Hold First Sale In Sweet Potato Auction At Bethel

North Carolina's Second Sweet Potato Auction Market Opens At Bethel
Bethel, Oct. 11—North Carolina's second sweet potato auction market opened here today as the Bethel Auction company conducted its first sales.

Approximately 100 farmers of Pitt and neighboring counties were on hand for the first sweet potato auction to be held in this section of North Carolina, and the growers generally approved the prices which their potatoes brought.

In addition to the company stockholders and farmers, Joe Gurley of the marketing division of the State department of agriculture, and K. W. Ballentine, federal sweet potato grader and marketing specialist, were on hand to help conduct the first sales.

Loads of sweet potatoes varying from 10 bushels to 150 bushels were hauled to the market for the opening sales by the farmers of the area, and trucks waited in lines for their potatoes to be graded and their number called for the auction block.

Six local buyers as well as buyer representatives from Williamston and Rocky Mount participated in the competitive bidding today for the potatoes offered by the growers. Local buyers bidding on the market today were Ives and Harris, X. E. Manning, J. L. Brown, J. C. Wynn, M. O. Blount and sons, and Frank L. Whitehurst.

Before the opening sales this morning W. Jasper Smith, speaking on behalf of the 28 stockholders of the auction market, told the farmers, "This is a community project. The people here are behind the auction market. They are trying to develop another crop for the area and surrounding counties, and it is a question of a little time, a little patience and a lot of hard work."

Joe Gurley of the marketing division of the state department of agriculture expressed delight this morning at the opening of the new auction market, and told the farmers it affords them an opportunity for additional income through increased sweet potato production and a better market on which to sell their potatoes.

John L. Brown, auctioneer, started the first sale shortly after 10 o'clock. The first three loads sold by the market totaled 158 bushels and brought prices of $1.70 and $1.80 per bushel.

The directors of the market explained this morning that the total charge to farmers on the auction market is five cents per bushel, and the charge to the buyers is two cents per bushel. In addition to the auction shed, the company will operate a storage warehouse with space enough for the storage of 40,000 bushels of potatoes.

Pitt County Agent S. C. Winchester, commenting on the opening of the market this morning, said it is opening a new source of income to farmers of this area, and is another step in the diversification of agriculture for Pitt county.

The only other sweet potato auction market in North Carolina, according to the Bethel company officials, is in Tarboro City where a market was established in 1947.

Double-Header In Conciliation Work

Before Week Is Out, Cyrus Ching Will Have Met With Strike And Industrial Leaders; Government Working Against Time

Pittsburgh, Oct. 11—(AP)—The government's conciliation service has taken on the biggest job in its history—trying to settle the twin steel and coal strikes.

Before the week is out U. S. conciliation director Cyrus Ching, will meet separately with leaders of the striking CIO United Steelworkers and industry leaders.

At the same time, the conciliation director will watch developments in the coal strike. It was Ching who got John L. Lewis, United Mine Workers president, and coal industry operators to agree to go back to the bargaining table tomorrow.

Neither the steel industry nor Philip Murray, president of the steel workers, had any comment after Ching announced yesterday the government was stepping into the steel walkout for the fourth time. Before the strike started 11 days ago the government made three futile peace efforts.

Murray went ahead with plans to deliver pep talks to his 454,000 strikers. The first talk is scheduled today at Youngstown, Ohio. That mighty industrial town has been hit hard by the steelworkers' walkout.

Divergent Views On Record In Congress

White House Claims 'Remarkable Record' Draws Scathing Blast From Republican Senator Brewster

Washington, Oct. 11—(AP)—White House claims that the Democratic 81st Congress has set a "rather remarkable record" drew prompt Republican disagreement today.

Senator Brewster of Maine, chairman of the Republican senatorial campaign committee, expressed his party's line. He told reporters about the only thing the Democrats have to brag about in the current session is the passage of foreign policy laws that the "Republicans helped put over."

The groundwork for a more formal GOP rebuttal may be laid at a meeting of party leaders here tonight with National Chairman Guy George Gabrielson.

Brewster's blast came in reply to the White House's issuance yesterday of a summary of what had been done by Congress in passing bills President Truman favors.

Charles Ross, a presidential secretary, said it showed "a rather remarkable record of achievement."

The White House summary, a 13-page document, listed major recommendations of the President to Congress and noted what had been done about them.

With respect to the President's demand for repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act, the summary said that a bill was passed by the Senate June 30 "in form not in accord with the President's recommendations."

The House shelved repeal attempts and did not act on the Taft bill. Listed as accomplishments were such legislation as that strengthening military unification, continuing the European Recovery Program and other foreign aid measures, extending rent control and others covering domestic actions.

INACCURATE REPORT
Washington, Oct. 11—(AP)—The White House today branded as "100 per cent inaccurate" a report that the joint chiefs of staff, with President Truman's approval, have asked General Douglas MacArthur to return home.

Steady Advance By Reds Hastens Canton Retreat

Nationalists Speed Up Transfer Of Government To China's Wartime Capital

Canton, Oct. 11—(AP)—A steady advance of Red troops hastened transfer of the Chinese Nationalist government to Chungking today.

Trustworthy privates advised Communist troops pushing south toward the refugee capital had passed Yingtse, 75 miles north. No Nationalist opposition was reported.

Plane after plane took off from White Cloud Airfield for Chungking, China's wartime capital nearly 600 miles northwest. Acting President Li Tsung-Jen and Premier Yen Hsi-Shan probably will leave tomorrow.

It was understood the new Communist advance resulted in a cabinet order for emergency evacuation of the government to Chungking by tomorrow. The Reds freed the government to flee Nanking last May.

All transport from Canton was booked solid. Planes, ships and trains to Hong Kong, British Crown Colony, were crowded.

An almost palpable air of tension hung over the city.

The Foreign office was being cleaned out this afternoon. Sweating, chanting coolies lugged enormous loads of boxed records and personal luggage to trucks bound for the airfield.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, who a few weeks ago declared his readiness to die in defense of Canton if necessary, was reported to have arrived by plane from Formosa.

Nationalist military leaders avowed determination to hold Canton. They said they could do it. Observers inclined to the belief that if the Reds exerted full pressure, the Nationalists would abandon Canton and take up position in a southwestern pocket of Kwangtung province.

