Left-Wing Purge Not Yet Complete

CIO May Take Considerable Time To Dispose Of Remaining Leftist-Led Unions; Executive Board Handed Question Of Members' Eligibility

Cleveland, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Delegates to the CIO convention realized today the job of amputating their rebellious left-wing was far from ended.

The convention, before adjourning last night, had tossed out two unions under leftist leadership—the United Electrical Workers and the Farm Equipment workers.

The two unions, with a combined membership of about 470,000, merged last week but were thrown out of the CIO for continued defiance of major policy.

The convention chartered a new union to compete with UE.

The CIO, now definitely in the right-wing column, nevertheless may use considerable time to dispose of ten other unions headed by men accused of following the Communist party line.

The CIO executive board met today to begin work on the problem. The convention handed the board the question of the eligibility of the men selected by the ten left-wing unions to sit on the board under the amended constitution.

The Amendments Bar Communists or their sympathizers from seats on the 51-man board, and authorize the board to expel any unions whose policies follow the Communist, Fascist or other line in conflict with CIO aims.

Committees to pass on the qualifications of board nominees are expected to be named today.

CIO president Philip Murray allowed no leeway in the case of Ben Gold, head of the Fur and Leather Workers. Gold never has hidden his affiliation with the Communist party.

Murray banged his gavel yesterday and announced that Gold just wasn't eligible to sit on the policy-making executive board because of his party card.

With the nine other union heads believed to follow the party line, it wasn't so easy. Each one was challenged by a spokesman for a right wing union, and Murray referred each one methodically to the executive board.

At first Murray indicated that the issues would be fought out at today's session of the executive board. But later he told the delegates the board would act on the issues at an early date.

The 63-year-old Murray, elected to his tenth term as president of the CIO, promised officials would carry out the convention's program.

As for ridding the CIO of its pro-Communist elements, Murray remarked: "This time we'll do it."

Red Invasion Of Key Province Is Now Admitted

Chungking, Nov. 5.—(AP)—A Communist invasion of Kweichow province in an apparent effort to split in two the Nationalist armies of China's mainland was admitted officially today.

The ministry of national defense said the Reds had reached the Tienchiu district of Kweichow in a 45-mile thrust southwest from Chingkiang.

The Communist penetration was about 17 miles inside Kweichow. Chingkiang is a Red base in Hunan province 230 miles southeast of Chungking.

Main Red objective in Kweichow would be the provincial capital of Kweiyang, 210 miles south of Chungking. If the Reds drove to Kweiyang, Nationalist mainland forces would be cut virtually in half.

Capitalism's Future

It's An Old Belief Of Soviet Communist Leaders That Capitalism Must End In Ruins; More Optimism Preached By President Truman; Power Of Free Enterprise

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Nov. 5.—(AP)—The present Russian communist leaders have grown old in the belief that capitalism will end, by its very nature, and in a heap of ruins. But as time goes on President Truman preaches more and more optimism about the future of free enterprise and the future of this country. This shows up repeatedly in his speeches. It showed up twice this week.

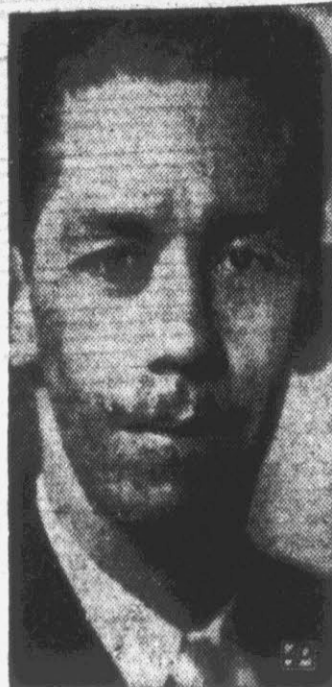

Here in Washington on Wednesday he was talking about his "Point Four" for world recovery, his plan for helping backward areas develop. He said:

"If we can make a contribution in the know-how, and raise the standard of living just two per cent, in the rest of the world, our factories and our businesses never could catch up with the demand that would be on them. That's all we need to do. It is not beyond the bounds of possibility. There are resources in this great world that never have been touched."

Then Thursday night, speaking in St. Paul, he had more to say—and more specifically about free enterprise:

"We are concerned with expand-

Admits Army Is Not Quite Ready

But Gen. Collins Says Peak To Be Reached In Short Time

Washington, Nov. 5.—(AP)—In four or five months, says the Army's top general, American ground forces will be "ready to fight and ready to take on anybody in the world, anywhere, any time."

Right now, said Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army chief of staff, troops in Europe are in top condition and those at home are prepared to "take order in case of any atomic attack." "We will not be unprepared," he said.

Collins spoke at a National Press Club luncheon yesterday.

He made no direct reference to a statement by Chairman Tydings (D-Md) of the Senate Armed Services Committee this week that "Our Army with only a few divisions is pitifully below the comparable strength of the other great powers."

Collins did say that "Frankly, our tanks aren't as good as the Russian tank." However, the United States had models of first class tanks ready, he added, including a light tank as good as any in the world. "All we need is a little money to buy them," he said.

Defenses in Alaska, Collins continued, aren't as good as they should be, but they will be reinforced in event of an emergency. The Army is delaying sending more troops to Alaska, he added, because of a lack of housing.

New 'Sub Killer' Is Commissioned

Boston, Nov. 5.—(AP)—The U. S. S. Robert A. Owens, first of a new type of anti-submarine "killer" destroyers, was commissioned today at the Boston naval yard. The new war vessel bears the name of a hero marine sergeant of Drayton, S. C., Congressional medal of honor winner, who was killed in action in the Solomon Islands.

The 390-foot craft has a speed of more than 30 knots. The navy was not explicit.

Mother Watches Infant Kidnaped; Manhunt Begins

House Entered In Dark Of Night And 'Man In A Black Coat' Takes Baby

Utica, N.Y., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Six-week-old Stephen Komorek, son of a $100-a-week paper mill worker, was kidnaped last night by a man in a black coat, the infant's mother reported.

Mrs. Henry Komorek said a man with a hat down over his eyes stole the baby from his crib near the kitchen stove in their modest home in suburban Clayville. The couple's only other child, a seven-year-old son, was struck and killed by an automobile four years ago.

State police broadcast an alarm and patrolled roads. Woods near the village were being searched.

The 29-year-old mother told a reporter she didn't know of any reason for the kidnaping.

"The only possibility would be a money angle," she said. She added that she and her husband "have a new 1949 Pontiac and it has been rumored that we have money."

Komorek, 34, averages $100 a week in wages as a machine tender at a paper plant near their home.

Mrs. Komorek said she did not recognize the man who, she reported, fled with the child in a black sedan. She described him as of normal height and weight.

She said she had fed the baby shortly before 11 p.m. and had put him in his crib. She then lay down on a couch in the parlor to wait her husband's return from work. He was on the 4 p.m.-to-midnight shift. She left the kitchen door unlocked for him.

She told police that:

A few minutes later she heard a rustling in the kitchen but thought it was her husband. Then, hearing other movements, she called out, "Who's there?" When there was no answer, she investigated and saw the man running out with the child.

The mother, barefooted, chased the man. She reported he ran up an embankment to a state highway, about 100 feet from the house, and jumped into an automobile. She drove north toward Utica.

Hobo King Is Laid To Rest

New York, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Dan O'Brien, who called himself "The King of the Hoboes," had the kind of funeral he probably would have wanted.

And today he sleeps in a satin-lined casket in a pretty little cemetery plot—a richer bed than he knew during his 90 years.

Dan died last week at New York's Bellevue hospital—broke, as usual.

His friends came to the funeral yesterday in a little mortuary chapel. Some were well-dressed; some came from the Bowery.

Professor Giuseppe Ravitta, the "Faganini of the Gutter" who fiddles outside Carnegie hall, played "Ave Maria" on his violin.

Box Car Betty eulogized him. Dan had never done much, didn't work, played with the kids, and told people to take it easy. He was headed for a pauper's grave, but his friends said no. A real estate man, Morris Morganstern, and Sammy Fuchs, proprietor of the Bowery Poles, put up the money for the coffin and plot.

"Dan's not dead," declared Box Car Betty, who won't give her real name. "He's just making a trip. We'll see his face again and we'll hear him speak. It'll be a grand thing if we hold a convention up there."

Governor Calls For Revitalized Church Program

Kinston, N. C., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Governor Scott has called for a revitalized and reactivated rural church program in North Carolina. He spoke yesterday to more than 300 guests at the Wheat Swamp Christian church harvest festival near here.

"The biggest single program lacking in the state today is an active, and influential rural church program, the governor declared.

"In this atomic age it is more important than ever before that we learn to work with our neighbors and that strength and character be installed in our young people through a revitalized rural church program."

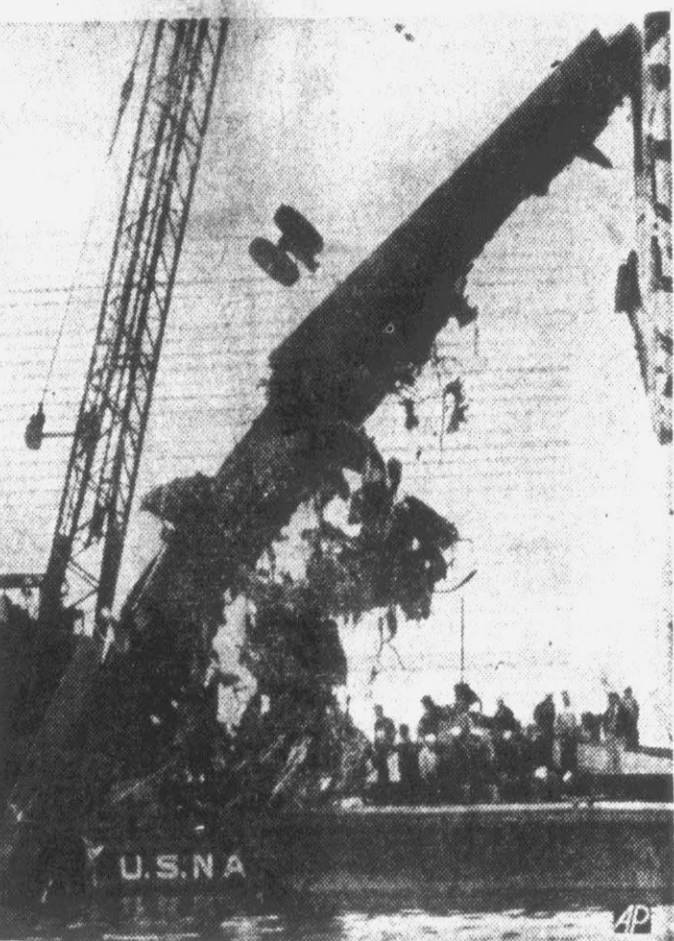

Convict Studied Law And Appeals

Philadelphia, Nov. 5.—(AP)—When Frank S. Townsend was sent to prison four years ago on an armed holdup charge, he decided to spend his time studying law.

Sentenced to serve from 10 to 20 years, he appealed to the U. S. Supreme Court on the ground his rights had been violated because he had not been represented by counsel.

The 37-year-old prisoner was granted a new trial—and was convicted once more, this time to a term of seven to 15 years.

Salvage Finished In Air Tragedy

Up from the Potomac river comes the front section and wings of the Eastern Air Lines plane which carried 55 people to death at Washington. The airliner broke in two after a small Bolivian fighter plane crashed into it over the National Airport. This part of the huge ship fell into the river. The tail section crashed on the river bank. Navy men completed the salvage operations. (AP Wirephoto).

Opposed To Title Of 'Dog Catcher'

SPCA Advocates Title Of 'Humane Officer' For Post

The Pitt County Chapter of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals in session last night at the city hall went on record as advocating the title of "Humane Officer" applied to Elisha Jones, now known as "Dog Catcher," and "Humane Catcher" pointed on city truck which carries the sign of "Dog Catcher." This is in line with the policies of other cities and towns and with the objectives of the national and local society.

President Bill Drum asked the group to observe a moment of silence in memory of Mr. J. L. VonGlahn of Raleigh whose death occurred last Saturday at the football game and who accompanied Mrs. VonGlahn to our spring organizational meeting. Mrs. VonGlahn is in charge of the animal shelter there and very active in the Raleigh S.P.C.A.

Mrs. J. L. Savage announced that reported cases of cruelties to animals involving horses, cats, dogs, and rabbits were investigated and each individually followed up during the summer months.

The society was presented a "cruelty case" just ten hours old by Jack Gates of Hillsdale, who reported that W. G. Dunn shot his wire-haired terrier but the wounded dog could not be found and might still be alive and suffering.

He stated that two shots were heard fired at the dog and several persons saw the dog bleeding profusely about the head. He further testified that an intensive search was conducted at lunch time and during the afternoon for the pet.

Dr. Joseph Bateman was given a vote of appreciation for humane work being performed in "putting dogs to sleep" through needle injections that act instantaneously, considered more modern and humane than method of gassing animals.

Membership dues of $1 for adults and 25c for children will provide funds to insure protection of animals and pets and a membership drive is to be conducted this month to enlist active support of all persons interested in humane treatment of animals.

Babson Discusses Advertisements

Babson Park, Mass., Nov. 4.—I wonder if we spend enough time studying the advertisements in our daily or weekly newspaper? In addition to comparing prices charged by different concerns for the same articles in any given week, there is another most interesting comparison.

