Soft Coal Strike Felt In New Areas

Over One-Fourth Of Nation's Soft Coal Miners Idle As Walkouts Spread To New Areas In Six States; Motorized Pickets Active

Pittsburgh, Jan. 31—(AP)—More than one-fourth of the nation's soft coal miners were idle today as a rank-and-file strike spread to new areas in six states. The extension of the three-week-old walkout contradicted earlier reports of a back-to-work movement and lent color to reports from Washington that President Truman will intervene soon if miners don't resume coal digging. Nearly 100,000 were idle in the six states: Pennsylvania 58,000, West Virginia 20,000, Alabama 10,000, Ohio 8,800, Illinois 275, Kentucky 200. Biggest increase in the list of strikers came in four central Pennsylvania counties—Armstrong, Cambria, Indiana and Somerset—where practically everybody worked his three days last week. Some 10,000 went on strike there yesterday.

BULLETIN...

Washington, Jan. 30—(AP)—President Truman today called for a 70-day truce in the coal mining deadlock while presidential fact-finders investigate. He proposed to act outside the union-hated Taft-Hartley act, following the same pattern he used in last year's steel strike.

The strikers were led by the 900-member Rosedale local of Bethlehem Steel Corporation in Cambria County. The local voted not to go back to work without a contract, then sent columns of motorized pickets spreading to other mines in the area to persuade workers to lay down their tools.

Out walked 1,600 employees at three other Bethlehem subsidiary mines, nearly 4,000 at pits of the Rochester and Pittsburgh Coal Company and 1,500 at three Berwind-White Coal Company operations. Another 2,000 were led out, mostly by Rosedale pickets, at a dozen other mines.

James Mark of Clearfield, UMW district president, telegraphed John Hanzel, Rosedale local secretary, ordering the men back to work and telling the local to "quit picketing other union miners."

The message said: "If the men are intent on picketing they should picket the non-union mines, of which there are plenty."

Hanzel said the local would vote later on Mark's telegram.

All but about 2,000 of western Pennsylvania's 50,000 miners were idle.

Practically every mine in northern West Virginia was shut down, idling about 20,000 of the state's 120,000 coal diggers. Most of these mines have been closed the last four weeks.

In southern West Virginia, 400 miners of the Amherst Fuel Company failed to show up for the day shift at the Accoville mine in Logan County. Unidentified men were reported to have made door-to-door canvasses asking miners not to come out for work.

Distribution of potatoes from government surplus food supplies continued at Uniontown, Pa., and Fairmont, W. Va. Members of UMW Local 4019, most of them employed at the Williams mine of the Consolidation Coal Company of West Virginia, near Fairmont, started a campaign to solicit food from business houses for the 350 families of the local's members.

Income Tax Deadline

Farmers And Employers Have A Tax Deadline At Midnight Tonight; Refunds Already Issued; The W-2 Forms; Old Age Insurance Payments Affected

By CHARLES MOLONY

Washington, Jan. 31—(AP)—Farmers and employers come up to some tax deadlines today.

Farmers who didn't file declarations (estimates) of 1949 income tax by January 15 must file final returns tonight. There's a penalty if they don't.

But farmers who sent declarations in up to January 15, can, if they choose, wait as late as March 15 to pay up—just like all other individual taxpayers.

Of course any taxpayer who expects a refund will find it advantageous to file his final 1949 income tax return early.

The only way to establish that you have got a refund coming is to file a final return, thereby showing how much you overpaid the total tax due.

The quicker you do so, the quicker you are likely to receive your refund. A half million taxpayers already have gotten their refunds on 1949 taxes, averaging about $47 each.

Usually some 30,000,000 or about three out of five taxpayers get a refund, most of them wage and salary earners from whom more has been withheld than they actually owe.

Airman Reports 'Plane Is Down' In Yukon Search

Whitehorse, Y. T., Jan. 31—(AP) A heroic search pilot, his face broken and bloody, fought through deep snow and tangled forest late yesterday to report his plane had crashed 21 miles to the south. Three of the men he left behind were injured. He said the two others were "all right."

Heroic Pilot Struggled Through Forest And Snow In Seeking Help

The U. S. Air Force C-47 went down while engaged in the North country's greatest aerial mercy mission—the hunt for a USAF C-54 which dropped from sight last Thursday with 44 persons aboard. Lt. Charles R. Harden, Pilot of the C-47 which arrived here Sunday from Elmendorf Field, Anchorage, Alaska, was brought in last night by two civilian employees of the U. S. engineers. They picked him up on the narrow Carcross road 21 miles below this principal Yukon air base.

"My plane is down," he wearily told officials. He placed the crash scene as five miles east of the spot where he was found.

A ground rescue crew headed by Lt. Edwin Guizinski, Camp Carson, Colo., left immediately for the site. They were expected to reach the survivors sometime this morning.

Planes circled over the wreckage throughout the night to assure the men that help was on the way.

How seriously three of the men were injured was not known. Harden was unable to tell. Among the two who escaped with shock and minor bruises was Jack Borges, of the Midnight Sun Broadcasting Co., Anchorage, who was aboard as a civilian observer. Names of the others were not learned, but all were crewmen from Elmendorf Field.

Harden's plane plunged into the trees near the foot of Mount Caribou in midmorning while flying low in search of the vanished C-54.

He waited with the others for several hours, then set out alone for help. For six hours he struggled through waist high night snow and brush. Darkness fell, but he kept on.

At 7:30 p. m. (12:30 p. m. EST) he reached the road. There he was found by the engineer corps workers, standing unsteadily in a snow-bank and weakly waving his flashlight. Blood trickled down his face. One foot was crippled.

Plans To Carry Daniels' Appeal To High Court

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 31—(AP)—The Attorney for two Negro cousins convicted of murdering a taxi-driver said he would appeal their cases to the U. S. Supreme court today.

The cousins are Bennie and Lloyd Ray Daniels. They were convicted in Pitt county of murdering a Greenville taxi driver and sentenced to death in the gas chamber.

Herman L. Taylor, their lawyer, said his plea to the U. S. high court would be based on the contention that the boys have been denied due process of the law. He said their appeal to the state Supreme court was not heard on its merits but was dismissed on procedural grounds.

Reynolds Enters Political Lists Against Graham

Former Senator Comes Out Of Political Retirement To Be Candidate

Asheville, Jan. 31—(AP)—Robert R. Reynolds has come out of political retirement at 66 to run again for U. S. senator.

He announced last night that he would oppose Sen. Frank P. Graham in the North Carolina Democratic primary May 27.

Reynolds retired in 1944 after 12 years in the senate. He quit following a wave of indignation in the state when he voted against a resolution proposing that congress declare for international cooperation and perpetual peace after the war.

North Carolina is in the unusual position of electing two senators this year.

Graham, then president of the University of North Carolina, was appointed last March after Sen. J. M. Broughton died. He is running for the unexpired four years of Broughton's term. He has two other announced democratic opponents, Manley R. Dunsaway, Charlotte real estate man, and Olla Ray Boyd, of Pinetown.

The state's senior senator, Clyde R. Hoey, is running for another six-year term. So far he is unopposed.

Reynolds had previously indicated he might oppose Hoey. His decision apparently was based on the idea that Graham's views are more suited to his showman type of campaigning.

In a platform statement Reynolds, who likes to be referred to as "Our Bob," declared that Sen. Graham "stands for and believes in many things that are foreign to my thinking and are not in keeping with the views of the voters of North Carolina."

Sen. Graham said in Washington, "I'll run on my record which is well known to the people of North Carolina."

Gov. Kerr Scott, who appointed Graham, has announced he will back him against all comers.

Traditionally the state elects one senator from the east and one from the west. If Hoey and Reynolds, both westerners win, the east will not be represented in the senate.

Recognition For Indochina Reds

Russia Backs Guerrilla Group Against U.S. And France

Moscow, Jan. 31—(AP)—Russia has recognized Ho Chi-Minh's anti-French Viet-nam Republic in Indochina and has agreed to exchange diplomatic representatives with the Asiatic Communist chief.

The announcement today by the Soviet news agency Tass at the same time described the French-supported rival Viet-nam regime of former Emperor Bao Dai as a "puppet government" representing only a "small group of reactionaries."

The Soviet statement called attention to the fact that Britain and America have announced they probably will recognize the Bao Dai regime.

Formal Soviet recognition of Moscow-trained Ho Chi-Minh will be of major interest to the French, whose troops have been fighting Ho's troops since 1946.

(The Soviet announcement came only a few hours after a report from Washington said Secretary of State Acheson had sent greetings to Bao Dai, expressing the hope of establishing closer relations. Diplomatic officials in London said yesterday Britain will recognize the Bao Dai government next week and the U.S. probably would follow suit.)