There was some speculation that Gen. Chen Keng's armies, instead of driving on Canton, might swing westward towards Kwangsi province. This, in conjunction with Gen. Lin Biao, his would try to smash the Nationalist Government.

Absolve 'All' In Investigation Of Forrestal Death
Washington, Oct. 11—(AP)—A Navy board has absolved "any person or persons in the naval service" of fault or negligence in the death of former Secretary of Defense James Forrestal.

Forrestal, who retired from office in March, leaped to his death May 22 from a tower at the Naval Hospital in Bethesda, Md. He was admitted to the hospital April 2 suffering from what naval medical authorities described as "operational fatigue."

Navy Secretary Matthews made public the board's findings today but made no mention of the delay of more than four months in doing so.

Rear Adm. Morton D. Wilcutts, then head of the National Naval Medical Center at Bethesda, convened the five man board of inquiry on May 23. It finished its hearings May 30 and submitted its report to Wilcutts.

Think Anthrax Is Killing Deer

Roanoke Rapids, N. C., Oct. 11—Thirty-eight dead deer have been found in this area in the last nine days.

Navy Says Guided Missiles Add To 'Gamble' With B-36

Washington, Oct. 11—(AP)—A Navy weapons expert told Congress today that Russia likely has guided missiles able to find and knock down bombers above 40,000 feet.

Capt. J. H. Sides said German rocket secrets fell into Russian hands after the war, and that it would now be "folly" to gamble on U. S. security on the atom bomb and big bombers alone.

Had the war lasted a year longer, Sides said U. S. bombers would no longer have been able to fly over Germany without prohibitive losses from German anti-aircraft rockets.

These Nazi anti-aircraft developments designed to search out and destroy raiders traveling 485 miles an hour at 65,000 feet, fell into Russian hands "lock, stock and barrel," Sides said.

The Russians have had plenty of time to get them into production, he said, adding: "Over four years have elapsed since then. It is foolhardy for us to think of an aggressor's anti-aircraft defenses now in terms of 1945 equipment."

Sides is deputy assistant chief of naval operations. He testified before the House Armed Services Committee hearing naval charges that defense chiefs are over-concentrating on an "obsolete" B-36 bomber.

Whether or not the Russians now have these guided missiles in production, Sides said, a revolutionary change in anti-aircraft defenses is certainly not far distant.

Even before some big bombers now on order can be delivered, Sides declared, this country will have guided missiles able to find and knock down bombers above 40,000 feet.

Sides concluded: "With AA (anti-aircraft) guided missiles approaching operational use, it is folly for any country to stake its future to any great extent on the big bomber and atom bomb."

"Professional gamblers have always held to the theory that one should never gamble on more than he can afford to lose. In the light of developments which I have been describing, it would appear that when we gamble predominantly on the atomic blitz concept of war it is the life of our nation which may be at stake."

Before hearing Sides, the committee had brief news discussion with Cmdr. Eugene Tatom about how deadly is the A-bomb. Tatom cited medical reports on the Hiroshima blast to back up his contention that it is not as deadly as the public thinks.

But under questioning, Tatom agreed that all available statistics do not jibe. And he said that anyway he isn't an atomic expert.

Scott Continues Mill Peace Work

Will Try Again To Bring Principals Together For Talk

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 11—(AP)—Governor Scott is still trying his best to bring an end to the five-month-old Hart Cotton Mill strike at Tarboro.

Informed yesterday that the mill's management won't accept union terms for ending the strike, Scott declared he plans "to get the two principals together and to work out something."

He identified the principals as Frank Leslie of New York, president of the mill, and Emil Rieve, also of New York, president of the Textile Workers Union of America, CIO, whose local at Tarboro is on strike.

Scott was notified by Marcus Carter, general manager of the mill, of management's refusal of the union's terms under which it would resume work.

Slap Rush' Tag On Financing Of Military Relief

Solons Hope To Draft And Pass Bill Before Saturday To Start Program

Washington, Oct. 11—(AP)—Congressional leaders slapped a "rush" tag today on President Truman's request for $1,314,010,000 to finance the foreign military aid program.

They hope to draft and pass, in time to adjourn this session of Congress next Saturday, a bill providing the dollars to breathe life into the aid program recently authorized by Congress.

The House Appropriations Committee called a closed-door hearing to consider the President's request. Invited to testify were Secretary of Defense Johnson and General Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff.

The President's request, sent to Congress late yesterday, was for $814,010,000 in cash and $500,000,000 in contract authority to finance the plan to furnish military aid to nations outside the Soviet Iron Curtain.

That is the amount Congress has authorized, most of it for Western European nations who joined the United States in the North Atlantic pact.

Some members of Congress feel that the program can get started and operate until early next year on an advance of $125,000,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which can be provided without further congressional action.

They indicated that they might try to cut down the actual appropriation.

Under provisions of the authorization act, they said, no funds except the RFC advance can be used until the Atlantic Pact nations whip into shape a mutual defense plan acceptable to the United States.

Figl Instructed To Form Cabinet

Vienna, Oct. 11—(AP)—Austrian government ministers today and Chancellor Leopold Figl was instructed to form a new cabinet.

Figl, whose right wing people's party emerged as the country's strongest in Sunday's national elections, will confer with Socialist leaders later this week in efforts to form a Coalition government.

Both the Socialists and the People's party are pledged to continue the Coalition which has ruled this country for the past four years.

One-Day Halt In Tax Fraud Case

Greensboro, Oct. 11—(AP)—The illness of defense lawyer A. W. Sapp has caused a one-day halt in the month-old trial of Josephus D. Parker. The defendant, a wine manufacturer from Eagle Springs, is charged with failure to pay $114,000 in victory and income taxes.

After a brief session yesterday, Federal Judge Johnson J. Hayes recessed court until tomorrow.

Police Warning

Police Chief Lester D. Page today again warned motorists about trying to cross intersections when the traffic light is yellow. The green light is the "go-ahead" sign. He said numerous accidents occur at street crossings as a result of motorists taking a chance of getting across after the warning yellow light is flashed.

