Midgette Case Is Nearing Jury

Washington, N. C., March 24—(AP)—The murder trial of Ralph Midgette, a ship's mate charged with shooting his captain, was expected to go to the jury today.

Captain Glenn Willis, widely known along the Carolina coast as a master of the excursion and freight boat Lindsay C. Warren, was found wounded at docks here last Jan. 25. He died the next day.

Midgette testified yesterday he had been drinking before he returned to the vessel the night of Jan. 25, and remembered nothing until he awoke in jail the next morning. Only then did he learn from a policeman that captain Willis had been shot to death, the seaman from Ocracoke told a Beaufort county S. C. judge.

He had argued with Willis the afternoon of the shooting, "but I always thought a lot of the captain and wouldn't have shot him for anything," Midgette testified.

He made the statement shortly after police chief L. P. Wheeler testified Midgette told him he intended to kill the captain.

Defense witnesses said Midgette was of good character and reputation but tended to lose self control when drunk.

Rayon Producers Cut Production

Greensboro, March 24—(AP)—Two of the nation's major producers of rayon fabrics, Burlington Mills and J. P. Stevens and Co., are cutting production. Other rayon producers are reported planning similar action.

It is largely because retail stores say rayon dresses have been selling slowly. Such women's wear as dresses and slips are among the top users of rayon.

Burlington and Stevens are among the major operators in the Carolinas.

Stevens says it is cutting down loom operating time at its 16 southern rayon weaving plants. Burlington reports it will operate a majority of its rayon weaving plants five days a week instead of six. That means no overtime in most cases. The rayon mills pay time and a half for the sixth day.

Strength FOR THE DAY

IF HE WILL LEARN
Joseph Addison, the great English essayist, once wrote, "If you wish success in life, make perseverance your bosom friend, experience your wise counselor." As Addison suggests, perseverance and experience are two of the qualities which we regularly distinguish men and women who are truly successful.

These qualities almost invariably make the difference between ultimate triumph and ultimate defeat. For the difference is more than luck, or opportunity. Everyone has troubles; everyone fails sometimes; everyone has defeats and disappointments.

To the man without perseverance, a defeat or a failure is the finish. He is through. But to the persevering soul, it is a challenge; for not only must he try again, but he must try harder. And the man whose efforts are not stopped but instead redoubled by a set-back, cannot be halted in the long run.

To the man who does not profit from experience, however, a failure is only a failure, leaving bitterness or perhaps tragedy, but nothing more. It is all loss, no gain. Yet experience is the greatest teacher there is, and the man who is taught by defeat has turned his loss into profit.

That is what Charles Dickens meant when he said, more than a century after Addison, "Every failure teaches a man something, if he will learn."

CHARGES AGAINST TOLAR

It has long been the experience of businesses, and governments as well, that a man who heads a department must hold the respect of his subordinates if his department is to function efficiently.

C. R. (Tony) Tolar, commander of the North Carolina highway patrol, has again made the headlines in the state's papers by being indicted by a Beaufort county grand jury on charges of reckless driving and improper use of a siren at a funeral.

Although Tolar probably will not be tried for the charges until June, the fact that the head of the state highway patrol is alleged to have behaved in such a manner as to bring about the charges speaks poorly for the department of the state government whose duty it is to promote safety on the highways of North Carolina.

But for Commander Tolar, publicity for charges of infraction of traffic regulations is nothing new. Shortly before his appointment to his position as head of the highway patrol, Tolar was stopped by a member of the patrol for failing to observe the highway regulations.

Even though he has so far managed to escape conviction on charges brought against him, a person at the head of the state highway patrol should conduct himself in a manner which would leave no point from which such charges could be brought.

It seems to the Reflector that the head of a department of the state government should be above reproach as far as the legal regulations which his department administers are concerned.

Even though Tolar goes scot free of the charges

Somebody Told Me..

By L. J. (JACK) EDWARDS, JR.

Somewhere in this newspaper today there's a news story about last night's meeting of the Junior Chamber of Commerce. I feel sorry for the writer of that story, because in order to report the straight news angle of the meeting, he was forced to leave out some color. That's why newspapers spend their good money paying columnists. Under a byline you can give a story up and get by with it.

One of the attractions of the program was a mankin-dressing contest. The contestants were Ralph Garrett, assisted by Henry Brown, and Jim Alexander, assisted by Quinn Bostic.

At the sound of the gong Ralph and Jim assembled their dummies, who were nude females. After the crowd had recovered from the embarrassment, they took sides and began to root for the contestants.

Jim and Ralph were blushing so hard that they had considerable trouble with the underclothes. On store-window dummies the undies seem to be reasonably simple, but the boys were unable to put "them" in the right places in a hurry.

By the time the undies were in place, Jim and Ralph were experienced dressers. From that point on it was a matter of who was fastest with the buttons. In the stretch it looked as if Ralph was a dead chinch to win, but fate intervened. Just as Ralph had all buttons under control, his dummy's—pardon the expression—underwear fell off. Undaunted, Ralph grabbed them up in an attempt to save the day. But it was too late. Jim had already been declared winner. As a prize he received a pair of size 52—the same things that fell off Ralph's

Around Capitol Square

By LYNN NISBET

SITTING PRETTY—State Treasurer Brandon P. Hodges wore a very satisfied smile Thursday morning as friends continued to congratulate him upon the exceptionally good sale of 475 million secondary road bonds Wednesday. The issue sold at an interest rate of 1.52 percent, compared with 1.57 for the first $50 million of the road bonds last fall. That was just one, perhaps a minor contributing factor, in the state treasurer's overall good humor. The highway financing problem is solved, he said, and we can now devote attention to adjusting sundry items in the general fund account.

EXPLANATION—There remains $75 million of the authorized secondary road bonds, but condition of the highway fund is such that item can be handled when and in what way seems most advantageous for the state. By upping the current sale to $75 million, the state will not have to enter the market again with highway bonds for many months. The debt service schedule worked out in advance contemplated an interest rate of 1.75 and debt service allowance was made on that basis. The $125 millions in bonds already sold carry an average interest of approximately 1.54. That means something more than two million dollars saved for road work and leaves some leeway in handling remainder of the bonds. Hodges thinks it quite possible, by watching the market and putting the rest of the bonds on sale at proper time the overall interest rate may be further substantially reduced, resulting in still further savings to the highway fund.

GENERAL FUND—Marketing of $25 million school building bonds and $7,500,000 ports authority issue as state general fund obligations may not be quite so easy or advantageous for the state. Status of the general fund account at end of this fiscal year and anticipated economic conditions for the next few years

New York. (AP)—At 70 Howard W. Blackeslee has solved the problem of how to keep from growing old—"stay young!"
This two-word motto would be meaningless except for the fact that Blackeslee doesn't base it on book earning—he bases it on living.
And at the age of three-score-and-ten his biggest personal problem is he can't go out on evening engagements now because it is so hard to find a baby sitter.

