Deep Freezers Figure In Probe Of Five Percenters

Investigators Checking Into Reports That Several "Very Important People" Beside Vaughan Received Gifts

By MARVIN L. ARBOWSMITH Washington, Aug. 12—(AP)—Senator Mundt (R-SD) told the five percenter inquiry today that Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan appeared to have entered into an "ingenious plot" to fill a top army job.

This new turn in the investigation came amidst developments which: 1. Brought out the names of Mrs. Harry S. Truman, Chief Justice Vinson and other notables as reported recipients of Home Freezers from a company that has figured in the senate hearings.

The White House said it knows nothing of the matter. Vinson said he'll let the Senate Investigating committee develop the matter.

2. Prompted an announcement that Vaughan, President Truman's Army aide, has indicated he is ready to testify whenever the committee wants to hear him.

The committee is looking into the activities of so-called five-percenters—persons who seek out government contracts for others at a fee.

Vaughan's name has entered the hearing on several counts—mainly as a reported close friend of James V. Hunt, former Army officer, surplus property sales consultant and recently a management consultant.

Today the committee heard testimony that Hunt's secretary delivered to Vaughan's office in the White House last spring a memorandum from Maj. Gen. Alden H. Waitt on the fitness of certain army officers to succeed Waitt as army chemical corps chief.

No replacement was made at the time.

Waitt on July 16 was suspended as chemical chief by Secretary of the Army Gordon Gray, along with Maj. Gen. Herman Feldman, quartermaster general.

Gray said in a statement that the Senate inquiry had turned up evidence "which indicates that Gen. Waitt improperly furnished personnel data to an individual not in the military service and who was not entitled to receive such data."

On July 7, Miss Mildred Oetmeyer, Hunt's secretary, testified to committee and army investigators that Waitt dictated a memorandum to her entitled "Eligible officers for appointment to chief of chemical corps."

Parts of the transcript taken from the army inspector general's records were read to the committee today by William Rogers, chief counsel.

Senator Mundt (R-SD) exclaimed: "It looks to me like a sort of ingenious plot by which Hunt, Waitt and Vaughan have connived to cut the throats of all the other officers trying to get that job."

Rogers said Waitt has acknowledged dictating the memorandum in Hunt's office but he said both Waitt and Hunt deny that Hunt knew what was in it.

It was chairman Hoyt (D-NC) of the investigating committee who announced Vaughan's reported willingness to tell his own story.

Hoyt had called at the White House to invite Mr. Truman to attend a celebration in North Carolina next year. Asked by reporters about Vaughan, Hoyt replied: "General Vaughan has indicated his willingness to testify before the committee at any time the committee wants to hear him."

It was also Hoyt who cut short

Fight Ahead On Arms Program

Measure Barely Escaped Being Cut In Half Yesterday

Washington, Aug. 12—(AP)—Saved by the slimmest of margins from being cut almost in half, the administration's foreign arms bill faced new obstacles today in the House Foreign Affairs committee.

Its supporters still predicted, on the basis of yesterday's committee action, that the bill would emerge early next week with no major changes. They conceded that it is for a tough fight on the house floor.

By a tie vote reported as eight to eight with nine absentees, the committee rejected yesterday an amendment by Rep. Richards (D-SC) to cut—from $1,180,990,000 to $580,495,000—the amount of military aid for Atlantic Pact nations. It takes a majority of those voting to approve an amendment.

Backers of the Richards proposal may try again in committee and if they lose they will carry their fight to the house floor.

Several other money amendments were before the committee today. One by Rep. Vorys (R-Ohio) would cut the total authorization bill from the requested $1,450,000,000 to $793,960,000 with the entire program put on a stop gap basis ending next March 31.

Another Vorys amendment would

Says Russia Is Major Threat To World Security

Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg Makes Statement Before House Committee Investigating B-36 Bomber Transactions

Washington, Aug. 12—(AP)—Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg today said that Russia is the "only major military threat" to the security of the United States and the world.

He made the statement before the House Armed Services Committee, where he appeared as a witness in the investigation of the B-36 bomber and its history.

Vandenberg said "false rumors and innuendoes" brought on the investigation and that this has damaged Air Force morale. He urged the committee "to remove the burden of these charges of dishonesty" before going into other phases of the inquiry.

He also defended Air Secretary Symington, who, he said, "has labored tirelessly to produce effective and economical military air power for the defense of this country."

The tall, slender Air Force chief began by telling the committee: "There is only one major military threat to the security of the United States and the peace of the world. It is pointless to talk in riddles; this threat comes from the Soviet Union."

"The United States," said Vandenberg, "with atomic bombs in significant quantity, plus the means of delivering them, can check the aggressive designs of Soviet leaders who recognize no restraint other than force," Vandenberg said. He added:

"The only war a nation can really win is one that never starts. Until dependable means of keeping the peace exist, Vandenberg said, "the striking power of atomic weapons in the hands of this country is a prerequisite of national and world security."

Vandenberg said this must be the historical setting for the inquiry into why the Air Force pushed the B-36. And he said that he thinks the two questions are involved: "The wisdom of military decisions on the strategic use of air power, and the wisdom of depending on the B-36."

"We are convinced," Vandenberg declared, "that for the next few years the B-36 provides the spearhead for the ready-for-combat force in being which this country must constantly have at hand. Like any other aircraft it will in due time be superseded by a better one."

By October, 1946, farmers' prices reached a record peak of 33 per cent above the parity level. Then as post-war world shortages began to disappear, farm prices started downward.

Last month's level is the lowest since December, 1941. Officials expect prices to fall below the parity point by late fall if present crop production prospects are borne out.

Not all individual farm commodities have followed the pattern of the general farm price level. Each product tends to move more or less independently, depending on supply and demand.

Some products have been selling for much less than parity—four months, particularly the grains, potatoes, dairy products, eggs, cotton, and oilseeds. These products have been bringing less than the so-called fair level largely because they are available in over-supply.

Others—meat animals in particular—have been bringing much more than parity and more than the general farm price level. They, in the main, are products which are still short of demand.

The latest price survey showed, for example, that beef cattle were bringing prices 85 per cent above the parity standard, hogs 38 per cent above and lambs 76 per cent above.

How far below the so-called fair standard is it possible for farm prices to fall? That depends largely on the effectiveness and scope of government farm price support programs. The government is committed to programs designed to keep most major products from dropping below 90 per cent of parity.

By JACK BELL Washington, Aug. 12—(AP)—President Truman's assertion that Republican filibusters are delaying money bills in the senate brought GOP counter charges today that the Democrats are stalling Congress' adjournment.

Senator Morse (R-Ore) told a reporter he thinks there is a Democratic plot to keep Congress in session and thereby keep Republican lawmakers off the stump this fall.

Senator Lucas of Illinois, the Democratic leader, retorted that this is "only a figment of the Senator's imagination."

Senator Wherry of Nebraska, the GOP floor leader, and Senator Taft of Ohio, chairman of his party's policy committee, took issue with the President on the money bill question.

They called reporters together to tell them his belief that Mr. Truman, in complaining at delays, was actually reflecting on the Democratic leadership.

The President made his filibuster-delay statement at a news conference yesterday.

At the same time he brushed off the statement by former President Hoover that the nation is "on the last mile" toward collectivism because of government spending and taxation.

Asked about this, Mr. Truman replied: "It sounds funny to me. I don't know what that is, but I don't think it is so."

On another point, the President disagreed with a statement by Clarence B. Randall, president of Inland Steel, that Presidential creation of a fact-finding board in the steel labor-management dispute means that wages will be fixed by the government and collective bargaining will be ended. Mr. Truman said such boards have been set up for 15 or 20 years and they will up by the President to avert a general steelworkers' strike last July 16. His recommendations, which must be submitted to the President by Aug. 30, will not be binding on either side.

Last week, the union, in presenting its side of the case told the board it wanted a 30 cents an hour "package" increase. This would include a 12 1/2-cent wage boost plus social insurance and pensions.

Hancock also is a partner in Lehman Brothers, New York investment bankers, and a one-time associate of Bernard M. Baruch as American representative on the United Nations atomic energy commission.

He said he made his statement "merely as a businessman who has studied the basis of our National economy and is interested not only in preserving it but in aiding it to bring still further economic gain to all our people."

Expect Bumper Crops Bring Lower Prices

Price Advantages Enjoyed By Farmers Since 1941 May Be Turned Into Disadvantages Within The Next Few Months

Washington, Aug. 12—(AP)—The price advantage farmers have enjoyed since 1941 may turn into a disadvantage within a few months.