Watch the "Help Wanted" Ads

If you will make a scrap book of advertisements over a period of several years you will become an ardent believer in Newton's Law of Action and Reaction. One of the best clues of the financial situation is not the stock market, but the relative number of those concerns advertising to hire people compared with the number of persons wanting jobs. It would be a fine thing for newspapers to summarize these figures each week and report thereon as they now report the rainfall, temperature and stock market averages. Business and investment analysts get some of their best information from comparing the advertisements of goods and prices.

I am especially interested in watching the bankruptcy sales of businesses which appear in most Sunday newspapers. During the war, there were few such and—when they

Gov't Inquiry

Washington, Nov. 5.—(AP)—The government will start its investigation Wednesday into history's worst airplane crash—The collision of a fighter plane and an Eastern Airliner which cost 55 people their lives.

The civil aeronautics board, in announcing the schedule yesterday, said testimony offered by Bolivian pilot Erick Rios Bridoux from his steaked will be included in the record.

The fighter was hauled out of the Potomac river yesterday and CAB investigators promptly began an examination of its instruments.

"Because you walked out of the CIO, I no longer recognize you as having any authority to tell me anything."

Others, like the 10 Right Wingers tossed out at Westinghouse's turbine plant in Sharon, Pa., simply ignored the telegrams.

Unverified reports indicated all Right Wing UE officials have got Fitzgerald telegrams, which also are signed by Charles Newell, UE International representative.

Dallas Smith, Right Wing, president of the 4,000-member General Electric Corp. UE local at Fort Wayne, Ind., got one. There, the Right Wingers have obtained a court order, restraining district and international officers from interfering with the local's finances. Smith called a general membership meeting for Sunday.

Czechs Disclose Six Executions

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Six Czechs convicted as ringleaders of an alleged armed plot to overthrow the Communist-led government, were hanged today, it was announced officially.

The men were accused of preparing to lead a group last spring. The government charged that they were "just at the point of executing a well prepared revolt" when the police caught them.

Among those executed were men who had held prominent positions in Czechoslovak public affairs before the Communists assumed power in February, 1948.

Those hanged were: Josef Charvat, chief of Prague Security Police during the first Republic; Dr. Jaroslav Brokovec, prominent attorney; Emanuel Cankic; Vratislav Polesny; Kvetoslav Prokes, and Vratislav Handa.

The government charged the plotters were in league with a "western imperialist power," not identified.

In addition to the six defendants hanged, ten others, including three women, were sent to prison for life. An unspecified number were sentenced to one to 25 years imprisonment. Ten defendants were acquitted.

UE President Expels Rightist Chiefs In Union

Pittsburgh, Nov. 5.—(AP)—President Albert J. Fitzgerald's order reading Right Wing leaders out of his United Electrical Workers Union is being met today either with defiance or with silence.

The order, in the form of telegrams to individual officers, came yesterday, a result of the expulsion of the UE by the National CIO earlier this week at its convention in Cleveland.

The expulsion, on the grounds of Left Wing-ism, immediately put the long-standing Left-Right fight out in the open.

Officers of at least five big UE locals throughout the country have received telegrams from Fitzgerald telling they are no longer officers or members of the union.

Some, like Clyde J. Bowman, executive board member of 13,700-member local 601 at the Westinghouse Electric Corp. in East Pittsburgh, have wired back defiant messages. Bowman, one of 24 officers "read out" at Pittsburgh, told Fitzgerald:

"Because you walked out of the CIO, I no longer recognize you as having any authority to tell me anything."

Others, like the 10 Right Wingers tossed out at Westinghouse's turbine plant in Sharon, Pa., simply ignored the telegrams.

Kluxers Parade With No Masks

Walterboro, S. C., Nov. 5.—(AP)—A parade by Ku Klux Klansmen through the streets of Walterboro last night left citizens wondering if the hooded order is gaining recruits here.

The parade, consisting of about 50 automobiles, was the second one here by the order in the last 29 years. The automobiles, each carrying four unmasked riders, passed through town without stopping. Several bore lighted crosses.

State Hospital Plans Progress

Raleigh, N.C., Nov. 5.—(AP)—The state hospital board of control's $22,000,000 building program is better than the order in the last 29 years. The automobiles, each carrying four unmasked riders, passed through town without stopping. Several bore lighted crosses.

Some $8,000,000 worth of buildings, it was reported to the board yesterday, is either under construction or, in a few cases, completed.

Republic Steel Corp. Offers Terms; Only Murray's Approval Now Needed; Ching Calls Southern Coal Operators For New Studies

Washington, Nov. 5.—(AP)—A major new break in the steel strike seemed imminent today, while the government stepped in as peacemaker between John L. Lewis and the still-unbroken front of soft coal mine owners.

Republic Steel Corp., the nation's third biggest steelmaker, made its $4,000 workers a pension offer in Cleveland. The CIO United Steelworkers' district director there did not disclose the terms but said:

"With (CIO President Philip) Murray's approval, we'll accept it."

The No. 2 producer, Bethlehem Steel, settled early this week. Washington officials predicted that if "Big Steel"—United States Steel Corp. and its subsidiaries—gets into line, the back-to-work march quickly will become nationwide.

One of Pennsylvania's major producers, Lukens Steel Company, reached an agreement with the union at Coatesville early today. Workers began filing back to their jobs. Lukens employs some 5,000 men.

There were stirrings on the coal front, too. Cyrus S. Ching, tireless chief of the Federal Mediation Service, called Southern operators here Monday to "explore all the angles" for settlement of the 48-day coalfield shutdown.

A hint of possibly sterner federal action came from the White House party, which returned with President Truman last night from his speckmaking trip.

Mr. Truman, some associates said privately, soon will make a final decision on whether to go to court, under the Taft-Hartley injunction procedure, to force a resumption of coal digging. The President himself would not talk about either steel or coal.

Mediator Ching said his talk with Southern coal operators was last one day or longer. Then he will invite Northern owners to Washington for another "exploration," and later other groups.

He promised to "pursue this thing as long as there is any use." The implication was: After that, it will be up to Mr. Truman.

Ching's strategy was plain. He will bring Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, face to face with the operators only when his explorations have found some toehold for compromise, however slight, in the walls of resistance put up so far by both parties.

Ching "explored" with Lewis yesterday. They talked secretly for two hours and 15 minutes in a hotel room here. They got together after Lewis, trying without success to evade reporters, had become the leader of a comic chase afoot and by taxi. When the talk ended, he had "nothing to say" to the press.

Hopes For Unity In Europe Grows

U. S. Officials Say Paris Talks May Revive Movement

Washington, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Plans for a Paris meeting of American, British and French foreign ministers stirred U.S. hopes today for greater economic and political unity in Europe.

American officials said the two-day conference might put new life into the movement toward that goal, in view of Secretary of State Acheson's apparent conviction that such unity is urgently needed now.

As a part of this issue, Acheson is prepared to press for inclusion of the new Western German state in the European family of nations. He also is ready to discuss outstanding German issues—including the controversial plant dismantling program—in that light.

Acheson will fly to the French capitol for the meeting with British Foreign Minister Bevin and French Foreign Minister Shumann. He hoped to be able to leave here Monday night with a small group of advisers and staff assistants. The exact date of the conference will depend on the time of his arrival in Paris.

In announcing the conference yesterday, the State Department described it as a sequel to talks which the three Western foreign policy chiefs held in Washington and New York a few weeks ago.

Further Steel Talks On Monday

Pittsburgh, Nov. 5.—(AP)—The Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp., today said it will meet with CIO United Steelworkers representatives on Monday in "preliminary" talks toward ending the 37-day-old strike at the firm.

J. & L. vice president Victor H. Lawrence will represent the firm. John Murray will be the union's chief negotiator.

There was no indication as to the exact nature of the discussions other than that they would concern conditions for reopening the plant. Presumably this means airing details of a pension and insurance plan—the control bottleneck which caused the strike.

Roaring waters swept first through the rude huts of hundreds of poor families living along the river banks. Radio patrol cars dashed along the river, warning dwellers on the banks to flee. Many of the hundreds left homeless said they thought the warning was a trick to dislodge them from their homes.

Economic Integration

When The Big Three Foreign Ministers Meet Next Week They'll Have Knotty Problem Of Economic Unity As Advocated By Hoffman; Cripps Sees Great Risks

By DeWITT MacKENZIE

One of the knotty problems likely to be encountered at next week's meeting of the American, French and British Foreign Secretaries in Paris revolves about Marshall plan chief Paul Hoffman's call for economic integration of Europe.

Hoffman strung a sensation last Monday when he placed this sweeping proposal before the Paris council of 18 cabinet Ministers which governs the organization of European economic cooperation. He declared he wanted nothing less than the abolition of trade quotas, exchange restrictions and tariffs.

He went further. He made it clear that it might be hard to get more funds from the United States Congress unless the Marshall plan countries showed more willingness to join a single economic unit.

Sir Stafford Cripps, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, took mild issue with this proposal in addressing the council. He said Britain was trying to combine her responsibilities and interests as a leading member of the sterling area and the British Commonwealth, with support for the development of unity in Europe.

Cripps added that Britain couldn't integrate her economy into that of Faculty Members Home Ec. Dept. To Attend Meets Faculty members of the home economics department, at East Carolina Teachers College are scheduled to attend a series of conferences and conventions held in various North Carolina cities this month.

Attending the state convention of the North Carolina Home Economics Association in Winston-Salem this weekend are Mrs. Adelaide E. Bloxton, director of the department; Alice Strawn; Wynne Ursy; Mabel Lacy; and Lillah Gault.

Miss Lacy, field teacher-trainer in home economics at East Carolina, is vice president of the state association and chairman of the program committee which planned the Winston-Salem convention.

Miss Lacy and Mrs. Strawn will participate in a conference on teacher-training in home economics which will be held in Raleigh Monday and Tuesday of next week, Nov. 7 and 8.

East Carolina will also be represented by members of the home economics faculty at the second annual state-wide conference on the family scheduled for Nov. 15 and 16 in Raleigh. The conference will be sponsored by forty or more state agencies in North Carolina. Mrs. Bloxton, Miss Lacy, and Miss Strawn will be delegates from East Carolina.

New Roof For Austin Building Is Planned Soon The auditorium of the Austin building at East Carolina Teachers College will have a new roof in the near future. F. D. Lunan, college business manager, has announced that removal of the old roof and construction of a new one will begin soon.

The work, says Mr. Duncan, was necessitated when several wooden trusses supporting the roof of the auditorium began to sag. Steel trusses have been purchased and have arrived on the campus. The W. G. Dunn Construction Company of Greenville is in charge of the work. Completion of the project, Mr. Duncan estimates, will require a period of approximately three months.

When the new roof has been completed, the auditorium will be sound treated and will undergo further alterations preparatory to the installation of a pipe organ recently purchased by the college.

Pvt. Eddie Payton In Army Of Occupation Private Eddie Payton, son of Mrs. Helen Payton of 535 Ford Street, is a member of the 24th Infantry Regiment, now stationed at Gifu, Japan.

Payton is a rifleman in Company D and recently returned to Camp Gifu from guard duty at Kobe Base. He entered the Army in August 1947, received his basic training at Fort Dix, N. J., and departed for overseas duty in January 1948.

News Columnist To Address Club

America's most widely read Southern newspaper columnist, John Temple Graves II, is to be guest speaker at the Pitt County Executive Club at its dinner on November 10, club president John D. Messick has announced. Graves is scheduled to discuss the subject "Free Enterprise: The Magnificent American Proposition."

Mr. Graves was chosen by the Associated Clubs, the national organization with which the club here is affiliated, as the nation's "ideal authority on the subject of 'Free Enterprise' after it had combed the country in response to a demand by its affiliated organizations from Bangor, Maine, to Long Beach, California, for a competent speaker on the subject.

An economist by preference after he graduated from the law school at Princeton University, Mr. Graves served as economist for the Federal Trade Commission before he began writing his currently widely syndicated column for the Birmingham Age-Herald. In his books, "The Fighting South," and others published prior to its appearance as a best seller in 1943, he has gained a national reputation as an historian.

In addition to the writing of his daily column, Mr. Graves delivers scores of lectures before distinguished audiences each year. He makes frequent radio talks, writes occasional magazine articles and is a special correspondent for The New York Times.

He embarked on his newspaper career after the death of his distinguished father, the former editor of the New York American and the Atlanta Georgian, when he took over a column being written by his parent in the Palm Beach Times. He became editor of the Jacksonville Journal before going to Birmingham.

Mrs. Ashworth Hostess To Club

The Aries Book club met with Mrs. T. J. Ashworth Wednesday night at her home on East Fourth street. Miss Mary Eakes, the vice president, called the meeting to order in the absence of Mrs. Philip Coleman, president.

Miss Eakes made important announcements concerning the tuberculosis bond drive and the Garden club Christmas show. After routine business was discussed reports were given by all committees and books were distributed by Mrs. Harry G. Forbes.

Miss Eakes gave a brief summary of outstanding current events after which Miss Grace Outland gave a very interesting discussion of Bill H. R. 590 for federal aid to hospital doctors, dentists and nurses. The program for the evening, "Superstitions," was next presented by Miss Outland in her usual very clever and humorous manner, showing that she had wandered very far in her research. Superstitions regarding ghosts, devils and witches omens, fortune telling, dreams, numerology, palmistry, astrology, charms and the human body were discussed in a very informative as well as delightful manner. Special mention was given to the book, "You and Your Superstitions," by Brewton Berry. Miss Outland recommends it as wonderful reading for anyone interested in superstitions.

