U.S. Charges Plane Downed Over Open Sea By Russians

Note Demands Punishment And Payment Of Indemnity; Flatly Reject Claim U.S. Plane Flew Over Russian Territory In Strong Protest

Washington, April 18—(AP)—The United States charged today that Russian fighters shot down the missing American Navy patrol plane over open waters of the Baltic sea.

It demanded that Russia punish those responsible and pay appropriate indemnity for the lives of the ten men lost in the plane.

The charge and the demand were made in a formal reply to Russia's protest of April 11 that an American plane had flown over Latvia and exchanged gunfire with Soviet aircraft on April 8.

The American note, delivered in Moscow by Ambassador Alan G. F. I. dom, led also that "the most strict and categorical instructions" be issued to the Soviet air force to prevent any new incident "and clearly calculated to magnify the difficulties of maintaining peaceful and correct international relationship."

The note flatly rejected Russia's claim that the American plane flew over Russian territory in violation of international law.

It charged the Soviets with a "violation of international law and of the most elementary rules of peaceful conduct between nations."

The 600-word counter protest said the American investigation determined that the U. S. plane involved was the navy four-engine Privateer patrol craft which has been missing in the Baltic sea since April 8.

All American aircraft operate under strict instructions to avoid flying over any foreign territory except with express permission, the note said.

It added that the U. S. investigation convinced this government that the navy plane did not fly over "any Soviet or Soviet occupied territory or territorial waters adjacent thereto."

In view of the findings, the note said "it must be concluded that Soviet military aircraft fired upon an unarmed American plane over the open sea following which the American airplane was lost."

When the text of the communication was released here, a state department spokesman, press officer Michael J. McDermott, also made a formal statement which rebuked Russia for failing to show the "slightest evidence of any concern over the fate of the 10 missing Americans."

By contrast, he praised the non-Communist Scandinavian countries for their active efforts in the rescue search.

This supplementary statement said that the investigation determined: "An unarmed American navy plane with ten persons aboard was shot down by Soviet fighter planes over the open waters of the Baltic sea."

More sharply worded than the note itself, the statement also said Russia "ostentatiously" decorated the Soviet airmen "in a manner calculated to give the impression that they are being rewarded for shooting down an American airplane."

It declared the Soviet government's attitude all through the investigation "shows clearly the insincerity of its oft-proclaimed desire for peaceful relations with the United States and the non-Soviet world in general."

In Moscow, Ambassador Kirk had an appointment with Soviet deputy foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko at 9 p. m. (EST) to deliver the note. The state department made the note public here later following Moscow's procedure in publishing the initial protest on April 11.

President Pledges New Bi-Partisanship Effort

Truman And Acheson Offer New Assurances Republicans Will Be Kept Informed And Views Sought On Foreign Policy

Washington, April 18—(AP)—President Truman and Secretary of State Acheson today offered assurances that Republicans will be kept informed and their views solicited in an effort to establish "a true bi-partisan foreign policy."

In a statement issued after calling Senator Bridges (R-NH) to the White House for an unusual conference, the President declared:

"With the problems facing the United States in the field of foreign relations it is most important that every effort be made to maintain a true bi-partisan foreign policy."

"It will be my purpose as well as that of Secretary Acheson not only to keep the members of the minority currently informed, but to solicit their views and take them into account in both the formulation and implementation of our foreign policy."

First word of the new efforts to rebuild the bi-partisan foreign policy framework came when Bridges emerged from the White House conference with Mr. Truman and Acheson.

Bridges, ranking Republican member of the Senate appropriations committee, said he had been summoned to the White House as the senior Republican in point of service in the absence of Senator Vandenberg, who is ill.

He said he got the impression that from time to time the President and the Secretary of State plan to meet with GOP leaders and acquaint them more intimately with developments in Foreign Relations.

Bridges was one of the Republicans Mr. Truman criticized in a news conference at Key West, March 30, as being "assets" of the Kremlin because of their support of Senator McCarthy (R-Wis.) who has charged the state department is harboring Communists and Communist sympathizers.

Earlier, Senate Republicans had received the promise of John Sherman Cooper, new adviser to Secretary Acheson, that they would be kept fully informed on foreign policy making.

City politics in Greenville which has taken a back seat to county activities during recent weeks took a turn to the more active side yesterday and today as candidates filed for each of the five aldermanic posts which are subject to the election this year.

City Clerk J. O. Duval reported shortly after noon today that four members of the present board of aldermen have filed for reelection for another two-year term, and a new candidate has entered the field in the third ward.

C. B. Mayo has filed for reelection in the second ward, and Robert S. Elks has filed for the post of alderman in the third ward which is now held by Alderman L. M. Buchanan. Buchanan announced in January he would not seek reelection to the city board in May.

Alderman J. E. Collins has filed for reelection to the board from the fourth ward. Alderman J. E. Waldrop has filed for reelection for the two-year term in the fifth ward, and Alderman James S. Jenkins has filed for reelection from the fifth ward for the one-year term.

Outlook For Excise Tax Cut Dims; Veto Feared

Washington, April 18—(AP)—The outlook for a $1,000,000,000 slash in excise levies—or any reduction at all this year—looked dim today.

The tax bill being whipped up in congress may run into a presidential veto.

Chairman Doughton (D-NC) of the tax-framing House Ways and Means committee told newsmen "the prospects are not bright" that the committee can produce a bill reducing excise taxes—on such things as furs, jewelry, luggage, toilet articles, transportation and communications—and at the same time make up the revenue loss by larger collections elsewhere.

In a special message to Congress January 23 Mr. Truman called for a cut in excises, but he said he couldn't approve such cuts unless they were accompanied by provisions for replacement of the revenue lost.

The tax legislation managers on Capitol Hill have not given up hope of coming within the specifications the President laid down, if a veto is to be avoided.

But some say they hope Mr. Truman will sign the bill, if it falls only a few million short of finding other tax sources to cover up the excise cut.

Rigid Potato Control Program Winning Support

Washington, April 18—(AP)—A rigid federal control program intended to end multi-million dollar government losses on surplus potatoes was approved 8 to 1 by the Senate Agriculture committee today.

One new feature was added to the tight controls and heavy penalties previously voted by an Agriculture subcommittee.

Senator Ellender (D-La.), acting chairman, said the new provision would "give the secretary of agriculture the authority to cut back marketing quotas by areas or regions as much as 20 per cent."

"This could be done even after the farmer complied with acreage limits and restrictions on the bushels he could market, if the secretary found a surplus existed," he added.

Death Rate For Russian 'Brass' Indicated Purge

Rash Of Obituaries In Six-Month Period Has Observers Speculating

New York, April 18—(AP)—Moscow has announced, in the past half year, the deaths of 15 Russian Generals and Admirals—some of them rather young.

The appearance of such obituaries so frequently in the Soviet press naturally arouses speculation in the west over the possibility of a new purge in the Soviet Union. However, there has been no hint in the notices which pass through Moscow censorship that a purge actually is under way.

Even if the Soviet press has reported all the deaths of the top military brass, a rather high mortality rate is indicated, particularly when a number of the officers were in their forties.

Other high-ranking Soviet functionaries also have passed away recently. They include Peter Anurov, a Counselor first class in the Soviet Foreign Ministry. His age was not given in the March 6 death notice, but it said death was "untimely." Another such was Anatoli Kopytov, Minister of Cinematography, who died March 10. He was only 43.

Alexander Petukhov, Deputy Chief of the Communist party central committee organization bureau, died April 13. His age was not given. Scientist Nikolai Lustin died suddenly March 3. He was once under fire on a charge of being servile to the ideas of western scientists.

Last week the Berlin newspaper Tagesspiegel published a report that Maj. Gen. Pavel Kvashnin, former railway chief in Germany, killed himself and his family when he was caught trying to escape from Poland to Sweden.

The newspaper gave directors of the Soviet-run rail system as its source for the report, Communist officials denied it; western officials said they did not know.

Russia's last big purge was in the mid-thirties, when a large number of Generals and Admirals were whisked off to firing squads. The supporters of Prime Minister Stalin managed by this to forestall an attempt to seize the power from him—but the purge wounds were a little time healing.

The executions were over-enthusiastic then, as even some Communists since have admitted. The purge of the thirties probably would not be repeated in such a way, before the eyes of the world. If a new purge were under way now, the chances are it would proceed slowly and quietly, without fuss or fanfare.

Why might there be a purge today? Stalin is aging—possibly even ill. In the not distant future the mantle of power must be passed on.

Aggressive, ruthless Georgi Malenkov, boss of the Communist party's apparatus, is a likely bet. And being a seasoned opportunist, Malenkov might not hesitate to put out the way anyone who might thwart him.

$2,500 Gift For Girl Scout Camp

Local Rotarians Give Sum For Improvement Program

By WYATT BROWN Greenville Rotarians gave $2,500 last night to get under way a proposed $8,500 improvement program for Camp Hardee. The camp is used by Girl Scouts of Eastern North Carolina.

Everything to put the camp in "first class condition" and adequate in capacity, Ernest Webb, Rotary club president, made clear in presenting the matter to the Rotarians.

The total of $3,500 is to be raised immediately prior to opening of Camp Hardee this season, according to the plans formulated by the Rotary Camp Hardee committee in conference with the leaders of the Girl Scout Council $150 will be for shrubbing and leveling; $200 for pumping in sand to enlarge the beach to improve the water front facilities; $3,000 for two buildings equipped with adequate washroom and toilet facilities utilizing running water.

The other $5,000 proposed is to be used to construct eight more cabins to replace some out-moded present housing and to increase the camp capacity for Scouts. This last amount is included in the plans for the future but may not be raised this year. Mr. Webb suggested in making the presentation of the improvement.

'Glamor Look' In Selling Potatoes

Sacramento, Calif., April 18—(AP)—Potatoes out here are acquiring a glamorous new look—and at the expense of consumers.

S. R. Whipple, a California agriculture operator, told about it today: "Some operators dye cheap, old potatoes to make them look like new or higher quality varieties. They treat cheap sweet potatoes to look like expensive velvets."

American Lady Plant Sold To Group New York Investors; Consider Move

Kyzer Confers With New Manager Of Plant

Frank Miles (right), new general manager of the Greenville plant of American Lady, Inc. conferred with Willard T. Kyzer (left), manager of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce, today after reports were confirmed late yesterday that the corporation had been sold to new owners. Miles said the new owners, a group of New York investors, do not contemplate resuming operations in the Greenville plant. (Reflector staff photo.)

New Owners Said Not Contemplating Resumption Of Operations Here; Plant Will Be Kept Open For Indefinite Period, But Move Is In Offing

American Lady, Inc. which has operated a plant in Greenville since September 1948 has been sold to a group of New York investors.