So predicted Agriculture Department economists today as they eyed prospective bumper crops to be harvested in the fall and a sharply increasing supply of pork due to hit butcher shops in a month or so.

These seasonally increasing supplies of farm products are expected to pull down prices of many products.

The department has a standard for measuring farm prices. This standard is called "parity." When prices are at the level of this standard, they are deemed to be equally fair to the farmer and those who buy his products.

A July price survey showed the farm price level to be two per cent above this parity or "fair standard."

That meant that, on the basis of this measuring system, farmers had a slight advantage over users of his products.

In the decade before the war, the consumer had all the better of it. Farm prices averaged below parity—in fact, down to 50 per cent of parity in 1933. The war, with its increased demand for food, pulled farm prices upward. In December, 1941, the farmers' long disadvantage turned into a slight advantage. Month by month the farmers' favorable position grew and grew, until price ceilings brought a halt. But removal of price controls after the war permitted further increases.

By October, 1946, farmers' prices reached a record peak of 33 per cent above the parity level. Then as post-war world shortages began to disappear, farm prices started downward.

Last month's level is the lowest since December, 1941. Officials expect prices to fall below the parity point by late fall if present crop production prospects are borne out.

Not all individual farm commodities have followed the pattern of the general farm price level. Each product tends to move more or less independently, depending on supply and demand.

More Rumors Of Coal Crisis

Possibility Of Miners' Walkout Still Being Talked

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Aug. 12—(AP)—Rumors and reports of another crisis in coal persisted today in this mountain resort where John L. Lewis' union and Northern and Western operators are holding contract talks.

One insistent report making the rounds of sources close to the coal industry is that some operators plan to stop paying into the United Mine Workers' welfare fund the 20-cent-per-ton royalty on all coal mined. This could mean a strike.

Sixty days ago next Sunday, Lewis gave notice of contract termination to the Northern and Western operators. The Taft-Hartley act requires a 60-day notice of contract termination.

Some operators, the report had it, consider that they will have no obligation after Sunday to make welfare fund payments.

All formal soft coal contracts expired June 30. The UMW has held that parts in which the termination date is specified do not come under the 60-day "cooling off" requirement of the Labor act.

There has been no confirmation of other reports that the miners would go on strike Monday or that the present three-day work week in mines east of the Mississippi would be lengthened to four or five days.

The various reports took the spotlight away from the actual negotiating sessions.

The operators lost the head of their bargaining team yesterday when Ezra Van Horn stepped out of the job. The announcement of his resignation came yesterday, just 10 days after disclosure that he has been paid $35,000 a year as the industry trustee of the UMW welfare fund.

Van Horn told reporters in Washington he had offered to withdraw as chairman of the joint negotiating conference both this year and last year, following his appointment as the operators' trustee of the UMW welfare fund.

He said there had been "some talk" among the operators about the salary disclosure.

Truman E. Johnson, secretary of the operators' negotiators declined comment on the resignation except to state that it had been accepted "with regret."

Asked about this, Mr. Truman replied: "It sounds funny to me. I don't know what that is, but I don't think it is so."

On another point, the President disagreed with a statement by Clarence B. Randall, president of Inland Steel, that Presidential creation of a fact-finding board in the steel labor-management dispute means that wages will be fixed by the government and collective bargaining will be ended. He said he made his statement "merely as a businessman who has studied the basis of our National economy and is interested not only in preserving it but in aiding it to bring still further economic gain to all our people."

Predicting that steelworkers' wage increases would swirl throughout the nation's industry, Hancock said such a development could increase total labor costs by $25,000,000,000.

By JOE HALL New York, Aug. 12—(AP)—The chairman of the American Management Association told Presidential fact-finders today that if steelworkers win their pay demands it could plunge the U. S. into a depression.

John M. Hancock, appearing in behalf of the steel industry, said that any wage increases granted the CIO United Steelworkers is likely to "go through the whole economy" and would lead "to a national pattern of another round of wage increases."

He said "the issue facing the country—and this board—is: Does America want more inflation? Can America stand more inflation?"

If the economy proceeds along lines that "will surely cause inflation," Hancock said it would mean "the end of our kind of economy."

"It means a disguised devaluation of the currency even if it does not reach the point of creating a fear of the value of all money—the ultimate result."

Russia Denounces Yugoslav Regime

Moscow Declares Tito Government Enemy Of Soviet That Is Throwing In Its Lot With The West

By EDDY GILMORE Moscow, Aug. 12—(AP)—Soviet Russia denounced the Yugoslav government today as an enemy of the Soviet Union and charged that Premier Marshal Tito's regime more and more is throwing in its lot with the West.

This sweeping Soviet attack, made public by the Moscow radio, was contained in a Russian note to Yugoslavia.

The note stated that Tito's regime as early as April, 1947, had been willing to abandon its basic claims for Austrian territory as compensation for war losses, but wished to shift the responsibility for this decision to the Soviet government.

The note was the fourth in a series of bitter diplomatic exchanges between Moscow and Belgrade over what the Yugoslavs regarded as Russia's abandonment of Yugoslav territorial claims at the recent Big Four foreign ministers conference in Paris.

(Although Tito and the Kremlin have been at odds for more than a year, the note marked the first time that Russia had used the term "enemy" in referring to the Yugoslav government.)

(Diplomatic observers in London wondered whether this latest outbreak of name calling signaled a sharper Soviet policy against the Tito government.)

Last week Tito alerted his troops in Yugoslavia Macedonia, between Communist Bulgaria and Albania, and said his "Soviet-dominated neighbors were spreading rumors of a possible Red Army invasion there. The Yugoslav leader was quoted by his official news agency as dismissing the reports as attempted intimidation, but warned he was ready to fight any invader.)

Referring to the present nature of Yugoslav-Soviet relations, the Soviet note said:

"That certain strong ties bind the Yugoslav government or chief persons in the Yugoslav government with the camp of foreign capitalists. The Yugoslav government more and more is joining up with imperialistic circles (the West) against the U.S.S.R. and is in a bloc with them."

"That the Soviet government can no longer consider the Yugoslav government as an ally."

"That the Soviet government can no longer support claims of the Yugoslav government, especially those claims which the Yugoslav government has renounced, although it hides it from the Yugoslav people."

"That if the Yugoslav government prefers a united front with the imperialists to a united front with the U.S.S.R., then let these circles

Lower Prices On Border Markets

Raleigh, N.C., Aug. 12—(AP)—All groups of tobacco were affected yesterday by price declines on the Carolina border belt flue-cured markets.

The U. S. and N.C. Departments of Agriculture reported most averages dropped $1 to $3 per hundred pounds from the day before. Few grades were off as much as $4 to $5.

Low quality hogs and primings were the only grades not hit by the drop. They increased slightly.

Wednesday's sales on the belt were reported at 9,345,081 pounds at an average of $50.63 per hundred.

Wages Up To Senate

If Upper Body Passes Minimum Wage Bill It May Differ From That Passed By The House; Senate Would Make Only Minor Changes In Present Law

Washington, Aug. 12—(AP)—Now it's up to the Senate to do something about changing the minimum wage law. The House yesterday passed a bill to do that. But unless the Senate also approves before going home, there'll be no change.

There's growing belief here the Senate will act. If it does, it probably will pass a bill different from that of the house.

That means both houses would have to compromise on a single bill, different from that of the house, before the law is changed.

Some explanation for that—and of the changes proposed by the house-passed bill—will be given here. But, first, background.

The minimum wage law was passed by Congress in 1938. Briefly, it said:

People engaged in businesses which had commerce across state lines were covered by the law. (Some kinds of businesses were specifically exempted from the law's coverage.)

This meant that the "covered" people had to be paid no less than 25 cents an hour until 1940, no less than 30 cents an hour until 1945, and 40 cents an hour after 1948.

But living costs have risen so much since 1945 that 40 cents an hour has become a very low hourly wage.

American Planners Reported Looking For Unconquered Areas And Leaders To Fight Communism; Refugee Government Hopeless

By JAMES D. WHITE

What is there left in China, by way of unconquered areas and leaders, to combat communism?

American planners reportedly are looking into this question as they form a new policy toward China. The picture is roughly like this:

The refugee national government at Canton, rejected as hopeless by the White Paper, is breaking up as predicted. Its fragments may keep going for some time.

The real source of central authority, Chiang Kai-Shek, is repairing to Formosa. There he will be safe for the time being, as the communists have no navy or air force. Their influence may grow, however, among restive Formosans who dislike Chiang's rule as much or more than they did the Japanese.

