Union Postpones Telephone Tie-Up 'Til February 24

Hope That Settlement Can Be Brought About By Intensified Bargaining

Washington, Feb. 7—(AP)— The CIO-Communications Workers today postponed until Feb. 24 a nationwide telephone strike it had called for tomorrow at 6 a. m.

Mediation Director Cyrus S. Ching had asked for the postponement to per it more time for conciliators to try to settle the dispute.

Union President Joseph A. Beirne of the Union said the nine-man executive board had voted to postpone the strike in the hope that a settlement could be brought about in the meantime.

Along with asking a postponement of the strike call, Ching called for "intensified bargaining."

Beirne said a postponement order was sent to the Unions whose 100,000 workers were to walk out tomorrow in the first wave of strikes aimed at shutting down the entire Bell Telephone system.

The new strike deadline is 6 a. m., local time, on Friday, Feb. 24.

Ching based his plea for a postponement on the public interest.

Beirne said:

"In accordance with Mr. Ching's request for more time to bring about a peaceable solution to the telephone wage dispute, CWA-CIO is postponing its strike.

"Mr. Ching, through his personal intervention and his grave concern for the interests of the public may be successful in getting the Bell system to do some real collective bargaining.

"We, too, have grave concern for the interests of the public. We think we have demonstrated that in these months of fruitless bargaining. We want to avoid a strike."

The companies are the Western Electric, Pacific, Southwestern, and Mountain States, Bell Telephone companies. A strike vote is being taken among the New Jersey workers also, but it will not be completed before Feb. 15.

The Union, headed by Joseph A. Beirne, a vice-president of the CIO, also had threatened to send another 200,000 workers out on strike after March 1. Their contracts would not permit them to join in the first walkout.

Germans Join In Recovery Effort

Frankfurt, Germany, Feb. 7—(AP) West Germany today handed the United States a formal agreement to cooperate with other European nations in promoting general European recovery.

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer presented U.S. High Commissioner John J. McCloy with Germany's ratification of an agreement with the Economic Cooperation Administration. This binds Germany to help achieve through a joint recovery program, economic conditions in Europe essential to a lasting peace.

Invasion Chief Believed Chosen

Taipei, Formosa, Feb. 7—(AP)—The Nationalist defense ministry today said Red Gen. Chen Yi's 10th army had been sent to southern Fukien province on the mainland, most likely to mount the expected invasion attempt against Formosa.

At the same time the Chinese navy said a gunboat of unknown nationality had been sighted off the mainland port of Swatow and was being watched closely by Nationalist warships.

Solons Assert Slow-Moving British Justice Delays FBI

Washington, Feb. 7 — (AP) — Lawmakers today blamed ponderous British legal procedure for hampering FBI pursuit of further atomic leaks in the Klaus Fuchs case.

They expressed fear that the delay may enable some suspects to skip this country.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover was reported to have told senators that thus far he has been unable to get from the British full details of any confession that may have been made by Fuchs.

Fuchs, 38-year-old German-born scientist accused of passing along top atomic — and some hydrogen bomb—information to the Russians, is believed to have had accomplices in this country.

But lawmakers said they were told that until the British justice department releases its records, the FBI may have to wait for leads, with the result that some suspects might get out of this country unmolested.

British Justice authorities are understood to be keeping Fuchs completely incommunicado—even from Scotland Yard.

Hoover goes to Capitol Hill today for the third time to talk behind closed doors with senators — this time with the Senate Appropriations subcommittee to which he first divulged some of the FBI's activities in the case last week.

Senator Bricker (R-Ohio), a member of the Congressional Atomic Committee, told reporters the 1943 Quebec agreement which the late President Roosevelt entered into with Great Britain and Canada should be made public.

The secret pact was regarded by Bricker and others as pertinent to the case. They feel it may have opened the way for foreign scientists to come to the United States to work on the A-bomb without U.S. security checks.

Bricker said he intended to ask the "proper witnesses" about it.

Senator Hickenlooper (R-Iowa) sought unsuccessfully to get the text of the agreement last year during the investigation of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Hoover was quoted by lawmakers as having told the atomic committee yesterday it was unfortunate the British arrested Fuchs as early as they did.

It was the FBI director's position, these legislators said, that others might have been drawn into the net more easily if the arrest had been delayed.

Hoover made it plain, it was said, that the British had not refused to give additional information about the Fuchs case but just hadn't got around to it yet.

Thus far, he was said to have received only a digest of the statement Fuchs made to British authorities and not the full statement itself.

Lawmakers speculated that the British may have some more arrests in mind.

County Commissioners Approve Appropriation

Vote To Buy Half Interest In Tract Of Land On Which New Highway Patrol Building Will Be Constructed In City

The County Commissioners voted yesterday to appropriate $1,500 to buy one-half interest in a tract of land on which a new Highway Patrol Headquarters building for Troop B is to be built.

The privately-owned land is at the intersection of Fifth and Tenth Streets and, if bought, will be purchased jointly by the county and city.

The motion of the board yesterday, however, is contingent on the purchase of a 30x30 plot of land on the courthouse grounds, tentatively to be used for parking purposes, which is owned by the City of Greenville. The board voted to pay $1,000 for the plot which used to contain a water reservoir.

The construction of the Patrol headquarters will be begun shortly after the Board of Aldermen takes positive action on the Commissioner's proposal. If the board approves the motion, the land will be leased to the Patrol for a period of 50 years.

The Commissioners also approved petitions for general improvements and additions to Pitt roads. The additions are planned for Chicod and Ayden townships. An addition to Avon road to N.C. 264 and Saunders road from 264 to the Beaufort County line is planned for Chicod, and the Old Tar Road from N.C. 11 to Elm Grove Church is planned for Ayden.

Rev. R. L. Topping, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, requested the Commissioners to grant the use of the Curb Market as an interdenominational Sunday school room each Sunday for one hour. The request was granted on the concurrence of the city which owns the building jointly with the county.

A request for an assistant in the auditor's office was granted by the Commissioners. A. L. Woolard of Stokes was employed by the county to assist Auditor Allen Powell in assessing property in the county. His salary will be $200 per month with a travel allowance of $100 per month for a period of six months, beginning February 1, such employment to terminate at the pleasure of the Commissioners.

Other business acted on by the Commissioners was in addition to the regular business:

A request by The King's Daughters to purchase the agricultural building when those offices are moved into the present Pitt County General Hospital, pending completion of the Memorial Hospital, was put off until a future date.

The Board of Elections was granted $80 to buy new books in which names of present voters will be transferred from the old books, such action in accord with 1949 General Assembly statutes.

Delinquent tax suits will be processed as soon as the delinquency is found and not until several accumulate as has been the case heretofore.

A request for permission to peddle merchandise in Pitt County without the usual peddler's license was granted to W. D. Cherry.

A bill for $6.84 for repairs to the Curb Market was paid.

Can Walk Again Without Help

Topeka, Kas., Feb. 7—(AP)—Jane Froman, whose legs were badly injured almost seven years ago, today was reported walking again without assistance.

The singer was crippled in an airplane crash in the ocean near Lisbon in 1943.

Budd Granoss, Miss Froman's press agent, said she has been taking treatment at the Menninger clinic foundation here since September.

Expect Over 300 At Scout Event

Pitt Scouts Indicate Big Turnout For Annual Banquet

Over 300 Scouts, their parents, and guests are expected to attend the annual scout banquet to be held Thursday night at the North dining hall at East Carolina Teachers College.

Scouts from all over Pitt County have indicated that they will attend in strength at the meeting. An attendance cup will be presented to the troop which has the largest percentage of scouts and their fathers present at the meeting. The attendance cup is now on display in the window of D. L. Turnage's office on Evans street.

Dr. Leon Russell, pastor of the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, will be the principal speaker of the night. The topic of Rev. Russell's message has not been announced as yet.

The main portion of the program will be composed of skits, given by the different boy scout troops. So far six scout troops have reported that they will present skits. Troops and the skits that they will present are: Troop 36, "Pioneering"; Troop 30, "Camping"; Troop 33, "Workings of the Compass"; Troop 185, "How Scouting Came to the United States"; Troop 205, "Scout Law". Jack Dowdy, Pitt county district commissioner, stated that the skits will range in length from five to ten minutes each.

Over 300 tickets have been purchased, Dowdy stated, and at the present time, there are no tickets available for the banquet.

Pitt county district chairman, Wyatt Brown, will preside over the meeting.

Scouts are expected from the following Pitt county towns: Belvoir, Bethel, Winterville, Falkland, four senior troops from Greenville and two cub packs.

An elaborate banquet has been planned, with barbecued chicken

CHURCH LEADER DIES

Second Dividend For Vets Ahead

Another NSLI Payment Scheduled For Early In 1951

Washington, Feb. 7 — (AP) — There's another big dividend on World War II veterans' life insurance company up next year.

It won't be nearly as large as the $2,800,000,000 payment now being distributed, but it will run into millions.

The Veterans Administration has informed Congress it plans to pay out about 65 per cent of the new special dividends in the first six months of 1951, and the rest before the end of that year.

Thereafter, said H. W. Breining, VA's insurance administrator, the National Service Life Insurance program probably will start paying dividends annually in the years when a surplus is available.

"We have no idea of the amounts that will be available for the 1951 dividend payment," Breining told a reporter.

"We won't have, until we determine our mortality experience for the years involved, and the size of the reserves that must be set up to cover the many contingencies."

The current $2,800,000,000 dividend is from a surplus that developed during the first eight years of the program—from 1940 through the 1948 anniversary date of each of the 20,000,000 policies issued to 16,500,000 World War II veterans.

The forthcoming special dividend, Breining said, will cover three policy years, through the 1951 anniversary date of each policy.

Member Of AEC Resigns Today

Washington, Feb. 7 — (AP) — Lewis L. Strauss resigned today as a member of the Atomic Energy Commission.

President Truman accepted the resignation effective April 15.

In a letter, made public by the White House, Strauss said he wanted to return to his private affairs "from which I have been separated for so long."

Mr. Truman said that he understands why Strauss, after nine years in the public service, wants "to return to private pursuits."

Merchants Plan Dollar Day Event Here For Feb. 9

Many Out-Of-Town Shoppers Expected; Parking Meters Suspended For Day

The Greenville Merchants' Association's semi-annual Dollar Day selling event, scheduled for Thursday, February 9, is expected to draw shoppers here from many towns and cities in Eastern Carolina.

A feature of Dollar Day in Greenville this time is that the city administration will suspend the parking meters Thursday. Merchants officials advise clerks and others not to park cars down town, and give the shoppers plenty of parking space.

Seventy-five Greenville stores are expected to participate in the Dollar Day merchandising event Thursday. Charles A. White, executive of White's Stores, who is chairman of this trade promotion retail selling event, suggested today that shoppers watch for the Dollar Day window trims in store windows.

Dollar Days in Greenville, held twice a year, are important events. Dollar Day events here have for many years drawn shoppers from scores of Eastern Carolina towns and helped a good deal toward making Greenville the "shopping center of Eastern Carolina."

The stores in Greenville are making special displays of their special offerings for Dollar Day, Thursday. Their announcements in advertisements in today's Daily Reflector reflect the special values offered to Eastern Carolina shoppers who come to Greenville for Thursday's Dollar Day merchandising event.

Cora S. Powell, executive secretary of the Greenville Merchants Association, quoted some merchants as advising shoppers to "take advantage of the many special bargains Dollar Day and save on every dollar you spend."

Suggestion was made that Dollar Day will be a good day for householders and others to outfit the needs of their families in household furnishings.

The stores open for Dollar Day at 9 a.m. sharp Thursday. Many stores have arranged for extra clerks to wait on the many shoppers expected here Thursday.

Holdup Man Just Took Her Word

Charlotte, N.C., Feb. 7—(AP)—Miss Grace Hinson says she met a sympathetic robber last night.

As she alighted from a street bus near her home, a Negro emerged from a black auto.

He pointed a gun at her and demanded her money.

She answered that she had none, having just paid the rent.

He seemed satisfied, jumped into the car and drove off.

Death Sentence Is Given Stroble

Los Angeles, Feb. 7—(AP)—The State Supreme Court is apparently all that stands today between Fred Stroble, 68, and the gas chamber at San Quentin Prison.

Stroble, convicted sex slayer of 6-year-old Linda Joyce Glucoft, was sentenced to death yesterday by Superior Judge Charles W. Fricke. Fricke denied a motion for a new trial, but all death sentences in California must be reviewed by the State Supreme Court.

Further Curtailment For Rail Services In Offing

New York, Feb. 7—(AP)—New Cutbacks in the nation's railroad services loomed today as coal stocks dwindled toward a critical low.

Many railroads already have been operating for weeks on reduced schedules.

But further curtailments are planned if the soft coal mine dispute develops into a full shutdown.

The Association of American Railroads estimated yesterday that major roads had an average coal reserve sufficient to last just 14.8 days—possibly the lowest supply on record.

One railroad official predicted the roads will begin confiscating coal shipments as a last-ditch strategy to keep trains and vital cargoes moving.

One line was said to have resorted already to such action.

The New York Central railroad yesterday ordered cancellation of 45 passenger trains in New York, probably after midnight tonight.

This is in addition to 147 cancellations made last month, after the interstate commerce commission ordered a one-third curtailment by all roads with less than a 35-day supply of coal.

The New York Central says it now has only a week's supply.

John B. Delaney, superintendent of the line's Syracuse division, predicted the coal confiscation policy within 48 hours as a "last resort move." He said the road hadn't used such action for 15 years.

Navy Develops Rocket For Air-To-Air Combat

Washington, Feb. 7 — (AP) — The Navy has developed a hard-hitting new aircraft rocket for air-to-air combat.

The Department of Defense announced yesterday that the weapon— dubbed the "Mighty Mouse" —has been successfully test-fired over the California desert. A Navy officer described it as the first successful U.S. air-to-air rocket.

The Department said the "Mouse":

Has far greater speed than aircraft rockets developed during World War II.

Is small enough to be carried in quantity by its mother aircraft, yet fast and powerful enough to destroy any known plane with a direct hit.

Was built specifically for use on modern, high-speed planes against other aircraft.

May be fired singly or in salvo from a launcher attached to a plane's wings or fuselage. It is aimed by aiming the launching aircraft at the target.

German fighter planes used rockets against U. S. bombers during World War II. Some U.S. planes also carried rockets but they were designed for use against surface targets.

