to make enough red blood cells in its bone marrow factories. The cells that form there don't divide and grow in the normal way. The failure comes from lack of a chemical usually supplied by the liver.

Drugs like liver extract, folic acid and the new vitamin B-12 usually overcome the trouble. Just how they do their work hasn't been clear. It's hard to get at the bone marrow in humans to see what is happening. So Dr. Jones turned to primitive blood cells in unborn rats, when these embryos are only 11 days old. These blood cells had formed before the embryo livers had developed or started to work. The rat cells at this time resemble the cells in the bone marrow of humans with pernicious anemia.

By feeding anti-anemia drugs to the mother rats, he can see what effect the drug has on the blood cells themselves. The test also can show whether there is anything in a new drug that would work against anemia.

Vote To Grant Condon Hearing

Washington, June 14—(AP)—The House un-American Activities committee voted today to grant Dr. Edward U. Condon a hearing whenever he asks for it. And if Condon fails to request one, Rep. Nixon (R-Calif.) said he will push for one anyway.

Dr. Condon is director of the Federal Bureau of Standards. A subcommittee report last year described him as one of the weakest links in atomic security. Condon replied he was "absolutely reliable."

Heat Wave And Drought Hits New England States

By The Associated Press
A mid-June heat wave and drought threatened crops and fanned fears of serious forest fires in the northeastern states today. Meanwhile, as the death toll in

The New England heat belt mounted to 16 in the last three days, the flash floods and storms in North Texas took the lives of 11 persons. In the Pacific Northwest, there also appeared danger of forest fires because of lack of rain for weeks. Fire hazards are reported in the forests of Northwest Washington and Northern Idaho as well as in the Cascade Mountains and the coastal forests of Washington and Oregon. But over much of the middle west, showers and thunderstorms have brought needed moisture to farmers, brightening an already favorable crop outlook. The rains were general yesterday over the North Central states, with heavy falls in parts of Illinois, Michigan, Indiana, Iowa and Missouri. No immediate relief from the hot and humid weather appeared in sight for the New England area and a close watch was being kept on the dry forests. Temperatures are in the 80's on the coast and in the 90's inland. Forest fire hazards are at the peak in New Jersey, now in the 24th day of a drought, and with no rain forecast before late Thursday. Truck farmers face a serious damage to the crops.

Wants Notables As Witnesses In Coplon Spy Trial

Washington, June 15 — (AP) — A defense demand for a long list of notables as witnesses in Judith Coplon's espionage trial comes up for decision today. Defense Attorney Archibald Palmer said he had hopes of starting off with Dr. and Mrs. Edward U. Condon and former Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes. The government prosecutors John M. Kelley, Jr., and Raymond P. Wherry, said they hoped to keep these witnesses off the stand. Palmer told reporters he wanted to show through Dr. and Mrs. Condon and Ickes that secret FBI reports introduced in the trial "contain a lot of nonsense, gossip and rumors." Kelley retorted: "Testimony to the effect that information in the FBI reports is true or false does not tend to prove guilt or innocence of the defendant. There it is irrelevant and immaterial."

Depression Fear Said A Starter

Washington, June 15 — (AP) — Senator Lucas of Illinois, the Democratic leader, said today people had better quit gabbling about a depression or the country may talk itself into one. "I might go back to 1933 and repeat the words of Franklin D. Roosevelt to say that 'The only thing we have to fear is fear itself'—they are just as true today as they were then," Lucas told a reporter.

"Your income tax is pretty low, isn't it?" "Yes, I get a break there. I didn't have to pay any tax at all during the war after figuring my exemptions and deductions. This year I figure I'll pay $188.86. I'm taxed only on base pay." "What about your retirement benefits?" "Good. If I make colonel by the time I retire, in another 20 years, I'll get $412 a month. But when I die, of course there'll be nothing for my wife. I have to carry life insurance to provide something for her." "Well, what about the rest of the extras?" "There aren't any more as far as I know." "What about government automobiles?" "I never climb into a government car except on official business. Only four officers in Washington are assigned cars for their private use—the four chiefs of staff. If you're on a post out in the boon-docks, you sometimes get away with using a little free government transportation, but most posts are pretty strict about it." "Wouldn't you save money on rent if you were assigned to quarters on a Marine Base?" "Sure would. But do you know how many quarters there are for Marine Officers in Washington? Six. And 657 Marine officers are stationed here. There are 974 quarters for officers altogether in the area, and there are 13,947 officers here, counting all four services."

As the signs read, the western nations are likely to welcome the chance to deal with Tito. By so doing they might kill two birds with one stone—that is, they would establish a useful trade which western Europe needs, and this would tend to widen the breach between Moscow and Belgrade.

Business Experts . . .

(Continued from page one) tion." Bird attacked the proposal now in Congress for national health insurance, and asserted it is "actually the first step towards complete socialization of medicine in this country." He also hit the proposal for federal aid to education as presented in Congress, and expressed the fear that only one generation of teachers would survive under such a program before the subjects taught in the schools would be dictated by the federal government. Bird condemned the excessive government spending as he pointed out there are 3 1/2 typewriters for every full or part-time typist on the federal payroll, and "that for every $10 governmental expenditure, it takes a second $10 to disperse the first ten dollars." He praised the Hoover Commission recommendations for reorganization of the government and said through the commission report "for the first time in more than 50 years, the American businessman has the opportunity to back a business-like non-partisan plan to save the poor taxpayer a few dollars." Following the addresses, an open forum was conducted by E. H. Cherry during which each of the three speakers answered questions on national affairs from the floor. L. S. Ficken, president of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce, presided at the meeting and introduced the speakers. Charles B. Bissette, chairman of the legislation and national affairs committee of the local Chamber of Commerce, welcomed to the meeting the delegations of businessmen and women from Beaufort, Farmville, Kinston, Rocky Mount, Tarboro, Wilson and Washington. Arrangements for the meeting were made by Willard T. Kyzer, manager of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce.