Mrs. Ashworth served a delicious sweet course with coffee.

Old Dream Of Water Freight On Tar River Is Revived

Potential Worth Never Forgotten

Since the fading days of the Tar River steamboats during the early part of the century, many people of Greenville have sought to restore the day when the lumbering freighters once again would ply the waters of the river and bring to the area lower transportation costs.

The dream of the steamboat whistle and lower freight rates flickered into realization for Pitt county for a brief period before the beginning of World War II, but slipped back into the category of pipe dreams almost as suddenly as it became a reality.

Through the efforts of local people for almost seven years, major obstacles were overcome, and Greenville and Pitt county established a port at Hardee Creek, which became the most inland port with a 12 foot channel in North Carolina.

Since early 1942, however, when the Norfolk, Baltimore and Carolina lines were forced to divert their freighters from the Tar to more important war-time waters, no commercial boats have visited the port. The same boats which shifted back into the man-made channel at the confluence of the river and Hardee creek and have begun to rebuild the shoals, while the port facilities have waited in vain for the gentle nudge of a freighter's bow and the creek of its unloading escalator which would mean cargo once more is moving on the river.

The channel of the river was last cleared in 1946, and even now is deep enough to allow the passage of the freighters except for the shoals at the mouth of the creek.

The port facilities which have not been fully utilized in more than seven years, however, came back into the spotlight recently with the proposal of J. Nat Harrison, chairman of the Tar River Port Commission, to purchase from the city and county 25 acres of land at the municipal port site for the construction of a bulk oil terminal.

The Greenville board of aldermen and the county commissioners are considering Harrison's proposal at the present time, and expect to take final action on the disposition of the port property within the next few weeks. In the balance may well hang the fate of the Tar as an artery of transportation in Eastern North Carolina.

Although the war-time emergencies which built many a struggling port into a transportation center, for the Tar it had an adverse effect. Nevertheless, the Tar river and the port facilities at Hardee Creek are potentially among the greatest assets which can be found in this section of the state. They mean a water artery which reaches many miles inland from the sea, and a point from which cheaply freighted cargo can be transferred to trucks and trains to be transported to other inland points.

Back of the potential greatness of the Pitt county port, however, are long hours of hard work by many citizens of the community who took one discouraging set-back after another before succeeding in their endeavor to reopen the Tar river for navigation.

Activities to renew commercial shipping on the Tar river began in 1933 when the Carolina Shippers Association moved its headquarters from Wilson to Greenville to promote the port project. The association under the presidency of the late Dr. Robert H. Wright persuaded Congressman Lindsey Warren early in 1934 to introduce a bill asking that the Army engineers consider the reopening of the Tar river for navigation as far inland as Tarboro, but for the next two years the going was rugged, and on two occasions Army district engineers turned thumbs down on the project. However, the approval of the division engineer was secured in 1936 for the project which would bring the river channel into Hardee creek about three miles below Greenville rather than to the city itself, and thereby eliminated the necessity of constructing locks in the river.

Channel Cost $248,551

The project was approved by the board for rivers and harbors, and the waterway made navigable at a cost of $248,551; and an annual appropriation of $49,000 was set for dredging and maintenance of the river channel from Washington to Hardee creek. Since the river was made navigable $173,924 of government funds have been spent in maintenance of the channel.

In the special session of the General Assembly of 1938, a charter was granted to the Tar River Port Commission which was to be composed of a three-man board that would look after the port property jointly owned by the city of Greenville and Pitt county. The act provided that the city and the county could invest up to $7,500 each for the promotion of the project and the purchase of property for the port. The act was amended slightly in 1939 to clear up technicalities, and was not amended again until 1949 when the port commission took the authority to have introduced in the legislature amendment which set the maximum amount the city and county can put into the port at $50,000 each, instead of the original $7,500 each, and gave the port commission power, with the approval of the aldermen and county commissioners, to borrow money and issue bonds or other obligations.

Bought 45 Acres Of Land

The port commission acquired approximately 45 acres of land on Hardee creek and constructed a warehouse which contains 16,000 square feet of floor space, and docks and other port facilities. The first freighter unloaded its cargo of sugar at the port terminal in October 16, 1940—the day the storage warehouse at the port was completed.

A ten-year lease, which will expire November 1, 1950, was given the Norfolk, Baltimore and Carolina ship line on the warehouse at the port, but the lease provided the terminal to remain an open port, and cargo from all boats must be unloaded and handled through the warehouse.

During the period of the operation of the port small blocks of the municipal property along Hardee creek were sold to the Pure Oil Company of Chicago, J. B. Kittrell of Greenville, and J. M. Blount, M. K. Blount, and F. L. Blount of Greenville.

Weekly Cargo Of 1,000 Tons

During the operation of the port from its opening in October 1940 until the last regular freighter suspended operation in March 1942, the port was visited every other day by a freighter which brought into the port 800 to 1,000 tons of cargo a week.

The river cargo ranged from canned goods and soft drink syrup to radios and other commodities. The freight was transferred to trucks at the port, and shipped as far inland as Durham.

Big Savings In Freight Rates

During the short-lived operation of freighters on the river during the 1940's, Greenville and Pitt county experienced a reduction in rail and truck freight rates which the area had not known in many years. An official of the Carolina Shippers Association, in a report on the port project before it was completed, estimated the area in eastern North Carolina served by the port would save upwards of $100,000 annually in freight charges alone when shipping on the river was in full swing.

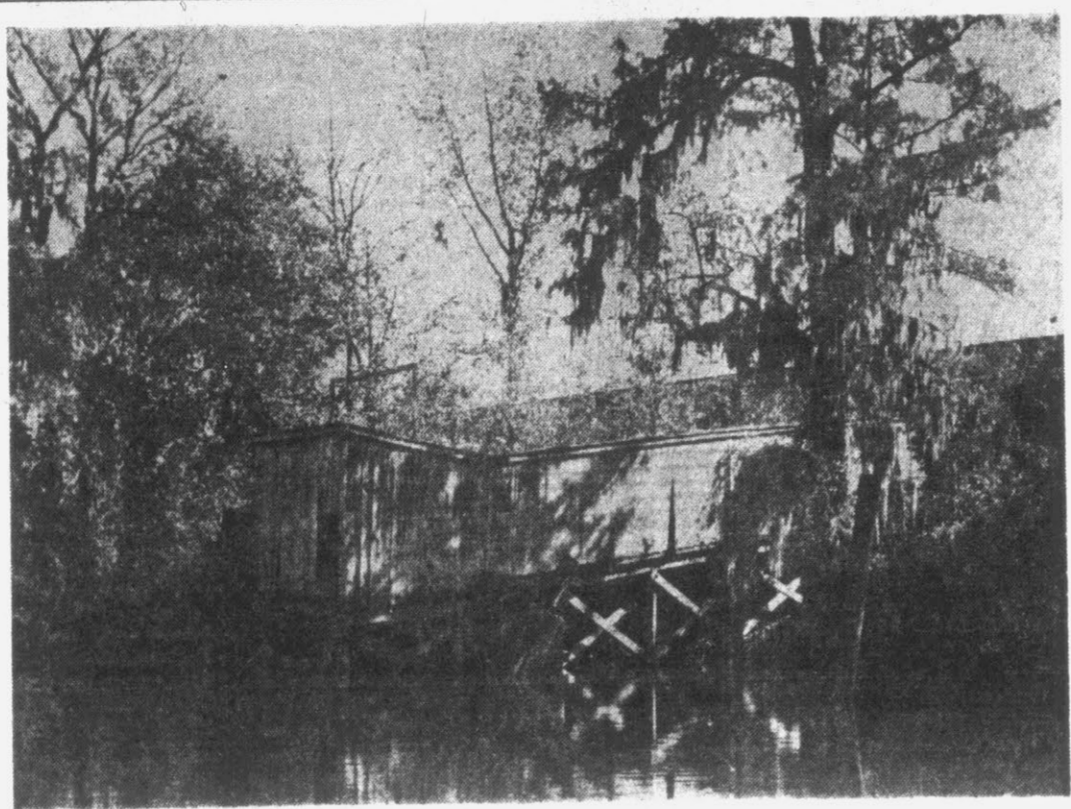

Just when the freighters will begin to ply the Tar again is a question which has been asked many times in the past three years by shippers in the eastern part of the state. And with each question comes an uncertain answer from the Norfolk, Baltimore and Carolina lines. Most of the answers from the boat lines are something like, "when there is enough freight to justify the resumption of the boat schedule."

How it will be determined when the freight is sufficient, and who is to say when there is sufficient tonnage, remains unanswered, but in the past several years, Greenville has grown to be the fifth largest wholesale distributing center in North Carolina.

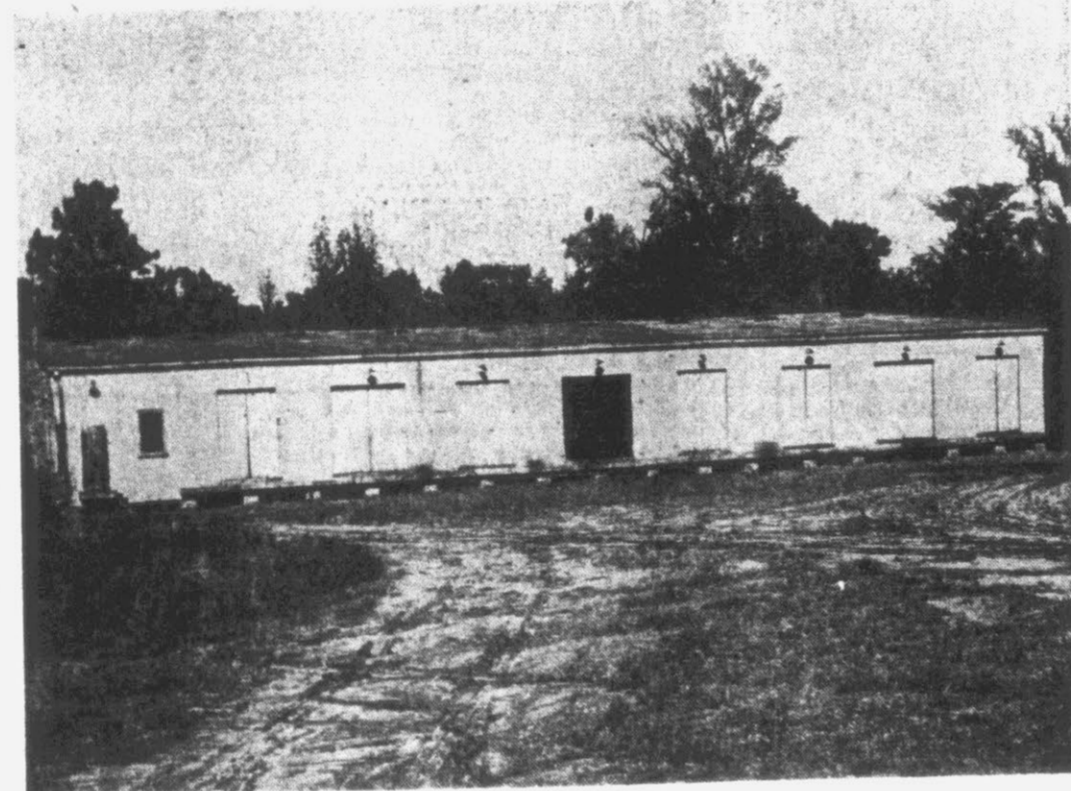

In spite of the brief success shipping on the Tar has experienced during the past three decades, there remain many in the area who port becoming a principal distributing point for Eastern North Carolina, and a few who are continuing their efforts to secure water transportation into the Pitt county port.

The covered runway leading from the port terminal dock to the warehouse was a busy avenue for cargo for about 16 months when boats visited the Pitt county port every other day from 1940 to 1942, but now it lies idle on Hardee Creek which is plying only by the boats of river fishermen. (Daily Reflector Photos).

In the warehouse at the port are 16,000 square feet of floor space over which rolled from 800 to 1,000 tons of freight a month when the Pitt county port was in operation. The warehouse is now subleased from the NBC lines to the Perkins Manufacturing company for storage. The boat line lease on the port facilities expires November 1, 1950.

This sign on a plot of land at the port terminal sight leaves no question as to whom the designated land belongs. Although yet undeveloped, portions of the port property have been sold to private corporations and individuals for future development.

Carolina served by the port would save upwards of $100,000 annually in freight charges alone when shipping on the river was in full swing.

Plan Details Of CROP Appeal

NATIONAL LEADERS OF CROP, the Christian Rural Overseas Program work out details of the nation-wide appeal for farm commodities for overseas relief. Along with sister states throughout the country, North Carolina plans a CROP Friendship Food Train this fall. Canvassing and collection of gifts will take place in Pitt County November 7-11. Here cabinet members Ray F. Murray, left, representing Catholic Rural Life, John D. Metzler, center, national CROP chairman and Church World Service representative and Clifford E. Dahlin, Lutheran World Relief representative, discuss the plight of children, widows, refugees, sick and aged folk throughout the world to whom CROP aid goes.

Those College Jalopies Get There--And Back, They Say

By EUGENE PRICE

Phil Gorham, his familiar white cap sitting jauntily on the back of his head, and the stem of a little brown pipe clinched between his teeth, beamed.

