Soft Coal Talks Postponed Week To Study Issues

Resumption Of Contract Talks Pushed Back From July 12 To July 19

Pittsburgh, July 6.—(AP)—John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers and the nation's northern and western soft coal operators have pushed back resumption of their contract talks from July 12 to July 19.

Announcement of the delay was made yesterday by Ezra Van Horn, spokesman for the operators, as the miners ended their annual 10-day holiday and began the first three-day work week ordered by Lewis.

Van Horn would not discuss the postponement, other than to say the delay was agreed upon to give both the UMW and the operators an opportunity to canvass mutual problems which are expected to come up.

Negotiations between the UMW and the southern operators will get under way again July 12 while hard coal contract talks start at Philadelphia tomorrow.

The return to work of the soft coal diggers yesterday marked the first time in recent UMW history that the miners worked without a contract. The bituminous agreement ended last Thursday.

Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday were designated by Lewis as the three work days for this week, while starting next week the pits will be manned Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

The three-day work plan, which has drawn some congressional as well as sharp criticism from the operators, was described by Lewis as a move to avoid industrial and public irritation.

However, the United Mine Workers' Journal described the order as a move to reduce the present coal stockpile to a normal 25 million tons. Lessening of the coal reserve would enhance Lewis' position in the contract discussions.

The miners' return to work yesterday was slow in some states. In western Pennsylvania, Kentucky, Indiana and West Virginia, some diggers were unable to resume work because operators had anticipated a work stoppage following the expiration on the contract and the pits were not ready for operation.

Demo Lawmaker Says Opposed To Barden Measure

Washington, July 6.—(AP)—Rep. Boggs (D-La.) said today that he was unalterably opposed to the so-called Barden bill which would write into the law discriminations against students attending private and parochial schools, discriminations which in his opinion are invalid and have never been recognized in Louisiana.

The Barden measure for federal aid to schools has been proposed in the House as a substitute for the Thomas bill.

As it passed the Senate with the support of Louisiana senators Long and Ellender, the so-called Thomas bill would leave to the states the matter of extension of aid to private schools.

Food Price Index At Lowest Figure Of '49

New York, July 6.—(AP)—The Dun and Bradstreet wholesale food price index this week declined to the lowest figure of the year, $5.66, which also was touched on Feb. 8 and May 17.

A week ago the index was $5.69 and a year ago, $7.12.

Vandenberg Says U.S. Must Meet Perils Of Communism

Washington, July 6.—(AP)—Senator Vandenberg of Michigan today asked the Senate to ratify the North Atlantic Pact as a shield for free men against "embattled, greedy communism."

He opened the second day of debate on the 12-nation alliance with the double-barreled statement that (1) communism is the sole threat to world peace and (2) its final target is the United States.

As Republican leader in foreign affairs, he added the weight of his prestige to that of Senator Connally (D-Tex.) who led off in the debate yesterday.

As Vandenberg spoke, Senate leaders saw a good chance to win final approval of the treaty in less than a week of debate. They were encouraged by a general lack of opposition to the pact and its stated purpose of heading off any attack on the western, non-communist world. A two-thirds vote of approval by the Senate is needed to bind the U. S. to the treaty.

Vandenberg called the treaty "the best available implement to discourage armed aggression and thus to stop another war before it starts."

And then he turned to communism. He said the world's "precious values" are in jeopardy in today's "tortured world."

"This jeopardy does not stem from us," he went on, "x x x it stems from embattled, greedy communism abroad and at home."

Vandenberg declared that "open conspiracies" are aimed ultimately at the United States.

"We cannot run away from it," he told the Senate. "There it is, pact or no pact. x x x we are the final target, though other independent peoples are in nearer jeopardy."

The treaty is designed to minimize the threat of this jeopardy, Vandenberg continued, adding:

"Much as we might crave the easier way of lesser responsibility, we are denied the privilege. We cannot turn back the clock. x x x we have no choice as to whether we shall play a great part in the world. We have to play that part. We have to play it in sheer defense of our own self-interest. All that we can decide is whether we shall play it well or ill."

Vandenberg agreed with Connally that a vote for the treaty will not commit any senator to vote for the proposed $1,300,000,000 (B) program to rearm the pact nations.

The proposed arms plan faces far tougher opposition than the treaty.

President Truman is expected to send the arms program to Congress after the pact is ratified.

Vandenberg said the real strength of the treaty lies in the "potential" military might of the 12 pact nations—not in the limited arms aid that is planned.

Vandenberg made these points in his analysis of the treaty:

(1) The pact is within the framework of the United Nations and "is the greatest discouragement to war we have yet devised."

"In my opinion," Vandenberg added, "it points the way to make the United Nations charter work, despite the charter's crippling handicaps."

(2) The president's power as commander in chief of the armed forces "is neither increased nor diminished" by the treaty.

(3) The pact carries no obligation to defend European colonies outside the defense area.

(4) The way is open for other nations to join the alliance with the unanimous consent of its members and approval by the Senate.

(5) The United States will not be bound to take sides in a civil war unless the civil war includes "external armed aggression."

Three Escapees And Stolen Cars Are Recaptured

Highway Patrol Catches Prison Camp Fugitives Minutes After Escape

By CHESTER WALSH

State Highway patrolmen captured three white prisoners yesterday afternoon who had escaped from the State Prison Camp near Greenville a few minutes earlier. The patrolmen also recovered three automobiles the convicts had used in their break for freedom.

State Highway Patrol Capt. John Laws identified the runaway prisoners as Lawrence Mitchell, 26; Edward White, 22; and Woodrow Jackson, All long-term prisoners.

Laws said the prisoners left the prison camp in a car belonging to Guard Joseph Saunders, which was parked on the prison grounds.

When the escape alarm was sounded the highway patrolmen spread out a net in a 10-mile radius. Fifteen minutes later they found the prison guard's car abandoned near Stokes.

The fleeing prisoners then took over a Dodge car, owned by J. D. Page of Williamston in the Bear Grass community of Martin county.

The fleeing convicts abandoned this car when they spotted a Ford car owned by J. T. Williams of Williamston.

The highway patrol ring had closed in on the territory and within 10 to 15 minutes State Highway Patrolman M. F. Powers of Williams cornered the three escaped convicts and had them in custody when other patrolmen arrived. The convicts were armed with knives.

Capt. Paul Crawford, superintendent of the State Prison Camp, said the highway patrolmen did a good job, and added, "You can always count on the state highway patrolmen. They are good soldiers."

Information from the State Prison Camp was that the three men who escaped had been washing Steward Howard Warrick's car and that they asked for the key to Guard Saunders' car. The prisoners had fouled up the wires on the steward's car so that he could not drive it.

Prison officials said the capture of the prisoners was the quickest piece of work ever done by the State Highway Patrol in this area.

Cpl. Laws said the three men have already been indicted for the larceny of three automobiles—two warrants in Martin county and one in Pitt.

Prison camp authorities are still searching for two of three white prisoners who escaped from a road gang near Renston, between Greenville and Ayden, yesterday afternoon. One of the prisoners, who fled, Edward (Dynamite) Stephens, 27, returned to the Prison Camp yesterday. Albert Hager, 40, serving time for robbery, and William Coward, 32, of Belhaven, up for driving drunk and hit-and-run, are still at large.

Justice Reed In Recorders Court

Durham, N.C., July 6.—(AP)—U.S. Supreme Court Justice Stanley F. Reed, in Durham for a medical check-up, dropped in on the local Recorders Court for an unexpected visit today and told Judge A. R. Wilson that he believes minor courts are most important in the nation's system of justice because they are close to the people.

He said he believes it is essential for minor courts to have fair and efficient judges.

Appearing unannounced, Justice Reed remained for about 30 minutes observing the trial of several minor cases.