Robert S. Amberg, former president of American Lady, Inc. and Frank Miles, new general manager of the Greenville plant, late yesterday confirmed reports that the corporation has been purchased by new owners.

Miles and Amberg said the corporation would be forced to strip the plant in Greenville, N.C., and transfer plants in Greenville, N.C., and Worcester, Mass. was closed last week.

During March rumors of the sale of the plant here were widespread and about three weeks ago Amberg announced the company officials would cease production in the Greenville plant. At its peak the local plant employed approximately 250 people.

Miles said this morning "It is not contemplated that we will" resume operations in the Greenville plant. He said if a successor is not found to take over the operations of the plant here, the company would be forced to strip the building and move its equipment.

He told Willard Kyzer, manager of the Greenville chamber of commerce, this morning that the new owners "would welcome the efforts of the chamber of commerce to get another industry take over the building and the plant."

The new general manager said the new company owners are thinking of moving the entire operations of the company to Worcester, Mass. The American Lady, Inc. manufactures corsets, brassieres and other women's foundation garments.

Miles said the Greenville plant will be kept open for an indefinite period of time and will continue to fill orders for merchandise from the stock of goods now on hand. He said between 20 and 25 persons in the office force and maintenance force of the plant will remain on their jobs.

"The plant is available as a going business," Miles commented. He added that a large number of people who were dependents on the American Lady plant for livelihood are now on relief rolls in this area. "They've all been trained as needle people," he added.

Former President Anberg said some of the machine operators who were employed by the plant "were very good."

Amberg, who has made his home in Greenville since American Lady moved the full operations of its Detroit plant here some time ago, said he and his family will return to Detroit where he has other business interests.

Miles said the New York group which purchased the entire American Lady company is headed by Ben Platt who has become the new president of the company. He said the group of investors which purchased the company has various other business interests. Ball formerly was a merchant, Miles said.

Miles came to Greenville Saturday to take over the local plant for the new owners. He is a resident of California and came here from Los Angeles.

EXECUTIVES CLUB MEET Samuel D. Rosen, Russian born American citizen, will speak tonight to the Pitt County Executives club at the meeting of the group at 7 o'clock in the north dining hall on the East Carolina campus.

Pact Powers Say Money Is Lacking

U.S. Told They Can't Pay For Required Equipment

Brussels, Belgium, April 18—(AP)—Key Atlantic pact nations have told the United States they don't have the money to supply some of the military equipment required by present defense plans.

Cabinet ministers of the five western European union nations—Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg—submitted a list of their equipment deficiencies to U.S. ambassador to London Lewis Douglas at a sudden, hurried conference here yesterday.

The foreign, defense and finance ministers had tried for two days to draft a joint plan for meeting Atlantic pact requirements.

The list of equipment deficiencies and their cost, contained no formal request for increased U.S. aid, a Western official said. But observers considered it carried a clear inference that more U.S. financial help was needed.

The deficiencies, the official said were in addition to equipment anticipated from the United States under the present military aid program.

The conference agreed that such projects in present defense plans as the arming of a certain number of infantry divisions should be put into effect immediately, a press officer said.

Cripps Retains Profit Curbs In Budget Policy

London, April 18—(AP)—Sir Stafford Cripps eased income tax burdens for sorely pressed British workers today, but clamped a checkrein on runaway costs of the welfare state.

The income tax change is designed to save his wage freeze policy against which masses of unionized British workers are threatening a serious revolt.

Cripps firmly clung to his two-and-one-half year old policy of holding down wages and profits. "It is vital that the policy of wage, salary, and profit restraint should not be broken down," he said near the end of his long budget speech to the House of Commons.

Light Turnout In Bond Election

Asheville, April 18—(AP)—A light turnout was reported at the polls today as Buncombe county voters cast their ballots in a $5,500,000 school bond election. Also at stake was the voting in addition to the question of the issuance of bonds is the consolidation of school district debts. In one precinct with 1,138 registered voters, 98 ballots had been cast by noon. Voting was expected to become heavier during the afternoon.

Senator Wants Former FBI Men To Be Heard

McCarthy To Ask Gov't Subpoena Two Ex-Agents For Testimony In Connection With Charges Against Lattimore

Washington, April 18—(AP)—Senator McCarthy (R-Wis.) announced today that he will ask senators investigating his charges of Communism in the government to subpoena two former FBI agents.

He said one of the FBI men became a member of the Communist party in order to carry on "under cover" work.

McCarthy told reporters he would give the names of the two men to Edward P. Morgan, counsel for the Senate foreign relations investigating subcommittee, later.

He declined to disclose the identity of either man. It was understood that both witnesses would testify in connection with McCarthy's charges that Owen Lattimore is Russia's top agent in this country.

Lattimore, a Johns Hopkins University professor, has labeled McCarthy's charges "pure moonshine" and called the senator an unmitigated liar. Lattimore told the committee under oath he is not a Communist and never has been one.

Louis Budenz, former Communist editor, is to appear before the committee Thursday at the request of McCarthy to testify in the Lattimore case.

McCarthy called a news conference to announce that he wants the subcommittee to hear the two former FBI men.

"I also will have other witnesses in the next few days who will either corroborate or supplement Budenz's statement," he said.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee held a session today to discuss some of the questions which have arisen in the investigation. One is the refusal of President Truman to give the subcommittee the loyalty files on persons named by McCarthy as Communists or Communist sympathizers.

In advance of the meeting, Chairman Connally (D-Tex.) said it would be "silly and ashine" for Congress to make an issue of Mr. Truman's action. Some Republicans have contended the Senate should try to force delivery of the files.

Surgeon Says Country Ignoring T. B. Vaccine

Denver, April 18—(AP)—A Detroit surgeon says this country is ignoring a vaccine that will control tuberculosis—the disease that causes one death every ten minutes in the U.S.

The surgeon, Dr. Edward J. O'Brien, made this statement yesterday in a report to the American Association for Thoracic Surgery, of which he is president.

Present methods of treating T.B. won't lick the disease in a thousand years, he declared.

The answer, Dr. O'Brien said, is BCG, a vaccine developed in France. It has been used on millions of people in foreign countries, he said, and made 70 to 90 per cent of them immune to T.B. for four and one-half to five years.

Over a 20-year period, no harmful results were reported from use of the vaccine, he said. In fact, one doctor, by accident, gave a patient 2,000 times the normal dose, with no bad effects.

Yes, despite the proving period of two decades, he declared, the U.S. Public Health Service, with "ostrich-like" apathy, "still wishes us to continue experimental work on a small scale."

"BCG has been universally accepted as absolutely harmless," he said, "and does confer immunity up to 90 per cent or over. There can no longer be any valid reason for it being withheld."

Dr. O'Brien recommended nationwide vaccination of all babies at birth, followed by new inoculations every four to five years "from the cradle to the grave."

General MacArthur ordered a compulsory T.B. vaccination program in Japan, he said, and 31,000,000 people received shots, with a consequent reduction of 88 per cent in the death toll.

Cite Maragon's Bank Accounts

Washington, April 18—(AP)—The perjury trial of John F. Maragon produced evidence today that at the time he admitted having only one bank account he had another in Texas under the name of J. H. Maragon.

The onetime bootblack, who used to have friends at the White House, is on trial in federal court on charges of lying to Senate investigators last year about his business affairs.

Among other things, the government has accused him of lying when he told the senators last July 28 that in 1945 and 1946 his only bank account was in Washington.

Budenz Takes Stand

Former Communist Has Testified Several Times In The Past Against Communists, Thursday He Will Again Speak; McCarthy's Case Rests Largely On Testimony

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, April 18—(AP)—A man who has had a deeply troubled inner life will take the witness stand here Thursday. He is Louis Budenz, 59, a former Communist.

Senator McCarthy, Wisconsin Republican, has said Budenz will testify that Owen Lattimore was known to him to be a Communist. Lattimore, an expert on Asia, has been a consultant of the State Department on occasion.

Budenz will appear before the Senate committee which is investigating McCarthy's charges that the State Department has hired Communists. When he first made them, McCarthy's charges were very sweeping.

Since then, he's narrowed them down. Nine people named as pro-Communists or poor security risks not only denied his accusations but most of them denounced McCarthy.

Finally, McCarthy said his whole case would stand or fall on what he had to say about Lattimore.

At first, McCarthy called Lattimore the "top Soviet espionage agent" in this country. Lattimore, appearing before the committee denied McCarthy's charges and challenged him to make the charges publicly where he could be sued.

Save-The-UN Effort

Trygve Lie's Proposed Visit With Stalin In Moscow To Seek Resumption Of Normal Relations With Hamstrung Peace Organization; Peace Efforts Failed

By DEWITT MacKENZIE Secretary General Trygve Lie of the United Nations is considering the idea of visiting Marshal Stalin in Moscow in an effort to get Russia and her satellites to resume negotiations with the now hamstrung peace organization.

This is a part of the Secretary General's save-the-U. N. campaign, and he is being viewed in a different light from previous proposals for peace-appeals to Moscow. Most of the former suggestions involved officials of various Western governments, and immediately evoked cries of "appeasement."

Home, Mr. Trygve Lie is in a unique position. As Secretary General of the U. N. he is a servant of all nations. He is in effect a "citizen of the world" whose job is to act as mediator in the effort of settling all countries together.

As a matter of fact, if the Secretary General does carry his plea to Moscow, it will tend to put the Soviet Union on a spot where it may have to declare itself either for or against peace. Previous approaches by Western statesmen have failed because of the very fact that they were Western statesmen and therefore could be viewed by the Kremlin as having axes to grind.

The Secretary General is sailing for Europe next Saturday on what will be the most important mission he has undertaken since he became head of the U. N. four years ago. He expects to confer with British Secretary of State Bevin in London and with French Foreign Minister Schuman in Paris, and then he may head for Moscow.

There have of course been innumerable issues over which Russia and the Western powers have clashed in the U. N. One of the hottest revolves about the continued membership of Nationalist China. The Soviet representatives and their satellites have been demanding that the Chinese Communist government be given the membership in view of its military victory over the Nationalists.

The fight has got so bitter that Russia now is boycotting 20 U. N. organizations. Lie himself has been campaigning for the seating of the Chinese Communists, contending that this is the "common sense" as well as the legalistic approach.

Mr. Lie maintains that the U. N. (Continued on page two)

Coast-To-Coast TV Network

New York, April 18—(P)—The American Telephone and Telegraph Company yesterday announced plans to make television network facilities available from coast to coast by late 1951 or early 1952.

The announcement said new communities being added to the peil system network this year include Greensboro and Charlotte, N. C.

The coast to coast link will be a two-channel circuit. It will be used first for telephone messages, but can be converted to television on short notice if the occasion arises.

Lived 19 Years In An Iron Lung

Poughkeepsie, N.Y., April 18 — (AP)—Death yesterday took 32-year-old Birdall Sweet out of the iron lung that kept him breathing during 19 years of polio.