The chief said officers have been instructed to strictly enforce this traffic law and arrest offenders.

Railroaders Pensions

Possible Expansion Of Social Security System May Mean Agitation For Greater Benefits For Railroad Workers; The Railroading Act; Some Details Of The Plan

By HAROLD W. WARD
Washington, Oct. 11—(AP)—Possible expansion of the federal government's social security system may mean new agitation by approximately 1,800,000 railroad workers to boost their old age pension, too.

The railroaders have had a more liberal—though costlier—program since August 29, 1937, when Congress enacted a special railroad retirement act. They have been talking lately about bettering it.

The demand is not immediate, however, like the jousting of Philip Murray, John L. Lewis, and Walter Reuther for the new or bigger pensions from the steel, coal and auto industries.

The House, by a vote of 333-14, decided last week to bring another 11,000,000 workers under the federal system and to hike the payments for an elderly couple from around $85 to $126 a month. All benefits would be upped 70 or 80 per cent, according to House estimates. The Senate is expected to act on the measure after next January.

Trolley Bus And Trailer Collide

New Orleans, Oct. 11—(AP)—A trolley bus and a large trailer truck collided at a street intersection today and 25 persons were rushed to Charity Hospital in ambulances and police cars.

The front end of the bus was caved in. Two eye witnesses broke into a rear door to free screaming passengers.

Offer A Fortune For His Promise

London, Oct. 11—(AP)—Sir John Black's bosses offered him $280,000 for a promise.

The 54-year-old knight is managing director of Standard Motor Company, automobile manufacturer. His directors offered the money for a promise that he would stay with the company for life.

There was no indication of why they wanted to bind him, except that Standard began making money as soon as he took over in 1929. Sir John's answer was not announced.

Union Political Alliance Killed

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 11—(AP)—Possibility of a political alliance between the AFL and CIO apparently was wiped out today—at least for the time being—by the former's decision to go its own way.

Delegates to the American Federation of Labor convention voted at the closing session last night against making any formal alliance with the CIO or any labor and farm groups.

Roving Wheel From Truck Does Damage

A freak accident occurred early this morning about 6 o'clock in the business section of town. Lt. George Crawford of the Greenville Police Department reported today.

A truck owned by the Norfolk Tallow Company and operated by Ernest Lee Sutton was traveling down Dickinson Avenue, about 20 miles an hour, when the front right wheel of the truck came off and bounced along the sidewalk, hitting a portion of Cozart's Auto Supply Store, and then rolling into a four-by-seven foot plate glass window of the store.

A water pipe located below the window was severed by the blow, and water flooded the street until it was cut off by workmen from the Greenville Water & Light Plant.

Nehru's Visit To U. S.

Foreign Analyst Thinks A Dozen Years From Now We May Well Regard Visit By Prime Minister Of India To Be Far-Reaching Event; Background And Thinking

By DeWITT MacKENZIE
A dozen years from now we are likely to be reminding ourselves that today's arrival of Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru on his first trip to this country was a far-reaching event.

The Prime Minister of India is one of the outstanding leaders of our time. As head of this great new nation, with its population of more than 300,000,000, Nehru already is demonstrating a leadership which is making itself felt throughout Asia. His influence on world unity will be vast.

Therefore Nehru's visit to Washington, where he is to be entertained by our President, becomes a matter of moment. For upon the impressions which this brilliant and highly sensitive guest forms may well depend future relations between the United States and an India which is going to play a dominant part in the development of the Orient.

Nehru, who will be 60 on the 14th of next month, not only was born into a family of great wealth but he is Kashmiri Brahmin—the highest aristocracy in all India. He was educated in England. He studied law in London and returned to his native land as a polished intellectual, who had the marks of genius. At the outset he showed little interest in the independence movement, but soon he joined and thereafter devoted his whole life to the ideal. He became one of the most devoted disciples of Mohandas K. Gandhi and followed the saintly life of Mahatma faithfully in the drive for Indian independence until the latter's assassination on January 30, 1948.

The disciple, like the master, became a plague to the British and he was several times in prison, serving all-told some 18 years. Like Gandhi, Nehru scoured the highways and byways of India to preach independence to the people until he became an object of hero worship among the masses.

So it was natural that Gandhi should have designated Nehru as his "political heir" and that the disciple should become the first Prime Minister of the Dominion of India when British grants independence. Unhappily the division of the vast subcontinent into two dominions—Hindu India and Moslem Pakistan—resulted in bloody communal strife.

Nickel Change

St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 11—(AP) A whistle in his month, two-year-old Hamilton Connell stumbled on the run and fell. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Connell of Cameron, Mo., picked him up. But they couldn't find the whistle. They surmised he might have swallowed it.

After waiting a week in vain for the whistle to appear, the parents brought Hamilton to the hospital here. A surgeon operated yesterday and removed a nickel. The Connells are still looking for the whistle. The day lily's name springs from the fact that each flower lasts only a day. Seattle is named for an Indian chief who befriended the first settlers.

N. C. Tobacco Research Topic Of Rotary Talk

By WYATT BROWN

With full realization of the place of tobacco in the state's total economy eight experimental stations have been set up about the state to deal with all the problems of the tobacco farmer, J. Lawrence Apple, director of the Upper Coastal Plain Tobacco Research Farm (located near Greenville), said in an address to the Rotarians last night. This is a part of the Tobacco Research Program of North Carolina, he explained, headed by Dr. Caldwell of the Agronomy Department at North Carolina State College in Raleigh.

He told how the plan is to go to the area where the problems are arising, face the same local conditions as the farmers and carry on experiments to help solve the known difficulties found in growing the golden weed. The eight experimental farms are carrying on a variety of tests to see which strain shows up best in the locality; strains showing up best vary from station to station due to climate and soil variations.

He took up first the tobacco farmer's lice problem. Lice are causing the farmers to suffer a loss and it is proving a difficult problem and is not yet under control. Chemicals have been found which kill the lice but they are also dangerous to man.

The next problem being worked on he called an "unseen enemy robbing" poundage from each acre. Garden crops feel its hurt, too.