Coal Production Plummets In Wake Of All-Out Strike

Unemployment Over Nation Again Soars

Jobless Count Reaches 4,480,000; Highest Since Prewar September, 1941; Largely Seasonal; Job Openings Decline

Washington, Feb. 7— (AP) —The number of job openings across the nation took a 1,609,000 dive last month and sent unemployment soaring to 4,480,000—highest since prewar September, 1941.

Although largely seasonal in characters, reflecting the onset of winter, the development had the effect of putting out of work seven out of each 100 persons in the nation's labor force.

That left 56,947,000 civilian jobholders, plus another 1,408,000 in the Armed Forces, the census bureau said yesterday in a survey taken the second week of January.

Secretary of commerce Sawyer promptly pointed out that midwinter January and February are always the worst months for job seekers. Taking into account that ployment last month was higher than a year ago, he said 1950's start wasn't as bad as 1949's because industrial layoffs are not responsible for so much of the out-of-work figure.

Sawyer stressed these parts of the picture:

1 Bad weather in many parts of the country cut sharply into construction work and farm activity. The rise in unemployment was primarily due to "curtailment in seasonal industries."

2 Factory employment "did not appear to be materially affected"—In contrast to a year earlier, when "industrial layoffs (due to production cutbacks) were an important factor in the rise of unemployment."

3 Many of the jobs that disappeared were Christmas season openings, and efforts of holiday workers to secure other jobs in January swelled the unemployment figures.

Government officials have been predicting for some time that unemployment would rise in January and February, but have pinned hopes on an expansion of job opportunities when spring comes.

Many, however, have shown frank concern over the fact that the number of job openings has been declining more than a year, although the number of job-seekers has grown with the population.

Executives Club Names Speakers

Select Tentative List Of Seven Speakers For Year

Members of the board of directors of the Pitt County Executives club yesterday conferred with Field Director E. E. Sholtz of the Associated clubs and selected a tentative slate of seven speakers who will address the local club next year.

The meeting was held at noon at the Olde Towne Inn, and was presided over by Dr. John D. Messick, president of the club.

Dr. Gerald Wendt, one of the nation's leading scientists, will speak here on "What Science Is Doing to Us." Harold J. Fishbein, in his appearance here will discuss "Your New Neighbors," in which he will deal with the displaced persons who are coming into the United States.

Miss Nilima Burn-Perry, formerly secretary to the commander of the American airmen who flew the Hump in China during the war, was chosen to speak on "Women Today —And Always."

Charles Eagle Plume, one of the leading American Indians of today will present a talk "Making Medicine" which will be accompanied by illustrations of tribal dances and ceremonies of the American Indians.

Jack Schultz, now 21 years old, is the youngest speaker who was chosen to appear before the Pitt Executives club next year. The youngster, who last year attracted a great deal of attention from National Geographic for his sailing expeditions in a dugout canoe, will speak on "Sea Fever."

James V. Stovall, a member of the famous MacMillian expedition to the Arctic circle will lecture on the expedition and show movies of the activities of the members of the expedition.

Robert Kazmayer, the seventh speaker chosen for an appearance here will discuss "Uncle Sam at Home and Abroad."

The dates of the speakers' appearances in Greenville have not been arranged by the club, but will be announced at a later date.

Members of the board of directors present at yesterday's meeting in addition to Dr. Messick were N. C. Brooks, secretary-treasurer of the local club, J. H. Waldrop, Jasper Smith, Sam J. Bundy, Dr. Leo Jenkins, W. T. Kyzer and Dr. H. G. Haney.

GI's Sentenced For Melee At Dinner Party

Tokyo, Feb. 7—(AP)—The U. S. Army announced today that Pvt. Lawson R. Davis, 22, Lexington, N. C., and a Kentucky soldier have been imprisoned and dishonorably discharged for crashing a diplomatic dinner party last December.

A court martial convicted Davis and Pvt. Salford E. Shackelford, 19 Newport, Ky., of attacking an officer, an enlisted man and four civilians at Tokyo's Gajoen hotel. Davis was sentenced to 10 years, Shackelford to five.

The court was told the soldiers made advances to women sitting with members of the Swedish diplomatic mission to Japan. During an ensuing melee Davis slashed three men with a straight edge razor, it was testified.

Russian Walkout In UN Expected

Continued Protest Of Chinese Delegate Anticipated

Lake Success, Feb. 7—(AP)—The United Nations faces the probability of another Soviet bloc walkout today.

Officials were certain beforehand that Russia and two satellites will refuse to stay in the 18-nation Economic and Social Council as long as a Chinese Nationalist is seated there.

The council opens its winter session today to elect officers and decide what its work will be in the coming month or six weeks.

Just four weeks ago, Russia's Jakob A. Malik walked out of the Security Council over the China representation question.

Eleven other U.N. organs have been boycotted by Soviet bloc walkout-strikes in less than a month. Poland and Czechoslovakia are the Soviet satellite members of the council.

The little assembly, boycotted by the Russians and their sympathizers since it first met in January, 1948 to keep U.N. work going all year around, meets to discuss the best way to stake out boundaries in former Italian colonies in Africa.

It is the little assembly's first session since its 1950 organization meeting in January. T. F. Tsiang, chief Nationalist Chinese delegate, has ready for it a five-page indictment accusing Russia of helping the Chinese Communists to power.

Took Long Time, But Caught Him

Warrenton, England, Feb. 7—(AP) It was 1916 when Edward Williams walked out on his wife and five kids.

It was 1950 when he finally came back—72 years old, deaf and partly blind.

Mrs. Williams called a policeman. Yesterday Williams was sentenced to three months in prison for failing to pay his wife 12 shillings ($1.68) a week support money under a court order she won 34 years ago. Mrs. Williams said the only payment he ever made was the first one.

All Signs Point To Rising Unemployment In Coal-Using Industries; Miners Insist Won't Be 'Blackjacked' Into Heeding T-H Act

Pittsburgh, Feb. 7—(AP)— Coal production plummeted today in the wake of the soft coal miners' nationwide strike. All signs point to rising unemployment in coal-using industries.

About 372,800 bitter diggers are on strike in 14 states. They insist they won't be "blackjacked" into heeding the Taft-Hartley act. The strikers can produce about 2,220,000 tons of coal a day.

Nearly 20,000 workers in steel mills and on railroads were laid off in past months because of the three-day work week ordered July 1 by President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers.

Now railroads say more thousands of furloughs are in the cards.

Duquesne Light Company, a big Pittsburgh utility, said it has only enough coal to insure electrical power to 2,000 plants for another week.

Over the nation, less than two weeks' coal reserves remain stored above ground. The coal industry said the supply is poorly distributed.

Through the coal fields, the miners are out for a showdown in their struggle for a new contract and the five day week.

"The Taft-Hartley law cannot dig coal," declared Althronia Brown, a committeeman of the Maxwell Local near Uniontown, Pa." We won't be blackjacked into the mines."

The sporadic walkouts that idled 100,000 soft coal diggers last week spread to nearly all of the 400,000 United Mine Worker members yesterday.

The only UMW members working are 80,000 anthracite (hard coal) miners in eastern Pennsylvania and about 30,000 bituminous (soft coal) miners covered by new contracts.

It is the first nation-wide coal walkout since Dec. 1. That one ended a few days after it started on orders of UMW Chief John L. Lewis.

Word that President Truman reluctantly had invoked the Taft-Hartley act in the 10-month-old coal dispute had little effect on the embittered miners. They have termed this a show-down fight in their battle with the coal operators for more pay, and an increase in welfare fund payments.

The President's action included naming a fact finding panel to investigate the drawn cut contract dispute. The next step is for the attorney general to ask a federal court order directing the union to get its miners back on the job for 70 or 80 days.

Lewis and the union were fined $1,420,000 in 1948 for defying a court back-to-work order.

In West Virginia there was an indication miners would be asked by leaders to obey the expected federal court order to return to work Monday.

A miner source, who asked that he not be identified, said that District 29 United Mine Workers leader George J. Titler told a union group to be prepared to return to the pits Monday.

But Titler was quoted as advising the men to save your money because you will need it 80 days after that." Titler could not be reached for comment.

Pennsylvania miners appeared ready to defy the expected injunction.

"Let 'em put us in jail," declared a Uniontown, Pa., digger.

"Now if the government puts us to work for Uncle Sam and gives us a contract, we'll dig coal. But not under this Taft-Hartley stuff."

More Venture Capital

Sen. O'Mahoney Says Private Enterprise System Starving For Capital; What He Meant; Effect Of High Taxation; A Plan For Finding More Risk Capital

By SIGRID ARNE

Washington, Feb. 7—(AP)—Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) says: "Businesses are going begging for lack of venture capital. The private enterprise system is starving for capital."

O'Mahoney headed a committee in December to find out how many people were hanging on to their dollars instead of investing them in corporations, or putting them out to start new businesses, and why.

When fewer people invest money fewer workers have a chance for new jobs and Uncle Sam loses the chance to collect taxes from growing business.

Many witnesses before O'Mahoney's committee said that the tax collector was taking too many of the dollars that better paid men used to have left over when they had paid the family bills.

The National City Bank of New York studied the federal income taxes paid by people who earned $25,000 or more in 1928 and 1948.

This is what the bank reported:

Income Subject to Tax	1928	1948
No. Returns	111,282	174,200
Income Subject To Tax	$8,635,588,000	$9,472,300,000
Fed. Tax	1,045,198,000	4,660,300,000
Net Income After Tax	7,590,390,000	4,812,000,000
Average Income After Tax, Per Return	68,239	27,623
Adjusted For Change In Purchasing Power	68,239	19,787
Total National Income	$78,700,000,000	$226,204,000,000

Notice how comparatively few families have been added to the upper income brackets in the 20 years even though the national income tripled in that time.

Further, while the national income increased three times, upper bracket incomes jumped by only about a ninth.

But the government took more than four times as much taxes from the top group in 1948, so this group took a swift plunge in what was left.

Like all the rest of us, this group was hit by another blow. The dollar has had less and less value in the last 20 years. The bank says the average $27,623 earned by the upper income bracket after taxes was really worth only $19,787 in 1948.

That salary would look like heaven

An Overdue Rebuke

U. S. High Commissioner For Germany Used Strong Language In Reprimanding West German Officials; Susceptible To Leaders; Key To Allied Success

By DeWITT MacKENZIE

The sharp rebuke administered to an over-ambitious Germany by U.S. High Commissioner John J. McCloy in his Stuttgart speech was due—and perhaps overdue.

The commissioner laid his cards on the table, face up. He admonished West German officials for criticising the Western allies. He said America's "main purpose is to help Germany achieve political recovery." He turned thumbs down on a German army or airforce, and pledged that Nazism will not be permitted to rise again.

That's language which suits the German temperament. It's reminiscent of the proposal by James F. Byrnes, the Secretary of State, in that same city of Stuttgart three years ago. He laid down a policy which aimed at rehabilitation of Germany, but provided that never again should she be permitted to assume her old role of aggressor. And he called for a four-power pact providing for the occupation of Germany for twenty-five years—and perhaps forty—to insure demilitarization.

What has happened in the relatively short time since then is that the Germans have been taking advantage of the knock-down fight between the Western allies and Russia, to further their own amoitions. McCloy has now called the turn on that (so far as concerns Western Germany while there still is time to correct the situation.

You'd think the allies of the first World War would have learned a lesson, but if they did they soon forgot it. I was present at the signing of the peace treaty at Versailles and saw the German delegation file out of the place after the ceremony, their heads flung back and their faces livid with anger and hate. You couldn't witness that scene without knowing that another war was bound to come.

However, the allies started winking at infractions of the treaty. They saw the Reich rearming. Along came Hitler and started kicking the treaty to pieces, even to the extent of open aggression against Austria. And all anybody did about it was to complain a bit, and then try to appease the Nazi dictator. The result was that for

A BAD CONSCIENCE

The picture which Shakespeare has drawn of Lady Macbeth pursued by the demons of an evil conscience is one of the masterpieces of literature. When the conscience really gets sore, one has on his hands — or hers — about the most painful situation imaginable. People have been known to prefer death to the continued pursuit of a sense of guilt.

Longfellow has said:

"Every guilty deed
Holds within itself the seed
Of retribution and undying pain."

Judas had a sore conscience, and he went out and hanged himself—the worst possible way to handle a bad situation. St. Paul had a bad conscience, and when at the gates of Damascus he was suddenly overwhelmed by the power of a great light, his humble question was, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?"

There is always a cure for a guilty conscience. It is one of the things in the lives of each one of us which needs to be faced. Never under any circumstance should we submit to it and let it conquer us. The way out of this miserable situation is acknowledgement of guilt, repentance, the casting of one's self upon the mercy of God, and then the making of whatever restitution for past wrongs it is still possible to make. A guilty conscience is serious but not hopeless.

WHO WON?

After eight months of evasion, rationalizing, and "me-tooing" to John L. Lewis, President Truman at last has resorted to the use of the union-hated, Administration-hated Taft-Hartley law to end the coal strikes which have been hampering the nation's production for almost a year.

Until the action yesterday which ordered a committee to study the coal strike and report within a week, President Truman has repeatedly asserted that there was no reason for using the power provided in the law's regulations, and that the "unfair" law should be striken from the books.

Although stock piles of the black fuel dwindled to their lowest ebb in a number of years, President Truman turned a deaf ear to the pleas of home consumers, industries and congressional leaders who begged for some relief in the crisis.

Even though he has time and time again condumned the law which provides the power whereby the public interest can be protected in case of strikes which cause national emergencies, Truman finally resorted to the law after all other attempts at bargaining were thwarted by Lewis. Even then, the President refused to budge until the miners themselves, with their families suffering from lack of funds, revolted against the three-day work week, and refused to follow Lewis' order which would keep a trickle of coal flowing to the markets.

President Truman in his delaying action played for the labor support for his proteges in the coming election, and for himself come 1952; but by having to invoke the Taft-Hartley provisions as an ultimate step, he now may well lose what support he had mustered from Lewis or the union members.

On the other hand, his refusal to invoke the Taft-Hartley's potential power long months ago, has cost him many supporters among the unorganized individuals who make up a large portion of the shifting vote of the nation. His maneuvering to burn the candle at both ends and gain votes from each group is likely to bring opposition from both categories.

The coal strikes during the past eight months surely have been costly to the people of the United States as a whole, as well as to the miners and others whose actual take home pay has been cut. But also the eight months in which Truman has trod softly and refused to use the big stick will prove costly to the President politically.