"Lou never can be sure the maid, or somebody else, is available," he said mildly.

This would be more disconcerting except for the fact that Howard has seven children of his own and eight grandchildren. His children came in two crops. The youngest of the second crop of three is Alan, 6.

"But not one of the seven came when he was expected—or when I could afford him," said Howard.

This Blackeslee is quite a person, a tall, slender, blue-eyed, white-haired man who has done the most of anyone in his lifetime to bring science down to the understanding of the ordinary man.

His formal title is "science editor of the Associated Press," which cloaks the fact that he 20 years ago also pioneered in wearing bright-patterned hand-made silk ties when it took real courage to wear them.

Howard works at the desk next to mine and he is my despair. He was born in an Indian village in what was then the territory of Washington, he has traveled 250,000 miles covering science stories, he wants to work forever, and he still does by actual volume twice the work of any reporter. I know.

"I just want to keep on finding out—keep having the fun of reporting," he said.

His religion is reporting. He was twice thrown out of Michigan University for annoying the faculty with his embarrassing accurate news stories as a student. Thirty years later he was called back and given the honorary degree of master of science for his "informed newspaper work." His feeling is that he was steadfast—his alma mater just grew up.

He also collected a Pulitzer prize, the goal of every newspaperman, but figures that isn't as important as the fact he has helped save several people's lives.

"That was only because hundreds of people over the years have come to me and asked me to send them to a reliable doctor," he said.

The funny thing is they could have called a medical society and got the same result. The medical facilities are there—but too many people are too shy to seek them out for themselves.

Some men at 70 are disillusioned. Howard feels that the human race is happier than it was in his youth. He doesn't feel—though he spans the age from horse and buggy to guided missiles—that mankind will ever destroy itself.

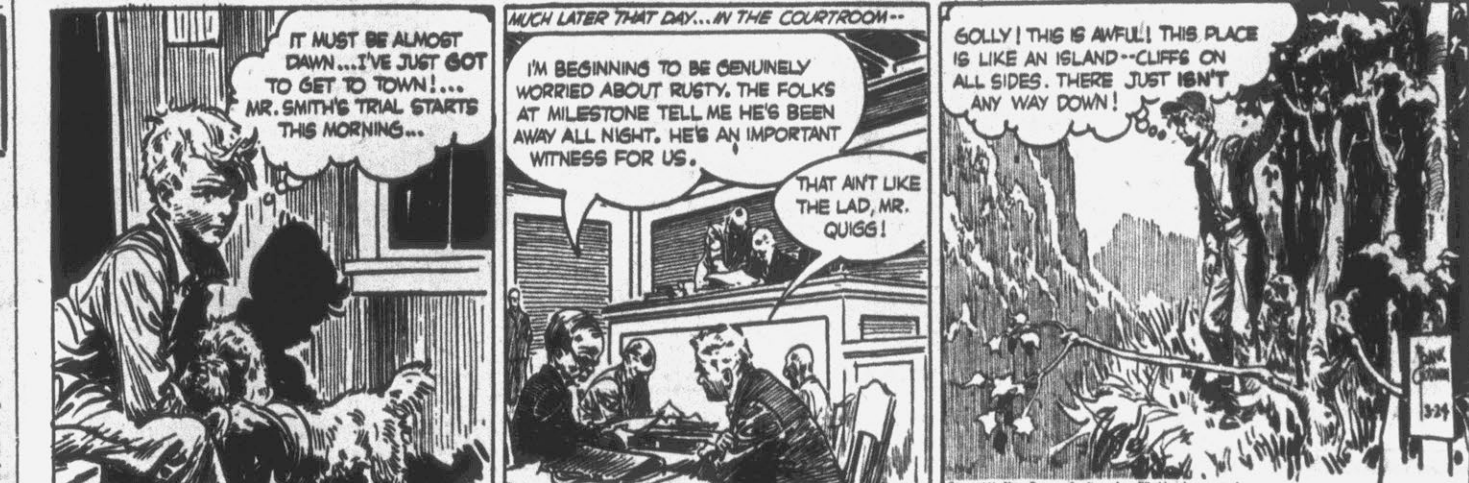

"What they are saying about atomic power they said about dynamite," he recalled. "But for every bad thing dynamite did it did ten thousand good things.

"I just want to keep on finding out—keep having the fun of report-

Mother Drowns Young Children

Winston-Salem, N. C., March 24—(AP)—A mother of six children drowned two of them yesterday because the married man with whom she had been going threw her aside. And, Sheriff Ernie G. Shore said, she told him, she intended to drown a third child and commit suicide, but lost her nerve.

The sheriff said that the woman Mrs. E. R. DeBusk would be charged with murder. She was estranged from her husband.

Here is the story the sheriff said Mrs. DeBusk told him:

She took six-months old Iva Lee in her arms, clasped the hand of Charles Franklin, two, while he held the hand of Ruby Lee DeBusk, five. They waded into a creek until the water was over the children's heads. The mother returned and laid them out on the bank. Iva Lee and Charles Franklin were dead, their hands clasped. Ruby Lee was still alive, but Mrs. DeBusk didn't have the heart to try again.

Slightly Seasick Russian Assails American Justice

Aboard the M.S. Batory at sea, March 24—(AP)—Red Russia's Valentin A. Gubitchev has been wearing a greenish tint to his complexion since he sailed from New York aboard this Polish vessel.

Gubitchev started getting seasick soon after the ship left Ambrose Light Monday. The Russian, a suspended United Nations engineer, is on his way home to the Soviet Union after being convicted of spying.

Gubitchev was offered the choice of serving a 15-year prison term or leaving the United States, never to return.

His trial, he said in a shipboard interview, "obviously was political, as the prosecution was unable to bring evidence against me. I think even the prosecutor doubted the case."

"There is a great difference between the Russian and American conception of justice," he commented.

Gubitchev said he was adapting himself gradually to a "handcut, less, publicityless existence" by not mixing with his fellow passengers. But "I will be a normal passenger shortly," he added.