Experiments in plant bud management are being carried on. He said that the trend is toward fall fertilization at the time when chemicals for weed control are applied. No spring fertilization is used under this plan. His comment on weed control with chemicals was that as now practiced it left much to be desired, so far. Experiments are now being carried on with a number of chemicals to find a suitable one to be applied at the time of seeding.

When he came to the matter of the wire worm, he said that now this pest can take out plants as fast as the farmer can set them. Here, too, experiments are under way.

INCA COSTUMES IN BELGIUM — Charleroi youngsters, in costumes said to have been inspired by the Incas of the western hemisphere, march in a parade in Brussels, Belgium.

That well known tobacco labor consumer, the sucker, is getting attention. The sucker gives the farmer a lot of trouble at the height of his busiest time. Here the experimenters have found some promise. It has been found that by using some hormone type of chemical on the bud of the plant helped the sucker problem. Effort is being exerted to produce the hormone of the plant bud to replace that lost when the bud is removed in topping.

Mr. Apple said that he and his fellow workers having observed the increased production with hybrid corn are trying to see if the same idea cannot be applied to tobacco. They have found some promise when crossing local strains with Kentucky burley. Quantity of production has been increased fifty-eight per cent, but there was a loss in quality.

In the matter of curing tobacco experiments are being carried on to determine the most economical fuel. He said it would be an endless task to find which oil burner or which stoker was best. Their concern is to get a more uniform curing.

Next he took up the matter of experiments to help with diseases of tobacco. The station near Greenville has given the most emphasis to this type of problem. Sixty-five per cent of the tobacco acres in Pitt County are infested with fungus diseases. Strains of tobaccos that are fungus resistant have been found but they did not stand up as to yield and quality.

Strains have been found which resist Granville Wilt but with a loss of yield and quality. The problem is further complicated by finding black shank and Granville wilt on the same farm. There are no strains resistant to both diseases. An increase of the diseases has been noted this year on tobacco farms.

At this time all a farmer can do is abandon a field that has both diseases. Experiments have revealed several lines that are showing some improvement in quality and yield that are disease resistant. The experiments are carried on with the awareness that problems for countless farmers will be solved if success can be had.

In concluding his remarks Mr. Apple invited everyone to come out to the Greenville station during the growing season and he would try to explain what is going on. There is nothing going on now at the station since all the growing and grading is completed for this crop year.

Dr. K. B. Pace announced that this is Diabetic Detection Week and that anyone could go to any doctor in the county and secure free of charge the analysis of a specimen. The Pitt County Doctors and Dental Society in cooperation with the American Medical Association is doing this to help find the thousands of persons with diabetes who have not been diagnosed. Ralph H. Hardee of the Ayden Rotary Club was a visiting Rotarian last night. The program was presented by Leon Roebuck, chairman of the Program Committee. Erzell Webb, club president, presided.

Boy Killed When Bike Struck Car

A young Negro boy, Charles Ray Smith, Rout 3, Greenville, 14 years of age, was instantly killed yesterday afternoon about 2 p.m. when his bicycle hit a car operated by Jasper L. Sutton, Route 2, Greenville.

State Highway Patrolman Dick Chadwick, who investigated the accident said that Sutton gave this account of the accident: Sutton's car was traveling north on the Black Jack-Grimesland road about 1/2 mile from Black Jack at a moderate rate of speed. Sutton stated that he saw a boy on a bike approaching him and as his rear wheel cut suddenly in front of the car.

The patrolman said that Sutton applied his brakes in an effort to avoid hitting the child but the boy was too close on him.

The bicycle struck the front of the car throwing the boy into the windshield, cutting his throat, and then the body went over the top of the car and landed at the rear of the car.

The child died instantly from the severe cut in his throat. The boy lived with his grandfather, near Black Jack, it was reported.

Nails waiting to be used can be prevented from rusting by sprinkling with machine oil.

Strength FOR THE DAY

GET STARTED EARLY
The place to stop evil is at its source. The best way to cure disease is not to let it get started. A lot of energy can be thrown away trying to fix up bad situations that should never have been allowed to arise.

One of the things which most accurately marks the greatness of Jesus was his conviction and teaching on this point. He said that the way to prevent adultery was to restrain evil thought and lecherous glances. He maintained that murder would never arise if men would only watch their temper and refrain from name-calling. He lived amid a generation which indulged in exaggerated speech and took solemn oaths about trivial matters. Stop it, said Jesus. Let your communication be yes, yea and nay, and whatsoever is more than this is of the evil one.

Around Capitol Square

NOT GUILTY — Publicity about petty graft and economy in state government has put some state employees in unfortunate position with respect to use of automobiles. Feed and seed inspectors of the department of agriculture, deputy collectors and auditors in the department of revenue, fire and game wardens, along with employees of other departments having similar functions want it understood they are not on personal business every time they are seen at a grocery store or near good hunting or fishing areas. Their job requires that they check these places, and they park their cars as near to the scene of work as they can.

OFFICIAL — Hugh Martin, an inspector for the department of agriculture, specifically wants it known that he drives on official business only a state-owned car bearing license plate P-57801. His duties require him to visit a lot of retail grocery, feed and seed stores, and while he is there working his job he doesn't like to hear comments about the state car he drives being used to haul home personal groceries.

WORK — Any official or employee whose job requires a lot of travel, whether by car or train, in or outside the state, can testify there is a lot of difference between that kind of work and pleasure travel. There are many people who envy sports writers who get "free" passes to football games and get good eats. Anybody who has had experience knows that the alert reporter has to work as hard as the officials on the field during a game. It's a little bit like the citizen who visits his country cousins over the weekend and envies the ease of farm life, or like the farmer who has never tried it envying the book-keeper who has nothing to do all day but sit at a desk and put figures in a book.

TRAVEL — Undoubtedly there is a lot of unnecessary travel at public expense. There are times when more people than are necessary attend conventions that are necessary, and there are times when doubling up on official trips would save car mileage. On the other side of the picture is the item of lost time while one man waits for his companion to get through and ready to ride. In some cases it is cheaper to use two cars, even though representatives of different departments are going to the same city or town. It has been suggested, also that cutting down too much on convention attendance might tend to shut out new ideas that would benefit the state.