The nation's heaviest accidental death for a holiday period was 761 for four days in Christmas week of 1938. Of the total, 355 were killed in traffic mishaps. The previous high for the Independence Day holiday was 628 in 1941.

Holiday Toll Is Termed Disgrace

By the Associated Press

The nation's accidental death toll over the Fourth of July holiday—a record breaking 711—was "shameful and disgraceful," says the National Safety Council.

The 711 killed in violent accidents over the three-day period was the highest ever reported for a Fourth of July holiday and near the record for any holiday period.

The final count in the state-by-state survey showed 315 traffic fatalities, 25 more than the 290 estimated by the council; 256 drownings and 140 killed from miscellaneous causes. The tabulation covered a period from 6 p.m. last Friday to midnight Monday.

Carolina Beach Scene Of U. S. Narcotics Probe

Carolina Beach, N.C., July 6.—(AP)—U. S. narcotics agents today were investigating a number of suspected dope addicts here after a Fort Bragg soldier was arrested and charged with possession of narcotics.

Pvt. Mac W. Langdon, 23, was arrested last Monday by Carolina Beach police after it was reported he was staying at visitors to his room were "coming down in a seemingly intoxicated manner," and the maid reported she could not find whiskey bottles or any evidence of whiskey drinking.

Carolina Chief of Police Bruce Valentine said that his officers found four tubes, 20 grains of morphine in the soldier's room. Federal agents charged him with possession of narcotics. J. Douglas Taylor, U.S. commissioner in Wilmington, said today.

New York, July 6.—(AP)—The defense in the Alger Hiss perjury trial closed its case at 10:37 a.m. (EST) today.

The jury of ten men and two women is expected to begin deliberating tomorrow afternoon after both sides have completed summations.

Boettigers Open Divorce Action

Phoenix, Ariz., July 6.—(AP)—After 14 years of marriage, a romance that started between a President's daughter and a newspaper reporter appeared to have ended today.

John Boettiger, 49, the reporter, was suing his wife, Anna, 43, daughter of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, for divorce in Maricopa County Superior Court.

The couple first met in 1933 on a presidential campaign trip. Boettiger, who later became the publisher of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer and the Arizona Times of Phoenix, at the time was a reporter for the Chicago Tribune.

They were married in 1935, after Anna had divorced her first husband, Curtis Dall, a New York broker. She obtained the divorce in Reno in 1934.

In a suit filed in the Superior Court yesterday, Boettiger charged his wife with mental cruelty.

The complaint said that starting in June, 1946, his wife was guilty of "cruel treatment x x x in that she has repeatedly by statements, actions and manner, humiliated and made him miserable."

The couple reached agreement July 15, 1948, settling their property rights. They have a son, John R., 10, who now is living with his mother in Hollywood.

Mild Sentence For Bank Theft

New York, July 6.—(AP)—Richard H. Crowe, 41, charged with stealing $883.680 from the National City Bank of which he was assistant manager, was sentenced today in federal court to three years in jail.

He was placed on probation also for five years after completion of his term.

Crowe, who pleaded guilty May 24 to four counts of an indictment, faced a possible maximum penalty of 45 years in prison and a fine of $30,000.

Weather Too Wet Or Too Dry For Farmers In N.C.

Raleigh, July 6.—(AP)—For North Carolina farmers, the weather is either too wet or too dry. It all depends on where they live.

Weather and crop reporting authorities said today that for the past few weeks it has been too wet in most of the state—in the extreme west, along the northern border and from Raleigh to the coast.

The entire southern Piedmont was reported as dry with "very dry" conditions reported for Iredell, Rowan, Davidson, Cabarrus, Stanly and portions of Mecklenburg, Lincoln and Catawba counties.

Frank Parker, federal-state crop statistician said that the crop situation is worse in some of the areas listed as too wet than in the dry portions.

He pointed out that the rains have kept farmers from cultivating their crops at a time when grass and weeds were growing rapidly.

In the dry area, he added, there is "no evidence of serious damage." It is largely a cotton country, and "cotton likes that sort of weather."

Parker said that all things considered crops this year are not as good as they were last year. All grain and fruits were hurt by a combination of mild winter weather followed by a freeze in the late spring, and corn is not as good as it was last year.

General crop conditions were listed as: tobacco, fair to good with some tieher poor or very good; peanuts, fair to very good, mostly fair; peaches, poor; cotton, fair to good; corn, fair to very good.

Tobacco Men Fear Cut In Purchases By Britain

Danville, Va., July 6.—(AP)—The first reaction of tobacco executives here to the statement of Sir Stafford Cripps in London today was an expressed apprehension that Great Britain may cut her purchases of bright leaf on the Southern markets.

The reference to existing contracts and commitments remaining in force was not considered a blanket assurance that the $110,000,000 earmarked for American purchases this year will be spent. One dealer with a large English business said that this undoubtedly referred to tobacco now in transit to England and which will be paid for as soon as it has entered the customs house.

Found Overpaid In Non-Support

Gastonia, N.C., July 6.—(AP)—Judge Julius T. Sanders found an unusual angle to a non-support case in Municipal Court today.

Ordinarily, he has trouble with defendants who have fallen behind in payments to their wives and families. Ernest Haynes, 21-year-old Gastonian, was an exception.

He was brought into court when his wife reported he missed a $15 weekly payment. A check of the records showed that Haynes was ordered some time ago to pay her $10 weekly.

Thus, he had overpaid her $67. "Case dismissed," said the surprised judge.

Pitt Commissioners Okay Road Requests

Eight Petitions For Improving Roads Approved; Health Department Asks For Additional School Nurses

The Pitt County commissioners in their first meeting of the new fiscal year yesterday approved eight petitions for improving roads in the county and heard a request from Dr. Grady G. Dixon of Ayden, chairman of the state board of health, and local health and school authorities for additional nurses to work with school children of the county.

Dr. Dixon, Dr. T. G. Basnight, acting county health officer, and J. H. Rose, superintendent of Greenville schools, appeared before the commissioners and asked that additional funds be placed in the budget for the health department for hiring one or two additional nurses to work principally with school children in the county. The matter was taken under consideration by the board for final action Thursday night when the commissioners will meet to approve the county budget for the fiscal year.

The commissioners reappointed Arthur B. Corey as county veteran service officer for a one year term, and voted to exempt the Farmville VFW post from payment of license tax due the county for a carnival held in Farmville sponsored by the organization.

J. H. Rose requested the commissioners to cancel a request for a loan of $30,000 to the Greenville school district from the state library fund which was approved by the commissioners in their last meeting. Rose requested the commissioners to approve a loan of $16,000 for the Greenville school district rather than the $30,000 loan which was originally asked for. The request was approved by the board.

Of the eight road petitions approved by the commissioners yesterday and forwarded to the district highway commissioner, six were from Fountain township. From "Pacheco township" there was a petition for widening and straightening the old Washington to Robersonville road, and from Swift Creek township there was a petition for widening and improving the Clay Root Neck road.

The petitions from the Fountain township were: to hardsurface the road from Sharp Point to highway number 43 (the Falkland-Pine Tops highway); to improve the road from Joyner's Crossroads to Fountain; to improve the roads from the Edgecombe County line through Owens Crossroads and Fields Crossroads to highway number 256; to improve the road from Dilda Grove church to the Edgecombe County line; to improve the road from Richard Tugwell's farm to Joyner's Crossroads and to Fountain; and to improve the road from Bennie Phillips' store to Kings Crossroads.

The board also adopted recommendations from the county health department concerning the handling of milk at the county home, and forwarded the recommendations to O. J. Tucker, superintendent of the home.

During the meeting the commissioners placed new scrolls in the jury boxes of the county which are to be used for the next two years. Two panels were drawn from the boxes for the August term of court.