Boyle's Column

By HAL BOYLE

New York—(AP)—Besides collecting years and nonsense, as we all must do, I collect another thing just for fun—and that is faces.

Probably everyone does unconsciously, but I do it deliberately. It is the cheapest hobby I know of, and differs from every other form of collecting in at least one respect: No one is going to corner the market in faces, then die and leave them to a museum.

All the Rembrandt paintings seem by now to be known, owned, and under guard. So do most of the rare postage stamps. And you have to go to an auction to bid in on Louis the 14th furniture. But faces are different. You find them everywhere. They keep on coming forever. Everybody has got at least one, and more people have two than will admit it.

The pleasant thing about collecting faces is you don't have to buy them. Nor do you try to wrench them off the owner, take them home and put them under glass. Heaven knows the average wife wouldn't allow that. She's keep breaking into your study and saying, "Victor, now you are simply going to have to throw away some of your faces. They are cluttering up the house."

No, you just look at the faces as they go by—and let them clutter up whoever they belong to.

I am the last man in the world to put people in pigeonholes, or pigeons in people coops, but faces do tend to run in patterns.

And when you collect them, you look for different patterns just as you follow a thread of theme in symphonic music.

The faces I like best are those of very young people. A child's face is like the bay of Naples—the light across it shifts and changes, and from moment to moment it is never quite the same. you can never tire of it, and if I didn't have to work for a living I couldn't think of a more wonderful way to pass the rest of my life than looking at children. It is better if the children are not you're own—because then the ownership enters in.

The next best faces—to me—are those of old people. I have read in books that old people generally are selfish and querulous. If that is so, I have been lucky, because most of the old people I know have been just the opposite. They do have a habit of saving string, but that is just because, knowing their days are rationed, they have come to hate waste of any kind.

The sunset face has a memory for every wrinkle, and I like to look at the wrinkles as the face opens and unfolds its memories. You never can weary of looking at the old face—if you like faces or like people.

The dullest faces are those between childhood and old age—the made-up, curry-combed, on-guard faces of people wary of themselves and everybody else. In this period people are more interested in saving face than showing face. They can't discipline their thoughts—but They do discipline their faces, so far as they can.

In my collection are a treasure store of splendid faces I have seen around the world, in war and peace. If I had to lose them all—excepting those of friends and family—what face would I keep in mind's eye? I think it would be a Chinese face. Any Chinese face.

It is like trying to read an old and wonderful story through a veil.

Somebody Told Me . . .

By L. J. (JACK) EDWARDS, JR.

Once in a while I decide to go off the deep and buy a magazine. Usually the investment is at least 20 cents, so it takes careful consideration before deciding which one to buy.

The routine is always the same with me: I go to Hollowell's Drug Store and spend 20 minutes looking over the magazines, before forking out a cent. At first the clerk probably thought I was a genuine moocher and had no intention of buying one. But now that the clerks know I'm good for at least 20 cents, I don't feel them glaring at me as I pick over the mags. At any rate, it's certainly worth the price of one magazine to get the opportunity to look over the crop.

I know at least one person who employs the same technique at Hollowell's. Connor Merritt always looks the stock over very carefully before making a purchase.

Connor courts Janice Perry from Louisburg, a student at East Carolina. This courtship has been in progress for quite a few years; in fact, Connor has already acquired a husband's trait: leaving the girl sitting in the car.

Quite often Janice and Connor stop by Hollowell's for a coke. Connor leaves Janice in the car and goes in for the drinks. It takes about 45 seconds to get the drinks, but while the clerk is making them Connor cracks the latest issue of "Sport" magazine. From there he goes down the line, including everything from "Good Housekeeping" to "Popular Mechanics." Then he spins around and takes in the comic section.

All of this time the ice is melting in the cokes, and Janice is burning up in the car.

The other night, as a usual thing, Janice and Connor stopped by Hollowell's for a coke. As Connor started to get out of the car Janice grabbed him by the sleeve and said, "Connor, have you got a dime?"

As I said before, Connor and Janice have been courting a long time, but nevertheless Connor was astonished at the question. Wondering what was up, Connor reached in his pocket for the dime.

Janice continued, "For a change let me go in for the cokes, just for the sport of it." Still astonished, Connor agreed to the plan more out of curiosity than anything else.

Inside, Janice ordered the cokes and left them sitting on the counter. She meandered over to the magazine rack, and began to thumb slowly through "Sport" magazine. Just as Connor usually does, she went right down the line, but she looked at each one about twice as long as he usually does. The ice in the drinks melted; Connor boiled in the car.

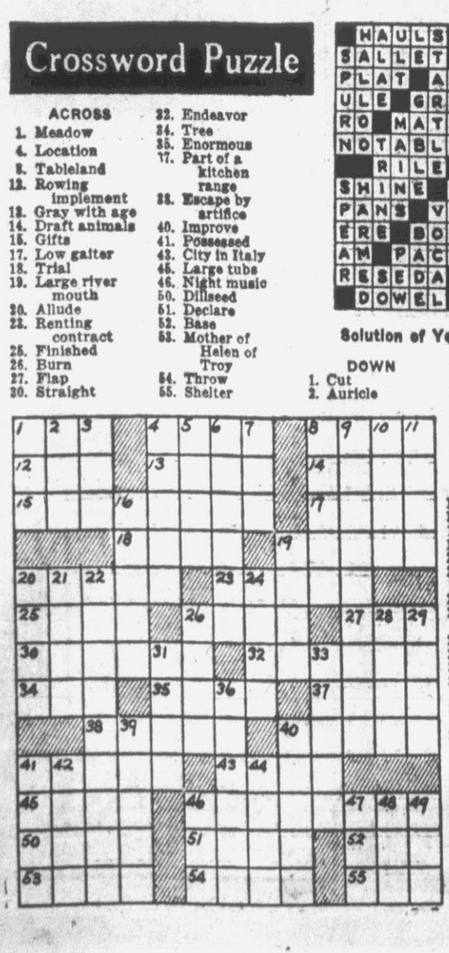

This story will not be complete until Janice and Connor take their next trip to Hollowell's. But for the time being, what took place back in the car? Nothing, friends, nothing. Connor didn't say one word about the demonstration. Not one word. Janice's effort to pay Connor back failed to provoke comment by him. He refused to give her the satisfaction of recognizing the demonstration.

And I thank you.

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

Washington Letter

WASHINGTON — Current best seller on the government publication list is a neat, tersely-worded and authentic little booklet which gives the ABC's of filing your income tax returns. "Your Federal Income Tax" is expected to top the 300,000 sales mark. Sales in one day alone totaled around 12,000 copies. The booklet costs 25 cents, and you can get a copy by sending the coin, a postal note or check. (No stamps—the government doesn't use them) to the Government Printing Office (GPO).

The tax booklet, prepared by experts in the Bureau of Internal Revenue, is only one of hundreds of publications put out by government agencies through the GPO. The superintendent of documents, Roy B. Eastin, says more than 1,500,000 orders are received a year and the GPO does a $3,250,000 business annually.

Over 40,000,000 copies of government publications were sold last year, in addition to official distributions such as the Congressional Record. In addition to "Your Federal Income Tax," other publications in demand include the President's Economic Report, which sells for 15 cents, and the Budget of the United States, which consists of 1,198 pages and sells for $5.50.

Biggest all - around circulation-getters, however, are publications of the U. S. Children's Bureau, of which more than 9,000,000 copies a year are sold. These include the old standbys "Prenatal Care" and "Infant Care." The Post Office Department is getting out a new and revised 50-cent edition of descriptions of U. S. Postage stamps with a "nice new red and blue cover." The Department of Commerce has a booklet telling you how to make things of leather. The Bureau of Standards is coming up with a new "Care and Repair of the House."

There is a booklet on how to make your cellar dry; one put out by the Department of Interior on "Attracting Birds"; another on "Furniture and Its Selection." The Army has published its cook book, which sells for $1.25 and gives you an idea how to prepare for a family reunion—if you've got more than 100 relatives, say.

"A hot number," says Mr. Eastin, is "Planning the Expandible House," selling for 20 cents and put out by the Housing and Home Finance Agency." Other popular numbers include the Occupational Outlook Handbook, 75 cents, a product of the Labor Department; "Establishing and Operating Your Own Business," the "You Can Make It" series, 45 cents; and the Agricultural Year Book, $2 (on trees this year).

"Also going great guns is Prospecting for Uranium, which tells you everything but where to find the uranium," says Mr. Eastin. "It's been getting a big sale since the government offered $10,000 for any valuable find." "The trouble is," Mr. Eastin complains, "folks got the idea they could send rock samples into the GPO for analysis. The mail was full of pebbles of all sizes. I had enough to gravel my whole driveway."

Seventh Attempt On Life Of Texas Gambler

Dallas, Tex., Feb. 7 —(AP)— A rifle shot smashed the hospital window of Herbert Noble last night in a seventh attempt on this life of the wounded gambler.

The shot was fired from the ground and the bullet tore through the screened window and splattered against the ceiling.

Noble, seriously wounded by a rifle shot as he stepped upon his front porch last Dec. 31, said he was walking around the room when the shot was fired. He said it was possible the gunman could have seen his shadow from the ground.

The silver-haired self-styled "retired gambler' has been the central figure in Dallas gang violence which took the lives of two persons in the closing days of 1949.

Aged Parrot Has Estate In Store

Detroit, Feb. 7—(AP)—Bob, an ancient pet parrot, won's be without his cracker after his master is gone.

George M. Blair, 63 a retired Pittsburgh Pa., policeman, said today he has willed all of his estate, currently valued at more than $40,000 to the bird.

"He's the only friend I have, Blair said. "He has the gift of gab and deserves every penny I'm."

Blair came to Detroit in 1927 following 20 years on the Pittsburgh police force. He has been living alone since his wife was killed in an auto accident in 1945.

Now a part-time employe of a Detroit auto plant, Blair said he had no living relatives

He claimed the parrot is 52 years old and has been in the family for 50 years since his grandmothes brought it to this country from South America.

Blair's attorney said the will is on file in probate court. On the death of the parrot the state would go charities.

Musical Program For Rotary Club

The Rotarians were entertained by Mrs. Leota Tyson last night at their weekly meeting. She led them in singing old familiar songs, did some readings and then led some singing with her famous accordion following which she concluded the program with a medley of marching songs. Her two readings were "The Foot of the Bed" and "Goodbye Helen."

Mr. B. F. Tyson was a guest of the club last night. Visiting Rotarians were Dave House of Bethel, Frank Durpee of Farmville and Bill Page of Kinston. The program was presented by Johnnie Overton. Ercell Webb, club president, presided.

New York Puts Teeth In Its Sanitary Drive

New York, Feb. 7—(AP)—You can get arrested in New York these days for dropping a gumwrapper on the sidewalk.

It's part of a city sanitation campaign.

Blue-coated inspectors handed out 172 summonses yesterday to persons caught dropping paper, sweeping refuse onto the sidewalk, or leaving garbage cans uncovered.

The maximum penalty is a $500 fine and a year in jail, but the first offenders are expected to get off considerably easier when they appear in court Thursday.

The drive so far applies only to the central section of Manhattan between 14th and 72nd Streets, where 4,800 new wire wastebaskets have been set up. But it probably will be extended.

Raps Go-Ahead On Super-Bomb

Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 7—(AP)—President Truman's method in giving the go-ahead for work on the hydrogen bomb was criticized last night by an internationally famed journalist and educator.

Dr. Max Lerner, political scientiest and world traveler, said so in a talk before the Institute of Religion, which is sponsored by the United Church here.

"I think it was a mistake for President Truman to make his desion to go ahead with the hydrogen bomb," said Lerner, "without any other positive statement accompanying the announcement—I think it was a moral defeat."

Lerner declared "the hydrogen bomb is a weapon for mass murder on a scale unparalleled in human history. It can give us neither peace nor security because the Russians are bound to catch up with us."

Find No Health In Fixing Price

Los Angeles—(AP)—A court has ruled that establishing a minimum charge for cleaning suits and topcoats will not improve the public health.

The State Board of Dry Cleaners sought to restrain one business from doing the work for less than minimum charging that public health and safety would be threatened. Superior Judge Clarence Hanson denied an injunction, holding that a price increase would not raise health standards.

It is estimated that American workers turn out goods worth an average of roughly $1.50 for each hour worked.

TEEN TALK

(Year Judge)

Every good boy should remember his gal on Valentine's Day—huh, girls?

Valentine cards are prettier than ever—many of them have jewelry such as pearls, pins, or lockets pinned to the card, and what young lady wouldn't be thrilled with that extra little gimmick for her jewel box—huh, boys?

We don't know what makes some boys so stingy. Even though they like a girl, they will take the risk of losing her rather than part with a soul. A hundred years ago any attractive girl could make up her mind that she would receive one or more luscious looking heart jobs complete with drooly phrases on Valentines Day.

As Harper's Weekly in 1858 put it . . . "If a girl lives in the northern and New England states her Valentine costs from 3 cents to $3. The girl from the South and West gets them in the 25c to $20 bracket. In some big cities gentlemen pay up to $50 for Valentines for their lady loves." Are you listening, boys?

Harper's also pointed out that students of the University of Virginia were most discriminating about their Valentines—bought only those in excellent taste.

Some girls are clever enough to get gifts even on Abraham Lincoln's and General Lee's birthdays. And some girls even manage to collect on St. Swithin's Day. Other girls just sit by the fire—and hope and hope. Certainly if a girl doesn't rate a Valentine card or gift on sweetheart's day, she'll be doomed to disappointment on birthdays, and wedding anniversaries, too—if she gets around to proposing to the laggard.

Smart boys, with the help of Mother or Sis, could whip up a Valentine corsage for a pittance. Make an old fashioned nosegay by punching a hole in the center of a large lace paper doily. Put a few flowers through the hole in the doily, trim the doily to size and tie the flowers with a nice red ribbon.

A girl can make a Valentine for her hearthrob with some red or white ribbon, red mat stock, white lace paper doilies and some little heart seals. Cut the red heart out, paste the white lace doily cut into a heart shape over it. Put the ribbon through heart and lace doily and tie into a little bow.

If your man is Very Special why not give him a portait of yourself? You can skip the heart-shaped frame—maybe he'll supply that—but do get a few pointers before you have the picture taken. Here are things to remember.