Ending Walkout

Carlsbad, N. M., Jan. 31—(AP)—Potash workers have agreed to end a 2 1/2-month strike against three firms here, a company spokesman announced today.

Rufus Foote, speaking for the producers, said he was notified early this morning that the workers would resume work provided the companies would stop hiring non-union replacements.

Foote said the companies—International Minerals and Chemical Corp., United States Potash Co., and Potash Company of America—would accept these terms.

Foote had expressed the opinion earlier that a lack of potash—the mines near here produce 85 per cent of the nation's supply—would result in smaller crops this year. A union source retorted that any blame for a fertilizer shortage must rest with the companies.

Pitt Tax Listing Period Extended Through Friday

Action Taken As Long Lines Of Property Owners Make Late Appearance

Pitt county's tax listing period which was scheduled to end today will be extended for four days, County Auditor and Tax Supervisor Allan T. Powell, Jr., announced today.

Powell said the 13 tax listers of the county have been instructed to continue listing taxes through Friday of this week.

The announcement from the county official came as long lines of property owners gathered at the listing places throughout the county in an effort to get their property on the books before the scheduled deadline this afternoon. Listers from all sections of the county have reported heavy listings during the last days of last week and yesterday and today.

Powell said today the listing in the county is approximately 90 per cent completed at the present time. "From my talks with the tax listers," he said, "it is my opinion that the values this year, with the exception of automobiles are running as well if not a little better than last year." During 1949 Pitt county had approximately $50,000,000 property valuation on the tax books.

The 13 tax listers of the county during the next four days of the extension period will be listing taxes at the following places in the townships:

Hugh Ragsdale, Greenville township, court house; Grover Manning, Chisold; L. P. Thomas, city hall in Farmville; L. E. Kinlaw at his office in Ayden; J. F. Smith at Reid Smith's store in Swift Creek township; Carl Gray, Pointblank city hall; H. A. Nelson, Nelson's store in Falkland.

E. G. Dupree, Dupree Bros. store in Belvoir; C. J. Satterthwaite, Satterthwaite's store in Pacolius; R. N. Simmons, Bethel city hall; R. W. Wimbush, Bell Arthur, in Beaver Dam township; A. L. Woolard, Clark's store in Stokes; Wayland Zinsucker, Winterville town hall.

After midnight tonight, all drivers who are found operating motor vehicles with 1949 license plates will be subject to arrest and fines, the Greenville State Highway Patrol office announced today.

A spokesman for the local office stated that the 1949 license plates actually went out of date in December of 1949, but a month of grace was allowed, lasting until the 31st of January. After the 31st any car found on the highways and not displaying 1950 license plates will be in violation of the North Carolina state law.

The local license bureau in Greenville reported today that lines of people had formed in the early part of the morning at the office for the past several days, as many people attempt to beat the deadline.

Sales at the license bureau so far this year in most cases are above those of last year, it was reported.

Auto Production Records Broken

Detroit, Jan. 31—(AP)—The nation's auto industry built 6,238,088 motor vehicles last year.

Announcing the final official factory sales figure today, the Automobile Manufacturers Association said the volume topped the industry's two best previous years—1929, by 16 per cent, and 1948, by 18 per cent.

Boston-Banned Japs Are Welcomed By Legislature

Boston, Jan. 31—(AP)—Members of the Japanese Diet (Parliament) received a cordial invitation to attend today's Massachusetts Legislative session despite the fact they were barred from a Boston City council meeting yesterday.

Shortly after the city council voted 11-8 to bar the visitors, the Massachusetts House suspended rules to adopt without delay a resolve inviting the Diet members and four secretaries to the State House.

House speaker Thomas P. O'Neill (D-Boston) said the House felt honored that the Massachusetts General court had been designated for study by the Diet members in their examination of Democracy in action.

They will attend sessions of both branches and sit with committees. The House even extended the Japanese special permission to take pictures, usually forbidden in the chamber.

Councillor James S. Coffey, who introduced the order to bar the visitors, intimated they were acting as spies.

"They are probably here taking pictures of fortresses and trying to learn all they can about the A-bomb," he shouted.

"We are feeding them and clothing them. But don't educate them so they can start another war in a few years."

Coffey, who described himself as a disabled World War I veteran, said his son served in Germany in World War II and caught malaria.

Councillors who opposed Coffey's order described the action as "a sorry spectacle." Diet members refused to comment.

State Department officials in Washington termed the council's action as regrettable.

AEC Reports Progress In Weapons, Peacetime Uses

Defense Chief Says War Threat Fading

Sec. Johnson Says Danger Diminishing As U. S. Strength Increases; Urges Positive Action Prevent Aggression

Washington, Jan. 31—(AP)—Secretary of Defense Johnson calls in his first annual report for America to stay powerful and alert until international cooperation "is accepted by the adversaries who are now doing their utmost to destroy it."

He couched this call, in the report issued last night, with a warning that this country could be attacked "from the opposite hemisphere without warning and with unpredictable fury."

Johnson noted that Russia now has the atomic explosion secret. But he also expressed his belief that "the threat of war has diminished as our strength has increased."

He assessed this strength as the most formidable since the height of our military power in 1945. Elsewhere he termed the readiness of our armed forces and our military potential "greater today than in any previous peacetime period in our nation's history."

Johnson urged, at another point, positive action "to prevent piecemeal aggressions, which unopposed, might lead to another world war."

Johnson gave armed services unification some of the credit for America's current military strength. He also stressed defense cooperation

Jaycees Gather Here On Feb. 2

Dozen Communities To Be Represented In Meeting

Approximately 175 Jaycees from a dozen eastern North Carolina towns are expected to gather in Greenville Thursday night for the quarterly meeting of one eight of the state Junior Chamber of Commerce organization.

Micou F. Brown of Raleigh, president of the North Carolina Junior Chamber of Commerce, Bernard Lesly of Morehead City, vice president of zone eight, and other state officials of the Jaycee organization will be here for the meeting.

Louis Caylor, past president of the Greenville Jaycees, who is in charge of the arrangements for the meeting, said the group will meet at the Woman's club at 7 o'clock. Jaycees are expected to be here from Goldsboro, Bethel, Kinston, Farmville, Belhaven, Jacksonville, Harker's Island, Morehead City, Beaufort, New Bern and Washington.

A choral group from East Carolina Teachers College under the direction of Prof. Dan Vorholt will present a musical program at the meeting.

The business session will be highlighted by a discussion of activities of the Junior Chamber of Commerce organization in this section of the state, and reports from the state officers.

Bancroft Moseley, president of the Greenville Jaycees, will be master of ceremonies at the meeting.

Proposes Huge Potato Surplus To Be Destroyed

Washington, Jan. 31—(AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Brannan proposes to destroy around 50,000,000 bushels of surplus potatoes unless Congress instructs him to make some other disposition of them.

This is the quantity of surplus potatoes the department figures it will be unable to dispose of through give-away programs to domestic and foreign relief agencies, the school lunch program, and diversion to livestock feed and manufacture into starch.

The potatoes are being bought by the department at prices averaging about $2 for 100 pounds under a price program.

Brannan was expected to outline his plans before a closed meeting of the Senate Agriculture Committee today.

A Brannan assistant said the secretary was prepared to argue that destruction of the potatoes was the "cheapest" way out for the government.

No Sign As Yet Of Winter Here

The mercury is on the rise again in Greenville with no sign as yet of the winter weather which should have been here a long time ago.

A high reading of 74 degrees was recorded at the local weather station yesterday, with a low of 55.

One year ago yesterday and today the only snow of 1949 fell in Greenville, and that was just a trace. In comparison with last year's weather, a high reading of 38 degrees was on record while the mercury dipped to a chilling low of 29 degrees.

At eight o'clock today the official temperature stood at 67 degrees.

Commission Says Atomic Weapons Being Produced And Stockpiled At Growing Pace; Claim Advances In Peacetime Use Of Atom

Washington, Jan. 31—(AP)—The Atomic Energy Commission said today atomic weapons are being produced, improved and stock-piled at an ever-growing pace.

The AEC also declared that "new benchmarks of accomplishment" have been set in the long range program for peacetime development of the atom's power.

BULLETIN

Washington, Jan. 31. — (AP) — President Truman today told the Atomic Energy Commission to work on the "so-called hydrogen or super-bomb."

In a semi-annual report to Congress, the commission made no reference to any plans to develop a super bomb employing hydrogen. It did disclose that it was doing a lot of work on studying how three different forms of hydrogen can be used to produce atomic energy on a laboratory scale.