ECONOMY — One top flight state official, discussing these matters, pointed out the absolute necessity for economy and retrenchment in state spending. He added that even a good thing can be overdone and state failure to spend money doesn't always mean economy. "If you really need something," he said, "whether it is tangible property or a new idea, you pay for it whether you get it or not."

Boyle's Column

By HAL BOYLE
New York—(AP)—This has been called the century of the common man.

It could be termed with more truth the century of the common woman, except that you'd better be smiling with all 32 teeth, partner, when you say that. For no lady, no matter how shrilly she dresses her campaign for equal rights, wants that word common applied to her sex—and to her that seems only like common sense.

Perhaps we could better call this "the century of the Miss and the Mrs. instead of the Mr."

The latest victory of the powder-puff battalions is the decision of the Harvard Law school to admit women to its classes. For 132 years only men bonded up on blackstone in this sanctuary by the Charles. Its breaking now by female bluestockings comes as a sour surprise, indeed, to many oldtimers.

"Aren't there already enough women laying down the law to men?" they cry.

The truth is the average man today is just a dazed victim of the feminine equal rights campaign. He is living in a shakedown period in a new war between the sexes. For many women scream for more rights with one breath, and clamor for their ancient privileges with the next.

They insist they no longer have to ride a horse or a barstool sidesaddle, but they eye-dagger a forelegged male in an elevator because he won't drop his packages and take off his hat in their honor. In the saloons they call for the television program then want, but it's the gent with them who picks up the tab when the martinis are all in.

Man must still fetch and carry for them as of old. They will knock out his vote at the polls, compete with him for his love. Yet let him object if a lady shows him away from his straphanging hold in a crowded subway and she hollers, "Help! Help! A Wolf!"

Of course, they aren't like this. Some gals still only want to boss in the house. Others just demand an equal chance at the office. But many, many modern females play both ends against the middle. They want to act like men and be treated like women.

Somebody Told Me...

By I. J. (JACK) EDWARDS, JR.
Last night Wife Rachel took off for a meeting while I sat home looking for wall to wall, hoping to find a column idea somewhere. Even the ceiling had nothing to offer, so I telephoned the Number One for help. "How about bringing me back a column," I said.

The purpose of the meeting, which was attended by a bunch of women who don't even have time to read the newspaper, was to form a book club. Those at- tending were W. R. Jerry (Mrs. Bob) Campbell, Edna (Mrs. Sidney) Johnson, Betty Lou (Mrs. Charles, Jr.) Howard, Ann (Mrs. Ray) Wase, Betty (Mrs. J. B. Jr.) Kittrell, Miriam (Mrs. George) Martin, Phyllis (Mrs. Joe) Smith, Virginia Gaylord (the future Mrs. W. M. Scales), Earnie (Mrs. Ed. Jr.) Rawl, Ann (Mrs. Dale) Gidley, Skeeter (Mrs. Quinn) Bostic, Grace (Mrs. James) Smith, and Katherine (Mrs. Bill) Davenport. Mrs. K. B. Pace was referee, officially called the advisor.

Betty Kittrell was elected president. Edna Johnson vice-president, Phyllis Smith secretary-treasurer, and Wife Rachel Librarian.

"Librarian?" I asked. "What's that?"

"I'll head the committee that selects the books for the members to read," she replied.

"You mean you'll select the books that the members don't read," I said. "But have no fear. As you well know, I keep 'Time' magazine on file and you can always look up the book review the day before the meeting. You'll be able to know the other members under. Why you'll know so much about the book from reading the review that the others might even think you read the book. You'll be the star member of that outfit."

Of course Rachel insisted that it's silly to assume that the members of a book club will neglect to read the books.

"Have you got a fining system for those who don't do their home work?" I asked.

By this time W. R. was convinced that I have the wrong idea about book clubs. "Of course not," she replied. "If we fail to bring the club's books back we'll have to pay a fine. But we don't need a fining system to make us read the books. That's silly."

"But just think," I said, "how embarrassing it'll be to go to a meeting and not be able to join in the discussion of a book. That is, for those who can't look up the review in 'Time.'"

WASHINGTON LETTER

Washington — Paul Vanderbilt, acting chief of the prints and photographs division of the Library of Congress, says he's convinced the division is one of the most interesting places in the nation's capital. He likes to tell the story of the young soldier who came to Washington with just one day's leave. "He spent it at the library with his girl," he told me. "Had a good time too." The soldier got a big kick looking at old movie stills of which the division has thousands.

The library houses one of the great picture collections of the world, although it is not the largest. Its 3,000,000 items include highly valuable pictures, common post-cards, wood cuts, etchings, stereographs, historical prints, patent medicine ads, cartoons.

One of the most important collections include some 25,000 pictures of historic American buildings, all constructed before 1870. They were assembled jointly by the American Institute of Architects, the Department of the Interior and the Library of Congress and constitute the main survey of American architects. There is also a collection of pictures which Mathew Brady, a leading New York and Washington photographer, made the Civil War, and a color survey of the Russian Empire from 1909-11, by the great color photographer, Prokudin-Gorsky.

Poking around in the three store rooms in the library's attic up by the dome, Mr. Vanderbilt recently made a find that delights his soul—a set of the first stereographs intended for public use, made in 1855-56 by Frederick Angenheim. "That was the equivalent, in photography of finding the first book printed in America," he says. "While stereographs were a form of amusement, the invention was a great form of reproduction—the way they got news pictures around—taking them from door to door. Oliver Wendell Holmes designed the stereoscope, the gadget you look through to see the pictures."

Mr. Vanderbilt also turned up about 500 pictures of the 1905 round-the-world auto race—a full set of the pictures of the U.S. dap, showing the motorists digging out of the mud, crossing the Rockies and so on.

There are also Herman Goering collections of 18,500 pictures of himself; the first general picture coverage of a war—the Crimean War of 1854, made by Roger Fenton; the Farm Security's economic and sociological survey of the U.S.

Anyone can come and look at the pictures and prints. Some can be purchased and reproduced in photostats, but Mr. Vanderbilt says that the collection is most useful to the person who has time to do research.

He says you just can't go in and ask for a certain picture right off and expect to get it. But he's working on a refinement of indexing which he hopes will one day make it as easy to get a picture as it is a book.