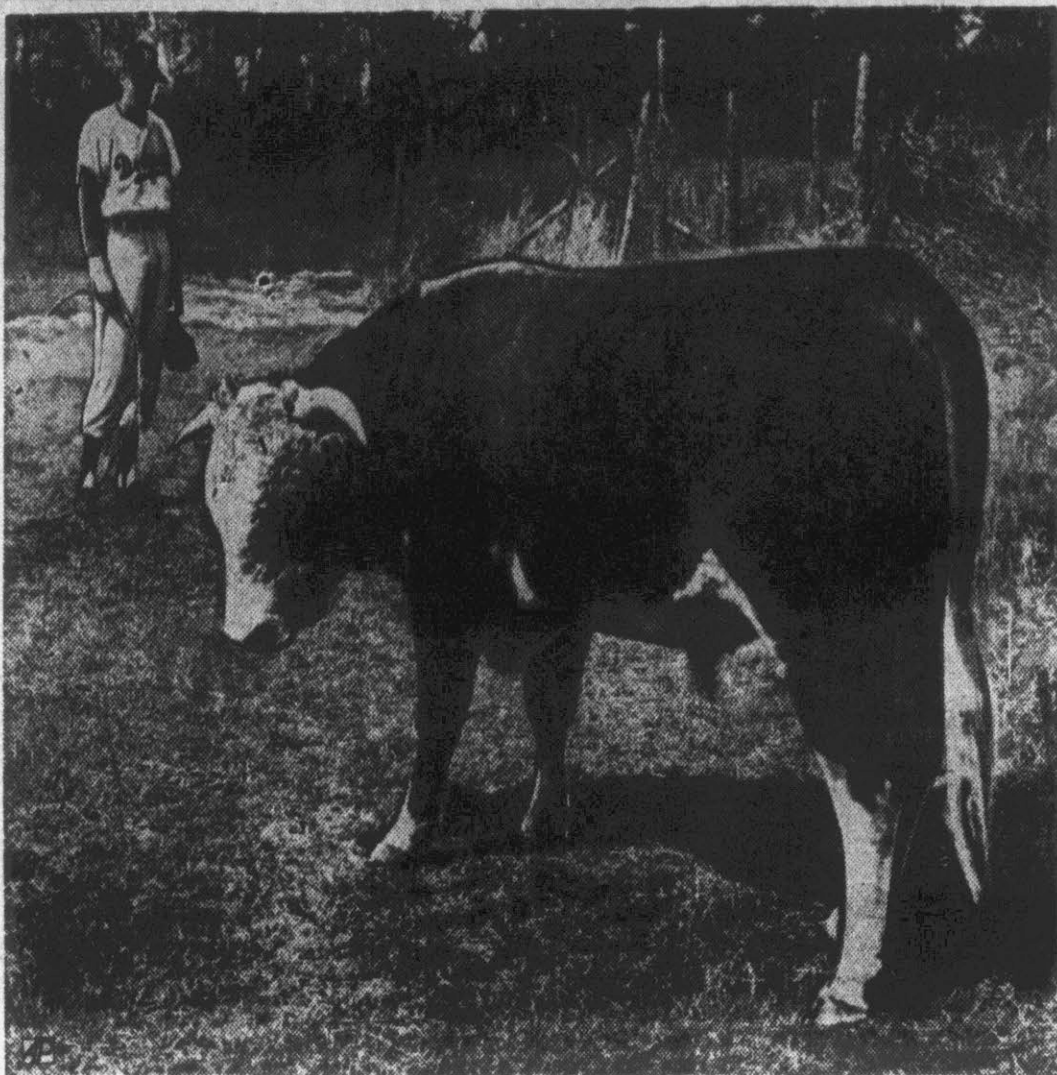

He has eaten most of his meals in his locked cabin, leaving it only for short walks on deck with his vivacious 33-year-old wife. She, reportedly, has not been troubled by the Batory's motion through seas which have been moderate so far.

Neither have most of the other 400 passengers. Only a half dozen other seasick cases have been reported.

Newsman Discuss New Advances

Greensboro, N. C., March 24—(AP)—Reporters and editors have been trying to make the stories in his newspaper easier to read and understand. The same thing applies to radio news writing, although radio problems are different because your ear is the main channel instead of your eye.

The problems were discussed here yesterday at the annual meeting of the North Carolina Association of Associated Press radio members.

The main speaker was Oliver Grambling of New York, Associated Press Assistant general manager in charge of the radio report. He said the Associated Press has been making great progress in covering and writing of radio news.

E. Z. Jones of Station WBBB, Burlington, was elected president of the state association of AP radio members. Also named were J. Edgar Kirk of WPTF, Raleigh, first vice-president, and William Mella of WWNC, Asheville, second vice-president. Paul Hansell of Charlotte, Associated Press Carolinas Bureau Chief, was reelected secretary-treasurer.

Fought Fire On Plane In Mid-Air

Philadelphia, March 24—(AP)—A United Airlines twin engine cargo plane was landed safely at Philadelphia's International Airport last night after the crew fought a dramatic battle against fire.

The two men aboard battled the flames for fifteen minutes, managing finally to confine them to the area of the automatic direction finder.

Pilot Paul C. Cane, of Metuchen, N. J., said he saw smoke coming from the vicinity of the direction finder when the plane was over Lancaster, Pa. The craft was bound from Akron, Ohio, to Newark, New Jersey, with a scheduled stop here.

Cane instructed co-pilot Frank Farrell to use a hand extinguisher while he radioed the Philadelphia airport tower to have fire equipment on hand. The flames were out when Cane brought the plane to earth.

The stile, a double pair of stairs so arranged as to permit passage over a fence where a gate is not desirable, still can be found on many a farm.

Seventeen Bouts Tonight In Pitt Amateur Tourney

Seven Glovers From Belvoir Lead Way Into Second Round After Opening Eleven Fights; Three TKO's And One Knockout Highlight Evening