President Truman has said that it's up to him to decide whether this nation should try to develop a hydrogen bomb—unofficially estimated to have destructive potentialities far beyond those of uranium or plutonium bombs.

The AEC's references to experiments with hydrogen would seem to imply that if President Truman gives the go-ahead signal to his atomic team, the scientists have some of the things worked out on the blackboard and are ready to apply them toward setting if they can develop a practical weapon.

Reported progress on improving and increasing the supply of orthodox weapons would not be so significant. The unofficial view is that the only conceivable way of touching off a hydrogen bomb would entail use of the explosion of a uranium or plutonium bomb as a "booster" or "primer" for the H-bomb.

Thus, whatever improvements may have been made in the bombs dropped on Japan, they would increase the wallop of a perfected H-bomb, with an orthodox bomb "built in."

The AEC, in its seventh semi-annual report to Congress declared that:

1. Weapons development and stockpiling "moved on at a growing pace" during the past year.

2. Production of weapons was changed to an "industrial type of operation"—with a view to switching from a "custom built" type of operation to one designed "with a view to faster and more efficient production."

3. "Design" of weapons was advanced—presumably meaning that means were achieved for getting more wallop out of the same amount of explosive material utilized in the originally exploded A-bombs.

4. The output of fissionable materials—uranium and plutonium, that can be used in bombs or in peacetime applications—"set new records."

Chicod PTA Had Meeting Jan. 18
The Chicod School Parent-Teachers association held its monthly meeting in the Chicod auditorium on January 18, at 7:30 o'clock. The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Edward Bright, chairman of the program committee. In absence of both president, Mrs. Norman Porter, and vice president, Mrs. Willie Averette. After the secretary, Mrs. Linwood Hadcock, gave her report, Mrs. William Earl Venters presented the lunch-report.

During the business session Mr. Newman Lewis made a report for Mr. Jimmie Edwards, chairman of the PTO Drive committee, and treasurer of the organization, on how the association had previously planned to aid the "March of Dimes." He stated that as a means of assisting this cause the P. T. A. had planned to sponsor a basketball game, alumni versus school teams, from which all profits would be given to the March of Dimes.

It has been a practice of the P. T. A. to present each month to the room with the highest percentage of attendance a large mirror to be used in that individual room. Mr. Lewis made the motion which was seconded by Mr. Claude G. Hadcock and agreed upon by the members of the association that this practice continue. A check on parents representing each room revealed that Mrs. Moore's third grade room was the winner of the mirror.

The meeting was then turned over to the chairman of the program committee, Mrs. Ed Bright, and a movie, "Using the Classroom," was shown with Mr. Lewis

McGinnis Nominated For Rotary District Governor

By WYATT BROWN
Howard McGinnis will be promoted by the Greenville Rotary Club for the post of district governor of District No. 279 of Rotary International. It was unanimously voted last night by their weekly dinner meeting.

Immediately upon the local club's determining to promote the candidacy of Howard McGinnis, visiting Rotarian Herbert Cox of the Washington club arose and requested that the honor of putting Howard's name into nomination at the district convention be given to the Washington club. Rotarian Cox allowed he had his eye on Rotary history when he phrased the request for the Greenville club had sponsored the birth of the Washington club.

Visiting Rotarian Grady Dixon of the Ayden Rotary Club, who also just happened to be present, said the Ayden club wanted the honor of nominating Howard McGinnis, who was known to the Ayden club quite well. Discuss Opening Girl Scout Camp

Greenville Council, Girl Scouts, at a meeting last night, made plans for opening Camp Hardee, Girl Scout summer camp, on Fanninco river, below Chocowinity, on Sunday, June 18.

Mrs. J. Knott Proctor, Girl Scout commissioner, presided. The camp will be divided into three two-week periods.

Mrs. E. L. Henderson, executive secretary of the Greenville Girl Scouts Council, was named director of the summer camp, and at her request, Mrs. Proctor was named assistant director.

Considerable discussion was given to the proposal that the Girl Scout Council take over the Blount property, at Charles and 14th streets, on condition that the Girl Scout Council pay the taxes and insurance on the building. Mrs. Proctor and Mrs. E. L. Henderson were appointed a committee to handle the matter and they were given power to act.

Reports of last year's summer camp at Camp Hardee were gratifying, council members said. Girl Scout troop leaders were given praise for their good work during the past year.

In addition to Mrs. J. Knott Proctor, commissioner, others at the meeting were Mrs. E. L. Henderson, secretary; Mrs. J. G. Riddick, Mrs.

'Draftee' Judges In Beauty Event Took A Powder

Demopolis, Ala., Jan. 31—(AP)—What happens when a beauty contest begins and there aren't any judges?

That near calamity developed last night at the Marengo theater where 60 lovely girls had lined up for the title "Miss Demopolis."

Frantic sponsors acted swiftly. Three traveling salesmen—Y. M. Hillburn of New Orleans, L. F. Cox of Tuscaloosa, Ala., and Claude Fisher of Selma, Ala.—were drafted at the Demopolis hotel.

Over their protests, they were dragged to the theater. There they worried, sweated and finally selected pretty Miss Jean Carpenter.

WEBB & GRAY—North Carolinians naturally manifested keener interest in James E. Webb and Gordon Gray than in others of the big shots attending the conference and dinner here Saturday. That was not because the under secretary of state and the secretary of the army have such tremendously important places in national and world affairs. It was because North Carolina is just naturally proud of the two boys who made such outstanding records for themselves and brought honor to their home state. Interest in Gordon Gray was accentuated by reason of his selection to be president of the University. They are of comparable age and are alike in manner—quiet unassuming, careful in choice of words when enunciating policies, but just folks in office conversation.

MAN-ERISM—Both followed script closely, but did not read it. Gordon Gray outlined the defense policy of the nation without at any time raising his voice, scarcely moving any part of his body. James Webb also spoke in conversational tone and without dramatics, but his hands were almost constantly in motion with short elbow gestures and occasionally he switched his rather heavy weight from one foot to the other.

WAYNICK—Capus Waynick, Ambassador to Nicaragua, was another highly interesting Tar Heel back home for a short spell. He skillfully avoided—after all he's a diplomat—direct answer to questions about future political aims. Reporters and others talking with him got the definite impression he is in state politics up to his ears. There is further impression that came to North Carolina last week with his mind fully made up not to bother with the United States senate now but to run for governor in 1952 and to be ready to move to the senate upon expiration of the term for which Senator Hoey now seeks re-election. By Saturday night this impression had changed. Until he issues a positive "No" Capus Waynick will be a very probable senatorial candidate this year.

UMSTEAD—For the first time in a number of years William Umstead of Durham was not among the Democrats staging their annual party dinner. Early in December he joined in the invitation to Vice President Barkley to make the speech and had acceded to request that he introduce the Veep. At that time he expected to be present as a full-fledged, formally announced candidate for the United States senate. The physical check-up preliminary to his entry into the race discovered a small non-malignant tumor on his vocal chords which had to be removed. For some days after the operation he could not use his voice. Now he can. He is almost back to normalcy in conversation, but doesn't yet feel up to making a speech. He had to forego the pleasure of presenting his long-time friend and former senate colleague at the dinner, but still hoped to attend. At last minute he decided that the conversations he knew would have to carry on with the hundreds of guests who love him, the smoke and congestion of the lobbies would not do his throat any good. So he very reluctantly decided to stay at home

McLendon—One of the most significant pieces of news garnered around the hotel lobbies Saturday is that Major L. P. McLendon will very probably be a member of the 1951 legislature. And he will not be counted among the Scott men in that body. It is common knowledge that Major McLendon contributed tremendously to success of the Scott campaign in 1948, was a stabilizing influence as an adviser during the 1949 legislature, re-wrote and is largely responsible for passage of the act enlarging and revitalizing the utilities commission—and Gov. Scott has said he thinks that was one of the best things the assembly did. For months it has been evident that relations were not so cordial and in recent weeks it has been obvious that the major and the governor just aren't getting along together.

Strength FOR THE DAY

FROM SKY TO BARNYARD
A great Danish philosopher tells in one of his books the story of a wild duck which left his companions in the sky, came down to a barnyard, and began to live his life among the domestic fowl. His new life did not have about it the adventure which his old life had had, but it appeared to have more security. A kindly farmer fed them every day. As time passed, the wild duck could hear his former companions as they went back and forth above him, and while at first he felt an urge to rise out of the barnyard and soar aloft, this urge grew less as time went on until at last he heard the flight of the wild ducks no more.