Use a darker-than-skin tone foundation and cover neck as well as face with it. Powder liberally, then brush it off with cotton wound around a stick. (Never rub the powder into your face.) Take your eyebrow pencil and draw a fine quarter-inch line out from the corner of the eye. If done properly this should look like an extra eyelash when the eye is open. (Never put a line around the eye.)

Extend your eyebrow slightly with the aid of a pencil, using short quick strokes, if your face is thin. If your face is too heavy, round and full, you might need to tweeze the end of the eyebrows making them shorter.

Use a minimum of lipstick but be sure your mouth is balanced. Never use rouge. If mascara is used,

If you are heavy or broad, do not take a head-on picture, and try to avoid a full-length shot. Even the headshot should be taken at a ¾ angle.

Before the picture is snapped take a deep breath, wet your lips and blink your eyes. Do not slump at the moment of the click.

Hair should be worn loose and carefree and not tight to the scalp. Young girls should never attempt sophisticated hairdos.

If you are inclined toward a double chin, do not wear anything white around your neck. Do not wear a hat which will date the picture, or a very fussy dress. Simple attire is best when your photograph is to be snapped.

Polecat Nearly Closed School

LONG BEACH, Calif. —(AP)— There was talk of dismissing classes early at McKinley Elementary School. A motorist ran over a skunk.

Teachers slammed down windows and placed a rush call to the City Animal Shelter. The kids' vacation hopes died, however, when the valiant shelter custodian, Ralph Slone, one hand to his nose, shoveled the odorous remains into rear of his truck and sped off.

Pitt Woman Played Large Part In Organizing County History Awards

By WYATT BROWN

Early in the year of 1947 shortly after Mrs. Robert L. Humber, Jr., became president of the North Carolina state section of the American Association of University Women, at a workshop session of the executive committee held in Greenville the idea was formulated at the suggestion and urging of their president to promote the writing of county history in North Carolina. Proper committees and machinery was set in motion.

Mrs. Humber said that she had been promoting the idea for some time among the AAUW membership and was delighted to see the idea adopted in the state convention of the AAUW at Greensboro in April 1947. The idea was to get some of those people who knew interesting historical facts to get in touch with some of those people that know how to get such things into book form and in all other ways to encourage competent persons to write county histories of merit.

In 1948 no award was given since none of the manuscripts on county history submitted came up to the standards of excellence set by the AAUW committee. The desire is that both historical and literary merit be present in manuscripts worthy of award. Awards will be made annually if meritorious material appears.

In 1949 a worthy county history was submitted. The AAUW chose to present their award on the day and the rostrum of the annual awards of the North Carolina Historical and Literary Societies. The unflagging efforts of Mrs. Humber had resulted in the occasion. And it was Mrs. Humber who presented the first cup to be so awarded.

Plan Return Of Stolen Painting

Detroit, Feb. 7—(AP)—The Detroit Institute of Arts today prepared to return to its rightful owner a stolen French painting.

The picture, "the Seine at Asnieres," by Impressionist Claude Monet, was purchased by the Institute for $13,513 in November, 1948, from the Fine Arts Association of New York City.

But after the sale was published, MME. Farnand Halfen of Paris, France, produced evidence that the painting had been stolen from her country home in 1940 by German occupation forces.

William A. Bostwick, secretary of the Detroit Institute, said that neither itself nor the dealer knew that the painting had been stolen. The dealer, who was given false documents of ownership, is returning the purchase price to the institute, Bostwick said.

The painting will be sent back to Paris by way of the French consulate in Washington.

Bill Would Ban Political Gifts

Trenton, N.J., Feb. 7 —(AP)—Give-aways to attract crowds to political rallies would be banned by a bill introduced in the New Jersey assembly yesterday.

Sponsored by Republican Thomas J. Hillery, it would prohibit gifts or prizes at campaign meetings. During the last gubernatorial election, State Democratic Leader Frank Hague's Democratic organization offered drawings for cash awards at its rallies. The Republican party countered with free supper in some counties.

Bigamy Charged Father Of Nine

Gastonia, Feb. 7—(AP)—A Charlotte police officer said today that a 42-year-old steeplejack and father of nine children would be tried for bigamy.

The father, Joe Webb, was convicted here yesterday of non-support of his wife and children. He began a one-year term yesterday afternoon at Gaston County prison camp near Dallas.

Charlotte Police Lt. William McCall said a preliminary hearing will be given Webb tomorrow in Charlotte on the bigamy charge. The officer said McCall married a Charlotte girl at Chesterfield, S.C., on Jan. 28.

to most of America's workers. But that sort of whittling cuts down the amount which the upper income crowd can put into factories which employ Americans.

Industrial experts now figure that it costs $8,000 of somebody's investment money to put just one worker on the job.

Last Thursday Senator O'Mahoney proposed a plan to find some new risk capital.

He explained a bill, which he will introduce, to a news conference. He said he would like to see some "capital bank corporations" set up inside the Federal Reserve System. They would lend to small business. They would get their money from any bank, financial institution, or individual who felt like buying the corporation's bonds.

He added that he would give these new corporations a help that the old investing crowd doesn't have: He would exempt them from federal taxes for 15 years.

Raleigh, N.C., Feb. 7—(AP)—The Council of State today authorized sale of $75,000,000 in rural road bonds.

It will be the second bond sale under the $200,000,000 rural road program. The first $50,000,000 issue was sold last September.

The Council previously had authorized a second bond sale of $50,000,000, but increased the amount at the request of the State Highway Commission.

The Highway Commission asked for the larger sum, Chairman Henry W. Jordan said, at the request of State Treasurer Brandon Hodges. Jordan said Hodges felt the state should not hold bond sales too often.

"No contract, no work—regardless of Taft-Hartley or anybody else. We feel the same as John L. Lewis.

the second time the Fatherland came close to beating the world on the battlefield.

If it hadn't been the Fuehrer who led Germany into the late World War, it would have been somebody else. Her people hadn't learned their lesson. A lot of them haven't learned it yet, and there is much bitterness against their conquerors.

However, strange as it may seem, the German people as a whole are not a warlike folk. It's true that they are susceptible to regimentation under dictatorship, and the German fighting man is one of the world's best soldiers.

Upon these qualities the Prussian war-lords have trafficked in their efforts at world conquest.

But the average German worker and his frau don't want war. They desire to get ahead with the job of rebuilding their homes and shattered fortunes. That ambition can be achieved under proper guidance and control until the rehabilitation and reform have been accomplished.

Not only can this be done, but the allies recognize that a rehabilitated Germany is essential to a rehabilitated Europe. The key to success is strong allied management ni these parlous times, to keep an exceptionally capable and highly ambitious nation on the right track.

That, I take it, is what Commissioner McClay aims at.

Four Gunmen In College Hold-Up

Baltimore, Feb. 7—(AP)—Four Neparently well-planned robbery at Morgan state college here and got away with $16,000 in cash yesterday.

Pistols in hand, they entered the college library on the run, held 16 persons at bay and then made off with the day's receipts in registration fees.

It took them just three minutes. The bandits appeared at the library just a few minutes after the last student had paid his mid-term fees.

The tallest of the four jumped up on the counter of the cashier's cage and said "this is a holdup. We want the money. Drop it and step back."

He ran down the counter to the point where eight cashiers were counting the receipts and gave hand ful after handful of bills to one of the other gunmen, who stuffed them into a canvas bag.

As they prepared to leave one turned and said "take a good look at me, and if you recognize me x x x" He shook his gun at the cashiers and ran through the door.

The four fled by automobile. Morgan State is a college for Negroes.

Scott Describes Senator Graham As Humanitarian

Raleigh, Feb. 7—(AP)—Governor Scott asserted today that U.S. Senator Frank P. Graham is "North Carolina's greatest humanitarian in our life time."

"That goes for the United States as far as the men I know," the governor told reporters at his news conference.

"A lot of people are saying that Dr. Graham is a Communist," the governor told the newsmen. "Dr. Graham is a humanitarian. A humanitarian and a Communist are as different as they can be. Dr. Graham is no more of a Communist than I am."

The governor volunteered this support of the man he appointed to the Senate and whom he has pledged to help in every way possible in the elections this year.

Then in answer to questions from the newsmen the governor:

1. Said that he will definitely not take a part in legislative races.

2. Replied to criticism by a representative of contractors on handling of the states $200,000,000 rural road program.

In his comment on Graham, the governor asserted that many people in the state did not want a humanitarian to represent the state in the Senate.

"But I'll stand by a humanitarian any time," Scott added.

The governor said he did not believe there were solidified groups opposing Graham, but "certainly you'll find powerful individuals—and some not so powerful."

"There are definitely groups that don't want things done for the masses because it would cost money," he added.

The governor said the Communist label "is just a sort of cuss word. If people don't agree with somebody, they call him a Communist."

The governor asserted Graham is far ahead in his thinking and compared him to William Jennings Bryan.

"If we had had the name then, people would have called Bryan a Communist," the governor said. "As it was they called him a Socialist."

Things advocated by Bryan, he said, now are accepted by the country.

Some individuals, Scott said, oppose Graham because "they are scared that they and their sons will lose because the wealth will be distributed."

Then he added, "As you distribute wealth, you create it."

Commenting on legislative races, the governor said:

"I think it would be a definite mistake for me to get into it."

He added that as a matter of fact the press of his duties as governor would not permit him to campaign if he wanted to.

The governor said that all he wanted the people to do is to elect legislators who have "open minds—not with their minds made up like I know some of them will be."

Students Stage Protest Strike

Bayonne, N. J., Feb. 7—(AP)— A strike of Bayonne high school students protesting the transfer of 23 teachers continued today with more noise and just as many strikers.

Although school officials had no exact figures this morning on the number of students out on the sidewalks instead of in the classroom, it appears that yesterday's 1,600 on strike had been duplicated.

Reinforced police lines kept the yelling, excited students off busy Avenue A as they milled about the building.

Dr. Messick Is Kiwanis Speaker

Dr. John D. Messick, president of East Carolina Teachers College, speaking before members of the Kiwanis Club in Farmville Monday evening, February 6, outlined facts and figures showing the aims and organization of the college and indicating recent progress at the institution.

East Carolina Teachers College, he said, now has a student body which, including summer school registration, number approximately 3,000 individual students in a year. Men and women are attending the college in approximately equal numbers, he said, 840 men and 820 women are included among students this year.

A staff of 250 employees, he stated, carries on the work of the institution. This number includes, he said, a faculty of 105 members, 35 of whom have doctors' degrees and five of whom have equivalent scholastic credit.

Dr. Messick told his Farmville audience of the extensive building program now in progress on the campus and being planned for the future; and described the varied types of training offered to students in the state, especially to those preparing to become teachers.

The college operates, he said, on a budget of $1,200,000, of which the state pays $450,000 and the college supplies $750,000. He discussed the operation of the student stores and of the college cafeteria, which serves approximately 2700 meals daily.

State Sums Up Evidence In 'Mercy Killint' Trial

Bridgeport ,Conn., Feb. 7—(AP)— The state summed up its mercy murder case against blonde Carol Ann Paight today and insisted she was sane when she shot her father.

"I don't think anyone will deny that Carol Paight loved her father deeply," said assistant state's attorney Otto Saur as he opened the final arguments.

The case is due to reach an all-parent jury late today or tomorrow.

Saur reviewed Carol's shooting of her cancer-riddled father last Sept. 23 when she was told he had three months to live. "When told," he said, "she made up her mind—because she did not want to see him suffer — to kill him." The state claims at the time she fired that shot she was sane.

He added: "What she did, in the misguided notion that she didn't want to see her father suffer, was murder."

Saur said Carol went home and got a gun, fired a practice shot to make sure she could use it, then picked up her mother and went back to Stamford hospital that autumn day. "Aren't those all rational acts, ladies and gentlemen?" He asked the jury.

Then, Saur continued, Carol smuggled the gun into the hospital, waited until the coast was clear and carefully stood away from her father so the powder from her gun would not burn him.

"Aren't those all conscious, acts, ladies and gentlemen?" he asked again.

After that, he went on, she carefully laid down the gun and went out to ask help from hospital attaches.

"Isn't that a perfectly conscious rational act?" Saur inquired once more.

Swelling Uproar Against Showing Film Stromboli

Hollywood, Feb. 7—A sweling uproar against the International love affair of Ingrid Bergman and Roberto Rossellini—which an Alabama ministerial group charges "tends to glorify adultery"—stormed at the gates of Holywood today.

Catholic and protestant churches, censorship boards—even a legislator in Texas—called on theaters to ban the film which sparked the romance, "Stromboli."

As the Swedish actress and the Italian director worried over the weakness of Ingrid's new born son, protests rose in various parts of the nation against their conduct. Rossellini has been reported in Rome as admitting he is the child's father. Miss Bergman is still married to Dr. Peter Lindstrom.

The Birmingham, Ala., protestant ministers association voted to ask theaters to ban all films in which Miss Bergman appears or Rossellini directs.

At Memphis, Tenn., the city-county censor said all her films would be barred there if officials ruled such action was legal.

Rep. R. E. Blount of Big Springs, Tex., introduced a resolution in the Texas legislature to ban "Stromboli" in Texas. The resolution censured Hollywood for exploiting the movie and planning to release it "the same day of the illicit marriage." Miss Bergman and Rossellini have announced they will be married as soon as she is divorced from Lindstrom. She has filed suit in Mexico and expects a decree about Feb. 15.

Lindstrom has said he will ignor the Mexican action and indicated he would file his own suit in Los Angeles, where he now lives with their 11-year-old daughter Pia.

The Albuquerque, N. M. Ministerial Alliance called on citizens to boycott "Stromboli" because of what it called "glamorizing and sensationalizing of adultery."

In Abilene, Tex., the board of censors asked exhibitors not to show "Stromboli." Sioux City, Ia., Catholics were asked to pass up the film by Bishop Joseph because of what he called "Conjugal Infidelity." An Indiana chain of six theaters announced it would not show Stromboli. And in Los Angeles, the membership of the Trinity Methodist church voted a resolution banning any movie starring Miss Bergman.

Publisher Goes To School At 78

Hunt, publisher of three weekly newspapers in Cape May County, N.J., owner of seven theaters, president of the county chamber of commerce and Wildwood's first citizen, is taking a University of Miami course in "English Composition and Communication."

Hunt spends four afternoons a week with a special tutor in a University classroom.

House-Approved Acreage Fought

Washington, Feb. 7 — (AP) — The American Farm Bureau Federation favors raising the legal limit on this year's cotton acreage, but not by the 1,400,600 acres voted by the House.