By BILL LLOYD
Fur flew, blood spurted, and the crowd roared last night as the second annual Pitt County amateur boxing tournament got underway in East Carolina's Wright gymnasium.
Eleven fighters advanced to tonight's semi-finals, with seven glovers from Belvoir leading the way.
Three TKO's and one knockout featured the leather-slinging last night, with most of the fights being close and hard fought.
Seventeen fights are on the boxing agenda tonight, with the weight classes ranging from the 68-pound lightweight class to heavyweight, unlimited class. Bouts get underway at 8 p.m.
Wallace Conway, 172-pounder from Greenville, is expected to lead the Greenville team in its first encounters tonight. Conway is a defending champion from last year's tournament.
Last night's fights:
Pierce-Sutton
Charles Sutton from Bell Arthur and Aaron Pierce of Belvoir got things underway last night, with both fighters swapping punches in the first round, and feeling out each other early in the fight. In the second round, Sutton came out fast to knock Pierce to the mat. However, Pierce fought back gallantly with several blows to the body as the bell sounded. Not too much happened in the third round, with Sutton gaining judges' points with his better form of fighting. Sutton won by close decision in the five-weight class.
Watson-Holland
In the flyweight division, Belvoir's William Watson took the aggressive hand against Billy Holland of Ayden to gain the decision. In the first round, Watson hit hard with body blows, and feeling out each other early in the fight. In the second round, Holland came back somewhat, with the fighting close and wild. Both boys tired considerably in the final round with Watson getting the best punches to the head of Holland.
Tyson-Hodges
Third match of the evening paired Major Tyson of Belvoir with Alton Hodges of Grimesland. The two bantamweight fighters put on one of the better bouts of the night, with both going down for counts during the first round. Fighting became more fierce in the second round, as the two boys mixed it up in close fighting that thrilled the crowd. Tyson gained his decision in the third round as he came out strong, landing hard blows to the head of Hodges, with his arm-reaching advantage.
Rhodes-Wingate
Two other bantamweights, Lynwood Rhodes of Bell Arthur and Dan Wingate of Winterville, brought the fans to their feet in the fourth bout last night. Rhodes spotted length to the Winterville slugger, as both boys swapped hard punches in the first round. In the second round Wingate landed a hard glove to the face of Rhodes, which brought blood to the Bell Arthur lad's nose. Fighting was back and forth the remaining part of the round with Rhodes putting up an impressive fight. Rhodes, trying desperately for the decision in the third round, came out fast to land hard rights to the body of Wingate; however, the taller Wingate used jabs to the face effectively to gain the decision.
Hathaway-Robinson
Third bantamweight fight was more of a wrestling match than a glove match. Lynwood Hathaway of Belvoir gained a decision by a wide margin over Charles Robinson of Winterville, as the latter was continuously falling on the mat. Hathaway was the aggressor all the way, with Robinson landing very few punches.
Mills-Hancock
Jerry Hancock of Winterville gained the first TKO of the night over Roger Mills of Grimesland in the last bantamweight fight. In the first round, the taller Hancock landed stunning blows to the head of Mills, with the little fighter fighting back hard to make it a close match. However, Hancock gained his TKO in 1:15 seconds of the second round as Mills was unable to continue because of an injured shoulder.
Moore-Nichols
Punches became harder and deadlier in the lightweight division as Alfred Moore of Belvoir received the quickest knockout of the night, as he KO'd Kendrick Nichols of Bell Arthur in one minute and 28 seconds of the first round. Moore had Nichols down for the count of eight before landing his final knockout punch.

Wes Manning-Willis Manning
Best fight of the night came in the welterweight division with two Manning boys hooking up. Wes Manning of Belvoir gained a one-point decision over Willis Manning of Ayden, in a bout that could have gone either way.
Teel-Edwards
Bob Edwards of Pactolus kept up the family fighting name last night as he gained a close decision over Grimesland's Vernon Teel. Edwards, a brother of East Carolina's Charlie Edwards, showed more polish during the first round, as he made Teel swing widely. Teel improved his game at the latter part of the bout, landing blows to the body and head of Edwards. Not too much happened during the second round, with Edwards gaining his decision in the final round as both boys swapped body punches.
Coggins-Stokes
Leslie Coggins of Belvoir won his team's sixth fight of the night as he gained a TKO over Elbert Stokes of Grimesland in 1:15 seconds of the first round. Coggins was more aggressive, landing hard punches to the head of Stokes which brought crimson to the mouth and nose of the Grimesland fighter. Referee Bailey stopped the fight with Stokes staggering against the ropes.
Hathaway-Boyd
Quickest TKO of them all came in the final bout of the evening as Joe Hathaway of Belvoir improved his team record with a fast 45 second technical blow in the first round over Clarence Boyd of Grimesland. Hathaway showed championship form in the quick seconds that he fought.
Pairings for tonight's semi-finals are:

Hathaway-Robinson
Third bantamweight fight was more of a wrestling match than a glove match. Lynwood Hathaway of Belvoir gained a decision by a wide margin over Charles Robinson of Winterville, as the latter was continuously falling on the mat. Hathaway was the aggressor all the way, with Robinson landing very few punches.

GHS Baseballers Begin Practice; 16 'Holdovers'

Greenville's 1950 edition of the high school baseball squad began intensive practice yesterday for the first time this year.
With sunny weather coming around more frequently, the 40-man squad worked out yesterday afternoon for the first time since the baseball call went out two weeks ago.
Coach Bo Farley, having wrapped up his basketball team for the season, had 16 holdovers from last year to report to him for practice this week. Along with the others of the uncut squad, Farley said this morning they "looked pretty good."
He expects the returnees to take over the positions of last year, but no position is filled as yet, he said. His strong cards are in the outfield when he has five experienced men from the 1949 team to draw from. Billy Holbert, Richard Joyner, Bob Perry, Hilton Quinn and Joe Taylor all played ball last year and Farley expects to use them frequently this year.
Tentatively, the infield positions are filled, although the grey-haired coach hasn't positively made up his mind about any of them.
Leon Moore and Joe Sawyer are back at the catching spots again, doing the chores for Bobby Flye and Julian Vainwright on the mound. Sid Briley has been working out at first and last year's second-baseman, Billy Jordan, has worked that position again. Eugene Ayers has been alternating at second, although Farley said he may be eased either at third or shortstop. Walter Perry and Larry Flye will see action this year at one of those two positions, also, Farley said.
The team's first game is next Friday with Kinston and Farley is a little more than somewhat worried about this lineup. Working out in the afternoons at Third Street school, the squad is untested, except for the usual batting practice, and nothing definite can be said now about the strength of the squad.
However, Farley expects to get the team rounded out next week, barring bad weather. He thinks that by midweek he can determine who will hold down each position.

Mixing It Up In One Of Evening's Best Bouts

In the ninth boxing bout of the Pitt County Boxing tourney last night, Teel of Grimesland, and Bob Edwards, Pactolus, mixed it up as they went into a clinch. Edwards, of Pactolus won the bout in the closest match of the night. (Reflector Photo by Roy Hardee).

Wolfpack Tops Holy Cross And Meets CCNY In Finals

New York, March 24—(AP)—City College of New York's rampaging Beavers and a gang of whirling dervishes from North Carolina State University will tangle tomorrow night in the eastern finals of the NCAA basketball tournament.
And dapper Nat Holman, coach of CCNY, thinks his National Invitation Tournament champions can take the Carolina Wolfpack, provided they stay hale and hearty.
The busy Beavers came through one of the greatest basketball games ever played in Madison Square Garden last night to gasp out a 56-55 victory over Ohio State's Buckeyes, before a roaring crowd of more than 18,000.
N. C. State's victory over favored Holy Cross in the second game—a methodical 87-74 job by the lean, hard-running Wolfpack—was anti-climatic.