The story is intended to illustrate the desire men have for soft security. They descend from the sky at the first opportunity and seek for a place where someone will feed them. The wild duck in the sky represents man intent on idealism. The duck in the barnyard represents man who has left the etherial for the earthy.

Most young people are idealists, but many of them descend from the sky and are satisfied after some years with the barnyard. Sustained flight is too hard. High ideals were all right until they rubbed up against the hard requirements of business, until they saw that position in life has considerable importance. Then they were willing to give up the flight, to exchange the sky for the barnyard.

back home and spread the gospel of the party leaders among the people who go to the polls.

On the other hand, it seems to us it is high time those same delegates take the gospel from the people back home and spread it to those party leaders on Capitol Hill in order to make some arrangements to restore the party to the hands of the people back home rather than giving it more fully to those politicians who have been dictating policies and platforms for a number of years.

SPREADING THE GOSPEL
At Saturday's Democratic rally for Southern states, National Committee Chairman William J. Boyle, Jr., called on the delegates from the 15 Southern states to go back home and spread to the people the gospel of the party leaders in the nation's capital.

Although everything in the discussion chambers went smoothly Saturday with the controversial issues tactfully avoided by the convention big-wigs, there was at least one flare-up when North Carolina's Agricultural Commissioner Stag Ballentine let it be known in no uncertain terms he hated to see such a shin-dig staged "to promote just one purpose — to promote Jonathan Daniels." Perhaps Ballentine was speaking only for himself, or perhaps he reflected the opinions of other Democrats throughout the state. Whether Ballentine was correct in his estimation of the convention is a matter of opinion. But there is no doubt that the over-all idea of the gathering was to support the Truman Democratic structure.

Pitt County Democratic Chairman John Clark during the past weeks when he was trying to sell the $50 a plate tickets for the Jefferson-Jackson day dinner declared the people back home who were buying the tickets were doing so out of loyalty to the county, but not because of their support of President Truman or his program.

From the indications of the past year, more and more dyed-in-the-wool Democrats are becoming restless in the party which has bound itself hand and foot to Truman's spending shenanigan.

As far as politics and the party leaders are concerned, Boyce may be right in instructing the delegates to go

Somebody Told Me...

By L. J. (JACK) EDWARDS, JR.

You readers must admit that at least I'm truthful with you. And to be truthful, I have to say that the only thing of interest that's happened to me lately is the grand opening of Edwards Auto Supply's new building on Cotanche Street. But if I said that, it would be free advertisement for us, so I refuse to take advantage of my freedom of the press. Besides, we are a wholesale establishment and do not advertise to the general public.

What I'm getting to is this: and our country along with us. We are not the serious-minded people that they were in my earlier days. We show that more distinctly in our voting, not only for our local office holders but county, state and national. Our country will never be any better than the men we put in office to represent us. Before voting, we should find out something about the man who we vote for, his character, qualifications and what he stands for. We often send whisky hounds and grafters to Washington and then send telegrams, etc. with the expectation of getting some relief of our problems.

I hear so much these days, especially from the older people, of the worthless youth of today. I am personally surprised at the quality of some with their home and neighborhood influence. For one, I am with these young people; and of our local ones, believe that they are the finest that I have seen come up in my 65 years. I hope to see the day when our present young people are in harness with the view that they will prevent some of the problems we now have.

Our much needed recreational building and other facilities will not be the cure-all for our evils, but will aid toward our aim of character building. No, not for play as some of our citizens seem to think. It is for building of better physical bodies, character and aid in making our youth better citizens. You can't make any better investment of your money, talent and time than in our boys and girls of today with the view of making them better for the tomorrow.
Heber B. Tripp

Since the opening is my highlight of the week, I'm skipping that and borrowing an interesting story from "Time" magazine:

When Lincoln Levison moved to Greenfield, Ill., two summers ago, the town (pop. 1,006) took to him at once. He opened a small saw-mill and customers came flocking. Soon he was able to move into a trim white house with his wife and two little daughters. To wife Marjorie, Greenfield seemed like "just a little heaven."

Then fall came and troubles started. The town discovered that the Levisons were not sending 7-year-old Carolyn to school. Instead, Mrs. Levison was teaching her at home. The Levisons explained that they were Seventh-Day Adventists and that as far as they could see their religion was strict on the matter. Said Mrs. Levison, quoting an Adventist text: "Parents are the best teachers of their children until they are eight to ten. Small children should be left free as lambs to run out of doors." As a former college student, Mrs. Levison thought she was qualified to teach. She had a complete set of second-grade texts for Carolyn.

But the county school superintendent disapproved. The Levisons were arrested for violating the state compulsory school law and fined $5. They appealed the case. Out-of-town reporters wrote that perhaps the Levisons were being persecuted because of their religion. At that point Greenfield citizens lost their patience. They objected to the slur on their town, resented the trouble the Levisons were causing. Customers stopped going to Levison's sawmill; stores stopped extending him credit. Finally the Levisons moved out of town. But they were not giving up their fight.

Last week the battle ended. The Illinois supreme court ruled that since Mrs. Levison had been to college and was following the prescribed school courses, she was indeed a qualified teacher and could keep Carolyn at home. It had nothing to do with religious freedom, said the court. Any Illinois parent, if he gave his child as good a schooling as the school, might properly do the same thing. And I thank "Time."

Bombed German City Still In Ruins; Recovery Slow

Kassel, Germany Jan 31—(AP)—World War II seems like only yesterday in the ruins of this bomb-blasted German city.

Bodies still lie beneath uncleared rubble almost five years after the war. The "graves" are marked by weather-beaten wreaths and crosses placed atop levelled homes by friends and relatives.

Kassel suffered its mortal blow on Oct. 22 1943. British bombers attacked that night with high explosive and fire bombs. German officials say that 20,000 Kassellers were killed and half the city wrecked in an hour and a half.

By the end of the war, the city was 78 per cent ruined by German calculations, 68 per cent by allied figures.

Regardless of which figure you use, the 1,000 year old historic city in the northeast corner of the American zone presents an almost endless panorama of gaunt, ghostly buildings.

Somehow people still live here. There are lights in structures that still stand. Stores have been built—some just one story affairs built in slots carved in the rubble.

Germans will tell you the big British raid was in retaliation for the German bombing of Coventry. Allied point out Kassel was headquarters of the 11th German army, a huge railway yard, and the home of the Henschel works—probably the largest locomotive factory in Europe. During the war it made guns and tanks. This plant, never knocked out entirely, reputedly sent tanks with their paint still wet directly into battle as the American army approached the city.

The Henschel works and two other Kassel factories making railway passenger cars and freight cars are back in business at about 80 per cent capacity. Henschel is contracting to build locomotives for South Africa, as well as for German use.

Also still standing amid the devastation are some of the seven huge office and barracks buildings the German army occupied in Kassel. Unluckier than the army buildings was the French Huguenot section of Kassel. This area, replete with provincial French architecture and French family and street names, was almost entirely knocked out. It still is unrestored.

Atop the highest hill in Kassel stands the Wilhelm palace—built with funds paid by the British in hiring 13,000 Hessian mercenaries to fight against the American revolutionists of 1776.

Still standing also is a 31-foot statue of Hercules, built almost 200 years ago by Count Karl "Just for fun."

Today it symbolizes the Herculean task facing Kassel in rebuilding one of the most heavily damaged German cities and one of the slowest to recover.

German officials simply shrug when asked when the job will be finished.

Rap Denham For Anti-Trust View

Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 31—(AP)—The high command of the American Federation of Labor, irked at the latest speech of Robert N. Denham, has called him "unfit" for his government job.

The AFL leadership said Denham, general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, is seeking to apply the anti-trust laws to labor unions.

What drew the ire of the AFL's executive council was Denham's speech in Washington yesterday saying the AFL Teamsters' Union has a potential power to cripple most industries.

Denham said the million-man union of truck drivers exercises control over delivery of materials touching nearly every industry in the country.

This brought a blast against him from the AFL council and hot words from several council members, including President William Green and Dan Tobin, teamsters' union chief.

Still another member said privately:

"It's bad enough having to live with the Taft-Hartley law without Denham running around the country telling employers they ought to get even tougher laws on labor."

Dangerous Trees Cut Down On Fourth-Cotanche

Two ancient oak trees, both more than 100 feet tall, at the corner of Fourth and Cotanche streets, opposite the John Flanagan Buggy Company, were felled yesterday to make way for street improvements and safety. The trees are believed to be at least a century old.

K. Graham Flanagan said "Both were big trees when I first saw them, and that was a long time ago."

The trees, both hollow in the lower part of the trunk, were treated by tree specialists years ago, but they were gradually succumbing to old age and were dangerous, Ken R. Beatty, city street superintendent, stated. Removal of some of the old trees, considered dangerous, is being done by experts of the Wilson Tree Company and street department workers.