He had lived in an iron lung longer than any other human in medical history. The next longest case was 15 years.

The young man's release came at the end of a slow decline that began last summer and grew more serious two months ago. Doctors called it "complications of long-established polio."

Sweet's father and mother, who spent a good part of their own lives serving their imprisoned son, were with him when he died.

"They have been a marvelously attentive family," the physician, Dr. Scott Lord Smith, said. The father, Percy Sweet, is a Beacon, N.Y. real estate man.

Sweet was stricken with polio when he was 13 years old. While he survived the first attack, he had to stay in the lung or stop breathing. Later he was able to leave it for short intervals, sometimes up to six hours, but always had to return.

Pre-School Clinic Is Scheduled Thursday

All parents whose children will be six years old before October 1, 1950 and who plan to start them in school next Fall are urged to bring them to the Pre-School Clinic at Third Street School at 1:30 p.m. this Thursday.

If the child has had all his required vaccinations the parent is urged to bring his immunization record.

membership should go to the government that controls the majority of the people and the land mass. He wants the Red Chinese seated right away in order to bring the Russians back.

In this connection it's interesting to note that Republican Adviser John Foster Dulles also maintains in a new book that the Red Chinese government should be admitted to the U.N. if the regime "in fact" proves its ability to govern China without serious domestic resistance.

However, Dulles doesn't think the Reds can demonstrate this ability to rule China.

One would think that the neutral head of the peace organization would be able to win Moscow over if anyone could. So if the Secretary General makes the trip to Moscow, his progress will be watched with intense interest the world over. But perhaps we shouldn't be heavily optimistic over the outcome.

paper, the "Daily Worker."

On Oct. 10, 1945—ten years after joining—Budenz quit the party and his job and went back into the Catholic Church, a step he had been planning for two years. The ex-communication ban on him was lifted.

Soon he wrote the story of his life, "This Is My Story." That book opens on a very religious note for Budenz dedicates it to "Mary Immaculate, Patroness of Our Beloved Land."

Deep in the book, writing of his decision to get out of the party and back into the church, Budenz said he "experienced a sense of peace such as I had not enjoyed for three stormy decades."

Budenz' testimony probably will be of much importance to the whole McCarthy case for over the weekend criticism of McCarthy sprouted out in different places.

The Catholic Review, official organ of the Archdiocese of Washington and Baltimore, called on McCarthy to "put up or shut up," to "cut out the talk and come up with the facts."

Senator Tydings, Maryland Democrat and chairman of the committee investigating McCarthy's accusations, said the latter had offered no proof to back up his charges.

And even one of McCarthy's fellow Republicans, Senator Bridges of New Hampshire, said McCarthy "went too far" in the extent of his charges although Bridges called the Wisconsin senator a "great American."

Ted Collins' pro football team, known as the New York Bulldogs in 1949, will play under the name of New York Yanks in 1950.

Lack In Training Facilities For Disabled Vets

Many disabled veterans in this area have been unable to embark on a rehabilitation project because of the lack of training opportunities of a nature which is in keeping with their natural aptitudes.

These veterans have been waiting 30 days or longer for an opportunity to train under Public Law 16, and each has a definite need for vocational rehabilitation in order to help him overcome the handicap of his wartime disability and again pursue a gainful occupation, Gilbert L. Winders Sr., Veterans Administration facilities officer for this area of the state, said today.

Each has undergone expert counseling, including tests and interviews which pointed up his aptitudes, talents and interests. Also, it has been medically determined that the occupation in which it has been recommended that he train, will not interfere with his employability nor aggravate his disability, Mr. Winders explained.

The actual training of each of these veterans depends on the assistance offered the veteran by industry, business establishments, offices and the like.

Mr. Winders says he now has two veterans awaiting opportunities to train as auto mechanics; another two veterans wanting to train as radio repairmen, and one other as sheet metal worker and two as cabinet makers.

Any employers desiring full information as to the simple working agreements that can be made with the VA for participating in the on-

DAR Opens New Fund Campaign

Washington, April 18—(AP)—Mrs. Roscoe T. O'Bryne, president of the Daughters of The American Revolution, today launched the organization's 59th continental congress on a $225,000 fund-pledging campaign between now and Friday noon.

The money is needed to raise to $900,000 the $675,000 in cash and pledges already given in the 1948 and 1949 congresses to pay for the new administration building.

Families Plead Children Return

New York, April 18—(AP)—"All-forgiveness" messages came today from the worried parents of missing Chain store heiress Joyce Green, 18, and her Cuban admirer, Juan Gonzales Cuevas, 22.

Both families pleaded with the young people to get in touch with them and end a police search that began Friday, and now stretches from Canada to the Gulf of Mex-

Selecting Jury Today For Walter W. Carson Trial

The jury which will hear the case of Walter Wade Carson, 24-year-old Bethel resident accused of rape, will be chosen this afternoon from a special venire of 100 names summoned yesterday afternoon and last night.

The case, which will begin about 2:30 this afternoon, will have an acting solicitor in addition to the new jury. Charles Whedbee, solicitor for the county court, will represent the State. Solicitor Dick Bundy requested the change in favor of Whedbee because of his own relationship to the defendant.

The venire was ordered by Judge J. Paul Frizzelle yesterday. Sheriff Ruel Tyson said just before noon today he had finished summoning all the persons about one o'clock this morning. No one on the venire is from Bethel township.

Carson was indicted early in January for allegedly raping Daphne Janet Bowers, 17-year-old girl, also of Bethel. Held in Pitt County jail, Carson was released after a preliminary hearing in Greenville Recorder's Court. His bond was set at $10,000.

Assisting Whedbee in the prosecution will be S. O. Worthington of Greenville, H. C. Carter of Washington and Elbert Peele of Williamston.

Counsel for the defendant will be Albion Dunn and J. B. James of Greenville, and Clifton W. Everette of Bethel.

In an effort to clear the calendar so the Carson case could come to trial today, Solicitor Bundy put two cases ahead of it this morning and judgments were rendered.

The two this morning were: Joe G. Rutledge, resisting arrest, reckless driving and speeding; prayer for judgment, continued, on payment of costs.

Harold Boyce, for remand; remanded to lower court. Yesterday Superior Court recessed for the afternoon in deference to the funeral of Capt. Lester

Jones of the State Highway Patrol who died early Sunday morning and buried in Greenville yesterday. Further judgments yesterday were:

Robert Moore, for judgment absolute; continued for the term. Clarence David Prigden, driving drunk; three months, suspended, on payment of $100 fine and costs. John Wesley Darden, breaking and entering and larceny; plead guilty, 12 months.

Clifton Johnson, three counts of breaking and entering and larceny; plead guilty, 12 months on first count, 12 months on second count to begin at expiration of first count, six months on third count to begin at expiration of second count.

William E. Stegin and S. L. Fordham, Jr., larceny; both plead guilty, sentenced to state prison for not less than two and not more than three years, sentences to run concurrently with a 3-5 year sentence from Lenoir County, sentence to begin at end of present sentence if restitution of $30 is not made to Lenoir plaintiff for theft of a cow.

Charlie Smith, liquor; motion for non-suit allowed.

Four players from the Kansas City Mohawks were named on the U. S. Hockey League all-star team chosen by loop players.

Scott Calls For Cooperation In Fire Prevention

Raleigh, April 18—(AP)—Governor Scott today appealed to citizens of the state to cooperate in preventing forest fires.

"We are in the middle of the worst fire season this state has experienced since 1941 and 1942," the governor said in a statement.

The governor said that during March more than 40,000 acres of timber was burned and so far in April 12 large fires in Eastern North Carolina have burned more than 80,000 acres.

Magistrate Fines Farmer For Burning Brush Wrong Time

In Magistrate Frank Brooks court Monday, he found Leroy Best colored, of the Ballard's Crossroads community, guilty of burning brush after the forest wardens had canceled all brush burning permits. Testimony was that Best, son of Major Best, owner of the farm, had violated the state law. Magistrate Brooks fined him $10 and costs.

Baffled By Bow And Arrow Man

Rye, N.Y., April 18—(AP)—Robin Hood would have loved E. Frank O'Hara.

William Tell would have clasped his hand.

But the Rye Wood Golf and Country Club loathes him worse than a sand trap or a water hazard.

For O'Hara is a man with a bow and arrow—and a mission. His mission is to keep golfers, and golf balls, off his property, which adjoins the club half way down No. 2 fairway. It's a short hole, and a hefty hook off second tee will usually land you on O'Hara's acres.

O'Hara, who is 45, was pretty much a man of peace until he built a house there in the modern style—you know, lots of glass. Then he became golf ball conscious. First one of them hit Mrs. O'Hara in the eye. Then dozens of them rained on the house. Complaints, he said meant little. The golfers continued to hook.

So O'Hara got a big spectacular archery butt and set it up Saturday—eight feet from the golf course. Then he bent his new 30-pound bow and began to practice.

It was amazing how bad an archer O'Hara was, even without any practice. Once in a while, it was true, he would hit the target. But so many times his arrows overshot and landed on the golf course. This always seemed to happen when a golfer drew near, although they drew less near as the week-end lengthened. In addition to keeping their eye on the ball, they kept it on Mr. O'Hara.

Many, he noticed, seemed to have rheumatism, or possibly lumbago. They found it difficult to bend over to pick up fozzled balls.

The club's manager even proposed a strong fence for the O'Hara boundary, and offered to contribute $100 toward it. But O'Hara, the club says, is "unreasonable" and conversations have come to nothing.

Meanwhile O'Hara continues shooting arrows into the air, which fall to the earth, he knows not where.

Probe Whether 'Reefers' Going To Teen-Agers

Asheville, N.C., April 18—(AP)—Detective Sergeant Robert Reese said today that inquiries were being made to determine whether "reefers" were being distributed among the high school set.

He said the father of a 14-year-old high school student reported that police officers picked up the lad and turned him over to the parents because they thought he was drunk.

The father, unidentified by name, took the boy home and put him to bed. After the lad awakened the father reported, he told of smoking a cigarette given to him by a strange man at a high school function. He said he smoked the cigarette a few minutes, then "blacked out completely."

Charred Body Is Found Near Car

Oxford, N.C., April 18—(AP)—The body of a man, charred to a crisp and unrecognizable, was found five miles west of Oxford today beside a burned automobile.

Coroner F. Earle Hunt tentatively identified the man as H. Taylor Currin, 29, of Oxford, a veteran of World War II.

Raleigh, N.C., April 18—(AP)—With his 54th birthday just past, Governor Scott admitted today he is beginning to feel his age. "I can't jump ditches the way I used to," he said at his news conference.

Vandalism Is Costly And Shameful

Several reports of vandalism in Greenville have come to our attention recently, and although the offenses were relatively minor in one way, they should not pass unnoticed.