Ohio State, the Big 10 Conference champion and rated the nation's No. 2 college club, and CCNY were just as closely matched as the score indicated. The score was knotted at 40-all after the first half, and it might have been the loss of the Buck's great All-America, 6-5 Dick Shmittker, that provided the final difference.
Not more than three points separated Ohio State and CCNY most of the way. The big blonde Schmittker was a wilder underneath as he came through with 26 points, and he needed only one more chance to get in there to make it the Buckeyes instead of CCNY in tomorrow's finale.
However, scoring honors for the evening went to Sam Ranzino, a 6-1 forward with N. C. State. Ranzino pumped in 12 field goals and eight charity punches for 32 points, a new NCAA tourney one-game scoring record.

Holy Cross' Crusaders, badly off on shooting, went ahead of State just once, 20-19 during the first half, which ended with the Wolfpack comfortably ahead, 44-29.
Kansas City, March 24—(AP)—A young man who has enjoyed phenomenal success in basketball coaching will be on the spot in the western NCAA playoffs beginning here tonight.
He's Forrest (Fordy) Anderson former Stanford University star who sends his Bradley Braves against U.C.L.A. in the first round of a two-night playoff leading to the national finals in New York next Tuesday.
The Baylor Bears, Southwest Conference representative, and Brigham Young University's Cougars will meet in the other game of tonight's doubleheader.
Anderson's Braves, the nation's No. 1 team in the final Associated Press poll and Missouri Valley Conference champions, are rated 5½ points over U.C.L.A., Pacific Coast titlist, and favored to win the meet.
The winners tonight will play each other tomorrow night for the western title. The two losing teams will meet for third place.

Cappers, Labelers Trade Carbon League Standings

The Cappers of the Carbon bowl—using a two-pin spot. The handicap was of no value to the four teams this week. It didn't help the losers and didn't alter, particularly, the winners' margin. The Torchers spotted the Labelers 19 pins and still managed to beat the last place team by at least 12 pins.
The individual bowling was just so-so Wednesday night. No previously-recorded high marks were broken nor were they approached. Ben Eastwood's 196 for a single game remains high as does Taylor's 488 for three games.

ing league's night shift finally got off the bottom of the heap Wednesday night, but it was done by proxy, more or less.
The cellar-dwellers for the past nine weeks emerged from their quarters because a new tenant came knocking—the Labelers. They were beaten by the Torchers, lords of all they currently survey, three games in a row, and dropped to fourth place for the first time during the past 27 games.
The erstwhile Cappers, nowver, took one game from the second-place Tampers but not without a fight. They won the third 445-423.

Louis Appears In Twin Bouts

El Paso, Tex., March 22—(AP)—Heavyweight Joe Louis fought two 2-round exhibition bouts here tonight with two fighters who managed to backpedal their way out of serious damage.

Kite-Flying Contest For Youngsters Due Saturday

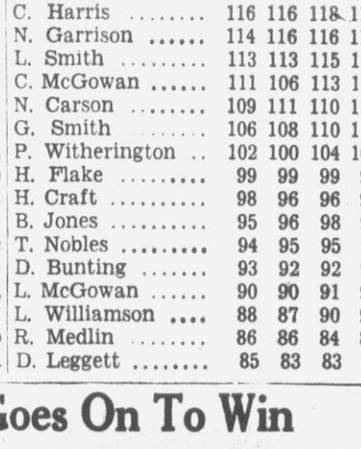

Go fly a kite might well be the order of business tomorrow afternoon when Greenville kids show their ability with the paper, cloth and string affairs as the kite-flying contest gets under way at 2 p.m. at the ball park.
Dallas Blackiston, sponsor for the event, said yesterday he didn't know how many kids would compete for the windy laurels but that it doesn't make any difference.
"Any kid who wants to enter the contest can come out. All he has to do is bring his kite with him, put it in the air and he's in," the Robinson's business manager explained.
There is only one actual rule to adhere to, Blackiston said. The boy must be in or under the sixth grade in school. All others are eliminated.
Any kind of kite will serve the purpose — homemade, factory-bought, with and without tails, small kites, large kites—anything that will fly. There will be events for all kinds to enter and prizes will be given for the winner in each.

The judges for the event will be Mayor W. S. Stafford, Heber Tripp and D. J. Whichard Jr. The three will judge the kites as to the best-looking, the highest-flying, best tailless kite, best homemade one, and the one which remains in the air during the windup event—the kite war.
Blackiston announced recently that after the contest is over free hotdogs and soda pop will be served to all contestants.
He urged all kids within the age group to compete tomorrow. "We don't care if he never flew a kite before, just so long as the kid is out here. It's just a little fun for the boys, that's all," he said.

Senators Scorch Chattanooga

Orlando, Fla., March 24—(AP)—Hot from a 9 to 2 victory over their Chattanooga farm club, the Washington Senators returned here today for an exhibition with the Philadelphia Phillies.
Bucky Harris, the Nat's manager, was expected to make a few lineup shifts in order to see some of his new material in action.
He used 15 men, including three rookie pitchers, against Chattanooga. The pitchers, Bob McChesney, Buzz Dozier and Earl Davis, looked good enough to remain in camp until squad-cutting time at least.

Floored, But Goes On To Win

Blackiston announced recently that after the contest is over free hotdogs and soda pop will be served to all contestants.
He urged all kids within the age group to compete tomorrow. "We don't care if he never flew a kite before, just so long as the kid is out here. It's just a little fun for the boys, that's all," he said.

Paul's journey to Rome was a tempestuous one. Arrived at Lasea, Crete, it was decided to winter at Phenice, the harbor. Paul told Julius, the centurion, sailing was dangerous, but was not heeded.

Sailing on toward their destination, the ship was "exceedingly tossed" by tempests, and all feared death. Paul told them an angel had appeared to him in a dream assuring him all would be saved.

Wrecked later in the island of Melita (Malta), they were kindly treated by the natives, and in return, Paul healed the chief's father of a serious sickness, and others that were brought to him.

Arrived in Rome at last, Paul was lodged in a house of his own, but was chained to a Roman soldier. Here he received the chief Jews of the city. MEMORY VERSE—Romans 1:16.

PAUL JOURNEYS TO ROME

GOES CHAINED TO CITY HE WANTED TO VISIT

Scripture—Romans 1:1, 7-15; 15:22-29; 16; Acts 27-28; Philippians 1:12-20; 4:22.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

"PAUL, A SERVANT OF Jesus Christ, called to be an apostle, separated unto the gospel of God," Paul wrote to the disciples at Rome. At this time Paul had never been to the Eternal City, then in the grip of pagans, but he yearned to visit it.

No one knows just when the Christian church at Rome was founded nor by whom. Paul calls the members there "beloved of God, called to be saints." Paul writes of himself as "called to be an apostle." He had never seen Jesus while He was on earth, but Paul was called by the Vision he saw on the road just as if he had been one of those to whom Jesus said, "Follow Me!"