Canton and Kwangtung province appear to be left more or less open to Red conquest. Gen. Pai Chung-Hsi, defense commander, is pulling his troops off into his native province of Kwangsi. He reportedly had asked Chiang for money and men to defend Canton, and did not get them. Cantonese militarists might get their troops to fight, but Kwangtung province is saturated with well-established guerrilla outfits.

Hainan Island, off the Kwangtung coast, might supply resistance in these two provinces, but it has its own growing guerrilla trouble.

The administrative shell of the Canton government, under President Li Tsung-Jen and Premier Yen

Hsi-Shan, is headed for the wartime capital at Chungking in Szechwan province. The folks there do not welcome its return.

AP Correspondent Tom Lambert visited Chungking recently and found them openly dreading the prospect of having to support the National government again as they did during the war. They barely tolerate Gen. Chang Chun, Chiang Kai-Shek's appointed governor. His influence is further weakened by a recent incursion into Szechwan by troops loyal to Gen. Liu Wen-Hui, governor of Sikang province to the west. Liu used to run Szechwan before the war, but was ousted by Chang Chun so that Chiang Kai-Shek could move his capital there from Nanking during the Japanese war.

Szechwan's northern flank, meanwhile, is directly menaced by a Red field army striking at its northern border—the historic invasion route from South Shensi province. Its chief commercial outlets, the Yangtze river ports of Ichang and Shasi have already fallen to another Red army.

The only other areas of significance are Yunnan province in the southwest, and the Moslem areas in the northwest.

In the northwest the Reds are within 90 miles of Lanchow, key to the corridor running through the Moslem country toward Soviet Russia.

Appointment Of Clark Approved

Senate Committee Also Approves McGrath Appointment

Washington, Aug. 12—(AP)—The Senate Judiciary Committee today recommended confirmation of Attorney General Tom C. Clark to be an associate justice of the Supreme Court. The vote was 9 to 2.

The committee also recommended 9 to 9—the confirmation of Attorney J. Howard McGrath (D-RI) to be attorney general succeeding Clark.

Chairman McCarran (D-Nev) at first declined to say who voted against Clark. Later he told reporters that Senators Donnell (R-Mo) and Ferguson (R-Mich) opposed confirmation.

McCarran said he would report the committee action to the Senate at once but would not ask unanimous consent required to act upon the high court appointment today. Unless some other senator does this and it is accepted, there will be no Senate action on the matter until Monday.

In addition to McCarran, other senators voting for Clark included: Kilgore (D-WVa), Magnuson (D-Wash), McGrath, Miller (D-Idaho), O'Connor (D-Md), Graham (D-NC), Wiley (R-Wis) and Langer (R-ND).

Two committee members were not present or recorded: Eastland (D-Miss) and Jenner (R-Ind).

Perguson left the closed committee session before the action on McGrath as attorney general. McGrath also left.

40 Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR August 12, 1909

Since the English channel has been crossed with a flying machine, another fellow is trying to swim across it.

The cooler weather did not stay with us long.

Mr. W. B. Wilson's parrot escaped from its cage a few days ago and it is still at large.

The days are about an hour shorter than they were two months ago.

August came in on a full moon and will go out one one. It is not often that two come in the same month.

collecting, designing, buying and advertising, net profit, agents receiving 20 per cent and many other problems were discussed. The president stressed keeping overhead down and in this way we will be able to do more for our customers.

Plans were made to attend the N. C. State Florist convention to be held at Atlantic Beach, September 13 and 14.

A delicious plate of sandwiches, cookies and nuts were served with an ice drink by Mrs. Betty P. Nobles.

It was announced that the September meeting would be held with Mrs. Minnie Hunneycutt.

Joint Hostesses Honor Bride-Elect

Mrs. W. J. Bundy and Mrs. J. A. Harper, Jr. of Rocky Mount were hostesses at bridge on Wednesday night at the home of Mrs. Bundy on Eastern street as a pre-nuptial courtesy to Miss Mary Alice Davis, bride-elect of Saturday.

Mixed summer flowers with dahlias predominating were used to decorate the rooms where four tables were set for play.

Mrs. Charles Howard Jr. was awarded a silver bracelet as the high score award. Mrs. Earl Kittrell was given a bottle of summer cologne as a consolation prize.

The hostesses served coca colas and potato chips during progressions and later in the evening an ice course was served.

Miss Davis, the honoree and Miss Eleanor Brown, also a bride-elect of this week, were presented silver in their chosen patterns. Miss Shirley Savage, whose approaching marriage has recently been announced, was remembered with a set of crystal ash trays.

Mrs. R. D. Whitehurst, mother of Miss Davis, and Miss Alya Ray Taylor, joined the players at the refreshment hour.

B. P. W. Club Hears Discussion On Taxes

The business and professional woman's club held its regular meeting last night at the Woman's Club with Ruth Meeks, president, presiding.

Marjorie Shearin, program coordinator, turned the program over to Novella Exum, public relations chairman, who had charge of the program. Miss Exum introduced the guest speaker, Mr. David Whichard, Jr. Mr. Whichard chose as his subject, "Taxes." Mr. Whichard discussed the various types of taxes that we have today and how the money is used in the city, county, state and nation.

Evelyn Latham, finance chairman, presented several suggestions as to how the club could make money. The club voted to sell plastic wax to be used on furniture, floors, etc.

The Business and Professional Woman's club is going to sponsor a girl in the beauty contest to be held on Farmer's Day, September 3. The following were appointed to select a girl, Marjorie Shearin, chairman, Frances Tucker, Verna Belle Lowery and Audrey Bottom.

The club is making plans to sponsor a Halloween party, a "white elephant sale," and the feasibility of sponsoring a puppet show, "Alice in Wonderland."

Dutch Architect To Teach Next Session At State College

Raleigh, Aug. 12—Appointment of T. Th. Wijdeveld, world famous Dutch architect and teacher, as a visiting professor of architecture in the School of Design at N. C. State College has been announced by Dean Henry L. Kamphoefner.

Wijdeveld has relinquished a position as professor in the College of Architecture at the University of Southern California to accept the State College job.

Dean Kamphoefner said that Wijdeveld will arrive at the college around September 1 and that he will work at the college during the next school year only. His job at the institution will be to teach advanced architectural design and architectural composition.

Lauding Wijdeveld for his accomplishments, Dean Kamphoefner said that he is one of a group who brought "modern architecture in Holland to the attention of the whole world during the early part of the 20th century."

State Employees' Association Meets At Proctor Hotel

Serious Charges Against Farmer

Three warrants have been issued against William Perry King, 33-year-old farmer of near Greenville, charging damage to real property damage to personal property and assault on a female, Christine Tate of Wilson. He will be tried in Police Court next Friday, August 20.

One of the warrants was sworn out by J. C. Youngblood, owner of the house at 110 Cotanche Street; one by E. E. McGowan, occupant of the house; and the other by McGowan for the alleged assault on the woman. Youngblood charges that Perry did $185 damage to the house, including broken windows and doors, the walls and floor.

McGowan charges King with damaging his personal property, including a combination radio and victrola machine and household furniture, including the turning over of a stove.

Officers who arrested King said the room at the house looked like a hurricane had struck it. Information given police when the warrants were issued was that McGowan and the woman went to McGowan's house on Contentnea Street to play some records; that King and the woman had an argument and that King allegedly assaulted her. McGowan told police, they said, that when he left the house to take the woman away King allegedly broke up a lot of furniture and damaged the house.

Grid All-Stars To Play Tonight

Greensboro, Aug. 12 — (AP) — North Carolina's scholastic football season gets off to one of its earliest starts ever here tonight, with the All-Star game matching teams from the East and the West.

The game in the new city stadium culminates a week-long basketball and football clinic sponsored by the North Carolina Coaches Association and the Greensboro Daily News.

Greensboro's Bob Jamleson heads the western team, with Leon Brodgen of Wilmington coaching the East.

In a basketball star game earlier in the week the West prevailed by 62-52.

Boatwright And Dowtin In Lead

Asheville, N.C., Aug. 12—(AP)—Defending Champion Al Boatwright and P. J. Boatwright Jr. were one round closer to a repeat of their finals battle of last year as the Biltmore Invitational Golf Tournament entered semi-final play here today.

Boatwright, this year's medalist and last year's runnerup, scored a 2 and 1 victory over M. C. James of Greenville, Tenn., to advance to the semi-finals.