Four fifths of the world's cloves come from Zanzibar and Pemba, islands off the East Africa coast.

Cloves are dried flower buds which grow on evergreen trees of the myrtle family.

RABBITS ABOUND

New York—(AP)—Despite the increasing number of people in the New York metropolitan area, small game still is available not many miles from the downtown skyscraper area. Particularly is this true with rabbits, who seem to delight in making home gardens an important source of their food supply.

Siamese Doctor Reports His People Eat Too Much

New Orleans, Oct. 11—(AP)—A Siamese doctor said today his government is worried about the people's welfare because they're "eating too much."

Declaring his country is a "land of plenty" where food is abundant and cheap for rich and poor alike, the doctor said health officials have launched a nation-wide program to encourage moderation and balance in the Siamese diet.

Dr. Sem Pring-Puang-Geo said over-eating and disbalance in diet help account for the fact that digestive-system diseases like dysentery rank high among the maladies of his countrymen.

Representing Siam at the 13th Congress of the International Society of Surgery, the doctor told a reporter that even the poorest Siamese has plenty to eat, and that both rich and poor "eat all the time, eat too often."

Thus, he said, their digestive systems are strained, pre-disposing them to diseases of that system.

More than a hundred varieties of fish, many kinds of meats, more than fifty varieties of fruit, and an abundance of rice, poultry, eggs, shrimp, lobsters and other foods are within the reach of every man of Siam, he said, adding:

"The poor can get shrimp and lobsters from the canals right in back of their homes."

It's commonplace, he declared, for a Siamese to tee off on fish, meat and poultry at a single meal—with several helpings.

This is bad enough, he said, but oftentimes the poorer class stuffs up on rice even though foods for a balanced diet are available to them.

His countrymen, he said, eat enough to make them all fat boys—but the heat of the land keeps them slender.

PIN-UP CAMPAIGN

Veteran Groups Honor Vaughan

Washington, Oct. 11—(AP)—Take it from Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan: He's a snipper of government "red tape" with disdain for those who call him "unethical."

"I'm considered in many circles to be very unethical," President Truman's Army aide confided to a friendly audience, "and I'm sure I will continue to be."

"There are only two people I have to please—Mr. Truman and Mrs. Vaughan. As long as I please them, I'm satisfied."

"I've made various suggestions as to what other people can do. You can interpolate your own interpretation of that."

The occasion was a $2-a-plate party given in Vaughan's honor yesterday by members of various veterans organizations. They gathered to show appreciation for the various chores Vaughan has handled as President Truman's coordinator of veterans affairs.

It was a far cry from the Senate committee hearings at which investigators, on the hunt for "influence peddling" in Washington, inquired into some of Vaughan's non-veteran activities.

21-Year-Old Hen Is Still Laying

Lincoln, Neb.—(AP)—A hen old enough to vote is claimed by Pearl Halferty, a stock feeder for a railroad.

He said the 21-year-old hen is the last survivor of a flock of 50 roosters and 48 hens he bought in 1928. She still lays an egg now and then, he said.

Landlord Loses 'Private War'

Indore, Central India — (AP) — Thakur Narwar Singh, Jagirdar (landlord of Jhaknawada, recently tried the methods of his ancestors to regain his estates, but within 12 hours learned he was two centuries behind the times.

When the Madhyabharat princely union was formed in Central India, the Thakur was one of those who had to surrender their 200-year-old states and estates in return for compensation. He did it with a vigorous demur and went underground to evade orders of arrest.

When he reappeared, it was with a band of 200 fighting men armed with bows and arrows and some home-made guns. He "stormed" his ancestral fortress and occupied it. But he found the government much too quick for him. Before nightfall his "forces" had "surrendered" and the Thakur had fled. The warrant for his arrest was renewed on fresh charges, but he still is at large.

Mass Arrests Of Priests, Nuns

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Oct. 10—(AP)—More than 40 Roman Catholic Priests have been jailed in the past few days for opposition to the Communist government's bill to control the church, reliable sources reported today.

These arrests would bring to more than 300 the number of Priests and Nuns reported arrested since the beginning of the church-state fight here.

Scott Keeps Out Of Olds Dispute

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 11—(AP)—Governor Scott, who has taken many cracks at the power utilities, is leaving his hands off the U. S. Senate's battle over Leiland Olds.

Olds is up for confirmation for a third term as a member of the Federal power commission. He is being opposed by the private power interests but has the backing of President Truman.

Scott revealed yesterday he has been asked by William Boyle, Jr., Democratic National chairman, to "give active support" to Truman's drive to get Olds confirmed.

Scott said he paid little attention to Boyle's request because "I figured it was none of my business."

Professors Quit Red China; Fear Regimentation

Canton — (AP) — Many Chinese university professors are clearing out of Red China because they don't want to teach under Communist discipline. Han Li-wu, minister of education, says his ministry already has taken care of 354 professors who escaped from Communist China.

Han said the professors found that in Communist China their position on the faculty had to be approved by special committees of laborers, students and teachers. "Many first-rate scholars have been dismissed as a result of such scrutiny," he reported. There were these other academic complaints:

The teachings of Marx, Lenin and Chinese Communist Leader Mao Tse-tung were compulsory. Courses in history and political science were suppressed. "Even science textbooks for middle schools have been modified to fit in with Communist ideology," Han charges.

Indians handed Notre Dame its only football loss in 1947 and spoiled another perfect season the following year, holding the Irish to a scoreless tie.

Boll Weevils Hit Cotton Outlook For N.C. Growers

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 11—(AP)—North Carolina's cotton prospects have taken a sharp drop because of boll weevils and bad weather.

The state department of agriculture reported yesterday that Oct. 1 conditions indicated a production of 470,000 bales, on 70,000 acres below the Sept. 1 estimated and 208,000 bales less than the 1948 crop. The state's 10-year average is 249,000 bales.

North Carolina's average yield is now forecast at 277 pounds of lint cotton an acre, the lowest since 1938. Last year's yield set a record of 447 pounds an acre and the average for the past 10 years is 355 pounds.

The flower of the month for Feb. is the violet, the birth stone amethyst.