Beatty said many trees near electric power lines need trimming for safety's sake. The roots of many of the big trees on East Fifth street are damaging the sidewalks and need attention, he added.

The Clemons 4-H Club, having recently been reorganized, has really begun the new year with plenty of spirit and enthusiasm. The club has a membership of 42 girls and boys. For their first meeting they chose to discuss the year's work and enrolled for their new projects. As a result 22 members enrolled in garden, nine in corn, one in tobacco, four in pigs, two in home beautification, four in keeping friends, two in better methods, five in sweet potatoes and two in clothing.

The group enjoyed a pre-Valentine party after their meeting. Valentine decorations were used. Refreshments consisting of potato salad, crackers, cookies and cocoa were served. The club is under the leadership of Mrs. Rosa L. Andrews.

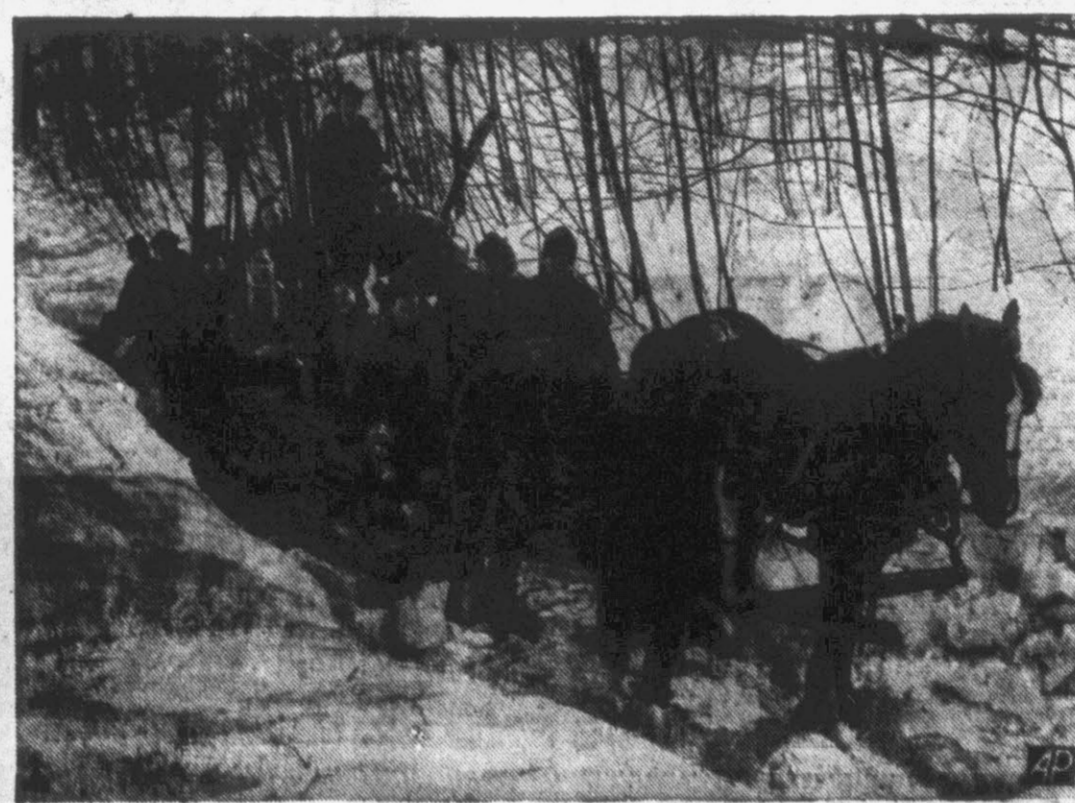

Farmville junior club went all out this month with the spirit of sharing which was stimulated last month. They gave eight gift baskets of grocery to invalids. This club, although a new one, is making a tremendous improvement through the leadership of Mrs. Mattie P. DuPre and Miss Essie Wiggins, 4-H leaders. They have an enrollment of 47 boys and girls. The club's interest in project work warrants them a challenge to any 4-H Club in the county.

Annual High School Day Event Scheduled By College April 21

High School Day, an annual event at East Carolina Teachers College, will be held this year on Friday, April 21, according to an announcement by Dr. Howard J. McGinnis, chairman of the committee in charge of the occasion. Seniors in many high schools of eastern North Carolina, the Piedmont section of the state, and Virginia are expected to visit the college campus at that time and to participate in a program of social and educational activities.

Schedule Terms Superior Court

Judge Walter Bone of Nashville will preside over a one-week civil term of Superior Court in Greenville the week of February 20.

A two-weeks term of court is scheduled for March. A civil term will be held the week of March 20, and a criminal term the week of March 27.

A two-weeks mixed term is scheduled to be convened here the week of April 17.

A one-week civil term will be held here the week of May 8. Governor Scott will assign a special judge to preside over this term.

A civil term is scheduled for the week of May 22. A mixed term will be held the week of May 29. Only full cases may be tried at this time.

Judge Bone, who is riding the Fifth Judicial Circuit the first six months of the year, will conclude his work here at the May term.

Judge Chester Morris of Currituck County will ride the Fifth Judicial Circuit the last half of the year, starting in July. Nine new grand jurors are to be appointed at this time.

Preliminary notices announcing the date of High School Day have been sent to 310 schools, says Dr. McGinnis. Invitations and a full schedule of activities will be mailed early in March.

A program of events to be staged on April 21 is now being planned by Dr. McGinnis and a committee of staff members at the college here. Members of the group include Dr. N. M. Jorgensen, director of the department of health and physical education; Paul Powell of the department of industrial arts; E. C. Hollar of the department of social studies; Mary H. Greene, director of the college News Bureau; Paul Julian, steward of the dining halls; Dr. R. R. Willmann, director of the department of music; Dean of Men W. E. Marshall; and Registrar J. K. Long.

Events of the day will include activities of an educational, informational, recreational, and social nature. To acquaint the visiting high school seniors with types of work being done at East Carolina, various departments of instruction will stage exhibits and demonstrations for their benefit.

Other events will include conducted tours of the campus; a parade by the college ROTC unit; a concert by the East Carolina band; a play by the Teachers Playhouse, dramatic club; a barbecue luncheon on the campus picnic grounds; and a tea dance in the Wright auditorium.

During the afternoon of High School Day the East Carolina Pirates will meet Appalachian State Teachers College in a baseball game on the new athletic field at the college.

Last year East Carolina staged the first High School Day since 1941, when the event was discontinued because of the war. Thirty-six North Carolina counties were represented in the group which visited the campus last April. Visitors for the day numbered 2,398 and came from 118 schools in the eastern part of North Carolina.

Boyle's Column

By HAL BOYLE
New York—(AP)—The late Arthur Brisbane used to contend that if you sat a couple of apes down at two typewriters they eventually would write all the books in the British museum.

So far this remains only a theory, as no one yet has managed to keep an ape interested in a typewriter long enough to write even a short story for the Saturday Evening Post.

There is an interesting experiment going on at the San Diego zoo, though, that may in time afford opportunity to see if Brisbane was right.

Three young gorillas are getting a chance to see if they can understand a college professor. The gorillas—Albert, Rata and Boura—come from Africa. The professor, Dr. Robert M. Yerkes, comes from Yale, and he is rendered authority on Anthropoid apes.

The little gorillas are Anthropoid apes, but they don't know this yet. If Dr. Yerkes has his way, however, they will find out—and what will happen then is anybody's guess.

The professor hopes to teach Albert, Rata and Boura to talk. If he is successful, they will be the first gorillas in history to employ the English language. Until now gorillas have been able to get anything they wanted out of life by grunting or grabbing. But from here on in any gorilla that really wants to get ahead in the zoo will have to be able to make a public speech.

Somehow the whole experiment seems a bit unfair to the gorillas, who, if they were human, would still be wearing diapers. All are a year or so under in age, too young really for kindergarten.

And what have they got to gain by learning to talk? Getting right down to the blunt truth, what have captive gorillas got to discuss?

Suppose all three gorillas turn out to be mental wizards. I still can see nothing but trouble ahead for them. If Albert learns to spell "Africa" at the age of 3, won't he at 12 be asking why he can't go to Yale and become the first gorilla to win a college degree? Boy, what a half-back he'd be—he'd make Frank Merriwell look like a monkey.

But the chances are that no matter how educated Albert and his two pals became, their only campus would remain a locked cage. Even if they learned to shave and wear clothing it wouldn't get them freedom. People still have a prejudice against letting a gorilla run around loose, even if he can work problems in algebra.