There have been reports of youths of Greenville breaking street lights in certain sections of the city. Even though the boys or girls who break the lights may not realize they are costing the people of the city money with each broken bulb, it seems to us it should be properly impressed upon them by their parents.

Then there have been reports of people molesting flowers which have been placed on the graves of the cemeteries in Greenville. It is one thing to break street lights, and another to deface the sacred resting place of the dead.

Nevertheless, such carelessness is not a thing which will enhance the general reputation of Greenville.

Would it not be a good idea for all the people of Greenville to guard against the moments of thoughtlessness when they might commit some act which will deface either public or private property?

News Behind The News

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON, April 18.—The likable Scott Lucas of Illinois will blame his defeat for reelection next November on his enforced loyalty to President Truman and the "fair deal" faction of the Democratic party.

Mr. Lucas is not the only Democrat on Capitol Hill who may suffer from the embarrassments which the White House program has heaped upon him in a most critical political year.

But the boyish Illinoisan's plight is the most spectacular, for a defeat of the party leader in the upper chamber would be interpreted as repudiation of the Administration's five years' accomplishments in a great key state.

RIGHTS—In response to White House demands, Mr. Lucas has sidetracked three questions that will undoubtedly be highlighted as political issues by Mr. Dirksen in their forthcoming clash.

Mr. Lucas has manipulated the Senate calendar so that the FEPC Bill cannot be disposed of before two extremely important primaries in Florida and Alabama on May 2.

Although this piece of Civil Rights legislation has been ready for action since last fall, it has not yet been brought before the Senate in such shape that it can be passed at this session.

The Florida and Alabama primary battles involve more than the individual fortunes of the Democratic senators from those states, Claude Pepper and Lister Hill, respectively.

PROGRAM—The anti-Perrier and anti-Hill forces in the two states are bitterly opposed to almost all of the White House legislative program, and especially the FEPC proposition.

Mr. Hill has opposed FEPC, and his renomination seems assured. But the so-called Dixiecrats are trying to take control of the state organization from the Truman faction, and are using presidential advocacy of civil rights as a weapon.

Incidents—At a hurriedly called press conference at 12:30 Governor Scott announced he had accepted resignation of Col. C. R. Tolar as commander of the highway patrol.

BACK-TALK—Tolar blasted back with the statement he had been crucified for the benefit of the Scott administration, that the governor had assured him his resignation would not be accepted.

MURDERS—Mr. Lucas also accepted White House advice in postponing and diluting the Kefauver resolution for an investigation of nationwide crime.

It is doubtful if Senate leaders would have permitted an investigation, had it not been for the Kansas City murders of Binagid and Gargotta.

MINERS—Although Senator Lucas may not realize it, in view of his official concern with more pressing domestic and foreign problems, he may lose the support of an important group of Illinois voters which have generally backed him in the past.

It is doubtful if Senate leaders would have permitted an investigation, had it not been for the Kansas City murders of Binagid and Gargotta.

Mr. Lucas refused to discuss the reasons for the inaction, but some of his friends attribute it to the enmity between him and the Administration generally.

There are plenty of odd jobs around the house. If you don't think so—just ask the Missus.

Mind If I Watch?

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

You've heard people say, "I have an awful temper, but I got it honestly— inherited it from my parents." It's easy to blame your shortcomings on your parents, but the amazing fact is that such traits are not hereditary.

The third kitten was put in a cage with a mouse, and both were well fed. From the beginning they were big buddies. In fact, they became so devoted to each other that when they were parted the cat cried from sheer loneliness.

After hearing the above report, I knew that there must be some other reason for my absent-mindedness, since there is no chance of blaming it on my parents.

For example, Saturday afternoon, "Rachel," I said to the wife, "I'm going down town to get a magazine. Want to go?" She did, so I walked out the back door, en route to the garage. Rachel locked the back door and never came in contact with other cats. This cat would kill mice only when he became desperately hungry. He never bothered them as long as he was well fed.

Psychologists always have an answer for this sort of question. In order to arrive at the answer, they experiment on animals. In this case they used cats and mice.

The project was to discover whether or not cats inherit the practice of killing and eating mice. The experimenters took two kittens away from their mother soon after birth, before the mother had an opportunity to tell them that they are supposed to kill mice.

They let one of the two run wild, but made certain that it went out the front, only to see me already half a block away. In that short time I had forgotten that W. R. was going. Three blocks down the street I came to.

One afternoon last week I came home to get a letter, walked out of the house, locked the door, and put the key in my pocket. What's wrong with that? Ordinarily, nothing, but this time I had left W. R. in the house.

If the results of the psychologist's experiment are entirely accurate, parents cannot be blamed for the negative traits their children acquire, and by the same token they cannot take credit for their talents.

And I thank you.

By ELMER ROESSNER
Goaded by both consumers and business men while members were home for Easter vacations, Congress may at long last come to grips with the excise tax problem.

The House Ways and Means Committee resumes study of the matter today and members say they hope to bring a bill on the floor by May 14.

Demand for modification of the tax has been rising on the home front, as many business men and trade associations have been letting Congressmen know in the last few weeks.

Protests against the tax have been intensified by Congressional failure to take definite action so far. When President Truman suggested a limited reduction in excises in his message to Congress in January, sales of many taxed articles fell off, especially furs, as buyers decided to wait for the cut.

Just how much and where cuts will be made is still far from decision. There doesn't seem to be much sentiment for cutting the tax on liquors, but there appear to be strong intentions to eliminate taxes on transportation, and cut taxes on furs, jewelry, luggage, toilet articles, admission and communications.

There doesn't seem to be much sentiment for cutting the tax on liquors, but there appear to be strong intentions to eliminate taxes on transportation, and cut taxes on furs, jewelry, luggage, toilet articles, admission and communications.

Protests against the tax have been intensified by Congressional failure to take definite action so far. When President Truman suggested a limited reduction in excises in his message to Congress in January, sales of many taxed articles fell off, especially furs, as buyers decided to wait for the cut.

taxes. While Congress does not seem willing to increase other tax rates, it does appear agreeable to plans for plugging some loopholes in the present laws.

If whatever tax bill is passed does not meet Mr. Truman's specifications, there is a fair chance that the House would override the veto. All members come up for re-election in November.

The House Ways and Means Committee resumes study of the matter today and members say they hope to bring a bill on the floor by May 14.

Demand for modification of the tax has been rising on the home front, as many business men and trade associations have been letting Congressmen know in the last few weeks.

Protests against the tax have been intensified by Congressional failure to take definite action so far. When President Truman suggested a limited reduction in excises in his message to Congress in January, sales of many taxed articles fell off, especially furs, as buyers decided to wait for the cut.

Just how much and where cuts will be made is still far from decision. Hal Boyle's Column

New York (AP)—It is very hard to sell a visiting rabbit on the wonders of the big city.

Yes, that's right—a rabbit. I tried over the week-end. I gave a tour of the town to Pete, a ten-and-a-half pound white rabbit from Minneapolis.

While I've met a lot of wise things in fur here, I never saw anyone quite as nonchalant as Pete. He preferred a carrot to the Empire State Building.

Pete's trip here came as a reward. For two weeks before Easter he toured Minnesota raising funds for crippled children.

He did such a fine job that his boss, Al Smalley of St. Paul, a jeep-enthusiast, had him in his car to take him to Manhattan.

I got the assignment to be his escort. Personally, I believe that Pete would enjoy living in New York. Smalley wrote, "He has a red 1,000 rabbits, conservatively speaking."

Pete arrived a week ago as a hitch-hopping guest of North-west Airlines. He came in a comfortable cage that bore a sign saying, "Don't use the word 'hasenpfeffer' in his presence—it frightens him." Hasenpfeffer is German for "stewed rabbit."

Boredly accepting some food pellets, Pete kept looking around to see why Grover Whalen wasn't on hand to greet him. Then he was taken to a pet shop to rest up for a few days from his air voyage.

Figuring he was a Saturday night rabbit, I waited until that evening to show him the city. We went by cab, and the driver kept looking back at Pete nervously and asking, "What is it?"

Pete was startled by Park Avenue. He took one gander out at all the fur-covered ladies and then crouched down in his cage. He apparently thought he was in the midst of a forest of minks.

Crossing Fifth Avenue he yawned again as we went through Times Square. Pete looked a little homesick as we passed a small green park. Suddenly his pink eyes popped open in interest—we were going by a supermarket and its window was full of vegetables.

I dropped by to show Pete to the three-year-old son of a friend, and the city-born boy's eyes kindled in wonder. It was the first time he had ever seen a rabbit.

"Hello, Bunny. Hello, Bunny," he said lovingly, over and over, as he fed Pete some watercress. When we had to leave, the little boy looked up and said, "Now let's all go see a lion."

Our next call was a Greenwich village apartment. And Pete was the life of the party. Glad to be out of his cage, he hopped about, nuzzling people.

Then Lou Grumlich, the wife of our host, played sometimes on her new Zither. Pete, as befitted the first rabbit in modern history, to be given a Zither concert, listened intently. He was all ears. His pink eyes reddened in appreciation as she played his favorite tune, "Believe me if all these endearing young charms."

After a hearty vegetarian supper, Pete went home about midnight—rather reluctantly. He wanted to stay up all night—an effect Greenwich Village has on people as well as rabbits.

The problem then was, "What to do with Pete?" The management doesn't allow pets in our apartment. I tried to find him a nice home, but you'd be surprised how few people in Manhattan want a rabbit.

Finally, Ted Alexander, an office boy, said, "I'd sure like to send Pete to my sister—she'd love to have him."

"Where does she live?" "In Paris—Paris, France." Well, I called up a pal at American Overseas Airlines and told him our problem.

"Bring Pete down," he said. "Well he gets a good comfortable ride over."

And so Pete, the flying good-will bunny, is off by air to Minnesota's first four-footed ambassador to France.

But Pete has traveled so much already he's getting mighty sophisticated. The French are going to have to hang the Eiffel tower with lettuce if they want to impress him.

SPRING TIME AND CLEAN UP TIME (Herford County Herald)

Spring has officially arrived by the calendar—although the weather does make one wonder just what season of the year we're in.

Most of us have used the weather as an excuse to delay our "at-home" week. But we can't use that reason now, so why not make a special effort this week and in the weeks ahead to really dress up the home-place, including the front and back yards?

There are plenty of odd jobs around the house. If you don't think so—just ask the Missus.

Cleaning up is a community job, accomplished individually. With each of us taking care of our own premises, the entire town will benefit.

Arms-Aid Chief Weeks To Resign

Washington, April 18—(AP)—James Bruce, director of the billion dollar arms aid program, has submitted his resignation to President Truman.

It became known today, along with his reason: The businessman wants to return to private life.