Following in the footsteps of great Notre Dame quarterbacks like Angelo Bertelli, Johnny Lujack, George Ratterman and Frank Tripucka might be reading on dangerous territory for any 19-year-old, but to Bob Williams, the number one quarterback of the Irish this season, it's merely a job to be done and he will see that it is done well.
If anything should have shaken his poise it would have been the 1948 Southern California game when he fell to the Irish field generalship due to injuries suffered by Tripucka at the close of the first half.

DOUBLE TROUBLE

AP Newsfeatures By WILLIAM HOBSON

Chapter 27
Daylight broke over the settlement, cool and quiet. Not a sound disturbed the early rising of the dark curtain in the east. Jay crossed the creek, his horse stumbling and almost falling with him. He had ridden it down. He saw the dozing remnants in the corral, watered and fresh, and he looked back again at the horizon. Three miles behind him there showed a dust haze.

The Morgans were coming. Jay looked at the skyline, but there didn't seem to be a breath of life anywhere. It was forlorn, dead, deserted. But he knew that out there in the brush grim-lipped men with Winchester lay flat on their bellies and watched the oncoming dust haze.

He was riding into a holocaust, a death trap, where the life of his brother and a beautiful half Spanish girl was at stake. From Lucia he hoped that some kind of cruel fate would not, at the last moment, send her to follow Turk Pennock in a fresh grave dug up on the slope back of the cabins. She was young, beautiful, intelligent, pretty well educated.

He swung in back of the willows and then unassidely, turning loose the played out horse. He stole forward on foot, slipping from cabin to cabin. Jim Swinnerton's big rock cabin came into view and Jay moved toward the back. He opened the door cautiously, slid in, and felt the gun at his back.

"Easy, Jay," Ace's mild voice said. "I'll shoot. Let me have the gun." Jay gave it to him, a shudder going through his young frame. This was just about ended it. He was sure of it when he saw Joe, bound hand and foot, on the other bunk.

Ace was saying in his drawing voice, "I heard a couple of forty-two's go blam right after we left an' I figured you'd either get kilt or got away. But I wasn't takin' no chances. I knowed that if you got free you'd burn the breeze in here after Joe. I was watchin' when you slid in around them cabins. Hate to do it, Jay, but you know Brad."

"Did you see Mike?" Joe asked from the bunk. Jay nodded. "What did he say?" demanded the other.

"He hit the roof. He almost tore the house apart." He quoted words Ace had said to him only a short time previously. "Boy, I just naturally wouldn't want to be in your boots."

"Why, the old coyote!" Joe roared, rage making him tug at his bonds. "That ungrateful old moss-backed son of a polecat! Just you wait till I get my hands on—"

"That's what he said about you," Jay said, and somehow managed to laugh. He told of what had happened at the ranch.

Ace chuckled a little pleased sound. "So you got Jim, eh? The good news to me, I never did cotton to the idea of that law sharp being in this outfit. Me, I'm a boss thief an' never expect to be anything else. I like to be among my own kind. But now he'll find out what it means to do a long stretch. An' you got Peg Smith, too, huh? Good. I never kilt that sneakin' back-shooter. I've kilt a man or two in my time but I never done it from the back. Too bad about Hank. He was the best brand blotter I ever knowed. I suppose you boys know what this means for you both when Brad gets in. Nothin' personal about it, boys. You puts down yore money an' you takes yore choice, them's allus been my sentiments. An' I guess that goes for you, too, Lucia."

"No," she said quietly, "not for me. Ace. I have a knife hidden away in my cabin. I intended to use it the other night, when Miguel was there. I will kill myself before

"I'll go with him."
The other guard looked out the open doorway. The edge of the sun was peeping up, for it had taken Jay some time to get from the willows to the back door of the cabin. "Here they come," he announced.

Jay stepped forward and looked out, saw the first thin point of black drop down toward the creek. He saw Blue Star and Rover Boy, still out in front.

The dark line came on, hit the creek, spread out in the water, the thirsty horses sucking themselves full. Blue Star raised his magnificent head, water dripping from his muzzle, and whistled his defiance at the horses in the corral before Morden and his men put them into a big corral, closed the gate, and jogged toward the store.

His Hunch Paid Off

It pays to follow your hunches, or at least that is the opinion of State Highway Patrolman Paul C. Whitley, who last night recovered a car which had been stolen early in the evening in Washington.

Whitley said that he heard a radio alarm, stating that a black Hudson car had been stolen in Washington about 8:30. The radio report did not give the license number of the car, however.

The Patrolman who was cruising down Dickinson Avenue at the time, saw a black Hudson approaching him at a slow rate of speed. A hurried check showed that the car had out of town license and was occupied by only one person, a man.

Following a hunch the Patrolman whipped his car around and gave chase to the car. The driver of the other car seeing that the Patrolman was following him sent into a side street, and parked his car with the lights off. The patrol car pulled up next to the parked vehicle.

When asked for his driver's license and ownership papers to the car, the man could not produce them. That was all the patrolman needed. He placed the man under arrest and took him to the Greenville Police department where a check with the Washington Police Department revealed that the car in the custody of the Patrolman was the one stolen several hours before in that city. John D. Banks, Route three Washington, was returned to Washington to face charges of larceny of an automobile. The Washington Police department said that the man had a police record.

C-Of-C Meeting Held Yesterday

Members of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce in their regular monthly meeting last night heard reports from three committees, and discussed final plans for the special membership drive which was conducted in the city this morning.

Hugh Winslow, chairman of the agricultural committee, reported to the directors on the banquet sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce last week for the 4-H and FFA boys and their dads who had entries in the purebred swine show at the Pitt county fair. Winslow reported a total of 32 entries in the junior purebred swine show, and said 96 people attended the banquet.

In the report of the civic affairs committee, made by Manager W. T. Kyser, the program for fire prevention week was outlined; and Kyser said the local fire department, city schools and the Chamber of Commerce committees are conducting the fire prevention campaign in the city this week.

John G. Fleming, chairman of the membership committee, explained the details for the membership drive which began this morning in an effort to bring more of the city's business firms and professional men into the Chamber of Commerce.

President L. S. Ficklen presided at the meeting.