The board authorized the sheriff's department to send a man to New Jersey to bring back to Pitt County Garland Willis, who is wanted for non-support in the county.

The meeting was adjourned until tomorrow night when the board will meet to iron out the details of the county's budget for the 1949-50 fiscal year.

Lower House Hit By 'Freeze Out'

Adjournment Hoped Raised By Faulty Air Conditioning

Washington, July 6.—(AP)—Congressional leaders hoping that congress will adjourn before long found an unexpected ally today in the form of an artificial cold wave.

As far as the House of Representatives is concerned, it might be a "freeze out" before long.

The air conditioning system is working too well.

Members in the rear of the caucus room which is serving as a house chamber during Capitol repairs felt the "cold wave" more than others. The huge ducts through which the cooled air is blown into the chamber enter from the back of the room and the temperature there is considerably lower than up front.

Rep. Elsworth (R-Ore.) summed up his reactions: "Let's go home." Elsworth coupled the Washington heat (except in the rear of the house quarters) along with cramped space as a good reason to go home.

"I don't think there is a single constructive thing congress can do by staying in session," he told a reporter. "We should get the appropriation bills out of the way and get out."

The Housing Problem

Federal Help In Clearing Slums Is Involved Problem; How It Is To Be Done Under The Housing Bill; Extent Of Government Aid; How Used; Loans And Grants

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, July 6.—(AP)—Jones lives in a slum. What's the government's new program—slum-clearance and public housing—going to mean to him?

Maybe nothing. Maybe a lot. It depends on whether his own city wants to take part in the program. No city has to.

The government itself doesn't go in and tear down a slum or even start slum-clearance going. It stands on the sidelines like a combination banker and rich uncle.

It's ready to help with money—in gifts and loans—any city which wants to tear down a slum and set up low-rent public housing for low-income people.

The program goes like this: A city has a bad slum. It wants to get rid of it. It gets permission from its state legislature to do so and it gets a small loan from the government to survey the whole problem.

This includes public hearings where people with an interest in seeing the slum stay or go can speak their place. Suppose, then, the city decides to go ahead and tear down the slum. That's where the big money comes in.

Buying up the slum property and tearing down the rotten buildings may take a lot of money, more than the city can spare, even though the city gets some of it back later by selling the leveled-off land.

The government steps in. It's willing to stand two-thirds of any loss on the deal. The city must agree to bear the other one-third of any loss.

The government is willing to lose up to $500,000,000 on slum clearance to get these blights out of the way and their tenants moved into better low-rent homes.

So, for slum-clearance, in the next five years the government is prepared to hand out $1,500,000,000 to the cities in loans and grants, this way:

1. Loans — $1,000,000,000. This money all has to be paid back by the cities at 2 1/2 to 3 percent interest. But they get 40 years to do it.

2. Grants — $500,000,000. These grants are really gifts which the cities never have to pay back. Since the loans have to be paid back, but the grants don't. The most the government figures to lose on all slum clearance is $500,000,000 in grants.

But—And this is important for Jones and his neighbors in the slum—the government will not help any way in getting rid of a slum unless the slum dwellers forced to move can be relocated, in housing at least not worse than they left and at rent within their means.

And people forced out of a slum, because the city is tearing it down, (Continued on page eight)

U.S. Help For China

Chiang Kai-Shek Again Warns Communists Will Conquer If U. S. Does Not Help Nationalists; Undoubtedly True, But What He Did Not Say Also Important

By JAMES D. WHITE

Chiang Kai-Shek has said it again. —If America doesn't come to his aid, the Communists will take all China and eventually Asia.

Chiang has said this many times. It still is true that because of the profound unrest and poverty in both China and Asia, Communism has easy going there.

But the Generalissimo is talking about only half the questions. He tells us what will happen if he doesn't get American aid. He does not say what will happen if he gets it.

Maybe that would be because he has sunk to his present low estate during a period when he was getting help from America.

At V-d day he was still a national hero, symbol of China's fight against the Japanese invader. Today Chiang is the "retired" leader of a Vestigial government whose hold on the Chinese mainland is conditioned largely by how soon the Reds decide to push it off entirely.

To put it into this fix while getting American aid, and the evidence is that one or both of the things are true: Either the aid wasn't enough, or was misused to such an extent that it didn't do what it was supposed to do.

Both are probably true. American aid to Chiang to fight the Communists (one figure cited is $4 billion) was never more than a fraction of that voted for Europe. And the story of what happened to American-equipped and trained Chinese armies is one of the most profound stories in futility and corruption the world has witnessed for some time.

Would fresh aid be any better used? The answer lies in another question—Is what is left of the Chinese Nationalist government any more capable of using help efficiently?

There is no concrete evidence of that, and in fact the little evidence available is that what resistance there is left in China depends upon regional chieftains like the Moslems in the Northwest whom Chiang never could depend upon in the past.

Piano Recital Is Well Received Tuesday Evening

Elizabeth Drake, pianist and faculty member of the department of music at East Carolina Teachers College, appeared Tuesday evening in a recital in the Austin auditorium on the campus and played before an appreciative audience of approximately 250 people. Present to hear Miss Drake were students townspeople of Greenville, and a group of out-of-town guests.

As solo numbers Miss Drake played a varied group of selections. The opening number, a sprightly sonata by Scarlatti, was followed by "Sonatine," by the modern composer Wandell Keeney. Selections by Chopin and Brahms concluded the first part of the program.

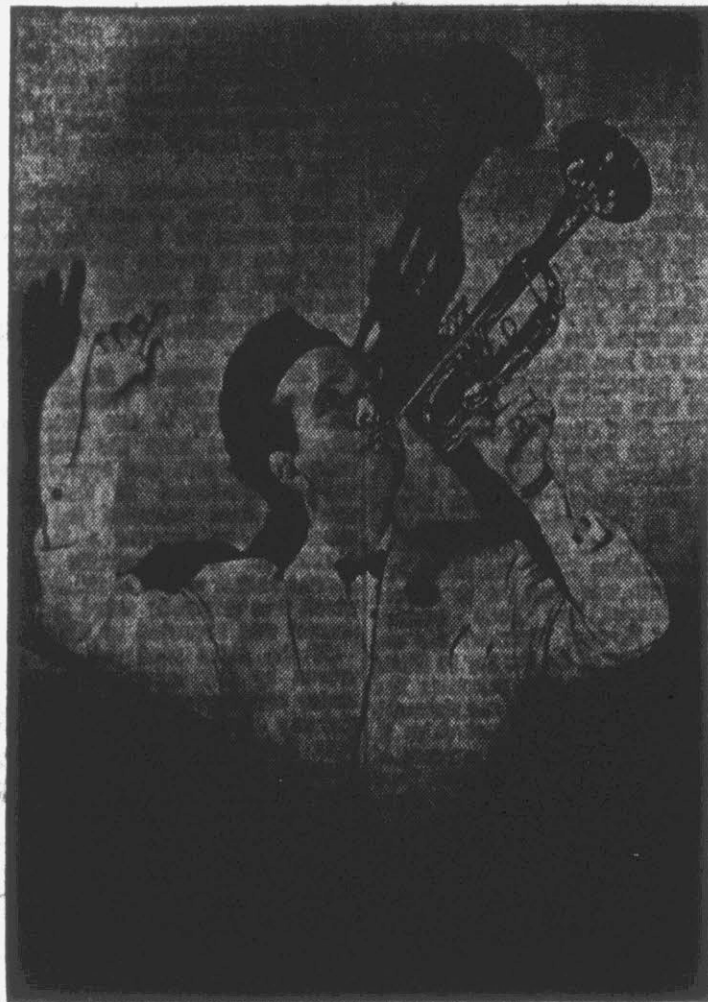

With Mrs. Margaret Gilbert Miss Drake closed her recital with a two-piano arrangement of Cesar Franck's "Symphonic Variations." Greenville pianist, at second piano this, as well as other numbers on the program, was received with enthusiastic applause.