"So you want a picture of my 'T'?" Well, come on, I'll carry you to ride in it," the Battleboro junior offered as he cut across the campus of East Carolina Teachers College, toward a 1926 Model T Ford.

The photographer accompanying the reporter hesitated as Phil climbed into the front seat of the two door sedan. "Come on, I'm not going to drive fast," the owner assured, twisting wires together here and there, inserting match sticks and metal clips about, and making a few other adjustments preparatory to cranking up the 23 year old automobile.

Gorham's Model T represents the oldest of a number of aging cars seen on the campus of East Carolina where a number of students are becoming first class mechanics by putting hopelessly dilapidated cars in occasional running order.

"We'd do anything from changing a tire to overhauling an engine to have something to ride in," Gorham explained as his Model T lurched, groaned, quivered, then rattled off down the street behind the Austin building.

Phil's antique, a remarkably good machine for its years, cost him "a little less than a thousand," he says. But of course he has made a number of improvements since first buying it.

"She's fully equipped now with everything from a cigar lighter to an alarm clock," the proud owner stated. (The cigar lighter turned out to be a penny box of matches.) "How'd you like my seat covers?" he queried, pointing to the fur covered backseat of the jalopy. "Genuine imitation leopard skin," he boasted.

Further investigation of the interior of the antique revealed a large poster of East Carolina football games, an occasional picture, college stickers, and even a road map.

"She runs fine. I drove it all the way from home," Gorham continued, seemingly nonplussed at the fact that the engine had suddenly coughed louder than usual, growled loudly and died away.

Phil, changing into overalls carried for emergencies, never stopped talking. "Battleboro is 45 miles from Greenville. The old 'T' didn't give me a bit of trouble," he said. "I did have to back up a rather steep hill one time but that was because my gas was low," he continued.

Gorham wired a weight to his choke and went through the ritual of starting the car again. It sounded like a freight train with asthma but rolled along nevertheless.

"Now the car you ought to get a picture of is Tilley's 'Wonder Car,'" Phil offered. He pointed to a 1936 Studebaker belonging to L. A. Til-

Engine trouble? Nope. That's just Phil Gorham, East Carolina Teachers College junior, making a few minor adjustments preparatory to starting his 1926 Model T Ford. ley, a senior from Morehead who serves as a life guard at Morehead Beach during the summer.

The little coupe was of a long-faded blue. "It looks like an ostrich with his head in the ground," the photographer groaned, clapping his hand over the lens of his camera for safety.

"That's because it has new springs in the back and none on the front," Gorham explained. The front bumper was seven inches off the ground, a measurement showed. A look in the trunk showed a two gallon can of used cylinder oil.

"Tilley uses that in his car," Gorham said. "It goes through so fast he can't afford to buy new oil."

"She's in pretty good shape though, except for a busted block and it leaks," Gorham advised. "I don't believe it will even run," somebody opined.

A diminutive blond ran up, hopped into the car in question, pressed the starter and roared off in a cloud of smoke without a second of difficulty.

"That's Tilley now," Gorham explained.

"We have a lot of old cars on the campus but most of them are pretty good," Phil advised. David Jones, a Greenville sophomore, has one of the numerous Model A Fords seen at the college.

The Smith boys, John and Bill of Portsmouth, have a Model A they drove from Portsmouth, Va. "Then there are a lot of others," Gorham assured. Jackie Greene from Red Oak has one.

"Our cars don't look so hot but they run," Gorham pointed to a red sticker indicating that the old car had passed the last state inspection law.

"I'll trade my old 'T' in for a new one some day but right now it has to last me until I get out of school," he announced.

Gorham has almost two more years in school. The old 'T' backfired, coughed and rattled on. It probably will make it.

Greenville Man Member Of Party Finding 'Lost City'

Louis Dupree of Greenville, a graduate student in archeology at Harvard University, was a member of the three-man expedition which last week returned to the United States and revealed the discovery of a "lost city" 30 square miles in area in Afghanistan.

Dupree is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Dupree of 906 West Fourth Street.

The widely-printed picture of the forgotten city was taken by Dupree. It is believed the mosques, fortress and other buildings found in the desert 280 miles south of Herat, the country's third largest city, are the remains of the once-imperial city of Peshawarun, mentioned in legends but of which no written record has been found.

The great city, whose population is estimated to have been between 50,000 and 100,000 at the time of the Crusades, was come upon accidentally by a group of explorers who were looking for a drink of water one dusty afternoon last August.

Walter A. Fairservis of the museum's department of anthropology, who returned last week to this country, saved the story of his discovery of the "lost city" for telling last week at the museum.

Mr. Fairservis spent three months in the Seistan area of southwestern Afghanistan gathering data on the earliest cultures of that section of Asia. Accompanied by Louis Dupree and Henry W. Hart, an architect and graduate student at Yale University, Mr. Fairservis found evidence that a Neolithic or Stone Age culture existed in the country 5,000 years ago.

"We were traveling by jeep and trailer in the Dashti-Margo, or 'Desert of Death,'" Mr. Fairservis said. "In the distance we saw some reddish brown mounds that looked as if they might be a village. As we got nearer we could make out a great fortress, the domes of mosques and a massive wall with towers."

In the deserted city the explorers found many wells, but all were dry. There were evidences that the water table of the whole area had been lowered. Mr. Fairservis had to drive seventy-five miles for water, which he brought back in cans, enabling the party to spend eight days studying the ghostly place. The only local life they saw in all that time was a desert viper crawling into the crumbling wall.

There was a small native village five miles away. Its inhabitants shunned the "lost city."

The structures were of the Mohammedan period. Buildings, aqueducts and fountains were in good preservation, but the surrounding walls had been eaten away in places by the blown sand. Mr. Fairservis said the walls were 10 to 15 feet thick, with chambers in them. They also had built-in "elephant steps."

The city was six miles long and five miles wide.

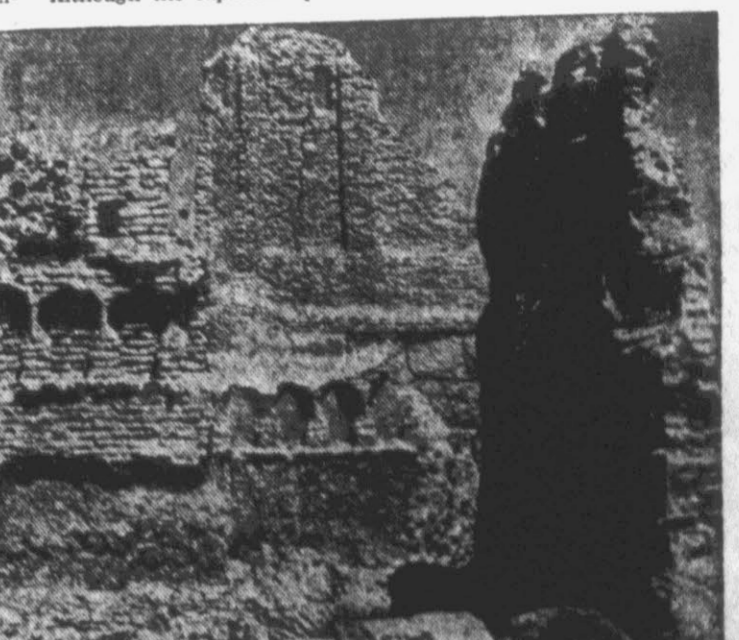

Although the explorers' quest was and study.

for relics of periods long before the Mohammedan, they were fascinated by their find. They brought back from the place glazed pottery which Mr. Fairservis described as some of the finest in the world; iron and bronze tools and utensils, fabrics, and bracelets made of something which he said was remarkably like modern plastic but probably was of animal origin. These materials will go on display at the museum in January.

According to Afghan legends, Peshawarun was abandoned when invaders cut off its water sources in the mountains. Mr. Fairservis explained that some archeologists preferred to believe that the city lost its water supply because of a natural drop in the water table. He said there also was a theory that a sudden change in climate had made it impossible for the area to support so large a population.

Some Afghan scholars believe that the people who abandoned Peshawarun journeyed 700 miles across desert and mountains and founded what is now the city of Peshawar, for many years the headquarters of British forces defending the northwest frontier of India.

The group headed by Mr. Fairservis made up the first American archaeological expedition ever sent to Afghanistan, it was said. A larger expedition will be sent by the museum next summer for excavation and study.

These ruins in the remote desert of southwestern Afghanistan are described as part of an ancient "lost city" which flourished at the time of the Crusades. The announcement was made by the anthropology department of the American Museum of Natural History in New York. This picture was brought back by a museum scientist. The "Lost City" is believed to be the once great municipality of Peshawarun which had a population close to 100,000. (AP Wirephotos.)

Revision Ahead For Price Index

Washington, Nov. 5 — (AP) — The Labor Department is planning a major revision of its "Consumers' Price Index" to conform to new American buying habits.

The index gives a rough indication of living costs by keeping track of prices of selected items and services considered essential to people living in big cities. It showed last week that living cost were about 169.6 per cent of the base 1935-39 average.

But the department announced yesterday that people aren't spending their money for the same things they used to buy, and the index is being thrown out of kilter as a result.

One job of figuring out a new basis for the index will take about three years, it said.

The index, issued monthly, "is still the best in the world," the department said, "but we want to make it a more useful measure in the light of present conditions."

Commissioner of Labor Statistics Ewan Clague told a news conference that the last important revisions in the index were made in 1936. Since then, minor laterations have been made as buying habits have changed. For example, nylons were substituted in its listings for silk stockings.

The tundra, a vast swampy plain bordering the Arctic Ocean, has been called Arctic desert.

Land in the far north thaws only on the surface in the summer, and remains frozen to considerable depth below the thawed portion.

Strength FOR THE DAY

FROM DOOBY PRIZE TO CHAMPION

"Cookie" That's the nickname of Arthur Cook, "Big Shot" of the Olympics.

"Cookie" is a junior at the University of Maryland. He weighs a scant 120 pounds. When he was eleven, his scoutmaster in Washington, D. C., entertained considerable doubt that "Cookie" could ever be taught to shoot. Later in an inter-club match, "Cookie" came through with the booby prize. But he kept at it. The booby-prize winner at thirteen became the world champion at twenty. He won the 100-meter small-bore rifle championship in the last Olympics and took the U. S. Rifle Championship a few months later. All together he holds 29 national records.

The lesson here on perseverance is so obvious that there is little need to point it out. But even better than the honors he won are the ideas "Cookie" has about living life every day on the square. He holds that athletic records and sound moral life go together. Regarding drinking he says: "A good athlete has to have a clear head, a strong body, good wind, and steady nerves. Drinking would take from me the very things that make a good rifleman and a good athlete. So I am going to leave it entirely alone."

Too bad it cannot be arranged some time for "Cookie" to say this over a national hook-up. Cookie is a man of distinction.

Around Capitol Square

SIMILARITY—Political observers are noting with concern or amusement, depending upon their own personal leanings, the similarity between tactics being used now by sponsors of Senator Frank Graham's election and those used by advocates of Charles M. Johnson in his candidacy for Governor two years ago. UNBEATABLE—About this time in 1947 and for several months before, the Johnson folks proclaimed that nobody can beat Charlie Johnson for governor. He was beaten by a combination led by Kerr Scott which included important support from Jonathan Daniels and John Umstead. Now Daniels and Umstead represent the "ins" instead of the outs, and they are just as loudly proclaiming that "nobody can beat Frank Graham for the senate." Unbiased appraisers attribute large contribution to the Johnson defeat to this attitude of bombastic overconfidence. It is natural that some of Graham's friends now are concerned that history might repeat itself all the way, as it is going for the first part of the campaign.

MACHINE—It is also recalled that two years ago the Johnson folks vigorously denied existence of any political machine, although the Scott-Daniels group waged their campaign with the "machine" as chief target. Now outsiders are worried about a Scott-Daniels machine taking over, while Jonathan and his associates assert with vigor that there is no such thing in existence. In that respect both are partly right. The political machine bugaboo has always been overplayed in North Carolina. It is human nature expressing itself for the outsiders to allege and insiders to deny "machinery." There is nothing new in current developments except for change of names and sides for outs and ins.

UNUSUAL—This change of sides presents an unusual alignment. For the first time in memory of vast majority of North Carolina voters the News and Observer, which Jonathan Daniels edits and political potency of which is recognized, is working hand in glove with the governor of the state, titular head of the party. For fifty years the Raleigh morning newspaper has stood staunchly—almost blindly—by the national Democratic administration. In state affairs it has more often been bracketed as anti-administration with respect to party factions, though always Democratic.

HUMAN—The Democratic party and the News and Observer are institutions, but the folks who run them are human beings. So it is understandable that human impulses should lead these men to criticize tactics used by the opposing faction, and then to adopt those same tactics once they get in power. There was no consistency, but a lot of human nature, in condemning a Johnson proposal for a rural road bond issue during the campaign, and then Somebody Told Me...

By I. J. (JACK) EDWARDS, JR.

A week ago today my father-in-law, John G. Fleming, decided that he had put off buying a new pair of shoes long enough, so he went to Ed Batchelor's clothing store.

"Ed," he said, "fix me up with a pair of shoes."
Mr. Batchelor tried a size nine and a half Nettleton. Johnny said, "I like this shoe fine, except for two things: it's a little too big and it has those John Brown hard leather heels."