Walter L. Randolph, bureau spokesman, said the House bill would let too many extra acres be planted to cotton, increasing production and boosting the cost of the government's price support program.

He told the Senate Agriculture Committee yesterday he favors a proposed Senate bill. He said it would cut about in half the amount of additional acreage voted by the House.

It also would require fewer additional acres to be alloted for hardship cases because of the formulas it uses to fix the minimum acreage to which a grower shall be entitled, Randolph said.

Cotton quotas for 1950 were cut about 23 per cent below 1949 under the national cotton acreage allotment act last year. Complaints that some growers would be forced to make drastic acreage cuts led to House passage last week of a bill raising the 21,000,000 quota by 1,400,000 acres.

Rossellini Argues With Newsmen

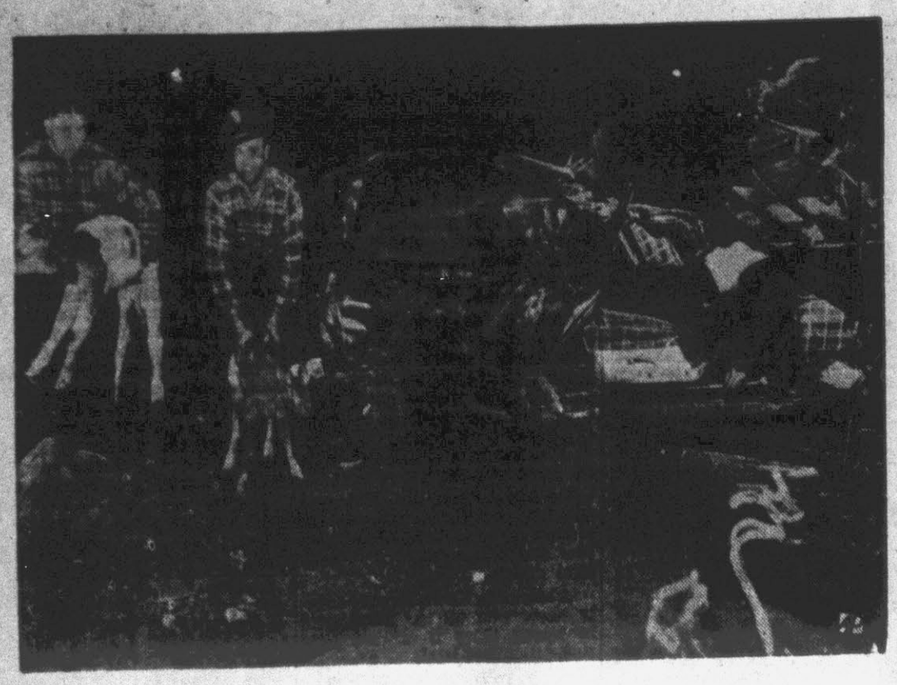

Italian film director Roberto Rossellini (left), with his left hand clenched, argues with Roy Rowan (right foreground), a writer, and Jack Birns, photographer, both of Time and Life, in the doorway of Villa Margherita clinic in Rome, Italy, Saturday, after a scuffle involving Rossellini and Birns. Rossellini charged out of his car at a group of photographers as he returned to hte clinic where Actress Ingrid Bergman gave birth to a son Thursday. He seized Birns and shook him. Birns shoved back. After they broke away, Rossellini entered the clinic and walked upstairs. (AP Wirephoto via radio from Rome.)

Republicans Win New Jersey Seat

Hackensack, N. J., Feb. 7—(AP)—Republicans staved off repercussions of the J. Parnell Thomas and elected a GOP successor to his vacated Congressional post yesterday.

William B. Widnall, 43-year-old state assemblyman, scored an easy victory in a special election in New Jersey's Congressional district.

Widnall defeated Democrat George T. English by a better than two-to-one margin in the traditionally Republican district. The final unofficial tally was 32,224 votes for Widnall and 15,711 for English, a former mayor of East Paterson, N. J.

Thomas, who in his heyday headed the house un-American activities committee, resigned his post five weeks ago. The action followed his sentencing to six to 18 months in prison and a $10,000 fine for padding his office payroll and accepting kickbacks.

The clerk of the Supreme Court said yesterday he had received word that Justice Douglas will sign an order permitting Mrs. D'Aquino's release on $50,000 bail. The clerk mailed the proper documents for Douglas to sign.

At Tucson, Ariz., where he is recovering from a riding accident, the justice declined comment.

May See Family For First Time

Atlanta, Feb. 7—(AP)—The mother of two small children hopes to see them and her husband soon—for the first time.

Mrs. Mary Ella Sams, 33-year-old wife of a textile worker, was the willing subject yesterday for an operation color-televised for 1,000 doctors attending a southeastern graduate assembly.

As they watched a screen magnifying details five times, a surgeon painstakingly replaced the cloudy white film over the pupil of Mrs. Sams' left eye with a healthy cornea from a stillborn baby.

Mrs. Sams, almost totally blind since infancy, waited hopefully until a few hours before the operation to learn if it could be performed.

Doctors had made an unsuccessful search for a cornea. Then, a stillborn baby arrived at Grady Hospital and the parents consented to use of one of its undamaged corneas.

Mrs. Sams should know in two or three weeks if her operation is a success. Surgeons said corneal grafts seldom result in perfect vision but to those who have never seen even partial vision seems miraculous.

Doctors watched the operation in Grady hospital from the municipal auditorium several blocks away.

Russians Again Slow Interzonal Truck Traffic

Berlin, Feb. 7—(AP)—The Russians slowed down interzonal truck traffic slightly again today and at the same time accused the west of trying to "warm up the cold war in Berlin."

Weekend traffic had zipped unhindered through the Helmstedt checkpoint, 100 miles west of here. But today about eight trucks an hour were clearing in each direction on the east-west super-highway as Soviet guards tightened inspections. By midmorning the queue waiting to get into Berlin comprised about 40 trucks.

American officials say the reasonable clearance rate for Berlin-bound winter truck cargoes is about ten an hour.

The official Soviet army newspaper Taeliche Rundschau said in a front-page editorial that "western reactionary forces are constantly making new attempts to warm up the cold war in Berlin again."

Catamounts Upset Pirates In Surprise Game By 59-52

West Carolina Takes First North State Victory After Jumping To Early Lead; Bucs Make Second Try Tonight

Lowly West Carolina, after losing ten straight games in conference play, struck fast and hard last night, to overwhelm a visiting East Carolina five at Cullowhee, 59 to 52.

It was the Catamounts' first North State victory, and East Carolina's third consecutive circuit loss. The Pirates record now stands at five wins and five losses.

West Carolina jumped into an early 6-0 lead during the first minutes of the contest, and were never headed throughout the rough and rugged cage clash.

With the Pirates lanky Jack Everton leading the way with sixteen points for the game's individual scoring honors, East Carolina pulled within one point of the Cullowhee lads at halftime, 32 to 31.

However, at the start of the second half, the Cats once again went on a sudden scoring spree, to lead the Pirates midway of the second period, 42-31.

Leading scorers for West Carolina were Rogers and Sives, who had fifteen and fourteen points, respectively. Sonny Russell was second high for the Pirates with 13 points.

The two teams play again tonight in the second game of a two-game series.

Frosh Hit Road

Coach Charlie Bill Moye's East Carolina frosh team journeys to Camp Lejeune tonight to play a return game with the Camp Lejeune High School.

Tonight's game is expected to be a tough tussle for the Baby Bucs as the Camp Lejeune high schoolers haven't been beaten on their home court in the last three years.

East Carolina's frosh team defeated Camp Lejeune here two weeks ago, 46 to 38. The freshmen lads have a current record of eight wins against four losses.

Holy Cross Still Tops Weekly Poll

New York, Feb. 7—(AP)—Unbeaten Holy Cross lost a little ground to a new contender, Bradley, but stayed well ahead today for the fourth straight week in the Associated Press basketball poll.

The only major all-winning team left in the nation drew more than 50 per cent of the first-place votes, getting 73 of 118 nominations by the country's basketball writers and sportcasters. The Crusaders have won 17 games.

Bradley (19-3) received only four votes for first but enough seconds and thirds to nudge Duquesne (16-1) from the runnerup spot. The Dukes lost Saturday to Louisville and didn't get a first-place ballot as a result.

Holy Cross scored 994 points in all, Bradley 720 and Duquesne 509.

Ohio State (14-3) and St. John's of Brooklyn (18-2) tied for fourth and fifth with 493 points. The next five are closely bunched. The Buckeyes, 56-55 victors over Indiana last night, have moved up each week.

Long Island U. (15-2) dropped to sixth from last week's fourth spot. Neither LIU nor St. John's won one vote for first while Ohio State got two.

Kentucky (16-4) also fell, from sixth to seventh, barely ahead of North Carolina State (17-3) in eighth place. La Salle (14-2) ran ninth.

ECTC Baseball Team Will Play 23-Game Slate

East Carolina's baseball team will play twenty-three games this spring.

The schedule, released yesterday by Dr. N. M. Jorgensen, college athletic director, lists sixteen games with North State conference clubs, with the remaining seven games being played against various non-conference foes.

Season's opener for the Pirate nine comes March 30, against the Guilford college Quakers at Greenville.

A twelve-game home stand with two doubleheaders has been planned for the 1950 Pirates, as they do not go on the road until April 24 when they play the Norfolk Naval Air Station at Norfolk, Va.

Coach Jack Boone expects to begin diamond drills at East Carolina the latter part of this month.

The 1950 Pirates baseball schedule:

S. Amphibs at Little Creek, Va.; 28, Catawba at Salisbury; 29, Elon at Burlington; May 1, Norfolk Air Station at Greenville; 3, Guilford at Greensboro; 4, Lenoir-Rhyne at Hickory; 5, High Point at High Point; 8, Norfolk Receiving Station at Greenville; 9, Atlantic Christian at Wilson.

Organizing New Bowling League

With bowling teams from the National Carbon Company well into league play, an Industrial League is being tentatively formed this week.

H. L. Winters, manager of the Greenville Bowling Center, reported yesterday eight teams would form teh new league, one each representing Carolina Dairis, Waldensian Baking Company, Post Office, Greenville Packing Company, Flanagan Buggy Company, White Chevrolet Company, Imperial Tobacco Company and Ormond Wholesale Company.

Winters urges representatives of each of these teams to meet with him Wednesday night at 7 o'clock at the Bowling Center for a discussion of a league program concerning times to bowl, what alleys to use and other matters pertinent to the progress of the league.

Meanwhile, six four-man teams have been formed at the American Lady Corset Company with informal competition being run off last Thursday night. Regularly scheduled bowling will resume this Thursday night in the second league formed in Greenville since the Bowling Center was opened.

Father Failed, So Son Will Try To Beat Walcott

Philadelphia, Feb. 7—(AP)—Harold Johnson will try tomorrow night to accomplish what his father failed to do 14 years ago—whip Jersey Joe Walcott.

Win, lose or draw for the 22-year-old Johnson in the 10-round bout at the arena, it'll be something new in boxing.

Old timers couldn't recall any time where a fighter faced the same opponent his father previously had battled. Johnson thought it was about 20 years ago.

But a check of the record books disclosed he missed the date by six years. It was in June, 1936, in a Philadelphia ball park that Walcott met Harold's pappy—Phil Johnson.

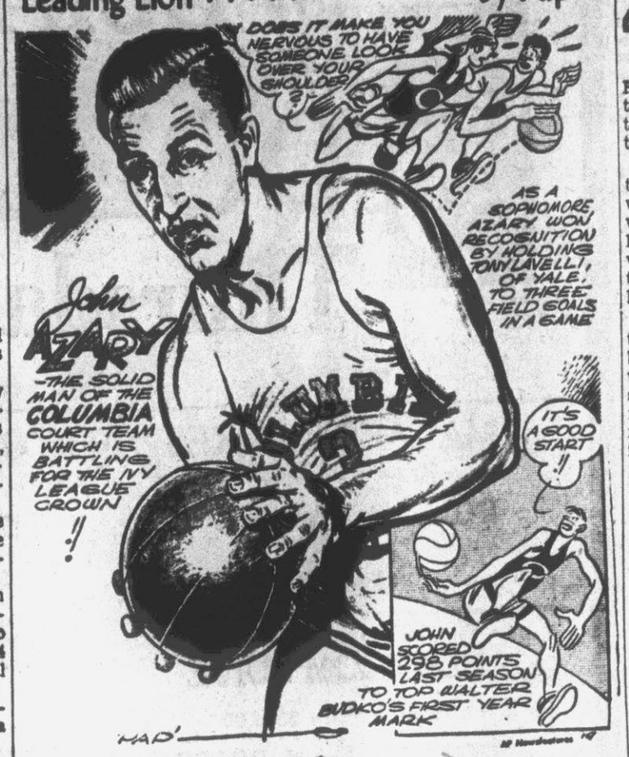

Heart Attack Is Fatal To Famed Yankee Coach

Los Angeles, Feb. 7—(AP)—Death has stilled the biting wit of Art Fletcher who, during 18 years as a Yankee coach, contributed almost as much discomfort to enemy pitchers as the notorious "murderer's row."

The lean, lantern-jawed former World Series star collapsed of a heart attack last night in a Los Angeles street. He was 65. His widow, Irene, was sitting in the car with him when he died.

Fletcher was a product of the John McGraw era. In all, he spent 36 years in organized baseball. Only one year of that was with a minor league club. He participated in 14 world series—four as a shortstop for the New York Giants and 10 as a third base coach for the Yankees.

Sport Slants By Pap

The only "big" man in Columbia's starting lineup, John Azary, 6-foot-3 200 pounder, is a 40-minute player and the key to the Lions' sucess on the basketball curt this season. Azary is spearheading the Columbia attack which has the team in the role of leading contender for the Eastern Intercollegiate League championship. His current average is 15 points a game, slightly under his usual pace, but outstanding enough considering that usually he is playing with two, and sometimes three defenders on his back. On Columbia's recent coast to coast trip, Azary averaged better than 20 points a game against teams like Illinois, Denver, Washington and Oregon.

Always assigned to the opposing team's big man, Azary gets a Lions' share of the rebounds and generally outscores his taller opponent. A less noted, but important role played by Azary also is feeding his teammates cutting off the pivot position. This is Azary's key job in Coach Gordon Ridings offensive setup.