Following the recital Miss Drake was honor guest at an informal reception in Ragdale Hall. Hostesses were Misses Lena Ellis, Elizabeth Walker, and Mary Greene of the college faculty.

Flue-Cured Leaf Sold To Germany

Raleigh, N. C., July 6—(AP)—Approximately 15,000,000 pounds of flue-cured tobacco were purchased recently for Western Germany, according to the president of Tobacco Associates.

"Some burley and cigar leaf tobacco also was included in this purchase," J. B. Hutson said yesterday in his monthly report for June. Hutson is president of the corporation, which was formed to promote the export of the golden leaf. "The recent sale," says the report, "includes all of the unsold stocks of the 1946 crop held by the Stabilization Corporation."

German manufacturers and dealers are expected to make purchases on warehouse floors through U. S. dealers during the upcoming marketing season, the report said.

Power Lineman Electrocuted On First Work Day

Roanoke Rapids, July 6—(AP)—Death claimed a young power lineman on his first day at work yesterday when his arm came in contact with a 7,200-volt line in Littleton.

William Bradshaw, 32-year-old employee of the Carolina Power and Light Company, was electrocuted while he and other linemen were working on a power line on the main street of Littleton. Observers said he was held for about five to seven minutes on the line before he could be freed.

Bradshaw, originally from Suffolk, Va., was a resident of Warrenton.

Not So Hot Today

The highest temperature in the Greenville area yesterday was 94 degrees, the local observer for the U. S. Department of Agriculture reported today. Highest temperature the same day last year was 95 degrees. The lowest temperature last night was 71 degrees. At 8 a. m. today, the mercury was at 78 degrees, and rising. At 10:30 a. m. it registered 81.

Says Suicide Of Son Due Music

Winter Haven, Fla., July 6—(AP) A father said music was responsible for the death of his son, a moody, talented high school junior. Seventeen-year-old William C. Raccley shot himself at his home here Monday night.

The youth telephoned a girl friend just before firing the shot and she heard the explosion over the telephone as she pleaded with him not to shoot.

"Music affected him deeply," said the father, R. C. Raccley. "I know that was the cause of it all. He always was very sensitive and music meant everything to him."

Teachers considered the youth a promising pianist and composer. The girl, 16-year-old Betty Thrasher, said he had been out with her a few times but did not go with him steadily.

"The girl had nothing to do with it," the elder Raccley said. He added his son apparently thought Miss Thrasher, also a musician, understood him.

Just before shooting himself the youth played a record of Gerashwin's "Rhapsody In Blue."

Controls Reduce Chick Mortality

Minneapolis—(AP)—Not even babies in the most fatiduous hospital get better temperature and humidity attention than Richard Cole's chickens—and one result is that he boasts a chick mortality rate less than a third as high as the commercial average.

Cole, a young war veteran, has a 7,000-bird brooder house with special automatically controlled heat and humidity features. In 10-week tests he has shown a chick mortality rate of less than 3 per cent compared to the customary 10 per cent. Engineers of the (Minneapolis Honeywell) company who installed them say the control arrangements are more elaborate than most home or business-building air conditioning.

The brooder house has a radiant-panel heating system under the floor, warmed by a conventional oil-fired furnace. It is a three-section house, with heating plant and storage bins in the center section, while each of the side sections has a capacity of 3,500 chickens. The building is so designed that one man can handle 7,000 birds a day Cole said.

There are exhaust fans operating from humidifiers, and control which "sense" coming temperature changes and automatically make adjustments in inside temperature to compensate for change in wind direction, sun effect or other climatic variations outdoors.

R. C. Thomas, Textile Workers Union of America, CIO, said that the letters were written to Frank H. Leslie, president of the Hart Mill. The Hart Mill strike goes into its eighth week Thursday.

Mural Magic For Your Walls

ENCHANTED LIVING ROOM . . . King-size wallpaper scenic gives illusion of great picture window overlooking placid mountain lake. Enlargements are achieved by new process which produces 6-in. by 15 ft. black-and-white or sepia toned murals. A California firm produces them for less than $30.

By JACK QUIGG

Los Angeles—If you would like to change a wall in your home into a picturesque seascape or a view of a placid mountain lake, now is your chance. A new process by which ordinary scenic photos are reproduced—king size—on wallpaper permits you to gaze at your favorite scenic spot to your heart's content.

A California firm recently began producing such enlargements by a special printing process. In place on a wall, each mural measures 6 ft. 6 in. by 15 feet. Its six 40 by 60 inch component panels are applied with paste like any wallpaper. By using only the center panels, the size of the picture may be reduced to fit almost any wall.

The murals, which are washable, are manufactured in black and white or sepia tones. Treated so as to appear three dimensional, they have the same effect as an added window—pushing the walls back and enlarging the room.

Thus far, the manufacturers have made plates for three murals, a Carmel, Calif., seascape and shots of Reflection Lake in Mt. Lassen

National Park and Jackson Lake in the Grand Tetons.

They plan eventually to have a library of several hundred prints.

Peter C. Goldsmith, a Los Angeles advertising man, began research on printing processes a year ago. He settled on a method by which a standard four by five inch photographic negative is enlarged to 120 square feet. His first step is to make a 20 by 30 inch print. This is retouched, photographed, and reproduced on a 40 by 60 inch printing plate. Six of these make a complete mural.

Maryland And Virginia Argue Border Rights In Man's Death

Crisfield, Md., July 6—(AP)—Did Earl Nelson meet his death in the Maryland or Virginia waters of Chesapeake Bay?

Virginia officials contend the 60-year-old Crisfield fisherman was crabbing illegally within their territory when he was stopped by a Virginia Conservation patrol plane. He was shot accidentally yesterday when he tried to wrest a rifle from a Virginia deputy. Charles M. Lankford, Jr., Fisheries commissioner of that state, said.

Maryland authorities said, on the other hand, that eyewitnesses reported Nelson was in the waters of his home state when he was shot. He was found bleeding and unconscious from a hip wound by fellow crabbers and died before he could be taken to shore.

Authorities of both states, in obedience to orders from their governors, started an intensive investigation. Separate meetings were to be held here and in Salisbury, Md., today.

The shooting was the latest in a long series of border incidents arising from respective fishing rights of the two states.

Rivalry has always been intense. Sporadic outbreaks of shooting have been fairly common on the lower Potomac River since colonial times.

However, the borderline area near the junction of the Tangier and Potomac sounds, where Nelson was shot, has been relatively quiet.

Police Chief Albert Rich of Crisfield said there had been a few arrests for unlicensed crossing of fishing or crabbing boundaries. Neither Maryland nor Virginia permits commercial crabbing by out of states.

"We just didn't take it seriously around here," Rich said. "At least we didn't until this happened."

Enforcement officers from both states were keeping a wary eye for any signs of a flareup.

Resentment was reported keen among Maryland watermen.

Calvin Marsh, Jr., of Smith Island, Md., told officials he was about 150 feet from Nelson's boat when the Virginia plane landed. He said a man got out and started to talk to Nelson. Then, Marsh related, he heard a shot, the man got into the plane, and it taxied off.

Marsh found Nelson slumped in the bottom of the boat.

Virginia Commissioner Lankford said Nelson was shot when he tried to get a rifle away from David Acree of Weirwood, Va., who had been deputized yesterday to assist the pilot of the Conservation plane. No charges were placed against Acree, who is in his mid-20's.

"We have had many complaints over many months from Virginia watermen about Maryland water-men coming over into Virginia and oystering and crabbing in express violation of the Virginia statute," he said at Exmore, Va., in a statement.