CORRECTION

A story in a recent edition of the Daily Reflector stating that Connie Baker, colored, had reported to police that shots by hunters in the river lowlands were alarming people in the neighborhood of Contentee street, erroneously stated that the complaint was colored. The person making the complaint to police was Miss Constance Baker, Contentee street, daughter of Mrs. Viola Baker.

Woman Justified In Gun Slaying

By CHESTER WALSH

A coroner's jury last night found that Hattie Page, 34, wife of a Negro tenant farmer, shot and killed her husband, Ollie Page, 39, late Saturday night at their home in self defense and recommended that she be released. Coroner Griffin H. Rouse presided at the inquest.

Testimony was that Page had habitually gone home drunk and threatened his wife and family, on the James C. Taylor farm, near the Martin County line, and beaten his wife and warned her that he would kill her.

She testified that her husband was choking her and threatening to shoot her when she got away from him and shot him with a shotgun.

Page's children testified against him. Hattie Page was a free woman today, and back at home with her children on the Taylor farm.

James C. Taylor, well known farmer of the upper part of Pitt county, testified that Page was a heavy drinker and frequently beat his wife and intimidated his children. He said Hattie Page is a woman of good character and loyal to her children.

Several farmers from the community congratulated the coroner's jurors for their verdict of self defense and said Hattie Page had many times gone to their homes nearby for protection after her husband had beaten her.

Ollie Page, Jr., testified that his father attempted to assault him with a knife in Robersonville a short time before he was killed.

Fire Chief George Gardner was guest speaker at the weekly meeting of the Greenville Lions Club last night. As this is National Fire Prevention week, Chief Gardner made fire prevention the subject of his talk. He stated that fires cost property owners $700,000,000 in the United States last year, and untold loss in human life. He also mentioned several useful and important things to know in regard to the prevention of fires, as well as the prevention of panic and its disastrous results.

Railroaders . . .

railroads. Instead of the 1 per cent payroll tax paid by workers and employers to the federal old age insurance system, the railroad worker pays 6 per cent of the first $300 a month of his salary or wage. The railroad employer pays an equal amount.

Besides the old age payments, the railroad system provides income in case of disability. The House-approved legislation would incorporate some of those features in the federal system.

Under the rail plan, the worker may retire at 65 with full benefits. Or he may continue to work if he wants, but he must pass physical test depending on the type of work he does. If he wants to retire at 60, he may do that, but at reduced pension.

The principal advocates of the railroad system say it is different from the federal plan also in that it is "actuarially sound." They mean that as the worker's interest in the fund increases, the credit with which to pay his pension also increases.

Some critics say the government merely places an I.O.U. in the railroad retirement trust fund, and uses the money as it needs it. In a way, that's correct, the experts say, but the I.O.U.'s the government leaves in the hill are special-issue U. S. Treasury bonds, paying 3 per cent interest.

A good question is: Why have two funds? Why not merge the railroad fund into the general federal system.

First, the railroad pension system is the outgrowth of employer-financed plans, some of which date back over almost a century.

Second, when the railroad system was adopted, there were thousands of workers almost immediately eligible for pensions, without any contribution to the fund. The percentage of those with long service prior to the start of federal social security still is high. They would lose all that credit toward a bigger pension if they were swallowed up in the federal system.

Withers Harvey, chairman of the Sight and Conservation and Blind Committee, announced the opening of the annual drive for funds for the Pitt County Association for the Blind. During the next week or two, it is hoped that every resident of Greenville will become a member of the Pitt County Association for the Blind, by contributing some amount to that organization. This association was organized by the Greenville Lions Club in 1943, and has rendered essential and worthwhile assistance to the blind, and to those needing eye-sight correction or surgery.

The club also had for its guest last night The Reverend Ernest Williams, the new rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, who replaced former Lion Roscoe Hauser.

Final Showing Of Comedy By Dramatic Club

The Teachers Playhouse of East Carolina Teachers College gave the final performance Monday evening of a series of three presentations of Shakespeare's comedy "The Taming of the Shrew."

A combined audience estimated at 600 people saw the production on Homecoming Day last Saturday, Sunday afternoon, and Monday. Among special guests present to see the lively play presented in a forty-minute version were a group of students from Atlantic Christian College in Wilson and another of high school students from Pikeville. A large representation from Greenville attended the Sunday afternoon performance.

The Shakespearean comedy was given in an outdoor setting on the lawn in front of the Flanagan building on the campus. Special music of the Elizabethan Age played by George E. Perry of the college faculty made an appropriate and attractive background for the action of the play.

Free Diabetes Tests To Find Unknown Victims

The Pitt County Medical and Dental Society working with the American Diabetes Association is sponsoring a Diabetes Detection Week in Greenville, during the week of October 10-16.

The American Diabetes Association is sponsoring a drive over the nation in an effort to cut down the sharp rise in the number of diabetic patients in the nation. The association points out that there are probably 2,000,000 persons in the United States suffering from diabetes. About one-half of this number are now being treated by doctors while the other half are undetected.

Diabetes is ranked as the eighth chief cause of death in the United States today.

During this week the members of the Pitt County Medical and Dental Society will make tests for diabetes free of charge for any one who wants to have a test made.

Posters and books on the disease will be distributed during the week and everyone is urged to read and study these and to have a check made.

Nehru's Visit . . .

The aged Mahatma Gandhi joined with his beloved disciple and other leaders in the task of quelling the trouble. It was during this period, on January 30, 1948, that Gandhi was assassinated by a Hindu fanatic who objected to the efforts at reconciliation with the Moslems—a tragedy for all India and especially for Nehru.

Nehru is an internationalist and a Socialist and is a bitter opponent of dictatorship. He is, however, what might be described as a middle-of-the-road Socialist. He believes in what he calls a "mixed economy" in which the state assumes management of key industries but still allows plenty of chance for private enterprise to operate.

The Prime Minister hadn't long been in office when he initiated a movement for closer cooperation among the Asiatic nations. Furthermore he has been clamping the cause of other Asiatic countries which are seeking independence from Colonial status.

And there you have the personality who now is about to get his initial first-hand impression of our country. Those impressions are going to be vastly important.

Texas has 15,662 miles of railway, more than any other U. S. state.

There are almost 42,000 locomotives in service on U. S. railroads.