And what would happen to the San Diego zoo then? There would be no discipline. Albert, Rata and

NO DEEP FREEZE NEEDED—Emil H. Swenson (left) and Albert E. Snodgrass of Minneapolis shoulder their huge northern pike speared through the ice at Lake Minnetonka, Minn.

Bouba would spend their time drafting petitions demanding equal rights for gorillas or complaining about the quality of the bananas. And they make ill-matured remarks about the visitors and the ancestry of the visitors. They would take up swearing.

Even if Albert and his buddies get smart enough to dictate books by the dozens I think they shouldn't be reading a gorilla's memoirs would only make everybody sad.

No, language alone won't bridge the Gulf between gorilla and man. All the knowledges in the world won't make Albert happy. And if he is as wise a gorilla as I think he will tell Dr. Yerkes, "no, thanks, professor"—and remain a normal ape.

Clark Clifford Steps Out Today

Washington, Jan. 31—(AP)—Clark M. Clifford steps out as President Truman's legal adviser today and steps into a private law office tomorrow.

For four years Clifford has been at the President's elbow as Chief Counsel. Before that he was there as naval aide.

The handsome, personable 44-year-old lawyer is credited with helping with the ghost writing chores on many a Presidential speech—including those that got Mr. Truman an upset election victory in 1948.

Moving into the spot of chief legal expert at the White House is Charles Murphy, a quiet North Carolinian who has been serving as an administrative assistant in Mr. Truman. Murphy's specialty has been legislative problems.

Clifford is giving up a $20,000-a-year job—it recently was raised from $12,000—for what he calls "impelling personal reasons."

He says he owes it to his family, a wife and three daughters, to try to make more by returning to practicing law. There will be no vacation before the shift.

Clifford told a reporter that at 9 a. m. tomorrow "I'll be in my new office, ready for business."

Human Relations Greatest Danger

Raleigh, N.C., Jan. 31—(AP)—If man "cannot change his attitudes of hate, suspicion, and bigotry—then the handwriting is on the wall," says a top international diplomat.

Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, Negro head of the United Nation's Department of Trusteeship, made the assertion last night.

"The greatest danger in the world today," he told an unsegregated, capacity audience in Raleigh's Municipal Auditorium, "is in the realm of human relations."

"With the equipment of civilization," he declared, "man will destroy himself and his civilization. No mechanism, however perfect on paper, will do any good if we can't see a change in the attitude of man toward man."

Dr. Bunche spoke before the Institute of Religion sponsored by the United Church.

The word academy is derived from the Grove of Academics, north of Athens, where Plato taught.

People little given to superlatives showered them freely on these magnificent new automobiles. For what they saw convinced them that nothing could be finer than Lincoln today.

They saw brilliant new distinction in new Lincoln styling. They saw new smartness in Those fortunate enough to experience demonstrations discovered new ease and comfort with new Lincoln silken-smooth steering . . . restful springing . . . relaxing "Weather Control" ventilation system . . . whisper-quiet new Fiberglas soundproofing.

Greenville Phantoms Meet Powerful Kinston Basketball Five Here Tonight

Locals Playing One Of Best Teams In East Carolina, Sporting 13-3 Record; Juniors Slated In Preliminary Event

When the Greenville high school Phantoms go up against the Kinston high school basketball club tonight at 8 o'clock, they will be battling not only the top team in the Northeastern Conference but also one of the best teams in Eastern North Carolina.

And on top of that rugged-sounding information, the Phantoms will be taking on the team that whipped them in their first conference game this year.

With the possible exception of Wilmington, class A champs at the present time, Kinston has a team that should be reckoned with regardless of the single or double lettered conference. It now sports a 13-and-3 record, the wins coming from members of the local circuit and others in the AA bracket.

In top position in the conference the Kinston aggregation has beaten every team that has beat the Phants. It also has avenged those three losses with a comeback win in the second game. Kinston holds victories over the locals in addition to New Bern, Washington, Roanoke Rapids and Elizabeth City, only one of those teams having fallen prey to the Phants this year.

The Red Devils can field a team that averages a couple of inches over six feet, Bobby Hodges, center, being the highest at 6'4". The other starting players are Forwards Doug Bruton and Graham Phillips, both over six feet; and the guards, Bryant Aldridge and Joe Whaley. Phillips is the only man who saw no varsity action last year, playing JV ball for the Devils. This year he is only a sophomore and has, since the beginning of the season, improved so well offensively and defensively that he is the best man on the club.

Usually the high scorer for the Devils is Hodges, the gangling center, who usually averages 16 points per game.

Genial Bo Farley, traditional coach of the Phants, said yesterday that the game tonight was the biggest one on the Greenville schedule, inasmuch as his boys took a beating in their previous outing in Kinston. He blamed the defeat almost entirely on the great height the Kinston club had on his team, but thought the boys played a great game in holding the Devils to a final 11-point lead. In other games this year the Devils have swamped their opponents in the conference, usually by 20 or more points.

Farley now has his original pre-Christmas starting lineup with the inclusion of Guard Jimmy Cox who played more than a quarter against New Bern last Friday. Cox, who is primarily a floor man rather than a sharpshooter, rounds out the experience on the over-all team. Until his right arm heals he probably will not start tonight but will see plenty of play when the action gets rough.

John Aman, formerly a substitute guard who has been starting since Cox left the squad, will start tonight along with his running-mate, Joe Sawyer. The Phants will field their usual forwards, Jimmy Dillingham and Virginius Haynes, along with Sid Briley at center.

A junior game will go on the floor about 6:30. Their opponents, the Kinston Junior Devils, have lost only two conference games and are expected to give Woody Wilson's youngsters a run for their laurels. The locals have a little better record than the Kinston club, having lost only one game this season, and should be a slight favorite to win.

Texans Bragged Too Quickly On Baseball Clubs

Greensboro, N.C., Jan. 31—(AP)—Texas bragged too quickly when it said it had displaced North Carolina as the state with the most clubs in organized baseball. A check shows it is likely to be a 45-all tie for the 1950 season.

Texas thought it was going to 47. A new league, the Gulf Coast, put four clubs into the Lone Star State, and the Rio Grande Valley League wanted to go from six to eight teams by adding two Texas clubs. But now it appears that the Rio Grande Valley will remain at six.

North Carolina had 43 clubs in organized ball last season. Since then two have been added. They are Elizabeth City, a new member of the Class D Virginia League, and Fayetteville, which has obtained the Martinsville, Va., franchise in the Class B Carolina League.

Chicago Cards To Name Coach

Chicago, Jan. 31—(AP)—One of the best kept sports secrets of the year has been the name of the new Chicago Cardinals football coach.

He is to be announced by President Ray Bennigan at a Cardinal conference tomorrow. It could be Clark Shaughnessy, the old T-formation master who presently is coach of the Los Angeles Rams; Curly Lambeau, pro football pioneer who organized the Green Bay Packers as a sandlot team in 1919—or any one of a dozen whose names have been rumored.

Umps In 2 Sports

New York, (AP)—Six members of the National Baseball Association staff of officials are umpires in organized baseball as well. Johnny Stevens works in the American League, Joe Serafin and Bob Austin in the American Association. Chuck Solodare and Frank Scanlan in the International League and Sid Borgis in the Colonial League.

Cole And Hunter To Miss Big Return Bout With Gamecocks

By BILL LLOYD
Disappointing words came from Coach Johnny Long, East Carolina's boxing mentor yesterday, as he reported that two of his most outstanding ringsters, 130 pound Bill Cole and heavyweight Bill Hunter, would miss the boxing bouts with the University of South Carolina here Wednesday night because of sickness.

Cole, the up and coming little southpaw from Goldsboro, was bothered all last week with a bad cold and throat irritations, and has had trouble in rounding in top condition for the Gamecock matches.

Belting Bill Hunter, heavyweight holdover from last year's pug team, missed the Citadel bouts and seems definitely out of the ten-card boxing feature here Wednesday night. Hunter has been recuperating from a severe cold and possible influenza, and will not be counted on Wednesday, according to Coach Long.

Despite their two major losses, the purple and gold pounders of East Carolina continued their spirited workouts for the Palmetto return match to be held here Wednesday night in Wright auditorium. South Carolina won a close decision over the Buc before the holidays, 61-2 to 31-2, and the Pirates will be striving to stage a revenge comeback Wednesday night.

Crowell Williamson, Coach Long's most promising 150 pounder who has been receiving state-wide attention in the boxing circles, is reported in top condition.