Some Greek cynics led lives somewhat similar to those of early Christian hermits.

Strength FOR THE DAY

CONCERNING SNOBBERY IN GENERAL

Snobs are usually filled with a sense of arrogant pride over things that they had no hand whatsoever in producing. They are proud of their social position, or their wealth—both of which are usually inherited—or their brains, given them by intellectual forebears, or their cleverness. The man who makes his own fortune is almost never a snob. The people who start at the bottom and attain high position in life are generally filled with a sense of fellowship for all men. It is their descendants who assume the reprehensible characteristics which cause everyone to despise them.

Inherited wealth is nothing over which to work up pride. Neither are inherited brains, inherited strength or inherited social position. We can endure a little pride and boasting from a man who started at the bottom rung of the ladder and by honesty and diligence got to the top. But we can stand no pride or boasting from his son or daughter.

Snobbery is a disease which lays hold on lives that have too richly fed upon advantages someone else secured. The snob feels insecure and he should. Everyone is willing to take off his hat to the man of privilege who uses his privilege to some good end, but no one has any use for the type of chap who regards privilege as a rocking chair in which to take his ease.

EMERGENCY IN THE 49TH STATE

For more than eight weeks approximately 2,000 organized longshoremen in Hawaii have tied up shipping into the islands, and have virtually brought the business of the would-be 49th state to a complete halt.

Yet the United States government, which for years has wielded the big stick to help other nations out of internal chaos, has allowed the incident in its own back yard to go on with the possibility of wrecking the territory's economy hanging in the balance.

Under the direction of Leftist Harry Bridges, the CIO International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's union has stopped shipping through Hawaiian ports which already has cost islanders an estimated $13,000,000. If tin cans for preserving the $63,000,000-a-year pineapple crop can not be obtained within the islands by the time the fruit ripens in mid-July, the entire harvest may rot in the fields.

Numbers of small businesses in the islands have been reported forced out by the shipping tie-up, and unemployment in the islands has risen to over 18,500 and increases daily.

A state of emergency truly exists in Hawaii, and the United States government should take adequate measures to cope with the situation, rather than allow a handful of left-wing inspired longshoremen stagnate the economy of its most valuable possession.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By JANE EADS

Washington—When pert and pretty Olga Arnold read books by people about their careers as chicken farmers, keepers of boarding houses and such, she decided to set down her experiences as a lady lobbyist.

Her book, "I'll Meet You in the Lobby," to come out next winter, is "just a personal account," she says — "no expose, defense, study or analysis."

Born in Buffalo, Wyo., on a cattle ranch, Olga got her first smack of lobbying as a girl when she accompanied her father, Col. Jack Moore, about the state lobbying for public schools. Later she did a little lobbying on her own for new buildings for the University of Wyoming, where she was a student.

After working for the Sheridan Post Enterprise in Sheridan, Wyo., and the Denver Post, she finally got back to lobbying in the early years of the war.

She had come to Washington with her late husband, Carl Franklin Arnold, brother of trust-buster Thurman Arnold. Her husband, former dean of the law school at the University of Wyoming, came here as a member of the legal staff of the U. S. Maritime Commission in the spring of 1941. He died that December. Stranded, Olga looked about for a job.

For two and one-half years she worked for a food company as a lobbyist for repeal of the oleomargarine tax. She made three three-month transcontinental surveys, talked to legislators, consumer groups, editors, women's clubs and influential citizens.

"I never had a chartered plane, never an orchid to give a congressman's wife. I never slipped a Congressman a case of scotch. I couldn't even afford to stand him to a beer. I had no expense account."

During the later years of the war she worked O.W.I. in New York and London, lobbying, she says, for good will abroad. Returning to Washington, she was a lobbyist, paid by interested citizens groups, for the Marshall plan and the Voice of America program on Capitol Hill.

Lobbying, she believes, is the democratic process, though sometimes it

Somebody Told Me . . .

By I. J. (JACK) EDWARDS, JR.

Tomorrow when you go about your daily tasks notice how many of your friends confront you with a comment about the weather. In the winter it's too cold, in the summer it's too hot, and in the spring the weather is so pleasant that we hate to work.

Conversations about the weather are the greatest device in the world for us to use in displaying our friendliness. At least one third of the time the weather is of very little consequence to most of us, but the small talk that it brings about is important.

We might as well face it: If it weren't for the weather we would have very little to talk about. And our comfort is determined by the weather, so we can't help anticipating it. The weather report is the most widely-read item in any newspaper.

Since World War II the weather conversations have been run a close second by veterans telling ear-bending war stories. Most of us learned long ago that mentioning the war to a veteran is a costly mistake. If you let one of us get wound up it's hard to get away.

Patriotism goes a long way, but many non-veterans have simply decided that hearing these involved tales is taking loyalty too far, so they refuse to listen.

Try as I might, I can't blame anyone for refusing to hear these stories, but I do think that every veteran should be given the floor for at least one war story. Wife Rachel, poor thing, has pretended to listen to all of mine, and she has picked the one that she would least hate to hear again. This is the first and last war story that will appear in this column.

The Army carefully weighed my lack of ability and decided that I was perfectly suited to the job of training truck drivers.

This duty landed me in Cheyenne, Wyoming, where it often snows in June. A new commanding officer took charge of the school while I was there, and he was a tough customer. The first day he was there he surveyed the truck line, where the GI mechanics were working on the trucks.

One of the mechanics was hard to beat when it comes to fixing trucks, but he just didn't catch on to military discipline too easily. For example, he insisted on smoking while working, which was strictly taboo in the army, on this side of the pond.

This particular mechanic was sitting on a fender puffing away when the new Major approached. If you can imagine, the Major said in a gentle voice, "Hello, Sarg. Isn't it against the rules to smoke while working on a truck?"

Without turning around, the Sarg replied, "Yep. I reckon I'd better watch myself, too. They tell me there's a new commanding officer around here that's rough as a cob. They say he's downright ornery."

The amazing thing about the story is that the Major was so proud to hear of his reputation that he walked off and left the mechanic puffing away.

And I thank you.

budget commission last fall.

COMPARATIVE—Although both general and highway funds have increased each year over the preceding period, the rate of increases has fluctuated considerably since the war. For the year ending June 30, 1946, the increase was 12.58 per cent general, 31.10 per cent highway. The 1947 report showed increase of 31.85 per cent general, 21.10 per cent highway. By 1948 the ratio of increase had dropped to 10-91 per cent in the general fund, 8.37 per cent in highway account. The report just issued shows a general fund increase of 8.40 per cent and a highway gain of 9.25 per cent over last year. Major increases have been in sales and income taxes. Sales taxes, general and beverage, represent a smaller part of the increase on the current annual tabulation.

Sidelights:—The loss for Jim Lewey last night was his seventh of the season against four wins.

The win for New Bern was their seventh over the Greensies this season; they have lost four.

That was number 14 loss for the Greensies at home this season; they have won 24 of their home games.

This was Lewey's first loss to the Bears. . . . Pappy Williams came back into the lineup last night for the first time in several days and made a grand entrance with a home run over the leftfield wall, but his glory soon vanished when the Bears clawed back with six runs.

Greenville has used nine pitchers in their last two games and in Monday night's contest it took five hurlers to put out one man.

You fans have been yelling at Pappy to change pitchers and you are certainly getting your wish.

Heartily Campbell, manager of the local radio station, is now doing the play-by-play broadcast of the Greensies' games at home and away.

New Bern had 8 men stranded on the bases and the Greensies had 8 men stranded last night. . . . If you like baseball you will enjoy that picture currently playing at the Pitt.

Ray Suggs, former Atlantic Christian College hurler, has been given his release by the Greenville club. Suggs had a record of three wins and no losses at the time of his release.