Dowtin advanced by the same 2 and 1 margin over Dave Smith of Charlotte.

Boatwright, of Spartanburg, S.C., squared off today with Bill Williamson, III, of Charlotte. Dowtin met another Charlotte youngster Rodney McKnight. Williams is 18, McKnight 19.

McKnight, shooting fine golf, turned in what was rated the tournament's biggest upset yesterday by defeating Charles Dudley of Greenville, S.C., one up.

Williamson gained the semi-final round with a one up victory over Henry Camp of Ocala, Fla.

Try New Building Plan Highway Commission To

Raleigh, N.C., Aug. 12—(AP)—The highway commission is going to test a wrinkle which it thinks will speed up the $200,000,000 secondary road program.

It will open bids on Aug. 30 on three county road jobs for Wake, Lenoir and Pender Counties which will serve as an experiment with the new plan.

The objective of the system is to cut down the engineering work involved in road grading. Highway

Chairman Henry W. Jordan said yesterday. The plan has worked successfully in Tennessee and Kentucky, he added.

Under the present system, contractors bid on road grading on the basis of estimates. Highway engineers make similar estimates which require extensive surveying and field operations. When the job is done, highway engineers go back and check their estimates. Then the contractor's fee is cut or raised, depending on the re-measurement.

On the experimental projects, the commission will contract for earthwork grading on a mileage basis. Each contractor will offer bids by estimating the cost of "cutting" and "filling" the roadbed for a certain number of miles. These estimates would be considered final, and the commission would make no further checkups.

Dr. Jordan said as many as 10 to 30 miles of roadway may be contracted for at one time under the new plan. Chief Engineer W. H. Rogers Jr. said if the experimental jobs work out, grading work can be speeded up 50 to 75 per cent. This would mean that personnel ordinarily assigned to the engineering phases of road grading could be used on other work.

Civil Service Jobs With Government Are Now Available

A Civil Service examination for medical officer positions in the federal government is now open, it was stated by the secretary of the Board of U. S. Civil Service Examiners at the Greenville post office. There are openings at present in the field of general practice as well as in a number of specialized fields of medicine.

The examination is being held by the Fourth U. S. Civil Service Region, Washington, D. C., to fill positions in various federal agencies within the states of Maryland, North Carolina, Virginia and West Virginia, with the exception of counties in Maryland and Virginia adjacent to Washington, D. C. Salaries range from $5,232 to $10,306 a year. Most positions, however, carry an entrance salary of $6,235 a year.

Applications should be forwarded to the director, Fourth U. S. Civil Service Region, Temporary Building "R," 3rd and Jefferson Drive, S. W., Washington, D. C. No written test is required. Applicants will be rated on the basis of their training and experience as described in their applications. Applicants are required to be graduates of a recognized medical school, and in addition must have had experience in the practice of medicine. Complete information concerning experience requirements as well as application blanks may be obtained at the Greenville post office.

Siamese Women Assail Polygamy

Bangkok—(AP)—How can Thai (Siamese) women be considered as having equality with men when more than one wife? So asked Nang Nantaka Suprabhatanand, former chairman of the Women's Law Association, amid the cheers of the Thai Women's Association.

The woman attorney said Thai women legally have equal rights but nature and tradition militate against attainment of this equality. She said it probably would be impossible to pass a law to change the marital situation, but it was fortunate that the cost of living these days obstructs most men from having more than one wife.

The law recognizes three types of Thai wives: legally registered semi-wife and servant wife. Women have the right of divorce, she commented, but she did not favor use of this legal weapon except in extreme cases. Nang Nantaka also criticized the law that gives the husband power to handle his wife's property. She said women who had their own careers outside the home should be allowed to manage their own property.

Farmville Man Named On Body State Merchants

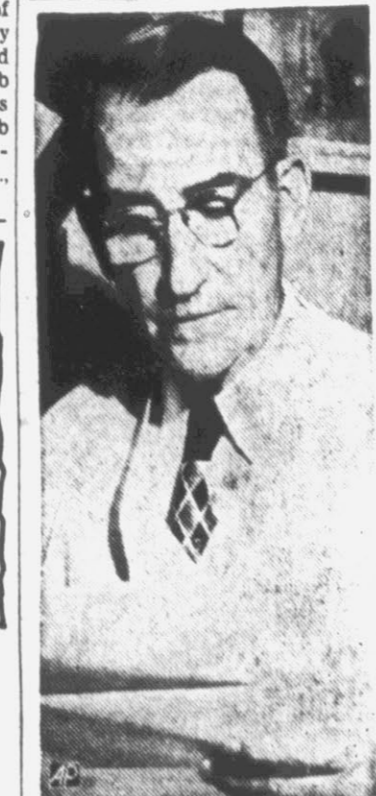

Farmville, Aug. 12—Lewis W. Allen of Farmville, prominent merchant, has been appointed a member of the transportation committee of the North Carolina Merchants Association. It has been announced by Willard L. Dowell of Raleigh, executive vice president of the 7,000-member merchants' association.

Allen's appointment was made by John M. Carroll of Asheville, new president of the association.

In announcing the naming of Allen, Dowell explained that the duties of the transportation committee are to investigate transportation rates to all points within the state by common carriers, and where it finds discrimination in said rates to report same, together with recommendations, to the Board of Directors.

Dowell requests all Farmville members of the association having problems which should be brought to the attention of the organization to refer them to Allen, local director, or to central offices of the state association in Raleigh.

Farmville Vocational Dept. Will Enroll 60

Farmville, Aug. 12—The department of vocational agriculture of the Farmville high school will enroll approximately 60 farm boys this fall, E. P. Bass, local teacher of agriculture, states. This compares with 53 last year and 47 year before last. These boys will receive instruction in latest and approved methods of farming, adapted to this section of the state.

To help put these practices into use, each boy is required to carry out a project, usually consisting of both crops and livestock. By using things taught in class he is able to see first hand how they apply to his farm. Sometimes these projects also help to show the father and neighbors that a practice is worth while. "Just recently," Bass said, "a farmer said that he was now sold on hybrid corn, since he saw what his son had done with it."

To add interest and fun to the program, a chapter of the Future Farmers of America is an active part of the department. This club meets once a month, at which time interesting and timely programs are given. During the last school year, a weiner roast was given honoring the Future Homemakers of America, an organization of the home economics girls.

Farm shop work is the most popular part of the program. In this work the boys are taught the basic operations and skills in woodwork, painting, metalwork, farm machinery repair, etc. Last year the boys went in for cedar chests and several nice ones were completed. Other simple furniture, as well as hog-feeders, kitchen tables, whatnots, tool boxes, and end tables were made.

A movie projector is now owned by the department and agricultural movies are shown often. As the Chinese said, "one picture is worth a thousand words." These movies add an enjoyable and effective method of getting across some of the better methods of farming.

Body To Probe Code Violations

Chicago, Aug. 11—(AP)—Trouble-shooters of the National Collegiate Athletic Association this weekend will culminate corrective spadework on 20 ranking problems, NCAA "Sanity code" violations and the rash of post-season football bowl games.

The NCAA's constitutional compliance committee will meet Friday and Saturday to review the status of 16 known code violators; 11 schools classified as doubtful, and 12 members who promised to mend policies after previous warning.

The committee has declined to identify violators of the code which fixes strict limits on financial aid to athletes, but many are reported to be major institutions.

Since the committee last met in June, the three-member group has done further detective work on violation charges and the reported efforts of suspected schools to get their athletic houses in order.

GETS KINSTON POST

William Graham McAdams, 34, of Farmville, has been appointed superintendent of utilities for Kinston to fill the post vacated by retirement on June 30 of John E. Weyer, who held the office 38 years. It was announced today by City Manager W. J. (Bill) Heard. McAdams studied at Wake Forest college and has taken extension work at the University of Maryland.

Railroads Cut Rate On Tobacco

Raleigh, N. C., Aug. 12—(AP)—Railroads are cutting the rates on hauling unmanufactured tobacco.

The State Utilities Commission yesterday approved lower rates for the roads over the protest of truckers. The North Carolina Motor Carriers, Inc., termed the lower proposed cuts "destructive competitive practices."

The railroads' new rates will run an average of two cents a hundred pounds lower than those charged by truckers. They are about four to nine cents below those formerly charged by railroads.

The commission served notice of its approval in a letter informing the Motor Carriers group it had dismissed a petition to suspend the new rates until they could be investigated.