"I hate to tell you," Mr. Batchelor replied, "but Nettleton doesn't make a shoe with rubber heels. I know you've got your heart set on Nettleton, so I'll get them changed for you."
Johnny told him not to bother, but to try on a size nine. The nine was a perfect fit, so Johnny walked out of the store with his new shoes, well satisfied except for the leather heels.

First off Johnny went to the barber shop to have his new shoes shined. Soon afterwards he took off to see the Carolina-Tennessee football game. En route he stopped in Raleigh to see his son, Bobby, a student at N.C. State. There was a day when I would have called that Cow College, in keeping with the slang of the student body at Carolina. But now that Bobby is on the State freshman football team I'm pulling too hard for his team to ride his school.

Johnny and Guy Evans arrived at the Carolina game happily anticipating a Carolina victory. At the half there were two sad sacks, along with 40,000 other Carolina supporters. But for Johnny there was still a bright spot in the day: his new shoes.

"Look here," he said to Guy, "hiking his foot up in the air." "I bought me some new shoes this morning. They fit me to a 'T' and I like everything about them except these John Brown hard leather heels."
Johnny turned the bottom of his shoe up and the heels were solid rubber! A week has passed since then and Johnny still hasn't figured out how he had a shoe shine, and then walked up and down the streets of Greenville and Raleigh without noticing the absence of the click of the leather on the pavement.

The answer, of course, is that Ed Batchelor is a very convincing salesman. When he told Johnny that Nettleton doesn't make a shoe with a rubber heel Johnny took it for the truth.
The man in Greenville who has laughed the hardest at this incident is Johnny himself. When he told it to me he almost fell out of the chair laughing. His concluding comment: "Yes sir, that Ed Batchelor really knows his shoes."
And I thank you.

Boyle's Column

New York—(AP)—Everybody loves dogs—except cover girls.
Too many dogs are getting their faces on the front pages of magazines, thus cutting cover girls out of money.

In the foyer of a modeling school here is a billboard plastered with canine photos. It's a stern warning to the girls that if they don't keep their rates low and get to appointments on time—well, what should happen to a cover girl will happen to a dog Rover will get their jobs.
The school, the pioneer in the field, is run by Grace Downs who has trained or found positions for some 25,000 models. It is a pleasant industry to be in, for the demand has always exceeded the supply.

"We still have more jobs than girls to fill them," said Miss Downs.

Grace, a smiling, cheerful woman in the blonde forties was among the first professional cover girls.

"Some people are nice enough to say I was the very first," she said. "I started back in 1921 when most of the magazine covers were painted by famous artists."

"I don't believe there were more than 50 professional models then. Now there are thousands."

The growth of the modeling field paralleled the growth of the ready-to-wear industry, the greatest single employer of models.

"When I began," Grace recalled, "there were only a few ready-to-wear girls. Most women made their own clothes or bought them from dressmakers. When I was a young girl only people with a lot of money used cashmangers. The rest used hoots."

"At first they used us only to model hats. Then they got more daring and put us in clothes."

She got $10 for one of her first cover jobs—for a military magazine. Today clothing models make from $40 to $75 a week, and they can stay years longer in this specialty than the glamor lasses who pose only for magazine covers.

"But most of them go on to better jobs—as buyers, designers or ever sales executives," said Grace.

The latest development is one to give the traveling salesman Gray hair—the models are becoming traveling saleswomen.

"I'm nothing but a clotheshorse," one girl complained to a manufacturer. "While I'm wearing your line, I might as well sell it."
He gave her the chance, and she proved she could do it. Now instead of accompanying traveling salesmen and merely serving as wooden mannequins, many girls go out alone. They both model and sell the garments.

"I don't know whether that's really good," laughed Miss Downs. "It's doing away with the salesmen. And, of course, they won't pay the model as much as they do a man—Even though she's doing a double job. That's the penalty of being feminine. A shapely figure or beautiful face isn't as important in clothes modeling as personality she said."

"I'd reject a girl who lacked personality before I would one whose figure was out of proportion. It's easier to improve a figure than a personality."

Grace started her model agency in 1927, her school for models in 1931.

"Now I'm training the daughters of girls I started as models," she said, and added a bit grimly: "That's hard to take."

WASHINGTON LETTER

By JANE EADS

Washington—Life is perpetual motion for a congresswoman," says Mrs. Reva Beck Bosone. "One can make no plans." The handsome, auburn-haired Democratic congresswoman from Utah, who has just completed her first term in the U. S. Congress, nevertheless is undismayed at the long-drawn out processes of legislative procedure.

"Having served in the state legislature, I am neither surprised nor disappointed at what goes on in Washington," she told me. "This is the way democracy operates—slowly but surely. Wait almost 600 people's minds to get together you can't expect to accomplish things in a day, or even a month. I think a tremendous lot was accomplished by the Congress this session, at that."

Interested in reclamation, public power, conservation and the proper development of the country's natural resources, Mrs. Bosone was happy to serve on the Public Lands Committee in the House. This committee sponsored the $70,000,000 Weber Basin project, reclaiming some 70,000 acres of rich land and putting supplemental water on an additional 30,000 acres in her district.

On Capitol Hill everyone calls the lady from Utah "Judge," she really was a judge—the first woman police judge ever to preside in a Utah court. Elected to that office in 1936, she became nationally known as an authority in the traffic safety field. Judge Bosone was first elected to the Utah state legislature in 1932 and was the first woman floor leader in the state legislature. She also served as chairman of the powerful "sifting" committee, which passes on what legislation should be considered on the house floor.

Though politics is her business and now takes most of her time, she is mother and homemaker first. "I love to dust, wash dishes, iron curtains, but I can't dissipate my strength on

Denies Majority Favored Federal Aid For Nurses

Mrs. Alton Clapp of this city

president of the eighth district of the North Carolina State Nurses association stated today that despite announcements the recent state meeting of the Association was unanimously in favor of the federal aid to nurses, that as a matter of fact a great number of the nurses opposed the measure as being dangerous for the profession and the public.

Mrs. Clapp was among those who attended the State meeting, and who voiced open opposition to the proposed law that would require the future training of medical nurses to be carried on only in such hospitals that are connected with the universities, and would require the nurses to acquire a college degree.

There were over 700 nurses in attendance at the recent state meeting which was held in High Point, but the associational vote on the matter was not taken "until the majority of those in attendance had been forced to return home for duty," said Mrs. Clapp.

Emphasizing the fact that the proposed measure would place the entire nursing profession under the control of the Surgeon General and would greatly curtail the number of trained nurses now so badly needed in the medical profession, The Statesville Daily said editorially:

"The bill to amend the Public Health Service Act, H. R. 5940, has been held up in the House Rules committee to permit further study. Mrs. Bosone's favorite subject, however, is her pretty, talented daughter Zylpha, 19-year-old junior at Trinity College here. She has been extremely close to her mother from the time Mrs. Bosone first stumped for office carrying her in one arm, her campaign literature in the other.

This is the bill which, in a roundabout manner, would enable a group of New York nurses to put into effect the so-called Brown report and eventually close all nursing schools not connected with universities.

"On casual reading the bill seems innocent enough, but registered nurses have become alarmed over its possibilities and are organizing opposition to the measure. Ostentatiously it would provide assistance for the education of professional and other health personnel, but it would discriminate against those who take their training in conventional hospital nursing schools, and it would give the Surgeon General complete control of aid funds "after he has obtained the advice and recommendation" of a self-constituted council which seeks to relegate hospital-trained registered nurses to a status of practical nurses, reserving the title of "professional nurse" to those in possession of college degrees or diplomas.

"There is little doubt that H. R. 5940 would lead to nationalization of the education of all health personnel, including doctors, nurses, dentists, osteopaths and optometrists and eventually would lead to Federal control of the whole field of medicine. It provides that the Surgeon General "shall determine from time to time the amount to be paid each school from appropriation x x x and shall certify to the Secretary of the Treasury the amounts so determined." And whenever the Surgeon General finds that there is failure to comply with his regulations, he shall notify such schools that further payments will not be made "until he is satisfied that there is no longer any such failure." Thus the Surgeon General has it in his power, by withholding Federal aid, to effectively put any school he doesn't like out of business.

"It is charged the measure has been inspired by Oscar Ewing, head of the Federal Security Administration, whose pet project is the socialization of American medical practice. Mr. Ewing has not been able to convince Congress of the practicability or desirability of his scheme, so it is alleged he is taking this round-about way of getting a grip on the medical profession."