Paul wrote to these saints that he hoped soon to see them. He was evidently planning a trip to Spain, and then would come to them. We have no record of any visit which Paul made to Spain, however. He knew the members of the church in Rome well enough to name them—Phebe, Priscilla, Aquila, Epaenetus, Mary, Andronicus, Amphias and many others.

Paul reached Rome at last—but

From Caesarea, where the party embarked, they sailed to Sidon. Here Julius allowed Paul to visit friends. Though the winds were contrary, they sailed to Cilicia and Pamphylia, and came to Myra, a city in Lycia. From there they boarded an Alexandrian ship, bound for Italy, but after many days' sailing they landed at Lasea, on the ancient island of Crete.

Safe sailing time was now past, and the master of the ship and owner thought to put into Phenice, the Cretan harbor, for winter. Paul warned them that the sea was too treacherous, but Julius would not listen to him, so they started but were blown off their course, coming near to striking the quicksands of the island of Claudia, so they struck sail and were driven along.

For days they saw no sun or stars and the tempest was strong. The men would neither work nor eat, so sure were they that they were lost.

Paul told them they should have heeded his warning and not "loosed from Crete," but that the Angel of the God whom he served had stood by him that night and assured him all would be saved.

MEMORY VERSE

"I am not ashamed of the gospel: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth."—Romans 1:16.

It was as a prisoner, and in chains. A long and tempestuous voyage brought him finally to the city he had so wanted to see.

Long sea voyages may be hazardous even today. On our tremendous floating palaces we journey as if we were in a comfortable hotel on land. There are all sorts of safety devices. We have radio with which to broadcast any peril, swift ships may answer our calls and plough through turbulent waters to our aid. Even so, there are occasional disasters for those "who go down to the sea in ships," as there are in every other mode of travel.

In Paul's time sailing ships were used, and no matter how skillful were the mariners, they were pretty much at the mercy of wind and waves.

Paul's long and stormy voyage shows us clearly what manner of man he was. From the Roman centurion, Julius, who had Paul and the other prisoners in charge, to the lowliest seaman, they seemed to have listened to what he had to say and trusted him. He was a born leader.

He urged them to eat, then "took bread and gave thanks to God in presence of them all," and they ate, and were "all of good cheer."

All got to work then, lightened the ship and made toward a shore. The front part of the ship was driven aground and held fast, but the hinder parts were wrecked. All managed to reach shore, however.

They were on the island of Melita (now Malta), and the natives there gave them food and shelter. In return Paul saved the life of the chief's father who was dangerously ill, and many others who were brought to him.

After three months they departed in another ship, landed at Syracuse, finally got to Rome. Here Paul was given a house of his own, but he was in custody of a soldier—chained lightly to him.

Here he called the Jewish elders to him and told them he had never talked against the Jewish laws as claimed. They said they had not even heard of any such claim. Then he told them of Christ, and some believed but some did not.

Three Records

New York, March 24—(P)—North Carolina State broke three records and tied two more in its 87-74 victory over Holy Cross in last night's Eastern NCAA basketball playoffs.

The new marks. Sam Ranzino scored 32 points to beat the 31 set by North Carolina's George Glamack in 1941. State's point total was high for one quintet in an NCAA tournament, bettering the 85 scored by Kentucky last year.

The 161 scored by both teams also set a record. Kentucky and Illinois set the old mark of 157 last year.

N. C. State's field goal total of 32 tied the record of Oregon in 1945 and its 23 free throws tied Kentucky's mark of last year.

Praises Giants' New Enthusiasm

Oakland, Calif., March 24—(P)—Freddie Fitzsimmons, oldtime pitching star of the New York Giants and now a coach with the club, has high praise for the 1950 squad's pepper and enthusiasm.

"I always thought the 1953 club was the best for spirit, but this one's got it beat," says the chubby Fitz who used to hurl with the great Carl Hubbell, Hal Schumacher, et al. "It's something you can feel. These kids just won't quit. You have to ask them to get them to sit on the bench."

Cubs To Begin Cutting Roster

Los Angeles, Calif., March 24—(P)—The Chicago Cubs begin whittling down their roster today. Manager Frankie Frisch will meet with officials of the Los Angeles Angels, the Cub's farm team, to decide who will be the first to go.

Frisch insists there will be no major amputation of the squad until later, but these players are likely to doff Cub uniforms: outfielder Frank Baumholtz, catcher Forrest Burgess and first baseman Fred Richards.

Power Hitters Believed Found

San Francisco, Calif., March 24—(AP)—Manager Billy Meyer of the Pittsburgh Pirates indicated today he may have found the power hitters he wants to play first and third bases.

Unless he changes his mind Meyer said Rookie Dal Coogan will be at first and Nanny Fernandez at the hot corner when the Bucs open the season.

The Pirates came here to meet the San Francisco Seals of the Pacific Coast in the first of a three-game series.

Jos. Congleton New YDC Head

Joseph Congleton, junior from Littleton, was elected last night as president of the Young Democrats Club at East Carolina Teachers College.

Approximately fifty men and women students were present at an organizational meeting held in the Austin building last night. Chief business transacted during the session was the adoption of a constitution for the club and the election of officers to head the group during the 1950-51 term at the college. Mrs. Betty M. Unterberger of the department of social studies was appointed faculty advisor of the new organization. Those present became charter members of the YDC on the campus.

In addition to Mr. Congleton, the following officers were chosen: Eugene Finer, Wilmington, vice president; Cleson Avery, Cove City, secretary; Jerney Minshew, Stantonsburg, treasurer; and Donald Blood, Greenville, public relations chairman.

Three students were chosen as members-at-large and will serve on the executive board of the organization. These are Carl G. Conner, Windsor; Constantine Fokakis, Wilmington; and Evelyn Littleton, Jacksonville.

Announcement was made during the meeting last night that Terry Sanford, state president of the YDC, will speak at East Carolina Teachers College Thursday, April 13.

La Starza And Marciano Fight

New York, March 24—(P)—A couple of ex-GI's who were trudging through Europe only a few years ago, collided tonight in a Madison Square Garden heavyweight headliner that may send the winner up for a title bout in June.

The former soldiers are Roland La Starza, a smart counter-puncher, and Rocky Marciano, the Brockton, (Mass.) belter with the long knockout string.

Both are unbeaten, without even a single draw to mar their records. La Starza, handsome, 23-year-old New Yorker, has racked up 37 consecutive victories, including 17 knockouts, since he turned pro in the summer of '47.

Rocky started off a year later, but in less than two years the 25-year-old Brockton biffer has put together a string of 26 wins, including 24 knockouts. There's not a draw or a loss mentioned in that list but you can't laugh off that many knockouts.

The fight has the professional observers guessing. The bookmakers, after making Rolie a slight favorite, now rate the ten rounder a pick 'em affair.