The classy frosh sensation will battle the University of South Carolina's Jim Brigman in one of the feature bouts between the teams when the Gamecocks arrive for their second meeting with the Buccaneers. Brigman copped the Southern conference middleweight title last year, and is a leading glove slinger for the out-of-staters.

Williamson already has an impressive ring record of 34 wins in 38 fights, and drawing once. He holds Golden Gloves titles in Raleigh, Fayetteville, Wilmington, Whiteville, Clinton and Charlotte.

Along with Williamson, comes 135 pound Charlie Edwards, a real slugger, who will be seeking revenge in his bout here Wednesday, as he lost by close decision in the first meet of time Pirates and Palmettoes.

Expected to carry much of the Pirates' hopes in their oncoming bouts are Ken Stargardt, 155 lb. hold over from last year's squad, who has been impressive in his last two outings, and Cecil Phillips, a live-wire battler who is undefeated in his three bouts this year. Phillips fights in the 140 pound class and is a veteran of the ring, gaining much recognition while boxing in the European armed forces tournaments.

In the heavier divisions, unsmiling contender H. A. Creel, is expected to hold his own in his 160 pound clash, while Henry Fordham, highly impressive in his first bout with the Citadel, will carry the load in the heavyweight division.

Negotiations are being made for Johnny Long to stage rubber matches between two widely known Pirate rival pug, Bruce "BoBo Boo" Jones, and Marshall "Catfish" Baines, as an added feature in Wednesday night's boxing card. Both Jones and Baines are known by local Greenville boxing fans, and college students for their long-time ring rivalry.

Will Swing Leather Tomorrow

CROWELL WILLIAMSON KEN STARGARDT

Two fighters who would be standouts on any boxing team are East Carolina's 150-pound Crowell Williamson and 156-pounder Ken Stargardt, who will see action against South Carolina's Gamecocks tomorrow evening. Williamson lost a closely-fought decision to Southern Conference Middleweight Champ Jim Brigman in their first meeting. Williamson isn't convinced he was beaten, and is out to prove his point in the return bout. Stargardt, a holdover from last year's squad, is rated one of Coach Johnny Long's most dependable performers.

Rocky Mount To Stage Baseball Clinic Feb. 1, 2

Rocky Mount, Jan. 31.—A baseball clinic, sponsored by the Rocky Mount American Legion Post, will be held in Rocky Mount, February 1st and 2nd in the Legion Hall.

The purpose of the clinic is to instill sounder fundamentals of baseball in the youth of the state through the education of high school and college coaches and the Rocky Mount clinic committee is inviting all baseball enthusiasts in this section of the state to attend.

Members of the committee are Dr. C. E. Minges, Coaches E. E. Adkins and C. C. Clewford of Rocky Mount, Bill Ruffelt, sports editor of the Evening Telegram, Charlie Wilhail and Richard Clack.

Wilhail, publicity chairman of the clinic, announced late last week that Mace Brown and Ray Hayworth, former major league pitcher and catcher respectively of the Chicago White Sox and Cubs, will be on hand to direct the instructional program. The chairman said that several of this area's big league stars and coaches will assist the two Chicago ball players in the parley.

The Legion Post invites anybody that is interested in the national game to be present at the meetings. A one-dollar charge is required of each attendant and can be mailed to the Post, 240 South Washington Street, or can be presented at the door on the day of attendance.

Wilhail said that the program will consist of lectures, demonstrations, movies and discussion periods. He urged all coaches in this section to attend the meetings, bringing

Elonites Finally Win Loop Game

By the Associated Press
Elon has finally won a North State Conference basketball game.

Something had to give when the Christians met Western Carolina Teachers last night, for neither had won a league game. Elon, led by Forward Billy Rakes who scored 19 points in his first starting assignment of the season, won 50-40.

Catawba of the North State found Hanes Hosley's team of former college stars too tough and lost 79-73. Bill Johnson made 19 points in a losing cause. Hugh Hampton, veteran Hanes center and former High Point College star, had 17.

The program for major North Carolina clubs was completed with the University of North Carolina's easy 77-39 Southern Conference victory over the Citadel.

The program tonight includes a pair of Southern Conference games and another couple of North State Conference matches.

The Citadel, about out of the running for the Southern Conference March Tournament, is at Wake Forest, Davidson, also with a slim chance for the tourney, is host to South Carolina.

High Point's North State Conference leaders, undefeated in seven league games, meets runnerup Appalachian, 7-3. And Lenoir-Rhyne, 5-4, is at Guilford, 3-4.

Trio Arrested In Staging Protest

Milan, Italy, Jan. 31—(AP)—Police disclosed today three youths were arrested Monday when they tried to enter the U. S. Consulate here to protest the arrival of the American Arms Aid coordinator, Joseph N. Jacobs.

Police said the trio, who were released after questioning, were from the pro-Communist suburb San Giovanni.

Dempsey Pleased

New York, Jan. 30—(AP)—"This is the greatest thing that ever happened to me. I hope I'm worthy of it."

Those were the first words that popped from Jack Dempsey when he was told he had been voted the greatest prizefighter of the past 50 years in a nationwide poll of sportswriters and sportscasters conducted by the Associated Press.

The old Manassa Mauler plainly meant what he said. He was pretty well flabbergasted. There have been so many great fighters," he protested. "I don't know how the boys can be sure I was the best. But if they think I was, it makes me mighty happy."

Cook Crushed 'Em

Minneapolis — (AP) — Bill Cook coach of the Minneapolis Millers of the U. S. Hockey League, believes forwards should do their share of body checking. In his player days with the New York Rangers, Cook handed out as many lusty checks from his right-wing position as did his teammates on defense.

Ice fishing continues until March 15 in Wisconsin.

Top Conference Teams Taking On Second Division

By the Associated Press
Three of the Southern Conference's "top-drawer" quintets take a second-division club tonight in an effort to enhance their chances of qualifying for the annual league tournament in March.

Tonight's loop schedule sends South Carolina to Davidson, the Citadel to Wake Forest and Richmond to Virginia Tech.

Of the top trio, South Carolina's Gamecocks currently are in the best position. The Birds are holding down sixth place in the conference with a record of five wins against three defeats. Davidson has won only twice in nine starts.

Wake Forest and Virginia Tech are tied for the eighth spot in the league, each with four wins and four losses, and a victory tonight is almost a "must" for both.

The Deacons, playing the Citadel, are taking on a team which shows one victory in five league starts. Tech's opponent, Richmond, has only one triumph in six loop contests.

Barring an unexpected winning streak by one of the conference's lower ranking teams, the present top nine appear to be the only ones capable of making the annual eight-team tourney.

That's why Wake Forest and Virginia Tech, currently deadlocked for that final tourney berth, will be fighting to take them all for the rest of the season.

The only conference game on last night's slate was North Carolina's Tar Heels move into third place in the loop standings with a 77 to 39 triumph over the Citadel. Nemo Nearman paced the attack with 21 points.

Furman stepped outside the conference to take on the College of Charleston and registered a 56-53 triumph.

Holy Cross Cage Coach Proclaims Faith In Team

New York, Jan. 31—(AP)—"Sure we think we're the best in the nation . . . and we'll keep on thinking it until somebody beats us."

The speaker? Lester Sheary, coach of unbeaten Holy Cross which today was voted the nation's top basketball team for the third straight week in the Associated Press poll.

"Team play," he said, "is a three-player system, employing 15 players. After all, common sense says 15 men can outrun eight or nine."

The "triple-teaming" has added up to 14 straight victories for the classy New Englanders, who received almost 60 per cent of the first place votes.

Northeast Feels Wintry Blasts

New York, Jan. 31—(AP)—It was no longer June in January in the Northeast today.

Snow—as much as five inches—fell across most of upper New York state to the glee of winter sports centers. But the end of mild weather came too late to prevent transfer of the cross country races of the world ski championships from Lake Placid to Rumford, Me.

Residents of the New York City Metropolitan area and northern New Jersey sloped and skidded to work through sleet, snow and freezing rain.

Windshields froze and workmen sanded highways as traffic crawled.

Jess Mortensen, new Army track coach, was national AAU decathlon champion in 1931.

East Carolina Grid Squad Begins Delayed Winter Drill

A full squad scrimmage was on schedule yesterday as Head Football Coach Bill Dole sent his 1950 grid-iron hopefuls through a rugged afternoon of drills.

Start of winter football drills were delayed last week, as Coach Dole was confined to his home with a severe case of influenza.

Eighteen returning lettermen from last year's East Carolina eleven greeted Dole in yesterday's workouts, along with some nineteen newcomers, who have reported for winter drills. Six lettermen of the past season's team did not take part in the scrimmage yesterday, but are expected to report some time this week.