Ed Masonis, former Greenville hurler and now with New Bern, stated last night that he had been placed on the suspended list indefinitely by that club.

Wilson acquired a new outfielder yesterday. He is Fred Oliveri, former Poughkeepsie, New York, gardner. He is a third year limited man.

Ross Morrow, ailing manager of the Tobs because of the beating he received here last week, is now at home resting. Physicians say he will be able to play again in a few days.

The Roanoke Rapids newspaper is conducting a poll of Coastal Plain League sportswriters to select a mythical all-star team. The writers have been asked to make selections for each position and to state their reasons. Two pitchers are to be named together with a manager. My selection for the "dream team" will appear soon in this column.

Pappy Williams Hits Homer In First Appearance At Plate Since His Layoff To Provide Locals With Initial Lead But Rally In Second Is Fatal

By BERT MOYE
Manager Bull Hamons and his New Bern Bears trimmed the Greenville Greensies, 10 to 3, here last night for the third straight loss suffered by Manager Pappy Williams and his boys.

The Bears spotted the Greensies two runs in the first frame when Willie Mauney reached base on a fielder's choice and Pappy Williams hit one over the left field wall to clean the bases.

However, the Bears grewed heavy in the top of the second frame when they went on a six-run scoring spree to go out in front for the remainder of the game. Doubles by Hand and Howard, together with singles by Lefler and Kennedy, aided a walk gave them their two final runs.

The visitors strengthened their lead by adding two runs each in the sixth and seventh frames. In the sixth two errors and a single gave them two runs; and in the seventh two singles, a double, one error and a walk gave them their two final runs.

The Greensies' final run came in the sixth frame on error, walk and a hit.

Manager Pappy Williams used four hurlers in last night's contest as against five the previous night when it actually took five pitchers to put out one man. Quite a record Jim Pewey started on the mound for the Greensies and was relieved by the Bears and was relieved in the second frame after giving up four hits and four runs and also to receive credit for the loss. Don Purdy relieved him in the second with one out and after pitching to the next two men, one he walked, was relieved by "Iron Man" Yohn, who held the Bears to one hit for the next four and two-third frames when Charlie Nordmeyer returned to the mound for the second day in succession and pitched the remaining three innings.

The four Greenville hurlers gave up a total of nine hits, seven walks and registered four strikeouts. Neil Howard with a double and a single and Joe Wheeler with two singles led the attack for the visitors.

Neil Lefler went the route for the Bears and gave up seven hits, well scattered, with Sid Varney and Steve Denier collecting two singles each to lead the local attack.

The Greensies play at home for the third consecutive night tonight when they meet the Rocky Mount Leafs in the first of a two game series. Game time is 7:45 o'clock.

Chapter 2

Do you, James, take Lorraine ... Priscilla felt that her nerves would never let her go through this ceremony, hearing the sacred words, seeing two people's happiness. The wrong two people, her mind found a safety-valve and began to go back over long-loved memories ... the day she had first met Dennis in the place they afterward called Emerald Valley.

She had been only fourteen then, tall for her age. Chin in hand, she fell to watching the children at play there ... and to dreaming. A boy's voice startled her.

"Why can't we talk?" He stood there looking down at her and smiling. "I came here to study," he explained, indicating the huge book under his arm. "But I say you—and now I can't concentrate." Priscilla burst out laughing in spite of her mother's admonitions against permitting strange boys to speak to her. She stared at the book he carried. "What on earth could that big book be about?"

The boy seated himself lengthily beside her on the ground. "I'm a law student at the University," he said, nodding toward the campus which was only a short distance away. He spoke with a shy whimsicality that attracted Priscilla immediately.

Though Dennis was only twenty-two at that time, to the fourteen-year-old Priscilla he seemed as old as her father. He knew so many interesting things. For an entire year they met regularly in Emerald Valley and when Priscilla's home came cold, at Priscilla's home. It wasn't until the April Priscilla was sixteen that they spoke of love. It was the beginning of something for both of them—something which should have meant their two lives together.

Everything, it seemed, happened to Priscilla in April. And it was in April he had come to Riverdale to say goodbye to his girl, to Priscilla. For a long time they walked that day beside the brook, their arms entwined, their hearts as one. They talked of many things. They planned their wedding. It was to take place the minute Dennis was back and out of the Army, no matter what time that happened to be ...

If any man among you, dreamed of this, he should not just cause why these two should not be joined together ... Priscilla looked up quickly—and looked into two of the darkest, most daring eyes she had ever seen. He must have been staring at her during the entire ceremony.

As the wedding guests crowded around James and Lorraine, the male contingent clamoring politely to kiss the bride, Priscilla saw one of James' guests walking toward her. Lumbering might have been the word, except that, for all his weight and build, he moved with a fair amount of grace. It was the owner of the daring eyes who came over to her. He did not wait for an introduction.

"I'd rather kiss the bride than the bride," he announced and, to Priscilla's shock, boldly did so. "No one," she stated flatly to the possessor of the broad shoulders, "is supposed to kiss the bride." "I wanted to," he said simply. He was taking her by the arm over her head, and she thought furiously. He was taking her by the arm over her head, and she thought furiously. He was taking her by the arm over her head, and she thought furiously.

"Do you," she asked coldly, "always follow your impulses that way?"

He grinned at her in a way that was hard to resist, hard to freeze out.

"Depends on what you mean by 'that way,'" he told her. "Sometimes I'm slower. Sometimes I even wait long enough to be introduced."

Priscilla could not keep from smiling. She had never met such audacity before.

"You're Priscilla Hayden, ain't ya?" he was asking, and Priscilla

Jews In Karachi Start Migrate

Karachi—(AP)—A Jewish party of about 12 men, women, and children is migrating from Pakistan to Israel in July. There are about 400 Jews in Karachi and this is the first contingent to migrate. The migrating party includes business people who have been in this part of the world for years. They say they hope for "better prospects" in Israel.

Dressing a Princess

ROYAL ENSEMBLE ... For a garden party, Princess Margaret Rose wore the pink tulle gown at left over a pink and black dotted chiffon frock with fluting panels.

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Fashion Editor

When Princess Margaret Rose of England selects clothes for a trip she doesn't go shopping in the local department stores, like most ordinary mortals. Instead she calls in her favorite dressmaker, outlines her needs, and then waits until he submits sketches for her approval.

Norman Hartnell, the London designer who makes most of the dresses for England's royal family, designed the complete wardrobe for Princess Elizabeth.

Princess Margaret's recent Italian holiday, and already is at work on clothes for her forthcoming visit to the United States.

After the original sketches are approved, Hartnell visits the palace with fabrics and discusses all details. All fittings are done at the palace, and no models are made of any dresses for the royal family.

Hartnell created Queen Elizabeth's wardrobe for her American trip before the war, and designed the wedding dress and trousseau for Princess Elizabeth.

Russians Stress Propaganda Goal

Moscow—(AP)—"Pravda" said in a leading editorial that "a certain improvement" has been achieved this year in the political education of party members and candidates.

"In the course of the gigantic work of directing socialist construction," said the paper, "the party has succeeded in training hundreds of thousands of propagandists. It cannot, however, be said that all propagandists answer in their knowledge and experience to the high demands made on them."

"In some parts there are still traces of formalism and scholasticism in the organization of students. Lively discussion is often replaced by the question-answer method."

"Pravda" said that in preparing for the new scholastic year main attention must be paid to improving further the propagandist personnel.

A fresh instance of the party's concern for rising the level of the ideological, theoretical training and methodological knowledge of propagandists was the decision of the Central Committee of the party to organize courses for the leaders of political schools and study circles on study of the biographies of Lenin and Stalin and the history of the party.

Husbands Learn They Have Same Wife After War

Hamburg, Germany—(AP)—Two German officers met in a Russian prison camp. They soon discovered that they lived in the same German town, in the same street, at the same number—and had the same wife.