Robin Roberts Softened Blow

Clearwater, Fla., March 24—(AP)—Pitcher Robin Roberts is pretty much the fair haired boy around the Philadelphia Phillies training camp today.

His six inning performance went a long way toward softening the 12-7 blow dealt the Phillies yesterday by the Boston Red Sox.

Roberts retired to the showers when his team was ahead 5-4. The defeat was charged to Jocko Thompson.

Campus Studios In 102 Programs

Originating from the campus studios at East Carolina Teachers College were 100 programs broadcast during the winter quarter of 1949-1950. Two additional broadcasts from the Wright auditorium bring the number of college-sponsored and -produced programs to 102 for the period from November 28, 1949 to February 26, 1950.

A report on campus radio activities has just been issued by Marguerite Austin, faculty member and production manager of the college studios. In it she gives a descriptive outline of broadcasts and a numerical summary of types of special and regular programs given during the winter quarter.

The story hour for children, "Once Upon a Time," sponsored by the Teachers Playhouse of the college and given five times each week, leads the list in respect of frequency. A total of fifty-one fifteen-minute broadcasts in the series was presented over the air during the quarter.

Other regularly scheduled broadcasts for the period mentioned in Miss Austin's report were thirteen newscasts by the college News Bureau; nine programs by the college department of music; nine in a series of commentaries on world affairs by faculty members of the social studies department; and a series of sportscasts, interviews, and special broadcasts.

Six departments of instruction were represented in the radio activities of the quarter. Other groups participating in or sponsoring programs include the "Teco Echo," student newspaper; the staff of the Alumni Office on the campus; representatives of the Student Government Association; the Jarvis Forensic Club; officers of the March of Dimes Drive for Pitt County; and the Robert H. Wright Chapter of the Future Teachers of America.

Individual student and faculty participations in various broadcasts, according to Miss Austin, numbered 325.

The college radio studios located in the Communications Center in seven-the-two-states in 1950.

MANY People Are Revising Their Wills There Are ADVANTAGES To Be Gained

Many people who originally named an individual as executor are now revising their wills, and substituting this bank as their executor. They realize that a bank is of a more permanent nature than an individual.

Unlike an individual, this bank does not move about from place to place. It is at hand when needed and carries on without interruption.

Permanence, however, is only one of the numerous advantages to be gained by naming the Guaranty Bank and Trust Company executor and trustee in your will. Economy is another.

There are other advantages. The officers of our Trust Department are:

- Experienced in handling estates, both small and large. Informed on investments and taxes. Impartial toward all parties involved.

A carefully planned will, prepared by your lawyer, protects your estate and your beneficiaries. This valuable protection should be acquired without delay.

Resources Slowed By Red Ink Warns Development Of River

Washington, March 24—(AP)—Senator McClellan (D-Ark.) said today that development of river resources will be retarded so long as there is deficit spending by the federal government.

"A balanced budget is essential to the carrying out of our public improvements program because our entire program is subjected to attack when the federal government operates by deficit spending," he said in an address prepared for the National Rivers and Harbors Congress.

McClellan is president of the congress. It opened a two-day session today.

The Arkansas senator said he is well aware of the urgent need for economy in federal expenditures and that he is "among that group of congressmen and senators who are often publicly maligned and ridiculed and are termed 'reactionary' because we favor sound fiscal policies on the part of the federal government and insist that it should operate under a balanced budget."

It is imperative, McClellan said, "and in the interest of progress toward our goal that Congress eliminate every non-essential expenditure possible from the operating cost of the government and make expenditures for the most needed essentials."

He said that "it is still our firm conviction that it is true economy and a wise, sound business investment for the federal government to spend an adequate amount of public funds in developing the nation's natural resources and in providing the means effectively to combat the floods that are constantly destroying life and property each year in the various parts of the country, and to construct river projects that enhance the economic opportunities of our people and build a stronger nation in conserved and utilized resources and in productive capacity."

Discussing regional or valley authorities, McClellan noted that the Rivers and Harbors Congress repeatedly has expressed opposition to legislation creating such agencies.

He referred to a Hoover Commission recommendation that civil functions of the Army engineers be transferred to the Interior Department.

Such a recommendation, he said, "disregards and discards all wisdom gained by experience of the most competent, efficient and constructive agency of the federal government."

"It is purely a grab for power—an attempt to concentrate in one single agency an unprecedented power both economic and political x x x It has neither supporting data, statistics, experiences, judgment, improved efficiency, nor anything else of merit to recommend it."

Time Is Running Out For Drivers Awaiting Exams

Raleigh, N.C.—Although one-half of the period has passed in which N through Q drivers may seek renewal of their licenses to drive, only one-fourth have taken their examinations, the North Carolina Department of Motor Vehicles reported today.

The department estimated that approximately 190,000 drivers in the state whose last names begin with N, O, P or Q will be required to stand examination in the N through Q period which began January 1 and ends June 30. To date only 55,000 persons in this category have reported for examination.

Department officials stated, "Those who wait till the deadline nears face the prospect of standing in line for their examinations, as drivers in previous examining periods have done when they waited until the rush was on."

FTC Brings New Complaint Over Anti-Cold Ads

Washington, March 24—(AP)—The Federal Trade Commission today accused a third company of "false and misleading" advertising to promote the sale of anti-cold drugs.

The latest action involves the anti-histamine preparation sold under the trade name "Kriptin" and manufactured by Whitehall Pharmaceutical Co. of New York.

The FTC complaints closely followed those made earlier in the week against Bristol-Myers Co. and the Anahist Co., Inc., also of New York. The trade commission accused all three firms of "unfair and deceptive" practices in advertising their anti-histamine products.

Of "Kriptin," FTC specifically said:

"The use of Kriptin by persons who have a common cold infection when such infection first became manifest will not prevent such manifestations from becoming more severe, prevent the development of other manifestations, or result in a cure of all such manifestations."

Under Federal law, the trade commission can order a halt to the allegedly "false and misleading" advertising if the agency's charges of such practices are proven. In this connection, FTC gave Whitehall—as it did Bristol-Myers and Anahist—20 days to answer the complaint.

... how will your tractor perform?

An engine tune-up often saves 10 percent or more on fuel. That is in addition to better performance, more pulling power, and less trouble. The saving on fuel alone is often more than the cost of a tune-up.

How much do you spend for tractor fuel each year? You'll be money ahead with a tractor that is properly adjusted.

'Best Excuse'

Los Angeles, March —(AP)—Clarence E. Williams, 51, pleaded guilty to falling to signal for a left-hand turn but save the judge this alibi:

"The reason my window wasn't down and I didn't signal was that I had canaries in my car," said Williams. "They'd have flown out or caught pneumonia."

"Best excuse I've heard in two years," commented Judge Roger A. Pfaff when he heard the case yesterday. "Five dollar fine suspended."