At the same time, the President reported to want Bruce to take the job of Ambassador to Britain when Lewis Douglas quits. Douglas has been American envoy to Britain for the past three years but has been in ill health recently. He resigned to his post several months ago at the President's request with understanding he could quit late this year.

The 57-year-old Bruce is chosen as Douglas' successor there would be a pair of brothers representing the United States simultaneously at diplomatic posts in Western Europe. David Bruce, James' brother, is American ambassador to France.

The Matron's social club will meet at the home of Mrs. Julia Barnhill on April 19. All members are asked to present.

The last meeting was at the home of Mrs. Gertrude Latham, who was hostess.

Mrs. Mary Payton and Mrs. Louise Clark are improving after being sick. The members of the club will glad to see them out again.

The United Daughters of Mt. Calvary met Sunday, April 16, at the home of Mrs. Nellie Wilson with the president in charge. After the meeting each member was served jelly and whipped cream and cake.

Judge Is Speaker At Lions' Meet

Judge J.W.H. Roberts, judge of city recorder's court, was the guest speaker at the weekly supper meeting of the Greenville Lions Club last night.

Roberts spoke on the coming elections and the stand which the people should take in selecting candidates who represent them.

A letter in behalf of the Pitt County Cancer Drive was read to the club by President Ernulf Willis.

The club had as their guests Raymond Dudley from Raleigh, Mr. Stern, new manager of the Pitt and State Theaters, and Edward Dowd, son of Lion O. E. Dowd.

R. O. Everett, thanked the club for their cooperation in the Red Cross drive which was just concluded. Everett stated that the Greenville quota has nearly been reached.

Godfrey Oakley, chairman of the Pitt Easter Seal Drive, reported that the drive totaled $1610.92 to date. Of the amount, $685 was collected by the Pitt County schools. Contributions through the mail amounted to $851 with the coin box collections amounting to $67, and $596 from other sources.

The Pitt County drive this year went way over the drive of last year but fell short of the $2,000 goal set for this year, Oakley stated.

52-20 Club Vet Stretched 'Luck'

Charlotte, N. C., April 18—(AP)—A 52-20 clubber overreached himself and wound up behind bars.

The employment security commission today told the tale of George C. Jones, Lenoir veteran. Imprisoned in 1945 for 30 days on a public drunkenness count, Jones still managed to pick up weekly checks under the servicemen's readjustment allowance program.

His jailer either accompanied him or let him go alone to the employment office to collect a total of five checks for $20 each—all during the period when he was behind bars.

As the commission pointed out, Jones was hardly eligible for unemployment compensation when he was forced to "unavailable" for work. They called in the FBI.

Last week the FBI marked Jones off their books. A federal judge sentenced him to ten months in jail for fraud.

Courtesy Cards Make Friends For Greenville

An executive of the Blue Ridge Insurance Company of Shelby, N.C., who was tagged by a Greenville police officer recently for overtime parking, wrote a nice letter to Police Chief Lester D. Page thanking him for courtesy extended.

Greenville police have two kinds of parking tags. One is printed in black ink and that means "go to police headquarters." The other is a "courtesy card" and it is printed in green ink. It states that "Greenville is the friendliest city in North Carolina" and warns the motorist who receives it of the city parking laws and reminds him or her that the first parking violation is excusable.

The police have received numerous letters from visiting motorists who were tagged with "courtesy cards" when parked overtime for the first time, Chief Page said.

Takes Issue With McGrath Over Crime Syndicate

Washington, April 18—(AP)—Senator Wherry (R-Neb) took issue today with a statement by Attorney General McGrath that the Justice Department knows of no great nationwide crime syndicate.

"The Justice Department information doesn't square with the testimony given the Senate Rules and Judiciary committees," the GOP floor leader told reporters. "We have received information which made a deep impression on us that a crime investigation is needed badly."

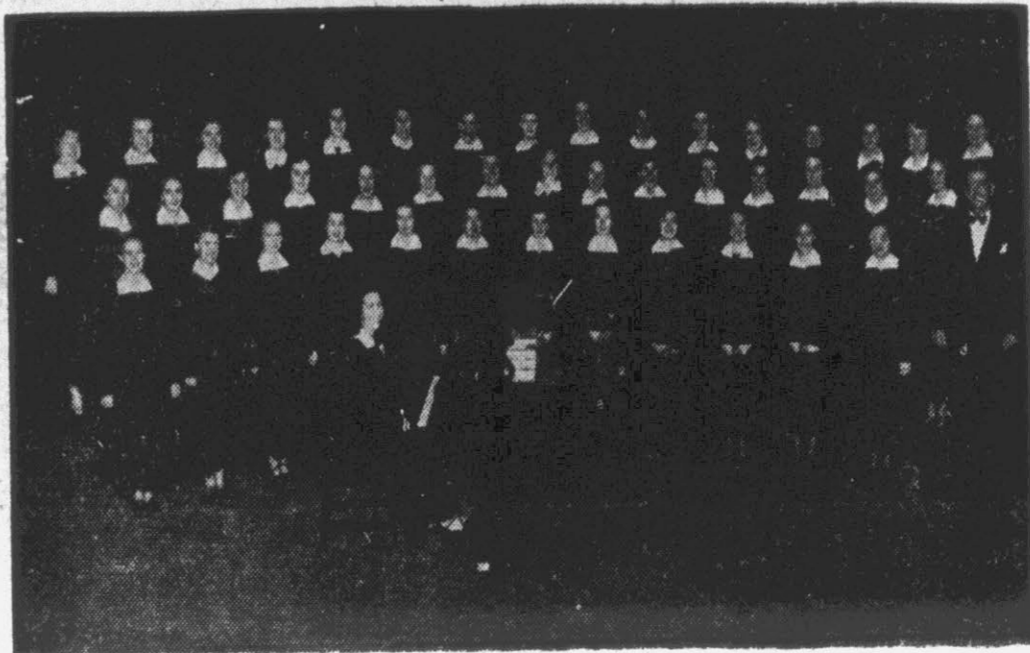

McGrath's statement was made yesterday during testimony before a Senate Commerce subcommittee which is considering a bill to block transmission of gambling information across state lines.

Greenville Jail Inspected By State; Approved

The N.C. Department of Welfare gave the Greenville city jail at the City Hall a good rating after an inspection several weeks ago by T. A. Early, inspector of correctional institutions and assistants. Police Chief Page received a letter from him stating that the Greenville jail is exceptionally well maintained and a credit to the community. Inspector Early said he found everything in order and that the jailer is to be commended for the general condition and appearance of the Greenville city jail. A copy of the letter also was sent to Mayor W. S. Stafford.

Said To Have Tried Destroying Family On Plane For Insurance

Los Angeles, April 18—(AP)—Love would marry her after the divorce. Ream questioned the stewardess after Grant drove her car to the airport. Ream said he was convinced that the stewardess was in no way implicated in the case and that she would be released.

Grant lost his nerve at the last moment and no one was injured. Just as the blue and silver United Airlines DC-3 was about to leave Los Angeles International Airport for San Diego yesterday, Grant ran for the ticket counter and screamed "Don't let that plane take off! I just put a bag on it full of gasoline!"

At the same moment a baggage handler unloading the plane out on the field dropped a heavy suitcase.

It exploded and flames flared up, singeing the man's eyebrows and hair.

The baggage man, Harold Mayer, quickly extinguished the flames and tossed the suitcase out on the ground. He opened it and found an alarm clock wired to ignite a box of matches, which in turn would explode several gallons of gasoline contained in sections of an inner-tube. Only a small portion of the gasoline was ignited, however, and no one else was injured.

Det. Ned G. Logsdon, who arrested Grant, said the onetime top-flight aviation engineer told him he was $6,000 in debt. He quoted Grant as saying he planned to collect $25,000 in insurance taken out at the airport on his wife and two children.

Det. R. B. McCreadie said Mrs. Grant told him most of the debts were incurred in connection with a paternity suit involving her husband in New York several years ago.

Her 102nd Birthday—In The Air

Mrs. Lydia Stevens of Natick, Mass., gets ready to celebrate her 102nd birthday anniversary Saturday—with another flight in an airplane. The American Air Lines will fly her from Boston to New York. But why wait for the actual anniversary flight to go aloft? So Mrs. Stevens playfully twists the propeller of a plane at the Natick airport just before taking off Friday for a short pre-birthday flight over the Cape Cod area. She has been flying since her 90th birthday. (AP Wirephoto)

SGA Formed At Arthur School; Officers Chosen

A student government association has been formed at Arthur school. After three or four weeks of nominations and campaign speeches, Glenn Strickland was elected president; Larry J. Lewis, vice president; Lois Jean Wainwright, secretary, and Danny Alton Wainwright, treasurer.

One senator was chosen from the seventh and eighth grades and two from the rest of the high school grades. One chief judge and six assistants have been chosen.

The constitution and by-laws of the student government were written by the economic class of Arthur school. They also made the pledge which officers take when inaugurated. The class is credited with being largely responsible for the move toward a student government association.

Calves Bred And Raised In Wayne Capture Honors

Goldsboro, N.C., April 18—(AP)—Calves bred and raised in Wayne County took seven out of nine top places yesterday in the second annual fat stock show sponsored by the County Livestock Development Association.

Grand champion of the show was a 964 pound Hereford baby beef owned by Earl Davis of the Brogden 4-H Club. A black Angus from western North Carolina owned by Harrison Becton of Rosewood was declared reserved champion.

Out of 33 awards made, 18 were blue ribbons indicating choice steers. L. I. Case, N.C. State College animal husbandry specialist, commented that the Wayne show "is one of the best quality shows I've seen."

Vote Economy In Use Of Words

Washington, April 18—(AP)—Senate Judiciary committee voted for economy in the use of words.

It approved a bill that cut the title of the federal bankruptcy law from more than a score of words to only three: the bankruptcy act. "It will save a lot of time," the committee explained.

'Butcher Birds' Hung Up Snakes

Troy, April 18—(AP)—The mystery of the dead snakes hanging from trees in North Carolina appeared solved today. They were impaled by shrikes, or butcher birds.

That was the consensus of scientists and laymen alike. The snakes were first discovered on thorny locust trees here Sunday, and then similar reports came in from other parts of the state.

The snakes here—plus a mouse and lizard on trees—have been viewed by thousands of curious folk.

Dr. A. D. Shaftesbury, biology professor at the Woman's college of the University of North Carolina in Greensboro, gave this explanation, which was backed by other scientists:

The great northern shrike, also called a loggerhead shrike, snatches its victim in its notched bill, which is hooked at the tip. Unlike other birds of prey, it has no claws, and therefore doesn't tear its victim apart with beak and feet. Instead it lights on a thorny tree or barbed wire fence, and impales its food.

And around the state laymen reported they have seen shrikes do just that for years.