One of the hardest workers on the team, Azary is the first to report for practice and the last to leave. He is a perfectionist and is always finding fault with himself. "I never saw a harder worker than Azary," says Coach Ridings. "He once stayed an hour after the regular practice session taking foul shots because he had missed two out of ten free throws in the previous night's game. A team leader, he is one of the best liked and most respected players on the squad."

Grifton Takes Twin Bill Over Arthur Basketeers

Arthur, Feb. 7.—Two Grifton Bulldog teams last night copped two victories from the Arthur boys and girls and in so doing the boys raised themselves one notch in the county standings.

The Bulldogs took the nightcap, 43-25, just after the girls had slipped by the local lasses, 48-46, in the thriller of the evening.

Kit McLawhorn and Edna Earl Braxton, the two high-scoring forwards for the Grifton girls, pushed in 23 and 17 points to lead their fourth-ranking team. However, Virginia Crawford for the locals copped the highest point total for the evening with 25 points. Behind her was B. Jones with 13.

Grifton was behind all the way to the fire, putting on a tremendous scoring drive in the waning minutes of the fourth quarter to pull away for the win. Arthur had the biggest lead at the quarter mark, 18-8, and held on to it at the half, leading 29-21. Even through the third quarter the locals held a seven-point advantage. They coasted, though, through the last stanza on the strength of their majority score and the visitors pulled up, even, and merrily away. It was Arthur's third loss coupled with 11 wins for the season.

The boys played a so-so game, Grifton leading all the way. The locals were trailing at the half, 23-9, and were able to do little better in the last half against the Bulldog subs.

Rex Lewis led his team with 22 points, although he played only 18 minutes. Strickland of the locals was high with 12. Defensively, three men led Coach Tyson's Bulldogs. They were John Lewis, William Jackson and Rube Ewell. For Arthur, David Harris was the defensive spark.

Bethel's Cagers Down Tarboro By Big Scores

Tarboro, Feb. 7—Bethel took two games from Tarboro last night, the boys whipping the locals, 45-28, and the girls matching that score 45-22.

The Indians, coached by Walter Latham, toyed with the Tarboro club for the first half, sporting an intermission margin of four points, 19-15. But in the second period the visitors came back in a rush, hurrying things through to a 17-point majority.

The game was the first of an unscheduled series. The return match, played in Bethel February 20, will see the net gate receipts going to the March of Dimes fund.

Bobby Manning, a guard, sparked Latham's club with 14 points, leading his teammate Frank Hemingway, a forward, with six. John Nelson and Hilton Tetterton coupled their ball-handling abilities for defensive honors for the Indians.

For Tarboro, Butler and Page, a guard and forward respectively, collected nine and eight points to lead their offense. Butler teamed up with the center, Lee, to lead his club's defense.

The Bethel girls jumped into a quick lead and never relinquished it, sporting a 16-9 halftime score. High scorers for the visitors were Mary Ella Moore and Toddy Smith with 15 and 10 points. For Tarboro, Clark bucketed 11 points to lead her mates.

Ready To Rope-Off Street For Skating If Use Justifies

The Recreation Commission of Greenville announced today roller-skating in roped-off streets can be done if there is enough attendance to warrant the safety measures.

The commission said it would be glad to rope off Lawrence Street between 9th and 10th in the afternoons, beginning tomorrow. Children can skate there, it said, any afternoon and Saturdays.

The group urges the parents of children desiring to roller-skate to caution them about skating in the streets, especially where there is much traffic. It urges that skating should be done in roped-off areas of town, not in open thoroughfares.

The modern, non-poisonous match was invented in 1911 by Willian A. Fairburn.

Greenville Phantoms Play At Roanoke Rapids Tonight

Greenville's Phantoms travel to Roanoke Rapids this afternoon to take on the Yellow Jackets in the third of return matches for the club this season.

For Bo Farley's five the game tonight will be an attempt to do what they did three weeks ago—win. And that is what the local Phants have not been doing of late, with the exception of Edenton, a team that has bowed twice to Farley's outfit.

Farley expects a much closer tiff tonight than the 35-30 victory his boys pulled down January 13. That was the game in which the Phants saw the Jackets stretch their lead into the third period. But a greater number of fouls called on the visitors enabled the Phants to scramble more effectively and thus to win by five points in the closing minutes of the game.

The Greenville club has shown improvement in its practice sessions in recent afternoons. Heretofore, Farley has been plagued by the lack of scrimmage material which could put his quint through its paces. But last week a team made up of members of the varsity and JVs showed improvement in defending the goals against the Phant long-shot specialists.

Passing has been stressed, particularly under the basket when an attempted shot cannot be made, the ball coming back out to anyone playing in the slot. Dillingham and Haymes, starting forwards, have shown improvement in their set shots in recent scrimmages, and they should be "on" enough to counteract Roanoke Rapids' long-shots tonight.

But as Farley said yesterday, the Jackets are playing on their home court and will be harder to handle than they were when playing here.

A Junior game goes on the floor prior to the varsity affray and this one, too. In the previous game Woody Wilson's boys should take played here, the JVs whipped the Junior Jackets 9-21, a lack-lustre affair which saw both teams "off" in their scoring.

The JVs sport a better record than their big brothers, having won 11 and lost two games in 14 outings. They now are riding on the crest of an eight-game win streak, not having lost since Kinston took their measure in the first game. The Juniors, however, avenged that defeat by taking the Kinston club January 31 by a return score of 46-41.

Farmville And Ayden Hoopsters Lead Pitt County Conference

The current basketball race in the Pitt County Conference resolved itself Friday night as Farmville divided a twin-bill with Ayden, sending the Farmville boys into undisputed possession of first place, but knocking the Red Devil girls into second place.

The Farmville girls lost their first game of the season Friday night and are now riding 41 percentage points behind Ayden which also has lost only one. That was the game in which the fans got so hot under their collective collars that the referees refused to work the nightcap in which the Farmville club won over Ayden by 14 points.

There are no games on tap tonight which will do any damage to the teams in one-two position in either the boys' or girls' brackets. Farmville plays at Chicod, a team resting in 6th and 5th spots in the respective male and female divisions, and Ayden takes on Grimesland, which is in 5th and 9th places.

The two leaders are expected to win those games, both boys and girls, but a loss won't change the percentages a great deal.

Here are the conference standings through last Friday's games:

BOYS	Won	Lost	Pct.
Farmville	8	1	.888

Johnny Weissmuller Is Voted Tops In Swimming Of Past Fifty Years

New York, Feb. 7—(AP)—You can search clear through the book of modern swimming records without finding the name of Johnny Weismuller. Yet 20 years ago they might well have printed the same book with ditto marks under Johnny's name.

So completely did the tall, deep-chested Chicagoan dominate the aquatic sport in the 1920s that today, a quarter of a century later, the nation's sports writers and the broadcasters voted him, by an overwhelming margin, the outstanding swimmer of the half century.

Weismuller gathered 132 votes in this section of the Associated half century poll. All the other swimmers and divers of the 1900-1949 era combined received only 102. It was a case of "there was no second."

There's a simple explanation. When he retired in 1929, Johnny held every world free style swimming record from 100 yards to a half mile. They all have been wiped off the books since Weismuller became a movie actor, but no swimmer ever has come close to the clean sweep that Johnny scored.

Some 7,000 plant diseases cause enough damage to be considered economically important.

Overcomes Odds Against Twins

El Cajon, Calif., Feb. 7—(AP)—It only happens once in 10,000 times, but a 15-year-old standard-bred mare has given birth here to twin foals.

The mother is Marietta Worthy, who performed as a trotter and a racer in her racing days. The sire is Volo Tempkin, pacing con of Volomite, the Man O'War of Standard bred Harems.

New Coach For Randolph-Macon

Ashland, Va., Feb. 7—(AP)— Paul Severin, All-America end at the University of North Carolina in 1939 and 1940, is the new head football coach at Randolph-Macon college.

Severin has been a member of the University of Florida coaching staff since 1946. His appointment was announced yesterday by Dr. J. Sarl Moreland, president.

Mikan's Scoring Lead Still Swells

New York, Feb. 7—(AP)—George Mikan of the Minneapolis Lakers continues to balloon his lead in the race for individual scoring honors in the National Basketball Association.

The six-foot-ten center, averaging 28.1 points per game, has connected for 1,379 markers. He has made 478 field goals and 423 fouls, inciuding games of Sunday, Feb. 5.

Alex Groza of Indianapolis, with 23.6 average, was second with 1,061 points. Groza's .470 average in field goal attempts also tops the circuit.

Lights Out; Car Went Into Ditch

A car driven by John Sam Harris, colored, age 33, of Route 1, Stokes, turned over last night about 7 o'clock on a rural road near Greenville, according to the driver, when the light of the car went out.

State Highway Patrolman Dick Chadwick, who investigated the accident, said that Harris stated he was riding along the road about 45 miles per hour, when the head lights of the car went out, causing him to run off the road, into a ditch, traveling some 174 feet, turning over.

The right front, fender, top right side, and the entire front were damaged in the accident. Chadwick described the car as being a total loss.

Two passengers in the car, Harris' wife and baby, were reported to have been shaken up, and taken to a doctor for observation. They were not believed to have suffered any injury.

The accident occurred about 7 o'clock and the highway patrolman was notified of the wreck at 11.

No charges were brought against the driver of the car.

They didn't like to get mail addressed to "Hog Hill."

One Of Trio Killed

Mrs. Ann Slechta (above) was killed with her mother and sister in Tampa, Fla., Saturday. Police believe Tony Slechta, her husband, was the killer. Slechta met death under the wheels of a truck near the house where the bodies were found. (AP Wirephoto).

Maryland Builds Up Its Highway System

Baltimore—(AP)—Maryland has built or improved 944 miles of roads during the past three years, the State Roads Commission reported. The bill $111,971,809. Last year's $56,000,000 spent on the highway system was an alltime record.

Kefauver To Be Speaker At Rally

Greensboro — The "David" who slew the Goliath of Tennessee politics will be the featured speaker at the state-wide Young Democratic Rally in Greensboro on Saturday Feb. 11. Terry Sanford, state YDC president, in announcing plans for the first rally of the year, said Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee would be the featured speaker on a program which will include most North Carolina Democratic leaders.

Terry Sanford, state YDC president, said the Young Democrats considered themselves fortunate to secure Senator Kefauver as a speaker for the Greensboro rally. "Senator Kefauver is a student of government," Sanford said, and will bring to young Carolinians a keen insight to national and world affairs."

The Greensboro rally will be held at the Greensboro National Guard Armory, will also feature a brass band reminiscence of old time political rallies, and a barbecue supper. Registration for Tar Heel YDC members will be at the O'Henry from two to five p. m.

Opinion Goes On Page One In Newspapers In Russia

MOSCOW —(AP)— Soviet newspapers are not much like American papers. It is difficult to find any resemblance between any leading American newspaper and a leading Soviet paper other than the fact that they appear every day and deal with current events and issues.

Aside from the obvious ideological differences, aside from differences in the editorial handling of news, there are very physical differences and a fundamental difference in respective concepts of what "news" is.

Soviet papers universally consist of four pages. Only when an important congress or conference or a similar meeting is going on do Pravda and Izvestia insert an extra middle sheet in order to report the speeches and reports.

As a general rule almost all of this space is devoted to news and articles and practically none to advertising. The exception to this is that local ppers such a Evening Moscow every other day or so devote from half a page to a whole page to advertising and notices.

The lead editorial is always printed on the left hand side of the front page in two columns. Rarely is it on a foreign affairs subject. Almost always it is on some internal theme such as the necessity for getting in the harvest and making grain deliveries to the state on time.

The central columns of the front page are frequently devoted to letters to Stalin from workers, farmers and officials reporting accomplishment of plans or promises or making promises of accomplishments.

Photos rarely appear on front pages, except for some celebration attended by Soviet leaders. And on official days throughout the year a large portrait of Stalin is usually carried in the upper right hand corner of the front page with the order of the day beneath.

The front page also carries announcements of meetings of Stalin with foreign dignitaries and officials and official decrees of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet, often awarding medals, orders and other official honors to Soviet citizens.

As a rule at least the right hand column of the front page is devoted to brief news items reporting economic and cultural developments in the USSR or in Poland, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria, Albania, Romania and Hungary.

These news items continue on to the second page but on this page there frequently is a column of letters to the editor, many of them containing criticism. Some of this is quite trenchant. There may appear on this page or the third page reviews of books and plays and motion pictures.

On the second page the right hand upper corner is reserved for official statements of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

The third page resembles the second page except that much of it is usually devoted to foreign affairs, which also usually takes up all of the last or fourth page. The back page also usually contains a list of theatrical performances and perhaps a paid advertisement or two.

Soviet papers use large headlines sparingly. The ordinary headline is small and merely furnishes a ready guide to the reader without endeavoring to attract his attention.

Soviet papers have political cartoons occasionally but they do not have a comics page or comic strips. They cover major sports events quite briefly. For the sports fan there is a special paper, Soviet Sports.

Crime is covered rarely. Local papers report sentences as warnings to would-be imitators. They are never played up.

No Soviet paper has any equivalent of the society page.

Accident Death Rate Is Lowest

Chicago, Feb. 7.—(AP)—The nation's all-accident death rate last year was the lowest on record.

But the injury rate made World War I look like a picnic, by comparison.

One of every 16 persons in the nation suffered a disabling injury in 1949.

The total injured was 9,400,000. In World War I only 234,300 were injured.

The 1949 accidental death total was 91,000. In World War I a total of 126,000 lives were lost.

Last year's accident cost was $7,200,000,000 (billions) compared with World War I's $35,413,000,000 (billions).

The National Safety Council, announcing the figures today, said the 1949 all-accident death rate was 61.2 per 100,000 population.

This is the lowest since 1900, when 94,000 were killed.

Motor vehicle accidents killed 31,500 in 1949. Home accidents took 30,500 lives. Falls were the big home killers.

Spending Life's Savings On One Big World Tour

Sydney—(AP)—A ship's plater from Barrow-on-Furness is in Sydney on the first leg of a "soft" round the world. He is Robert Crone, 54 who says says he is spending his life's savings on the trip.

He told newsmen: "I want to live soft for a year and go broke in the process." He said he is going to spend about $2,240 seeing Australia, New Zealand, Tahiti, Panama, and America. Already he has spent about $1,387 on shipping and airline tickets.

Crone said he has been working as plater for $21 a week. He added with a smile: "I will be broke but happy when I return to my job.'