Among the letterman linemen on hand yesterday were Ends Dwight Shoe and Dennis Smith; Tackles Al Auerbach, Ken Booth and Bill Mc-Donald; Guards Don McKenzie, Reggie Byrd and Leon Ellis; and Centers Frank Madigan and Bob Boyd.

Veteran backfield taking part in yesterday's workout were Richard Siler at quarterback, with Jack Benze, Bill Darby, Bob Grady and Mike Kovach and John Daughtry at halfbacks, and Johnny Smith at fullback.

Newcomers to the Pirate grid forces consisted of Ott Alford, Bill Mulligan and Henry Fordham, ends; Elzie Stevenson, Mickey Berman, Henry Geiss and Wally Robinson, tackles; John Schartz, John Kennedy, Billy Johnson, Jim Brady, Jesse Aldridge, Darrel Bateman, guards; and Tom Swain, Jim Cushing, Pete Reynolds, Tommy Bullock and Howard Carmichael, in the backfield.

A change was noticed in yesterday's drills with Coach Dole switching the Buc's defensive end of last year, John Daughtry, to a halfback position. Daughtry ran good in his new position, and seemed to adopt himself to the halfback position impressively.

Catching the eye of interested onlookers in yesterday afternoon's spirited scrimmage was the hard-running of newcomer Tom Swain Swain, working at fullback, displayed power in his line-bucks, and should prove to be a solution to Coach Dole's problem of last year of lack of power through the middle. The rugged defensive play of Freshman Henry Geiss, big, incoming tackle, also was impressive in the Pirates' first real workout during winter drills.

George Mikan Is Voted Greatest Basketballer

New York, Jan. 31—(AP)—Eight years ago he was just a big awkward guy.

Today George Mikan was named the greatest basketball player of the last 50 years by sportswriters and broadcasters participating in the Associated Press mid-century poll.

It is significant that it seems hardly necessary to identify Mikan as the former DePaul University star now with the Minneapolis Lakers in the National Basketball Association. Mikan has developed to the point where he is called by many "Mr. Basketball."

The electric lights on Madison Square Garden's marquee blink "George Mikan VV. Knicks when the Lakers meet the New York Knickerbockers. That is symbolic of the mastery Mikan has achieved in the cage sport.

Farmville Hoopsters Win 2 Games Monday

In two basketball games played last night in the Pitt Interscholastic Athletic Association, the Farmville varsity boys and girls whipped the Grimesland teams. The girls' score was 25-21 in favor of Farmville, while the boys were taking the count of Grimesland 46-35.

Fred Wilt Hints Second Meeting

New York, Jan. 31—(AP)—While track officials wrangled today over the winner of Saturday's split-decision Wanamaker Mile G-Man Fred Wilt hinted he may race Don Gehrmann again.

Gehrmann, Wisconsin's ace runner, said he definitely will not come east again for an attempted repeat of his 4:09.3 mile victory over Wilt.

But Wilt said he will go west for the Chicago Daily News indoor meet March 18. Gehrmann also will run there after competing in midwestern college meets for Wisconsin.

The flashy Badger with the tremendous finish kick is slated for the Bankers Mile that night.

But Wilt, whose best distance is the two mile, wants to meet Gehrmann at the longer distance.

"I'm a two miler but I ran his race Saturday," Wilt said. "Maybe Gehrmann will run my race now."

Asked whether he would enter the mile if asked by the Chicago promoters, Wilt said: "I'd rather run my race."

Millrose Games officials talked Wilt into meeting Gehrmann in the mile last Saturday, and his answer today indicated the Chicago men can do the same.

Besides, Wilt believes he won the disputed race on Madison Square Garden's 11-lap track and would relish proving he's also the country's best miler.

"I know I hit the tape first," he said, "right across my shoulder."

Two New Tracks

Promote Boxing On Society Page

Bangor, Me., Jan. 31—(AP)—Who ever heard of boxing advertisements on the society page?

That's where Community Enterprises, Inc., spotted its ads for a city hall show Thursday night.

And the phrasing! "x x x Of particular interest will be the main contest which of itself will assure you of a thoroughly enjoyable evening. Mr. Albert Couture of Lewiston and Mr. Theodore Brassley of Portland will be the participants. Both gentlemen are superbly conditioned and each has avowed to establish himself as the other's superior."

Even his subsequent defeat at the hands of Sammy Snead in the play-off for top money in the Los Angeles open, could not rob the remarkable comeback of Ben Hogan of its exciting aspects. That Ben was able to bounce back in his first tournament following his near-fatal auto accident of 11 months ago stamps following so long a layoff, was remarkably steady.

The answer then must be his fighting heart. He had demonstrated his fighting qualities as he battled his way to the top of the golf world. And now, the chances are that his heart will carry him back to heights long after his tired legs fail him.

Chapter 26
A decision had been reached. White Bear's face expressed displeasure, but he shrugged his shoulders as if to wash his hands of the matter.

Now Saralee was coming, led between two squaws. She was dressed in levis, her hair in disorder, her face white with strain, but her head was held high, her eyes steady. Value eyed her anxiously. Apparently she had been subjected to no indignities.

Value saw her pause for a moment in sheer amazement, her eyes widening. Then, as she saw Zachary's attitude, how he was painted and accepted as an equal by the chiefs, understanding came into her eyes. And with it a scorn and contempt which was unmistakable.

Zachary saw it, too, and his own face whitened, so that the paint showed more garish by contrast. The tempo of the war drums faltered for a moment, then went on, and the dancers continued. But there was astonishment and bewilderment on more than one face. This was something unusual, to say the least.

Zachary took a step forward. "Saralee!" he said. "So this is what you are!" she said. "A renegade!" Zachary had determined not to be disturbed by what she might say to him. He had foreseen what her reaction would be, and was prepared for it.

"I was adopted into the tribe years ago," he explained. "It's a fortunate thing for both of us, now. Two of the tribe have been killed in the last twenty-four hours. They are determined on war. That's why they picked you up. As it is, I can save both of us, and it's the only chance we have."

None of it, except his own part, was news to Saralee. Ignoring the Indians, she blazed back at him. "Save yourself, if that's the way you want to do it," she retorted. "It's what I'd expect of you. But as for me, I don't care for any of it. Zachary's smile was tolerant.

"Do you know how you'd be treated, right now, if it wasn't for me?" he demanded. "Look at these people—at the mood they're in! What I've brought you here now for, at this time, which is a poor one for me, is to marry you. As my squaw, you'll be safe, whatever happens. And it's the only way you will be!"

Saralee did not bother to look around. Her courage was as fine as her contempt. "I ran away yesterday, rather than marry you," she said. "Now that I know so much more about you, do you think that I'd be your squaw?"

White Bear and the other chiefs had been waiting impatiently. They did not understand what was being said, but that did not matter to them. White Bear intervened now. "There is other business," he said meaningly. "And time grows short!" Zachary nodded. But before he could speak, Saralee answered.

"It's not going to be that way. I'd sooner die than marry you, or even owe my safety to you, now that I know what you are!" Zachary looked at her, his anger showing in his face for a moment. But this was not the time to chastise her, he knew, with the others looking on. He turned back to White Bear, ignoring her.

"She is my squaw," he announced shortly. "There is no time for anything more now. See that she is kept safe until I return," he added for the squaws. "There is much to do now."

He gestured to them to take her away, and that, plainly enough, met with the approval of White Bear and the others. But Saralee seemed to guess that he was trying to put something over on her, and she was in no mood to stand for anything of the sort. Before Zachary suspected her intention, she stepped forward and slapped him resoundingly across the face. Then she turned and made a dash for the darkness, and made a dash for the gesture almost won for a moment, then red with rage at the affront before the others. A dancing brave leaped out suddenly from the circle, made a quick dash, and caught her. He dragged her back, fighting every step of the way, yet he held her easily enough. Value had to restrain himself from stepping out into the light.

For a moment there was silence. The other chiefs were watching with interest, wondering what Zachary would do. The drizzle of rain had stopped, and there was a faint lightening in the east.

Rage was in Zachary's face. It was as if, casting off his rusty black clothes, he had become a complete savage.

"So that's what you want, is it?" he asked. "To be on your own? Do you know what that's going to mean? But I think I'll just let it go that way. What do I want of you, anyway? I don't have to take anything second-hand! I—"

He was going on, a tirade which left Saralee white-faced, while something of fear began to show in her eyes. De Polo moved, swinging back into the saddle.

"More effective entrance this way," he said. "I guess it's time for us to tell the chief a few things that he doesn't know about his friend Zachary, eh, Trib?" (To be continued)