Three Little Blind Girls Now See

The three little blind girls from Acworth, Ga., blind since birth, are in Candler hospital at Savannah, Ga., with their eyesight restored by delicate operations. They are distinguishable in the dress of Miss Louise Lenhardt, hospital supervisor. Left to right: Eloise, 14; Elaine, 10; and Faye, 7. The nurse standing at left was not identified. Their blindness was due to congenital cataracts which surgeons removed several days ago. Now they have been fitted with temporary glasses which aid their sight. Their mother, also blind, has never seen the children. (AP Photo)

Hen Went Above And Beyond The Call Of Duty

Ayden, April 18 — A Plymouth Rock hen went above and beyond the call of duty Saturday and wound up with an egg the size of which can best be described as a major undertaking.

The hen, owned by Miss Rosa L. Smith, undertook "Operation Maximum Effort" in the usual procedure, polishing off the activities with an egg six and a quarter inches around the middle by eight inches around end and weighing five and a half ounces.

At present both egg and hen are doing nicely. Last reports had it the Plymouth Rock "laid out" Sunday in favor of a resumption of duties yesterday.

Probably Fifty Different Kinds Pneumonia Around

Boston, April 18—(P)—There are probably 50 different kinds of pneumonia and the chances are that "cold with upper respiratory infection" you had this spring was one of them.

These pneumonias are not really new, Dr. Hobart A. Reimann, Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, told the American College of Physicians today. They are, he said, just beginning to be recognized.

You can comfort yourself with knowing that none of the pneumonias are as fatal as formerly. Lobar, the form which gave pneumonia its dreaded killing power every winter happens just as often now as ever. But with sulfas and penicillin it no longer kills so often.

Along with lobar pneumonias, Dr. Reimann said, went strep, streptococcus, and several other pneumonias all of them with killing rates of about 60 per cent. Penicillin stopped these deaths.

When doctors no longer had to face a possible battle for your life with pneumonia, they began to discover many other kinds.

All can make you very sick. For example, said Dr. Reimann, one of the most recent pneumonias comes from a fungus found on dogs and rodents. It is called histoplasmosis. It is common in the mid-west, but occurs all over the country. There are bird and animal pneumonias which you can catch. Some, like parrot fever, can be recognized. But many of them are just a mean sickness, the cause of which cannot be traced.

The virus pneumonia, about which most people talk, got its name from epidemics that swept the country between 1941 and 1943. Since then, Dr. Reimann said, the epidemics of this pneumonia have stopped. But single cases occur frequently at this time of year. Dr. Reimann said it is possible that this epidemic will strike again.

General Alarm Fire Hits Savannah Lumber Yard

A general alarm fire roars through the yard of the Victory Lumber Company at Savannah, Ga., on the crest of a strong wind. About three million feet of lumber was destroyed along with two sheds, two tractors and seven lumber carts. Damage was estimated at $75,000. Company officials believe the flames started from a spark falling into a pile of shavings and sawdust. (AP Photo).

Binaggio Slaying To Be Exploited

St. Louis, April 18—(AP)—Sen. Harry P. Cain (R-Wash.) says the slaying of politician Charles Binaggio will play an important part in Republican campaign strategy in the coming elections.

Binaggio, Kansas City Northside Democratic boss, and his henchman, ex-convict Charles Gargotta, were shot to death April 5 in their political headquarters.

Cain declared last night that the slayings "in all their rancorous sordidness" should be exploited by the Republicans.

He spoke at a $100-a-plate GOP banquet.

Later Cain told reporters that "numerous" Republican senators join him in urging President Truman to be as interested in who murdered them (Binaggio and Gargotta) as he would have been if Jim Pendergast had been murdered. Jim Pendergast, nephew of the late Boss Tom Pendergast, heads a Kansas City Democratic faction which opposed Binaggio's faction.

Early Start

Richmond, Va., April 18—(AP)—Virginia already has started laying plans for its 1950 corn war with North Carolina. Paul D. Sanders, editor of the Southern Planter, has been appointed chairman of the Virginia committee for the battle.

Virginia won the 1949 version of the contest with an average per acre yield of about 47 bushels compared with North Carolina's 35.

Faults, Failures And Hopes Of Agriculture In N. C. Outlined

By LYNN NISBET
Raleigh, April 18—North Carolina farmers, particularly those in the eastern part of the state, are missing the boat by not recognizing that an agricultural revolution which began 500 years ago is gaining momentum every day. There is still time to recoup some of the losses sustained by past dereliction, but there is no time to lose if the state's present standard of living is to be maintained.

That was the essential feature of the address at the Wilson Chamber of Commerce dinner Friday night. The speaker was John H. MacMillan, chairman of the board of Cargill, Inc., biggest grain dealer in the world, and recognized authority on the history, culture, marketing and use of corn. His company has completed plans for construction of a huge corn and grain storage plant at Wilson, and has long range objectives for serving the entire southeast.

Many of the things he said did not sound good to the dinner guests accustomed to bragging about North Carolina. One business man farmer commented that "unpleasant talk may be good medicine."

North Carolina's average corn production is 35 bushels an acre. It ought to be 150, MacMillan said, and may reach that before too many years if the landowners wake up to need for replacing washed off top soil and utilization of the scientific data derived from research. The fact that average production, low as it is, has doubled in less than 20 years proves what can be done in the future. In the heart of the midwest corn belt production has gone up from 48 bushels to 64 bushels per acre. With longer growing season and more comfortable working conditions here, production should be two to three times as much. But increased production adds to instead of solving many of the problems.

Due to mechanization, improved soil management and seed selection, records in the corn belt show that one man hour of labor now produces eleven bushels of corn. In 1928 one man hour produced four bushels. Twenty-five bushels per man hour is not an unreasonable prospect. All that corn and the consequent idle labor poses a real problem. It is actually a continuing problem, because 300 years ago it required 80 per cent of a man's effort to provide his food; now it takes less than 30 per cent.

Directing his attention specifically to North Carolina MacMillan said his company's research folks had compiled a lot of data about this state. Mechanization is coming, but cannot come successfully with so many small farms. Probable course will be for successful farmers to buy up adjoining acreage of less successful operators, and establish units of sufficient size to justify purchase of machinery. (What happens then to the state's boast about being the land of small home-owning farmers?) Urgent need is for the farmer now to utilize information at hand about soil management and seed selection.

The speaker warned that the government farm program cannot continue indefinitely. Farmers must look to the soil rather than to the federal treasury for their income. Planning should be done now against the time when government payments stop. Further more, he warned, any program (government or otherwise) designed to maintain the status quo is bound to fail. The agricultural revolution is continuing and entirely new concepts are necessary to preserve the standard of living to which Americans, especially North Carolinians, are accustomed.

A similar announcement came from Buckingham Palace prior to the birth of Prince Charles in November, 1948.

Sir William Gilliat, who delivered Prince Charles, again will serve in the same capacity.

The expected baby will be the third in succession to the throne. Princess Elizabeth is heiress-presumptive. Prince Charles is next in line. The Princess will be 24 years old next Friday.

British Income Shows Big Gain

London, April 17—(AP)—The National Income of Great Britain and Northern Ireland jumped 298,000,000 pounds ($34,400,000) last year over 1948, the treasury disclosed today.

The total figure was 10,226,000 pounds ($2,632,900,000).

The treasury also announced in a white paper presented to Parliament that wages increased 230,000,000 pounds ($44,000,000), "due mainly to increased overtime and higher piece rate earnings associated with higher productivity."

CITY DOG CATCHER KEEPS AFTER STRAY DOGS AT LARGE

Municipal dog catcher Enoch Elsha Jones, who has taken up nearly 1,000 canines on the streets of Greenville since he was appointed by the Board of Aldermen, reported today that the dog population is increasing to a considerable extent—more so than last year. The dog catcher is receiving at police headquarters complaints from householders that stray and unowned dogs are "taking up under houses, porches and steps and giving birth to the dogs who will be a nuisance next spring."

Mrs. J. C. Paige, 1303 Dickinson Avenue, reported Monday that a stray dog had given birth to eight puppies under her porch. The dog catcher removed them.

The Morehead Planetarium at the University of North Carolina, said to be the only one on an American campus, draws thousands of visitors annually.

Pay Starts For Some 480 Major Leaguers With Opening Day Turnout Of About 260,000 Fans: Rematching Decisive 1949 Pennant Race Games

By JACK RAND
New York, April 18—(AP)—The $195,000 Williams and Joe ($100,000) DiMaggio start earning those big salaries today as the big league season opens on eight fronts.
Pay starts for some 480 major leaguers with the first pitch of baseball's jubilee year. An opening day turnout of about 260,000 fans will help the bosses foot the bill.
The schedule makers come up with a tasty tidbit in rematches of the New York Yankee-Boston Red Sox and Brooklyn Dodger-Philadelphia Phillies games that decided the 1949 pennant races on the final day.

With DiMaggio in the opening lineup for the sixth time in 12 active years (not counting three in the army) the court champion Yanks visit Fenway Park for the first of four with the Red Sox. The Yanks didn't beat off the Boston challenge until the last day in '49. Most of the experts and oddsmakers pick the Sox to win it all this time.

Brooklyn, favored to repeat in the National, also opens on the road at Shibe Park where the Phillies took them to extra innings last October before yielding the clincher. Here's how they paid up for opening day:

- AMERICAN LEAGUE
- New York at Boston, 32,000
- Detroit at Cleveland, 63,000
- St. Louis at Chicago, 18,000
- Philadelphia at Washington, 30,000
- NATIONAL LEAGUE
- Brooklyn at Philadelphia, 32,000
- Boston at New York, 30,000
- Chicago at Cincinnati, 32,000
- Pittsburgh at St. Louis (night), 30,000

The night opener at St. Louis is something new, a trend of things to come when all major league games will be played under the lights. Many more night games will follow—a total of 409 during the 24-week season.

Tops in national interest on the opening program is the Yank-Red Sox clash at Fenway Park where Boston wound up its home season last fall with 21 straight victories.

Eighty Golfers Competing Today

Eighty golfers are expected to compete today in the Eastern Women's Golf Association meet on the Country Club course.

Representing five towns—Greenville, Goldsboro, Kinston, New Bern and Rocky Mount—this is the second in the series of five meetings of the group.

In all they will compete for low scores and low putting honors. In the last meeting in Kinston two Rocky Mount women walked off with low scores for the group.

Whip Saratoga

Farmville, April 18—Farmville, contending outfit in the Bright Belt League, whipped Saratoga in an exhibition contest here Sunday by a 12 to 1 margin. Regans was heavy hitter for the Farmville club with three for five. Coltrain, Mauney and Stoll got two each.
Branley Aycock, Red Hawley, and Bill Pittman did the hurrying for Saratoga. Frank Hayes did the catching. Battery for Farmville was Hines, Oakley, Williams, Pate and Mauney. Saratoga's hits were too scattered to be effective.