All early matches had to be struck against phosphorus, a deadly poison.

The seven members of the eastern intercollegiate basketball league are playing their 46th championship season during 1950.

Only One Of America's Holding Public Office Women Governor's Still

(AP Newsfeatures)

A quarter of a century ago a woman in Texas and a woman in Wyoming were making American history. They were being inaugurated as governors of their respective states, the first time the distaff side had ever held such office.

Both were elected to office; both succeeded their husbands in the governors chair. In all other respects, however, the careers of Mrs. Miriam A. (Ma) Ferguson of Texas and Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross are dissimilar.

Actually, Ma Ferguson, now 74, is entirely occupied with the chores of housewife and grandmother, was the first woman elected governor. That was in 1924 and the result of a spectacular, unusual turn of political events. She was inaugurated, however, on January 25, 1925—some 20 days after the inauguration of Mrs. Ross as governor of Wyoming. So to Mrs. Ross, widow of Governor William Bradford Ross, goes the credit of being the first woman governor in American history.

Today Mrs. Ross is still holding public office, and is still in politics. For the past 17 years she has been director of the United States Mint—first woman to hold that office too—and in her time has put more money into circulation than all of her predecessors.

James E. Ferguson, Ma's husband, had been elected Texas governor in 1914 and re-elected in 1916. In 1917, however, he was impeached and then barred from holding state offices. Ferguson constituents of the day finally got together and elected Mrs. Ferguson governor, in a campaign based on a plea for vindication of the man and with the free admission that Jim would be the "real" governor if his wife were elected.

William Ross, a transplanted Tennessee lawyer, was elected governor of Wyoming in 1922—a Democrat in a predominantly Republican state. From the beginning of his term, he took his wife everywhere with him and she knew almost as much as he did about state affairs. Ross died in October, 1924, and three months later his wife was elected his successor, with one of the greatest majorities ever rolled up in the state.

From the governorship, Mrs. Ross jumped into national politics—she made a seconding speech for Al Smith at the 1928 convention and then became vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee in charge of womens activities. In 1933, with Franklin D. Roosevelt's election to the presidency, she was appointed director of the Mint.

Mrs. Ferguson, 74 years old, has retired from public life, and may be seen almost any sunny day working in the flower garden of her Austin home. Her husband died six years ago.

Her most recent dip into politics was a couple of years ago when she endorsed the successful Lyndon B. Johnson in his campaign for senator.

In 1930 it looked as though Ma were through in politics: she was defeated in the gubernatorial race. She tried again in 1932, however, and defeated her opponent, Gov. Ross Sterling.

That gave her a clear and uncontested "first."

Mrs. Maxine Parsons, 22, a former model, displays her almost waist long tresses, a portion of which she lost to a "Jack-the-snipper" as she sat in a Chicago movie theater. Her husband, Eugene, 24, chased a man seated behind her when he fled the theater and caught him outside, but bystanders separated them and the man escaped. (AP Wirephoto).

Builders Put Old Memories In Construction Of Model Village

By ROBERT M. SUNDY
(AP Newsfeatures)

KANE, Pa.—Rostan Village is a pretty little community in northwest Pennsylvania with churches, stores, a post office and a bank—but you'll never find it on a map.

Nobody lives in Rostan. Yet the town has had hundreds of visitors since it was founded three years ago.

It is the creation in miniature of Joseph Rostan, a retired grocer, who found that raising chickens and growing flowers wasn't enough to keep him busy.

Rostan came to this mountain town with his wife in 1946 to seek relief from an asthmatic condition.

The little town in Rostan's back yard is a village of memories for the talented builder—almost a biography in itself. Every structure is a reproduction of a building which played an important part in Rostan's life. Prominent among these is the church from his native village in Yugoslavia, where Rostan was baptized. Also present is the chapel from the cemetery of that village.

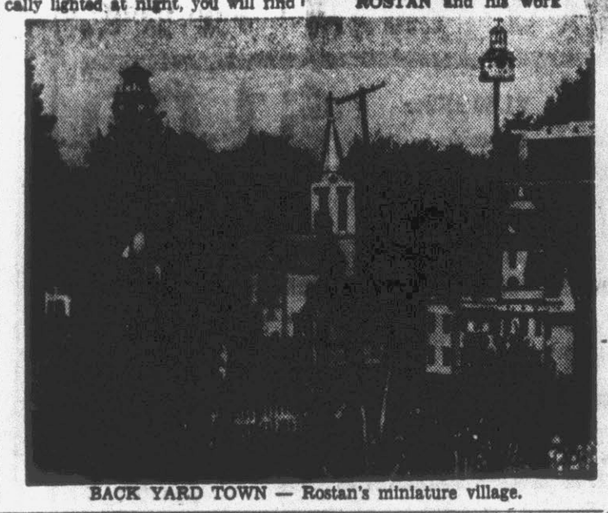

"The churches really bring back memories," commented Rostan. "I started out there as an organist.

When the Rostans came to America they settled near Pittsburgh and soon started operating a restaurant at Langeloth, Pa. Later Rostan was the first postmaster of Slovan, Pa. Then for 26 years he operated a grocery store at Saranac Lake, N. Y.

In the miniature village, electrically lighted at night, you will find the store from Saranac Lake, built to scale as are all the buildings. There's the post office from Slovan, a town hall like Saranac's, a bank, a hotel, a shrine and various homes.

Prison Term For Blocking Tracks

Newton, N.C., Feb. 7—(AP)—A Negro man was handed a five-year prison term yesterday for barricading the Southern Railway tracks near Catawba last Friday.

Robert Hunter Hill, 19, of Winston-Salem, told officers he set up the barricade because he wanted the train to stop so that he could get aboard. The train ran through the barricade with no trouble.

An engineer who glimpsed Hill just before the train struck the barricade gave officers the description which they used in tracing the Negro.

Hit On Method To Get Crowd At Political Rally

By ARTHUR EDSON

Washington, Feb. 7—(AP)—The Republicans apparently have hit on a sure-fire way to get out a crowd for a political rally. All you do is:

Put on an old fashioned box supper, featuring three pieces of fried chicken, some potato salad, coffee and a roll wearing a small American flag. The whole thing for $1.

Hire a nationally known entertainment group, such as Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians, and get a Hollywood figure, such as George Murphy, to master the ceremonies and lead the yells.

Then line up an all-star speaking cast, including Senators Taft (Ohio), Wherry (Nebr.), Capehart (Ind.), Knowland (Calif.), Mundt (SD), Brewster (Me.), Tobey (NH), Cain (Wash.) and Rep. Joe Martin (Mass), the House minority leader.

That's what the GOP did last night, and it worked.

The box supper was the first of a nationwide program of box suppers. It's all a part of a whipping-up-enthusiasm campaign and the annual tribute to the first Republican President, Abraham Lincoln.

Old Abe never had it so good.

The lure of entertainment, chicken and speech-making brought 11,000 (a metropolitan police estimate) to Uline Arena, a spot which holds 6,500 comfortably.

More than 2,000 sat on the floor, midst the remains of the fried chicken.

Even the oratory, which was broadcast nationally, had a somewhat different touch. Instead of the customary one or two big oratorical guns, the GOP split it 20 ways, with each speaker limited to approximately 45 seconds.

I won't go into details, but this is the gist of what thtey said:

The Republicans are redhot for Republicans, and they don't give a hoot for a certain other party.

Order Women To Push Production

PRAGUE—(AP)— Women officials of the Czech Communist dominated trade unions have been given greater tasks to bring production up to snuff in 1950.

The trade unions decided recently to ask women members to get more of their numbers in the nationalized industries and to try to occupy important posts. Women officials were also told to see to it that more women got jobs on the food committees and in factory canteens in order to supervise food arrangement and cleanliness.

New Schools

Chapel Hill, Feb. 7—(AP)—Three new schools for the University of North Carolina were authorized yesterday at a meeting of the board of trustees.

The new units will be a school of journalism, replacing the department; a school of social work, replacing the department, and the school of commerce will become the school of business administration.

Oscar J. Coffin will be named dean of the journalism school and Arthur E. Fink, dean of the school of social work.

Reports Drop In Govm't Workers

Washington, Feb. 7—(AP)—Senator Byrd (D-Va) reported yesterday that the number of civilian government employees dipped below the 2,000,000 mark in December to 1,981,156 for a "new low since 1942.

Byrd credited Secretary of defense Johnson with bringing about the overall reduction by eliminating 125,312 civilians from Army, Navy and Air Force agencies in the first half of the current fiscal year.

But he said other agencies—especially the postoffice—had added employees.

Byrd is chairman of the joint committee on reduction of nonessential federal expenditures.

He said the net decrease in federal workers in December was 4,803, with military agencies down 9,246 but civilian agencies up 4,443.

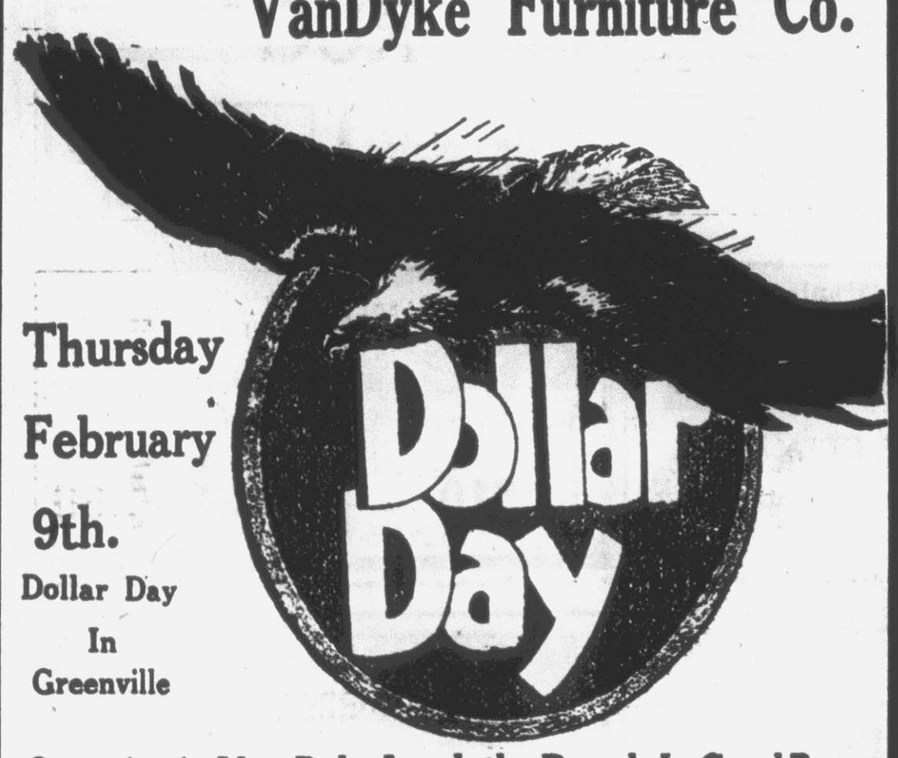

Byrd said the postoffice hired 18,207 additional permanent workers in the six months that began last July. It had 507,430 workers in December.

"In the decade since 1939 average employment by the post office department has increased by more than a quarter of a million," he said.

The United States has nearly 7,000 ice manufacturing plants.

Knotty Problem Before FCC In Color Television

Washington—Color television has given the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) a knotty problem.

Persons who have seen color demonstrations have vigorously applauded them. Color television receiving sets are in some homes—notably those of FCC members and Blair House, where President Truman and his family live. The receivers, loaned by the Columbia Broadcasting System, pick up experimental broadcasts.

FCC is preparing to conduct more hearings on the color issue, to decide whether to give color television space on the air for commercial operations. They probably will take many months. When FCC makes its decision, it will be concerned with a lot more than just color. The whole future of television, both color and black and white, is involved.

FCC is not satisfied with present arrangements for black and white television. In some areas there is unsatisfactory reception because the stations are too close. It wants to figure out arrangements by which this can be corrected. When the imperfections were discovered FCC froze the expansion of the whole telecasting industry in Sept., 1948. FCC won't allot space to color telecasting until it has settled on a policy regarding monochrome (black and white) also.

FCC also has determined that it is going to protect, as far as it can, the public's investment in monochrome television sets. Four million television receivers have been purchased. It is likely their value would decline if color went on the air. That is, unless the present sets could be adapted to receive color or convert it into black and white. To be sold on the idea, however, FCC says it must be shown that such adapters would be of moderate and reasonable price.

What would happen if color television in the next few months were given commercial broadcasting permits? Some observers say there would be a great boom in color telecasting. If present monochrome receivers could not be inexpensively modified the manufacture of color receiving sets would surge ahead.

The result could be a stagnation of black and white, with loss to both owners of sets and to vested interests in the business. The development of color television would not be pushed, say some of the observers, but manufacturers would just exploit the present possibilities.

Yemen Involved In Oil Dispute

CAIRO—(AP)— The "Forbidden Kingdom" of Yemen has a new quarrel with Britain. A Yemenese spokesman said the South Arabian kingdom is investigating reports that American and British oilmen have been exploring the Shebuwa area on the Yemen-Aden Protectorate border for possible petroleum reserves. Britain controls Aden Protectorate.

The Shebuwa area is one of disputed sovereignty. Yemen claims it. So does Aden Protectorate.

Israel-Romania Trading Booms

TEL AVIV—(AP)—Israel is doing a rushing business with Romania. The ministry of trade and industry announced Israeli exports to the Soviet satellite during recent weeks were valued at nearly $560,000.

Exports included oils, pharmaceutical products, artificial teeth, razor blades and citrus by-products. Romania sent Israel timber, paper, livestock, fodder, chemicals and salt.

Garden Missing

Southbourne, Eng., Feb. 7—(AP)—Victor A. Hunt heard a "tearing sound" at midnight, got out of bed, and found his garden was missing.

The plot, 30 feet long, had split away and fallen down a 100 foot cliff into the sea.

The Hunt house now stands just eight feet from the crumbling lip of the precipice.

The Hunts spent the rest of the night in a hotel.

Milder Weather Now In Prospect

By the Associated Press

Winter held back the rougher elements today and most of the country appeared in prospect for comparatively mild weather.

The Weather Bureau reported it required a diligent search to find any sub-zero temperatures early today. There were some in northern Maine, Caribou reporting -5, and the mercury dropped to -3 at Pembina, N.D. Temperatures along the West Coast were slightly below normal. Elsewhere they were above normal readings.