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

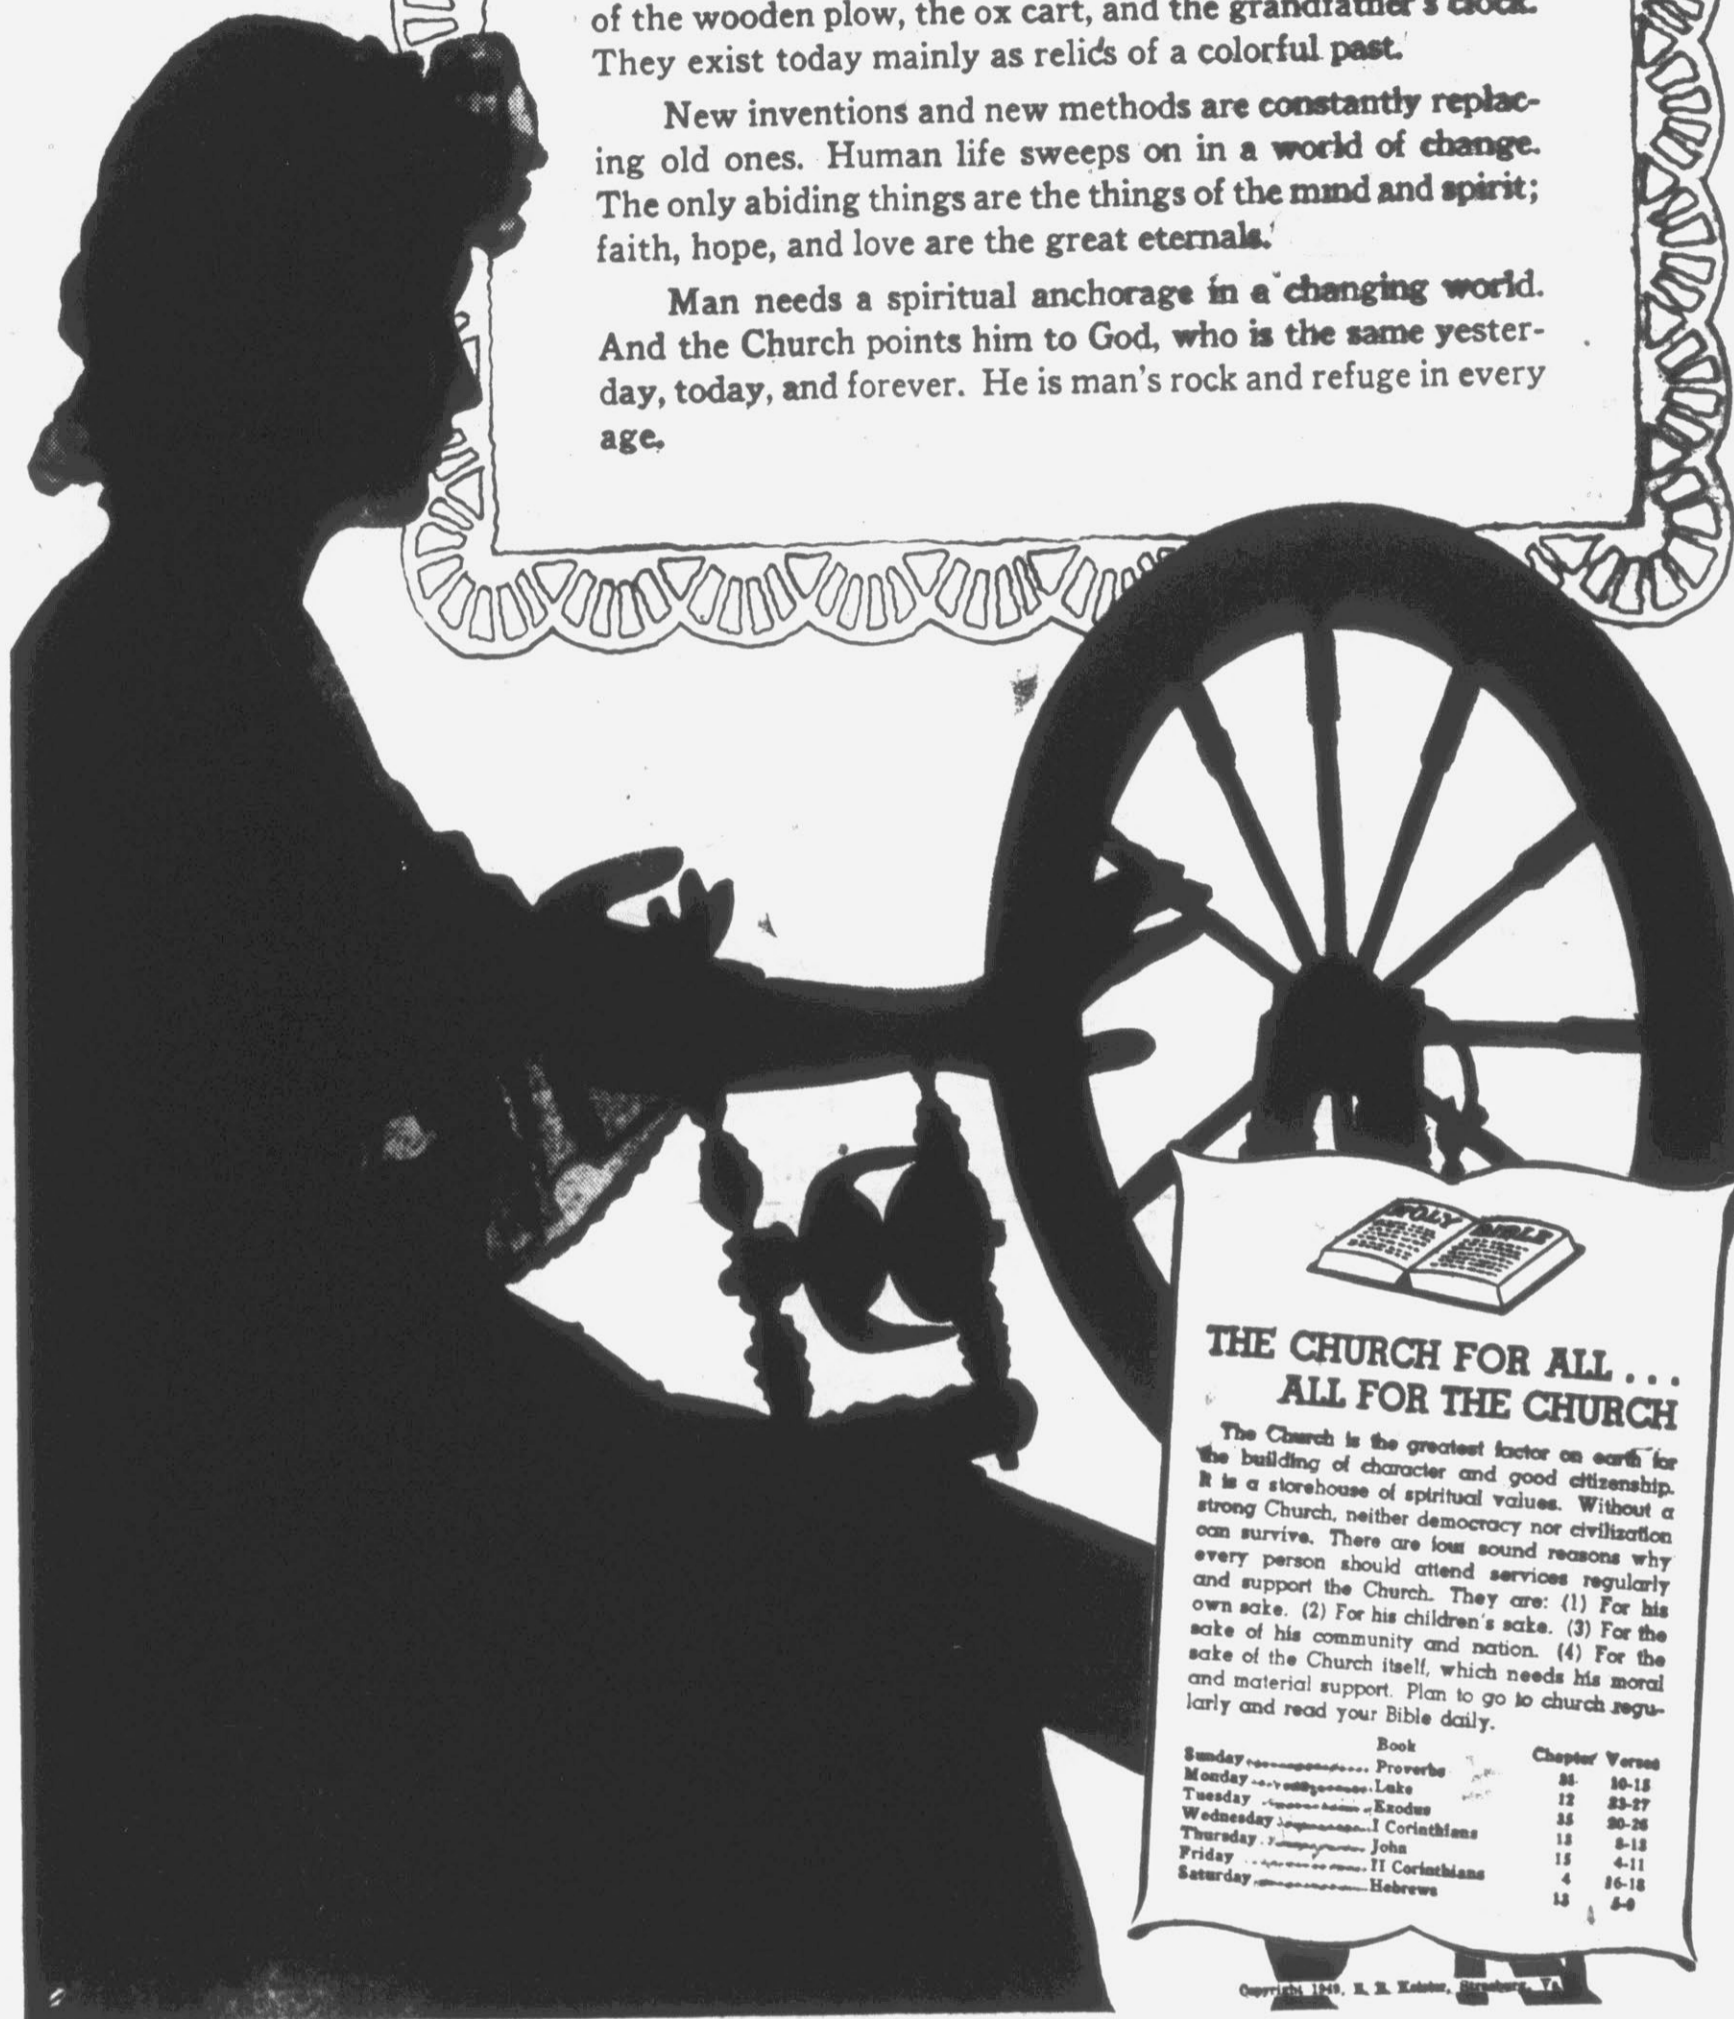

IN GRANDMA'S DAY

In grandma's day the spinning wheel and the old hand loom were familiar sights. Long before this time, when great-grandmother was young, the girls of the family were taught to spin yarn and weave cloth, and many of the simple garments of those days were the products of their delicate hands.

The spinning wheel and hand loom have gone the way of the wooden plow, the ox cart, and the grandfather's clock. They exist today mainly as relics of a colorful past.

New inventions and new methods are constantly replacing old ones. Human life sweeps on in a world of change. The only abiding things are the things of the mind and spirit; faith, hope, and love are the great eternal.

Man needs a spiritual anchorage in a changing world. And the Church points him to God, who is the same yesterday, today, and forever. He is man's rock and refuge in every age.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Ayden's Tornadoes Sweep To 26-0 Win Over Visitors

Smother Central High Eleven Of Elizabeth City; Visiting Team Held To Net Total Offense Of 30 Yards For Game; Allowed One First Down

Ayden's Tornadoes, ripping through their adversaries for a total offense of 250 yards, smothered a Green Wave eleven from Central High School of Elizabeth City 26-0 here Friday afternoon before an estimated 300 fans.

Coach Charlie O. Lee's Green Wave never threatened as the powerful Tornado defenses held the visitors to a total offense of 30 yards for the game and allowed but one first down.

Ayden scored twice in the first quarter and added tallies in the third and fourth periods to mark up their sixth win of the year against a single loss.

Coach Stuart Tripp's squad jumped out in front in the first four minutes of play when Mac Hardee returned a Central punt from his own 40 to the 23 of the visitors. Halfback B. L. Byrd slashed over from the three yard line four plays later to score the Tornadoes' initial TD. Quarterback Leonard Bullock went over for the extra point.

Minutes later Bullock punted on the Ayden 20 and ran 52 yards to carry the ball deep into Central territory and set up another Tornado tally.

Troy Jackson, a tackle who shifted to end, went 20 yards to score two plays later on a drive around Darrell Worthington's bucked over for the point to give Ayden a 14-0 advantage at the end of the first quarter.

Late in the third period Ayden drove 71 yards to a touchdown. Bullock started heaving passes from the Central 36 to highlight the drive. The first was to Mac Whitehurst for 12 yards. They tried two running plays and then Bullock fired a pass over the goal where Whitehurst tucked it in for the touchdown.

The try for extra point failed. It was Troy Jackson again, on an end around, that netted the Tornadoes their final score. The fleet footed linesman skirted end and went 13 yards for the touchdown. Again the extra point failed.

The school from just outside Elizabeth City did not boast the ineligible players it was reported to have been known to use. Officials said the ineligible players saw action in only one game, that the first of the season.

Grid Walkout

La Salle, Ill., Nov. 5—(AP)—Now comes a football walkout. Coach Michael J. Duhay ordered his Wilson Junior College team of Chicago off the field last night in a game with La Salle-Peru-Oglesby Junior College in protest of a decision. Observers said Duhay had been "riding" the officials. Three minutes before halftime, he protested a pass play then ordered his players to the dressing room. Officials awarded victory to La Salle-Peru-Oglesby, which was leading 19-0 at the time. Upwards of 3,000 L.P.O. homecoming fans were entertained by the school's marching band and then left for home after seeing less than half of a football game.

Williamston Still Unbeaten Eleven

Williamston—Williamston's Green Wave football team edged Scotland Neck's Little Blues 7-6 here last night to remain undefeated in Albemarle conference play.

Coach Stuart Maynard's boys risk their undefeated conference record against defending champion Ahoskie, in Ahoskie, next week. The Green Wave marched 60 yards after the opening kickoff to score their touchdown here last night. David McLawhorn carried it over from the three yard line to climax the drive with a touchdown.

McLawhorn then passed to End Charles Carver for the game-winning extra point.

Scotland Neck got its chance in the second quarter. Carver fumbled a punt on the Williamston 35 The Little Blues recovered.

With Jimmy Wilkinson and Beach carrying they moved down to the Williamston four. Wilkinson plunged through the middle for the score. The extra point was no good and the scoring was history.

Williamston did threaten late in the game when Bill Sprull got away for 35 yards and the Green Wave moved down to the Scotland Neck one yard line. The Little Blues' defenses held, however, and took over on downs.

First downs favored Williamston 10 to four. The Green Wave gained 199 yards rushing to Scotland Neck's 12. Outstanding for Williamston were McLawhorn, Sprull and Meyers.

Scan Chandler List Of Players Open For Draft

Cincinnati, Nov. 5—(AP)—Major league baseball executives scanned a bulky 79-page document from Commissioner A. B. Chandler today in an effort to find hidden talent they could draft at the major league draft meeting here Nov. 17.

The 79 pages listed hundreds of players eligible for the draft, including numerous bonus players and former big leaguers such as pitchers Bobo Newsom and Ralph Buxton. Buxton pitched for the world champion New York Yankees, but was released to Kansas City after the World Series.

The draft prices are: Class AAA—$10,000; class AA—$7,500; class A—$6,000; class B—$4,000; class C—$2,500; and class D—$2,000.

Snead Captures North-South In Putting Display

Pinehurst, Nov. 5—(AP)—For a long time now the locker room glory has been saying that when Sammy Snead is putting, nobody playing golf today can beat him.

The balding, 37-year-old PGA champion from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., was putting yesterday as he put on a whirlwind finish to sprint home a six-stroke winner in the north and south open tournament after clinging grimly to the lead by one stroke through the first three rounds.

The slammer blazed around the No. 2 Pinehurst Country club course in six-under-par 66 on his final round of its 6,952 yards. This followed earlier rounds of 68-70-70 and left him with 274 fourteen under par, and only three above the record Ben Hogan set in 1942.

Johnny Bulla, always a stroke behind through the first three rounds, when he had 69-70-70, finished with 71 for 280 and second place. The Pittsburgh pro, now playing from Southern Pines, N.C., was eight under par although beaten by six strokes.

Third place went to National Open King Ciddicoff of Memphis, now representing an Ormond Beach, Fla., club. He was never over par for his four rounds, closing with 72-71 for 283.

Snead, who has now won this event twice and four times finished second or tied for the runner-up honors, won $1,500 of the $7,500 purse. Bulla took down $1,000 and Middlecote won $750.

Leading money winner of the year, Snead now has won six major tournaments this year, in addition to several lesser events. The PGA, Masters, Greensboro, Capital City, Western Open and now the North and South have gone to him.

Pair Charged In Alleged Race Fix

Salem, N.H., Nov. 5—(AP)—An ex-groom was being held here under $12,000 bail and a racing sheet operator was under arrest in Los Angeles today in connection with an attempted "fixed" horse race at Rockingham Park on Oct. 24.

William K. Weaver, 33, an unemployed groom from Nogales, Ariz., pleaded innocent to seven charges of maliciously interfering with Rockingham race horses, each of which calls for a three-year prison sentence under New Hampshire statutes.

While Weaver was being held for the April term of the Rockingham County Superior Court during a hearing here, Los Angeles police arrested Forest C. (Chub) Wilson of that city, on many counts.

Rockingham Park officials recalled Weaver as the owner of Stable that was raced here back in 1941.