This was how it came about, according to the Hamburg newspaper "Abendblatt." A German major, returning to the front from home leave in 1942, told his wife to marry

Lower California Linked To Past

Los Angeles—(AP)—On Cape San Lucas, the southernmost extremity of lower California, exists one of the last strongholds of the flora and fauna which perhaps characterized Southern California several millenniums ago. Slowly retreating from aridity and other factors, this semi-tropical area contains plant and animal life that furnish and important link with the past.

Two U. C. L. A. zoologists, Charles Lowe, Jr., and Kenneth Norris, are on an expedition to gather plant and animal specimens in the area. The expedition is being sponsored jointly by the University and the Palm Springs Desert Museum.

The zoologists report that distribution of the animals alone may tell a rather complete story about the climate changes that have taken place in southern California over a period of many years. The fact that the same species exist in isolated areas in various latitudes along the coast indicates that the arid regions in between have only recently been formed.

Lots Of Confusion When Two In Town Go By Identical Name

Whiteville, N. C., July 5.—(AP)—The Willard Coles of Whiteville have hit upon a scheme for identifying themselves. They have agreed to use their middle initials.

For a long time, Willard Cole, the grocer, and Willard Cole, the Whiteville newspaper editor, have had their troubles. They got each other's mail, telephone calls, and other's mail, telephone calls, and checks, etc. It reached a point which induced them to issue a joint statement.

"If we had any curiosity about each other's personal and financial affairs to begin with, that curiosity will be perfectly content to get our mail in the future," said the joint statement. "We appeal to all our friends, creditors and others, who may be writing us, to use our initials only or insert the middle initial 'W' in the future."

The grocer is now using his middle initial of W; editor Cole is using his G.

But even this arrangement hasn't entirely cleared the situation. This exchange was recorded:

Grocer to editor: "You must stay up mighty late at night. Every few nights I get calls at 11, 12 and 1 o'clock from people wanting to give me a new item."

Editor to grocer: "Don't mention that. You might keep somebody from calling. Those are the people who protect me when there's real news in the making. They're the best friends an editor has. And you ought to head the callers who phone me, saying, 'Willard, I'm ready to unload that corn.'"

And now the confusion's beginning to creep into the second generation. The editor's son, Billy, already is beginning to get mail belonging to the grocer's son, Billy.

First Polio Victim In Pitt Is Disclosed

A 21-year-old white woman of Greenville Route Two was the first polio victim in Pitt county during 1949, according to a report today by J. H. Rose, chairman of the county Polio fund.

Rose said the woman, Guena Jones, was stricken with the disease late in June and taken to Rex hospital in Raleigh.

The polio case, Rose said, is the first in Pitt county in over eight months, the longest period of time the county has gone without a case of the disease in several years.

John Ivey Smith Died Early Today

John Ivey Smith died in his sleep early this morning in his room in the Proctor hotel. He had been in declining health the past several years.

Funeral services will be conducted at the chapel of S. G. Wilkerson and Sons' Funeral Home at 11 a. m. Thursday by Rev. Charles J. Gable, pastor of St. Peter's Catholic Church. Burial will be in Cherry Hill cemetery.

Special prayers will be said at the funeral home at 8 p. m. Wednesday, and a requiem mass will be held at the church at 8 a. m. Thursday.

Mr. Smith, son of the late John Sparkman and Nancy Hemy Smith, was born in Pitt county. He came to Greenville to live when a child. He attended school here and at Wake Forest College, graduating from the Law School there. He was a member of the college baseball team at Wake Forest and later played professional ball for several years. For many years Mr. Smith was engaged in the tobacco business here and on other markets. For some years he was a buyer for T. A. Person Tobacco Company in Greenville. He later became a justice of the peace in Greenville and continued in office until his death.

He was preceded in death by a sister, Miss Apple Smith, who died in 1935. He was a member of St. Peter's Catholic church. His surviving relatives include a number of cousins living throughout Pitt county.

The flag should be displayed during school days in or near every schoolhouse.

Cotton Men Ask Quota Revisions

Washington, July 6.—(AP)—A cotton industry committee recommended to Congress today that there be no marketing quotas on cotton until the supply reaches 100 per cent of normal.

The industry spokesman urged, however, that the secretary of agriculture be authorized to apply acreage allotments when the supply is less than 100 per cent of normal.

Dr. C. R. Sayre, secretary of the committee, gave the industry views to a house agriculture subcommittee considering legislation on cotton producers want to keep the industry as free of government controls as possible.

Chairman Pace (D-Ga.) and other committee members suggested a provision to prevent growers who exceed their allotments from being credited with the additional acreage in future years.

Mr. Pace said he felt there would be no penalty on "non-cooperators" who plant their entire farms in cotton.

Loss of government benefits and soil conservation payments for other crops would not be effective in areas where "leisure corporate farmers" shift solely to cotton, he said.

Henry Busse And His Orchestra Here Thursday

Henry Busse, popular band leader, and his orchestra will play for students of East Carolina Teachers' College and their guests at a dance to be held in the Wright auditorium on the campus Thursday evening, July 7.

Heading a musical outfit which is known from coast to coast and which has recorded its music and appeared in movies such as "Rhapsody in Blue," Busse is popular himself as a trumpet player. He is famous as the man who did a great deal to tone down the blare of jazz music, for he invented the mutes used in brass instruments. These are the metal gadgets that make soft and tricky sounds when placed in trombones and trumpets.

The dance Thursday evening will be the first big dance staged at the college during the summer session. It will be informal and will be open to college students and guests invited for the occasion. In charge of arrangements for the evening is William Sutton of New Bern, president of the Student Government Association at East Carolina this summer.

At that time he was a farmer. Later he worked for the Export Tobacco Company, Greenville Tobacco Company and the Blount Fertilizer Company. He was a member of Eighth Street Christian Church.

Funeral services will be conducted from the Greenville Funeral Home on Dickinson avenue, Thursday at 4 p. m. Dr. H. Glenn Haney, the pastor, assisted by Rev. Leon Russell, pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, will officiate. Burial will be in Greenwood cemetery.

Arabs Watching French Policies In Desert Waste

AP Newfeatures

Tripoli — Is France planning to add the strategic desert wastes of Fezzan to her African empire? Libian Arab leaders claim the answer is "yes."

On the map Fezzan looks like a remote and unimportant place. It is the southern desert of the old Italian colony of Libya. Only about 35,000 desert warriors populate its 125,000 square miles. But Fezzan guards the borders of Southwestern Algeria as well as the approaches to the riches of French West and Equatorial Africa.

It was occupied by the French after the late Gen. LeClere led a heroic task force across the heart of Africa from Lake Chad. They joined up with the British 8th Army and helped rout Field Marshal Rommel's elite Afrika Korps. Theoretically the future of Fezzan, as well as all Libya, is up to the United Nations General Assembly. But the Assembly has failed to reach any agreement.

"France definitely is planning to stay in Fezzan permanently," said Taher Bey el Murayyeh, president of the Tripolitanian National Congress, in an interview. The Arab population wants independence—but the French give them no chance to express their feelings. When the four power commission went to Fezzan last year everything was done in advance so the feelings of the people would not be expressed.

Taher Bey, 40-year-old son of Achmed Bey who was president of the short-lived 1933 Tripolitanian Arab Republic, said "an iron curtain—absolute Maginot Line" has been thrown around the Fezzan by the French so that the outside world won't find out what they were doing there.

(In Cairo, Arab sources said they had "definite information" a permanent French protectorate over Fezzan was planned.)

Albuquerque, N. M.—A veteran sheriff says the gold from the storied Adams' Diggings has been found and spent. And, he adds, the gold was stolen, not picked up from the floor of a hidden New Mexico canyon.