Commission approval of the Truckers' petition would have meant that the railroads would have to show the new rates are justified. Now, if a hearing is allowed, the Truckers will have to show the rates are not justified.

A portion of the new schedule went into effect Aug. 8, and another portion today. Another section takes effect Aug. 30.

Will Represent Farmville FFA

Farmville, Aug. 12—Guy Dilda and Etheridge Allen will represent the Farmville Chapter of the Future Farmers of America at the state convention to be held at State College in Raleigh next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. They will be accompanied by the chapter adviser, E. P. Bass. Some 400 chapters in the state will have delegates at the convention.

Gov. Kerr Scott will appear before the group as well as Doyle Conner, National FFA president, Clyde A. Erwin, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, and J. Warren, State Director of Vocational Education.

Convention business will include planning and approving budget for the coming year, planning program of work, improvement of state camps, work on state contests, election of state officers, and other items as brought up.

Alike—yet so different

Comparing the telephone industry with other free American industries is a lot like comparing twin brothers. They look alike on the outside, but they're oh, so different on the inside. To begin with, a telephone company's profits are strictly limited by law to a very low rate. Many other phases of telephone operation are equally strictly regulated. Then, too, a telephone company must provide efficient service 24 hours a day where practically any other business decides its own number of working hours. These are but a few of the many ways in which telephone companies differ from other forms of American free enterprise.

Scripture—Psalms 105-107; 111-118.

The Lord sent Joseph into Egypt, and he was sold as a servant and was a prisoner in irons until the word of the Lord tried him.

Israel came also into Egypt; so that Jacob sojourned in the land of Ham; and the Lord increased His people greatly, and made them strong.

They that go down to the sea in ships, that do business in great waters; These see the works of the Lord and His wonders.

This is the day which the Lord hath made; we will rejoice and be glad in it, for He is good.

SONGS SUNG AT FESTIVALS

ISRAELITES DELIGHT IN SINGING GOD'S PRAISE

Scripture—Psalms 105-107; 111-118.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL. EVERY COUNTRY has its Independence Day, its day of deliverance, or some festival time which it celebrates with speeches—usually—songs, or both.

The psalms allotted to our lesson today are songs to be sung by the Israelites at times of national festivity. They are hymns of thanksgiving and joy for deliverance from some great calamity—for victory in battle, liberation from bondage, etc. The Jews also gave thanksgiving for the Lord's help all through their history—as reviewed in psalms 105-107.

Psalm 105 begins, "Oh give thanks unto Jehovah, call upon His name; make known His deeds among the people."

"Sing unto Him, sing psalms unto Him; talk ye of all His wondrous works. Glory ye in His holy name; let the heart of them rejoice that seek the Lord."

Then the psalm recounts the "wondrous works that He hath done"—from the beginning of Israel as a nation—from the call of

"According to the old rabbis, the Hallel celebrated the praises of God in connection with five things—the deliverance from Egypt; the dividing of the Red Sea; giving of the law; resurrection from the dead; and the lot of the Messiah."

Mr. Baron tells us, too, that in connection with the Paschal supper, the Hallel used to be divided into two parts: the first half consisted of the first two of the series, either sung or recited in an early part of the service.

You remember when the Lord Jesus kept the night before His trial and crucifixion. He turned the ritual from the deliverance from bondage into a memorial for the spilling of His own blood for the sins of the world.

The Hallel is full of praise, and was turned by the throng of Levites and Israelites in the temple courts to one continuous hallelujah. The people would repeat the whole of the first line of the psalms after the Levites, and then respond with a hallelujah after

Turkish Leaf Outlook Good

College Station, Raleigh, Aug. 12.—Turkish tobacco crops in Wilkes and 14 other western counties of the state are looking very favorable at the present time for an average yield of good quality tobacco, R. H. Crouse, agronomy specialist for the State College Extension Service, reported today.

Harvest was started in the earliest fields during the week of July 4 and should be completed in these fields by the last of August, Crouse said. Most of the crop should be baled and ready for market by early September.

The average yield of good tobacco has been about 1200 pounds per acre. Prices this year will range downward from $1.20 per pound for the top grade, with the average about 85 cents or higher. The leaf will be delivered by the growers to a central point in each county, at which time the company will buy the tobacco direct from the grower.

Crouse said Turkish tobacco "is already fitting in nicely as a supplemental farm income for family groups who have need for additional labor income during the summer months." The cash outlay for fertilizers and equipment is comparatively small, he added. Since no production allotments are necessary, each grower can plant as much as he likes. However, because of labor requirements for stringing at harvest time, very few growers are producing as much as one acre.

Wildlife Officer To Be Released

Raleigh, Aug. 12.—(AP)—The Wildlife Resources Commission's law enforcement chief got a dismissal notice yesterday.

Employment of D. Warren Lupton, Jr., chief for 18 months, is being terminated within 30 days, it was announced by Clyde P. Patton, the commission's executive director.

Patton said in a statement: "I think the best interests of the Wildlife Resources Commission will be served by replacing Lupton with a man of unquestioned, continuing loyalty to the commission's philosophy and policies."

Lupton said he and Patton had been in disagreement frequently during the past 90 days.

A native of Pantego, Lupton has been with the state in wildlife work since 1937. Before becoming law enforcement chief, he was stationed at New Holland.

Officer Shot At By Moonshiner

Goldsboro, N. C., Aug. 11.—(AP)—Francis K. Scott, 25, of near Goldsboro is at Liberty under $3,000 bond on charges that he shot at Alcoholic Tax Unit Officer R. L. Prince Tuesday, according to U. S. Commissioner L. C. Fulchum.

Scott waived preliminary hearing and the case was transferred to the Wilson district federal court.

Prince said the shooting occurred in Brogden township in Wayne county near the Neuse river. The officer said that he and another officer, were investigating an illicit whiskey distillery. The officer added that Scott and an unidentified Negro were met leaving a wooded section. According to Prince, Scott ran and hid in a wooded section, and shortly thereafter fired three shots at Prince.

Prince said one of the bullets tore through the cuff of his shirt sleeve.

Scott is charged on three counts—removing a confiscated automobile, assault on an officer and for violating the prohibition law.

For the 37th straight year, Dr. Charles F. Pabst, chief skin specialist at Greenpoint hospital, issues his 10 ways to beat the heat.

He was inspired, he said, by yesterday's 98.7 temperature.

Here are Dr. Pabst's 10 hot weather rules:

1. Avoid exertion and strenuous exercises.
2. Wear thin, loose clothing. Says Dr. Pabst: "Girdles are an abomination in hot weather because they prevent large portions of the skin from their function of cooling the body."
3. Drink eight or more glasses of water and put a pinch of salt in three of them. Tom Collins? We'll get to them later.
4. Get eight hours of sleep nightly.
5. Avoid worry and excitement. Don't argue with your husband, ladies.
6. Keep air circulating in your room and office. An electric fan helps the skin shed heat if it doesn't lower room temperature.
7. Take cool—not cold—baths often. Borrow an old Chinese trick and let cold water drip onto your wrists. Very cooling, Dr. Pabst says.
8. Avoid direct rays of the sun, especially if you are a heliophobe. A person whose skin reddens and burns but never tans.
9. Dr. Pabst says he's one too.
10. Reduce calories in your diet. Cut down on fats and leave that candy alone. Fry fruits and vegetables instead.

There are only 30 more shopping days until school starts, and those veterans who intend to make the first use of their eligibility under the G. I. Bill to enter a school this fall will need that much time for preliminary arrangements, the Veterans Administration reminded them today.

There are two necessary items in the mail order category they must have in hand in order to enroll: First is the assurance from the school of their choice that there will be room; and second is a certificate of eligibility from the VA. Both of these can be obtained through the mail, but at least 30 days should be allowed for delivery during this rush period.

Those veterans who have never applied for a certificate for education or training, may do so at their nearest VA office or by writing to the VA regional office at Winston-Salem. Certified or photostatic copies of separation papers giving all periods of war-time service must accompany the application for determination of eligibility. The approved certificate will be mailed directly to the veteran.

The veteran holding an unused G. I. Bill certificate of eligibility issued before September 1, 1948, must exchange it for a new type certificate. Copies of separation papers also must accompany the exchange application for eligibility determination.

If dependents are to be claimed for subsistence allowance purposes, veterans should start obtaining evidence in the form of certified public records for submitting upon entrance into training.

Marriage License Bureau Reports Steady Business

Pitt County Register of Deeds Charles P. Gaskins has issued 15 marriage licenses this month, up to yesterday. Eleven of the applicants were white, four colored.