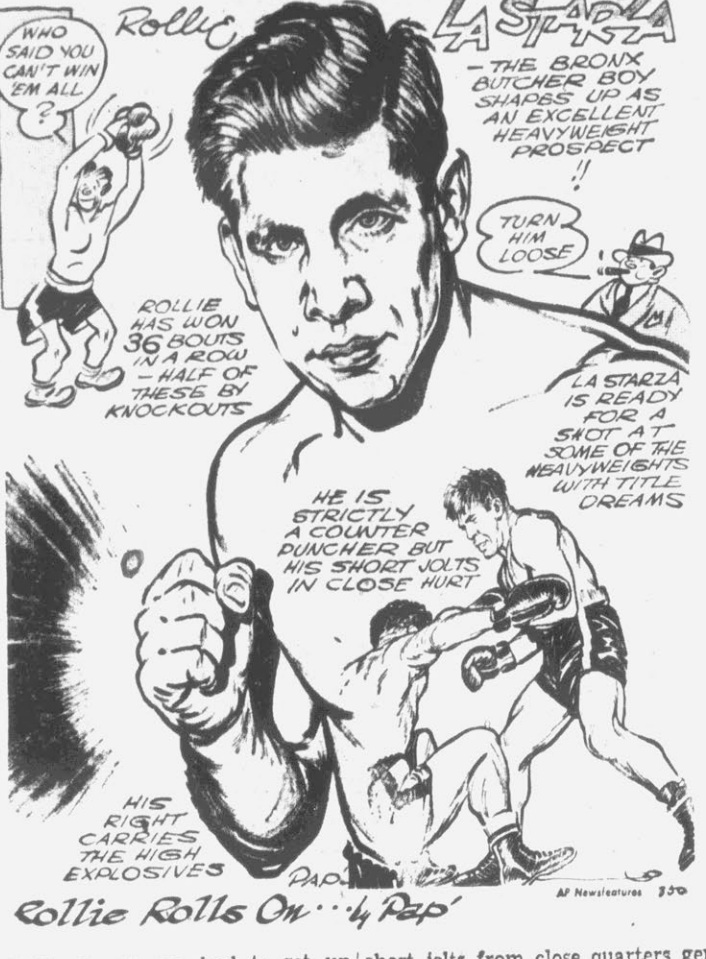

According to Thoroughbred Racing Protective Bureau investigators, Weaver broke into Rockingham Park barns on the night of Oct. 23 and inserted sponges in the nostrils of six of the nine horses that were entered in the next day's seventh race. Such tampering would hamper the horses' breathing during the race, won by Crisis, which paid $13.60 on a $2.00 wager.

Heavyweight Is Bounced Out

Seattle, Nov. 5—(AP)—Tony Bosnich, 191-pound San Francisco, was bounced out of the heavyweight title picture tonight when he dropped a unanimous 10-round decision to Jack London, 192 1-2, Sea e.

Bosnich had been clamoring for a shot at Ezzard Charles, the National Boxing Association's heavyweight champion, and was set for a December crack at the crown in San Francisco if the bout could be arranged. Negotiations were stalled when Charles developed a sore hand recently.

Sport Slants By Pap

Rollie La Starza had to get up off the canvas to beat Walter Hafer for his thirty-sixth straight ring triumph as a pro. The Bronx butcher boy has been brought along slowly but his handlers were ready to send him after the big game after he stopped Hafer.

La Starza is a "small" heavy-weight although his weight has been creeping up and he weighed 191 pounds for Hafer. Because his arms are short, he is necessarily a counter-puncher. He depends on the other fellow to lead and then beats his opponent to the punch. He's a sharp left-hooker and can jolt an opponent with his sharp right cross. He isn't a killing puncher but his short jolts from close quarters generally wear the big fellows down. As a general rule, La Starza's fights have not been too exciting. His cautious, patient ring style doesn't make for thrilling contests but he has demonstrated, as he did in his Hafer bout, that he fights best and fiercest when hurt. He was tame until Hafer dropped him for a nine-count in the sixth and then launched a vicious offensive. The chances are that he can beat any of the younger heavyweights who will carry the fight to him. At 22, La Starza has time to develop. There are few better conditioned fighters in any weight class than this former physical education student.

Odds-Makers Stumped In Figuring Fordham Eleven

New York, Nov. 5—(AP)—Just how good is Fordham; nobody seems to know.

The answer probably will come today, before dusk settles over West Point's Michkie Stadium.

"The boys have exceeded my fondest hopes," Fordham coach Ed Danowski said. "We've looked great but we haven't met a team that ranks with Army. I'm afraid our bubble is going to burst."

The unheralded Rams have looked good, indeed, whipping four rivals handily, including a good Georgetown team.

Even the odds-makers are stumped. Afraid to get trapped by so-called "smart money" they're simply refusing to give out a line on the game.

They've rated all-conquering Notre Dame a two-touchdown favorite over a sturdy Michigan State eleven in what shapes up as the most important game of the week.

The Spartans have run over five opponents since they dropped a narrow 7-3 decision to Michigan in their opener, and are figured to extend the Irish.

State Is 2-TD Favorite To Win

Raleigh, N.C., Nov. 5—(AP)—North Carolina state is a two-touchdown favorite going into tonight's Southern Conference football game here with the University of Richmond.

Kickoff time is 8 p. m. with a crowd of 8,000 expected.

Coach Beattie Feathers of State indicated he will range the Wolf-pack's attack around tailbacks Oleg Smith and Ed Mooney, wingback Bill Thompson and fullback Jim O'Rourke.

Fulks Living Up To Past Records

New York, Nov. 5—(AP)—Joe Fulks, one of pro basketball's top point getters, is living up to past performances.

Fulks scored 32 points last night to lead the Philadelphia Warriors to a 79-58 triumph over the previously unbeaten St. Louis Bombers in a National Basketball Association game in the Quaker City.

The victory also was the Warriors' first of the young season in two starts.

Fulks sank 13 field goals and six free shots. Ed Macauley was high man for the Bombers with 15 points.

Hirsch Jacobs, one of the greatest trainers in history with more than 2,000 winners to his credit, never rode a horse.

Farmville Romps To Victory Against South Edgecombe

Farmville, Nov. 5—Farmville high school's Red Devils came through under the lights here last night to trounce South Edgecombe's high school eleven 34 to 0 for the Devils third Coastal conference win of the season.

The Farmville offensive power exploded early in the first quarter and could not be coped with by the Edgecombe linemen, while the Devils' defensive play kept the South Edgecombe runners from getting within the Farmville 35 during the entire ball game.

Farmville's offense was sparked by Left Halfback Claude Tyson who scored one touchdown on a 30 yard jaunt, and ploughed through the South Edgecombe line for two more Farmville scores.

The first Red Devil score came in the initial quarter on a 70 yard sustained drive by the Farmville team. Claude Tyson took the ball on the four and went over for the touchdown. Joe Smith, quarterback, passed to End Albert Cannon for the extra point.

Following the kickoff, the Farmville line held South Edgecombe deep in their own territory, and on the punt formation play, the Devil linemen broke through to block a South Edgecombe kick which Tackle George Wooten, a junior, recovered in the end zone for the second Farmville TD. Smith passed to End Carl King for the extra point.

In the second quarter the Farmville boys again took possession of the ball on their own 35 and used power plays to bring the ball to rest on the Edgecombe 30. On the next play, which dazzled the spectators as much as it did the Edgecombe defense, Halfback Tyson took a hand-off on an end-around from End Carl King, and dashed 30 yards for the touchdown.

George Wooten kicked the extra point and brought the halftime score to 21-0.

After the intermission, Farmville intercepted a pass on Edgecombe's 30, and with one running play and three pass plays they brought the ball to the South Edgecombe five where Halfback Tyson ripped through the Edgecombe defense for his third touchdown in as many quarters.

Wooten's kick for the extra point was wide.

The final score in the ball game came on a 40-yard drive by the Farmville team with Reserve Quarterback Ralph Allen exhibiting his passing talents for most of the yardage. Fullback Harry Albritton took the ball on the two and plunged over for Farmville's fifth tally. Allen passed to Reserve End Bob Smith for the extra point.

Coach Elbert Moyer had high praise for his Farmville charges after last night's victory, but pointed out the Devils' downfield blocking was not up to his expectations. "Otherwise, they played a fine game," he commented.

The defensive play of the Farmville line, which tended to be overshadowed by the sparkling offense last night, held the boys from Edgecombe County almost in their tracks. Guard Roy Flora and Tackles Bobby Fulford and George Wooten were big guns in the Devils' forward wall, and rapped down Edgecombe runners on play after play.

Farmville takes to the road next Friday for the tilt with Wendell high school in Wendell Friday afternoon.

A's Definitely Set For Tarboro

Tarboro, Nov. 5—"The Athletics will operate in Tarboro next season. Regards, Arthur Ehlers."

Those few words, in a telegram received here Friday morning by George Earnhart, gave the assurance Tarboro baseball fans have been awaiting.

The A's return was practically certain three days ago after the Coastal Plain League directors meeting in Williamston. At that time, League President Ray Goodman said there was no question of the Athletics' return here since the player classification had been changed to permit more rookies on the rosters of league teams.

Goodman claimed that he had been in contact with Ehlers before the meeting and that the team official had said they would be back here next season if they could develop rookie talent.

Then, Thursday night, Goodman called Earnhart at the Rotary meeting and told the local baseball president that he had talked with Ehlers and had been informed that the A's definitely would play ball here next summer.

The telegram Friday morning, though, added the official confirmation local baseball fans had been waiting to hear.

The local baseball picture had been out of focus for the past week or so after Ehlers announced the A's were withdrawing as operators of the local franchise. The withdrawal had been occasioned by the directors' earlier decision to cut down on the number of rookies in player classifications.

Globetrotter Prefers Britain

Liverpool, Eng., Nov. 5—(AP)—A Scottish widow returned from America today with a few harsh words to say about Richmond, Va.

"Too hot and too noisy," said Mrs. Donald MacKenzie, an 81-year-old globetrotter who lived two years in Richmond and then decided she preferred Britain, rationing and all.

She told newsmen she had lived in almost every country in the world in almost every country in America and she thought she liked England the best.

Her husband, an army colonel, was Laird of Glack, Aberdeen.

Coach Says Ineligible Players Were Surprise

Mentor Of New Bern Midgets Asserts Neither He Nor Recreation Dept. Knew Over-Age Boys Played; Confer Today In Kinston

George Fasolo, coach of the New Bern Midget football team, acknowledged today that his football team was using ineligible players when it defeated Greenville's Mighty Mites 19-0, but he emphatically denied having knowledge of the illegibility of the players.

"Neither I nor the directors of the New Bern recreational department knew the players were ineligible," Fasolo declared. He said the first indication he had that some of his boys were over the legal age limit was when he read of the Greenville protest in The Daily Reflector.

Fasolo announced that he was willing to abide by any decision made by Conference President Bill Faye of Kinston. A meeting is scheduled to be held in Kinston today.

"If they award the game to Greenville by forfeit, it is all right with us. If they want us to re-play the game I am willing to meet Bill Kirtrell's midget football team anytime, anyplace and under Kirtrell's own terms for the Northeastern championship," Fasolo declared.

"I want it definitely understood that the directors of the New Bern Recreation Commission nor I knew of the illegibility of the players," he asserted. "If anyone is to be blamed, however, it will have to be solely my responsibility," he added.

Fasolo said that as soon as he heard of the protest he called a meeting of his team. It was then that he learned that he had some ineligible players," he informed.

"I would not have jeopardized the whole team and risked the championship by using ineligible players if I had known it," he commented. Fasolo continued: "We played Greenville to a scoreless deadlock in Greenville on a muddy field. We didn't have any ineligible players then and I had no reason to bring in any ineligible players for the game in New Bern. I believe we could have beaten them regardless."

The New Bern coach declared that the Conference president had not ruled on the game when Kirtrell told a reporter that he had been assured of either a forfeit or a replay.

Conference President Faye told reporters this morning that he had talked with Kirtrell and told him that if Fasolo had used ineligible players then the game should be forfeited or re-played. "I told him we would all three (Kirtrell, Fasolo, and Faye) get together and decide what to do."

The three figures were to meet sometime today in Kinston. Kirtrell was not available for further comment.

Gonzales Breaks Kramer's String Of Three Wins

Toledo, O., Nov. 5—(AP)—A newcomer to professional tennis, Pancho Gonzalez, 21-year-old Los Angeles National Amateur champion, will try here tonight to make it two match victories in a row over proking Jack Kramer.

Gonzales broke Kramer's three-match string of victories yesterday in Cleveland 6-2, 6-2. The pair's record on the cross-country exhibition tour is now 4-2 in Kramer's favor.

Kramer was erratic last night, often missing the baseline. Gonzales' game was steadier than usual, and he twice broke his opponents' service.

One Thousand Fist-Swinging Fans Disrupt Game; Three Knife Victims

Detroit, Nov. 5—(AP)—A thousand fist-swinging fans disrupted a one-touchdown advantage held by and howling, fist-swinging fans poured from the stands last night.

After the fighting broke up in the stadium, other battles broke out in the streets.

Although the game was never completed, River Rouge was awarded a 7-0 victory.

Police Lt. Anton Hill said more than 1,000 of the 5,000 fans engaged in the fighting.

It took 10 minutes for the eight policemen at the stadium to get the mob under control.

After the fighting broke up in the stadium, other battles broke out in the streets.