There were several wet spots and skies were cloudy in many areas. Rain fell in the Middle Atlantic states and the northern part of the Gulf states. There also was a narrow band of rain along the Pacific Coast from San Diego to Seattle. Snow flurries hit over parts of the central and northern Rockies.

Meanwhile, plows and bulldozers still bucked deep snow drifts in northern Montana to reestablish contact with snowed-in ranchers and farmers. Similar work was underway in the Cascade passes.

The floods in the midwest and south continued to lessen, but many thousands remained homeless, the largest number in Arkansas. The Ohio River was receding but 1,200 persons who fled their lowland homes probably will remain in relief shelters for several days.

Machinists Will Go Back To Fold

Miami Beach, Feb. 7—(AP)—The way is all clear for the return of the big machinists union to the American Federation of Labor.

It may take four or five months but AFL leaders say they expect the 600,000-member International Association of Machinists to be back in the AFL fold.

A split developed in the AFL's executive council yesterday on issuing a formal invitation for the machinists to return.

Towering William Hutcheson, president of the AFL Carpenter's Union and long-time foe of the machinists, refused to sanction the move but it was voted anyway by the rest of the 15-man council.

Mutcheson even threatened to pull his own union out of the AFL if the machinists are taken back without first settling jurisdictional differences between the carpenters and machinists.

But this threat, made several times before by Hutcheson, was regarded as a bluff by some of his AFL colleagues. At least the threat was disregarded by the council in going against Hutcheson's wishes.

Liquor Sales In Utah Increasing

SALT LAKE CITY—(AP)— Sale of liquor by the state yielded $3,333,065 net profits in Utah last year. The amount was $27,690 larger than in 1948. Sale is permitted only by package through stores run by the state liquor control commission or in stores selected by the commission as its agencies.

Of the profits, $2,333,065 went to the state general fund and $1,000,000 to municipalities and counties.

Parking Lot Jockey Puts Jittery Drivers To Shame

(AP Newsfeatures)

JACKSONVILLE, Fla.—Are your nerves set a-jangle by a traffic tangle? Do you fret, fume or develop a near-psychosis when you're blocked in by a sea of autos?

Do you get jumpy and start barking at the driver ahead when you brush bumpers? Feel sorry for yourself because you have to expend all that energy in just driving an auto?

Well, you ought to be ashamed of yourself, says a man whose worries are about 200 times bigger—every day.

He's Bill Sheetz, attendant at an average-sized parking lot in a medium-sized American city. The cars are jammed there all day long.

Sheetz, who's 51 years old, goes to work at 8 o'clock in the morning and quits at 7 o'clock at night. In between, he moves 200 autos on an ordinary day, sluicing them into their proper spots without nicking a fender. Hes' the only parking jockey on the lot.

This means that a couple of hundred times a day he must get into a car, start the engine, shuttle it into its narrow niche and climb out again—a calisthenic chore that wilts the average driver just thinking about it.

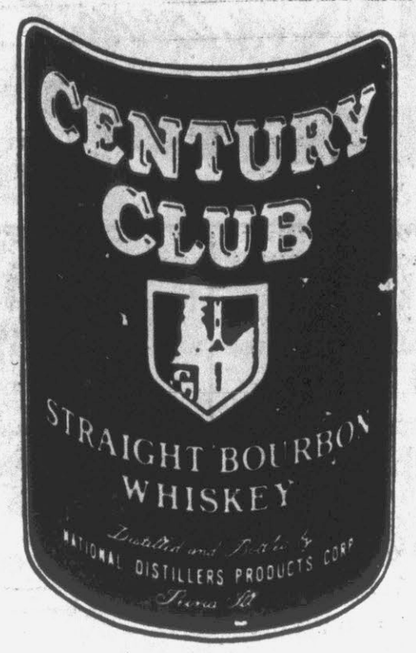

Sheetz, who came here from Harrisburg, Pa., is a former football player, army sergeant and railroader. He likes his present job better than any he's ever had. The exercise makes him hungry. At night he sleeps deeply.

"Most drivers just got lead in their legs," he observes. "They're used to sitting on soft auto seats, and when they have to stir around they get unhappy. It'd be good for most of them if they had to rustle about and get some real exercise. Nobody ever was hurt by it."

The ex-soldier, who helped chase Pancho Villa through Mexico 34 years ago, has developed an uncanny dexterity in driving autos backwards. In three seconds flat, he can zip into a space between two parked cars, leaving four inches on either side. In two years—during which he has parked upwards of 100,000 cars — he has scratched only two fenders.

Sheetz is half Navajo Indian which, he figures, gives him more stamina.

Jail Population Higher For 1949

CHICAGO —(AP)— The "guest list" at the Cook County (Chicago) jail was larger in 1949 than in any other postwar year. The average daily population was 1,158. On Nov. 2 there were 1,280 prisoners on hand, the greatest number since the prohibition era. Commenting on th apparent popularity of the place, Warden Chester Fordney said: "I have a fine jail."

Grand Junction, Colorado, gets its name from the fact the Colorado and Gunnison rivers come together nearby.

Many Gadgets In Automobile Show

Atlantic City, N. J., Feb. 7—(AP)—Car owners who love gadgets cain fairly walow in them at the National Automobile Association display here.

The profusion of some 250 gadgets on display include:

A push-button dashboard light that shows the oil level, eliminating the messy, under-the-hood measuring job.

A device that unlocks the rear doors from a dashboard control.

Leopard skin seat covers.

A gadget that restores proper wheel alignment instantly.

And finally, the gadget to end all gadgets, a machine that will diagnose all the possible ills a car is heir to.

The manufacturer of the mechanical diagnocian says it will tell instantly what's wrong with any automobile.

If the car is acting up, he says the device will locate the trouble with "scientific accuracy."

It contains in one unit all the equipment for testing the vital parts of a car, the manufacturer said.

Delegates to the Associations Annual convention began discussion on how to dispose of 6,000,000 new cars and trucks this year. They expect that many vehicles to be delivered if production equals 1949 figures.

Legislation For Protecting Fish Industry Studied

Washington, D. C.—Congress may come to the aid of Atlantic Coast game and commercial fishing areas which have suffered declines in catches of certain species of fish in recent seasons.

The Fisheries and Wildlife Conservation Subcommittee is considering bills which would provide for studies of certain fish which are of major importance to the game and comomercial fishing industries.

The bills are designed to authorize the U. S. Wildlife Service to make a study, with the cooperation of the various states, of fish which are decreasing in numbers and about which little is known.

Under the proposals the Wildlife Service would recommend to the states measures to increase the abundance of fish. The recommendations would be based on the studies which would include propagation biology, abundance and catch records of the various species.

Hearings have just been completed on one such bill which would authorize studies of important game and commercial fish all along the Atlantic coast. The bill is of particular interest in eastern North Carolina where fishing, both commercial and sport ,is a great industry.

At the hearings, bluefish, rockfish (striped bass) and others of importance to North Carolina were mentioned specifically.

Another bill which will be of interest to the fishermen of North Carolina would provide specifically for an investigation of the croaker situation in the coastal and inland waters of Virginia and North Carolina.

In recent seasons the decrease in the number of croakers taken in this area has been alarming. The bills are being considered by the Fish and Wildlife Conservation subcommittee of the Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee. Texas Congressman Clark W. Thompson, who chairmans the subcommittee, says hearings will probably be held on the bills concerning certain fish in specific areas in the near future. The bills could possibiye be incorporated into an anonymous bill which would apply to all cases, he said.

Congressman Herbert C. Bonner of North Carolina and a member of the Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, says he is particularly interested in such bills as would be beneficial along the Tar Heel coast. "I expect to support such measures when they come before the full committee," Bonner added.

Gentle Burglers Missed Money

FREDERICK, Md.—(AP)—Burglars who broke into the Maurice Sklar company here astonished police by the considerate way in which they went about not finding cash. They rifled desks and filing cabinets but took pains to protect new leather upholstered office chairs. The robbers padded the seats with paper to avoid scratching them as they piled desk drawers on top.

Disappointed, they made for the safe. But possibly they hoped to blast it open without injuring the strong box, police chuckled, because they just set fire to a stick of dynamite in front of the safe, instead of exploding it with a percussion cap. Net gain for the gentle robbers: Zero.

Because of World War II inflation and war-deferred maintenance programs, many U. S. firms found their financial provisions for depeciation inadequate at the wars end.

Chapter 2

A rather hard woman's voice came from the open doorway. "I might have known you two would be out there sitting in the dark pretending it's summer. Don't I get any welcome at all?"

Roger groaned. "My dear Celia, haven't you any gentler moments?"

"Don't you ever have any energetic ones?" she retorted.

Anne leaped up, spilling her pea pods. She ignored them. They could be swept up tomorrow. She threw both arms about her older sister as if to make amends for many things.

"Celia, why didn't you tell us you were coming? You said you were staying in Chicago and—"

Celia kissed her in the way of a woman who used kisses practically and to a purpose. Her voice was still hard, though it was a beautiful voice at the same time.

"Chicago is no good for an actress. New York is where I need to be to get ahead in the world. Don't stare at me and get ready to argue. Say hello to the twins instead. At least make them feel they're welcome."

Anne's eyes lighted up as she turned to them. They stood close together, hands clasped, blue eyes wide with wonder. They were dressed exactly alike. Mary stood back, stirring spoon in hand, staring at them. Anne knelt down and encircled them with her arms.

"Oh, I'm so glad to see you both. I haven't seen you since you were babies, and now look at you. Two big strong men."

"Don't tell them about their father. They think he just went away. It's better that way. I can't be bothered trying to explain death to kids when all the theologians don't understand it."

Mary crossed herself and muttered a prayer. The two boys spoke in unison.

"Is our daddy here?"

Their mother pulled off their caps. "Can't you see he isn't here?"

Anne, still kneeling, touched their curly yellow hair into place. "I'm here. And Grandfather is out in the garden. And Mary. Now how do we start getting acquainted? Do we take off coats or kiss first?"

They hesitated, then both held up chubby faces to be kissed. Anne had no chance. They were pulled back to Celia, who bent over them.

"Anne, I don't want you to start spoiling them right away. They need to be trained properly, not cuddled."

She yanked off their coats as she said it. Like released animals, they leaped to Anne's waiting arms. Celia's handsome dark eyes flashed.

"I can see how spoiled they'll be inside of a week," she snorted.

Her father spoke quietly from the open doorway which he filled.

"Does that mean you intend honoring us with a week's visit, my dear Celia?"

She faced him, her head high. "I have every right to come to stay with my children or anyone I choose to bring with me. This was my mother's house and she left it to all of us."

Roger smiled. "It was left to me, your father, specifically, my dear. I am delighted to welcome you to my house."

He held out his hand genially. She ignored it and caught at the twins, who stopped laughing at her touch.

"Come along. We are being thrust out into the street the same as we were in Chicago as soon as they realized your father didn't leave any money. People are all alike."

The twins pulled away from her and clung to Anne, who caught them both up in her arms and took them out into the yard. Mary brandished her stirring spoon like a soldier preparing for battle.

"Ain't you ashamed to talk to your father like that, Celia Blake? I thought your poor man's death would have taught you some humility and bowed your proud head."

"Nothing will bow my head. I am Celia Gould now and always will be."

"Until you find a new husband. That ain't hard to see."

She shrugged and left the door. He caught her slim, highly manicured hands as she passed him.

"You might give your ancient father a kiss, my dear."

She looked away from him. "Do you think it's easy to humiliate myself and come back here?"

He chuckled. "You brought the boys here. You knew Anne would take them to her heart."

She marched into the living room to look at the evening paper. Anne brought in the children, who were bubbling with laughter. They climbed onto Roger's lap excitedly.

"She said you'd tell us a story. A big story."

He put his arms about them, chuckling. "What kind of a story shall we have?"

"We want a dog story."

"Splendid." He hugged them. "We'll start with a song." His eyes twinkled and he sang.

Oh where, or where is my little dog gone?
Oh where, oh where can he be?
With his ears cut short and his tail cut long,
Oh where, oh where can he be?

The twins clapped their hands. Anne smiled at them. Mary drew a deep breath.

"Ah, it rolls the years back, it does. It takes children to bring sunshine into the house."

No Law Against Use Of Slugs

Great Falls, Mont.—(AP)—County Attorney R. J. Nelson recently ordered the release of two men held for using slugs in slot machines at a nearby town. He ruled no law covered their case.

Nelson said the statute against obtaining money by trickery came closest, but he decided it was intended to prevent obtaining money by trickery from another person. He said: "I don't believe it would cover a case in which a person obtained money from a machine by trickery."

Claims N.C. Has Reputation As Drugs Center

Durham, N. C., Feb. 7 (AP)—A U. S. supervisor of narcotics declared here yesterday that North Carolina itahas the reputation of being the "capital of illegal narcotic dealers in this section of the United States.

B. M. Martin, supervisor for your Southern States, named Fayetteville, Asheville and Burlington as the "main distribution points" for what he termed "a highly syndicated business in dope"

"When I speak of the 'capital,' I mean the area taking in Maryland, West Virginia, District of Columbia, on down to Florida and across through New Orleans to Texas and back again," Martin asserted.

Martin was in Durham to testify at a federal narcotics trial.

Approximately 50,000,000 tons of ice were manufactured in the United States during 1949.

Law Is Protector Of Blind People

This is a warning to motorists and drivers of other vehicles.

The North Carolina General Assembly, at its last session, passed a lew to provide for the safety of blind or nearly blind persons in traffic and other public places.

The law for the protection of the blind provides that blind persons carrying white walking canes, tipped with red, or accompanied by guide, or "seeing-eye' dogs, have the right of way in street or highway traffic in North Carolina. Motorists who fail to accord the blind this right are liable, under the law, to arrest and fine and imprisonment, upon conviction. Henry A. Wood of Raleigh, executive secretary of the State Commission for the Blind, reminded that the law makes it unlawful for any person except one wholly or partially blind to carry or use the white walking cane designed for the sightless and near sightless.

The law provides that blind persons using the white canes provided for the sightless and near sightless shall extend the white cane at arm's length when preparing to cross a highway or street. Motorists are required to heed the warning and also give the blind person right of way when he or she is accompanied by a guide dog. The state law puts the burden on motorists and others with good sight to look out for the blind in traffic and public places under all circumstances.

The district governors of Lions International and 200 Lions' clubs in North Carolina are partiipating in the movement to protect blind persons in traffic and publie places.