Three hundred and thirteen marriage licenses have been issued since last January 1, and that number is about the average, Gaskins said. Total marriage licenses issued last year was 620.

Incidentally, applicants for marriage licenses during December are usually double the number in any other month.

Licenses issued this month follow:

- Colored — David J. Wilson and Beulah Gardner of Greenville; Joseph L. Payton and Thelma L. Spence of Greenville; Earl G. Daniels and Arabella Carmon of Winterville; James E. McCoy of Durham and Vivian Mills of Ballantyne.
- White — William S. Cherry of Stokes and Hazel E. Smith of Greenville; Willis G. Robinson of Washington and Lillie M. Revels of Williamston; L. D. Cobb of Falkland and Minnie A. Webb of Fountain; Raymond Cox, Jr. and Rosaline Edwards of Greenville; Mack Little and Martha Haddock of Ayden; John E. Cobb of Falkland and Eleanor Jefferson of Fountain; Edmund H. Hill of Chocowinity and Dolly M. Overton of Greenville; Julian

Hold Civil Term Superior Court Here August 22

Judge R. Hunt Parker of Roanoke Rapids will preside over a one-week civil term of Superior Court in Greenville the week of August 22.

The Halifax county jurist also will preside over a mixed term of court here the week of August 29. The mixed term will be principally devoted to the trial of criminal cases. Fifth Judicial Solicitor W. J. (Dick) Bundy said.

The criminal docket is unusually heavy and it includes some important cases to be tried.

INCREASING POWER

Washington, Aug. 12.—(AP)—The Communications Commission yesterday authorized the following change in operating facilities:

WGAI, Elizabeth City, N. C., to change from daytime to unlimited time, increasing power from 500 watts to one kilowatt day and using 500 watts power at night.

Rives of Greenville; James W. Wilberon and Dorothy K. Lewis of Farmville; Charles N. Anderson of Macintosh and Mary L. Worthington of Grifton; Willie Smith and Doris Eland of Greenville.

The Cincinnati Reds used approximately 77 down balls during the 1949 spring training campaign.

Tarboro Athletics Defeat Greenies By Score Of 1-0

Mascarella Loses A Heartbreaker As An Error Lets In Tarboro's Single Score

By BERT MOYE
Manager Joe Antolick's Tarboro Athletics edged a 1 to 0 win over the Greenville Greenies here last night in a pitcher's duel between Art Mascarella of the Greenies and Lefty Vince Gohl of the Athletics. The shutout for the Athletics was their first handed the Greenies this season and marked the seventh whitewashing job handed the locals this season.

An unearned run in the first frame provided the visitors with the win. Gus Godbold singled and stole second. He moved to third on Manager Joe Antolick's single and scored when Catcher Sid Varney threw the ball into the dirt attempting to pick him off third.

Art Mascarella, who went the route for the Greenies, gave up only five hits and after the first frame did not allow but one man to get as far as second base—that being in the seventh frame. He walked only one man while striking out four. All of the five hits were scattered among as many players. The loss for Mascarella was his 13th of the season and his third to the Athletics. He has won three contests from the Athletics, two of them being via the shutout route.

Vince Gohl, on the mound for the Athletics, got his fourth straight win against the Greenies and his 16th of the season as he held the Greenies to five well-scattered hits. He has lost three. During the contest only two Greenies got as far as third base as he walked three men while striking out six.

Willie Mauney, always in the game playing heads-up ball, was the big run in the Greenies' hitting department last night. Willie collected three singles in four trips to the plate. Not only did he lead the team at bat but Willie also played a great defensive game in the outfield, making several beautiful running catches of several balls in the left field which at the time looked like sure hits. John Tepedino and Sid Varney got the only other two hits garnered by the Greenies.

Manager Pappy Williams and his boys travel over to Tarboro tonight to meet the Athletics in a return game, but will return home Saturday night when they meet the Wilson Tobs here at Guy Smith Stadium.

Clever Catcher... Pap

Within three short weeks of the day he joined the Boston Braves from Evansville, Ind., of the Three I League, Del Crandall had earned the rating of first string catcher. That's quite a step for a youngster of 19, but Crandall made it in stride. Only two years out of high school this young, blond giant is rated one of the finest catching prospects to come along in a long time. That he was able to step right in and handle the offerings of such established pitching stars as Vern Bickford and Johnny Sain in flawless fashion is ample evidence that Del has special talents for backstopping. Phil Masi and Bill Salkeld are pretty fair catchers, but Crandall stepped in ahead of them.

By Pap

Crandall Isn't the Gabby Type

Del Crandall isn't the gabby type off the field, but during a game he takes charge in no uncertain terms. Even veteran hurlers like the cut of his gab and don't mind his confident manner. Crandall was slated for big league delivery in a couple of years but Manager Billy Southworth had an opportunity to see Del in action with Evansville and was favorably impressed. When the Braves' catching department needed bolstering, Southworth reached out and brought the young catcher up. In addition to his natural talent for catching, Crandall appears to be able to hit big league hurling. He got off on the right foot when he joined the Boston club and shapes up as a real hitter.

Curtain Goes Down And Secrecy Invoked At State

Raleigh, Aug. 12—If you get to nosing around North Carolina State's football headquarters in Coarch Beattie Feathers' office and someone asks you to leave, don't be hurt, it's just security precautions. Feathers isn't taking the wraps off his bag of tricks until Sept. 24 at Chapel Hill when his Wolfpack meets Carl Snavely's high-powered University of North Carolina Tar Heels and the former Tennessee All-American is avoiding any chances of someone grabbing a sneak preview.

Just what Feathers is concocting in his pot of football brew, isn't quite clear, but indications point to a completely overhauling of the familiar Tennessee-style of attack, which the Wolfpack has followed for the past decade under Feathers and his predecessor, Williams (Doc) Newton.

State's spring Red and White contest gave some indication of things to come. There were times when the two Wolfpack squads ran out of a modified T-formation, while on other occasions it was the straight single-wing with the balanced line of the Tennessee-system.

When practice officially opens for the Wolfpack on Sept. 1 Feathers will have open house for the first week, but after that it'll be strictly behind locked gates.

Twenty-eight lettermen will head a list of some 55 candidates due to report Sept. 1. Among the list of hustles asked to report for the first session are 22 sophomores, who'll be relied upon extensively for important roles.

A summary by positions of two training rosters of teams in the All-America Conference shows 69 ends, 73 tackles, 62 guards, 40 centers and 162 backs.

The 1927 New York Yankees won their first six games and were the leaders in the standings the entire season.

o-o-o

The game last night between the Athletics and the Greenies marked the 17th time the two clubs have met this season and the Athletics have been victorious in eleven of the contests. It marked the first time that the Athletics have shut out the Greenies, although the Greenies have shut them out in two previous meetings. The win was Gohl's fourth over the Greenies this season as Mascarella was his third to the Athletics. Incidentally it was Mascarella who blanked the Athletics on two previous meetings. It was the 14th loss this season which the Greenies have lost by a one run margin. The Greenies in their last 18 innings of play have managed to get three men past first base. In the game with New Bern Wednesday night they got one man on second base and in the game with the Athletics last night they got two men as far as third during the contest. Greenville's power house at the plate seems to be on the blink during the last contests as the Greenies have collected only eight hits in the two games.

o-o-o

Maxie Wilson, according to Jack Lee, the Goldsboro baseball announcer, is out trying to round up some players for the fading Bugs. He also stated that J. W. Deaton, the hard hitting first sacker for the Bugs, had jumped the team. "At least he didn't show up for the game Wednesday night," says Jack. At present Dave Fowler is acting manager of the Bugs in the absence of Maxie. Things are pretty dark for the Bugs at the present time. Since Steve Mizerak's banishment from the league, the Bugs have slipped and slipped until right now they are in sixth place. The Bugs have won only seven games out of the last 34 played. Two of the contests were tied up. They have lost 25. That is rough.

Vic Seixas In Semi-Finals

Newport, R.I., Aug. 12—(AP)—The semifinals round in the Casino's 30th invitational grass courts tennis tournament will be completed today.

Third seeded Vic Seixas will oppose Felicissimo Ampon, of Manila, P.I., sole remaining foreign entrant, for one of the two vacant spots in the second last round.

Gardner Mulloy of Coral Gables, Fla., second ranked in this tournament, will oppose Sam Match of San Francisco, who is fifth seeded, in the remaining quarterfinal match.