Chapter 19
 Pencil and paper—if she could write down what she was thinking. Her old desk contained crayons. She opened the desk. Something fell out. She picked it up and laughed. Drawing wasn't her strong point. This, she remembered, was supposed to have been a horse. It looked like a beetle.

There was fresh paper. A pad. And on it scrawled:
 "Little Chips—" And then doodling, crosses, eggs, squares. Fool. And after in sharp lines—Little Chips, mind like mine. Understand. Idiots... why don't they file? Wrong advice. Wonder. Who's behind this?

Acc. Ace says I've bats in the belfry. Told him sooner that than hares in the heart. He hasn't. Rats I say.
 Little Chips. How many times those two words had been written. Have to hang on for Little Chips. Arleta looked into the gathering twilight. "Daddy, you wrote something here I should know. What is it? What among all of these lines?"

And then into the quietness came a rap on the door and Tania's voice. "Miss Letta, Mr. Kelly is here. He's very anxious to talk to you."
 Arleta put the notebook into her jacket pocket and without giving thought to her appearance went down to find How Kelly standing before the hearth fire, a look of grim exasperation upon his face.

"So you're at it again," he barked. "At what again?" she bristled. "Stirring up a hornet's nest. You call on a poor, defenseless old woman and call her evil. You leave her in such a condition her friends have to call a physician to quiet her."
 He scowled down at her a moment, then laughed. "I've always wanted to catch one of these snowballs in the making. Come on."

They drove past the Cotsen place, drove up a second hill to come out on a turn-in carved out of the side of the hill.
 "Annie," How Kelly barked at the dark-eyed girl who opened the door, "who's been in to the Cotsen place today?"
 "After Miss Langtry flew out, no one but the doctor and Miss Lane."
 "Ah," Kelly's voice came out in a whisper. "Which came first?"

Resume Campaign Against Church

Prague, Nov. 4.—(AP)—The Roman Catholic hierarchy, ordered by law to vow fidelity to the "People's Democratic" regime of communist-governed Czechoslovakia, was accused anew today of anti-state activities.

At the same time the communist government's campaign of arrests of small businessmen and idle class elements widened. Even some communist party members are being jailed in the provinces, relatives of the victims reported.

Show Goes On

Philadelphia, Nov. 4.—(AP)—When the lights went out suddenly last night during a school "open house" program, the children kept right on singing, weaving baskets and reading aloud.

The youngsters didn't learn, in fact, until after their 900 guests had left that because of a blown fuse they had performed in darkness.

The children were students at the Overbrook School for the blind.

C. T. Day Receives Appointment Among Cadets At Riverside

Gainesville, Georgia, Nov. 5.—Following an extensive and competitive "try-out" period, cadet officers and non-commissioned officers have received permanent appointment in the Riverside Junior School of Riverside Military Academy of this city.

The Riverside Junior School numbers some 115 younger cadets in a total enrollment of more than 500, and competition for the annual promotions has been particularly keen this year.

Among those named is Charles Thomas Day, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Day, 1313 Chestnut St., Greenville. Cadet Day has been named Guide Sergeant in the Riverside Junior Unit.

NOTICE OF RESALE OF LAND UNDER MORTGAGE

Under and by virtue of authority and power of sale contained in that certain mortgage executed by Irvin J. McLawhorn and wife, Mary A. McLawhorn, to Irma C. Kilpatrick, on November 29, 1927, recorded in book Y-15, page 314, default having been made in the payment of the indebtedness secured, and the bid at the first sale having been raised and the Court having ordered a resale, the undersigned mortgagee will offer for resale and sell at public auction for cash before the courthouse door in Pitt County, North Carolina, on Monday, the 21st day of November, 1949, at 12:00 noon the following described lands:

That certain tract or parcel of land lying and being in Swift Creek Township, Pitt County, North Carolina, adjoining the J. J. B. Cox land and W. J. Laughinghouse land and others, being the whole of lot No. 4 in the Division of the Kite land among the Cox heirs, being the same tract of land which was conveyed to Irvin J. McLawhorn by F. M. Kilpatrick on November 9, 1927.

This sale is being made because of default in payment of the note secured. The purchaser will be required to deposit 10 per cent of the amount bid on day of sale to show good faith.

This the 3rd day of November, 1949.

SKY-HIGH BRIDGE WORK — Five hundred feet above waters of Puget Sound at Tacoma, Wash., workmen move around narrow catwalks during construction of $13,000,000 suspension bridge. In background is one of span's two 508-foot towers. Bridge will replace the first one called "Galloping Gertie" a few miles northwest of Tacoma which collapsed almost nine years ago.

HD Council President Install Mrs. Castello As

Mrs. Obed Castello, of the Remond-Nobles Home Demonstration club, was installed as president of the Pitt County Council yesterday in a candlelight ceremony high-lighting the Fall Federation Achievement day program held in Memorial Baptist church here.

Mrs. Castello, who served as vice president of the council this past year, succeeded Mrs. Robert B. Starling of the Red Banks club.

An estimated 200 Home Demonstration club members and guests attended the meeting which was marked by an address given by Dr. John D. Messick of East Carolina Teachers college.

In his talk to the group the Greenville college president urged the Home Demonstration ladies to produce more food at home, carrying out the topic of his address "Living at Home," a greater dairy production was called for by Dr. Messick.

One of the highlights of the meeting, described by Home Demonstration officials as one of the most successful in the history of the county, was an achievement report given by Mrs. Castello.

The report depicted home demonstration work as a ship. A two mast model ship was used in the report. The sails of the ship represented the Home Demonstration clubs goals, including leadership, fellowship, workmanship, sportsmanship and worship.

The various clubs of the county represented ports which the ship H. D. C. Pitt, visited during its 1944-49 journey. As the ship stopped at each port Mrs. Castello told of that club's activities during the year.

One hundred and seventy-two awards were made at the meeting including 118 perfect attendance pins, 50 reading certificates and four advanced reading certificates.

The Sweet Gum Grove club was awarded the best percentage attendance at the Fall Federation meeting with over 57 per cent of its total membership present. It was the second consecutive year the Sweet Gum Grove club took the award.

Stokes club was close behind with 52 per cent present.

The candle lighting installation services came at the close of the meeting. Installed with Mrs. Castello were Mrs. James Allen of Red Oak as vice president; Mrs. Dennis Hardy of Bethel, as treasurer; and Mrs. J. B. Conington of Stokes and Mrs. J. C. Satterthwaite of Patactus, as directors.

Special music for the meeting was offered by Edward Benson, trumpet soloist of East Carolina Teachers college.

Mrs. L. E. Turnage of the Ballards club was in charge of the devotional.

Reinstating Of NSLI Regulated

Disabilities attributable to war service will not be counted against World War II veterans who reinstate their National Service Life Insurance on or before December 31, 1949, Arthur B. Corey, County Service Officer of the North Carolina Veterans Commission, announced today.

Regulations governing service life insurance require veterans to pass a physical examination satisfactory to qualify for government insurance.

In many instances service-incurred disabilities could bar a veteran from obtaining insurance. This limited privilege now opens the door wide to thousands of veterans who have not applied because of the possibility of having service-incurred disabilities keep them from obtaining insurance.

Veterans of World War II who saw more than 30 days active war service between October 8, 1940 and September 2, 1945 are eligible to apply either for reinstatement or new insurance in the event they did not have Service Life Insurance.

In making application the veteran must pay two months' premiums. The time and place of a physical examination will be determined later. Veterans also have the choice of any one of seven plans along with selection of insurance in any amount from $1,000 to $10,000 in multiples of $500.

District Service Officers of the North Carolina Veterans Commission and County Service Officers can advise and assist veterans with their insurance problems. So can the local Service Officers of local veterans organizations.

Pitt County Post No. 39 of the American Legion will hold its regular monthly meeting on Tuesday, night, November 8, at 7 o'clock instead of the regular date. The Post Commander states he desires that all members attend the meeting, in order that preparations for Armistice Day may be completed, and all the membership know the details of same. All Post members with 1950 membership cards will be admitted free to the Armistice Day dinner.

Continue Probe Garage Burglary

Pitt county authorities today were continuing their investigation to determine the identity of the person who broke into Claude James' garage in Bethel on Thursday night.

Deputy Sheriff Jasper Lee Mills, who was assisted in the investigation by Capt. S. B. Dorsey of the Greenville police department, said nothing was reported missing from the garage, but the intruder was "evidently looking for money."

Mills said the burglar gained entrance to the garage by breaking the glass out of the side window.

Hours Changed For Curb Market

Officials of the Greenville curb market announced today a change in the hours of the curb market on Saturday.

The market will open at 8:30 each Saturday and stay open until 9:30. The market has been opening each Saturday at 8 and closing at 9 o'clock.

Hold Funeral Sunday For Ben L. Hemby

Mr. Ben L. Hemby, 54, died at U. S. Marine Hospital at Baltimore Md., at seven o'clock Friday morning after several months of illness. Funeral services will be conducted at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the Chapel of the S. G. Wilkerson & Sons Funeral Home by the Rev. J. B. Roberts, Primitive Baptist Minister of Farmville, assisted by the Rev. J. W. Hassell, retired Presbyterian Minister of Greenville. Burial will be in Oakdale cemetery in Washington.

Mr. Hemby was born in Pitt county, but spent his youth in Washington and attended Washington schools. He was the son of the late Henry C. and Marie's Baker Hemby. He has been in the Merchant Marines for the past 38 years, and during World War II held the rank of Lt. Commander.

Surviving are five sisters: Mrs. Zilphia Rotroff, Mrs. W. S. Moye, Mrs. Nan Moore, and Mrs. Ruby Duncan, all of Greenville and Mrs. W. W. Ellis of Wilson and one brother, Capt. C. Hemby of Jacksonville, Fla.

The fourth meeting of the scoutmasters' training course will be held Monday night at the Presbyterian Church at 8 o'clock.

The opening session will be conducted by Joe Baldrée. School and troop meeting will be discussed by Vernon F. Schriest, Scoutcraft, J. B. Newman, Games, Van Fleming.

The closing session of the meeting will be under the direction of Lester Turnage.

Stage Wiener Roast For Children Today

The Junior Fellowship Group of the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church had a wiener roast at the college fireplace today, with over thirty present.

The children gathered at the college at about eleven o'clock where they took part in a period of recreation directed by Miss Pamela Rouse, Director of Christian Education of the Methodist Church.

James Caprell Named Superintendent Of Buildings, Grounds

James Caprell of Raleigh has been appointed superintendent of buildings and grounds at East Carolina Teachers College, according to an announcement by college business manager F. D. Duncan.

Mr. Caprell arrived in Greenville this week to take up his duties on the campus. He takes the position held by the late J. L. Russell of Greensboro.

Before coming to East Carolina, Mr. Caprell was located at State College. He has been engaged in construction work in North Carolina for about thirty years, and has supervised a number of large building projects in the state, these include several dormitories at State College and the Revenue Building Annex in Raleigh.

Service Program To Begin Sunday Night

The Intermediate Fellowship of the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church will begin a service program of crafts, Sunday evening at five o'clock.

The service program will be conducted throughout the month of November and will be divided up into four classes.

The group will meet each Sunday afternoon during the month of November from five until six.

Following the craft groups, there will be a snack supper served by the young people. After the supper the groups will take part in group singing and various games. A business meeting will close out the evening's activities.

Breaking, Entering And Larceny Charged

Greenville police are holding Ollie Grey, Negro, 25, of 105 W. 14th Street, on a charge of breaking, entering and the larceny of a blanket from a house on Railroad Street last night about 8 o'clock.

Arresting officers Claude Christopfer and Roy Harris said that the man broke out a window in a house at 1503 Railroad Street and entered the building and took a blanket from the room.

Grey will be tried in Police Court Monday.

ropean unity. She feels that clear evidence of this is seen in the commitments which she already has made, among them being the Brussels treaty, the statute of the council of Europe and the Atlantic treaty.

This British source felt that London already had taken considerable risks to promote measures of cooperation, and is prepared to take more. The British government, it was added, will examine the new proposals sympathetically and will favor such economic integration as is in the general interest of European recovery and doesn't conflict with British obligations already existing.

The sum and substance of all this, it take it, is that the concrete proposals for economic integration of western Europe will have to be made before the specific British reservations will be known. The way matters now stand it seems plain that Britain intends to go cautiously in this matter.

Obviously we have here a situation which very easily could become explosive, especially since it is complicated by the problem of Germany's development.

Capitalism's . . .

"As the years passed, the government stepped in in other ways, with its anti-trust laws against monopolies, its interstate commerce laws and regulations, its minimum wage laws to help workers, its help to farmers, and so on.

The big argument in this country has always been and still is: Just how much can the government step into American life and business without destroying free enterprise?

President Truman, in his St. Paul speech, said there can't be real progress unless the "benefits of our production are widely distributed among all citizens."

He listed a number of things he had in mind: wider and better Social Security benefits, compulsory health insurance, federal aid to education, and other things.

He didn't actually list them under those names, but all of them were in his speech and all have been part of his program, expressed over and over again in the past.

The fact that he has met with opposition in Congress on the points mentioned above—this last Congress controlled by his own Democrats—shows how wide is the difference in American thinking on what free enterprise is and how free it should be, whether it involves the enterprise of an individual or a corporation.

It ranges all the way from those who want no government intervention or help of any kind, to those who agree that some federal controls are needed, and those like President Truman who think the government should take a much more active role in American life. As he has expressed it, the "general welfare."