Keglers Tounce Visiting Teams Of Fayetteville

For the first time in Greenville's history the city is represented by its new Inter-City Bowling team. And in the initial outings the 10 keggers Sunday whipped the two five-man teams from Fayetteville four games to two.
Bowling on the local alleys for the first and last time on Sunday, due to a city ordinance, the Greenville teams were paced by Earl "Spooky" Morgan. Morgan bowled three lines with scores of 224, 131 and 133 for a three line total of 538—high for both teams.
However the first team, made up of Morgan, Bill Harrington, Dan Gordon, Jack Teel and George Heap, had a bad time of winning its three games. Their total finishing just five points ahead of Fayetteville, 2,333-2,228. Except for a whirlwind first game, in which they rang up a pin-clattering 879 score, the Greenville team was taken into camp in the other remaining two games. But the first game was enough to bring home the win.
The second team had an easier time of the afternoon, taking all three games from the Fayetteville crew. Paced by Bill Wells, with games of 186, 162 and 116, the No. 2 team ran up a majority score of 2,050 as against Fayetteville's 1,922. The second team had as bowlers Bob Matthews, Bill Wells, John Warner, Sam Credie and Red Flanagan.
No immediate competition is slated for the local bowling teams but matches against the Washington teams are being planned sometime soon.

Greenville scores:
E. Morgan—224, 131, 133—538
G. Heap—179, 155, 167—501
B. Wells—186, 162, 116—464
J. Teel—140, 171, 145—456
J. Warner—185, 140, 143—448
B. Harrington—169, 132, 131—432
B. Matthews—137, 148, 142—427
R. Flanagan—118, 151, 144—413
D. Gordon—167, 125, 114—406
S. Credie—103, 98, 87—388

Fast Start For Pinehurst Event

Pinehurst, N.C., April 18—(AP)—The 50th annual North and South Amateur Golf Tournament is starting in a manner befitting the golden anniversary of the tournament with the longest uninterrupted run of any major event in the country.
Yesterday's qualifying play produced a brilliant five-under par 67 by Harry H. Haverstick Jr., Lancaster, Pa., whose 33-34 equalled the qualifying record set by George T. Dunlap Jr. in 1934.
Haverstick, whose two Pennsylvania state championships came 10 years apart in 1938 and '48, needed that record-equaling round to nose out William C. Campbell, the West Virginia legislator from Huntington, whose 32-36—68 was only a stroke off the pace over the 6,962-yard Pinehurst Country Club course.
The defending champion, Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, served notice that he is to be reckoned with Frank hustled from Atlanta to Charlotte by plane yesterday morning, then was driven the remaining 100 miles to Pinehurst. He arrived less than an hour before his starting time and banged out a fine 69 playing with Haverstick in the day's last twosome.

Secure in the knowledge that no one will remember our choice to battle it out in the world series by the time the baseball classic rolls around in October we are willing to go on record with the guess that the Brooklyn Dodgers and the Boston Red Sox will meet in the big series. At least we are honest enough to admit it is purely a guess.
The Dodgers, a young team last season, should be an improved squad with the added experience. The addition of Bobby Morgan, at third base, makes them even more solid. The Dodgers appear strong enough to top their league despite their lack of solid pitching depth. The Red Sox, having finished in the second spot two years running, are due to get a break. All Manager Joe McCarthy needs is some capable relief hurling to go with his otherwise fine mound staff and the Boston club can hold off the rest of the American League.
Having decided on the 1950 World Series, we might just as well go ahead and pick the rest of the order of finish. In the National League following Brooklyn, it will be St. Louis, Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Pittsburgh and Cincinnati. New York, Detroit, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Chicago, Washington and St. Louis will trail Boston in the American League chase. And that's that!

Greenville Golfers Meet Tarboro Here Tomorrow

Showing for the first time in three weeks on the home course, Greenville's golfers take on Tarboro tomorrow afternoon at the Country Club for their sixth outing of the Coastal Golf Association schedule. Captain Dave Mosier's gang took the Tarboro club into camp in the season's first match by the score of 47-27. Medalists that day were Bill Allen and Errel Webb, both with 74's.
In the meantime the locals have suffered their first loss of the season. They went down to Kinston in the rain, waited for the elements to abate, and whether or not due to the rain-drenched course or other natural elements, they came out on the short end of a 46-36 score.

Villemain Takes Split Decision In Boston Bout

Boston, April 18—(AP)—Stamina and speedier punching were the assets that carried Robert Villemain of France, to a split decision over aggressive Joe Rindone, Boston middleweight, in their 10-round feature boxing bout at the Boston Garden.
Villemain had an edge in six of the sessions but many in last night's packed crowd of 13,415, Boston's largest boxing gathering in several years, roared disapproval of the official verdict.
The two judges gave the Frenchman, who came here to lift the crown held by his late countryman, Marcel Cerdan, 100-92 and 96-95 point margins. Referee Joe Zapusis gave each 97 points while terminating the bruising engagement a draw.

Red Wings Are Heavy Favorites

Detroit, April 18—(AP)—Anxious to wind it up fast, the Detroit Red Wings take another whack at the New York Rangers here tonight in the Stanley Cup championship series.
The league champion Wings, enjoying a 2-1 edge are strong favorites to make it three in a row and get a good grip on the prize mug.

End Coach Ramey Quits At State

Raleigh, April 18—(AP)—Charley Ramey, end coach of N.C. State's football team for the past two seasons, has resigned effective June 1, it was announced today.
Head Football Coach Beattie Feathers said Ramey has resigned to enter the construction business with his father in Ashland, Ky. Ramey coached at Ashland High School prior to coming to State. He has been coaching for 11 years, nine of them with high school teams.

Plans Putting Trautman Authority To Final Test In Ball Game Tonight

El Paso, Tex., April 18—(AP)—Jack Corbett, owner of the El Paso club of the class C Arizona-Texas league who has been questioning the authority of bossman George Trautman of the minor leagues to uphold an agreement with the Mexican league, plans to bring matters to a head tonight.
Corbett threatened to sue Trautman over his nullification of contracts of three players but hasn't gotten into court as yet.
But tonight, Corbett vows, he'll put one of the players—outfielder Ventura Morales—in the starting lineup as El Paso opens the sea-

Phantoms Meet Pam Pack Today In Toss-Up Tilt

The Green Phantoms-Washington Pam Pack tilt this afternoon stacks up to be a pretty even affair. Both teams have won two games, one over Roanoke Rapids Yellow Jackets, but the Pack has lost to Denton, the team which the Phantoms beat for their first season victory.
Playing at Guy Smith Stadium, in the absence of the Robins, the game is called for 3:30. In addition to the win over the Jackets, the Pack has beat New Bern's Bears, a team the Phantoms have yet to meet.
Washington Coach Bill Sweel is expected to start Red Dixon on the mound. A southpaw, Dixon is one of two frontline pitchers for the Pack. The same is true for Bo Farley's Phantoms.
Pitching for the locals this afternoon will be Julian Vainright in his second starting assignment for the year. Having won his first game against Roanoke Rapids, Vainright has had plenty of rest and is ready to go today.
Backing up the pitcher today will be Bo Farley's regular nine: Leon Moore, catcher; Sid Briley, 1b; Billy Jordan, 2b; Gene Ayers, ss; Billy Brady, 3b; Jody Taylor, rf; Bobby Perry, lf; and Richard Joyner, cf.

Double-Header Against WCTC

Coach Jack Boone and his East Carolina Pirate baseball squad will entertain the strong West Carolina Teachers nine in a double-header Thursday, April 20, at the college stadium in Greenville. The first contest is slated to start at 1:30 o'clock.
The Buccaneers, conquerors of the professional Greenville Robins last Friday, will be playing their first doubleheader of the season, and will meet Appalachian in another two game series Friday.
Coach Boone has not yet announced who will start on the hill for East Carolina Thursday. Other probable starters are Stan Terrill, right field; Bob Bailey, third base; Fred Soles, left field; Jack Wallace, shortstop; Sonny Russell, first base; Billy Smith, second base; Lou Collie, centerfield; and George Wood, catcher.

Lee Sala Scores Kayo In Second

Tampa, Fla., April 18—(AP)—Lee Sala of Donora, Pa., middleweight who ranks sixth in his division, outclassed Hal Meredith last night, scoring a knockout over the Macon mauler in two rounds. Each weighed 160 pounds.
Sala ended the bout with the first real flurry of punches after Meredith had taken a slight edge in the first round.

Tulane Enters 'Dixie Classic'

Raleigh, N.C., April 18—(AP)—Tulane University is the first out-of-state team to accept an invitation to the second annual Dixie basketball classic. The tourney will be run off at N.C. State College next December.
N.C. State, Duke, Wake Forest and North Carolina are host teams for the eight-team classic.

Duke Nalon Racing Again Despite Speedway Wreck

Indianapolis, April 18—(AP)—Race drivers don't scare easy. At 55 miles, an axle broke. The cream-colored, $75,000 machine crashed on the northeast turn. A wreck so spectacular it was the pivotal scene in the movie, "The big wheel."
Blasting gasoline whipped over the car and spread the width of the track. From the midfield it seemed impossible Nalon could get out—but he did.
He spent months having skin grafted on his hands and receiving other repairs. Meanwhile, his mate on the Novi team, veteran Rex Mays, was killed in sprints at Del Mar, Calif.
So Nalon, terror of the dirt tracks before the war in his little "Poison Lil," was entered yesterday for another Memorial Day run in his supercharged V-8 monster.

Phantoms Meet Pam Pack Today In Toss-Up Tilt

The Green Phantoms-Washington Pam Pack tilt this afternoon stacks up to be a pretty even affair. Both teams have won two games, one over Roanoke Rapids Yellow Jackets, but the Pack has lost to Denton, the team which the Phantoms beat for their first season victory.
Playing at Guy Smith Stadium, in the absence of the Robins, the game is called for 3:30. In addition to the win over the Jackets, the Pack has beat New Bern's Bears, a team the Phantoms have yet to meet.
Washington Coach Bill Sweel is expected to start Red Dixon on the mound. A southpaw, Dixon is one of two frontline pitchers for the Pack. The same is true for Bo Farley's Phantoms.
Pitching for the locals this afternoon will be Julian Vainright in his second starting assignment for the year. Having won his first game against Roanoke Rapids, Vainright has had plenty of rest and is ready to go today.
Backing up the pitcher today will be Bo Farley's regular nine: Leon Moore, catcher; Sid Briley, 1b; Billy Jordan, 2b; Gene Ayers, ss; Billy Brady, 3b; Jody Taylor, rf; Bobby Perry, lf; and Richard Joyner, cf.