National Singles Champion Richard (Pancho) Gonzales of Los Angeles, who is first seeded here, and Arthur Larsen of San Francisco, seeded seventh qualified for the semifinals yesterday.

Largest Tuna

Wedgeport, N. S., Aug. 12—(AP)—An 800-lb. tuna, largest so far this season, was landed here yesterday by Chester I. Edwards of Miami, Fla., after a one hour and 50 minute battle. He used a 3-thread line.

At the nearby south shore town of Liverpool, George E. Clarke of Darien, Conn., hauled in a 532-pound Tuna.

Tonight's Game

Carolina Sales vs. Sunbeam Bread

American Lady Corset last evening took the measure of Carolina Dairy by the score of 8-5. Harrington, who took the slab for the Corset nine, won his own game with two homers which drove in three runs, the margin of victory for his ball club.

In tonight's game, scheduled for Third Street diamond, the front-running Carolina Sales team will tangle with Sunbeam Bread in a make-up game for their scheduled contest which was rained out last week.

Charlotte Pro Leading Play In Tam O'Shanta

By Charles Chamberlain

Chicago, Aug. 12—(AP)—Clayton Heafner, 240-pound Charlotte, N. C., pro was burning up the trail to golf's biggest Bonanza today with a one-stroke lead entering the second round of the Tam O'Shanta $35,200 "world" championship.

Heafner grabbed the brass ring yesterday with a sizzling six-under par 66 for a slight edge over two other seasoned champions, Johnny Palmer of Badin, N. C., and Henry Ransom, the transplanted Texan now in Chicago.

Palmer and Ransom each banged par 66 for a slight edge over two other seasoned champions, Johnny Palmer of Badin, N. C., and Henry Ransom, the transplanted Texan now in Chicago.

So hot was the rivalry that Lloyd Mangrum's dismal 76 all but knocked him out of contention. As defending "world" champion and winner of the all-American title Tuesday, Mangrum faced the sorry possibility of being out in the cold when the field of 66 is trimmed to the low 32 scorers for Saturday's third round.

Another favorite, Sam Snead, runner-up to Mangrum in the all-American competition, also skidded. Sambo's regulation par 72 left him stranded in a tie for 30th place. Mangrum was buried in a tie for 56th.

Four players were grouped at 68 in the tightly-packed start of the 72-hole scramble for golf's largest jackpot.

They were Jim Ferrier, Ed Furgol, Jim Turnesa, and Dick Metz. Ferrier particularly blew a fancy chance to become the frontrunner when he climbed to a last nine 36 after opening with 32.

Locked at 69 were National open champion Cary Middlecoff, Willie Hunter, Jr., Chandler Harper and Jimmy Demaret.

Chapter 8

It seemed as if Derris had only just closed her eyes before the whirring of the alarm clock awoke her. Startled out of a sound sleep with the sun streaming through her window, it was hard to realize that the events of the night before were more than a nightmare.

The quiet was very noticeable now; her own feet made no sound on the carpeted treads. She saw the doctor, still asleep in a large armchair.

The door of the sewing room was slightly ajar. She pushed it open. With a start, she realized there was no one there!

The blankets on the couch had been thrown back with apparent haste. Quickly going to the front door and pulling it open, she looked out. The doctor's car was still where he had left it. Its top was covered with a heavy white film of dew. Beaded here and there with larger drops where already the sun was touching it.

She turned. The doctor was standing beside her.

"I see the same thought struck you that did me last night, though I think it he'd driven off in it. I would have heard it."

"Last night? You mean to say you knew he went during the night?"

"Well, don't take me literally. I didn't actually see him go."

"You might at least have wakened me to tell me when you found him gone."

The doctor shook his head.

"And what useful purpose would have been served by that? We wouldn't have known where to start looking for him, and he wouldn't be wasting much time trying to make himself scarce. At least it makes it quite clear what we have to do now."

Derris arched her brows.

"The police?"

"Certainly. No reason now for holding off."

Derris grudgingly admitted that there was not anything else to be done. It was out of the question to ask the doctor to keep quiet about the whole thing.

Blast his sense of duty, anyway, she thought, as she walked past him into the house.

Afterward, she walked out to the doctor's car with him.

"Don't look so worried," she said.

"I don't think there's any reason for it now. If it makes you feel any better, I'll even drive the car right down to the office, and you won't have to come anywhere near a bus, just in case anyone's watching for me. By the time I get home to-night, Aunt Sarah will be back—and she's a match for anybody."

"And she's not I know it!" he said feelingly as he pulled away.

"She went to get her garage and ignition key from the small hook beside the kitchen door, where she always hung them. The keys were missing!"

She was out of the house in a flash, and running toward the garage. The padlock hung in place. The windows in the garage doors were too high for her to look in but were the smaller one of the side verified her suspicion. Her car was gone!

For a moment, she was too stunned to move.

If I ever get my hands on him...!

She now had no alternative. She would have to get in touch with where we paid out double indemnity, cause of death in each case was either pneumonia, acute indigestion, or heart failure. The second coincidence is that each of these policies was written by one of two agents, Maddock or Owens.

Diehlman brought his flat down on his desk in emphasis.

"If you asked me to believe that is all coincidence, I'd say you were a fool."

"We'll have to be pretty careful," Diehlman said. "The way things stand, these files are closed. We can't re-open them without some pretty good evidence to back us up. If this thing turns out to be a wholesale insurance swindle, someone pretty smart must be behind it, and there won't be many loose ends left for us to unravel. After all," he looked at the others meaningly—"in backtracking, I've only gone back some six months, but Lord knows how long it's been going on. I'd like the four of you to get busy and see what you can turn up, but mind: keep it under your hat. If this is a big organization we're up against, they've probably got good channels of information, and we don't want to show our hand too soon; otherwise they'd just lie low for a while and then start all over later."

At that same moment, Derris was standing in the lobby of a large office building. She was idly skimming through the pages of a morning paper she had bought. As she did so, a small headline caught her attention. She began to read with intense interest.

POLICE SEIZE COUNTER-FEITING PRESS

Police last night raided a warehouse on Larchmont Street and seized presses and other equipment which had been used to manufacture counterfeit bills which have, of late, been flooding this and other cities in neighboring states. Although several arrests were made, police believe that some members of the gang evaded the police cord and made their escape, and that one or more may have been wounded in the melee.

In close collaboration with the F.B.I. officers today are continuing their investigations, which they are certain will lead to the ultimate breaking up of a national counterfeiting ring.

"A warehouse on Larchmont Street—" Why, Larchmont Street was only about three blocks from the Liberty Laundry. Could this have any connection with the man on the bus?

The elevator whisked Derris up to the twelfth floor. She pushed through the door of Broke-Mad Intosh Incorporated, walking quickly through the general office, where a number of stenographers and a receptionist echoed, "Good morning," she entered her own, still deriving some satisfaction from the new "Derris Martin" boldly stencilled on the door.

Derris began at once on a massing of correspondence. Miss Turner came in, carrying her inevitable dictation book and pencil.

"Good morning, Miss Martin. Miss Lynne, I mean Mrs. Holway, is in the outer office and was wondering if you had time to see her."

"Of course; please ask her to come in."

The girl who entered was strikingly lovely, with a definite Latin cast to her features. Dressed completely in black, her smartness was accentuated by a dramatic silver pin worn high, and matching silver bracelets over her kid gloves. Long dark hair was drawn smoothly back in a low, sophisticated roll.

Completely poised, she sat down

Each of the four men who had assembled that morning in Morris Diehlman's office knew that something of more than usual importance was afoot. The tenacious little general manager of the Brooklyn National Life Insurance Company did not, as a rule, request the presence of the entire claims department.

Once they were seated, Diehlman wasted no time in preliminaries. His words were quick and decisive.

"I've called you in because it looks like we've got a big problem on our hands—one directly connected with your department. I know it isn't really necessary to say this, but I do want it understood that what we discuss here this morning is not to be passed on to anyone, either in or outside the company."

He stopped for a moment, as if to give his words greater weight.

"It has always been the policy of this company in handling claims to assume that the great majority of them are honest. To pay these honest claims is one of the chief purposes of our business." Again there was a slight pause. "But I'm afraid that all our past experience is worth exactly nothing as far as these are concerned." He indicated with his hands a stack of files in front of him.

"I have picked out from all claims made in a period of less than six months these twenty-two which, in themselves, might not be unusual, if it weren't for two things that they all have in common. In all but two in which death was accidental and

Washington, Aug. 10—(AP)—O. John Rogge, a former assistant attorney general under Tom Clark, said today his former boss "has neither the stature, integrity nor ability demanded of a Supreme Court Justice."