Robert W. "Bob" Lewis, now 83, knew Adams while he was a cowpuncher and peace officer in old Socorro county. It was as big as many states and sprawled across the lava badlands where the treasure was supposed to be.

The Adams' Diggings story began in 1864. Then Adams and a companion staggered into Fort Apache, Ariz., to tell of a massacre by Apache Indians of all others of their party of 22 shortly after discovery of gold.

They said a friendly Indian had taken the party to a hidden canyon where "you could pick up enough gold in a day to load a pack horse." A large hoard was gathered before the massacre, Adams and many others hunted for the treasure, but none ever reported finding it.

In 1889, Lewis said he guided Adams on one of his searches to the site of old Camp Wingate, an Army outpost near the present town of Grants, N.M. But he said Adams feigned terror because of sheepherders' camp fires and wouldn't go on.

Lewis tells this story: "It was in 1918 that I finally located the skeletons Adams had described. They were at the mouth of a canyon about 35 miles northwest of Magdalena. In the canyon, I also found the remains of the cabin Adams had described."

In fact, I found everything but the gold. That, I learned, was found years ago by a Magdalena sheepherder who had sense enough to keep his mouth shut. He received $20,000 for it here in Albuquerque—about half what it was worth—returned to Magdalena and spent the remainder of his life on a ranch he bought with the money."

Washington, July 6.—(AP)—Eight students from the Erasmus Hall High school are publishing a book about Col. David Marcus. Col Marcus was killed in the fighting in Palestine.

The book about him is for children from six to 10. The project started as a class exercise and grew into a major program. House Votes Gold Medal Honoring Alben Barkley

Washington, July 6.—(AP)—The House voted today for coinage of a gold medal "in recognition of the distinguished service of Vice President Alben W. Barkley."

The government would keep the medal, but would sell bronze duplicates to the public.

The measure authorizes an appropriation of $2,500 and directs that the treasury department determine a suitable design and inscription for the medal. The bill now goes to the Senate.

Presenting the bill, sponsored by Rep. Cooley (D-NC) to the house banking committee said:

"In more than a third of a century of service to his country few men have ever so endeared themselves in the hearts of their fellowmen as has the present vice President of the United States."

"As a distinguished member of the senate and now as vice-president his wise counsel and sound statesmanship have earned for him the ever-increasing admiration and respect of both his colleagues and the American people."

Then he boarded a plane. His wife, who had received first aid training, was along as his nurse. She was to be with him when he died in the strange country—and, she said, "I thought I would return alone."

Some 10,000 miles and four days later he was wheeled into Harkness Pavilion Presbyterian Hospital in New York. Specialists soon found that he had a spinal infection and not cancer. They operated.

He spent eight weeks in a cast, then changed to braces. A month ago he left the hospital.

Now he's looking around over this country. He and his wife are visiting in Senatobia, Miss., to buy some cattle, and he came here yesterday for a civic luncheon.

Tomorrow they leave for Kansas City and other points in the west to look at more livestock. Then, on Aug. 4, they plan to fly back to New South Wales—and, Kirkby hopes, a new life.

Services Seeking New Graduates

A program to interest high school graduates in enlisting in the U. S. Army or U. S. Air Force will get under way soon, Capt. Ralph W. Ferriss said today.

"High school graduates," the captain explained, "are an excellent source of the high type, intelligent young men and women the services are looking for today."

Capt. Ferriss added that the two services can now accept only a limited number of volunteers, so standards are high.

"We literally choose only the best," he said. "A young man or woman who is accepted for the army or the air force today has every reason to be proud."

The two services operate more than 300 technical training courses giving the best technical training in the world. Under new career guidance plans, great progress is being made toward placing enlistees in jobs for which they are best fitted and in which they can progress furthest."

"The United States Armed Forces Institute," he said, "gives high school graduates the chance to continue their education on the college level by studying during off-duty hours. Most colleges and universities grant credits for these courses."

U.S. Help . . .

It is his firm belief that a third world war between Russia and America is inevitable.

In his request for aid he says one is inevitable—if he doesn't get American help. Informed Chinese say he thinks world war III is inevitable no matter what happens. His whole strategy is based on this idea, that war is coming. I might add that most Asiatics seem to agree with him. Their belief stems from the way they think America and Europe concentrate on western problems and Chicago. —(AP)—A group of men who do the dictating to secretaries said today that next to marriage, the boss-secretary relationship is one of the most delicate human relations problems facing men.

They came up with some pointers to the 1,000 white collar girls here for the National Secretaries' Association convention.

Some of them are: Be compatible, but not too compatible. When the boss' wife calls, be diplomatic.

Keep the tired businessmen's pills straight. No baby talk to beaux—remember the telephone is for business.

Dress with decorum, not décolleté. The boss wants to keep his mind on his work.

Correct the boss' grammar and spelling, but do it tactfully. Reach the office at least as early as the boss.

Take the details off his shoulders. Skip the flowers, but not the dust. And take messages that won't need the decoding of a top secret.

The suggestions came from a panel of businessmen which includes Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright, National Commander for the disabled American veterans; James W. Alsdorf, president of an appliance manufacturing concern; Ernest L. Byfield, noted president; Wallace O. Ollman, general manager of Chicago's largest office building; Ned H. Death Failed To Keep His Date

Memphis, Tenn., July 6.—(AP)—Five months ago an Australian rancher left home to keep a date with death. But today life is fresh and sweet and he's going home to make the most of it.

Gordon Kirkby, 40, was told he had cancer and had only a short time to live. So he decided to visit New York and take ray treatments in an effort to stay alive for a few more months.

He settled his personal business affairs and those involving the 70,000-acre Kirkby Pastoral Co., at Moree, a partnership of six brothers. He had to get a certificate from doctors saying he could not get adequate medical attention in Australia before the government would allow him to leave.

Then he boarded a plane. His wife, who had received first aid training, was along as his nurse. She was to be with him when he died in the strange country—and, she said, "I thought I would return alone."

Some 10,000 miles and four days later he was wheeled into Harkness Pavilion Presbyterian Hospital in New York. Specialists soon found that he had a spinal infection and not cancer. They operated.

He spent eight weeks in a cast, then changed to braces. A month ago he left the hospital.

Now he's looking around over this country. He and his wife are visiting in Senatobia, Miss., to buy some cattle, and he came here yesterday for a civic luncheon.

Tomorrow they leave for Kansas City and other points in the west to look at more livestock. Then, on Aug. 4, they plan to fly back to New South Wales—and, Kirkby hopes, a new life.

Services Seeking New Graduates

A program to interest high school graduates in enlisting in the U. S. Army or U. S. Air Force will get under way soon, Capt. Ralph W. Ferriss said today.

"High school graduates," the captain explained, "are an excellent source of the high type, intelligent young men and women the services are looking for today."

Capt. Ferriss added that the two services can now accept only a limited number of volunteers, so standards are high.

"We literally choose only the best," he said. "A young man or woman who is accepted for the army or the air force today has every reason to be proud."

The two services operate more than 300 technical training courses giving the best technical training in the world. Under new career guidance plans, great progress is being made toward placing enlistees in jobs for which they are best fitted and in which they can progress furthest."

"The United States Armed Forces Institute," he said, "gives high school graduates the chance to continue their education on the college level by studying during off-duty hours. Most colleges and universities grant credits for these courses."

U.S. Help . . .

It is his firm belief that a third world war between Russia and America is inevitable.

In his request for aid he says one is inevitable—if he doesn't get American help. Informed Chinese say he thinks world war III is inevitable no matter what happens. His whole strategy is based on this idea, that war is coming. I might add that most Asiatics seem to agree with him. Their belief stems from the way they think America and Europe concentrate on western problems and