Plans Putting Trautman Authority To Final Test In Ball Game Tonight

El Paso, Tex., April 18—(AP)—Jack Corbett, owner of the El Paso club of the class C Arizona-Texas league who has been questioning the authority of bossman George Trautman of the minor leagues to uphold an agreement with the Mexican league, plans to bring matters to a head tonight.
Corbett threatened to sue Trautman over his nullification of contracts of three players but hasn't gotten into court as yet.
But tonight, Corbett vows, he'll put one of the players—outfielder Ventura Morales—in the starting lineup as El Paso opens the sea-

Big Sums Spent For Biological, Gas Warfare

Detroit, April 18—(AP)—The Army is spending more than $12,000,000 a year on research in biological radiological and chemical warfare. Also, it is studying "new nerve gases."
Maj. Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe, chief of the Chemical Corps, disclosed this last night.
McAuliffe, the hero of Bastogne, mentioned the work in an address to the 117th annual meeting of the American Chemical Society.
Of the "nerve gases" he gave no particulars.
Gen. McAuliffe introduced the subject by saying it was "well known fact" that German scientific experts on toxic chemical warfare were being "exploded" by Soviet Russia.

Chapter 10
The dressing room which Katherine shared with Heather was near the balcony exit, and as she went in she could hear the audience clattering down the stairs. She sat before the mirror and took off her make-up, her face white and pale, dark rings under her dark eyes. She felt exhausted by the emotional experience of the evening. Loving William was not exactly what she had expected love to be, and yet she did love him with every thought and breath. And he needed her; he had told her that he did.

Heather went out, calling goodbye, racing down the stone steps to be greeted with many "darlings" by a group of young people who were waiting for her to go for a moonlight swim. Katherine followed more hesitantly. She stepped into the street looking about her, hoping that William would be waiting. She waited irresolutely, a twist of fear within her. Suppose he were really angry? Supposing he did not want to see her?

Across the fields, through the branches of Morton's orchard, she could see a light burning in the barn window. He was at home, then. Should she go to see him? She was desperately tired, and longed to go to her own lodgings and sleep, but she could not face the night alone, not knowing whether he were angry or not.

The barn smelled dusty, of meal and old cakes and old leather. At the top of the narrow wooden stair a thin crack of light showed round his door. She stood in the darkness, her heart beating in slow suffocating beats, and then, summoning her courage, called: "William!"

There was the sound of feet across the floor, and he threw the door open, sending a shaft of light down into the darkness, lighting her slender figure, her eager upturned face.

"Kate," he cried. "My nightingale, my savior! Come up this instant! I'm in an awful mess. I haven't got a single shirt ironed, and I've burned one already trying to do it."

She ran up the stairs to him and he caught her in his arms. For a minute they clung together, smiling, kissing, pulses racing. Then she said, "Where is this shirt?"

"Here," he said in a melancholy voice, holding up a scorched tragedy. "I'll have to wear the cream one. How do you know whether an iron is too hot?"

Katherine snatched up the iron from the range where it was heating. "You spit on it," she said. "Ow! My goodness, it's nearly red hot." She set it on an empty tin to cool. "Why didn't you tell me earlier that you wanted one? I'd have done it then."

His dark eyes smiled into hers, enjoying the color that ran up her cheeks when he said impudently, "I was busy earlier."

She turned away, her nerves tingling with the delight his look brought to her. She licked her finger and tested the iron. "I was afraid to come. I thought you were mad because—well, because Morton's given me Prunella."

"Why should I be mad?" he asked innocently.

"You think I can do it?" she asked eagerly.

"Of course you can," he said. Then he added, "It's an unimportant little play, anyway." The shadow hardly touched her eyes at that, she was still happy because he loved her. No point at all to tell her about Nolan's offer; it might not materialize. No use hurting her for nothing. "I was jealous, really," he said.

"Jealous?" she said, astonished.

"No." He laughed, and kissed her cheek as she bent over the table, carefully ironing his shirt, a little frown of concentration between her fine dark brows. "No, not of your acting, silly."

She laughed, too; the thought was so palpably absurd.

"I'm a possessive blighter," he said quietly. "If you become one of Morton's pets, you'll get lots of parties, and you'll always be sudsing or rehearsing, and I'll have no time or thought for me."

"I'll be studying and rehearsing with you," she said. She folded the shirt and finished it in the neat professional way that Aunt Bess had taught her.

"Here's your shirt—it's a very nice one. You're going to look dashing tomorrow, my darling."

He took it, kissing her for thanks.

"Oh, I shan't be at the reading tomorrow. I'm going up to town."

"To town?" she repeated.

"Yes." There was a touch of irritation in his voice. "I really should have some more pictures taken. I know the part, and Morton's heard me read it. I'll be at rehearsal the next day—anyway. I'll be back tomorrow evening. Get something to eat, and we'll have dinner together."

She did not answer. He said in a hurt voice, "Won't you like that?"

She looked up with a quick smile. "Yes, it will be lovely. What time will you be back? I'll meet you."

"Oh, on the six o'clock. I expect."

"I must go now, or else my landlady will be wondering where I am."

She went down and out into the darkness, and she was smiling and happy as she left him and ran down the stairs, once alone, she felt cold and had the creepy feeling of oppression one gets when the sun goes out on a chilly day. For no reason at all, she who had hitherto found the country darkness a safe comforting thing, stopped at the stile to the field path with sudden dislike. It was very still. Then she heard singing. Someone with a pleasant easy untrained voice was coming down the road from the Red Lion, obviously thinking himself alone with the still country night. She began to walk in that direction, feeling a little braver in the company of the invisible singer.

Calls On Daniels Quit Party Post

By The Associated Press
A suggestion that Jonathan Daniels resign as North Carolina's Democratic National Committeeman has come from U. S. Senatorial Candidate Willis Smith's campaign headquarters.

Charles P. Green, Smith's state campaign manager, made the suggestion yesterday after Daniels said he would not quit the party post because of his activity in the senatorial race.

Daniels is supporting Senator Frank Graham in his campaign for the Democratic nomination in a race against Smith and former Senator Robert R. Reynolds of Asheville.

$2,500 Gift For . . .

In the course of the Rotary president's remarks in making the presentation he mentioned the names of several people who have been benefactors of Camp Hardee in addition to Mr. H. M. Hardee who gave at first $10,000 followed by a smaller $1,500 gift and finally bequeathing $2,500 in his will at his death recently. Those mentioned were: M. O. Minges, J. H. Waldrop, J. B. Kittrell, and others.

L. S. Garris assisted with a deep freeze unit at a nominal figure with the purchase price being provided by Dr. S. M. Crisp. Those who have given useful items to the camp were J. H. Rose, Dr. Norvell, and Mrs. Roy Coburn.

President Webb handed out kudos for the three ladies, each of whom has served three years as commissioner: Mrs. J. B. Kittrell, Mrs. W. P. Moore, and Mrs. J. K. Proctor. He said he was indicating some of those who had brought Camp Hardee to its present situation.

Several Rotarians spoke in behalf of the proposal and made suggestions. J. H. Waldrop saw the proposal as the "greatest opportunity and privilege" the Greenville Rotarians had ever had. Dr. Carl Adams said he felt an obligation to contribute in view of the Rotary heritage.

J. H. Rose and Sam White suggested a method by which it could be accomplished promptly.

J. B. Kittrell, Jr., suggested a system of uniform assessments plus voluntary gifts. J. Knott Proctor brought out that it was urgent that the $3,500 be raised this year.

At this point pledge forms were passed to each member present with the resulting figure of $2,500. President Webb assured the members that those absent would be approached and that he felt sure the balance of the needed amount would be raised.

Colonel Dan Taylor and Bob Wechter were guests of the club. Visiting Rotarians were Dr. John Mewborn and P. K. Ewell of Farmville and Ed Jones of Dunn. Club president Webb announced that the Lumberton Rotary club had written that they had endorsed the candidacy of Howard McGinnis for District Governor of Rotary Ladies night was announced for Monday night, May 1, at 7 p. m. in the north dining hall of East Carolina Teachers College. Sam Winchester told about his purchasing for the Rotarians one 920 pound blue ribbon choice baby beef steer from Bob Thomas of Belvoir at the recent Rocky Mount sale of purebreds.

Many Merchants To Attend Meet

A large delegation of merchants plan to attend the 48th annual convention of the North Carolina Merchants Association to be held in Southern Pines, May 8-9, in accordance with a report made in the monthly session of the directors of the Greenville Merchants Association held last night.

A two-day program of interest to all merchants has been arranged. Special discussions will be planned for the following groups: department and specialty stores, druggists, food dealers, furniture dealers, hardware merchants, shoe dealers, jewelers, men's clothing, credit managers, and general merchandise stores. In addition, there will be a banquet and dance. President D. J. Whichard urged every director to attend.

A gratifying report was given by C. A. White, trade promotion chairman, in which he states that events throughout the year are planned by the committee.

B. D. Johnston, chairman of the Advisory Committee of Distributive Education, told the group that 27 persons received certificates in the human relations class, which was completed in March, under the instruction of Mrs. G. C. Frye. At a later date the committee plans other classes in specialized courses. There was a pro and con discussion of the matter of a Farmers' Day in Greenville this year and C. E. Blair of the Special Community

Deeper In Red

Washington, April 18—(AP)—Congressional experts predicted today a $6,700,000,000 federal deficit for the year ending June 30—$1,200,000,000 more than President Truman's January estimate.

The forecast from the staff of the Senate-House Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation was given to the Senate by Chairman George (D-Ga.).

George said the staff also believes that if the spending rate fixed in the President's budget is approved by Congress the government will go into the red $7,300,000,000 in the year starting July 1.

This compares with a $5,100,000,000 estimate made by the President for that year in his January budget message.

Events committee, was requested to confer with the 1949 steering committee with a view to action to be taken toward repeating the affair this year.

Much Adventure In Digging Wells

By CHESTER WALSH
Bill Swindell's Five Points Market at Fifth and Evans streets is having a four-inch well dug in the rear of the store to provide an adequate supply of water for his air conditioning system. Bennie Arnold of Grimesland, professional well digger, is in charge of operations. W. L. Patrick owns the property.

Work on the well was started yesterday morning. Good progress had been made at noon today, Swindell stated. The diggers had struck a reasonable flow of water but decided to go deeper to obtain a larger flow.

Jimmie Smith, the printer, who dug a well on his premises on East 10th street extension had a lot of hard luck, he said. Property owners on the north side of 10th street had to dig 100 or more feet to strike water. Those on the southern side struck an ample supply of water at 35 or 40 feet, he said.

"My trouble," Smith told a Daily Reflector reporter, "was that I wouldn't listen to people when I was digging my well. We went down 112 feet, but fixed our depth at 90 feet.

"Another trouble I had was, we struck volcanic ash below the 100 foot level and you couldn't strain or filter that stuff out of the water. I spent enough money to run a pipe line to the water and light plant before I got water," Smith asserted. "I'm getting enough water for the house but not enough to water the lawn," he added.