Rogge, whose legal activities since he left the government led to sharp questioning, appeared before the Senate Judicial committee in behalf of Henry Wallace's Progressive party. The committee is considering President Truman's nomination of Clark to the high tribunal.

Rogge had been allotted 30 minutes to testify. But he remained on the stand for more than an hour after launching a bitter attack on Clark's part in carrying out the administration's loyalty program.

London, Aug. 10—(AP)—Tobacco Road, long suppressed here, opened in London last night and got a mixed reception.

The reviewer for the news chronicle said it was as though someone lifted "a large flat stone, permitting us to observe the unpalatable insect life beneath." The graphic reviewer said he could not understand why the American play, which concerns lust and hunger among poor white trash of Georgia, was banned in the first place.

TODAY - SATURDAY WHIP WILSON in "Shadows Of The West" with ANDY CLYDE also "CONGO BILL" No. 5 3 STOOGE COMEDY

Truman's Slap . . .

(Continued from page one) not end bargaining. Senator Taft said forcefully that there hasn't been any Republican filibuster. "There has been no filibuster by Republicans on any bill," Taft declared. "We have consistently fought increases made by the Democratic appropriations committee and there have been so many of these that there have been delays. "The Republican 80th Congress approved all appropriations bills by June 15 last year. The Democratic leadership of the 81st can't escape responsibility for the fact that there still are two basic bills which haven't even been brought up for Senate consideration." Lucas said the Senate will take up the Interior Department Appropriations bill today after a decision is reached on the so-called ed basting point bill. The huge $14,800,000,000 armed services bill seems unlikely to get Senate action before Monday. That was the deadline up to which Congress has authorized departments to operate on funds that don't have officially; a further stopgap provision seems indicated in this case. Mr. Truman told his news conference that these delays will make it difficult to start work on next year's budget until the money bills are passed. He said Senator Hayden (D-Ariz.) told him he never saw appropriations measures in such a tangle. Taft noted that the $5797,000,000 foreign aid bill passed by the Senate was delayed by a point of order by Democratic Senator McClellan of Arkansas, which sent it back to committee for several days.

Fight Ahead . . .

(Continued from page one) prohibit the construction abroad with United States funds of new arms plants. It would permit only standard U. S. arms to be sent to foreign nations. Both Vopys and Richards have amendments to charge at actual cost or replacement cost the value of any excess surplus arms sent abroad. President Truman has proposed that he be given broad authority to fix a value on such arms. Another amendment proposed by Rep. Lodge (R-Conn.) would authorize a $200,000,000 arms aid program for non-Communist China. A group of senators headed by Knowland (R-Calif.) have been urging that $175,000,000 of the total $1,450,000,000 arms aid program be earmarked for China. They have asked that General Douglas MacArthur be called home from Japan to testify on the far eastern situation. The Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services committees, in fact, had scheduled a vote for this afternoon on whether to ask MacArthur to come home to give his views.

(Continued from page one) sia. They appear likely to envelop Ningsia, the right flank province whose governor Ma Hung-Wwei left months ago for Canton and Formosa. The mountainous plateau of Tsinshai province, on the left flank is ruled by the right flank Ma Pu-Fang and appears likely to become the center of Moslem resistance. In the far southwest, Yunnan province's Governor Lu Han is nominally loyal to Chiang Kai-Shek but one report says he has topped remitting taxes. Chiang's 26th army garrisons what is left of the little railway into Indo China, and his secret police are reportedly strong in the province, which at the same time is still upset by currency troubles and has a considerable guerrilla problem in its mountainous areas. Lu has recently resumed contact with Lung Yun, his distant cousin and predecessor whom Chiang Kai-Shek fired in 1946. The old highway link to the outside is useless because of civil war in Burma. Government spokesmen in Canton say there are two areas of anti-Communist activity behind the Red lines. One is in central China, allegedly due to Red misrule. The other is said to be among central troops who earlier has deserted to the Reds. The central China group sounds like remnants of central armies whom the Reds bypassed in the speed of their advance through that region. In any case, reports of such large-scale resistance would be more credible if more time had elapsed for the Chinese involved to learn what communist rule is really like—and to get organized.

Wages Up To . . .

(Continued from page one) cially what some of the language in the bill means. Officials of the wage-hour administration, which carries out the law for the government, were themselves puzzled last night as to what some parts of the house bill meant. Since they were puzzled, it's probable that a lot of house members who voted for the bill didn't know exactly what they were voting for. For example, The present law covers those workers considered "necessary" for the production of goods in a plant (goods moving in interstate commerce) besides the workers doing the actual production there. Example: Window washers and night watchmen are now considered as "necessary" by the government if the work in a plant is covered by the law. But the house bill would change that so only "indispensable" workers were covered. So an employer might argue, if the house bill became law, that window washers and night watchmen are not "indispensable."

Sooner or later this would have to be fought out in the courts to decide what "indispensable" means. Russia . . . (Continued from page one) (the imperialists) support its claims. The Russians published a letter from Yugoslav Foreign Minister Edvard Kardelj dated April 20, 1947, in which he offered variations of the minimum Yugoslav demands on Austria. In essence these reduced Yugoslavia's claims to a small piece of territory containing two electric power stations. The Soviet note charged the Yugoslav government was afraid to bear the responsibility for sacrificing national interests, but wanted instead to have the Soviet Union play that role. Russia refused to be cast as a "political swindler," the note said. "Let the people of Yugoslavia know," the note said, "the Soviet government looks on the present Yugoslav government not as a friend and ally but as an enemy and adversary of the Soviet Union."

Deep Freezers . . .

(Continued from page one) the testimony yesterday about the Deep Freeze Units after a witness said one of them had been shipped to Vaughan. The witness was ready with other names, but Hoey cut him short. Hoey said he wanted staff investigators to check to determine whether the Deep Freeze Units actually were shipped to the parties the witness was preparing to name. Besides Mrs. Truman, Vinson and Vaughan, published reports have listed secretary of the treasury Snyder, James K. Varnaman, Federal Reserve board governor, and George E. Allen, former RFC member and Presidential intimate, as those to whom the freezers were shipped by a Chicago perfume concern. At his news conference this morning, Presidential Secretary Charles G. Ross was asked about the report concerning Mrs. Truman. "I have no information whatever about that," Ross said. Of the other names, he said: "I know nothing whatever about that, either." The matter of the Deep Freeze Units entered the hearing yesterday when a Milwaukee businessman testified that he shipped one in 1945 to Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, President Truman's Army aide.

Approve Plan To Control Cotton Washington, Aug. 12—The House approved today a Senate-House compromise on legislation to put cotton under production controls if farmers by a two-thirds vote approve of such restrictions. Similar action is expected soon by the Senate. The program calls for maximum planting of 21,000,000 acres for the 1950 crop in the event controls are ordered.

Bradley Named To Top Position

Washington, Aug. 12 — (AP) — Omar Nelson Bradley, the "GI's general," has been selected for the nation's highest military post—permanent chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Selection of the Army chief of staff to fill this newly created position was announced yesterday by President Truman. It had been widely anticipated and came only one day after the President signed new military unification legislation which created the post. In his new job, Bradley will not have any command authority, or even a vote with the joint chiefs—operating heads of the Army, Navy and Air Force—but he will have vast prestige. During his 34 years of military service he has served in two World Wars, commanded the largest body of troops ever to serve under an American field commander and spent three years as head of the Veterans Administration. He became the Army's chief of staff last year.

Colored News

About 8 years ago a very dear old lady died near Grimesland at the age of 108 years in the person of Mrs. Annie Wilson, widow of the late Stephen Wilson. She was born and reared in Pitt county and was loved and respected by both races. At the time of her death two sons, six daughters, 35 grandchildren and twenty-five great grandchildren survived. These relatives and every member of the Wilson family and connections are invited to please meet at the Triumph church the fourth Sunday in this month at 1 p. m. The sponsor of this meeting thinks that the members of the family should bring baskets. Let's have a picnic after this meeting.

Governor Promises Rural Telephones

Smithfield, Aug. 12—(AP)—Governor Scott told farmers here today that if they didn't have electricity and telephones, to get in touch with him. "You're entitled to it," the governor told more than 10,000 persons who braved a torrid sun to hear the governor speak on a Farmers' Day program. In discussing the state's proposed $200,000,000 secondary roads program, the governor asserted "North Carolina is undertaking the greatest road-building program in the world."