Released From Prison To Die

Detroit, Mich., March —(AP)—A broken, old woman was free from prison today—to die.

She is Mrs. Minnie Lambert, 61, who spent the last 18 years behind bars for the slaying of her husband in 1932.

She will die, doctors say, within 10 to 15 days of cancer, a heart ailment and asthma.

Seaman Does Not Recall Slaying

Washington, N. C., March —(AP)—Ralph Midgette, a seaman, testified today he remembered nothing of the slaying of his captain, Glenn Willis, here Jan. 25.

He had been drinking heavily, he said, and went to sleep aboard his ship, the freighter-excursion boat Lindsay C. Warren, at dock here.

GENERAL DEPARTS

Washington, March 23—(AP)—Gen. Omar Bradley left today for the Netherlands to go over regional defense plans with military leaders of the 12 Atlantic treaty allies.

A whale would drown quickly if deprived of air.

There was a mystic glow in his tired eyes which seemed just a little beyond normal family pride. I laid a hand on his shoulder. "It doesn't do to live too much in the past, old man," I said.

He looked at me; for an instant I thought he seemed startled.

Although I had promised myself an exploration trip down the Smugglers' Stairway, it was several days before I got around to it. Then, armed with a flash light, I set out.

The stairway went straight down to what I judged was the foot of the tower in which both Greg's room and mine were, then it went off at right angles around the library and descended sharply again. Sometimes the stairs ended in a corridor which ran straight for a short distance, and sometimes they descended sharply. On the corridors were massive doors which opened into chambers hewn out of the rock. According to what I had gathered from the charts, the old dungeons and cellars were under the old building and connected with the new chambers and tunnels. But I had no time now to explore those although they intrigued my imagination.

So I passed the heavy, iron-bound doors and went on. The floor of the last corridor slanted downward and I found myself in a cave. Its naturally vaulted ceiling was lofty and as evenly arched as that of a cathedral. Outside was the sea, glimpsed through the arched opening partly choked with drift wood. Driftwood and seaweed lay on the floor also, with shells and eddies of sand, showing that at high tide the sea came well within the cave opening. Originally it had been the sea which made this vaulted chamber. In the walls near the entrance were iron rings on which, no doubt, Ian the smuggler had fastened his boats.

I stepped through the entrance and stood forth on the narrow strip of beach. The sea and air were the same murky gray, and seemed to intermingle in a moist, cold blanket of fog which wrapped me around. But I could see enough to understand the position of the cave.

It was set back in a narrow cove, from the sides of which rose steeply the cliffs, and an entrance so narrow and twisting that it seemed not to exist at all, an illusion all the stronger, I should judge, if viewed from a boat a little distance from shore. At any rate, a man in a boat on a dark night could dodge in there and elude his pursuers very neatly, especially if they half believed him to be a ghost anyway.

I found myself looking at something else, and because it fitted in with the smugglers and pirates with which my imagination had been occupied I almost took it for a part of the setting. Then I remembered that after all this century, that Black Ian had been dead for some centuries, and this was not a pirate yarn, but cold, raw, reality.

Lying on the beach, half submerged in the water, was the body of a man.

For several seconds I stood there, staring, my mind trying to comprehend this fact. The body lay motionless, while the water lapped around him and through his sodden clothing. It was something of a shock to discover that he was dressed in conventional business clothes of blue serge. Had he been garbed in true pirate fashion I think he would have been easier to accept.

Then I came out of my daze and knelt on the sand. The man was dead. I turned him over, for he was lying with his face in the sand, and noted several things about his appearance. He was swarthy, and across one cheek there was a jagged scar which should make identification easy. Had he fallen over the cliff, or had his boat overturned and drowned him perhaps miles from

It was set back in a narrow cove, from the sides of which rose steeply the cliffs, and an entrance so narrow and twisting that it seemed not to exist at all, an illusion all the stronger, I should judge, if viewed from a boat a little distance from shore. At any rate, a man in a boat on a dark night could dodge in there and elude his pursuers very neatly, especially if they half believed him to be a ghost anyway.

I found myself looking at something else, and because it fitted in with the smugglers and pirates with which my imagination had been occupied I almost took it for a part of the setting. Then I remembered that after all this century, that Black Ian had been dead for some centuries, and this was not a pirate yarn, but cold, raw, reality.

Lying on the beach, half submerged in the water, was the body of a man.

For several seconds I stood there, staring, my mind trying to comprehend this fact. The body lay motionless, while the water lapped around him and through his sodden clothing. It was something of a shock to discover that he was dressed in conventional business clothes of blue serge. Had he been garbed in true pirate fashion I think he would have been easier to accept.

Then I came out of my daze and knelt on the sand. The man was dead. I turned him over, for he was lying with his face in the sand, and noted several things about his appearance. He was swarthy, and across one cheek there was a jagged scar which should make identification easy. Had he fallen over the cliff, or had his boat overturned and drowned him perhaps miles from

The master of ceremonies paid tribute to Past Jaycee President Tom Wilson and Mrs. Wilson, who are recovering at their home here from injuries received in an automobile accident in South Carolina recently.

Fellowship and sparkling entertainment featured the annual Jaycee banquet.

Tolar Gives His Side Of Incident

Lumberton, N.C., March 24—(AP)—State Highway Patrol Commander C. R. Tolar gave the Lumberton Lions Club last night his version of the incident which led to his indictment this week by a Beaufort County grand jury on charges of reckless driving.

Col. Tolar spoke on the subject "Discourtesy on the Highways."

He commented, "Folks think they own the world when they are under a steering wheel."

Tolar said the day of the incident in Beaufort County he was on his way to dedicate a Red Cross first aid station when he received word of a highway accident. Proceeding on his way he saw a large number of cars which he presumed was the scene of the wreck.

Tolar said he "touched" his siren to clear the crowd and then "touched" it again when a highway patrolman stopped him. As he proceeded on his way, Tolar said he used his two-way radio to order two more patrolmen to what he still thought was the scene of a wreck. He said he didn't know at any time that it was a funeral.

Senator Taft, Ohio Republican and one of the authors of T-H, is fighting the President's plan to knock out Denham's job.

He has called it a political move to amend T-H after this Congress in spite of Mr. Truman's promptings has failed to make any changes in it.

Under the President's plan the NLRB would have a counsel but he'd be under control of the board. This plan of Mr. Truman's affecting Denham is one of 21 the President offered Congress on March 13.

All 21 plans are called "reorganization plans," and follow, more or less, recommendations made by a commission—headed by former President Hoover—for improving the government set-up.

These recommendations were made a couple of years ago. Only about 20 per cent of them have been put into effect so far. This would be raised to 50 per cent if the 21 plans offered a week ago get by Congress all right.
